"The moral issue, as we see it, whether or not we as a community want to become in effect 'silent partners' in the distribution of a product which aggravates, possibly creates, serious personality disturbances in its patrons,

(See MINISTERS, page 4)

Coeds Meet Tonight To Elect Y Officers

The YWCA will hold its annual election of officers tonight in house meetings of all women's dormitories and sorority houses.

According to Miss Carol DuPler, elections chairman, a preferential ballot will be used to do away with the need for a runoff election.

Miss Sally Folger, Milledgeville, Ga., is the only candidate for Y presidency. Miss Folger was a delegate to the National YWCA Assembly held in Kansas last December. She has been co-chairman of the Bible Study group, a Y cabinet member and a member of the Regional Council of the YM-YW Human Relations Committee.

VEEP CANDIDATES

Miss Jane Cocke from Asheville and Miss Sallie Cowles are the vice-presidential candidates. Miss Cocke is a member of the Women's Residence Council and the the Human Relations Committee and the Hospital Service Committee of the Y. She is a member of Tri Delta.

Miss Cowles, a Pi Phi from Statesville, is a member of the Hospital Service Committee and the Coffee Klatsch of the Y.

The candidates for secretary of the Y are Misses Marcia Smith and Joan Purser. Miss Smith is a member of KD and is from Swansboro. She is secretary of the Panhellenic Council and a member of the Hospital Service Committee and the Office Force of the Y.

Miss Purser, a Tri Delta from Charlotte, is a member of the Graham Memorial Reception Committee and is on the Human Relations and Program Committees of the YWCA.

TREASURER

Miss Alice Bost and Miss Dot Greulach are the candidates for the office of treasurer. Miss Bost, a Chi Omega from Hickory, is a member of the Y Office Force and the Centennial Committee.

Miss Greulach works on the Hospital Service Committee and the Coed Echo. She is from Chapel Hill. The candidates for Membership Chairman of the YWCA are Miss Anna Windley, KD from Washington, Miss Helen Wood from Miami, Fla. and Miss Shirley Hollis, an Alpha Gam from Charlotte.

Miss Sara Alice Jackson, Chi Omega from Lumberton, and Miss Susie Roberts from Asheville are the candidates for Program Chairman.

Dean Names 128 Students To Honor Roll

A total of 128 students, 106 of whom are North Carolina residents, have qualified for the General College honor roll here on the basis of grades achieved during the past semester, according to Dean C. P. Spruill of the General College.

The students, all freshmen and sophomores, made all As and Bs to qualify for the honor.

Nine students who made all As include John Gray Blount, Washington; Robert M. Boerner, Winston-Salem; James G. Exum, Snow Hill; Graham D. Holding Jr., Charlotte; John C. Parker, Chapel Hill, and Samuel F. Wells Jr. of Reidsville.

Three out-of-staters were in the all-A group: James G. Harrison Jr., Charleston, S. C.; Harry Earl Whitelock, Baltimore, Md., and Paul Ed Willingham, Ridgely, Tenn.

North Carolinians on the general list included:

Chapel Hill—Ellen E. Brauer, Thomas S. Brickhouse, Winfred G. Dodson Jr., Dorothy G. Greulach, Harmon C. McAllister Jr., Richard W. Molten and Luby T. Sherrill Jr.

Durham — Eli N. Evans and Norman A. Germino.

Greensboro—Joseph M. Clapp, Gardner P. H. Foley Jr., Robert M. Kriegsman, Laddie Landau, Archibald K. Maness Jr., William F. Ramsey and Henry C. Turner.

Raleigh—James F. Doar, James B. Graves Jr., Donald Steine, Thomas H. Upton Jr., Donald W. Wade and Robert K. Yowell.

Winston-Salem — Ernest K. James, Elbert R. Jones Jr., David L. Kelly Jr., John D. Nichols, Edward D. Pardington Jr. and Richard W. Shermer.

Other North Carolinians were James Y. Preston, Charlotte; Roger C. Jones, High Point; Robert H. Fuller, Harry Giles, Jerry M. Petty and Howard E. Whisnant, all of Gastonia; Carl G. Pickard, Asheville; Joel Fleishman and John E. Raper Jr., Fayetteville; Fred LeGray Ginn, Caleb J. Maddox and William S. Pate, all of Goldsboro; Edward G. Britt and Jasper Louis Phillips, Kinston; Otis M. Drake and David R. Orr, Hendersonville; Andrew Milnor, Wilmington; Quincy A. Ayscue and Robert L. Baucom, Monroe; William H. Johnson, Reidsville, and Shelley B. Beck, Asheboro.

Robert J. Allison, Roy W. Kirchberg Jr., and J. Derel Monteith, Sylva; Wilbert W. Blackman and William L. Godwin, Smithfield; Arthur R. Price and Roy W. Wilson, Marion; Jesse G. Spencer and Bert B. Warren, Farmville; Thomas C. Taylor and John H. Zollicoffer, Henderson; Charles H. Ashford Jr., New Bern; Richard von Biberstein, Burgaw; Charles O. Boyette, Chadbourn; Claude C. Brooks Jr., Millers Creek; Eugene W. Brown Jr., Rich Square;

(See HONOR ROLL, page 4)

Brubeck's Here This Afternoon

Jazz artist Dave Brubreck will appear in Memorial Hall today from 4 until 6 p.m.

Information about bids may be obtained from Frank Roddy at the Sigma Chi house or from Bob Mason at the DKE house.

Brubeck's appearance is being sponsored by the Germans Club.

Brubeck was featured in the Jan. 17 issue of Life in the article entitled "New Life For U. S. Jazz." In the article he was noted as the "most popular of all the new jazzmen."

According to Life, the pianist ". . . developed his style with the West Coast school."

Legislature's Vets' Affairs Group Meets

The Veterans' Affairs Committee of the student Legislature will meet today at 4 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

According to Charles Hyatt, chairman of the committee, the meeting will be held to discuss possible student legislation pertaining to veterans. He requested that veterans who have any suggestions or problems to be brought before the student Legislature be present at the meeting.

"Only by finding out problems of veterans can the committee recommend legislation to the Legislature," said Hyatt.

Horner Not Guilty Of Misusing Job

"The facts regarding the construction of the residence of Mr D. M. Horner . . . (show) that there were no violations of the laws of North Carolina nor of University regulations," said Business Manager C. E. Teague in a report to Chancellor House released yesterday.

J. A. Williams, personnel officer, and H. L. Ferguson Jr., director of accounting, investigated Horner to "ascertain if there was any misuse of University personnel, equipment of materials, or of any authority attached to his positions."

(Controversy over Horner's house was raised Feb. 25 when the Durham Morning Herald wrote that one of its reporters had gone to Teague, saying he had received a letter suggesting misuse of funds in the UNC operations department.

(An official, said the newspaper, said Horner had been charged with using University personnel to build a $25,000 home, and that he had used University workers.

(Business Manager Teague said the office of operations would "look into it and . . . find out what the facts are.")

In their study Williams and Ferguson interviewed 16 of the 29 University personnel who had worked on Horner's house. The workers said, according to the report, "Mr. Horner paid them for all of the time during which they performed services for him . . . they had not been paid by the University for working on Mr Horner's house."

These 16 men also stated that they worked for Horner when they were on vacation, taking annual leave, on Saturdays, or after regular working hours. Then felt "under no compulsion" to work on Horner's house, said the report.

The report goes on to say," All of the men stated that they had no knowledge of any University equipment being used in the construction of Mr. Horner's house."

According to Ferguson's and William's report there was a difference of opinion between Horner and his supervisors, J. S. Bennett director of operations, and G. F Horney, supervisor of physical plant, concerning whether or not he had permission to employ Uni-

(Se HORNER, page 4)

'Carnot Ill' On Display Here

"Carnot Ill," above, a lithograph print by Toulouse-Lautrec, is part of the collection of medical art on display at the School of Medicine until Friday through the courtesy of Smith, Kline and French Laboratories, under whose grant the collection was assembled. (Philadelphia Museum of Art)

Hudson Urges Students To Attend DTH Confabs

Jack Hudson, chairman of the committee set up to investigate the problems of The Daily Tar Heel, has urged all students to attend open meetings of the committee today and tomorrow from 2 until 4 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounges

According to Hudson, the meetings are being held to hear students' opinions on the newspaper.

Film Critics Slate Meeting For Tomorrow

The Film Critics, newly-formed student organization, will meet for the second time tomorrow.

The club, according to its founders, was organized for discussion and criticism of current moving pictures. The organization is open to all students, faculty members and townspeople. John Sipp and John Talbutt are organizers.

The second meeting will be held tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial.

Business will consist of election of officers, discussion of movie awards given by national magazines and preparation for next week's speaker.

E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina Theater, will speak next week, according to spokesmen for the club.

GMAB Taking Forms For Executive Jobs

Graham Memorial Activities Board is accepting applications for positions as officers, committee chairmen, or committee members.

Interviews are being held this week and next week. Application forms may be picked up in the GM information office or the second floor Activities office.

Only requirement is interest, according to Chairman Gordon Forester.

State Of Campus Talk Shaping Up, Says Webb

Plans for the second State of the University Conference are now in the shaping, reported Beverly Webb, co-chairman along with Susan Fink, yesterday.

The conference was set up by the student Legislature last year to combine faculty and student representatives for an informal discussion about the problems confronting faculty-student relationship.

According to Webb, the conference will be held toward the latter part of April. Topics for the discussion and participants will be announced later, he said.

Icon Breaker To The University

The recent news story about the retirement of Professor Phillips Russell from the University will have untold significance for those students, past and present, for whom Phillips Russell is the University, for whom he epitomizes all the virtues of liberal learning, thoughtfulness and frankness.

His journalism will still be here next year in The Chapel Hill News Leader; but his great teaching, his Socratic classroom manner will be lost to the University. Hundreds of newspapermen who know him and learned from him and love him will be sorry for that loss.

One such newspaperman, a friend of his, wrote to us this week:

> To me, he is one of the last of the eccentric professors—eccentric because he questions almost everything, and thus conforms to almost nothing. He is one rebel whom the weight of years has failed to tame. Something on an icon breaker, he is perhaps basically conservative; because his radicalism stems from insistence that the basic principles of freedom, democracy and justice be applied. And withal, he is (I suspect) a great teacher and (I know) a great gentleman.

Phillips Russell's production, in books and newspapers foreign and domestic, cannot be measured by the standards of journalism alone, or even by the standards of teaching.

For Phillips Russell, the non-conformist, does not lend himself to any such yardsticks. He is in a class alone—in independent position—a writer and teacher of signal wisdom and honest purpose and high accomplishment.

A Sterner Stuff Than Cinerama

Thoughtful Americans in all walks of life have greeted with gratitude and respect the General Electric Company's plan to stimulate donations to privately operated American colleges and universities.

What General Electric already has set out to do in the realm of higher education, says an editorial in the current Theatre Arts magazine, can and should be applied to the arts in America.

Says Theatre Arts:

> If it is axiomatic that it is vital to aid privately operated American colleges, then it is equally important to aid the arts. Even more so, in a sense, simply because we are living in an atomic age in which practical or physical values tend to overshadow aesthetic ones unless we look beyond surface considerations.

So let us go beyond surface considerations.

The magazine argues that it is just common sense to encourage the culture which is just as much our heritage as our stockpile of technical resources.

We agree. Our survival, and that of our allies, depends not alone on our ability to blow up people but on our ability to show people that we have a better way of life—and that means cultural accomplishment along with our streptomycin, washing machines and bank accounts.

These latter things everybody knows we have. But culture? A recent American performance of Porgy and Bess in Belgrade reaped more expressions of gratitude—and amazement—from the Yugoslavs than all our military and economic aid, according to a New York Times reporter on the scene.

Why doesn't private enterprise come to the aid of the arts? They believe it is good business to foster education, and it is. It makes equally good sense, for our own and our friends' sake, to help painting, sculpture, music and the theater along.

We need to let the world know we're made of sterner stuff than Cinerama and Dyna-Flow.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Chapel Hill
Site of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Why Do They Have To Just Teach Texts?

Louis Kraar

"I'M TIRED of having professors just teach us the text," she said quite unhappily.

This was a friend talking about Carolina. She had just transferred from the Woman's College in Greensboro and sounded a little disappointed.

"You read the text. Then, when you come to class the next day, they tell you what you've read. By the time they're through going over the assignment—telling you what you've already read—the bell rings," she said.

This idea of professors just teaching quizzes is an old one, but there is valid basis for complaint many times. Particularly in the General College courses does one find that the professor wants a student merely to memorize,

The old joke that professors want students to take down what they say and give it back with as little thought as possible is hardly a joke when it turns out to be true. And, even here, it is brutally and prosaically true at times.

I like to think of the classroom as a place for the exchange of opinions and ideas. Of course, this assumes that the students have read and mastered assignments before coming to this forum. And if the University is to do more than teach by rote, students must do this and faculty members must stop parroting back text assignments.

★

STUDENT PARTY people, still embarrassed over the overstated complaints against the campus paper, made it clear that their legislative caucus didn't even know about the "investigation."

Nevertheless, it is equally clear that all the speakers for the probe were Student Party people.

I might offer one suggestion to the would-be investigators: Why not have WUNC-TV broadcast the investigation a la McCarthy vs. the Army so that all the dorm dwellers for whom you bought sets might see you in action.

★

JACK HUDSON, SP politician, bet me an ice cream cone that Don Fowler would win the nomination.

★

DAVID REID supporters are disappointed in the Student Council's ruling that he can't run.

And they have a right to be disappointed. The law that the Legislature recently passed requires an overall average of C. Reid has that average.

The Student Council, however, declared that courses taken to remove entrance deficiencies don't count toward the C average. This means that Reid can't run.

While I'm making no accusations, it is clear that most of the Student Council is strongly University Party in sentiment. Reid supporters point to this.

★

WHEN BOB Young got up before the Student Party meeting Monday night and suggested that Muntzing run for vice-president, he was—like most of the speakers—completely ignored.

Fowler's supporters thought this would be a shrewd move. Only trouble was that by the time they got around to suggesting the deal, it was too late. It's hardly likely that it would have been accepted anyway.

'Remember Now—Don't Make Any Sudden Moves'

YOU Said It

Criticism Of A Criticism Of A...

Editor:

As a professional writer for and associate editor of national magazines, I have watched with interest for the past thirty years the publications of various colleges and universities, among them the University of North Carolina. It is in these publications that editors find talent—and the writers and editors of the immediate future.

Frequently one also finds, and forgives, various other manifestations, such as preciousness. But there is one manifestation that one does not often find, nor so easily forgive, and that is pure destructiveness. It is of this that I should like, if I may, to speak.

In a recent issue of The Daily Tar Heel, there appeared a full-length, two-column article which was, in effect, a review of a review. The original review was a fair criticism of the University's literary magazine, the Carolina Quarterly; the two-column article was a criticism of this criticism.

The young man who wrote this two-column article—and obviously he is a very young man—is caught in nearly all the pitfalls which youth digs for itself: prolixity, bombast and the use of a glittering if somewhat unsteady vocabulary. ("Artistic nihilism" was, I think, my own favorite: but there were other expressions—among them 'vestigial advertising'—of an equally exotic inaccuracy.)

The young writer (whose name is Scarborough) in attempting to expose the shortcomings of the Quarterly has succeeded merely in exposing two weaknesses in himself: One, a fundamental flaw in judgment; and two, a flagrant breach of good taste.

Having read his "review," I secured and examined carefully the latest issue of the Quarterly; I had previously read the fall issue with a good deal of interest. As a reader, and as an editor, I liked and enjoyed them both. I consider them at least average in literate, mature content and above average in editing. I liked some of the fiction pieces better than others; I thought less of the verse than of the prose. But knowing, as of course one does, the financial and cooperative difficulties with which a college magazine is invariably forced to cope, I consider both issues to be not only excellent as college publications, but a vast improvement on those of the past few years.

Young Mr. Scarborough, however, disagrees; and he is unwise enough to pin his criticism down to specifics: He does not think the editing is worthy because "the pages are of uneven length." (I do not know precisely what this statement means, but clearly nothing good.) He objects to poetry being "crowded under the endings of stories in inconspicuous places." (He is, apparently, unfamiliar with the pages—all of even length, of course—of such amateur publications as The Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Magazine and The New Yorker.) And he complains of various other things. This young man, who is not, in fact, equipped to make a professional criticism of any publication, has done so at vast length—and all quite destructively.

But there is still the matter of taste. The young writer refers several times to "Editor Dunn"; he cavils with "Editor Dunn's" policy. I cannot find Mr. Scarborough's name on the masthead of the Quarterly—in this issue; I can, however, find it in the issue of last fall. In a skeptical, and quite possibly cynical fashion, this writer asks himself whether Mr. Scarborough has, by any chance, a personal ax to grind?

For there can be, I think, only three valid reasons for the writing of nay such piece of pretentious nonsense as this review. One: the writer wishes,, deliberately, and from simon-pure (although mysterious) motives, to kill all interest and belief in the Carolina Quarterly. Two: for some purely personal reason not visible to the casual reader, he is determined not only to disparage the abilities of "Editor Dunn," but (a far more serious goal) to accuse him of a lack of integrity. Three: the writer likes very much to see himself in print.

May I be allowed therefore to point out that, regardless of the personalities involved, this sort of criticism must inevitably work a hardship upon a small, struggling magazine which deserves the support of a large and famous university?

E. E. Clarke
Charleston, S. C.

The Hydrogen Bomb:

'Outside The Scope Of Control'

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON — "There is an immense gulf between the atomic and the hydrogen bomb. The atomic bomb, with all its terror, did not carry us outside the scope of human control . . ."

The words are Sir Winston Churchill's, from his brilliant and moving speech to the House of Commons on Tuesday. In these words, Churchill has said in effect what almost every informed American official tacitly recognizes, but hesitates to asknowledge—that the world has passed the point of no return. Even if the will to do so existed on both sides, it is no longer possible to regulate or control the new weapons.

THE VITAL DIFFERENCE

The hydrogen bomb is amazingly easy to make, and very large numbers have already been made. But the vital difference is in the bomb's power. Nowadays, because of the special characteristic of fall-out, only a handful of bombs delivered on target would be sufficient to destroy the war potential of even such continental powers as the United States and the Soviet Union.

The number required to paralyze this country, for example, has been authoritatively estimated as low as twenty-eight. But call it fifty, or even a hundred, the hydrogen bomb, like the atomic bomb, sends out no detectable radiation—there is no way of detecting its presence except by uncovering the actual object itself. So the problem of hiding fifty or a hundred hydrogen bombs is no more difficult than that of hiding, say, fifty or a hundred ten-ton trucks.

STURDY CHILD OF TERROR

This would be no problem at all in the vast reaches of the Soviet Union, or indeed in the United States. Thus there is no agreement imaginable that could assure one side of the divided world that the other side had not secretly retained the means of total annihilation.

When Churchill talks of a "stage in this story when safety will be the sturdy child of terror," he makes it very clear that this stage will be reached, if at all, only on three conditions.

The first condition is that an aggressor must be faced with the certainty of "crushing retaliation." The second condition is "substantial strength in conventional forces," in order to fight non-nuclear wars—"limited wars with limited objectives." The third condition is the closest Possible "unity . . . between the United Kingdom and the United States."

As Churchill likes to say, "I have not always been wrong" And surely his views deserve a most respectful hearing, even in the august National Security Council, now that the new weapons are so clearly "outside the scope of human control," and Churchill's peace of mutual terror is the very best the world can hope for.

Reaction Piece

More Money Needed For The Band

David Mundy

The University band has been out on the wrong end of all too many limbs.

It, more than any other student organization on campus, represents the University to the people of the state. Numerically, it is even one of the largest organizations. From the first performance of the marching band at the first football game of the season until the final performance of the concert band at Commencement, directly or indirectly, it represents the University. If the members march out of step or play out of tune the visitors add that impression to their general impression of the University. The students looking on just groan.

Why doesn't the University have a better band? Band Director E. A. Slocum and Assistant Director Herbert Fred are susceptible to no criticism on either musical or organizing abilities.

★

It is even more difficult to criticize the present members of the band. Some of them, as music majors, do achieve some reward in the form of 'experience' for their hours of practice. But that reward is infinitesimal, considering their contributions to the University.

And more surprising than that is the exhibition of "service to the student body" which is presented by the non-music majors who are members of the band. Why do they employ their talents in hours and hours of practice, just to march around in old uniforms with old instruments? They receive no reward but some sense of satisfaction for serving the University. Theirs is a "loyalty and devotion" beyond the "normal call of duty" which no other campus group exhibits.

★

Yet they have troubles, both in relation to the size of their membership and to the quality of their performances.

In a list of solutions to almost any problem, you are able to find the mention of money. And it is present here.

The budget for 1954-1955 amounts to exactly $2670. It is a ridiculously low figure for the operation of a college band.

Most of the band's financial support comes from the Athletic Association. In more stringent words, the Athletic Association barely keeps the band in existence.

Its support cannot be entirely from altruistic motives: it needs something to watch while the football team is off the field during the half. And from the music department the band chiefly obtains the musical talent, rehearsal space, and occasional instruments.

★

The student Legislature made an attempt to assist in obtaining new uniforms by appropriating some money from its unappropriated surplus. But that move ran afoul of what could loosely be called "responsibilities of the student government."

The attempt to obtain these new uniforms has practically been abandoned. The band's best hopes at present are for new caps and coats, which would cost, according to a manufacturer, about $3850.

This amount, more than the total present budget, appears to be unavailable from any source. Band Director Slocum estimates that a sufficient budget for next year would amount to approximately $8000.

The increases are necessary not only for new coats and hats, but for the one thing which would increase the attractiveness of participation in the band: trips to play at "away" football games. And as the attractiveness of participation increases, the quality of the band should increase with the accompanying increase in the size.

But where does the money come from?

The Thumper Goes Fishing

The Charlotte News

Fishing has always been considered a pleasant, plebeian pastime for which a fellow could lay out 50 cents for a cane pole or $50 for a surf casting rig and be happy as a zillionaire. As long as worms were under the backyard soil, fishing never seemed to be in danger of joining polo or fox hunting as a sport of the Coupe De Ville set.

But a photo on the nation's sports pages raises doubts. It is a simple picture of a handsome man holding a freshly-caught fish. The blue skies of the Florida Keys are behind him; the man is wearing a tee shirt and a look of contentment; the photo is one of outdoor innocence and delight. But this is not a common snapshot to tuck into a fisherman's wallet with a faded notation ("1 2-lb. snapper caught 2-28-55"). The handsome man's name is Theodore Samuel Williams, alias The Thumper, alias the highest paid baseball player in the world.

Not since the Sheppard trial finale has the citizenry, especially those of the Boston Red Sox persuasion, so eagerly awaited a verdict. Has Ted Williams quit baseball, as Ted Williams said so firmly last summer? Or will Ted Williams join the Red Sox again this year, as the baseball writers insist?

Meanwhile, the man in the tee shirt cranks up an outboard motor each morning and putt-putts across the blue Florida waters in pursuit of bonefish. Doubtless there has never been an angler so stubbornly dedicated as Ted Williams, who is giving up $100,000 a year in baseball salary to enjoy his casting. For purity of purpose, does not such fanaticism rival that of Edward VIII, who also abdicated a throne for love?

Why, even if Williams hauls in 1,000 fish per annum, our accounting expert figures they are costing him $100 a catch. This gives our dangling of creek minnows in the faces of Catawba River bass the associative tang of strolling down Wall Street.

Thus, Williams can become a folk hero in a new way. Let the hated Yankees win the pennant, let Fenway Park crumple to dust, let Tom Yawkey's millions lie unspent. The Thumper is going fishing.

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coe

(The Horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others.—Hipporotis, circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was lying on the deck of his stable, when I found him, and not alone inert, but downright truculently so. His eight-balls of eyes rolled and flashed like summer lightning in the night.

I wondered was he not well . . .?

"I am horse-de-combat," The Horse stated in a low murmur, and with his usual confused French. "It is desired to maintain a stable state of affairs, so why stall around? As Caesar said when Cleopatra came panthering across the Rubicon, 'J'y suis, J'y reste.'"

Ai, yi, yi! Two months of Educational Television had achieved this result?

"I did a little extra scholaring on the side," The Horse shrugged his lips modestly. "Burned the midnight oil a nonce or three. T helps, 't does."

Was The Horse certain it was not midnight fusel oil . . .? 'T was MacMahon, the Frenchman, who had said that in 1855 when advised to give up the Malakoff, that J'y suis, J's reste.

"Well, anytime anyone named MacMahon is a Frenchman," The Horse growled, "I give up. But I still think what Caesar said to Cleopatra would make better reading, if banned in Boston or not."

I wondered if I could report that The Horse was in the throes of spring fever, apparently? I wondered could I say he had been downed by an annual lassitude common to vernal joys?

"Alas, Roger me bhoy," The Horse sighed, but with a flicker of interest in his eye, "I am rapidly achieving the sum of years when lassitudes smile at me indulgently as they leopard past; and when vernal joys are relegated to sniffing in the breezes blowing from Germany for the first nares-provoking titillation of the mead of the wort."

If The Horse meant bock beer, why didn't he say so? Since I had been also listening to the Take A Word chapter of WUNC-Tv's Almanack Hour (6 to 7 p.m.-ly Mon. through Fri.) I had cultivated the dictionary habit to some degree, and I knew that bock beer was brewed from a strong Spring wort, or plant. And doubtless The Horse went for hogwort?

"Spiderwort," The Horse corrected me, "is my cherce, because it is not unknown that vernal enthusiasms render four legs, even as sturdy as mine own, an insufficient number for ambulation when evoes, not to mention heads, are ringing. Centipedes have their points, me lad. Certain fluids have certain unattractive effects on certain heads, and many exhaustive researches by Darwin, Huxley and Ball inconclusively prove that The oHrse, as ensampled by recent studies of goniocraniometry, are especially prone to such disturbances."

If The Horse meant headaches were induced by converting grains into liquids and consuming them, then why not give up such pursuits?

"All for research and progress," The Horse said piously, or was it pie-eyedly?

"Did you not note I said the researches heretofore were inconclusive? Besides, my approach is new: I am relating potvaliancy to the angles of the head rather than to what is in the head."

I thought this inescapable so long as The Horse was concerned so personally with it.

"Shaddup," The Horse ordered, "and anyway, with the Chapel Hill P.-T.A. discussing the advancement and support of their children's a-b-c's via A. B. C.s, it is only patriotic of me. But it is something for us to think about, and thus it leaves me cold."

And hot or cold, I was leaving The Horse, also. How were things otherwise?

"Wump!" Mr. Wump, the low-visioned Frog, clarified for me from a rafter. "Double-wump!"

Determined Frosh Pushing Veterans For Top Positions In Spring Drills

Williams, Lineberger, Setzer Posing As Stiff Competition

By JACK MURPHY

A scrappy bunch of determined freshmen are making their bids to win starting positions on the Tar Heel football eleven of 1955.

No less than 22 yearlings are highlighting the spring practice sessions as they begin the last half of the four-week training period.

Veteran guards Bill Koman and John Jones are meeting stiff competition from Jack Lineberger and "Hap" Setzer, pride of Coach Ralph Floyd's freshman club last fall. The tank-like mighty mites, both weighing over two hundred pounds and under six feet in height, have every attribute necessary for the makings of two great guards—speed, aggressiveness, power, and an overwhelming desire to play football. Lineberger is from Belmont, and Setzer from Lenoir.

Howard Williams is another freshman making a strong bid for the wide open fullback job. The pile-driving Hertford boy has been battling soph Don Lear for the spot. It was Williams who grabbed the winning extra point aerial from Buddy Sasser in the Duke freshman game last season.

A PAIR of frosh ends, Buddy Payne and Vince Olsen, present yet another battle for a spot on the '55 team. Payne, a Norfolk, Va. product, is currently running with the first team and Olen is pushing Will Frye and Larry Muschamp at the other flank.

Joe Temple, one of the finest prep backs in the state last year at Valdese High School, has demonstrated the speed, drive, and elusiveness of a future star halfback while pushing Larry McMullen and Ken Keller for a spot in the backfield. Temple's best game as a freshman at Carolnia was the Maryland contest in which he returned a kick-off some 80 yards for the lone Tar Baby score.

Jimmy Jones, from Greensboro where he was voted "Most Outstanding Player" in an annual East-West High School all-star game, is a first-rate replacement for steady George Stavnitski at center. Out most of the past season with a shoulder injury, Jones is making a name for himself in every scrimmage as a rock on defense and a deadly blocker.

THREE MORE frosh are having it out for steady employment at the quarterback position. Buddy Sasser, Ron Marquette, and David Reed all were outstanding on the freshman team. Sasser sparked the win over South Carolina with two beautiful scoring runs that had the old timers whispering something about a "Choo Choo" train. Reed took the reigns against Virginia when Sasser was hurt and promptly passed and ran his team to another win.

Marquette got his chance when both Sasser and Reed were out with injuries, and the big converted single wing tailback ran the Duke Blue Imps as dizzy as a headless turkey in the annual cerebral palsy benefit game on Thanksgiving Day. If the Sutton experiment falls through and Bullock needs help, these three generals will be ready.

TACKLE LEO Russavage and back Steve Kupchick were among the most applauded freshmen last fall but leg injuries have kept them out of spring practice. When they heal there will be two more thorns in the sides of the veteran Tar Heels.

Linemen Frank Berry, Phil Blazer, Jack Llewellyn, Mike Munchak, Paul Pulley, and Bill Woods and backs Dick Darling, Donnie Kelley, Wally Vale, Jim Varnum, and Daley Goff are still more freshmen seeking spots opposite the red clad Sooners come next September and opening day at Kenan Stadium.

ATO-1 Smashes Phi Gam-2 In Cage Playoffs

Sigma Chi-1, Phi Delt-1 And TEP-1 Also Triumph

The intra-mural basketball playoff series got under way yesterday with Sigma Chi-1, ATO-1, TEP-1 and Phi Delt-1 coming through with victories in the 4 o'clock games.

The Sigma Chi squad led at half-time by a 19-9 score over a stubborn ATO-4 team. During the second half, Sigma Chi scored 30 while the ATO's hit for only eight to give the Sigma Chi's a 49-17 victory. Mitchell led the winners with 13 points while his teammate Osborne tallied 10. Graham Shanks led the scoring for the losers with eight points.

The ATO-1 squad had better luck than the No. 4 team as they trounced Phi Gam-2 by the score of 77-30. Billy Mason copped scoring honors for the victors as he netted 27 points. Teammates Jerry Russel and Bill Kirkman scored 18 and 16, respectively, to ice the game. Gerry Gardener led the outmanned Phi Delt club with nine markers.

TEP-1 outplayed Kappa Sigma-2 in the second half and wound up with a 55-36 triumph. The TEP's had a slim 24-20 lead after the first half. Ira Davis and Stan Stern both netted 20 for the winners and shared the high scoring honors. Teammate Dave Garmise's rebounds also played an important role in the victory. Yowell was high man for the losers with 10 points.

In the closest contest of the afternoon, the Phi Delt-1 team downed Delta Sig-1 by the score of 42-32. Lewellen hit 16 and Hooper tallied 11 for the winners. Tommy Norman chalked up 12 points for the losers. The Phi Delts gained an early lead and were never headed.

Darrell Floyd Selected Player Of Year In S. C.

RICHMOND, Va., March 7. (AP)—All-American Darrell Floyd of Furman was the "basketball player of the year" in the Southern Conference.

Floyd, whose 36.5-point-per-game scoring average topped the nation, was named for the honor today by the Southern Conference Sports Writers Assn. Balloting for the "player of the year" award was conducted here last weekend in conjunction with the conference basketball tournament.

Floyd will be presened he Mac Pitt Trophy, newly named by the association in honor of the University of Richmond athletic director.

Others receiving votes for the "player of the year" award included Rod Hundley of West Virginia; Corky Devlin and Joe Holup of George Washington University; Warren Mills of Richmond and Johnny Mahoney of William and Mary.

Co-Rec Sports Events Tonight, 7 O'clock

The annual co - recreational sports carnival, featuring 20 mixed teams of men and women, will get under way tonight at Woollen Gym at 7 o'clock.

Trophies will be given to the teams getting the highest number of points and to the individual winners in each event. Thirty-two campus organizations are represented.

Six Diamond Posts Clinched

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Six of the nine positions on the Tar Heel baseball squad have been all but clinched as the Carolina baseballers start down the home stretch of spring practice.

Tom Zachary seems to have the first base position well in hand. Zachary should open the season at the initial sack but will have to fight to hold down the post when Will Frye returns to the squad. Coach Walter Rabb said, "Frye and Keller will not become starters when the rejoin the club. They will have to work themselves back into shape and play better ball than the boys who will be playing before they get a chance to become full fledged starters."

Frye and Keller have been at football practice and should report to the diamond in about two weeks.

THE BATTLE for second base has been narrowed down to Chuck Hartman and Buddy Strause. Al Long should open at shortstop and Iver Lee Hill will be stationed at the hot corner.

Bobby Paller and Connie Gravitte are two sure starters in the outfield. Paller will patrol right field and Gravitte will cover the ground in center field.

Left field will be taken by either left-handed Mal Harding or sophomore Dick Hudson.

When Keller rejoins the squad and can return to normal playing shape, Rabb will move Paller to left field where he played last year and Keller will be back at his old post in right field.

JIMMY LOWE has looked sharp in practice and should have locks on the catching position. Jack Maultsby, who is also a football refugee might give Love a battle when he returns.

The pitching situation remains a big muddle. Tom Maultsby and Jim Raugh can be counted on as starters but after that, it's just a guessing game. Don Hill, Morris Hall, Art Stone, Bob Johnson, Billy Joe Johnson and Eric Heiden have all been working during batting practice.

Duke Loses To Villanova

The Villanova-Duke game, starting out slow with a steady accompaniment of whistle-tooting for fouls, wound up in a blaze of scoring as the Blue Devils closed the gap from 10 points to one in the last three minutes.

Villanova, which led 39-29 at the half and 57-44 in the middle of the second period, almost came apart in the closing minutes as sharpshooting Joe Belmont and Dan Tobin began hitting with their outside shots and slicing through the defense. The final score was 74-73.

N. C. State Ranked Fourth In Final AP Cage Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The University of San Francisco, acclaimed the nation's No. 1 college basketball team in the final regular season Associated Press poll, faced tough sledding today as the Dons attempted to prove their rating in the NCAA basketball championship tournament.

The Dons took over the top spot in the weekly poll Feb. 7 after Kentucky's second loss to Georgia Tech and the Californians have remained No. 1 ever since.

Kentucky, which held the top ranking from the third week in December until derailed by Georgia Tech, was close behind San Francisco as ballots from 171 of the nation's sports writers and sportscasters were tallied. A year ago Kentucky ruled No. 1 at the regular season's close.

SAN FRANCISCO received 67 first place votes. and on the basis of 10 points for first, nine for second, etc., the Dons rolled up 1424 points. Kentucky, the Southeastern Conference champion, polled 58 first and 1358 points. Right behind with 1043 points is LaSalle, the defending NCAA tournament champion. No other team received as many as 1000 points.

There was one major upheaval in the top 10 this week. Iowa, No. 12 a week ago, bounced into the No. 5 spot after capturing the Big Ten Conference title. Oregon State, Pacific Coast Conference champion, took over the No. 10 after being No. 14 last week.

NORTH CAROLINA State, barred from the NCAA tournament, is No. 4. Others in the first 10 are Duquense 6, Utah 7, Marquette 8, and Dayton 9.

Cowan Only Tar Heel To Win Title Match

By AL KORSCHUN

Varsity wrestler Hugh Cowan has been voted The Daily Tar Heel "Athlete of the Week" by virtue of his winning the 130-pound ACC wrestling championship last weekend in Woollen Gym.

Cowan, who was seeded second in the conference tournament, gained the crowd's eye when he beat Maryland's Baryl Cohen for the second time this year in the semifinal round. In the final match of the 130-pound class, with the crowd pulling for him all the way, Hugh rallied from behind to upset top-seeded Chuck Roth (Duke) in one of the most exciting matches of the final round.

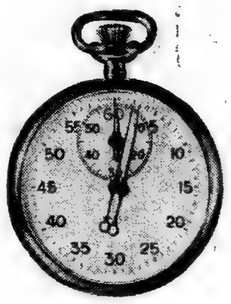
By winning the conference title, Cowan earned the right to enter the NCAA tournament which will be held at Cornell University, March 25-26.

Cowan, a sophomore from Ann Arbor, Michigan, came to Carolina last year with three years of high school wrestling experience behind him. Improving steadily as the season progressed, he went undefeated in four matches as a freshman and was elected team captain at the end of the season.

Hugh began his first varsity season this year rather unimpressively by losing four matches while wrestling out of his weight class at 137 pounds. However, he finished up the season strongly by scoring three victories, one of these being against conference champion Maryland.

The Tar Heel team showed up much better in tournament competition than it had done in compiling an unsuccessful season's record of one victory and nine defeats. On an unofficial scoring basis of 7-5-3-1 points for first, second, third, and fourth places, the Tar Heels placed third behind Maryland and Virginia, respectively.

177-pounder Miles Gregory, who had won four of his six past season matches, battled State's Al Henry down to the final bell before losing a 4-3 decision. Brodus Thompson at 137 pounds, who had been ineligible for the first half of the recent campaign, pleasantly surprised Coach Sam Barnes in taking third place in his weight class, easily defeating Bill Jarrell (Duke) in their consolation bout.



BOB and MONK of TOWN & CAMPUS SALUTE HUGH COWAN who was Carolina's only championship winner (in the 130-pound class) in Saturday's ACC Wrestling tournament here. Cowan, unseeded, rallied to come from behind to win his title match.

We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house

We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.

TOWN & CAMPUS

Still time... to remember her with TELEGRAMS!

If you've been remiss with the miss don't despair! There's always time to make amends with telegrams.

Flash her a glowing birthday greeting in your own inimitable style. Its delivery on Western Union's special blank will win her undying devotion.

Yes sir—any way you look at it, telegrams are a guy's (and a gal's) best friend. Just call your helpful Western Union office.

On any occasion it's wise to wire WESTERN UNION

121 N. Columbia St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
Tel. 5311 and 2681

LADIES' DRESSES

We have a big new shipment of spring

Dresses

New Snappy Spring

Pocket Books

All colors and shapes Hot Buy Now

You may LAYAWAY an Easter Outfit Now

A small Deposit will hold anything you select

Ladies' Blouses

In assorted patterns in Dacron, Nylon, Rayon, Cotton

Pajamas up to 3.48 Now 2.69—2 prs. 5.00 each

Wool Jersey Blouses were 5.98

now 2 for 5.00

HOSE SPECIAL

51 x 15 fine quality

$1.00

Colors, Sunrise Beige Red Fox Blondette

Mesh Hose Seamless $1.00

White Seamless—slightly higher

Cotton and Rayon "Movie Star"

Slips — 1.98

Spring Blouses

Hollyvogue dolls up the Doll Sleeve shirt as advertised in MADEMOISELLE 3.95 up

3.95

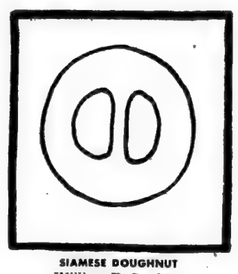
BERMAN'S DEPT. STORE

It will STOP you in your tracks! GO see THE RACERS CINEMASCOPE from 20th Century-Fox Color by DE LUXE

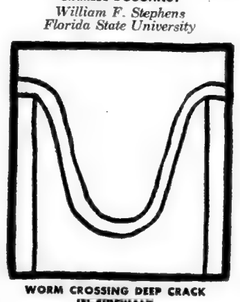
Thur.-Fri.-Sat.

Carolina

no man ever loosed such fury... no woman ever felt such fire!

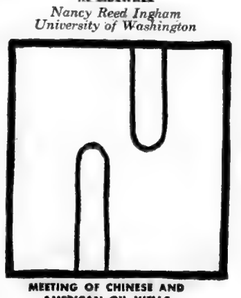


BURT LANCASTER APACHE in color by Technicolor JEAN PETERS

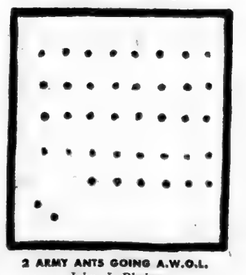


Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

NOW PLAYING

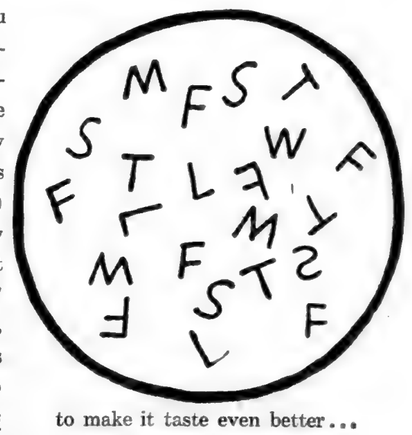


Carolina



SIAMESE DOUGHNUT
William F. Stephens
Florida State University

WORM CROSSING DEEP CRACK IN SIDEWALK
Nancy Reed Ingham
University of Washington

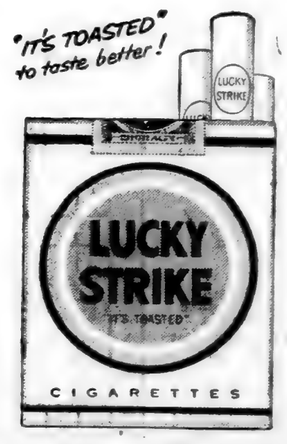


MEETING OF CHINESE AND AMERICAN OIL WELLS
Gary A. Steiner
University of Chicago

2 ARMY ANTS GOING A.W.O.L.
John J. Phelan
Boston College

LUCKY DROODLES! GET 'EM HERE!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.
Droodle suggested by Norman Gerber, C.C.N.Y.



HAVE A LITTLE FUN when you smoke. Enjoy yourself. Give yourself the pleasure of a better-tasting Lucky Strike. The enthusiasm often inspired by Luckies' famous better taste is illustrated in the Droodle (right) titled: Alphabet soup for Lucky smoker. So why stew over what cigarette to smoke? Luckies' taste is letter-perfect. After all, L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better... cleaner, fresher, smoother. When you light up, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette... Lucky Strike.

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So, send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER... Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

GMAB Talent Bureau Tryouts Are Tomorrow

Graham Memorial Talent Bureau will hold tryouts tomorrow afternoon from 4-5 and tomorrow night from 8-9, announced Gordon Forester, yesterday.

Forester, GMAB chairman, explained the purpose for setting up the bureau as "a source where persons and organizations, both on the campus and outside, can rely for securing good entertainment."

"The names of the performers who are selected at the tryouts will be kept on file at GM and will be recommended to agencies or individuals who come here to hire entertainment," Forester said.

Encouraging all interested students to come to the Rendezvous Room in GM basement tomorrow Forester said, "It is a good chance for students to make money." He ended up by saying that the file "should be of great help to people on campus who need entertainment for socials."

Frosh Camp Planning Session Set Thursday

There will be a meeting of all persons interested in planning and being counselors of next fall's Freshman Camp on Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the second floor dining room of Lenoir Hall.

An evaluation of last year's camp will be part of the program, along with suggestions for the coming camp session.

Zager, Quinn Named To Posts

MISS SUSAN QUINN
. . . Woman's Handbook editor

Susan Quinn Selected As Handbook Editor

Miss Susan Quinn has been selected as Woman's Handbook Editor by the Women's Residence Council.

Miss Quinn, a junior journalism major from Roanoke, Va., will be charged with editing the handbook distributed annually to new coeds.

Her first job is to appoint a handbook staff. She said yesterday that women interested in work with the group should contact her as soon as possible. This year's handbook is scheduled to go to press in May, according to the new editor.

Miss Quinn attended Westhampton College of the University of Richmond before coming here this year.

MISS MARILYN ZAGER
. . . Leadership Training Chief

Marilyn Zager Named Leadership Chairman

Miss Marilyn Zager has been selected chairman of the annual Women's Leadership Training program to be held April 26 and 27.

Miss Zager, a senior sociology major from Greensboro, will head a 10-member council to carry out this year's program on the theme "The Hit Parade of Effective Leadership."

The qualities necessary for good and effective leadership will be stressed in the two-day training period, Miss Zager said. Included in the program will be daily mass meetings of all coeds, followed by several smaller meetings. The highlight of the event will be the student government banquet on

Miss Zager is chairman of the Independent Women's Council and president of Smith Dormitory. She also is a member of Hillel, Graham Memorial Polls Committee and the Women's Residence Council.

She attended Oberlin College and Woman's College Greensboro before entering the University.

WHAT GOES ON HERE

ED WIVES

The Ed Wives Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Arnold Perry on Smith Ave. in Forest Hills. Speakers for the evening will be Miss Irmgard Roth, Fulbright scholarship student from Germany, and Robert Bogue, formerly with the World Health Organization in Egypt.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

It is imperative that all members of the Men's Glee Club be present at every rehearsal, announced Joseph McGugam, publicity manager for the Glee Club yesterday. There will be a rehearsal with the girls from St. Mary's on Friday at 4 p.m. This will be the only practice before the concert at St. Mary's, according to McGugam.

7½ Cents

by Richard Bissell

Here's the sprightly novel from which the rave musical comedy "The Pajama Game" was made. A gay and wicked novel you'll be lending to your best friends. Published at $3.50.

OUR SPECIAL

$1.00

There's a bargain tailored to your taste in

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Open Evenings

TODAY ONLY!

Varsity

SPEAKS TO PRESS CLUB:

Lefler Says Early Newspapers Valuable To Historians

'SKIPPER' COFFIN & SPEAKER HUGH LEFLER
. . . at Monday night's Pess Club meeting

Because most early North Carolina editors "wrote what they saw," newspapers are valuable sources of historical information, Dr. Hugh T. Lefler, Kenan Professor of history, told the University Press Club here this week.

Speaking on "Early North Carolina Newspapers," Dr. Lefler said historians are putting increased dependence on newspapers for news items, editorials and advertisements tell much about the various phases of history.

Dr. Lefler said early newspapers usually are dependable sources because of the honesty of their editors. "Advertisers did not influence them in early days," he said.

North Carolina's first newspaper, according to the historian, was The North Carolina Gazette, published at New Bern in 1751. The editor, James Davis, ran a book store, sold guns, was public printer, postmaster, and state legislator, and printed some counterfeit money, Dr. Lefler said. Like most early editors, Davis "did everything" connected with the newspaper.

Early newspapers had no cartoons, comic strips or large headlines, but they did publish speeches, discourses and "anything people hadn't heard," according to Dr. Lefler.

Political journalism in North Carolina had its beginning around 1800, with Raleigh as its natural center. Each major political party had a newspaper, The Raleigh Register and The North Carolina Standard being the most influential.

"William W. Holden was the most powerful editor North Carolina ever had. As editor of The Standard he dominated eastern North Carolina political journalism for many years," Dr. Lefler told the group.

But the boldness of rival Editor Josiah Turner Jr., in calling Holden "a white-livered scoundrel" played a big part in Holden's impeachment, conviction and expulsion from office as Reconstruction Governor of North Carolina.

Early newspapers were printed on excellent rag-content paper, Dr. Lefler said, but the type usually was old and worn. Favorite names for newspapers were Mercury, Star and Gazette, and the most unusual one was The Live Giraffe, published around 1850.

In concluding his address, Dr. Lefler said historians are putting too much emphasis on daily newspapers. He urged that more attention be paid the weeklies, many of which were very powerful in forming public opinion.

The speaker was introduced by Raymond M. Taylor, who termed him "a man who has brought great credit to our University through his work as a teacher, a writer and a true scholar." Bill Venable, Press Club president, presided.

LADY MILTON SHOP

Just received shipment of beautiful short sleeve shirts including batiste—at lowest price imaginable—all single needle tailoring—

only 4.95

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

YOU'RE WANTED ON THE PHONE!

You're wanted... you're needed to watch the skies and man the phones in the Ground Observer Corps... Volunteer to serve two hours a week as a civilian plane spotter and help keep your country safe from air attack.

Call or write Civil Defense

Wake Up! Sign Up! Look Up!

Join the GROUND OBSERVER CORPS

Write or Phone:
DURHAM FILTER CENTER
Morris Street
Durham

FILM SERIES

Rocking Horse Winner will be presented in the GMAB Film Series at at 8 p.m. tomorrow night in Carroll Hall.

HAVE YOU SEEN COTTONS AT

The Little Shop

—Honor Roll—

(Continued from Page 1)

Daniel E. Clark and Clayton R. Keel, Everetts; Robert B. Condrey and Malcolm O. Partin, Enfield; and Herbert Owen Davis, Roxboro.

David H. Freshwater, Morehead City; William D. Gray, Roanoke Rapids; Falls L. Harris, Harris; Richard N. Hines Jr., Edenton; Luther H. Hodges Jr., Leaksville; Richard W. Hudson, Vandemere; Davis W. Lamson, Skyland; Phillip H. Logan, Shelby; Lloyd D. Lohr, Lexington; William S. McLean, Lumberton; John D. Marriott, Battleboro; Josephus L. Mavretic, Havelock; Gerald M. Mayo, Chocowinity; Cuthbert V. Mize Jr., Whiteville; William W. Morgan Jr., Canton; Bailey Patrick Jr., Hickory, and Richard M. Pipkin, Statesville.

Donald L. Patterson, China Grove; Richard A. Porter, Burlington; Kenneth A. Powell, Valdese; Bobby A. Richardson, Bessemer City; Hoyle L. Robinson, Ellerbe; Foy V. Shingleton, Wilson; Paul A. Stevenson, Elizabeth City; William Ernest Stewart, Marshville; Michael S. Tanner, Rutherfordton; Stephen J. Trachtenberg, Jasksonville; Lester E. Waters, Plymouth; William Henry White Jr., Sanford, and Eugene Thomas Whitehead III, Scotland Neck.

Out-of-state students on the general list include William H. Baddley, Water Valley, Miss.; John T. Barto, Bronxville, N. Y.; Lewis R. Binford Jr., Norfolk, Va.; Frank Eric Burgess, Pottstown, Pa.; Frank P. Darlington, Bridgeport, Pa.; Irvine Stirling R. Haig, Rome, Italy; Nathan H. Hart, West Cornwall, Conn.;

Don H. Miller, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; John A. Mraz, Chicago, Ill.; Charles W. Oyer, Wolcott, N. Y.; Michael J. Padula, Hollywood, Fla.; Ted L. Rosenthal, Kew Gardens, N. Y.; Leslie A. Scott, Jackson Heights, N. Y.; Laurie N. Smith, Spartanburg, S. C. Joel A. Snow, Petersburg, Fla.; Charles V. Tompkins Jr., Alexandria, Va.; John L. Walker Jr., Roanoke, Va.; Marion Chalmers, Greenville, S. C., and Ann Ryan Thomas, Memphis, Tenn.

Monogram Will Meet Thursday, 7 O'clock

The Monogram Club will hold its bi-weekly meeting tomorrow night at 7 o'clock, with initiation of fall lettermen being the feature of the meeting.

Monogram sweaters and certificates will be given out at this time only, and in order to receive his sweater, the new member must attend the meeting.

Plans for the Blue-White game will also be discussed.

Coach Buck Freeman of the freshman basketball team will speak on the New York basketball scandal of 1950.

PHYSICS COLLIQUIUM

The joint UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. in 206 Phillips Hall. The speaker will be Dr. Arthur H. Snell, director of the physics division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. He will speak about physics at Oak Ridge and his recent research on beta-decay recoil spectrometry.

—Horner—

(Continued from page 1)

versity personnel. All three recalled a conversation among them about this problem. Horner said he did not formally request permission but that "he considered Mr. Bennett's remarks as being the equivalent of permission," according to the report.

Bennett and Horney, however, said the conversation took place after Horner had begun building his house. They added that the work load in Horner's department "was very light at that time and they raised no objection to Mr. Horner's use of University personnel."

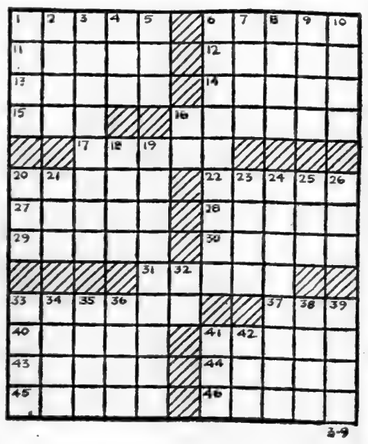
Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—

CITY OPTICAL CO.

"It tastes SO good"

We hear those words "It tastes so good" so often here, we figure there must be something to it. Come in and taste for yourself.

THE PINES



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Path of a planet
6. Metal tag
11. City (Fr.)
12. To buy and sell
13. Similar
14. Marked, as rhythm
15. Turkish cap
16. Ear shells
17. Voodoo snake god
20. Conscious
22. Portends
27. Lassies
28. Husband of Bathsheba
29. Mountains (So. Am.)
30. Linger
31. Occurrence
33. Remove, as bones
37. Man's name
40. Together
41. White poplar
43. Chop finely
44. Kind of thread
45. More rational
46. Put up a poker stake

DOWN
1. Patron saint of sailors
2. Vex
3. Violent snowstorm
4. Each (Scot.)
5. Golf mound
6. Ascribe
7. Merciless
8. Cripple
9. Biblical name
10. Spreads grass to dry
16. Siberian river
18. Voided escutcheon
19. Courier
20. Turkish title
21. Gain
23. Seaport (Algeria)
24. Filthiest
25. Organ of hearing
26. Timid
32. Norse god
33. Female parents
34. Pen-name of Charles Lamb
35. City (Ger.)
36. At one time
38. German river
39. Require
41. A wing
42. Storage crib

DOMES ETTLE AWARE HURON
DELETE REDS
ODE TRINA
VIEIN SHE ZANIES DUAL IRONS FERNS
PETE ALLEGE
SAI AGUE
OCTET OAF
DONE STARVE
RADE ELLIS
PALED REEDS

Yesterday's Answer

3-9

—Ministers Oppose ABC Stores—

(Continued from Page 1)

said the ministers in their statement.

The statement concluded, "The chief argument advanced for opening the ABC stores is that of securing revenue for the schools. There are many reasons for questioning on legal and economic grounds this method of financing local schools. Even if these did not exist, we believe that the moral weakness of the proposed plan sould eliminate it from our consideration. We believe that there are other possible answers which can meet the needs for the schools wtihout posing serious problems to the community."

The Chapel Hill PTA's request for a referendum vote on the opening of ABC stores here was denied Monday by the Orange County Commissioners.

CLASSIFIEDS

IS A FRIEND SICK? SEND HIM a get-well card from Ledbetter-Pickard's selection. He'll appreciate your thought so much.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

COTTAGE IN PROFESSOR'S yard. 5 minutes from hospital, furnished except for bed linen, cozy for single person. Write and give references. "Cottage, care THE DAILY TAR HEEL.

1-9089-1

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

3-9

U N C LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Cloudier and warm today, with expected high of 70.

The Daily Tar Heel

BUCKS

Bucks are needed by the University Band, says the editor. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 114 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Tri-University Conference Scheduled To Start Today On State College Campus

RALEIGH, March 9—"Planning for the Foreseeable Future" will be the theme of the third annual Conference on the State of the University of North Carolina, which will be held at North Carolina State College Thursday and Friday.

Approximately 180 key faculty members, representing the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill, Woman's College in Greensboro and State College in Raleigh, will attend the two-day assembly.

Dr. Preston W. Edsall, head of the Department of History and Political Science at State College, will serve as the general conference chairman. The conference headquarters will be at the College Union Building.

Among the conference highlights will be addresses by Governor Hodges, President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University of North Carolina and Dr. J. Harris Purks, vice president and provost of the Consolidated University.

President Gray appointed Dr. Edsall as the general conference chairman and named six other faculty members to serve on the planning committee. They are Professors Edna Arundel and W. R. Muller, Woman's College; E A. Cameron and Sterling A. Stoudemire, the University in Chapel Hill, and William D. Stevenson Jr. and T. L. Quay, State College. Prof George Simpson of the University is the conference secretary General chairmen of the conference, during the two pervious years that it has been held, have been the late Dr. Howard Odom, head of the Sociology Department at UNC, and Prof William M. Whyburn, head of the University's Mathematics Department.

The conference theme, "Planning for the Foreseeable Future," will be divided into three main topics—"Planning for the Student," and "Planning for Extended Services to the State." Each topic will be considered by a group of about 60 delegates, headed by a chairman who will be assisted by three sub-chairmen.

The topic, "Planning for the dent,' will be considered by a group, headed by Prof. Richard Bardolph, Woman's College, who will be assisted by Professors Elizabeth Cowling, Woman's College; W. L. Wiley, UNC, and Leonard W. Long State College.

The group of delegates discussing the topic, "Planning for the Faculty and Staff,' will have as its chairman Prof. George Hoadley, State College. The sub-chairmen will be Professors Leonard B. Hurley, Woman's College; Floyd Stovall, UNC, and C. Addison Hickman, State College.

Dr. W. P Richardson, UNC, will be chairman o fthe group consideringthe topic, "Planning for Extended Services to the State." Sub-chairmen will be Professors Katherine E. Roberts, Woman's College; S. H. Hobbs Jr., UNC, and J. W. Pou, N. C State.

In commenting on the conference theme, Dr. Edsall said he regards the theme especially timely inasmuch as the report of the Commission on Higher Education cited planning as one of the major needs of higher education in North Carolina at the present time.

Registration for the conference will begin Thursday at 9 a.m in the State College Union Building. The first general session will open Thursday at 10 a.m., with Dr. Edsall presiding. Dr. Carey H. Bostian, chancellor of State College, will welcome delegates at the opening session.

Separate sessions will follow the main meeting.

Dr. Purks will speak at a luncheon to be held Thursday at 1 pm. Following the luncheon, there will be meetings of the topic groups.

President Gray will address delegates in the auditorium of the Nelson Textile Building Thursday at 8 p.m. A reception will follow his address in the College Union Ballroom.

Group meetings will continue Friday morning and Friday afternoon.

A talk by Governor Hodges and

(See CONFERENCE, page 4.)

Student Legislature Will Cool Off Tonight

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature meets tonight at 7:30 for a cooling off session.

The comparatively mild atmosphere will be the result of student politicians' catching their breaths after steaming party nominations.

More controversy and interest were maintained at one of the nomination sessions than the other. The Student Party haggled and deliberated for two hours before it picked a nominee for the presidency of the student body.

The University Party listened to Rollie Tillman praise Ed McCurry for four minutes, and then shooed him in as their candidate by acclamation. Three more minutes elapsed and the party had given Jim Martin the right to represent it in the student body treasurer's race.

So the Legislators will shuffle into the Philanthropic Assembly hall, listen to Martin Jordan rap his gavel commanding their attention, and probably hurriedly dispose of the three bills to be considered

According to Jack Stevens, UP floorleader, and David Reid, SP floorleader, none of the three measures to be considerd promises to arouse much argument. The bill of the night, however, is one asking for legislature endorsement of the revisd Interdormitory Council bylaws.

The two major changes to the bylaws are:

(1) The removal of a clause in the bylaws, and thus in the student Constitution, calling for "An advisor appointed by the University" to sit on the Council from each dorm (This vacancy has been filled by an IDC representative from each men's dorm) and,

(2) Provision for a summer school IDC.

If the Legislature approves these bylaws, they will go to the student body in a referendum for final okay. This bill is co-introduced by the SP and UP.

Other bills to come up before the body are: (1) A bill to pay Tom Creasy's way to an integration conference at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and

(2) A bill to give Carolina Forum a man on Debate Council.

Both of these ideas are introduced by the SP.

The tabulation for the year now stands at 26 bills passed by the SP and 8 for the UP.

Commenting on the year's box score Stevens of the UP said the SP measures were so much "junk mail" that looked good on the surface, but were "impossible" to carry through. He explained that although his faction was numerically behind the SP in passing bills, the few that they had rammed through were important and workable enough to more than compensate for the difference.

David Reid, SP leader, answered the statement by saying, "The SP has introduced and enacted measures we felt were to the best interest of the student body as a whole. When officials of student government are afraid to introduce legislation and work todawrd the completion of any project because they fear failure, then student government will be as ineffective as the measures introduced by the UP this year."

BA School's Dean's List Is Announced

Dean R. J. M Hobbs of the School of Business Administration announced yesterday that the following students all made a B average or better on all of their courses.

Four students included in the list made all As. They are Richard Byrd, Jr., Chapel Hill; Clayton Davidson, Mooresville; William Garrison, Gastonia; Harvey Harris, Garysburg.

Those having Bs or better are Abdul Adamjee, Karachi, Pakistan; Richard Adelsheim, Pittsburgh Pa.; Robert Aldridge, Burlington; Cary Allen, Asheville; Harold Austin, Pinebluff; Joseph Bafford, Lexington; Lacy Baynes Jr., Greensboro;

Arthur Beamer, Mt. Airy; Emery Bray Jr., Mt. Airy; Robert Bridges, Lexington; Walter Bell, Durham; Martin Berger, Long Island, N. Y.;

Harold Bradshaw, Valdese; Ralph Branscomb, Winston-Salem; Aubrey Burroughs, Reidsville; George Butler, Jr., Hiwasse Dam; Richard Byrd Jr., Chapel Hill; Louis Campbell Jr., Chapel Hill; Nancy Carpenter, Charlotte; Lynn Chandler, Raleigh;

James Claiborne, Chapel Hill; Leonard Clein, Winston-Salem; Lorenza Clinard, Clemmons; Cuthbert Copeland, Tyner; Joseph Cruciani, Belle Vernon, Pa.;

Gerald Daughtridge, Rocky Mt.; Clayton Davidson, Mooresville; Charles Deal, Chapel Hill; Philip Dixon, Elizabeth City; Joshua Edwards, Kenley.

(See BA SCHOOL, page 4.)

Talented Patricia Neal

Miss Patricia Neal, above, is one of the stars of TV's Topper show. A tryout with GMAB's new Talent Bureau today could start some talented UNC student on the road to TV fame.

Talent Tryouts Today

Today's the day for student performers to try out with the newly organized GMAB Talent Bureau.

Tryouts will be held in the Rendezvous Room of Graham Memorial from 4 until 5 p.m. and again from 8 until 9 p.m. today.

Any students who try out will be rated by the judges, and those chosen will be placed on file by the Talent Bureau.

These students will be recommended by the bureau to any organizations or individuals who contact GMAB to hire entertainment.

GM Gets New Piano Today

A reception will be held at 4 p.m. today in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial in honor of Miss Cornelia Love, who is the donor of GM's new Steinway Concert Grand piano.

Invitations to the reception have been sent to Chancellor House and other member of the administration. Jim Wallace, director of Graham Memorial, yesterday extended an invitation to "all interested people."

Miss Love lives in Chapel Hill and was for a long time an employee of the University Library. She is the sister of Spencer Love of Burlington Mills and the daughter of James Lee Love, a graduate of UNC in the class of 1884.

Miss Love has given the piano in memory of her father, who was at one time a faculty member here and later a member of the faculty of Harvard University. He made numerous contributions to the University.

Professor William Newman of the music department will play a few selections on the nine foot long Steinway at the reception.

Sophomore David Mundy Announces Candidacy For Daily Tar Heel Editorship

Creasy Says Faculty Granted Cut Request

Student body President Tom Creasy announced yesterday that the special faculty Committee on Attendance Regulations granted one of the requests he made four weeks ago.

The request was that the committee change the ruling, "an absence" during the two-day period before and after a University holiday will be counted as two cuts, be changed to read "any unexcused absence during the two-day period before and after a University holiday."

President Creasy went to the Faculty Council Feb. 4 to protest the new cut system passed by the Faculty Council last fall. His appearance before the committee was result of a student Legislature bill introduced by Manning Muntzing and Max Crohn proposing certain changes in the cut system. The change from "absence" to "unexcused absence" is the first one made by the committee.

President Creasy said "I plan to continue work with the special Committee on Attendance Regulations in the hopes that we will get further modifications of the present rule. I feel that by continued work and effort on the part of Student Government we will succeed."

AFROTC Commanders Named For Semester

Captain James A. Schofield of the United States Air Force, assistant professor of Air Science here, is shown above congratulating the AFROTC cadet commanders appointed for the spring semester. The new commanders were appointed recently by Col. George Smith. In the back row, left to right, are Cadet Lt. Col. Robert E. Massie, commander of Group I; Cadet Lt. E. B. Gunther, commander of Group III, and Cadet Lt. Col. H. V. Scotland, commander of Group II. In the front row, left to right are Captain Schofield and Col. Stephen L. Opitz, commanding officer of the Wing Staff.

GMAB President Says Student Union Behind

"Graham Memorial is so far behind the other two schools in the Consolidated University in not only the physical plant but in the allocation of finances that it is impossible to present an adequate program or to hire a professional staff to carry out this program," said Graham Memorial Activities Board President Gordon Forester this week to the Complaints Board of the student Legislature.

Carolina receives only $6 per student per year; Woman's College receives $19 per student and State College receives $20 per student; Graham Memorial's director is paid a salary that is half of what the directors at the other two schools receive, Forester went on to explain.

This was the second meeting of the board, which has scheduled meetings every other week. Membrs of the Board are: Bob Harrington, chairman, Bobbie Walker, Jack Hudson, Ruth Jones, Tom Johnson, and Marty Jordan.

The Complaints Board was set up to hear complaints from students who come of their own initiative. The complaints are turned over directly to the Executive Committee of Legislature, which decides the validity of the complaints. The student making the complaint will receive a report on his complaint from the Executive Committee.

Meetings of the Complaints Board are not public unless the student making the complaint wishes them to be so. This policy was adopted by the board to "protect the students."

Both the University Party and the Student Party are represented on the board. One legislative representative from men's town district and two from men's dorm district, plus one representative from the women's town district and one from the women's dorm district, make up the membership. The party having the majority in voting districts determines party representation on the board.

Assails Kraar-Yoder Policies And Emphasis

David Mundy, former columnist for The Daily Tar Heel, yesterday made a statement in which he formally announced his candidacy for the editorship of the newspaper.

Mundy is a sophomore from Black Mountain. He is clerk of the Dialectic Literary Society.

Mundy's statement read as follows:

"I had hoped to see in the race for the editorship an opportunity for the students to make some decisions regarding conduct and policies of The Daily Tar Heel. That the two other candidates would be in the race, I know. It was only this weekend that I belatedly learned that they have formed a corporation and decided to run as candidates for a proposed co-editorship.

"This likelihood of any opportunity for the students by vote to express their desires concerning the conduct of The Daily Tar Heel, and the very unfortunate present condition of the student newspaper, have promptd my candidacy.

"The candidates for co-editor have served as associate editors of The Daily Tar Heel. At the risk of being accused of a personal attack, I must declare that they are in part responsible for the present condition of the paper.

"The news function of the student newspaper has been largely ignored by the editors.

"I cannot in justice blame the news staff for faulty and scanty coverage. The staff is pitifully small and composed chiefly of first-year students The task of campus news coverage is simply beyond their limitations. I commend them for as well as they have done

"The two candidates, during their period of responsibility this year, have done little to maintain a sizeable staff. I have seen a great number of students come up to The Daily Tar Heel offering to 'help out.' They receive no encouragement and leave. Their nominal superiors, the news and managing editors, simply have too much to do themselves. Were it plausible that the two candidates reform, change their interests and emphasis, and really work at the job of publishing a paper, I would not be a candidate.

"My candidacy is no part of any plan to 'get' anyone. The paper needs whatever help that anyone can offer. Mr Kraar and Mr. Yoder, both interesting writers, are an asset to the paper as such. It is their emphasis and management policies which give cause for concern.

"It is no plot to 'capture' the group. Were I editor, I would expect to be much too busy in the management and maintenance of an effective staff. My own opinions, quite definitely labeled as my own, would be offered on such subjects as I thought of importance to the student body. All other opinions, of whatever degree, would be quite welcome.

"In short, I do not feel that the duty of the editor is to stimulate opinion, challenge unjust prejudices and make students realize why they think as they do. The editor's, or the co-editors' duty is instead to 'get out' a paper of interest and value to the entire student body.

"It is that for which I expect to work, and for which end I expect to be a candidate for the SP endorsement next Monday."

21 Percent On Art, Science Dean's List

Approximately 21 per cent of the more than 800 students enrolled in the College of Arts and Sciences completed the fall semester with a grade of B or better on all work taken, and have been named to the Dean's List released here yesterday.

Of the total number, 115 students are native North Carolinians while 56 are from out-of-state. The list includes 171 juniors and seniors.

The honor students are as follows:

Asheville—Larry H. Addington, Max H. Crohn Jr., John B. Easley, Betty C. George, Constance A. McMahon, Heyward Moore, Susie Ella Roberts, Charlotte E. Roth, L. Norment Owen and John Shorter Stevens.

Charlotte—Lucy H. Graves, Ann T. Johnston, Virginia G. Johnston, Eric A. Jonas, Louis Kraar, Joan Wells Purser, Frank L. Schrimsher, Mary Ann Shannonhouse, Grady Lee Walls and Nancy Carpenter.

Chapel Hill—Calvin W. Bell, John M. Blount III, George W. Brenholtz, Paul T. Chase, John A. Edgerton, Mrs. Marion Tull Edwards, Susan B. Fink, Fred Fraley, Ellen E. Glauert, John M. Gwynn Jr., Darius B. Herring, Faison M. Hicks, Sally M. Horner, Lucia P. Johnson, Sory G. Kuralt, Charles C. Lindley Jr., Richard M. McKenna, Ronald C. Morgan, John T. Newcombe, Nicholas A. Peck, Eleanor Ann Saunders, Joanna Hill Scroggs, Nancy S. Smith, Edwin L. Stewart, George Franklin Wallin and Charles P. Wolfe.

Durham—Katherine A. Nichols and Robert S. Pullman.

Fayetteville — Glenn E. Hair, Charles Sanders and Wilbur R. Smith.

Greensboro—Richard H. Baker Jr., William C. Brewer, Melvin Litch Jr., Lutz Leo Mayer, Richard Beverly Webb and Ann Webster Wrenn.

Goldsboro—William M. Ginn and William Porterfield.

Statesville—Shelton S. Alexander, Henry H. Dearman, John G. Lewis and Joseph Theodore White.

Winston-Salem—Robert D. Beverly Jr., Robert H. Hoffman, Katherine K. Kerr and Edwin Link Stockton Jr.

Other North Carolina students include Alfred L. Purrington and Sara Page Weaver, Raleigh; Patsy M. Harris, Charles E. Trado, and John Jennings White, Henderson; Morris A. Jones, James B. Lovelace Jr. and Alexander G. Ray, High Point; James W. Pruett and William Phillip Webster, Mount Airy; Billy F. Maready and Harold Lee Waters, Jacksonville; Jasper G. Gravson and Edgar W. McCurry Jr., of Shelby.

Margaret A. Barnard, Asheboro; Shirley Lou Simpson, Gastonia; Archie C. Allen, Ash; Alice Lverly Bost, Hickory; Bobby W. Brawley, Mooresville; Barbara J. Carter, Lake Junaluska; William C. Charles, Rocky Mount; Myra A. Davis, Albemarle; Carol Du Pier, Davidson; James M. Ellis, Tarboro; Violet K. Galvin, Fort Bragg; Frederick D. Hamrick, Rutherfordton; Gladys B. Hatcher, Four Oaks; Samuel P. Hines Jr., Kinston; George W. Hoffler, Sunbury; John R. Hudson Jr., Brevard; Wil-

(See DEAN'S, page 4.)

A TWO-PART SURVEY:

The Report On Higher Education

(Editor's note: This is first of two articles dealing with the report of North Carolina's Commission on Higher Education. The next will deal with the functioning of the system.)

By DAVE MUNDY

"State-Supported Higher Education in North Carolina," says the title of the green-backed pamphlet subtitled "The Report of the Commission on Higher Education." The commission was created by the General Assembly in April of 1953 and appointed by Governor Umstead in the fall of the same year.

To the person unfamiliar with the state's institutions of higher learning the report's description of them would be quite interesting.

Heading the series of descriptions of institutions is the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, which, says the report, "is one of the nation's great universities, having become a center of higher educational activities of many kinds."

North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering "has become a great center of science and technology." It is also characterized as "the technical branch of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Then there are the three white institutions, whose chief purpose is the retaining of teachers for the public schools. Western Carolina College (at Cullowhee) and East Carolina College at Greenville have recently dropped the teachers" part of their titles, which is indicative of curriculum expansions into the fields of business administration, nursing and courses in pre-professional subjects such as dentistry, engineering, law, and medicine.

Appalachian State Teachers College significantly and meaningfully retains the "Teachers" in its title.

Pembroke State College, established in 1887, was originally an institution restricted to the Indians of Robeson County. Action of the General Assembly in 1953 made it "possible for white students to be admitted up to a maimum of 40 per cent of the total enrollment."

There are five institutions for Negroes.

North Carolina College at Durham, with its graduate and professional schools, can be considered the Negro university.

The Negro Agricultural and Technical College of North Carolina (at Greensboro) is just that. It does offer Master's degrees in several technical fields.

Fayetteville State Teachers' College, Elizabeth City State Teachers' College and Winston-Salem Teachers' College are the Negro institutions for training Negro teachers.

The catalog of institutions of higher learning totals 12 four-year colleges. One isn't coeducational. One is Indian-white, five Negro and six white.

Bucks For The Band

The writer of a letter printed elsewhere on this page decries the piddling support the UNC band has received from the Athletic Association. What he says is true. During Carolina's golden football days, the gate receipt money was flowing free and the band enjoyed prosperity. And since Charlie Justice left the University, the band has been existing on its old glory, old uniforms and what puny funds it could squeeze out of the Athletic Association turnip.

Something is wrong here, and what it is is football. There's no good reason for the band, a musical organization, to be tied to Carolina's football fortunes. Band members get academic credit for their work, as they should. That puts the band on an equal level with other academic endeavor, as we see it, and entitles the band to a fair slice of the financial pie.

As it is, the band will have to limp along with whatever money the Athletic Association is willing to deal out. And that won't ever be much.

Heelana? Erodia? Filtertip?

From The Anderson (S.C.) Independent

As if today's living were not complicated by enough problems—such as flying diplomats and striped-pants saucers—The Charlotte News suggests that South Carolina change its name.

That suggestion is kicked off by a ruckus raised by some West Virginians who say the name of their state is not sufficiently distinct from that of Virginia. They've even appointed a commission.

One of the best ways not to get anything done is to name a commission so West Virginia probably will retain its name.

As for the Carolinas, the Charlotte paper says:

"For the life of us, we can't understand why South Carolina doesn't adopt some nice old Indian name—like Karankwa or Waiilatpuan or something—and leave Carolina to us real Carolinians.

"Or how about Palmettoria? Or Gulchland? Or Sassafras? Or it might even use the name of a U. S. President—Trumania has a good clean sound. By gum, we'll even serve as godfather at the christening."

Suggesting new names for South Carolina amounts to a waste of time. If any name-changing is affected it should and must be by North Carolina, which has lagged behind on numerous occasions, including the ratification of the U. S. constitution.

North Carolina also was a bit tardy about leaving the United States, being next to the tailend (Tennessee was last) to adopt secession legislation. South Carolina already was fighting Old Abe's minions when North Carolina acted in May, 1861.

The weight of priority and precedence in validating and protecting the name lies with South Carolina and we respectfully submit that North Carolina should do the name changing.

We can understand the concern felt by Tar Heel brethren. Because of South Carolina's notable progress in recent years, it's in the limelight. It must be rather hard on our neighbors to receive mail addressed to Charlotte, S. C.; Winston-Salem, S. C., etc.

The confusion can be ended by North Carolina adopting a new name. Choice should be easy. Heelana, for example. Could retain part of nickname that way, viz., "Old Heel State."

Tobaccoroad would be a nifty, if they can secure permission of the copyright owners. Barring that, why not something with an Indian flavor like Mattamuskeet? They could even call it Erodia or go ultra modern and call it Filtertip.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor ..... CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors ..... LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager ..... TOM SHORES
Sports Editor ..... BERNIE WEISS
News Editor ..... Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager ..... Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager ..... Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager ..... Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor ..... Ray Linker
Photographer ..... Boyden Henley

Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Who Are The Candidates For Veep?

Louis Kraar

NOW THAT it's officially Manning Muntzing against Ed McCurry for student body president, campus politicos are buzzing about possible vice presidential nominees.

The second-spot executive post is vital in student government, because the veep reigns over the student Legislature. That's why there's still much talk about the subject.

★

The Student Party will have several possible candidates, but right now it looks like Susan Fink will get it. I don't remember ever hearing of a girl holding this post, but—on the other hand—I don't know of any coed more qualified for the job than Miss Fink. She's been active in the Legislature and in other campus work.

★

Norwood Bryan, who sat on both sides of the SP battle be-

The Council ruled just the op- at various times, may try for the vice-presidential endorsement. And Fowler-backers' man Bob Young is still a possible.

Don Fowler himself, who barely lost the presidential nod to Muntzing, might be talked into running for vice-president. However, yesterday most of his supporters were denying that Fowler would take the second-spot executive seat.

If the SP trends continue in the direction they are going now, Susan Fink will be running for vice-president.

★

JACK STEVENS is the University Party favorite for vice-president. There has been talk of Bill Sanders and Bev Webb, but it looks like Stevens will get it in the end—the nomination, that is.

Like Miss Fink, Stevens has had a long record of legislative service. This year he has served as floor leader for the UP and worked on the Student Audit Board, among other things.

★

In making his legislative report to the UP the other night, Stevens assailed the opposition SP for introducing so many bills that he considered worthless. Stevens seems to be particularly concerned about the financial aspects of student government and will make an ideal candidate for the UP.

With Miss Fink running against Stevens, the students really can't lose. Both would make capable vice-presidents.

★

WHEN I reported that the Student Council ruled that David Reid could not count courses taken to remove entrance defficiencies toward the C average required to run, I was wrong.

The Counril ruled just the opposite, that courses taken to remove defficiencies do count in one's average for office running.

★

It just happened in Reid's case that the vice-presidential hopeful fell down on some courses taken to remove difficiencies. To Reid-backers' charges that the Student Council is University Party in sentiment, Council Chairman Walton Joyner told me yesterday:

★

"There's no element of that within the Council whatsoever. I personally am sorry that Dave was disqualified. I think he'd make an excellent candidate."

Two Years Away: The World's First Satellite

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON—About two years from now—provided all goes according to plan—the United States should be ready to launch into space the world's first artificial earth satellite.

The satellite which is now being planned will be very different from the elaborate space ships usually envisioned. It is likely to be hardly larger than a soft ball, and it will probably weigh well under a hundred pounds. This small object will be hurled into space by means of a two- or three-staged rocket, reaching an "escape velocity" of just under eight miles a second in its final stage.

Thereafter, the tiny satellite will circle the earth, at an altitude of 250 miles or more, like a ball a the end of a string, completing each circle in less than two hours. After some weeks, it will probably drift earthward as a result of slight atmospheric drag, and eventually it will disintegrate when it hits the denser atmosphere below.

TECHNICALLY FEASIBLE

Telemetering and other devices which can be built into such a tiny man-made moon can tell technicians on the earth below much about the great unknowns of space. Thus it will have very great scientific value. But, it should be understood, it will have no military application at all—it could not be used to kill anybody, or even to spy on anybody.

It is for precisely this reason that no serious effort to get a satellite into space has heretofore been made, even though seven or eight years ago, the technicians of the Air Force's Rand Project ruled that a satellite was technically feasible. Opponents of the satellite project have hitherto argued successfully that first priority must be given to weapons wih real military value—above all to the decisive weapon, the inter-continental ballistic missile, or I. B. M.

A WAY-STATION

There are two main reasons why it has now nevertheless been decided to make a serious effort to achieve a satellite. In the first place, as the missile art has matured, it has become clear that a satellite is a way-station on the road to the I. B. M., and can be achieved without any great diversion of funds or manpower from the decisive weapon.

One might suppose that the problem of creating a 5,000-mile-range ballistic missile would be far easier than the problem of creating an artificial heavenly body. Actually, the satellite—or such a crude, preliminary satellite as that described above—is much easier.

The two worst headaches for the inter-continental missile designer—how to guide the missile accurately to its target half a world away, and how to prevent its disintegrating like a comet when it re-enters the atmosphere—do not exist for the designer of a satellite. The problem of design is also very much simplified because a small satellite like that described above weighs far less than the bulky hydrogen warhead of an inter-continental missile.

IT IS FEASIBLE

The total cost of getting such a small object into space has recently been estimated as low as $20 million—peanuts in the Pentagon—as against previous estimates of $1 billion or more. And intelligence analysis of Soviet progress in missiles have made a $20 million investment in a satellite project seem urgently desirable.

In recent months the Soviet press has been filled with boasts about future Soviet triumphs in space. Prof. Nesmeyanov, President of the the august Soviet Academy of Sciences, passed the word: "Science has reached a point where it is realistic for us to speak of . . . creating an artificial satellite of the earth." Nesmeyanov's words have been echoed by numerous confident predictions by other Soviet scientists.

The intelligence experts have learned from sad experience, notably with both the atomic and the hydrogen bombs, that this sort of Soviet chest-thumping must be taken very seriously indeed. The prospect of permitting the Soviets to get the first artificial satellite into space seemed more intolerable the more the problem was considered.

MANKIND'S LEADER

The Russians would gain enormous prestige in the scientific world, as well as registering a huge propaganda victory, if they were the first to break the bonds of gravity. But that is by no means all. Even assuming that the first Soviet satellite missile lacked a practical military application, it would represent a great first step into an unknowable future.

Dr. Walter Dornberger, creator of the German V-2, which is the ancestor of all missiles, has said that the first nation to take this step will "lead mankind into the future." This may be an exaggeration. But the time may and almost certainly will come when future versions of a satellite will have great military value for reconnaisance, for missile guidance, and for other purposes yet unguessed at.

Thus the decision to make a serious effort to get the first crude satellite into space is not the hair-brained fantasy it may seem at first to blush. It is plain common sense, in these days when our technological lead over the Soviets represents all the security we have left.

Blast!

Paul T. Chase

It is apparent that a column such as this, dealing with ideas rather than facts, is foredoomed to be misunderstood. The recent letters in defense of the honor system (both, incidentally, written by members of the Honor Council) manifest a singular ability to transcend a limited frame of values.

Such phrases as "manner unbecoming a Carolina Gentleman" and "to break faith with the gang" indicate a thought process dominated by group cliches. They have nothing whatever to do with the concept of individual honor discussed in this column.

That concept is one that cannot be grasped by reading a freshman handbook. It can be seen, however, in the works of Plato, Emerson, Thoreau, Unamuno, Santayana, and others of the "uninitiated" who had to struggle hrough life somehow without benefit of the Carolina orientation program.

The one pertinent point raised about the column was that it "attacks a fundamenal part of Carolina." Blast holds that these beliefs are eminently questionable; that it is these fundamentals, precisely, that must be attacked, examined, evaluated, and, if need be, discarded. There is nothing that should not be examined.

'Isn't That One Of Your Kids In The Dead-End Gang?'

The Home Folks Say 'Urn Burial'

Ed Yoder

This was no Arthur Godfrey-Howdy Doody fare flashing from the TV screen. Instead, an intensely-staring man, his eyes framed with horn rims, his high-topped dome shining—indeed an egg-head—had captured his watchers with a lecture on Shakespeare, of all people.

"Now in the Second Part of Henry IV," Dr. Baxter, the egg-head, was saying, "Falstaff has just heard the bell from the town tower . . ."

YES, WE HAVE NO COMMERCIALS

That was where it hit me. What? Just this: I knew something was missing. We'd said nasty things about the dronings of TV commercials. But now that the coaxial cable had replaced the Blue-backed Speller as the number-one dispenser of the Three R's, now that the television images would flash to our screens on the wings of state money, we had no commercials. When they shifted from program to program a little bell rang telling us that something was amiss. Yes, we had no commercials.

But if educational television, I thought, why not educational commercials? If William Shakespeare per Dr. Baxter, why no ads to lure folks into direct contact with the gems of literature?

MURDER IN THE FORUM

So (that was five days ago) the idea began to take shape; now I've prepared my scripts for educational TV commercials.

How about this?

"Back to Dr. Baxter for the second half of his program in just a minute. Now, a word about a new game for the kiddies. Folks, we know cowboys is an interesting game. But if your children seem restless when they play Lone Ranger, why not try our new game, 'Murder In The Forum?' A complete set for 'Murder In The Forum' costs next to nothing and your children can pretend they're acting with Marlon Brando in the famous movie, Julius Caesar. Write today to 'Murder In The Forum,' Box 86, Rome, Italy. Here's what you get: a complete set of togas for your kiddies.

FIVE DAGGERS AND DIRECTIONS

"We have a Cassius toga, a Brutus toga, a Casca toga, and a ready-slashed Caesar toga(complete with purple medallion). And! There's no worry about harmful bloodstains on your living room rug; the togas will be ready-stained. You also get a papermache, full-length statue of Pompey. This statue looks like the one in the old Roman Forum beneath which the conspirators assassinated Caesar. And that's not all. We send you 80 blood-stained, imitation tiles to lay out an 'Old Roman Forum' floor where Julius was knifed. Free of extra charge we will send five daggers and directions for stabbing. Don't wait! It's all sent COD. Let your kids be the first in your town to play 'Murder In The Forum.'"

Or, in conclusion to the program, this:

"Ladies and Gentlemen, it's out of fashion nowadays to grieve upon everyday things. Why? Because now you can grieve upon a Universal Bone. Yes, that what we said: A Universal Bone, just like the bone grieved upon by Prince Hamlet in the noted Olivier movie. Now all you have to do is write 'Universal Bone,' % Elsinore Castle, Denmark, enclosing a vial of tears to prove you're an experienced griever. The makers of Universal Bones will send you one free of charge. If your griefs endure and you are pleased with your Universal Bone you send us ten dollars. Otherwise, return the bone and your vial will be returned. Good night for Dr. Baxter, Tempest Products, Murder In The Forum toys, and Universal Bones."

FOOD FOR THE GODS

There are potentialities, too for other educational programs. What about this for a lecture on Greek tragedy? "Stop serving food and drink your guests sneer at. Treat them to he Food of the Gods. Yes, everyone's trying Ambrosia and Nectar for their luncheons . . ."

Or this, for a lecture on Sir Thomas Browne? "Why not be put away in grand style? As Sir Thomas himself wrote, 'Man is a Noble Animal, splendid in ashes, and pompous in the grave.' Try Urn Burial—that's Urn Burial. Remember, the egg-heads call it Hydriotaphia, but the home folks call it Urn Burial."

YOU Said It:

Segregation, The Irish & The Band

Editor:

Although differing with David Mundy in most of his "Reaction Pieces," I must extend to him a sincere vote of appreciation for striking home on a subject very close to me, the University Band.

Just exactly what is the student's interest in the band? I know there are many hundreds of talented high school musicians on this campus with time enough to play in this organization. When approached, the general come-back, "Play with that out fit, hell no!"

Why does this opinion exist? Mainly because of the lack of backing; we just ain't got none. We have two of the most capable musicians in this country, Messrs. Earl Slocum and Herbert Fred directing the band, but it takes more than that. It takes money.

Where do we ge our money? From our "esteemed" Athletic Association, who in my own personal opinion regard the band as a "necessary evil" to be pacified with as little compensation as possible. To get five cents from them is like pulling a tooth from a Brahma bull.

I know of one band, from the University of Miami, in which this situation has been remedied. Their solution was simple; they gave a one-year scholarship to everyone capable of playing in the marching band. They now possess one of the finest outfits in the country.

The students complain about the band, well why don't they do something? Many interested people have been prevented from participating in the marching band because of lack of instruments. This is a ridiculous situation which should be remedied immediately.

The uniforms which we now have are a disgrace to the first state university in this country. Let's do something. Let's put the band on top, where it should be.

Jim Butler

Segregation Vote?

Editor:

Although the signers of this letter have opposite views on the segregation question, the first being for segregaion and the second favoring integration, they agree on one major point which is the subject of this letter.

Both of us srongly endorse Bill Graham's proposal to have a question pertaining to segregation placed on the ballot in the coming campus elecions. We feel that Bill's suggested wording of the question reaches precisely to the crux of the matter and should therefore be used, to wit: "Would you be in favor of Negroes mingling with you in matters other than strictly business, e. g. your educaional, social, or religious functions?" The question as worded would thus not concern itself with abstract concepts, but would rather concentrate, as it should, on the concrete realities of every day living as they affect us personally.

For the past year there has been no issue more widely discussed or causing more intense activity on the campus than the segregation problem, with both pro and con confidently asserting that the majority of the students support their views. There is one thing, however, we can all be certain of: the great majority of the students, regardless of their views on segregation, would heartily welcome being given a chance to express their real convictions through the best and most democratic way—the secret ballot.

If the people who run the elections are not afraid to let the voice of the students once and for all be heard, we are confident that they will enthusiastically accept his golden opportunity and place the question, as worded above or similarly worded, on the ballot.

In the event that the student body is denied this chance to make known their views, there is an alternative: that we find out just where the candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel stand on the all important issue of segregation and vote accordingly for or against them as we see fit.

We would, in conclusion, be very interested to how The Daily Tar Heel views our proposal.

Bennett Michael Bobrow
Carl Bridgers

Another Anti-Astor Voice

Editor:

This is simply an isolated protest against her dowager loudmouth, Lady Astor, who yesterday maligned the Irish—her favorite pastime—before the North Carolina General Assembly.

The Irish have had enough of this old woman; our only regret is that North Carolinians who do not know of her warped mind may take her seriously. She is more than a little deranged. She is also more than a little dangerous to free world unity, because England may soon find itself in an Irish anti-Astor uprising if somebody doesn't do something about the widder.

Tom Shaw

'Bad Cess' To The Lady!

Editor:

Friends, Irishmen, Countrymen, put down your clubs and weapons.

The poor, benighted old English widow lady, "Lady" Astor, was merely unhappy at the thought of our near approaching Saint's Day and her lack of invitations for celebration of this festive occasion.

Let us try to ignore her with the one thought, "Bad Cess to you!"

W. L. Wheeler

Records Expected To Fall In ACC Meet Opening Tonight

1,500-Meter Swim Is Scheduled At 8:15; State Tankmen Favored

Only One Mark, 220-Yard Freestyle, Not Bettered During Competition Throughout Regular Season

From all indications, competition in the Atlantic Coast Conference swimming championships, which open here tonight with the 1,500 meter event, should prove highly interesting. Every winning mark but one posted in last year's first annual event have been passed by comfortable margins this season.

The 1,500 meter swim will get under way at 8:15 p.m. Sessions have been slated for 10 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. on Friday. Concluding rounds of competition in the three-day affair have been scheduled for 10 a.m., 3:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

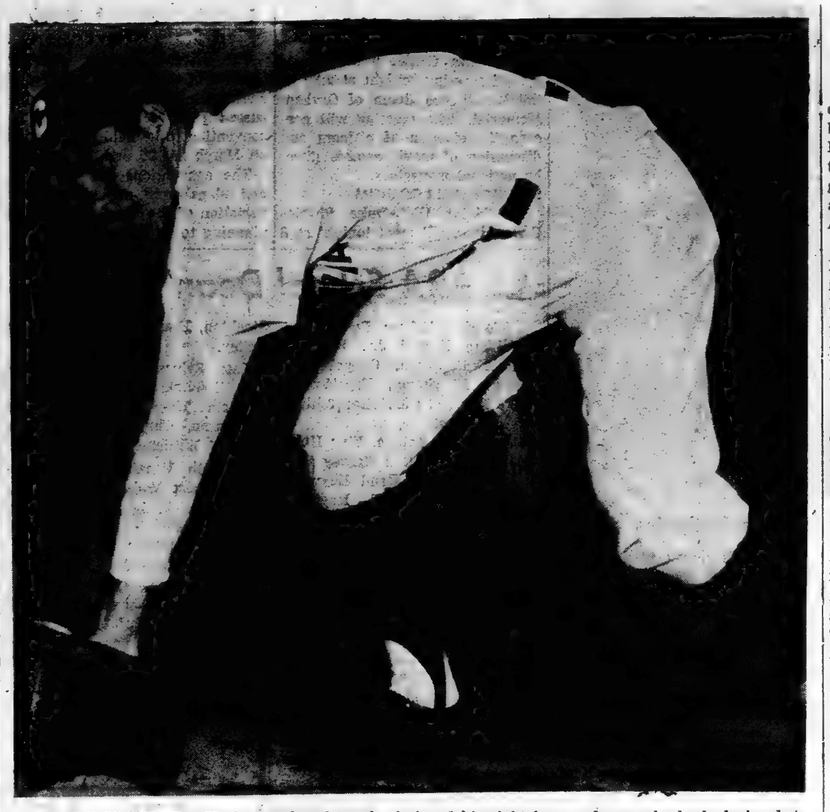
The one mark which has not fallen in this season's competition is the 2:11.3 time recorded by N. C. State's Bob Mattson in last year's 220-yard freestyle. The best time recorded this season, however, has been by Mattson—2:13.4.

Last year's mark in the 1,500 meter event—20:05.0 by State's Fred Ruppenthal—also still stands, but no competition has been held in that division thus far this season.

IN THREE of the events which will be run off Friday and Saturday, four swimmers have recorded better times than those which took first places last year.

State's Sonia took the 50-yard freestyle in 24.3 last year, but State's Dave McIntyre has already gone the distance in 23.2, State's Bill Sonner in 23.6, State's James in 24.1 and North Carolina's Larry Shannon in 24.2.

Swimmers who have passed the winning time of 53.8 set by Virginia's Bill Coggins in the 100-yard freestyle last season include McIntyre (51.0 and 52.1) Dick Baker of North Carolina (52.6), and Sonner (52.7).



Four times have also been recorded under the 1:35.1 victory by Mattson in the 150 individual medley, including a 1:32.3 by Mattson. Others under last year's mark include McIntyre (1:31.3), Charlie Krepp of North Carolina (1:31.5) and Warren Heeman of North Carolina (1:32.1).

BEST TIME recorded in 440 freestyle this season has been 4:53.1 by Phil Drake of North Carolina. Ruppenthal's 4:55.5 won the event last year.

The national intercollegiate record set by North Carolina's 300 medley relay team (2:45.9) topped the 3:00.3 time in which N. C. State won last year's event, and State's 40-yard freestyle relay team has bested last year's winning 3:34.9 time by 2.3 seconds this season.

Krepp, the Tar Heels' promising sophomore, has the best 100-yard backstroke this season, a 57.4 finish as compared to Tommy Dunlap's 1:00.6 in last season's championships. Dunlap swam for State.

Krepp also holds the best 200 backstroke mark of the season, going the distance in 2:07.8, a full seven seconds better than Dunlap's 1954 championship record.

HARRY LLOYD, Tar Heel second sacker who injured his right knee a few weeks back during batting practice, reappeared in uniform at Emerson Field yesterday and got in a very light workout as the Carolina nine went through its daily routine. Lloyd, still wary of the knee, remained on the sidelines for most of the afternoon. He is not being counted upon as a starter when UNC opens against Georgia Tech in Winter Park, Fla. March 24.

16 Fives Seek NCAA Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sixteen of the country's top college basketball teams, headed by San Francisco, Kentucky, and LaSalle, square off at four scattered centers Friday night in regional eliminations. All have one aim—the National Collegiate NCAA championship.

San Francisco, Kentucky and LaSalle are the first three teams, in that order, in The Associated Press' final regular season poll. Kentucky was winner of the poll last year but didn't play in the tournament. LaSalle won the title.

Action at Philadelphia, Evanston, Ill., Manhattan, Kan., and Corvallis, Ore., Friday and Saturday nights will reduce the field to four for the semifinals and finals scheduled at Kansas City March 18-19.

Twelve additional teams, all hand-picked, are entered in the rival National Invitation Tournament, opening Saturday at Madison Square Garden in New York. The top entry is Duquesne, sixth-ranked nationally.

SAN FRANCISCO, boasting a proud season record of 23-1, will make its regional NCAA bid at Corvallis, playing Utah, which has been almost as impressive with a 23-3 mark.

San Francisco warmed up for its battle with Utah in a preliminary game Tuesday night, beating West Texas State, the Border Conference champion, 89-66.

The other game at Corvallis pits Oregon State, the Pacific Coast's towering champions, against Seattle, which had to win a preliminary game from Idaho State 80-63.

Kentucky, the Southeastern Conference champion with a 22-2 record, plays at Evanston, Ill., and has a nervepolting opening opponent in Marquette, a team which sandwiched 22 straight victories between losses in the opening and closing games of the regular season. Marquett was forced overtime to beat Miami of Ohio 90-79 in a Tuesday night preliminary.

THE OTHER Evanston game involves Iowa, the Big 10 champion ranked fifth nationally, and Penn State, which eliminated Memphis State in a preliminary 59-55.

At Philadelphia, LaSalle, with perhaps the nation's outstanding individual player in Tom Gola, plays the undecided Ivy League champion, Columbia or Princeton, while Canisius takes on Villanova. LaSalle had a preliminary game with West Virginia which it won 95-61.

Canisius and Villanova also had to win earlier tests to qualify. Canisius beat Williams 73-60. Villanova edged Duke 74-73.

Cagers Set 14 New School Records

Despite the fact that they finished the season below the .500 level, North Carolina's basketballers broke university records left and right during the 1954-55 campaign.

No less than 14 of the university's 31 records fell by the wayside during the season, including seven new marks by sophomore flash Lennie Rosenbluth.

Rosenbluth, playing with the form of a star from the opening whistle, set new school records for one game with 17 free throws scored, 21 free throw attempts and 25 rebounds and new marks for the season with his point average of 25.5, his total of 189 field goals, his total of 158 free throws and his 11.7 rebound average.

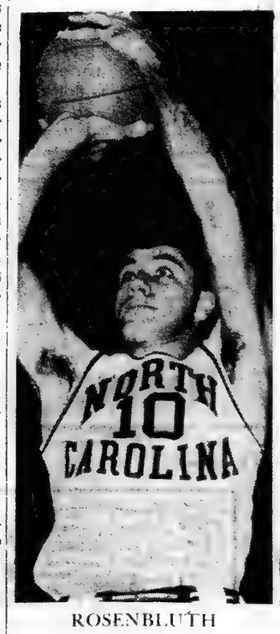
Rosenbluth's total of 536 points for the season was only 42 points shy of the University record for one season now held by George Glamack.

Two of Rosenbluth's marks broke records held by former Tar Heel All-Americans. The slender 6-foot-5 cager's 25.5 average for the season was 4.9 points better than the figure recorded in 1941 by Glamack, who was all-American in both 1940 and 1941. And Rosenbluth had 11 more field goals than did John "Hook" Dillon in 1946 when Dillon was selected to the All-American ranks.

Another university individual record went to junior guard Tony Radovich. He hit on 85 of 194 field goal attempts to finish with an average of 43.8 per cent. Teammate Jerry Vayda's 1953 performance of 41.7 per cent was the previous high.

TWO OTHER Tar Heels also finished above the 40 per cent level. Guard Al Lifson had an average of 43.1 per cent and Rosenbluth was third with 42.6 per cent.

Lifson, a spunky little cager who completed his fourth season with the Tar Heels, was the only other individual to break a university record. He pushed the career scoring record, which he set last season, to 1,322 points, 301 more points than the mark formerly held by Dillon.



Four new marks were recorded by the team. The Tar Heels made 38 field goals against Clemson and Virginia for a new standard in that department, finished with a scoring average of 75.8, had a field goal average of 39.6 per cent, and a free throw average fo 68.4.

THE 14th RECORD to fall was actually set by the opposition when Virginia hit the nets for 98 points. It was the highest number of points ever scored against a North Carolina basketball team.

In addition to Rosenbluth's team-leaving total of 536 points, team-leading total of 536 points, ing the season had Jerry Vayda with 307, Lifson with 281, Radovich with 230 and Bob Young with 138.

The accumulative statistics:

Player	FG	FT	Reb	TP	Avg
Rosenbluth	189	158	246	536	25.5
Vayda	97	113	190	307	14.6
Lifson	93	95	88	281	13.4
Radovich	85	60	76	230	11.0
Young	56	26	67	138	6.6
Likins	13	16	90	42	2.2
Goodwin	9	15	17	33	2.1
Clark	1	4	3	6	1.0
McCabe	5	0	5	10	.8
Sutton	1	2	4	4	.6
Greene	0	3	8	3	.3
Henderson	0	2	0	2	.3
Totals	549	494	794	1592	75.8
Opp. Totals	563	471	993	1599	76.1

ROSENBLUTH
. . . many new records

11 Gymnasts Depart Friday For Tournament

By CHUCK STRONG

Eleven North Carolina gymnasts leave tomorrow to participate in the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnasties Tournament to be held at Georgia Tech Saturday.

According to Coach Bill Meade, the tournament is shaping up to be a two-school affair with either Florida State or Carolina copping the championship. The big question to be answered is, "Can UNC, with a good sound team having plenty of depth defeat a Florida State team which is built around one man?" That one man is Don Holder, who was on the United States Olympic gymnastics team in 1952.

All the pre-tourney dope gives every indication that it is going to be a nip and tuck affair between the two teams and Meade believes the events will shape up as follows:

Rope climb: UNC should win this with Bill Rivera, who has climbed four seconds flat in practice.

Tumbling: Pete Brumley and Frank Williams should take first and second place for UNC in this event but not necessarily in that order.

High bar: This is going to be a three way fight between Gordon Hudson and Biff Howard of UNC and Holder.

Side horse: Holder will win this for State but UNC should place.

Parallel bars: Another three-way fight between Hudson, Howard and Holder.

Flying rings: Anyone's guess; Hudson has an outside chance.

All-around: Holder should take first place in this event but UNC should place enough men to pick up several points.

Trampolin: Florida all the way. This is not a scheduled event with Carolina during the normal season.

Florida will probably take more first places than UNC but that alone will not win the tournament.

First place will be worth seven points; however, if Carolina can take second and third place in those events in which Florida takes first, Carolina will pick up nine points per event.

Meade believes that in Hudson, Howard and Brumley he not only has some winners but also the boys who will win those all-important second and third places.

Kenfield Gets Scare In Match With Flames

By JAKE WADE

UNC Sports Publicist

Frank McGuire, North Carolina's basketball coach, is on a sightseeing swing in the east. . . . He'll have to be back on March 14 for a speaking appearance at Danville, when another McGuire, Earl, of UNC's publicity staff, will introduce him. . . . This is the time of year that Bunn Hearn rolls out his hospitality for pals around the gym. . . . He's scheduled a little party this week when coon will be the table delicacy. . . . John Kenfield, the tennis coach, narrowly escaped serious accident the other day. . . . He was burning off some land on his suburban acres when the fire got out of control. . . . Fighting the fire alone, he became overcome by fumes and completely blacked out. . . . A neighbor showed up just in time and called an ambulance. . . . He was rushed to the hospital where he was revived and passed eaminations with shining results.

THIS AND THAT!—Sometimes it is very amusing when our coaches meet in Woollen Gym corridors . . . Track Coach Dale Ranson elaborates on the wonderful running of Jimmy Beatty . . . Swimming coach pays no attention as he predicts Phil Drake will be a record buster in the ACC championships this weekend, "if we can keep him out of the hospital and well" . . . Seems something is always happening to him . . . Gymnastics Coach Bill Meade saunters by long enough to forecast his team may win three or four individual titles in the Southern championships at Atlanta . . . McGuire expostulates on Lennie Rosenbluth and an upcoming freshman or two or three.

HERE AND THERE! — Tom Maultsby got excused from football practice to work with the baseballers and could be headed for a mighty good year as a pitcher . . . He's the only letterman tosser around . . . Tar Heel baseballers will take in Silver Springs, Florida's famed, clear waters on their trip South. . . . Blue-White game is set for March 19 and there will be a big reception for alumni at the Monogram Club

APPEAL FOR WRITERS

The sports department of The Daily Tar Heel is in dire need of writers (good, better or best) to cover the flood of spring sports now beginning to appear.

Persons interested in spending an hour or so per day with the exciting group of young men now enjoying their hours spent with the DTH may contact Bernie Weiss, sports editor, between the hours of four and six any afternoon in room 211 of the Graham Memorial.

Experience, though not necessary, would be helpful.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 2

Though this column is intended solely as a vehicle for well-tempered drollery, the makers of Philip Morris have agreed to let me use this space from time to time for a short lesson in science. They are the most decent and obliging of men, the makers of Philip Morris, as one would guess from sampling their product. Only from bounteous hearts could come such a pleasurable cigarette—so felicitously blended, so gratifying to the taste, so soothing to the psyche. And, as though bringing you the most agreeable cigarette on the market were not enough, the makers of Philip Morris have enclosed their wares in the Snap-Open Pack, an ingeniously contrived wrapping that yields up its treasure without loss of time or cuticle. And, finally, this paragon of cigarettes, wrapped in the paragon of packages, can be had in king-size or regular, as your taste dictates. Who can resist such a winning combination? Not I.

A few weeks ago in this column we had a brief lesson in chemistry. Today we take up another attractive science—medicine.

Medicine was invented in 1066 by a Greek named Hippocrates. He soon attracted around him a group of devoted disciples whom he called "doctors". The reason he called them "doctors" was that they sat around a dock all day. Some fished, some just dozed in the noonday sun. In truth, there was little else for them to do, because disease was not invented until 1492.

After that doctors became very busy, but, it must be reported, their knowledge of medicine was lamentably meagre. They knew only one treatment—a change of climate. For example, a French doctor would send all his patients to Switzerland; a Swiss doctor, on the other hand, would send all his patients to France. By 1789 the entire population of France was living in Switzerland, and vice versa. This later became known as the Black Tom Explosion.

Not until 1924 did medicine, as we know it, come into being. In that year in the little Bavarian village of Pago-Pago an elderly physician named Winko Sigafoos discovered the hot water bottle. He was, of course, burned as a witch, but his son Lydia, disguised as a linotype, smuggled the hot water bottle out of the country. He called on Florence Nightingale in London but was told by her housekeeper, with some asperity, that Miss Nightingale had died in 1910. Lydia muttered something and, disguised as a feather boa, made his way to America, where he invented the blood stream.

Medicine, as it is taught at your very own college, can be divided roughly into two classifications. There is internal medicine, which is the treatment of internes, and external medicine, which is the treatment of externes.

Diseases also fall into two broad categories—chronic and acute. Chronic disease, is of course, inflammation of the chron, which can be mighty painful, believe you me! Last summer my cousin Haskell was stricken with a chron attack while out picking up tinfoil, and it was months before the wretched boy could straighten up. In fact, even after he was cured, Haskell continued to walk around bent over double. This went on for some weeks before Dr. Caligari, the lovable old country practitioner who treats Haskell, discovered that Haskell had his pants buttoned to his vest.

Two years ago Haskell had Addison's disease. (Addison, curiously enough, had Haskell's.) Poor Haskell catches everything that comes along. Lovable old Dr. Caligari once said to him, "Son, I guess you are what they call a natural born catcher."

"The joke is on you, Doc," replied Haskell. "I am a third baseman." He thereupon fell into such a fit of giggling that the doctor had to put him under sedation, where he is to this day.

But I digress. We were discussing medicine. I have now told you all I can; the rest is up to you. Go over to your medical school and poke around. Bring popcorn and watch an operation. Fiddle with the X-ray machines. Contribute to the bone bank . . . And, remember, medicine can be fun!

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, who bring you this column, have nursed their flavorful tobaccos to bring you the most pleasurable smoke obtainable.

TAR HEEL CAB
8464
To One And All
We Appreciate Every Call

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

NOTICE!
Served Every Thursday
SPECIAL
Fried Chicken or Country Fried Steak
2 Vegetables, Coffee or Tea
Free Seconds
55c
MICHAELS GRILL

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U.S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

"DESTRY"
Technicolor
STARRING
AUDIE MURPHY
MARI BLANCHARD
LYLE BETTGEP
LORI NELSON
THOMAS MITCHELL
TODAY and SATURDAY
Varsity

DINE at The RANCH HOUSE
Home of Charbroiled
Hickory Smoked Steaks

20th CENTURY-FOX presents
KIRK DOUGLAS
BELLA DARVI
GILBERT ROLAND
THE RACERS
also starring
CESAR ROMERO · LEE J. COBB · KATY JURADO with Charles Goldner · George Dolenz
in
CINEMASCOPE
Color by DE LUXE

OPENS TODAY
Carolina

GMAB Film Tonight

The Film Committee of the Graham Memorial Activities Board will present the fourth in its spring series of films tonight at 8 o'clock in Carroll Hall.

The film is "Rocking Horse Winner," starring Valerie Hobson and John Mills.

The J. Arthur Rank production is a "dramatization of the effect on a young boy of the spendthrift habits of his parents, and his willingness to sacrifice his life to bring them contentment and happiness," according to Gordon Forester, president of GMAB. He added that the film is the best in the year's series.

Season tickets will be available at the door. No individual tickets will be sold.

RANCH HOUSE
THE PLACE TO DINE

THE KINGPIN
By Tom Wicker
A novel about rough and tough politics in "a Southern state," by North Carolinian Tom Wicker. Put it on your North Carolina shelf, but read it first, pal, real it frist. Published at $3.75.
OUR SPECIAL
$1.00
There's a Bargain just for you at
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

DI DEBATES

The Dialectic Senate defeated a bill Tuesday night that would have abolished the United States Senate. The Senators killed the measure 14-2 on a voice vote.

The bill, introduced by Larry McElroy, described the nation's highest legislative body as "unnecessary" since the needs which it was created to meet are "no longer pressing."

In opposing the main bill, Turner described the western parts of the United States as "grouped around one big roulette wheel."

UP CANDIDATES MEETING

There will be a meeting of all University Party candidates today at 3:30 in the APO room of Graham Memorial.

Sponsors For PiKA Pledge Festivities

Sponsors for Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity's recent pledge class festivities are shown above. Top row, left to right, Peggy Funk, Seaford, Del., with John Sewell, Murfreesboro, president; and Jane Martin, Everetts, with Dan Clark, Everetts, vice-president. Bottom row, left to right, Gaill Saunders, Charlotte, with Grant Hennessa, Charlotte, secretary, and Jackie O'Brien, Winston-Salem, with Bruce Johnson, Conway, treasurer.

HANDBOOK APPLICATIONS

Bill Oakley, chairman of the YMCA publications, announced yesterday that applications for 10 positions on the Carolina Handbook must be in the Y information office by 5 p.m. this afternoon.

VOCATIONAL STUDY

A program concerning YWCA work and the Girl Scouts will be held at 4 p.m. today in the Y office. The program will be open to the public. It is sponsored by the Lazy Literates of the YWCA.

–Dean's List–

(Continued from Page 1)

bur D. Jones Jr., Wilmington; Leslie G. Kirschner, Candler; Lucy Lou Luffman, State Road;

James L. McElroy Jr., Marshall; Dulon D. Pollard, Benson; Aline S. Poole, Tryon; William R. Proffitt, Lillington; Flora Nell Roebuck, New Bern; Raymond Fletcher Snipes, Reidsville; James Tyrus Steward, Erwin; Billy L. Tevepaugh, Kannapolis; Donald Livingston Thomas, North Wilkesboro; Sanford W. Thompson III, Morehead City; Lynda Joan Vestal, Liberty; Charles Yarborough, Louisburg; Edwin M. Yoder, Mebane; Noah Heber Walters, La Grange; Robert Lee West, Dover, and Bennie B. Ward, Longwood.

Out of state students include Elizabeth C. Ball, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; F. Barbara Beasley, Springfield, Ohio; Robert L. Binda, Hampton, Va.; Herbert H. Browne Jr., Columbi,a S. C.; Jaqueline C. Caperton, Charleston, W. Va.; Marion C. Chalmers, Greenville, S. C.; Ann B. Cooper, Columbus, Ga.; David B. Cooper, Bruce A. Gustafson and Stephen Asbury Trimble, Washington, D. C.; Thomas C. Creasy, Gretna, Va.; Hugh S. Downing, Salem, Va.;

Carol Barnett Dickman, Virginia M. Everett and Johnnie A. McClaran, New York City; Joseph A. McClure Jr., Orangeburg, S. C.; Betty A. McInturff, McGaneysville, Va.; Donna Joan Metz, Clayton, Mo.; Stephen A. Moss, Kintnersville, Pa.; Betty A. Neas, Roanoke, Va.; Lois C. Owen, Bronxville, N. Y.; Bobby Joe Patterson, Amarillo, Tex.; Roland P. Perdue, College Park, Ga.; Ann Pooley, El Paso, Tex.; Lydia L. Ratcliff, Palisades, N. Y.; Frank T. Read, St. Stephen, S. C.;

Roderick L. Reinecke, Galveston, Tex.; William M. Rivera, Charlmette, La.; Herbert Wallace Roberts, Memphis, Tenn.; Edna Frances Roberts, Summerton, S. C.; Harry Paul Schrank Jr., Akron, Ohio; Alexander G. Shanks, Birmingham, Ala.; Charles L. Sharpless, Wyncote, Pa.; Mary Ruth Silliphant, Chevy Chase, Md.; Sherwood Hubbard Smith, Jr., Jacksonville, Fla.;

George T. Strickland Jr., Nashville, Tenn.; Joane Graham Tannehill, Staunton, Va.; Marianne Duvalle Thomas, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Luanne Ellen Thornton, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Deborah Westcott, Norfolk, Va.; Thomas E. Wilgus, Old Greenwich, Conn.; James F. Wilkins, Lynchburg, Va.; Edward F. Willey, Clemson, S. C.; June Williamson, Winter Park, Fla.; Suzanne Elliott, Alva, Okla.;

William D. Fetzer, Rocky River, O.; Sara A. Folger, Milledgeville, Ga.; Betsy L. Goodwin, Lenoir City, Tenn.; Ora L. Grav, Brownsville, Tenn.; Sylvia M. Greene, Coral Gables, Fla.; Virginia C. Gunter, Arlington, Va.; Stephen C. Hardy, Silver Springs, Md.; Anne Hebert, New Orleans; Jaqueline McCarthy, Norfolk, Va.; Erolyn J. Blount, Nashville, Tenn., and Anne Ryan Thomas, of Memphis, Tenn.

–Conference–

(Continued from Page 1)

reports by the chairmen of the three topic groups will be the highlights of a dinner session to be held in the College Union Ballroom Friday at 6:30 p.m. President Gray will preside at the dinner and will introduce the Governor and the subcommittee chairmen.

Another feature of the dinner program will be the presentation of the Oliver Max Gardner Award to the faculty member of the Consolidated University who has made the greatest contribution to the human race during the past year."

The local campus chairmen who are assisting Dr. Edsall at each of the three institutions comprising the Consolidated University are Professors Ethel Martus, Woman's College; E. C. Markham, UNC; and W. A. Reid, State College.

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

REMEMBER OCCASIONS WITH GREETING CARDS. Greeting cards are an easy way to let folks know you're thinking of them. Send a card today from Ledbetter-Pickard's collection.

What Goes On Here

BAPTIST SUPPER FORUM

There will be a supper forum at the Baptist Church tonight at 6 o'clock. The forum will be open to the public. Three discussion groups will follow supper.

FILM CRITICS

The Film Critics will hold its second meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial. The meeting will concern the election of officers and discussion of movie awards given by national magazines.

PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM

The joint UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in 206 Phillips Hall. The speaker will be Dr. Arthur H. Snell, director of the physics division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

DORM IMPROVEMENTS

The Dorm Improvements Committee will meet from 2 until 4 p.m. today in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial. Jack Hudson, chairman of the committee, said that all presidents of the men's dorms or their representatives would attend the meeting. He urged any interested students or members of the administration to attend the meetings.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Joseph McGugam, publicity manager of the Men's Glee Club, has announced that all members of the club should be present at every rehearsal. A rehearsal will be held Friday at 4 p.m. with the girls from St. Mary's, according to McGugam.

Future Teachers Meet, Plan State Convention

The Frank Porter Graham Chapter of the Future Teachers of America met this week and discussed plans for the state FTA convention to be held in Asheville on March 24, 25 and 26.

The conventions was discussed, and plans were made for transportation of the members who are planning to attend.

Cage Scandal Topic At Monogram Meet

Freshman basketball coach Buck Freeman will speak at the Monogram Club's bi-weekly meeting tonight at 7 o'clock.

His subject will be the New York basketball scandal of 1950.

Initiation of fall lettermen will also be a highlight of the meeting. Monogram sweaters and certificates will be distributed and a picture will be taken.

Plans for the Blue-White game, which traditionally winds up spring football practice, will be discussed.

–BA School Dean's List–

(Continued from Page 1)

William Farrell Jr., Graham; Randall Ferguson, Chapel Hill; Herman Fleishman, Fayetteville; Burke Fox Jr., Charlotte; William Garrison, Gastonia.

Don Geiger, Tampa, Fla.; Helen Glover, Albany, Ga.; Harvey Harris, Garysburg; Leland Haywood, Mt. Gilead, Richard Haywood, Monroe.

George Heinz, Sparta; Charles Hilton, Hickory; Thomas Hoover, Charlotte; Robert Houchins, Leaksville; Ralph Jordan, Concord.

Robert Joyce, Mayodan; Edward Kirk, Baldwin, Miss.; David Kiser, Lincolnton; William Hrsch, Weldon; Chester Lewis, Chapel Hill.

Gerard McCabe, New York, N. Y.; John McDaniel, Gibsonville; Robert McGimsey, Lenoir George McMillan, Raleigh; David Mann, Grosse Pointe, Michigan.

Roger Mello, Chapel Hill; Tomas Moreton, Biloxi, Miss.; Joseph Morton, Albemarle; David Myers, Chapel Hill; Edward Nelson, Washington, D. C.

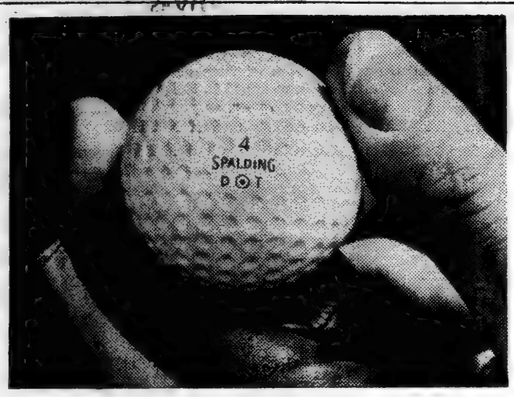
Robert O'Briant, Durham; Frances Parham, Oxford; Kenneth Partin, Asheville; Charles Pate, Raleigh; Robert Patterson, Chapel Hill.

John Peddycord, Winston-Salem; Phillip Penninger, Concord; William Phillips Jr., Rocky Mt.; Richard Phipps, Raleigh; Bobby Pugh, Asheboro.

Joyce Quillin, Gate City, Va.; Edward Ransdell, Varina; Garland Ricks, Conway; Margaret Rook, Richmond, Va.; Guy Ross, Pleasant Garden.

Peter Schroeder, Rocky River, Ohio; Howard Scotland Jr., Towson, Md.; William Sellers, Burlington; John Sewell, Murfreesboro; Charles Smith, Raleigh.

Pete Smitherman, Winston-Salem; William Spencer, High Point; Al Stanley, Chapel Hill; Martha Stockton, Franklin; Eugene Stone, Bailey.



Leon Sylvester, Richlands; Stuart Teichman, Winston-Salem; William Thayer, Troy; William Thompson, Chapel Hill; William Tuggle, Williamsburg, Va.

Kenneth Venable, Winston-Salem; Robert Walsh, Lenoir; William Warrick, Mt. Olive; Robert West, Winston-Salem; R. Donald White, Charlotte.

Robert Whitfield, Greensboro; Leo Wilkerson, Mebane; Joseph Wilson, Lake Waccamaw and Walter York, High Point.

RH*
* Ranch Hands
Ranch House

SLACK SPECIAL
While they last—moygashel Irish linen slacks—pleated model—reduced from 14.00 to 5.99
All pleated pants, values to 10.00
Now 3.99
See our many new spring items
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

The best ball for your game has the exclusive
DURA-THIN COVER
Here's amazing new durability in a high-compression ball. The DURA-THIN* cover provides this great new Spalding DOT® with real scuff resistance . . . keeps the DOT uniform and true, even on rugged high-iron shots. The new DOT has a greater compactness for truer, more uniform flight. It's actually an economical ball for you to play.
And, with all this new durability, new DOTs still offer the long, long carry every hard-hitter wants.
At school, or on your home course, make your next round a better one with this greatest of all golf balls, Spalding DURA-THIN DOTS.
SPALDING sets the pace in sports
*Trade-mark
SPALDING EQUIPMENT CARRIED BY
CAROLINA SPORT SHOP

Listen to Jimmie Capps at 11:05 Tue. & Thur. Nites by Records & High Fidelity Equipment
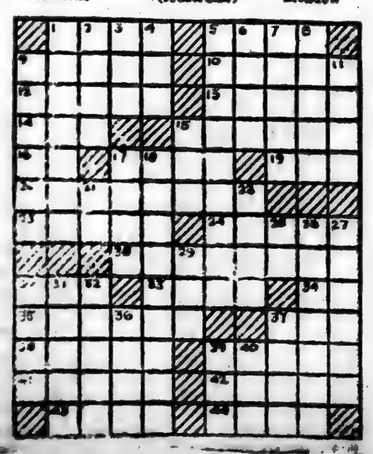
207. E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N.C.



BLINTZES with Sour Cream at HARRY'S

THREE OFFICES for THREE good reasons!
The Bank of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL CARRBORO
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.
CARRBORO BRANCH
. . . to give a better, more efficient banking service to the business and personal accounts located in Carrboro and West Chapel Hill. Conveniently located in the heart of Carrboro.
The Bank of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL CARRBORO
MAIN OFFICE
. . . completely remodeled, doubled in size with modern facilities throughout including a large offstreet parking lot immediately behind office for faster, more convenient service to merchants, students, business organizations and individual customer accounts of Chapel Hill.
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.
The Bank of Chapel Hill
CHAPEL HILL CARRBORO
Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.
GLEN LENNOX BRANCH
. . . to complete our all around service all around town, this new branch with drive-in window to meet the banking needs of our fast growing community.
Bank with any or all three offices with one account

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Found in Pennsylvania
5. Scheme
9. Goods
10. Proportion
12. Head of a monastery
13. Chemical compound
14. Little girl
15. The territory of Athens
16. Indefinite article
17. Little island
19. Central (abbr.)
20. Indicates
23. Make amends for
24. Songs for two people
28. An addition
30. Girl's name
33. Affected manners
34. Negative reply
35. A public procession
37. Thus (L.)
38. Assign
39. Bottle-shaped container
41. Danger
42. The shield of Zeus
43. Act of selling
44. A house in Italy

DOWN
1. A group of ministers in government
2. Sisters
3. Past
4. Fate
5. A claimant to a throne
6. Final
7. Garret
8. One's sister's daughter
9. A winter melon
11. Seaport (Algeria)
15. Malt beverage
17. Small island in the Hebrides
18. Run away (colloq.)
21. Toward
22. Sources of light and heat
25. Man's nickname
26. French protectorate (N. Afr.)
27. Artists often wear these
29. Perish
30. A month of the Egyptian vague year
31. A U. S. vice-president
32. Palm cockatoo (Australia)
36. External covering of a seed
37. Droops in the middle
39. Decorated letter at beginning of paragraph
40. Marshy meadow

ORBIT ASLEW
LITTLE TRADE
ALIKE TIMID
FEZ ORMERS
ZOMBIE
AWARE BODES
ODILE URIAH
ANOLE TARRY
EVENT
DEBONAIR IAN
ALONG ABELE
SINGE LISLE
SANER ANTIC

Yesterday's Answer

SWEAT?
Need a Band to Play For Your Houseparties, Spring Germans, or Pledge Weekend?
NO SWEAT!
Let Us Do The Work We Book Bands — Any Size, Any Hours To Play Jazz Or Dance; All Priced To Fit Your Fraternity Budget.
DON KURTZ
Phone 9-1011

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Cloudy and warm today with expected high of 72.

The Daily Tar Heel

REMEMBER

Archibald Henderson remembers his student days in a new Daily Tar Heel series. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 115 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

YWCA's New Officers

The YWCA's officers for 1955-56, above, are, front row left to right, Misses Jane Cocke, vice-president; Sally Folger, president; back row left to right, Misses Anna Windley, membership chairman; Joan Purser, secretary, and Alice Bost, treasurer.—R. B. Henley photo.

Student Legislature Favors Change In Interdormitory Council Bylaws; DTH Probers' Work 'Beneficial'

180 Faculty Members Get Together At State College

RALEIGH, March 10—Approximately 180 key faculty members of the Consolidated University of North Carolina gathered at North Carolina State College this morning for the third annual Conference on the State of the University.

Dr. Carey H. Bostian, chancellor of State College, and Dr. Preston W. Edsall, head of the State College Department of History and Political Science and general chairman of the two-day conference, were the chief speakers at the opening session this morning.

Theme of the assembly is "Planning for the Foreseeable Future." Discussions will cover a wide range of factors affecting the long-range advancement of the three institutions comprising the Consolidated University—the University in Chapel Hill, Woman's College in Greensboro and State College in Raleigh.

GRAY SPEAKS

President Gordon Gray is scheduled to addres the faculty members at a general session in the auditorium of the Nelson Textile Building tonight at 8 p.m.

In welcoming the educators to the N. C. State campus, Chancellor Bostian said the conference has "special significance" in view of two developments:

"1. Its occurrence so soon after the issuing of the report of the Visiting Committee (of the Board of Trustees), and the recommendations of the Commission on Higher Education.

"2. The greater importance than at any previous time of considering how we can most efficiently serve our students and public interests with greater demands for service, and the prospects of having less financial support."

GET-TOGETHER

Dr. Bostian expressed his pleasure that the delegates from the University in Chapel Hill and Woman's College would become better acquainted with State College's physical facilities during their visit to Raleigh.

In his remarks, Dr. Edsall declared that the mission of the Consolidated University will not be fulfilled unless the institution "is prepared to take purposeful, planned advantage of the opportunities" presented to it and expressed the hope that the conference would develop long-range plans for future progress.

The three institutions, he said, "have acquired in different degrees high standing among the educational institutions of the country, but unle ss we keep and indeed accelerate our pace we may lose ground."

PLANNING FOR FUTURE

He added: "Because we believe that planning for the future is the joint responsibility of the administration and the faculty, we decided to utilize this, the third in the series of University Conferences initiated by our President over two years ago, as a vehicle for the expression of faculty opinion on our long-range problems. Indeed, as we saw it, the University Conference is the only organized representative faculty body covering all three units. Past experience indicates that what we do here today and tomorrow will be taken with great seriousness by the administration.

"The planning committee decided that the conference theme should be approached under three main topics: Planning for students, planning for the faculty and staff and planning for extended services to the state.

We hope that these topics will be developed in their long-range implications. We do not seek to avoid current problems. Rather we would look at all our problems with an awareness that we must grow in greatness as a University. This goal requires that the answers or the alternative suggestions we offer even to current problems should be made in harmony with our long-range purposes: To meet the needs of our students, to do so through a steadily improving faculty, and to serve our state to the maximum of our effective capacity," said Dr. Edsall.

Dr. J. Harris Purks, vice president and provost of the Consolidated University, was the speaker at today's luncheon session in the State College Union Building.

Reid Lauds Work Of Kuralt And Powledge

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature in a brief meeting last night approved the revised bylaws of the Interdormitory Council.

The bill's passage came after lengthy discussion on a committee report that the Council "had been carrying out a program this year that was violating the student Constitution." The Ways and Means Committee report further stated that after the Council had enacted this "unconstitutional" action, it came "running to the Legislature" for approval.

It was interpreted to mean that the committee was referring to the IDC's election of IDC representatives, whereas the Constitution calls for "a counselor appointed by the University" to represent men's dorms at IDC meetings.

In defense of the IDC's program that the legislative committee implied had exceeded its "authority," Lewis Brumfield (SP) said he couldn't possibly see how "anyone could object to the good work that the council has done this year."

Other measures rammed through at the session were:

(1) a bill to appropriate $52 to President Tom Creasy to pay his expenses to an Integration Conference at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and

(2) A bill giving the Carolina Political Union a representative on the Debate Council.

A report given by investigating committee looking into the "quality and circulation' problems of The Daily Tar Heel said that the work was proving very "beneficial."

Some time after this report was made, David Reid, SP floorleader, got up and urged that "a closer harmony" be instituted between all functions of student government. Reid emphasized that he felt this lack of cohesion was cause for the "misunderstanding" between The Daily Tar Heel and the Legislature.

In urging that the whole incident be "smoothed over," Reid commended Charles Kuralt, editor, as "one of the finest we've ever had."

In answering a charge by one of the legislators at last week's meeting that "Fred Powledge, managing editor, was "lazy," Reid said, "There is no individual in student government more dedicated to his work." Reid concluded that Powledge was sincere in his efforts to "do the best job he could."

SARA ALICE JACKSON
. . . Orientation Chairman

Jackson Orientation Chairman

Miss Sara Alice Jackson has been named Women's Orientation Chairman by the women's Residence Council.

Miss Jackson, a junior pharmacy major from Lumberton, will direct coed orientation at the beginning of summer school and next year's fall semester. Assisting her will be leaders of the various coed organizations.

The new orientation chairman attended Rollins College two years before entering the Pharmacy School here in 1952. She is a member of Chi Omega Sorority.

Blue & White Voting Starts In Y Saturday

Voting for the second annual Miss Blue and White contest will begin tomorrow and will be held also on Monday and Tuesday.

The contest is sponsored by the Monogram Club and is held to choose a coed to reign as queen over the annual Blue-White football game. The game, which ends winter practice, will be held at 2 p.m. on March 19 in Kenan Stadium.

Voting will be conducted on a penny-a-vote basis in the Y building. Proceeds from the contest will go to the Monogram Club scholarship fund and orphans' parties.

There are 13 contestants for the title of Miss Blue and White. Each contestant has been chosen by her dormitory or sorority. Last year the Monogram Club members chose contestants. The coed who receives the most money will be presented as queen during halftime ceremonies of the game along with the other 12 girls who will serve as sponsors for the two squads of the football team.

The queen will present trophies to the Varsity Coach of the Year and to the Freshman Coach of the Year as awarded by the Monogram Club.

The Monogram Club has arranged to have cheerleaders and University Band at the football game this year.

Pictures of the contestants will be on a bulletin board in the Y building tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday. Hours for voting will be from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

Contestants for the title are Misses Carol Taylor, Carr; Ann Wrenn, Tri Delta; Jackie Van Hook, Nurses Dorm; Ann Penn, Pi Phi; Liz Lynn, ADPi.

Misses Nancy Buran, Spencer; Pat Fossum, Kenan; Kay Browne, McIver; Jackie Wilkins, Alpha Gam; Libbie McDowell, Smith;

Misses Luanne Thornton, Alderman; Sara Fair, Chi Omega, and Nancy Whisnant, KD.

Last year's queen was Miss Sandy Donaldson, sponsored by Tri Delta.

"The idea of a queen and sponsors adds lots of color and interest to the football game, said Wilbur Jones, Monogram Club president, yesterday. "Last year the contest was a financial success. This year the Monogram Club hopes that the campus will again turn out to vote for the girl of their choice," he said.

'Punch Party' Scheduled For Politicians

"Politicians' Punch Party" is the name which has been chosen for the Independent Women's Council open house to be held on March 21 for all candidates running in coming campus elections, plus all women students.

The open house will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Miss Marilyn Zager, president of IWC, has announced that Miss Martha Stogner, junior from Charlotte, is the new vice-president of the Council.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

The Wesley Foundation will have a party at Reverend Hubbard's cabin tomorrow night. Anyone desiring transportation should be at the church by 7:30.

Folger Named To YWCA Presidency

Miss Sally Folger, from Milledgeville, Ga., has been elected president of the YWCA in house meetings of all women's dormitories and sorority houses.

Miss Folger was a delegate to the National YWCA Assembly held in Kansas last December. She has been a member of the Regional Council of the YM-YW Human Relations Committee, co-chairman of the Bible Study group and a Y cabinet member.

The new vice-president is Miss Jane Cocke, a Tri Delta from Asheville. Miss Cocke is also a member of the Women's Residence Council, the Human Relations Committee and the Hospital Service Committee of the Y.

Elected secretary of the YWCA is Joan Purser, a Tri Delta from Charlotte. Miss Purser is a member of the Graham Memorial Reception Committee and is also on the YWCA Human Relations and Program Committees.

Miss Alice Bost, from Hickory, was chosen treasurer. Miss Bost, a member of Chi Omega, works with the Centennial Committee, and is on the office force of the Y.

Miss Anna Windley, a Kappa Delta from Washington, was elected chairman of the membership committee.

Chairman of the program committee is Sarah Alice Jackson, Chi Omega from Lumberton. Miss Jackson was recently elected Women's Orientation chairman.

PROFESSORS' ASSOCIATION

The University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors will meet in the theater of the State College Union in Raleigh today at 5 p.m. The subject to be discussed will be the All-University Handbook now in preparation.

Mrs. Marshall Slates Speech Here Monday

Mrs. Peter Marshall, author of the best-selling biography of her husband, A Man Called Peter, will be the centennial speaker for the Young Women's Christian Association Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Kendrick Townsend, Lumberton, chairman of the YWCA Centennial Committe, yesterday announced plans for Mrs. Marshall's visit to Chapel Hill.

Mrs. Marshall's main address on "Nothing Can Defeat You" has been scheduled for Monday night at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall, to be followed by a reception in her honor at Graham Memorial.

A delegation of YWCA members will meet Mrs. Marshall upon her arrival in Durham Monday morning, and escort her back to Chapel Hill. After touring the campus, she will be honored at a banquet at the Carolina Inn Monday night, preceding her address.

Reservations Accepted For Parents, Guests

According to the University Housing Office, graduating seniors may now make reservations for commencement guests.

Students wishing to make reservations may do so by going to either the Housing Office or the Alumni Office.

Muntzing Chooses Wells For Manager

Sammy (Buddy) Wells, rising junior from Reidsville, has been appointed campaign manager for Manning Muntzing, Student Party candidate for president of the student body, it was announced yesterday.

Wells, a NROTC Scholarship holder, is currently serving as president of Alexander Dormitory and has been a member of student Legislature and Phi Eta Sigma, freshmen scholastic honorary.

"I feel honored to have been selected with the pleasurable task of presenting Manning's splendid record of experience and accomplishment to the student body this spring," said Wells yesterday. He also listed early appointments to the Muntzing Campaign Advisory Committee. They include Nancy Whisnant, Marlyn Zager, Annette Levenson, Lewis Brumfield and Bob Elder.

Band Awards

Thirteen members of the University Band were awarded monogram sweaters at this week's meeting of the group.

The white wool sweaters bearing blue lyre-shaped monograms were awarded to seniors who have been in the organization during two fall semesters.

Receiving sweaters this year were Jim Butler, Joy Carter, Bill Edwards, Roger McDuffie, Peggy Needham, Bob Pfaff, Ken Pruitt, Ronald Shearin, Jim Tickle, Ken Venable, Herb Wainer, Dave Whitaker and Rollie Tillman.

UNC To Swap Students With Goettinger U.

The foreign student exchange program will go into effect next fall, according to student body President Tom Creasy.

The University will send one of its students to Goettinger University in Germany in exchange of one of their students. A committee will be set up to carry out the details of selecting a student and of other phases of the program, Creasy explained.

"I would like to commend Bill Wible for the excellent job he has done," said Creasy. "I am happy that we have been able to accomplish this because I think this exchange program will grow to become another big program carried on by the University student government," he continued.

According to Creasy, the idea for an exchange program at Carolina came essentially from the students, growing from a meeting of the YMCA World Understanding Commission. Information was secured and the proposal was then studied in some detail. It was then presented to Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver and to student government. Both reacted favorably, said Creasy.

The program as tentatively proposed for next year is as follows, explained Creasy. A sponsoring committee will be formed, with representatives from all supporting organizations, to carry out the operation of the program and draw up plans for a permanent affiliation in succeeding years. One student will be brought from Goettinger to Carolina as a preliminary "ambassador."

SEC SPONSORS:

Cincinnati Symphony Coming

The Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra will be presented in Memorial Hall next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock by the Student Entertainment Committee.

The performance will be free to students. Townspeople will be admitted at a cost of $1 per person to all seats available after 7:40.

The orchestra was established in 1895. Since its beginning the post of musical director has been held by such men as Frank van der Stucken, Leopold Stokowski, Ernst Kunwald, Eugene Ysaya, Fritz Reiner and Eugene Goossens.

In the 1947-48 season Thor Johnson was appointed musical director and has remained in that position since then.

The 87 member organization gives approximately 100 concerts each season. It ha conducted a tour each eason since 1901. Since that time the Orchestra has given over 1,100 concerts in 35 states.

In 1951-52, the Symphony Orchestra gave a concert in New York's Carnegie Hall.

Arthur Rubinstein, pianist, has played over a dozen engagements since the beginning of his career with Cincinnati Orchestra.

THE CINCINNATI SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
. . . coming here Tuesday; free to students

GM's New Piano And Its Donor At Reception

Shown above are Graham Memorial's new Steinway Concert Grand piano and its donor, Miss Cornelia Love, at the reception held in Graham Memorial yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Love. Those shown with Miss Love are, left to right, Tom Creasy, student body president; Joel Fleishman, chairman of the Carolina Forum, and Jim Wallace, director of Graham Memorial.—R. B. Henley photo.

The University's Ragged Orphan

Gordon Forester is a man with a complaint that should be taken up by the whole student body.

Forester, president of the Graham Memorial Activities Board, had this to tell the Legislature's Complaints Board this week:

Graham Memorial is so far behind the other two schools in the Consolidated University in not only the physical plant but in the allocation of finances that it is impossible to present an adequate program or to hire a professional staff to carry out this program.

Anybody who has seen the plush student unions at State and WC knows the truth of that statement. Both are show places; both have stimulating, live-wire programs; both have become centers of student life, student "unions" in the best meaning of that word.

But not here. Graham Memorial, stuck away in a corner of the campus, is never visited by most students. And if it was, it would burst at the seams.

Compare sizes: Neither State nor WC are as large as Carolina; but their shiny new unions are each twice the size of ours.

Compare budgets: At State, it's $20 per student per year; at WC it's $19; here it's $6.

Compare programs and services: Both State and WC offer year-round, stimulating vies, games, concerts. Both have spacious lounges, auditoriums and snack bars. Graham Memorial, through Director Jim Wallace is making the best college try in its history, just doesn't have the budget to provide more than a token program.

Graham Memorial was built in 1932 to serve 2,000 students; and two-thirds of the architect's plan was never constructed. Its fee to students among the very lowest in the country. Our student union is a ragged, starved orphan of the University which includes two of the flashiest, most successful student unions of which American colleges can boast.

With the state's coffers empty as they are, we'll have to wait many years for a new student union. But the fee gap is one that can be bridged now.

With a reasonable budget, Graham Memorial could hire a professional staff and convert itself into a real student center; nobody who has seen what has been done at State and WC will say it shouldn't be done here.

Termite D'oeuvres

Add signs that Chapel Hill is evolving out of the village category: A note in The Chapel Hill Weekly that such worldly delicacies as french-fried grasshoppers and worms, barbecued muskrat, termite eggs, alligator soup and canned snails are on the counters down at Fowler's Food Store.

"Excellent for serving with cocktails," says Fowler's.

Gracious Living—XXV

The Saunders-Murphy-Law School horseshoe, we hear, is softly scented, these Indian Spring days, with Japanese cherry tree perfume.

But the Graham Memorial-Battle-Vance-Pettigrew end of the campus is enjoying no such sweetness, even with blossom-laden cherry trees well within perfume-range.

The GM groundsmen, more excited about the blossoms to come later than the blossoms here now, have dumped a well-known plant catalyst in the surrounding flower beds—to the nose-wringling distraction of us Graham Memorial slaves, the ruination of our pure, melodious March, and the abject embarrassment of Gracious Living in Chapel Hill.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman

Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin

Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley

Subscription Manager — Jack Godley

Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel

Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker

Photographer — Boyden Henley

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Answers For A BA Major & Ben Bobrow

Louis Kraar

THE BUSINESS major came up after class, and he looked angry. "How much money does the paper get from the students?" he wanted to know.

I explained to him that it varied from year to year, depending on the size of the student body and the generosity of the student Legislature.

"Well, it seems to me if students in the BA School help pay for the Tar Heel, you would represent them," he said.

I explained that the editorial column of this paper does not attempt to simply mirror what students think. I tried to go on have so many varied opinions that it would be impossible to "represent" them in the editorial column.

Letters to the editor represent student opinion, columns represent individual sudent opinion, news stories report student opinion—but the editorial column is the opinion of the editor.

And this is the way it should be.

★

"WELL, WHY does the Tar Heel crowd think they can tell me what courses to take?" my BA buddy wanted to know. "I took a course in Milton, Chaucer, and Shakespeare. And if I had to take more of that stuff, I think I'd leave the University," he added.

Actually, no one has tried to tell students what courses to take. On the other hand, most business majors simply don't realize what they're missing.

Literature? No. it probably won't help you make a sale or be a better accountant. But most of the qualities of a man that reappear in every age are there. It's just a study of life, something that even a business man could enjoy.

History? This field, no doubt, won't spark one's executive ability in a big corporation in just one semester. But here again is the study of all the things men have done. Not only that, but you can see what mistakes they made.

I could go on in this manner, but actually this would only make BA majors think that I'm telling them what to take.

★

A PROFESSOR in the English Department has perhaps found the key to the BA major problem.

This professor had a student who showed little interest in the required Milton, Chaucer and Shakespeare course. After the course was over, the professor asked the student would he recommend that his friends take it.

"I sure wouldn't. I'm a business major. What do I need to know this for in business?" the student asked.

The professor now adds: "Perhaps, I should have told him that while he is a business major, he's also still a person."

★

WHITE SUPREMACIST Bennett Bobrow wrote in yesterday wanting to know how the candidates for editor feel about racial segregation.

Speaking for this reporter, I can say simply that the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled that racial segregation in the public schools is unconstitutional. As a citizen of this country, I am eager for us to abide by that decision.

If Mr. Bobrow thinks that we can buck the Federal government because of our narrow personal prejudices, let him join me in my History 113 course this Saturday at 11 o'clock in room 213 of Saunders Hall.

Together we'll take a look at a South that was crying out in the manner of you. If you do show up, you'll find that the South lost. And so did the country.

'I REMEMBER CHAPEL HILL'

Hawks, Po' Dave & Adam Applejack: 1894

Dr. Archibald Henderson

I remember, as vividly as if it has been yesterday, my journey from Salisbury, N. C. via University Station, Blackwoods (half-way point), and Carrboro, to Chapel Hill.

On alighting from the train, traveling from Greensboro to Raleigh, I found University Station not even a "wide place in the road." The railroad station, if I am not mistaken, was a boxcar, holding a few chairs and a cast-iron stove at one end.

Arriving in the morning, say 9:30, there was a long wait for intricate shifting, all conducted by Captain Smith and Brakeman Snipes with stentorian shouts and sweeping gestures which would have done credit to field marshals under the Emperor Napoleon.

A most delightful character with ruddy cheeks and broad smiles was Engineer Nesbit, who remained cheerful under all circumstances, even when some parts of his engine blew up, as occasionally happened.

There were just one passenger coach and as many as two freight, usually flat, cars to this "Lightning Special", as it was jocularly named by the collegians. At the end of this car was a pot-bellied iron stove, which in cold weaher was stoked up until it was red-hot.

At this time, the president of the University was a brilliant, capable man, Dr. George Tayloe Winston, who in his many public controversies always seemed to come out on top. Captain Smith once told me that the only time Dr. Winston lost out was when the red-hot stove fell on top of him and knocked him down!

'Po' Dave Kelly'

On arriving at Carrboro, the din of the competing jehus was deafening. My attention was particularly attracted by a colored humorist commonly known, and invariably called by himself, "Po' Dave Kelly". By thus humbling himself and so enhancing the self-esteem of the collegians, he won warm affection and wide popularity. He was wearing a black, long-tailed coat known as a "Jim-Swinger", a black broad-cloth coat slick and turning green from old-age, discarded by some aged member of the faculty.

Po' Dave was driving a barouche of ante-bellum vintage in which the ladies of the village used to drive around the race-track, near Carrboro, on pleasant afternoons. This "hack", as it was called, was drawn by two horses, so spavined and raw-boned that it seemed as if, at any moment, they must sink to the ground of sheer inanition under the operation of the law of universal gravitation.

Po' Dave was standing up in the barouche, holding the reins high and shouting ingratiatingly: "Come on, young massas, ride with Po' Dave. You'll have to hurry though; cause it's just about all I can do to hold these colts!"

On the drive of three-quarters of a mile to Chapel Hill, one's attention was attracted by two conspicuous houses, Professor Toy's on the left, and Dr. Hume's on the right. Professor Toy was head of the Modern Languages Department, and indeed, at that time, the whole department. In manners, he was Chesterfieldian: the glass of fashion and the mould of form; and was a stickler for everything which was en reglé.

On one occasion, he held a large reception at his home (he was then a bachelor), evening clothes being stipulated and the invitation cards bearing the legend "R.S.V.P." From one student, Norfleet (nicknamed "Hawks") Pruden of Edenton, he received "regrets" card, bearing the legend, "H.H.N.C." Some days later, Professor Toy, meeting Pruden, inquired of him the meaning of the cryptic letters. Replied Hawks, "Oh, Professor; you see, I had no evening suit. The initials are an abbreviation for 'Hawks Has No Clothes'!"

Dr. Hume, a Baptist minister and a man of high culture, was head of the English Department and took a great interest in his students, thereby winning a mournful pseudonym. He seldom left his office before two o'clock; and would stop to speak to the English students on his way home.

He literally "buttonholed" these boys, holding on like grim death to that button while he discoursed eloquently upon Shakespeare, Shelley, Byron, Browning and Tennyson. His wife, a beautiful woman several decades his junior, had a keen sense of humor. Because the doctor usually reached home several hours late for dinner, Mrs. Hume, greatly to his vexation, invariably referred to him as "the late Dr. Hume."

Beginning a new Daily Tar Heel series, "I Remember Chapel Hill," in which distinguished alumni will reminisce about their student days.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, who begins the series, is a member of the class of 1898. A world-famous historian and mathematician and the official biographer of George Bernard Shaw, he still lives in Chapel Hill, on Franklin Street.

'Don't Make A Sound, Oregon'

On reaching the center of town, one noted the old Roberson Hotel on the right (site of Battle-Vance-Pettigrew Dorm) and on the left, the southwest corner of the present U. S. Post Office lot, the primitive post office of that day, a little wooden shack presided over by a Mr. Kirkland, who was so gruff that students were afraid to ask for their mail.

The proprietors of the Robeson Hotel were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Klutz, and Mr. Kluttz, universally known as "Doctor" Kluttz, owned the town's principal grocery store and emporium of students' supplies. For a time, he had a young white man to assist him; but as this proved unsatisfactory, he turned over the management of the store to a clever colored boy, the late Ernest Thompson.

Dr. Kluttz, called by the students "Adam Applejack," took no interest in the store, and it was believed that he was notoriously "bilked" by the collegians who ran up large bills which proved difficult, if not impossible, to collect. It was said, at the time the store "folded up," that there were $40,000 of unpaid bills on the books. Dr. Kluttz's passion was not store-keeping but draughts; and his invariable fellow-player was Mr. Oregon Tenney (called Tinny) who gave the name to Tenney's Circle. When a would-be customer entered the store during Ernest's absence, Dr. Kluttz, leaning over the checkerboard, would whisper to Mr. Tenney, snugly ensconced in an invisible cubby-hole at the back of the store: "Don't make a sound, Oregon, and maybe he'll go away."

A quatrain, composed by a collegian, is perhaps still remembered in Chapel Hill by old citizens:

Ernest runs the business,
Doc chews cig-ar butts,
Everybody works in this old town,
But A. A. Kluttz.

The Fat Mutton Controversy

The MacNider home, where the Post Office now stands, was the site of the house occupied by one of the early Stewards of the University, Pleasant Henderson, who had been a major of dragoons in the American Revolution. He and William Gaston were said to be the two most popular men in North Carolina; and on the death of Gaston, he was elected in his place.

He declined the honor, because the students had violently rebelled against an invariable and unwanted diet of fat mutton; and in the ensuing controversy, the Trustees had sided with the students! The road running north and south past the Poct Office still bears the name of the irascible Revolutionary dragoon and incensed Steward.

I cannot conclude without mentioning the most original and spectacular character in Chapel Hill, whose barbershop, about where Kemp's Music Store now stands, bore the imposing sign:

THOMAS DUNSTON
Professor of Tonsorial Art.

Scarcely a week would pass that some bright comment by Tom Dunston would not circulate through the village.

Shortly after I entered the University, Edwin Anderson Alberman, professor of history, was elected president to succeed Dr. Winston, who had accepted the presidency of the University of Texas.

President Alderman, a brilliant orator, was not yet well known throughout the nation as an educator; and when he was invited to speak at a great educaional gahering in Chicago, he became a recluse for the time-being, devoting all his leisure to the preparation of his speech. When he went to have his hair cut, Tom Dunston, who was a great gossip, could get nothing out of him. Finally he burst out in great indignation:

Tom Quoted Petronius

"Marse Ed, what's got into you? I believe you is going crazy. As Epaminondas said to Themistecles, 'Much learning doth make thee mad'".

Where Tom could have picked up the famous saying of Petronius, no one knows; but at least the use of the names Empaminondas and Themistocles was purely original.

The only person known to have got the better of Dr. Winston was the tall, gangling, knock-kneed, presidential mail-carrier, the coal-black Henry Smith, affectionately known as Horn-Handed Henry." One day, President Winston, showing a group of Trustees around the campus, met Henry, weighted down with parcels and letters, on his way to the Post Office. Dr. Winston accosted him mischievously:

"Henry, I have seen you carry the biggest loads of mail I ever knew anyone to carry. Why, I believe you could carry the South Building down to the Post Office, if you tried. Do you think you could?" Henry, with the startled look he habitually exhibited when spoken to, courteously removed his hat, touch his forelock, as was his habit, and remarked with blinding simplicity:

"Naw, Sir, Doctor, I couldn't carry the South Building down to the Post Office—naw, Sir—not as it stands. But I could carry it down to the Post Office—one brick at a time."

A stentorian roar of laughter went up from the highly amused Trustees, to Dr. Winston's keen vexation and profound humiliation.

DR. HENDERSON

. . . as vividly as if it had been yesterday.

The Need For H-Bomb Information

Michael Straight In New Republic

The crew of Number 5 Fukuryu Maru were not privy to the topmost secrets of the Atomic Energy Commission. They had been fishing for tuna north of Bikini Atoll, and they had bad luck. So they turned south and fished along the northern edge of the Marshall Islands where they did better.

In the darkness of March 1, 1954 at 3:40 a.m., they noticed a reddish white flash that rose from below the horizon in the southwest. "Look," they cried, "the sun is rising in a strange fashion!" Three hours later a fine, white ash began falling on them.

A Cloud No Bigger Than A Man's Future

APPALLING GAP

Captain Tsutsui suspected that the ash was radioactive and harmful long before blisters broke out and hands began to swell. He ordered up anchor and started for home.

The Japanese fishermen, in other words, did what nine out of ten American farmers or fishermen would have done—and would still do today. Ten years after Nagasaki, 12 months after the Bikini fallout, there is still an appalling gap between what Americans should do and what they would do in the event of a nuclear attack . . .

But how can the public respond when it has no idea to prepare for? Every bit of information that the public has gained has been clawed out of the AEC. It is still not enough information to serve as a guide to action. Forty-megation bombs are now possible. But Civil Defense Instructions are still based on bombs of one-half megation size . . .

NOT IN SILENCE

Among the officials around Admiral Strauss, secrecy retains its magic power. For the rest of us the threat of nuclear destruction is too awful to contemplate; too vast to comprehend. We turn in boredom and even resentment from those who break the silence.

Yet if there are answers to these problems they will not be found in silence. Disclosure and discussion are needed to reduce the disasters of warfare, and to reawaken concern in the alternatives to war.

YOU Said It: Editors Write 'Finis' To Feud With Quarterly Critic

Editor:

In regard to Mr. E. E. Clarke's recent comment on Bill Scarborough's criticism of the Carolina Quarterly, we feel it necessary to state that we are not in agreement with Mr. Clarke as far as any deprecating implications on either Mr. Scarborough's character or his ability as a critics are concerned.

In addition, we intend this statement to be the concluding word to the exchange of criticisms, criticisms or criticisms, and criticisms of those criticisms which have appeared in connection with the Quarterly during the past week or ten days.

Editors
The Caroline Quarterly

Legislature's Don Quixote

Editor:

This letter is addressed to my friends in the Upper Quad.

When I went home last weekend my Old Man, who had heard about the Daily Tar Heel episode, said: "Frank, you can fight windmills all your life, but for the Lord's sake don't fight a newspaper." Well, I want to tell you all that I'm not fighting a newspaper. I'm just trying to see to it that you get the most for your money. That is what you elected me to the Legislature for. Your money, that you pay in student fees, is what runs The Daily Tar Heel, and when The Daily Tar Heel is not covering your news, why then it is up to the Legislature to find out why, and to see what can be done about it.

Who covers the Phi and the Di? Who looks into what is going on in the Dormitories? And what about the Fraternities over there across campus? I'm not fighting The Tar Heel, I'm just trying to get them to do their job.

Now what makes me mad is Charlie Kuralt's attitude. As for his statement that I recanted the bulk of my charges, I haven't recanted anything. I modified one statement, I said you're possibly lazy, Mr. Kuralt. Also Mr. Kuralt charged that we are trying to control thoughts. Personally I don't care what he thinks. Far be it from the Legislature to try to control anybody's thoughts. We just want him to make sure that the papers are delivered in the mornings, and that they carry the campus news, I think Mr. Kuralt is patently absurd.

Dean Luxon says that we are lucky with The Daily Tar Heel. We are lucky. We have students like you, who pay good money to have a top-notch newspaper, and by damn, if the Legislature can help it you're going to have one!

Frank Warren, Jr.

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

About one hour before football practice yesterday afternoon head grid coach George Barclay walked into the domain of the basketball wizards and flopped in a chair. He addressed freshman cage coach Buck Freeman:

"What is the greatest asset an athlete could possess?" Freeman reflected on the query for a moment or two and then said he would put the quality of the athlete's mind above everything else.

Barclay begged to differ. He would emphasize speed in any active sport.

In fact, he is so sold on the idea that if he were allowed to "try out" athletes for scholarships, he would spend most of his time discovering just how much speed that person possessed.

His argument continued for a while and among the many points brought up were the following:

A player would hardly go out for the sport if he didn't have the right frame of mind; if he were already participating the lack of the correct atttitude and the "go-get 'em" spirit could be corrected easily by team-mates and coaches.

Reflexes and physical coordination would also rank high on Barclay's list, but a man would have to have the speed to take advantage of these skills. Reflexes and physical coordination could also be taught and would come with experience, too, but without the speed to side-step quickly, or to plunge through an opening hole in the line, or to "go" with a pass after making a catch way down the field, there may be nothing extraordinary about the player.

Speed can't be taught. A man is either fast or slow, and no amount of practicing can appreciably increase the actual speed, though practice may add to the endurance or a faster start, as in track, or the hurdling of hurdles. A slow man cannot become faster, Barclay says, but a fast man can put on weight and get slower. By keeping in condition and not aging too quickly, a young person will never lose speed.

A slow man can be taught, too, but what good is his knowledge if he cannot execute the proper moves quickly?

And a person who makes mistakes, but possesses speed, can always correct himself without the loss of much time. Freeman, close to being won over by Barclay at this point, pointed to Ed Sutton (UNC cager) and Vic Modolet (State), two good backetballers who made many mistakes this past season. Both, however, are very fast and recuperated in fine fashion.

Barclay made a few more examples to prove his ideas. He told how Sutton came to Carolina at 5'-11", weighing 165 pounds. Sutton since that time has grown two inches and put on 25 pounds and he is still about the fastest man on the football team. This could be the reason why Ed is now playing quarterback for Barclay.

Jackie Robinson, the jack-of-all-trades with the Bums of Brooklyn, five years ago was the fastest man in the majors. Now he is putting on weight and is losing not only his speed, but his all-around ability.

Ken Keller, UNC halfback, ran 80 yards for a touchdown in practice a few days ago. But he had the blocking all the way because two fast people were in front of him all the way.

There were other examples, too, and each pointed to the value of speed.

Freeman was about to concede when the talking stopped. Barclay had to leave for Navy Field, but he didn't run. Freeman remained in the office, shuffling around from desk to window and back.

Only the athletes run this time of year. It's spring.

Ruppenthal Captures 1500

Love "On;" Has Rifle

Sophomore receiver Love sparkled behind the plate as the Tar Heel baseballers went through a long drill on infield and outfield plays in preparation for the big intra-squad game set for Emerson Stadium this afternoon.

Love, exhibited a rifle arms as he repeatedly cut down runners trying to steal. His arm should be a big asset in making opponent speedsters think twice before they take too big a lead from first base or try to steal a bag.

Art Stone and Marty Titcomb carried most of the hurling load while the rest of the squad took their cuts and then played the field. Stone showed a good sharp curve and made a good impression on the Tar Heel coaches. Titcomb has a lot of speed and let loose with a few bullets.

Weather permitting, the squad will be divided into two teams for the first intra-squad affair today since last Saturday. The pitchers are throwing much harder and are almost up to regular season form. Tom Maultsby and Jim Raugh should be doing a good bit of hurling in the game which is set to start at 2:30.

Five Lettermen Returning For Links Action

Coach Chuck Erickson has announced the schedule for the 1955 UNC golf team, which opens in Charleston, S. C. with the Azalea Tournament, March 24-26. The schedule also includes seven dual matches and two combined matches.

Highlights of the season will be the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament at Athens, Georgia and the ACC Championships at Winston-Salem.

FIVE LETTERMEN are returning from last year's team. They are Billy Ford, Jimmy Sykes, Milo Abercrombie, Joe Correll, and Larry Parker. Other strong contenders are Bobby Sisk, Aubrey Rothrock and Larry Bell, who are up from last year's freshman team.

Erickson, who could not be reached for comment yesterday, expects to wind up the qualifying rounds this weekend.

Four Gymnasts End Careers At Tech Sat.

By CHUCK STRONG

Barring a tentatively scheduled match with North Carolina State, four of Coach Bill Meade's gymnasts will end their college gymnastic careers Saturday when Carolina participates in the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics Tournament at Georgia Tech. The four seniors are Pete Bumley, Gordon Hudson, Frank Williams and Bill Rivera.

Brumley has been one of the major mainstays for Carolina this season and although he is more than competent on the side horse and the flying rings, his specialty is tumbling. His consistency should be a valuable asset to Carolina during the forthcoming tourney.

If UNC should win the tournament a large part of the credit will have to go to Hudson. His versatality is shown by his consistent winning on the side horse, flying rings and his able performances on the highbar and the parallel bars. Last year he scored 106 points to set a new scoring record for Carolina gymnasts.

Holmes, Higgins Place Second, Third For UNC

By BOB COLBERT

Fred Ruppenthal of N. C. State swam the 1500 meters in 20:06.7 minutes to win the opening event of the ACC Swimming Championships in Bowman Gray pool last night. UNC's Lee Holmes and Pete Higgins were second and third.

Ruppenthal, defending champion in the event, was just one and seven-tenths seconds off his time last year. He came in to victory two laps ahead of second place Holmes.

The meet will continue tomorrow morning at 10:00 with the preliminaries in the low board diving. Preliminaries in the 50 yard freestyle, 200 yard backstroke, 200 yard freestyle and 200 yard breaststroke will be held starting at 3:30 and the finals of these events will be held at 8:30 p.m.

In keeping with the ACC policy, there will be an admission charge to all spectators of $1.00 for the finals each night. There will be no admission for the trials in the afternoons.

In the 200 yard breaststroke tomorrow afternoon, Bob Mattson of N. C. State will be attempting to better his American Record of 2:25.7.

UNC's entries in tomorrow's events include Phil Drake in the 50 yard freestyle; Pepper Tice, Bob Linker, ACC recordholder, Charlie Krepp, and Smith Jewell in the 200 yard backstroke; Larry Shannon, Tommy Gill, Holmes and Higgins in the 220 freestyle; Warren Heeman, Norman Chamberlain and Charlie Perry in the 200 yard breaststroke.

Williams has demonstrated his ability on the mats, and his performance against Duke was so good that he was just nosed out of first place by Brumley.

Carolina has one of the best rope climbers in the business in Bill Rivera. During the last few weeks of practice he has brought his time down to four second flat. If he can duplicate this during the tournament he should have little trouble winning the rope climb.

Florida State is favored to win the tournament but Meade wouldn't be a bit surprised if Carolina come back with the championship. In any event, it is going to be a battle right down to the wire between State and UNC. The team left this morning for Athens.

Track Coaches Hilton, Ranson Seek New Freshman Talent

Track coaches Dale Ranson and Joe Hilton have opened a search for freshman talent for the spring season. Hurdlers, broad jumpers, high jumpers, and sprinters are especially in demand.

A good size squad has started workouts, however, in anticipation of the opening meet with N. C. State here on April 2. At present, five meets are carded, with a few othr plans under discussion.

The coaches have gone into the physical education classes in hopes of finding a few standouts, and the search has not been entirely fruitless. A few have displayed talent in the high and broad jump.

Ranson stated that he was particularly interested in finding freshmen with track ability because they will prove valuable to the varsity in future years.

Meanwhile the varsity has been getting ready for their opener, the Florida Relays in Gainesville, Fla., on March 26.

Frosh vs Vets In Blue-White Tilt Today

By JACK MURPHY

It will be the "dream game" of the year come Saturday week, March 19, when the Monogram Club sponsors its annual Blue-White game at Kenan Stadium climaxing spring football drills.

Unlike previous games, this one will feature the highly rated freshmen against last year's varsity composed of upperclassmen. This set-up will undoubtedly provide a much more competitive contest. The varsity gridders have been ragged all year that "the freshman team could whip them." They would like nothing better than to disprove this humiliating slur. On the other side of the field the freshmen would like to prove their supposed superiority over the experienced Tar Heels.

Personal battles also will be very much in evidence on Blue-White day. Lettermen Koman and Jones will meet freshmen Lineberger and Setzer head on to settle the fight for the guard spots which has been one of the most fierce during spring practice.

ENDS FRYE and Muschamp of the varsity will run up against stiff competition in Olen and Payne of the freshman squad. Yearling Temple and junior Keller will match talents for the halfback post. Jones and Stavinitski will compete for center as will Williams and Lear for the fullback vote and Marquette and Sutton for the vital quarterback spot to mention but a few.

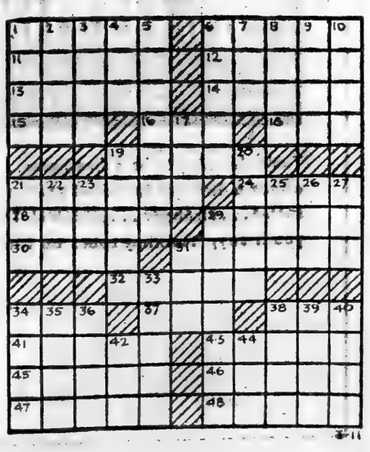
Ralph Floyd will once again coach the freshman club while end coach Bill Edwards will direct the varsity as head coach George Barclay and assistants Marvin Bass and Steve Belchick observe.

As it looks now the varsity will shape up with Frye and Muschamp at ends, Maultsby and Perdue at tackles, Koman and John Jones at guards, and Stavinitski at center. Sutton should play his first game at quarterback with Keller and McMullen at the halves and Lear at full.

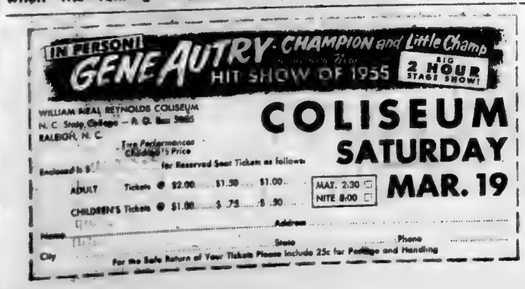
FLOYD'S FROSH will probably run Olen and Payne at the flanks, Woods and Munchak at the tackles, Lineberger and Setzer at guards, with Jimmy Jones at center. The backfield will be Marquette at quarter, Darling and Temple at the halfbacks, and Williams at fullback.

The two teams will begin practicing on different fields soon in preparation for the game.

ITALIAN COOKING
JUST THE WAY YOU LIKE IT . . .
delicious — Pizza — hot — so good
Spaghetti — meat sauce
Fast And Courteous Service To All
CAFE MOUZA

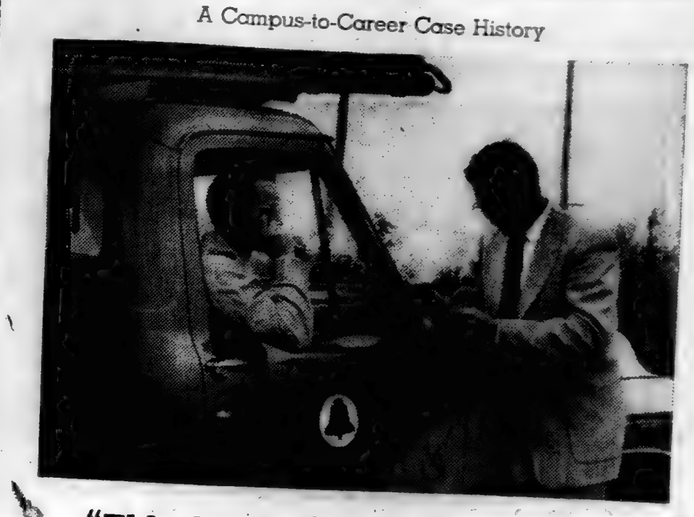


DAILY CROSSWORD



ACROSS
1. A germ cell
6. Gives over
11. Danger
12. Dwelling
13. Quiet
14. Species of pillars
15. Letter of the alphabet
16. Coin (Jap.)
18. Member of a Laos tribe
19. Half quarts
21. A simple song poem
24. Wandering workman
28. Constellation
29. Kind of drum
30. Let it stand (print.)
31. Narrow gorge
32. Kind of rock
34. Dial. variant of "sure"
37. Slender finial
38. Hawaiian herb
41. Lid
43. One of a plane's crew
45. Correct
46. Raise the spirits of
47. Flexes
48. Silver coin (Yugo.)

DOWN
1. Young oyster
2. Hawaiian goddess of volcanoes
3. Voided escutcheon
4. Narrow inlet
5. Delightful
6. Intone
7. An age
8. Obligation
9. Biblical name
10. Observed
17. Remnant
19. Schemes
20. Cut whiskers
21. Genus of cattle
22. Skill
23. Falsehood
25. Sash (Jap.)
26. Festival (Jap.)
27. Metallic rock
29. Club-footed
31. Knock
33. Flocks
34. Crust on a wound
35. One's house
36. Baking chamber
38. Design
39. Particle
40. Biblical name
42. Conclude
44. River (Asia)



Yesterday's Answer

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"This is what I did yesterday"

"I like a job that keeps me jumping," says Bill Jermain, C.E. from Marquette, '52. "And my first management assignment with Wisconsin Telephone Company does just that. I'm Service Foreman at Sheboygan, with nine installers, and that means variety of responsibility. But judge for yourself. Here's a quick run-down of what I did yesterday, on a typical day—

8:10—"Checked day's work schedule. One of my new men was putting in a buried service wire, and I went over the job specs with him to be sure he had things straight.

8:30—"Answered mail while my clerk checked time sheets from previous day.

9:30—"Out to supervise installation of the first aluminum Outdoor Telephone Booth in my exchange. Reviewed the assembly instructions with the installers, then arranged for special tools and bolts to be delivered to the job.

11:30—"Drove across town. Made a complete 'quality inspection' on a telephone we installed last week. Everything checked O.K.

12:00—"Lunch.

1:00—"Picked up film for next day's safety meeting. Watched the film, made notes for discussion.

2:00—"Met with moving company manager to estimate cost of telephone cable lifting for a house moving job. Drove the route he had planned and worked out schedule for construction crews.

3:30—"Returned to aluminum booth installation. Went over wiring specs with the electrician.

4:00—"Stopped at Central Office to pick up next day's orders. Met installers at garage as they checked in and assigned next day's work."

Bill has been in his present job about a year, and is looking forward to new responsibilities as his experience increases . . . as are the many young college men who have chosen telephone careers. If you'd be interested in a similar opportunity with a Bell telephone company . . . or with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric or Sandia Corporation . . . see your Placement Officer for full details.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Students Faculty Townspeople are invited to the

BIG BINGO PARTY

TO BE HELD IN THE SPACIOUS VICTORY VILLAGE COMMUNITY CENTER ON MASON FARM ROAD

SPONSORED BY

Victory Village and the Mercants of Chapel Hill

Proceeds will be used to purchase teaching materials for the Village Nursery, a non-profit organization

A LOVELY ASSORTMENT OF PRIZES HAS BEEN DONATED BY VILLAGERS AND THESE CHAPEL HILL CONCERNS

Little Shop
Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Wentworth & Sloan
Stevens Shepherd
Carolina Sports Shop
Kemp's
Electric Construction Co.
Foister's Camera Shop
Sutton's Drug Store
Robbin's
Ledbetter-Pickard
Town & Campus
Eubanks Drug Store
Berman's Dept. Store
Merrimac Shop
Bennett & Blocksidge
Sloan's Drug Store
Youth Center
University Florist
Julian's College Shop

*BRING YOUR CHILDREN

FREE BABY SITTING SERVICE WILL BE PROVIDED

FROM 7:30 TO 9:30 AT THE COMMUNITY CENTER

University Woodwind Quintet To Share Bill With Pianist Fambrough In Musicale Sunday

THE UNIVERSITY WOODWIND QUARTET
. . . shares double bill in Petite Musicale Sunday

The Graham Memorial Activities Board will present the second in its series of Petites Musicales in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial Sunday at 8 p.m.

For the first time since the Musicales were inaugurated last year, a double recital has been scheduled. The first part of the program will be a piano recital by Douglas Fambrough, 13-year-old student of Dr. Wilton Mason of the UNC music department.

Fambrough will be followed by the University Woodwind Quintet. The members of the quintet are Thomas Wheeler, oboe; Earl Slocum, flute; Guyte Cotton, French horn; J. B. Renner, bassoon, and Herbert Fred, clarinet.

Slocum conducts the UNC Symphony Orchestra in which the other members of the Quintet hold first chair positions.

The Quintet was organized in January to give its members a chance to play in an ensemble.

Concerning the program to be played Sunday, Wheeler said, "The pieces selected for the Petite Musicales performance demonstrate how two composers (Beethoven and Hindemith) widely separated in time and musical thought have used the resources of the Woodwind Quintette."

It's Here!
RON LEVIN'S REBELLION
OLD WELL PUBLISHERS
Chapel Hill

LAST TIMES TODAY
Varsity

IDC Asks For Budget Of $2,700 For Year

The Interdormitory Council approved at its Wednesday night session a 1955-56 budget calling for the spending of $2,793.90.

Of the total sum, the Council expects to get $787.50 as appropriation from the student Legislature and $2,006.40 from dormitory rents.

Council members mildly disagreed on certain individual allotments in the budget, but for the most part, the allocations met approval.

Plans for setting up a summer school IDC were given a boost at the meeting when a committee report stated that such an organization would probably get a "small nominal sum from the University."

It was also announced at the meeting that the IDC will again sponsor this year the Tennis Ball Dance. Date for the event has been set as April 22. According to the chairman of the dance, the Women's Residence Council will co-sponsor with the IDC.

The increasing number of absences that have marred recent sessions was hit by the chairman f the Rules Committee.

Four new members were sworn into the ranks of the body, among them David Reid, floor leader of the Student Party.

DTH Probe Again Today

The suggestions brought before the legislature committee which is investigating The Daily Tar Heel will be discussed today when the committee meets with the newspaper's staff.

Jack Hudson, chairman of the committee, has urged all interested students to attend the meeting. It will begin at 2 p.m. in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial.

Levin's Book Goes On Sale Here Tomorrow

Rebellion, a book of 10 poems by Ron Levin, goes on sale at the Intimate Book Shop tomorrow.

Levin, who is a student here at the University, is from Williamston. He served in the Army for a few months following the Korean War.

Rebellion is published by the Old Well Publishers of Chapel Hill and is the second in their Contemporary Poets Series.

THE KINGPIN
By Tom Wicker
A novel about rough and tough politics in "a Southern state," by North Carolinian Tom Wicker. Put it on your North Carolina shelf, but read it first, pal, real it frist. Published at $.3.75.
OUR SPECIAL
$1.00
There's a Bargain just for you at
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

CLASSIFIEDS

FOR RENT: Three room cottage, furnisred, modern equipment. In good residential section. ½ mile N. E. of Bell Tower. $65 and utilities. Telephone 5231.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

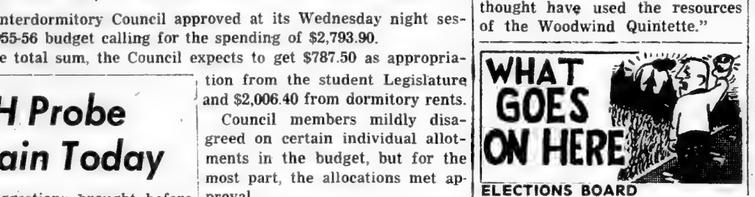
DID YOU FORGET A BIRTHDAY? Don't fret; you can send a belated birthday greeting from Ledbetter-Pickard. Select a card from among our large collection.

FARIDA FOTOUHI
. . . & family coming

Japanese Expert Coming

Abol F. Fotouhi, public affairs officer for the United States Information Agency in Hiroshima, Japan, will present a program on postwar Japan at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Assembly Room of the Library.

Fotouhi, a former UNC student, will tell some of the details of his stay in the atom-bombed city of Hiroshima and of his work there.



The program will also include color films of Japan, narrated by Mrs. Fotouhi. Their 9-year-old daughter, Farida, will perform some of the classical dances she learned as a school-girl in Japan.

Fotouhi, a native of Iran, came to Chapel Hill in 1933. He transferred to Purdue and later to George Washington University, where he was graduated as an economist in 1938. After serving in the U. S. Army in World War II Fotouhi began his work in Japan with the U. S. Information Agency.

At the meeting, which is open to the public, there will also be a presentation of paintings made by Japanese children which were collected after a contest in which 24 schools participated.

Author Robert Frost Talk Set Wednesday

Robert Frost, celebrated American poet, philosopher and humorist, will give a public lecture-recital in Hill Hall here next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock

ELECTIONS BOARD

The Elections Board will meet today at 2 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge Number 3 in Graham Memorial.

COMMUNTY CHURCH

Dr. Preston Epps will give the third study on "The Life and Teachings of Jesus" on Monday night at 8 o'clock in the hut of the Congregational-Christian Church on Cameron Ave. The program is being sponsored by the Community Church and will be preceded by a social period at 7:30 p.m.

FACULTY WIVES

The Faculty Wives of the Business Administration School will meet in Carroll Hall on Tuesday at 8 p.m. The hostesses will be Mrs. Lowell Ashby and Mrs. J. C. D. Blaine.

BAHA'I WORLD FAITH

Walter Wootteen will present a summary of the principles of the Baha'i World Faith at 11 a.m. Sunday. The meeting will be open to the public.

Chicago College of
OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry
DEGREE
IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U.S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Student Council Ousts Turner From Publications Board Job

Jim Turner, chairman of the Publications Board, was ousted from his seat by the Student Council yesterday. Reason was Turner's failing to regain his Legislature seat.

The decision was 4 to 3 against Turner. One member was absent from the meeting.

Walt Joyner, chairman of the Student Council, said, "The constitution states strictly that the officers of the Publications Board of the Publications Board be elected by and from the student membership of the board and that the members serve one-year terms subject to their retaining their legislative of editorial post."

Turner, questioned yesterday, said, "This is not the end of my work with the Publications Board. I shall do everything in my power to see that the board finishes out the year solvent."

Alpha Kappa Psi Names Officers For 1955-56

Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional fraternity in Business Administration, has announced its new officers for the year 1955-56.

The new officers are: Kenneth Argo, Kannapolis, president; Donald Christopher, Chapel Hill, vice-president; James McCorkle, Charlotte, secretary; Bob Pugh, Asheboro, treasurer; Sandy Morton, Matthews, master of rituals, and James Morrow, Mooresville, house manager.

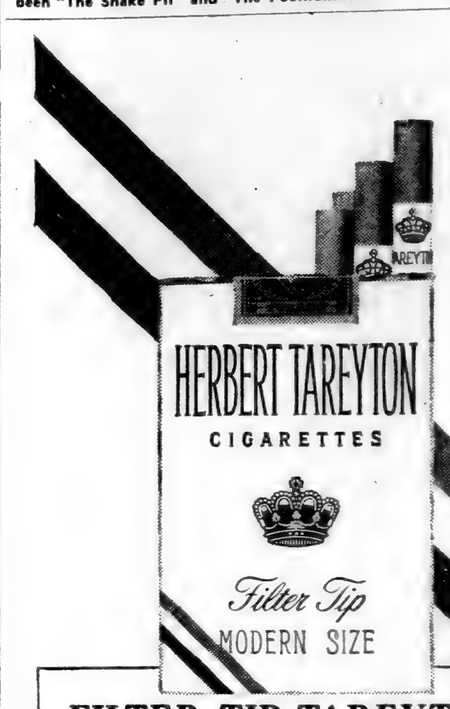
COMMUNITY DRAMA GROUP

The Community Drama Group will meet Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in the assembly room of the Library to read G. B. Shaw's "Major Barbara." Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Richardson will conduct the meeting. Copies of the script may be obtained at the post office newsstand.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

A rehearsal of the Men's Glee Club will be held today at 4 p.m. with the girls from St. Mary's. According to Joseph McGugam, publicity manager of the club, it will be the only rehearsal with the girls before the performance to be given at St. Mary's.

YMCA-Hillel Forum Schedules 'How Green Was My Valley'



"How Green Was My Valley," starring Maureen O'Hara and Walter Pidgeon, will be this month's presentation by the YMCA-Hillel Film Forum.

The picture will be shown at 7 p.m. Monday in Carroll Hall There will be no admission charge.

The film will be the third movie to be presented by the Forum this year. It deals with the industrialization of an agrarian community and the resulting conflicts in the lives of the valley's people.

Dr. William Noland, chairman of the Sociology Department and an industrial sociologist, will lead the discussion which will follow the showing of the film.

The other films presented by the Film Forum this year have been "The Snake Pit" and "The Fountainhead."

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
is smooth and easy-drawing. It gives you everything you've been looking for in a filter cigarette—all the full, rich taste of fine tobacco and real filtration, too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

A BRIGHT FUTURE AWAITS YOU... Student Nurses

a wonderful professional shoe will inspire you, too!
THE CLINIC SHOE
REG U S PAT OFF AND CANADA
for Young Women in White

You're learning to be a fine nurse... so you'll want to know about a fine professional shoe, too! You'll find Clinics softer... stronger... smarter! Try on a pair today... you'll say, "Nothing could be finer."
J. B. Robbins
of Chapel Hill

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Some clouds and mild today. Expected high of 70.

The Daily Tar Heel

REALITY

Lifetime subscriptions offer today's youth a chance for speculation in a global market.

VOL. LVII NO. 116 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 12, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Absence Rule Regulations Found Lighter In School Of Business Administration

'B' Average Suffices In BA; Others Must Not Make 'C's'

By RAYMOND TAYLOR

Many students in the School of Business Administration are exempt from class attendance regulations to which students with equally good grades in other parts of the University are subject, a check showed yesterday.

Dean's lists released by the various schools and colleges show that the Business School dean's list is composed of all students who made no D's or F's and whose grades average B. Dean's lists in art and sciences, journalism, general college and education, however, are composed of students who made no grade lower than B. The new attendance regulation put into effect at the beginning of spring semester is as follows:

"A student who is on the honor roll is exempt from regulations governing class attendance except those pertaining to absence from laboratory or quizzes and examinations and to minimum seventy-five percent attendance in all courses."

General College Dean C. P. Spruill, chairman of the Faculty Committee on Instructional Personnel, said the terms "dean's list" and "honor roll" have the same meaning. The University catalogue does not define the terms.

When informed of the favored treatment being given business students, Dean Spruill said, "I don't like the idea of different privileges for students of different schools."

'QUICK CONSIDERATION'

The matter will be given "quick consideration," he said, adding, "I hope it can be handled informally."

He raised the question, however, of whether the Business School could prepare a list of students having no grade lower than B.

Assistant Dean James M. Parrish of the Business School answered, "It would be possible, but I am not at all sure we would be able to entertain that motion without thinking about it."

He said the present system of computing the Business School dean's list has been in use "for years."

"We'd have to think about it before making any chnage," he said.

(Contributions to Campus Seen are gladly accepted.)

Puppy, confused by University system of fertilizing the campus, running around like headless chicken for a place to breathe.

* * *

The sweet, clean odor in the Arboretum these days.

No Word Received On Truman

There is still no word on whether or not former President Harry Truman will deliver the annual Weil Lectures here, according to Dr. Alex Heard, chairman of the Committee on Established Lectures.

Truman was invited last spring by President Gordon Gray on behalf of the committee which selects Weil and McNair speakers.

The annual Weil Lectures are delivered on three successive nights. If Truman accepts, he will probably speak some time in April or May.

The lectures are on the general theme of "American Citizenship."

The first lecture on the "American Citizenship" theme was given in 1914 by former President William Howard Taft.

The families of Henry Weil and Sol Weil endowed the lecture series a few years later.

WESTMINSTER FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Charles Lynwood Brown, pastor of White Memorial Presbyterian Church in Raleigh, will speak on "What Does A Presbyterian Believe?" at the Westminster Fellowship Hut tomorrow night. Supper will be served at 6 o'clock at a cost of 50 cents, and the program will begin at 7 o'clock. The program will be open to the public.

EPISCOPAL STUDENTS

The Student Congregation of the Chapel of the Cross has announced that the Student Eucharist will be held at 9:30 a.m. each Sunday. Following it the communion breakfast will be served in the parish house at 10 o'clock.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Dr. Preston Epps will give a study on "The Life and Teachings of Jesus" on Monday night. The program will begin at 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a social period at 7:30. The program will be held in the hut of the Congregational-Christian Church on Cameron Ave.

BAHA'I FAITH

Tomorrow at 11 a.m. Walter Wootten will present a summary of the principles of the Baha'i World Faith in Roland Parker Lounge Number 1 of Graham Memorial. The program will be open to the public.

TALENT BUREAU

Talent tryouts were held Thursday afternoon and evening by the Talent Bureau of GMAB. Nine entertainers were auditioned.

(More WHAT GOES, page 4.)

Quintet, Fambrough In Petite Musicale Sunday

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial, the University Woodwind Quintet and Douglas Fambrough, pianist, will appear in the Petites Musicales.

The pieces chosen for the program of the newly organized Quintette will be selections from the works of Beethoven and Hindemith.

The other half of the double recital will feature a student of Dr. Wilton Mason of the University's Music Department. Using Graham Memorial's new Steinway piano, 13 year old Douglas Fambrough, the youngest performer ever billed in one of the Music Department's programs, will play pieces by Mozart, Beethoven, and Chopin.

3 From UNC Win Morehead Grants

Three University students have been named as recipients of Morehead Scholarships for graduate work.

John Motley Morehead, who established the scholarship fund of the Morehead Foundation, has announced Thomas C. Creasy, John M. Gwynn Jr. and Charles H. Yarborough Jr. as winners of graduate scholarships valued at $1,500 each.

Two other students, one from Wake Forest College and one from Appalachian, were awarded Morehead Scholarships. Ben V. Mast, from Sugar Grove and Appalachian, and Carwile LeRoy, from Elizabeth City and Wake Forest, received grants.

Morehead, an industrialist, chemist, engineer and former minister to Sweden, is a University graduate of 1891.

Creasy, from Gretna, Va., is president of the student body. Yarborough, from Louisburg, is chairman of the University Party. Gwynn is a native of Chapel Hill

MOREHEAD SCHOLARS LeROY, GWYNN, CREASY, YARBOROUGH & MAST
... win graduate grants worth $1,500 each

Voting Begins Today For Blue And White

Voting will begin today in the Y building for the Miss Blue and White contest.

The contest, which is to be conducted on a penny-a-vote basis, is being sponsored by the Monogram Club to chose a queen to reign over the annual Blue and White which will be played on March 19.

The contest will be conducted today, Monday and Tuesday from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Pictures of the contestants will be posted in the Y building during the voting.

The proceeds from the contest will go to the Monogram Club's scholarship fund and to orphans' parties. The coed who receives the most money will reign as queen at the football game, which is the formal end to winter practice. There are 13 girls in the contest. One has been chosen from each women's dormitory and sorority house. The other 12 girls will serve as sponsors for the two squads of the football team. There will be six sponsors for each squad.

Students will receive tickets to the game for 50 cents if they present their passbooks at the gate on the day of the game or in advance at the Athletic Office.

DR. Z. P. METCALF, FROM STATE COLLEGE

Wins Gardner Award

DR. Z. P. METCALF
... wins O. Max Gardner award

RALEIGH, March 11.—Dr. Zeno Payne Metcalf, a member of the North Carolina State College faculty for the past 43 years, was presented the Oliver Max Gardner Award for 1955 at a dinner meeting of the trustees and faculties of the Consolidated University at State College tonight.

Acting under the terms of the late Governor Gardner's will, the Board of Trustees unanimously selected Dr. Metcalf as the faculty member of the Consolidated University "who, during the current scholastic year, has made the greatest contribution to the welfare of the human race."

The name of the recipient of the award—highest teaching honor given by the University—was a closely-kept secret until the pres-

(See GARDNER, Page 4.)

Student Party Is Expected To Name Miss Susan Fink Vice-President Candidate

Kraar-Yoder-Mundy Battle Seen Shaping

By NEIL BASS

The Student Party will, in all probability, name Miss Susan Fink as its candidate for vice president of the student body. The party will meet at 7:30 Monday night.

Some sources have indicated that the steepest competition Miss Fink is likely to have for the post will come from either Norwood Bryan or Bob Harrington. David Reid, SP floorleader who was in line to get the vice presidential nod from the party, has been shoved out of the race for scholastic reasons.

There has been a good deal of speculation about the man or men that the SP will endorse as its nominee for editor of The Daily Tar Heel. According to sentiments expressed by certain members of the party, the "incorporation" (co-running) of Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder has shifted some support to David Mundy, the other announced candidate.

One SP member explained the reason for this so-called shift of support was that a "machine" was being set up among certain members of the Publications Board and Kraar and Yoder.

Other offices for which the party is slated to pick nominees are vice president of the Carolina Athletic Association, seats in dorm men's II, III and town womens, and secretary and treasurer of the student body.

Village Bingo Party's Slated Tonight, 7:30

More than 700 people have been personally invited to attend the Victory Village bingo party to be held tonight at 7:30 in the Victory Village community center on Mason Farm Road.

"Many more people have been reached through advertisements, and we expect a very nice-sized crowd," Mrs. Jean Evans, vice chairman of the Victory Village board of directors said yesterday.

"The teamwork and cooperation experienced in preparing for the bingo party have left little to be desired," said Sam Barnard, chairman of the board, as he cited the work of participating former and present members of the board. He pointed out that Chapel Hill merchants manifested a very fine community spirit in their friendly cooperation.

Twenty Chapel Hill merchants and more than 50 residents of Victory Village have donated a large assortment of prizes.

Proceeds derived from the bingo party will be used to buy teaching materials for the Victory Village Day Care Center.

MRS. PETER MARSHALL
... Y sponsors speech here Monday

AUTHOR OF A MAN CALLED PETER:

Mrs. Marshall Coming

Mrs. Peter Marshall will speak in Hill Hall Monday night at 8 o'clock.

The author of the best seller entitled A Man Called Peter will appear here as the centennial speaker of the YWCA, which is celebrating its 100th birthday this year The topic of her address will be "Nothing Can Defeat You."

The YWCA will have a delegation of members to meet the centennial speaker when she arrives in Durham on Monday morning. She will return to Chapel Hill with the delegation and will be conducted on a tour of the campus. A banquet at the Carolina Inn in her honor will precede her address, and a reception will follow it in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

DTH Probers Finish Meets With Staffers

The committee investigating The Daily Tar Heel met yesterday with the newspaper's staff to air complaints ranging from questions of staff to the editorial page to the Campus Seen box.

This was the last open meeting of the committee, which was appointed after a legislature meeting calling for an investigation of The Daily Tar Heel. Wednesday and Thursday the committee heard suggestions and complaints from students.

The complaints centered around news coverage. Many called for more student news covered by more reporters. Other suggestions concerned The Eye of the Horse, editorial opinion, (rather evenly divided pro and con), the reappearance of Campus Seen and more intramural sports coverage.

At yesterday's meeting the main topic discussed was the acquisition of more staff. Charles Hyatt asked what incentives were used to get people up to The Daily Tar Heel office. He suggested putting reporters on a small salary. Associate Editor Ed Yoder replied, "Putting reporting on a mercenary scale would be impractical considering the complication of petty cash transactions."

Managing Editor Fred Powledge added that the student Legislature could give the suggestion consideration, but that perhaps "non-money payments, such as a book for the best news story of the week," might be better.

Tom Lambeth then asked for what reasons students leave the staff. Powledge answered, "The fact lies in how much time people want to spend on the paper," he said. A lot of people come up at the beginning of each semester looking for girl friends or their names in the paper, but it "is impossible for a daily paper to keep people around who just don't want to work," explained Powledge.

Lambeth then asked what efforts were made to get news staff members. Powledge answered that Editor Charles Kuralt went to freshman camp to talk about the paper. Also, he said, letters were written to high school journalism teachers asking them to tell their students about The Daily Tar Heel.

Editor Kuralt explained that The Daily Tar Heel was always on the lookout for more staff. For example, when people write in exceptional letters, "we often go see them and ask them to work for us," he explained. Most capable people are already interested in something else, he added.

Former Assistant Sports Editor Bob Dillard, in answer to a question concerning the use of Associated Press wires, explained that the wire is used mostly by the sports department. The students are interested in national sports, he said, and would be disappointed if it were a day late.

In reply to numerous queries about the editorial page, Kuralt said, the editorial page is "an editorial decision and responsibility."

Charles Hyatt asked about the effect of the editorial column on the state of North Carolina. "This business that citizens of the state resent the University because of the editorial page is pure fiction," said Kuralt. Except for a few opinions such as those of John Washington Clark, the "situation does not exist," he continued.

Ed Lipman asked how many outside subscriptions The Daily Tar Heel has. Five or six hundred, replied Kuralt. Papers are also sent to the members of the Visiting Board of Trustees and to the governor, he added. "I think this does more good than harm," stated Kuralt.

In closing the meeting, chairman Jack Hudson said, "We've learned quite a bit about journalism."

Editor Kuralt said, "If any have been sufficiently interested to come and work for us, we'd welcome them."

FILM FORUM

The YMCA-Hillel Film Forum will present "How Green Was My Valley" at 7 p.m. Monday in Carroll Hall. There will be no admission charge. Dr. William Noland, chairman of the sociology department, will lead a discussion following the film.

GMAB Film Provided An Excellent Evening

"Rocking Horse Winner," another in the Graham Memorial Activities Board film series, provided an excellent evening with the only difficulty being technical quality.

The film, produced by J. Arthur Rand, was shown Thursday evening in Carroll Hall.

Certainly it was different from what was generally anticipated. Any indications of being a "tear-jerker" were not present.

The slow beginning and detailed background plus personality sketches enabled the viewer to more thoroughly enjoy the dramatic climax.

Valeries Hobson convincingly played the role of Paul, a psychic youngster who received premonitions concerning the rose races when he feverously rode his own wooden hobby horse.

His parents, obsessed with the desire to make more money, unknowingly forced a feeling of insecurity and financial obligation upon their small son.

After a series of wins and losses at the race-track the child finally has a nervous breakdown and dies.

There are four remaining movies in the GMAB spring series The next two features, "My Little Chickadee, March 24; and "Rigoletto," April 14, will be shown in Gerrard Hall. Those are the only changes, according to the GMAB committee.

Greek Week Starts

Greek Week will begin Monday with exchange dinners among fraternity pledge classes, according to Burt Veazey and Jack Stevens, co-chairmen for this year's events.

HIGHER EDUCATION REPORT SHOWS

State Colleges, Universities Uncoordinated

(Editor's note: This is second, and final, installment of a look into a state commission's report on high education.)

By DAVE MUNDY

The report of the State Commission on Higher Education deals in large part with the coordination of state-supported institutions of higher learning.

Trustees of the various institutions are not even appointed in the same manner. For the University they are elected by the General Assembly. For the other institutions they are appointed by the governor, the superintendent of education having an ex-officio seat on the teachers' college" boards.

Duplication of programs receives considerable criticism in the report. Eight out of 12 institutions, for example, award M.A. degrees in education. There is no coordination in the institutions' requests for money, the report declares: "The public interest demands that money spent by the state on higher education serves needs that are statewide."

OTHER AREAS

The report levels criticisms at other areas requiring attention from an over-all and state-wide point of view.

There is no long-range planning of the state's program of higher education, according to the report.

There should be a study of "fuller cooperation with the Southern Regional Education Board in planning for utilization of certain graduate and professional facilities in other states rather than providing for poorly patronized and expensive duplications in North Carolina," the report says.

Faculty status, requirements for admission and the varying definitions of "resident" are also subjected to criticism.

SALARIES VARY

A fair degree of uniformity is provided to non-instructional personnel of the education institutions, but the salaries of instructional personnel as paid by the state vary widely.

N. C. State ranks at the top, with salary scales for professors ranging from $12,700 to $6,000, with an average of $8,150. The UNC scale ranges from $12,500 to $6,700, with an average salary of $7,800. At the bottom is Pembroke State College with a professor's average salary of $5,050.

The average salaries of associate professors range from $6,350 at State and $6,000 at UNC to $3,600 at Elizabeth City State Teacher's College. Salaries of assistant professors range from $5,000 to $3,000, as do instructors. Instructors' salaries are in most instances higher than those of assistant professors.

Considerable concern is expressed in the report regarding the per student subsidy given students at each institution. The budgeted student-per-capita cost (paid by the state) is higher at State, WC, Western Carolina, Pembroke and N. C. College at Durham than at UNC. The smallest state subsidy, $257 per student, is for A&T College.

MAKING DECISIONS

Regarding control of higher education, the report quotes from a governors' conference publication, "the most desirable organizational structure is one which assures that each individual decision will be made by the agency or official best qualified to make it."

In relation to possible direct control over higher education by the General Assembly, the Advisory Budget Commission or the director of the budget, the report declares, "Indeed, were these agencies to go into the type of control over higher education recommended by this commission, they would be far afield from their primary governmental function of fiscal management."

The commission ends its report by recommending legislation to the general Assembly: "An act creating a State Board of Higher Education and providing for its members, their qualifications, selection, appointment, powers, duties and financing."

The Cumulo-Nimbus Shape Of Reality

The New Republic came to the office this week with an intriguing back page advertisement.

"Life subscription," runs the offer, "$100."

And why should anyone want to subscribe to a magazine for life? Well, says the ad, "the shape of reality is changing faster than our ability to perceive it" and an hour or two per week with the New Republic will give insight into "the cascading rush of events and ideas."

But the next paragraph is the one that caught our imagination.

"Take the question of preventing atomic destruction," it says. "We thought we had a formula for security in the Baruch Plan for international control and inspection of fissionable materials and atomic facilities. But today, as one scientist says, 'it seems that the possibility of the control of nuclear explosives and the bombs they make has passed.'"

This, of course, puts the whole business in a new light. What looked like a tempting deal whereby a youth of 21 might save $214 on New Republics before he died at 65 becomes, after a perusal of the small type, nothing more than a gamble—with the odds on the side of New Republic, Inc.

Possibility of control of nuclear explosives and the bombs they make has passed, and there is an Epicurean bunch of publishers trying to get your money while they may.

Our speculation along this line was considerably heightened by the passing over, yesterday, of the long cloud the Atomic Energy Commission says we shouldn't worry about, the colloidal fragment cut loose from the atomic mushroom in Nevada.

There it was, for anybody who cared to look: a nuclear cloud right here in Chapel Hill. Any hopes the New Republican may have had of getting our hundred dollars sailed east with that cumulo-nimbus mass.

You can take the idealistic plunge if you like, but we're going to sit tight, keep a sharp eye on the shape of reality, and buy our New Republics down at Sutton's.

Gracious Living—XXVI

Our Lenoir Hall operative tells us that Gracious Living in Chapel Hill is taking a beating from the cafeteria clocks. Daily, goes his tale of woe, hundreds of students are made late to class while trying to sneak in an extra cup of breakfast coffee; the clocks are five minutes slow.

We have finally become accustomed to the University's bell system being two minutes behind the rest of the world, but there's no excuse for the microcosm that is Lenoir to operate five minutes slower that that.

If Gracious Living is to move on apace, Lenoir must get the lead out.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman

Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin

Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley

Subscription Manager — Jack Godley

Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel

Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker

Photographer — Boyden Henley

Society Editor — Susan Andes

EDITORIAL STAFF — Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase

SPORTS STAFF — Al Korschun, Bob Colbert, Chuck Strong, Marshall Waldman

BUSINESS STAFF — Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue — Bob Dillard

Carolina Front

Old Initials Tell Three Life Stories

Louis Kraar

HAVE YOU ever wondered about the initials some people make in fresh cement?

Usually, it's children who scrape their names or initials for all of posterity — or, at least, the neighborhood — to view. But when I noticed three clearly-written initials on the side of Old West Dorm on campus recently, I wondered about them. The date conveniently placed beside the initials, was 1830.

A search through old yearbooks, Kemp P. Battle's "History of the University of North Carolina, and a half-dozen questions to helpful librarians in the North Carolina Historical Room in the Library brought to light the names of the initial carvers of over a century ago.

The initials "J.L.H." belong to John L. Hederson, who was graduated from the University in 1830, the same year he probably carved the initials. Henderson, despite his penchant for scraping initials in cement, became a member of the state legislature in later life. After representing Rowan County in the General Assembly for some years, he went on to become state comptroller.

"G.H." probably stands for George W. Huffman, who attended the University but didn't graduate. He later became a Baptist minister.

The third set of initials "J.M.S." belinged to John Madison Stedman, who was graduated in 1830 and later became a physician.

The three initial scrapers probably found their opportunity to make their mark on the building during a minior repair session. Old West was built in 1822, so 1830 sounds like a reasonable date for minor repair work.

Thus, the sets of initials stand —after over a century—bearing silent witness to such events as Union General Smith B. Atkins moving horses into the building for two weeks while peace terms for surrender of Raleigh were being negotiated in 1865.

★

EVEN IN texts one finds absurd statements. Take this one from "Sociology," by Lundberg, Schrag, and Larsen:

"If enough of its members are nonconformists, the community may split into factions or perhaps disintegrate. Thus, survival of the group, like survival of the individual, depends upon the development of patterns of uniform and repetitive social acts to which people are expected to conform."

★

"WHAT DID Norwood Bryan do?" the girl wanted to know. She pointed to this column of a couple days ago, in which the printer had dropped two lines.

Thus, to satisfy curosity and straighten out the confusion, here's what I was trying to say (until the printer jinxed me):

Norwood Bryan, who sat on both sides of the battle between Muntzing and Fowler at different times, still is entertaining vice-presidential hopes.

★

PERHAPS THE slang of today will pass like that of other generations, but I wonder if we'll ever work so hard to seem colorful and sophisticated as we're doing now.

"How was the boy you were telling me about?" a coed asks her friend on campus.

"Oh, him?" she coos in a pseudo-Southern drawl. "He's strictly out to lunch."

And our music has also taken on names that outnumber our jazz forms. After the Brubeck concert, I heard that he was "strictly nowhere," from one jazz exponent.

Another hipster (that's a slang word itself) termed it "cool." And still another friend, somewhat less versed in the vernacular of the moment, remarked, "I didn't think it was too hot myself."

Before this gets too frantic, I guess I'd better finesse the whole business.

Latest Master Stroke On The Security Front

SOUNDS

New Don Shirley, Old BG

Tom Spain

"His virtuosity is worthy of Gods," is what Igor Stravinsky has to say about the jazz world's latest piano stylist.

Donald Shirley, whose Debussyesque piano renditions of popular and semi-classical selections, has been something of a rage among the New York society-jazz school in the supper clubs and cafe circles.

Almost a strict adherent to classic forms, the renowned Shirley boasts a background of genious and the life of a child prodigy.

Born in Kingston, Jamaica, he has studied theory at the Leningrad Conservatory of Music and at the Catholic University of America in Washington.

He is a composer of several formal works including symphonies for organ and a piano variation for Ravel's BOLERO. At the age of 28, he has compiled an impressive record as a concert pianist in addition to acquiring an enthusiastic jazz following.

SUBTLE BUT GENTLE

In his new record album which has just been released by Cadence records, Shirley presents several pop ballads out of Tin Pan Alley to which he has applied the technique of composers from Chopin to Gershwin, plus a mild spattering of some delicate modern jazz. Accompanied by Richard Davis on bass, Shirley takes a big step in drawing both jazz and classic forms of music into a delightful style which accentuates the similarities and contrasts of the forms which were once considered far removed from each other.

Relying on a subtle but gentle technique, the duo turns out wistfully beautiful versions of SECRET LOVE, ANSWER ME MY LOVE, MY FUNNY VALENTINE, DANCING ON THE CEILING, and LOVE IS HERE TO STAY. The Shirley treatment of these sentimental ballads is not only different, but refreshing. Perhaps best of the new styles is the quiet blues rendition of I COVER THE WATERFRONT.

The Don Shirley duo deserves a listen no matter what one's tastes might be. A concert pianist of great talent with an honest interest in jazz as an art form is an indication of coming events in American music.

★

The Benny Goodman band usually connotes a thing of the past, but Capitol Records will be the first to say the Goodman way of music has not died. A new album chocked full of big-band sides is now on the shelves of the record shops, its cover designed to lure the hi-fidelity fiends.

JUMPIN', STOMPIN'

BG IN HI-FI is no disappointment to the true Goodman fan, and to some, the group may sound no different than it did 15 or 20 years ago. Featuring many of the old-timers, Goodman brings back many of the all-time favorites of the early forties.

Count Basie's JUMPIN' AT THE WOODSIDE is the opener, and brings back memories of the jitterbugger and jukebox of 1941. Quickly following is another old-time great, STOMPIN' AT THE SAVOY, which, though it lacks some of the drive and exuberance of the former aggregations, does the Goodman reputation no harm.

Mel Powell, Chris Griffin, Will Bradley, Steve Jordan, and Hymie Shertzer are just a few of the big names which helped make the tradition of Goodman supremecy in the swing field, and topped by that royal clarinet, they prove themselves far from has beens.

SHAVERS' TRUMPET, POWELL'S PIANO

One of the more exciting elements of the new album is the presence of the quintet and sextet. More than adequately supported by Jo Jones, Charlie Shavers and Mel Powell, the small groups take off on GET HAPPY, YOU'RE A SWEETHEART, ROCK RIMMON, and AIR MAIL SPECIAL.

The versatile Shavers supplements the absence of the vibes with his supersonic trumpet runs. Powell's piano work sounds somewhat changed, but just as good as it ever did. Especially in the frantic AIR MAIL SPECIAL, the group proves its rapid-tempo ensemble ability with the tricky scale romping and complex endings.

But for the Goodman fan, perhaps the biggest thrill comes from the two sides of LET'S DANCE, which open and close the album. Though both are from the same master recording and are nothing more than duplicates, the inviting sounds of LET'S DANCE imply only one thing. And the implication hasn't changed since the 1940's. It's the heartwarming thought that a great and masterful king will not reckon with usurpation.

YOU Said It

Editor:

All hail the noble prophet, the patriarch and elected representative of the common people, the zealous guardian of the campus coffer, the great authority on matters of human initiative, the champion of unlegislated thought —our own Frank Warren Jr.

Mr. Warren tells us in his letter of March 11 that he was advised by his father to fight windmills rather than newspapers. If the character of Mr. Warren's charges against The Daily Tar Heel and its editor are any indication of Mr. Warren's intellectual astuteness, then I suggest that he follow his father's advice.

Mr. Warren tells us that the editor of The Daily Tar Heel is possibly lazy. If it were so, it were a grievous fault, but in any case how in the name of Brutus would Mr. Warren know? I think Mr. Warren is patently absurd.

Mr. Warren tells us that we are lucky because we have students who pay good money to have a top-notch newspaper. I say that we are lucky because we have students who are willing to guard our money, investigate our newspaper, and call other students "lazy."

Ken Pruitt

Levin's Poems Refreshing 'Rebellion'

Ed Yoder

If rebellions make the planet spin (and there are those who believe they do), Ron Levin's new book of poetry—entitled "Rebellion"—should give the reader a fine whirl.

The college campus can too often lapse into a slow-turning apathy; and all who have ever watched the laws of physics at work on a spinning object know that the slow-turning becomes the wobbling and finally the stopping.

INCOMPATIBILITY

It is for just that reason that Ron Levin's ten poems, just brought out in the Old Well Publishers' new "Contemporary Poets" series, are full of lively and healthy meaning. These poems, whose abiding theme is perhaps caught up in,

I should like to divorce myself from these days on grounds of incompatibility, will more than serve those who feel the campus vehicle slowing down, will perhaps give the reader a troubled insight into whatever wobbling the planet may (or may not) be doing.

After so much modern poetry of abstract insight, which, as W. H. Auden has said, only serves to "wake the hermit's sensual ecstasy," it is refreshing to find a new poet bringing new thought to paper about coffee drinking, about walking in a garden, about hi-fi sets that drown "a robin's magic treat," about rain and the changing tones of a woman's red hair, about the price of U. S. Steel, about drinking egg nog at a Christmas party.

PULPY CRESCENDO

The poet's rebellion is a rebellion back to the natural things, the leisurely, meaningful, pleasant things that can flash on the attentive eye. In "Garden Concerto," for instance, Levin, tuning his esthetic strings to a more romantic score, hears

The counterpoint of ear and stalk in tangible melodic lines . . .
Polyphony of tangled vines their coda culminating in a pulpy crescendo called a fruit.

Levin has developed a good bit of the skill which comes to the poet when he has trained his voice and thought to see the subtler shades of the things he writes about. "Reckoning in a Coffee Shop" typifies this. The poet's talking about the end of world. Could this be it? he wonders:

I had dreamt of there being high screaming fissures steaming and unimaginable sights.

I'm disappointed for all that I observe are faded voices neatly done grins
and half-picked bones on plates.

END OF THE WORLD

This subtle blend of humor and gravity deserves comparison with one of the great treatments of the theme — Archibald MacLeish's wonderful poem, "The End of The World." Mr. MacLeish sets his apocalyptic event in a carnival tent. Just as the clowns and tightrope walkers lead their audience into rapt attention, the big-top roof blows off and beyond there is blackness and . . . "nothing—nothing at all."

"Rebellion," the reveiewer suggests, deserves the attention of those who believe that the ultimate requirements of all poetry should be truth and beauty, those qualities which, as Shelley indicated in an immortal code, can never be found separated in a good work of art.

Meanwhile, with a few rebellions of this sort, to point the way, the planet will continue to spin.

POETRY AWARDS

Stanford University Press is the publisher of the 19p4 Borestone Mountain Poetry Awards, a compilation of original poetry published in magazines of the English-speaking world. The Boreshone collection is the only yearly anthology of verse to which nominations can be made by the editors of the publications in which the poems first appeared. In attition to three cash prizes and a special award, the judges also award $1,250 annually for an outstanding book-length work of verse, the prize presented each year at the banquet of the Poetry Society of America.

A number of well-known poets appear in this year's choices, including Southern critics and author Allen Tate, well-known short story writer Elizabeth Enright, Christopher Morley, Peter Viereck, etc.

DANNIE ABSE

Chapel Hill readers will be especially interested in a poem reprinted from "Poetry," by aDnnie Abse. Mr. Abse, a native of South Wales, is the brother of Dr. Wilfred Abse of the Department of Psychiatry in the University Medical School. Dannie Abse is also the author of "Ash on a Young Man's Sleeve," published in England by Hutchison and only recently by Criterion in the United States. The Abses are an extraordinary family. Miss Lily Tobias, an aunt who recently visited here in Chapel Hill, is also a well-known British novelist.

PRIZES

Top prizes in the Borestone awards went to Robert P. Tristram Coffin, Elizabeth Coatsworth, Laurie Lee, and Allen Tate. The current collection (128 pages, $3) is the sixth volume in the series and offers a special stimulus to undergraduate poets. Prizes in this category went to Evan Jones, Australia; Michael Kirby, Princeton University; and Wal Cherry, Australia.

EDITH SITWELL

The collected poems of Edith Sitwell, published in a 442-page edition by Vanguard Press at $6.50, prove again—as if such proof were needed—that Dame Sitwell's position of excellence in English poetry is secure. The new book makes available early poems that have never been published in America, and brings together "Green Song," "The Song of the Cold," "The Canticle of the Rose," and Gardeners and Astronomers."

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coe

(The Horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others.—Hipporotis, circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was marchalling his companions Messrs. Neckley and Wump, of higher- and lower-level vision on affairs respectively, on East Franklin. I wondered what was up?

"Neckley's neck, for one thing," The Horse specified, "is up. So is Mr. Wump's dander. Indeed, my amphibian associate is so depressed as to be in a frame of impulse to commit seppuku."

Didn't The Horse meap frame of mind? And what, pray, was seppuku?

"Now, Roger, things are not so desperate as to require you to pray," The Horse shrugged. "But pray stop dramatizing yourself. Like many moderns, poor Wump has a collection of impulses rather than a mind, by which latter term I mean the something from which thought originates. And seppuku is a term used by us Japanese for what you-all call hara-kiri. In short, self-destruction."

Us Japanese? The Horse was now Japanese?

"The Horse is universal," The Horse spoke most respectfully of himself, using the third-person. "The Horse is many things to many people."

And he was nothing to many people, and I meant his colyum, as it was y-clept.

"That figures," The Horse nodded eguusably. "As Poor O'Richard says, 'He who tries to please everybody pleases not even himself.' And it also follows that the fantastic emolument I am paid for each blink of my Eye is such that it leaves me independent of the need to dot my Eyes and lace my Teas."

Didn't The Horse mean, cross his t's?

"When brandy is used," The Horse observed, "we call it lacing. I am seriously thinking of lacing Mr. Wump's branch water with some good distillation of the potato skin to coax him out of his impulse to commit seppuku. What gives me pause, is, he may turn up with other and more horrendous impulses."

Such as?

"Bathing in coffee, lurking in creamed soups, plumping for Educational TV, voting Republican." The Horse expressed some possibilities. "Or he might even become an Independent and uphold segregation while deploring Chapel Hill's refusal to align the reading labels with the reading of kindergarten a-b-c blocks."

This, I didn't follow?

"Well, why howl to keep schools separated as to color, and then back our Educational system with the shtuff whose main color-symbol is bloodshot eyes?" The Horse pointed out with a manicured hoof. "Or if cheek-by-hogjowl with the Likker Trade is okay for school revenue, why not go whole hog and start making the shtuff themselves at P.-T.A. meetings? Look at the profit could be made! Why give any of it away and merely rely on taxes?"

I thought The Horse had something there.

"You ain't kidding!" The Horse warmed up to his idea to found the foundling schools with a newfound foundation. "It could be integrated with the work at school, too. That ought to please everybody, because everywhere you hear folkses speaking of integration, and thus it would be fashionable."

The Horse meant, set up stills in the schoolhouses?

Nothing that crude," The Horse overruled me. "Besides, the kids might turn our raw shtuff—you know how impatient children are. No, I mean we could teach Arithmetic using the system: 2 pints equal one quart — "

I got it! Four quarts make one gallon!

"Naw, naw, naw!" The Horse nawed me. "Twelve quarts make one case. And so on. Heck, we might even break the text down into Fifths, so we-uns who buy the shtuff would know what we are getting stuck under the Fifth system. Then, we could conduct our Agriculture & Resources classes similarly."

Would The Horse elucidate?

"I never touch it before the sun is over the yard-arm," The Horse misunderstood me. "Instead of teaching Old North State childher to reckon farm-production in bushels of corn to the acre, we'd teach it in gallons to the acre; or, cases to the section. And they could get their Physical-Ed by samping out the corn-squeezings and the grape-juice. Then —

Now I had it! Then, transship the shtuff — I meant, stuff — to P.-T.A. stills — and have our own bottle factories make the bottles, labels, cases, tax-stamps, everything!

"Roger, me bhoy!" The Horse exulted. "I'm proud of you! How come you're not a leading member . . or at least among The Fifty-Four . . of P.-T.A. now? No skulldugger, you, me lad, but a realist! Taxes are taxes, and forget where they come from. Income is income. Why, Roger, in one simple stroke you have stated our entire American Philosophy: don't worry where it comes from or what you must do to get it — go after it. There's one small flaw, however."

Quote, Unquote

Last week the United States postoffice department quit delivering Russian newspapers to any American except a very restricted class, mostly officials.

It meant nothing to me intellectually because I can't read Russian; but it meant a great deal to me politically, because it reminded me of the frantic efforts of John C. Calhoun and his followers to prevent the postoffice from delivering Abolition newspapers in the South before the Civil War.

The policy of trying to stifle though led straight to ruin then and all experience teaches that it can never lead to anything else. I have a haunting fear that it is leading to ruin now. There is no safety in ignorance; it is precisely what you don't know that does hurt you, because if you know you can usually get out of the way.

In this modern world it is more profoundly true than it ever was before that the mind that is free to inquire and to know is the only mind that has a chance of devising means of protecting itself against the strange and mysterious evils that are rising against us.

—Gerald Johnson on WAAM, Baltimore

Three Conference, One National Mark Set In ACC Tank Meet

Charlie Krepp Sets Standard In 200 Back

Hussey Takes First In Diving For UNC

By BOB COLBERT

Three Atlantic Coast Conference records and one National Inter-collegiate record were set as the ACC Swimming Championships came to the end of the second day last night.

N. C. State took four of the six finals, with the other two going to the Tar Heels.

Tar Heel Charlie Krepp became the second individual record-breaker of the day when he swam the 200-yard backstroke in 2:08.7, seven-tenths of a second better than he did during the season.

Earlier, State's Bob Mattson broke the national intercollegiate record for the 200-yard breaststroke in the afternoon trials with a time of 2.24.9 This bettered the record of Georgia's Hal Stolz by two full seconds and also set a new ACC mark.

The other ACC record came in the 400-freestyle relay when State's team of Bill Sonner, Will James, Dave McIntyre and Bob Mattson splashed home in 3.32.1, five-tenths of a second better than they had done earlier in the season.

The Tar Heel's other first place came in the low board diving. Last year's ACC champion John Hussey successfully retained his crown as he beat Virginia's Jim Bates by some 60 points. UNC's Tom Parker was third.

Preliminaries and finals in seven events remain for tonight's program. The events are the 100-yard freestyle, 100-yard backstroke. 200-yard butterfly, 440-yard freestyle, 150-yard individual medley, three-meter diving and 300-yard medley relay.

In the 200-yard butterfly breaststroke, Tar Heel Phil Drake will be shooting for the American, Intercollegiate and world record. The record is presently 2:12.9. In the 300-yard medley relay, Krepp, Drake and Dick Baker will be out to better their intercollegiate record.

Preliminaries will be run off at 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. These sessions will be open to the public. The finals will be held at 8:30 p.m. tonight with an admission charge of $1.00 per person.

Summary of the championship events:

50-yard freestyle — 1, Senner (State), 2. Drake (UNC), James (State), Foulk (U.Va.), McMillan (Duke) and Barber (Duke). 23.4

200-yard backstroke—1, Krepp, (UNC), Dunlap (State), Merchel (State), Jewell (UNC), Linker (UNC). Berry (U.V.), 2:08.7 (New ACC record.)

220-yard freestyle — 1, Ruppenthal (State), Shannon (UNC, Gill (UNC), Holmes (UNC), Higgins (UNC), Holmgreen (U.Va.)

200-yard breaststroke — 1, Mattson (State), Heemann (UNC), Lynes (State), Perry (UNC), Ragin (South Carolina), Etheridge, (South Carolina) 2.33.5.

One-meter diving — 1, Hussey, (UNC), Bates (U.Va.), Parker (UNC), Ricker (U.Va.), Barber (Duke), Reams (U.Va.). 398.4

400-yard freestyle relay — 1, State (Sonner, James, McIntyre and Mattson). 2. North Carolina. 3, Duke. 4, U. Va. 5, Clemson. 6, South Carolina. 3:32.1 (New ACC record.)

THESE ARE the young ladies who have been named as sponsors for the annual Blue-White football game at North Carolina March 19. One of the 13 young ladies will reign as queen of the game, which pits half of the varsity football team against the other half, while the other 12 will serve as members of the queen's court. From left to right in the top row are Libbie McDowell, Smith Dorm, Wake Forest, N. C.; Nancy Whisnant, Kappa Delta, Charlotte, N. C.; Carol Taylor, Carr Dorm, Louisville, Ky.; and Anne Penn, Pi Beta Phi, Danville, Va. Those in the middle row are Kay Browne, McIver Dorm, Washington, D. C.; Luanne Thorton, Alderman Dorm, W. Palm Beach, Fla.; Sara Fair, Chi Omega, Greenville, S. C.; and Jackie Van Hook, Nurses' Dorm, Henderson, N. C. In the lower row are Liz Lynn, Alpha Delta Pi, Raleigh, N. C.; Nancy Burean, Spencer Dorm, Asheville, N. C.; Ann Wrenn, Delta Delta Delta, Greensboro, N. C.; Pat Fossum, Kenan Dorm, Miami, Fla.; and Jackie Wilkins; Alpha Gamma Delta, Franklin, W. Va.

Bullock Trying To Regain Quarterback Slot From Sutton; Frosh Brains Also In Fight

By JACK MURPHY

Probably the most spirited spring football practice ever conducted at Carolina was stepped up to even a greater magnitude of individual competition yesterday with the return of Len "Teedee" Bullock to drills on Navy Field.

Bullock, the regular Tar Heel quarterback throughout most of last season and a good deal of the 1953 campaign, is trying to win back his job from Ed Sutton who has shown great progress in his effort to master the new position. Still the quarterback problem presents the most severe headache for Coach George Barclay. Will the Sutton experiment pay off? Will one of the frosh quarterbacks, Buddy Sasser, Ron Marquette, and Dave Reed, move into the spot? Will Doug Farmer learn to carry his talents from the practice field to the game field? Or will it be Bullock's "25" under the center come September?

ELSEWHERE ON the spring practice front, end Will Frye and Paul Pulley have joined the "crippled player's society" as Lee Russavage commented to co-member Steve Kupchick earlier this week. They both have minor ankle injuries.

Spunky Ken Keller, the Salina, Pa. halfback, seems to be back to his old tricks again. Out of action for a great part of last season with injuries, Keller is apparently in top shape again as shown by his outstanding feats on the practice field. Keller positively couldn't be stopped in yesterday's scrimmage. He is once again running like the Keller of '53, his sophomore year, when he had Washington sports writers predicting future All American honors for the self-confident little scatback. Freshman Joe Temple probably has also been a big reason for Keller's return to form. Temple is giving him a real run for the halfback job.

ANOTHER HALFBACK, Dickie Darling, has staged a similar comeback. Unimpressive as a freshman, the Elizabeth City flash is running like he did as an All State back in high school last year. He has pushed his way to a starting spot on Ralph Floyd's team which will meet the varsity gridders of Bill Edwards in the annual Blue-White intra-squad game a week from today. Darling was not at yesterday's practice, however, and another freshman, Jim Varnum, was exceptionally impressive, using his tremendous speed to offset his handicap of size.

With only five practices remaining before the Blue-White game next Saturday, the tempo has been tuned to a high frequency.

Gym Team Begins Competition Today

North Carolina's gymnastic team will open competition today in the Southern Interscholastic Gymnastic Tournament at Georgia Tech.

Carolina, rated a co-favorite with Florida State, will be having only one trouble—lack of depth—and this is liable to hurt the team's chances.

Pacing the Tar Heels will be Bill Rivera, Pete Brumley, Frank Williams, Gordon Hudson, and Biff Howard.

Carolina Varsity Netters Open Practice Sessions

The Carolina Varsity tennis team opened spring practice yesterday on a note of confidence as one of the netmen's best seasons seems to be in store for the delight of victory-hungry UNC sport fans.

The entire starting lineup from last year's brilliant squad returns backed up by a number of top men from last year's great freshmen squad. Herb Browne, Bobby Payne, Tommy Bradford, Pete Greene, Don Thompson, Ron Kerdasha who made tennis history at Chapel Hill last year will be back with more experience but with tougher competition for positions as Ed Hudgins and Bob Bortner vie for starting positions.

UNC Lacrosse Club Opens Practices Monday

Practice for the 1955 Carolina lacrosse team will begin Monday afternoon at 3:30 on Navy Field The team will operate as a club and all freshmen and graduate students are eligible to play.

Art Greenbaum, former Carolina lacrosse star, will serve as coach of the club. Greenbaum asks that all students interested in trying out for the team check out equipment before Monday afternoon. Experience is not a prerequisite, he added, pointing out that only two players on the first team of 10 men last year had played before enrolling here.

There was a question this year whether the University would sponsor a team. Lacrisse was initiated as a varsity sport here in 1949. Its most successful season was 1952 when the team won five lost six and tied one.

The Carolina team has been handicapped in the fact that its schedule every season must be made up of teams in higher rating classifications. The Tar Heels are in Class C, while most of their opponents are in Class A or the high Class B bracket. These tough teams must be played because there are no teams in Class C located south of Maryland.

THE SCHEDULE this season will include Duke, third-ranked nationally, Dartmouth, Williams, Washington and Lee, Virginia, and possibly Cornell.

Greenbaum, on the attack, and Grant Lynch, former Carolina All-American mention, on defense head the list of experienced players who will lead this year's club Five of last year's starters are back. They include Co-Captain Toby Haynsworth and Dick Baker at midfield, Wilbur Jones at attack, Thorn Walker at goalie, and Co-Captain Steve Trimble at defense. Bill Joyner, a starter at attack last year, is unable to play this season.

OTHER VETERANS from last year include Ned Whitmore, defense; Sherry Smith and Bob Linker, midfield; and Jack Spooner, attack, all lettermen; and Bill Moore, Ronnie Current, Joe Converse, Miller Carmichael, Jim Cheatham, Dave Bruton, and Chal Schley.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

Frosh Team Betters Varsity Nine; Tom Zachary And Joe Shook Homer

Johnson Gets Victory In 2-Inning Stint

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

A team composed of five freshmen yesterday defeated what may be the varsity starting lineup in an intra-squad game at Emerson Field by a score of 9-5. Bob Johnson bested Don Saine on the mound.

Saine went into the ninth inning with a slim 5-4 lead but promptly hit Tom Lambert on the arm to start off a five-run uprising by the freshmen. Lambert took second on a passed ball and moved to third as Don Orr grounded to the box. Joe Shook then belted a long drive to deep right center and crossed home plate before the ball could be retrieved. Iver Hill then walked and came home on Russ Perry's triple down the right field line. Brizen's single scored Perry and Brizen scored on a Chuck Hartman single to left a moment after he had swiped second. This gave the frosh a 9-5 lead and Coach Walter Rabb decided that it was too dark to let the varsity bat in the last of the ninth.

JIM RAUGH started for the varsity and was raked for four runs and seven hits in three innings. Don Hill followed Raugh and hurled two-hit shutout ball for the middle three frames. Saine chucked the last three innings and gave up five runs and four bingles, all coming in the ninth inning.

The freshmen used varsity hurlers Tom Maultsby, southpaw Morris Hall and Bob Johnson. Maultsby pitched three scoreless innings and allowed three hits. Morris Hall gave up four runs and six hits in the three frames that he worked and Bob Johnson pitched the seventh and eighth innings allowing the varsity one run and three hits.

Hartman was one of three varsity men playing for the freshmen and "the chucker" collected three singles in six trips to the plate Hill and Perry were the other two regulars playing with the frish.

TOM ZACHARY banged out a four-bagger to righ center field and added two singles to his day's work to lead the varsity in the batting department. Zachary's four-master in the fourth broke the scoring ice for the regulars. who found themselves trailing 4-0 after the freshmen had jumped on Raugh right at the start. Zachary added two more singles to give him three out of four for the day.

'Pack Resumes Drills For AAU Tournament

Coach Everett Case's N. C. State Wolfpack, champions of the Atlantic Coast Conference for 1955, resumes its hardwood drills for its entry in the National A.A.U. tournament at Denver, Colo., March 21, this week-end.

The Wolfpack, which rang up a 28-4 mark for one of the best years under Case, will play their first game in the A.A.U. on Wednesday, March 23. The team is due to leave Raleigh via plane on Saturday, March 19.

WE APOLOGIZE

The annual Blue-White football game, which climaxes spring practice, was not played yesterday as erroneously reported in The Daily Tar Heel. It will be played a week from today.

The error came about through a misinterpretation of the copy by the night editor.

BB Tourneys Swing Into Quarter-Finals

The intra-mural fraternity and dormitory basketball tournaments swing into the quarter-final rounds Monday afternoon and night with the semi-finals slater for Wednesday and the finals Friday. In the dorm division Dental School meets Alexander-4, Joyner1 1 vs. Med School-5, BVP-2 takes on Law School-2, and TMA meets Joyner-2; In the frat tourney DKE meets ATO, SAE tangles with Chi Psi, Sig Nu plays Chi Phi, and Phi Gam vs Sigma Chi.

Hemric To Be Honored By Students Monday

Dick Hemric, Wake Forest's first basketball All-America, will be honored by the student body in a special chapel program at the college Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Hemric will be given a plaque and a set of golf clubs, gifts of the students, and will see his jersey retired. In addition he will receive All-America certificates from Look Magazine, Helms Athletic Foundation, NEA, Associated Press, United Press, International News Service and Collier's Magazine.

He also will be awarded a trophy as the player of the year in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Coaches from the rival Big Four schools will be guest speakers for the occasion. Everett Case of N .C State, Frank McGuire of North Carolina and Harold Bradley of Duke will be on hand to pay tribute to the All-America star.

Jim Reid, sports director of WPTF in Raleigh, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Plan Now for Executive Career in RETAILING

Unique one-year course leads you to Master's degree. Individualized training for those COLLEGE GRADUATES who desire top-paying positions, have average or better academic records, broad educational backgrounds. Training in nationally known retail organizations with pay (covers tuition, books, fees). Scholarships. Coed. Graduates placed. Next class begins Sept. 6, 1955. Applications accepted now. Write for Bulletin C.

SCHOOL OF RETAILING
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH
Pittsburgh 13, Pa.

KEEP ALERT FOR A BETTER POINT AVERAGE!

Don't let that "drowsy feeling" cramp your style in class . . . or when you're "hitting the books". Take a NoDoz Awakener! In a few minutes, you'll be your normal best . . . wide awake . . . alert! Your doctor will tell you—NoDoz Awakeners are safe as coffee. Keep a pack handy!

15 TABLETS, 35c

"Pill-Back" pack. 15 tablets in handy tin can

NODOZ AWAKENERS

VICTORY VILLAGE
Bingo Party
IS
TODAY — 7:30 P. M.
Victory Village Community Center

A Salute to The Memory of Chapel Hill's Own
JAMES STREET

Top-noch novelist and journalist, sure-fire presence on the best-seller lists, Chapel Hill's late James Street was also a warm and human personality. Many a student's stay in the University will be the richer for having known this friendly unselfish writer.

To your bookseller, the special charm of Mr. Street's conversation is best reflected in two of his later books. "The Civil War" and "The Revolutionary War". De recommend them for your delight.

Among Mr. Street's Other Books:

Goodbye My Lady
Velvet Doublet
The High Calling
By Valour and Arms
The Biscuit Eater (Juvenile)

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

College smokers agree...
WINSTON
brings flavor back to filter smoking!

WINSTON tastes good—like a cigarette should!

■ No wonder Winston's winning so many friends so fast! College smokers found flavor in a filter cigarette when they found Winston. It's got real tobacco flavor!

Along with finer flavor, Winston also brings you a finer filter. The exclusive Winston filter works so effectively, yet doesn't "thin" the taste or flatten the flavor.

Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

LACROSSE

All male students who are interested in playing lacrosse may draw their equipment at Woollen Gym on Monday from 1 until 4 p.m. The first practice will be held at 4 p.m.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Dr. E. Norfleet Gardner will speak on "The Work of Christian Missions" at the Baptist Church supper forum tomorrow at 6 p.m. The forum will be open to the public.

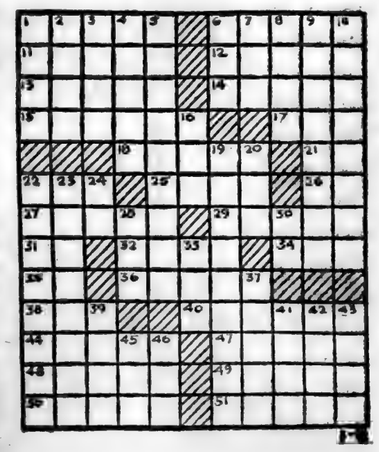
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
True Tobacco Taste . . . Real Filtration
Famous Tareyton Quality
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

ATTENTION TEEN-AGERS!
YOU, TOO, CAN WEAR THESE WINGS
Win your wings in the Ground Observer Corps. Volunteer to serve two hours a week as a civilian plane spotter. It's fun! It's interesting! And you'll be doing a vital job to keep your country safe from air attack.
Join the
GROUND OBSERVER CORPS
CALL OR WRITE CIVIL DEFENSE
Sponsor's Name
Write or Call
DURHAM FILTER CENTER
Morris Street
Durham, N. C.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Shy
6. Girl's name
11. Worship
12. Silly
13. Sailing vessel
14. Birthplace of Mohammed
15. Place for dogs
17. Bitter vetch
18. Pry
21. Word element meaning "primeval"
22. Chart
25. Varnish-like product
26. Indefinite article
27. A shade of green
29. Out of date
31. Nickel (sym.)
32. Inside
34. A color
35. Tellurium (sym.)
36. Make amends for
38. Half ems
40. He sent Jason for the Golden Fleece
44. Lift
47. The lady Zeus turned to stone (Myth.)
48. A moth
49. A carved pole (Am. Ind.)
50. City (Chin.)
51. Not fresh



DOWN

1. Job
2. Not working
3. Celestial body
4. Manacles
5. Contingent
6. Obscure
7. Single unit
8. Contest of speed
9. Augment
10. Salted
16. A game at cards
19. Adversaries
20. A size of coal
22. Former capital of California
23. Status of an alien
24. Greek letter
28. By way of
30. Senior (abbr.)
33. Peak
37. English author
39. Mark
41. Particle
42. A Son of Adam
43. Sown (Her.)
45. Body of water
46. Sea eagle (Eur.)

S	P	O	R	E		C	E	D	E	S
P	E	R	I	L		H	O	U	S	E
A	L	L	A	Y		A	N	T	A	E
T	E	F		S	E	N		Y	U	N
		P	I	N	T	S
B	A	L	L	A	D		H	O	B	O
O	R	I	O	N		T	A	B	O	R
S	T	E	T		R	A	Y	U	N	E
		S	H	A	L	E
S	H	O		E	P	I		P	I	A
C	O	V	E	R		P	I	L	O	T
A	M	E	N	D		E	L	A	T	E
P	E	N	D	S		D	D	N	A	S

3-12

Yesterday's Answer

Sunbathing On The Porch: Spring's On The Way

By SUSAN ANDES

When heads and parts of girls' bodies may be seen on the dorm sun roofs, by passers-by from the street, that's a sure enough sign that spring is either here or pretty close to it.

So what could be more natural than for parties to be scheduled at Hogan's, and trips to the beach in the back of the minds of all?

The KAs have a party at Myrtle Beach on their agenda for the weekend; while the Lambda Chis had a beer party at Clearwater Lake planned for last night.

Carbett Stuart from Roanoke, Va., has been named the Lambda Chis outstanding pledge; while Harry Twisdale, from Halifax pinned Marilyn Hedrick from Lenoir this week. Also pinned is Curtis Lashley from Burlington, to Sissie Carlyle, Wake Forest coed from Burlington.

St. As have a toga party planned for tonight; while the Chi Phis will make Hogan's their party location. Pi Kappa Phis are having a cabin party at the Schoolhouse.

Tommy Doris, Wilson; and Jack Robinson, Littleton, are new Pika pledges. Also pinned is Pika John Dixon of Wilmington, to Nancy Bruce also of Wilmington.

Phi Kaps entertained with a party at the Saddle Club last night; but it will be sport clothes evening when they're at Hogan's tonight.

Wiley O'Neal of Fremont recently received the Phi Kap active service award. New pledges include: Phillip Blazer, Whitaker, Pa.; Charles Gaca, W. Mifflin, Pa.; Clarence Goins, Burlington; William Allen McGee, Charleston, S. C.; Giles E. Ring Jr., Camden, S. C. and Robert Henry Riggsbee.

The Pi Phis are mighty proud of their new officers elected this week. They are Ann Williams, Westfield, N. J., president; Jane Edwards, Chapel Hill, vice president; Eddie Rogers, Summerton, S. C., and Susan Quinn, Roanoke, Va. recording and corresponding secretaries respectively.

Mot Stockton and Frances Parham will keep the books and serve in treasurer's capacity; while Mary Grady Burnette is social chairman.

Pi Phis in conjunction with Greek week will entertain Tuesday night with a coffee break beginning at nine.

Thursday night they were guests of the Betas at a party at the Country Club.

KDs have announced that Linda Garris, Margaretsville, is their outstanding pledge; while Liz Floyd, Raleigh, and Erolyn Blount, Nashville, have won recognition for their scholarship record. The KDs will have a coffee break on Tuesday night; as will the Alpha Gams.

Initiation is in store for two sorority groups this weekend. Alpha Gams will have theirs Saturday in the Carolina Inn Ballroom, followed by their Feast of Roses. News of a pinning from their house is that of Ji Ji Rainwater, Springfield, Mo., to Vince Hoelischer, KA from Lynchburg, Va.

ADPis last night had a party with the Duke Phi Delts at Turnage's in Durham. Also gathering there were the Carolina Phi Delts who had invited the Duke APis to party with them.

Charles Lore, SPE from Lenoir, pinned Phylliss Sherrill, Salem student from Lenoir, recently. Also pinned are ZBT members Phillip Goodman, New Orleans, to Roeschelle Green, from New Orleans and a Tulane student; and Mike Weinman, Baltimore, to Sally Silverstein, Baltimore.

ZBT new officers are: Al Resnick from Miami, Fla., reelected president. Bobby Hornik, Atlanta, Ga., vice president; Jerry Kahn, Atlanta, Ga., secretary; and Harry Reiss, Maplewood, N. J., treasurer.

At last weeks anniversary weekend they presented Phillip Kadis, Baltimore, with the pledge trophy; Richard Adelsheim, Pittsburg, Pa., with the fraternity service award; Bobby Hoernik, Atlanta, Ga., with the fraternity scholarship pin and Jerry Oppenheimer, Birmingham, Ala., with the pledge scholarship award.

At the Phi Delts' pledge weekend recently they honored Gordon Darnell of Murphy with a plaque for being the outstanding pledge. Bob Allison of Sylva received the scholarship plaque. A party at Morehead is on the agenda for several of their members this weekend.

The Chi Psis held their formal pledge dance at the Lodge last night; but will do their best partying tonight at the Country Club.

Initiation for the ADPis will take place tomorrow. One of their soon-to-be-active members, Nancy Carpenter, of Charlotte received a diamond engagement ring last week, from John Gregg, SAE senior at State, from Ft. Mill, S. C.

Zetes are planning a busy weekend for their pledges. Last night they had a party at the Schoolhouse; and tonight they will have a pledge dance and banquet at Smith Lake in Durham.

Sigma Nus have much planned for their pledges this weekend and next. Next week is their pledge weekend, but right now they're in the midst of work week. And that's all for now. So long!

PLEDGES AND DATES AT CHI OMEGA FESTIVITIES
. . . spring's coming, with more social events

— Gardner —

(Continued from Page 1)

entation was made tonight by George M. Stephens of Asheville, chairman of the Trustees' Committee on the Gardner Award.

Among those attending the seventh annual Gardner Award Dinner were Governor Hodges and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, widow of the late Governor and ambassador to the Court of St. James. President Gordon Gray of the Consolidated University presided. Over 625 persons including trustees, faculty members, and University administrative officials attended the event, held in the main ballroom of the State College Union Building.

Widely known for his teaching, administrative and research achievements, Dr. Metcalf is the author of nine books, an active member of 36 learned and professional societies, and is currently engaged in writing a 42-volume series of books on the Homoptera, an important group of insects.

A citation signed by Governor Hodges as chairman of the Board of Trustees and by Stephens as chairman of the Trustees' Committee on the Gardner Award was read at the dinner meeting and was presented to Dr. Metcalf. It said:

"Zeno Payne Metcalf, distinguished scientist, eminent scholar and devoted teacher . . . For half a century his life has been dedicated to the advancement of knowledge, his work has been linked inseparably with progress in the science of entomology."

WESLEY FOUNDATION

The Wesley Foundation will have a party tonight at Reverend Hubbard's cabin. Anyone desiring transportation should be at the church by 7:30.

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

CLASSIFIEDS

THE CAROLINIANS ORCHESTRA Call 3711. Write Box 902.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

REMEMBER BIRTHDAYS WITH a card from Ledbetter-Pickard. Everyone likes to be remembered, and there's no better way than with a card from our fine selection.

MEMORIALS: Large stock cut from Allen and Winnsboro Blue Granite. All work guaranteed. Terms if desired. Buy direct from yard and save agents and salesmens commission. Siler City Monument Co., Siler City, N. C., J. S. McIver, Owner and Manager.

For Your FIRST Perfect memories together
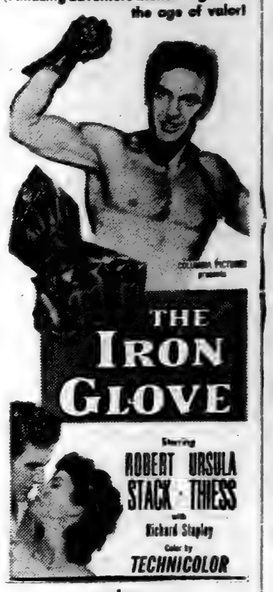
♥ Here is the honeymoon haven chosen by graduates of 562 colleges. You'll love every minute in your own little private cottage. Informal meals (breakfast till 11:00) at the fine old farmhouse. No "planned" program, but sports and fun with other young couples like yourselves—all honeymooners, just 12 couples at a time. Mention dates, we'll send illustrated "THREE HONEYMOON PLANS."
The Farm on the Hill
Box 120 SWIFTWATER 9, PA.

Maureen O'HARA
Macdonald CAREY
Color by Technicolor
FIRE OVER AFRICA
Late Show Tonite
SUNDAY - MONDAY
Varsity



Wolfe Novel Scheduled For Film Production

HOLLYWOOD, March 11. (AP)—Producer Paul Gregory said today that he plans to start filming one of three Thomas Wolfe novels by late summer.

Gregory and movie exhibitor William Goldman recently paid better than $300,000 for "Of Time and the River," "The Web and the Rock," and "You Can't Go Home Again."

Gregory now is making "The Naked and the Dead" and will do one of the Wolfe properties—he isn't sure which yet—as soon as he finishes the current movie.

The Gregory deal was consummated with heirs of the late North Carolina literary figure.

THE FIST ALL EUROPE FEARED!
Amazing adventure thundering out of the age of valor!

— plus —

TODAY ONLY
Varsity

For a Job in Your Field
Whatever your major—from Archaeology to Zoology—Katharine Gibbs secretarial training will be an aid in obtaining a position in the field of your interest. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.
Special Course for College Women
KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL
Boston 16, 21 Marlborough St. New York 17, 230 Park Ave.
Providence 6, 155 Angell St. Montclair, N. J., 33 Plymouth St.

THE BIG SHOW OF MOTION PICTURE MUSICALS IN COLOR AND CINEMASCOPE

M-G-M PRESENTS
THE LOVE STORY OF THE BEAUTY AND THE BARBARIAN
JUPITER'S DARLING
STARRING ESTHER WILLIAMS · HOWARD KEEL
MARGE and GOWER CHAMPION
GEORGE SANDERS THEATRE
Late Show Tonight
SUN. - MON. - TUE.
Carolina

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U N C LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and mild today, with expected high of 70.

The Daily Tar Heel

VOL. LVI NO. 117 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 15, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

GONE

The real gone graduates of the University come under the editor's scrutiny. See p. 2.

Don Fowler Enters Presidential Contest

SP Endorses Kraar, Yoder

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Harrington Veep Candidate

CAMPAIGN MANAGER TAYLOR & CANDIDATE McCURRY
. . . Taylor promises "clean, honest and vigorous campaign"

Palmer, Correll Named For Offices By SP

By NEIL BASS

The Student Party last night nominated Bob Harrington as its candidate for vice-president of the student body.

Harrington, current vice-president of the sophomore class, was chosen over Miss Susan Fink by a 35-15 margin.

Tom Lambeth, who placed Miss Fink's name in the running, declared that she was "a person who fulfills all the necessary requirements, a person who will respect integrity, a person who has fought hard for student government, . . in short she is Miss Carolina Student government."

Jack Hudson, who entered Harrington's name in the contest, said that he was "the finest candidate in the finest party in the finest University in the finest state . . ."

Harrington outlined his platform as one that would "make the student body more responsible." Going into detail about the workings of his administration if elected, the Carolina Political Union chairman said it would forward the principles of "democracy, liberalism and service."

A volley of comment pro and con followed Miss Fink's acceptance speech, of which the following is typical:

In lauding the talents and abilities of Miss Fink, Bob Elder said she possessed a great deal of experience and that she had "a past we cannot afford to lose."

Laureling the capabilities of Harrington, Larry McElroy described him as a person with "a brilliant grasp of the world about him."

At 8:39 the votes were piled in the chairman's desk. A huddle of counters assembled about Chairman Don Geiger. Then they counted in whispers and the tabulation was announced—35-15 in favor of Harrington.

Harrington accepted the nomination with, "Thank you, and I'll try to do a good job if elected."

In other selections of the crowded meeting, Joan Palmer was named to represent the SP in the student body secretarial race. Miss Palmer, called by her nominator "Miss Student Party," was ushered in by acclamation.

Another candidate given unanimous approval by the party was Joe Correll. Correll was propelled into the race as nominee for treasurer of the student body.

In the race for class offices, Scotty Hester was given the nod over Jerry Vayda as the SP's candidate for president of the senior class.

Hester told the group that if elected, he would "serve to the best" of his ability. A third candidate, Norwood Bryan, withdrew his name from the race.

Sophisticated Caroline Coed, races across street to escape being hit by Merita Bread truck; truck passes; Caroline calls after, "Hi-Yo, Silver!"

* * *

Sunday: Daddy playing on grass in McCorkle Place with small child, both having fun.

* * *

Fashion note: Politicians in political garb — coats and ties —nowadays.

UP Expected To Nominate Stevens Veep

The University Party will probably nominate Jack Stevens for vice-president of the student body tonight.

According to all speculation, Stevens, floor leader of the party, will capture the post with little difficulty. There are reports, however, that Jim Monteith, member of the Publications Board, will contest Stevens for the party nomination.

As for the UP's student body secretary candidate, the nod will in all probability go to Miss Jane Cocke. Miss Cocke is the present secretary of the party. Another likely candidate for the secretarial spot is Miss Bobbie Walker, legislator.

Some claim that the big competition of the night will be focused on legislative nominations. The vacancies to be filled with UP candidates are in town men's and town women's districts.

During last week's session, the party had difficulty bolstering enough nominees to fill the open spots in dorm men's districts, but tonight promises to be a different story.

The primary interest and strength of the UP is centered in the town men's districts. Thus crucial seats should be hotly contested.

Two Take Mundy 27 To 18

By ED MYERS

The Student Party last night endorsed Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar for co-editorship of The Daily Tar Heel by a margin of 27 to 18.

The pair, endorsed by the University Party last week, won out over David Mundy.

The climax of the heated discussions came when Lewis Brumfield was thrown out of the meeting for "breaking all rules of parliamentary procedure."

Dave Mundy, the only opposing candidate for editorship, stressed the need for a "responsible editorial policy. My primary concern is not to inflict my views around the campus," said Mundy. Elaborating, he hit on the "lack of firm support and interest from students."

Kraar, speaking primarily on "freedom of expression," called the student newsaper "The last stronghold of student expression."

Yoder, outlining the news policy of the paper, if he were elected, said, "I endorse an efficient Daily Tar Heel."

After the announcement was made official that Kraar and Yoder had been nominated, the two candidates issued a statement that they would make this year's The Daily Tar Heel "an ambassador of the best traditions of the University."

Decides To Run As Independent

Don Fowler, defeated in his attempt for the Student Party nomination, yesterday announced his candidacy for president of the student body as an independent.

According to Fowler, his decision to run came as the result of more than 20 petitions that are being circulated on campus calling for "the drafting" of the present student body treasurer as a candidate.

INDEPENDENT DON FOWLER
. . . "more representative choice"

Fowler said he had given up the idea of running until the "great interest shown by many students" encouraged him to become a candidate.

Fowler's accomplishments at UNC include:

The Grail scholastic award for having the highest average among self-help students; Honor cadet award in the Air Force ROTC his freshman year; former president of Joyner Dormitory; "several terms" in the student Legislature; and member of the University Dance Committee.

Full text of Fowler's candidacy announcement follows:

"Due to the great interest shown by the many students who recently circulated and signed petitions pledging me their support, I have decided to run for the office of student body president. I believe that as an independent candidate I can offer the students a more representative choice in the coming election."

Fowler said "I promise to wage a clean, hard campaign based on the practical issues which face the student body.

A junior, Fowler is from Winston-Salem.

Blue & White Voting Ends This Afternoon

There is no way of telling just how the voting in the Monogram Club's Miss Blue and White contest is going—at least not until the votes are counted at the end of today's voting.

The contest, which began last Saturday in the Y building, is being conducted on a penny-a-vote basis to determine which one of 13 girls running will be queen over the annual Blue and White game scheduled for March 19.

Slotted boxes into which votes are dropped make it next to impossible to determine who is ahead. Shaking the boxes gives no clue since paper money makes no jingle and is deceptive in weight, Miss Polly Keeton, Y secretary, said yesterday.

The coed who receives the most money will reign as queen at the football game at the formal end to winter practice. The other 12 girls will serve as sponsors for the two squads, six for each of the two squads.

Contestants are Misses Sara Fair, Anne Penn, Nancy Buran, Libbie McDowell, Ann Wrenn, Mises Luanne Thornton, Pat Fossum, Jackie Wilkins, Carol Taylor, Nancy Whisnant.

Misses Liz Lynn, Jackie Van Hook and Kay Browne.

Proceeds from the contest go to the Monogram Club's Scholarship fund and to its orphan parties.

Di Debates Succession Bill At 8

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the Dialectic Senate will debate a bill to allow the Governor of North Carlina to succeed himself.

The bill will be presented by Jim Ellis.

According to Larry McElroy, president pro tem of the Di, "proponents of the bill are expected to point to the Governor's weakened position during his last two years in office and to contend that the one-term limit deprives North Carolina of the opportunity to develop and train state and national leaders.

Concerning the opponents of the bill, McElroy said that they "might argue, as Jefferson did, that re-election is only one step from life tenure, and life tenure is only one step from hereditary rule."

Oil Interviews

Science students graduating in June will be interviewed here by a representative of the Humble Oil and Refining Company on March 22.

For an appointment with the representative students should contact J. M. Galloway, director of the University Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

Fraternities Beginning Festivities

"This looks like the greatest Greek Week event," said Jack Stevens, co-chairman of the events, yesterday.

"This year we have sorority coffee breaks, which we never had before, and three trophies instead of one," Stevens said.

The project for the pledges this year is cleaning up Victory Village, according to Stevens. "It will not only keep the pledges occupied, but it will also be beneficial to the town and the school," he said.

This year Greek Week is concentrating on getting the pledges better acquainted, explained Stevens. There will be two exchange dinners. At the big banquet in Lenoir Friday night, the pledges will be seated alphabetically rather than by classes, said Stevens.

Also, added Stevens, there will be a late show for the pledges Thursday night at 11:30.

Stevens announced that Miss Lila Ponder, assistant director of student activities, and Charles Bernard, assistant director of admissions, will judge stunt night.

Dr. George Harper and Dr. C. R. Caldwell will judge for the best pledge class.

The pledge classes will be judged on scholarship, participation in stunt night, field day and the reports turned by pledge trainers and presidents of pledge classes, according to Stevens.

Burt Veazy is co-chairman in Greek Week with Stevens.

Taylor Named McCurry Aide In Campaign

Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, announced yesterday the appointment of Raymond M. Taylor as his campaign manager.

Taylor, a senior political science major from Washington, N. C., is president of Old West Dormitory, member of the President's Committee on State Affairs, of the Interdormitory Council and the Press Club.

In accepting his appointment, Taylor said, "Although politically independent throughout my four years at the University, I have been interested in student politics. I have upheld those principles which I considered to be in the best interest of our University, regardless of the parties or personalities involved.

"It is in this spirit that I welcome the opportunity of managing the campaign of the eminently qualified candidate for president, Ed McCurry.

"I promise a clean, honest and vigorous campaign and I urge student voters to let their judgment and common sense prevail. If they do, I am confident Ed McCurry will be elected," said Taylor.

In announcing the appointment of Taylor, McCurry commented, "I consider myself fortunate in having such an outstanding student take the helm as my campaign manager in the forthcoming elections. His previous accomplishments and manifestations of leadership are indicative of the high caliber upon which my campaign rests."

Fiction Contest Deadline Just 2 Weeks Away

The Carolina Quarterly's Fifth Annual Fiction contest has only two weeks left to run, according to Quarterly Editor James Dunn.

All manuscripts must be submitted by or postmarked no later than midnight of April 1.

563 Coed Trials Fall Semester

The House Councils of the women's dormitories and sorority houses tried a total of 563 violations of the social rules during last semester, according to a report made yesterday by Miss Nancy Whisnant, chairman of the Women's Honor Council.

Dormitory women committed 343 of the violations, nurses a total of 159 and sorority women a total of 92, said the report.

Alderman had the largest number of violators as its house council tried 105 cases, according to Miss Whisnant's report. Carr's house council tried 80 cases, Spencer 56, McIver 38 and Smith 33.

Delta Delta Delta was reported as having the most offenses of the sororities, with a total of 24. Chi Omega ranked second with 23 violations. Pi Phi tried 21 cases, ADPi 11, Alpha Gam 7 and KD 6.

Majority of all the cases, according to Miss Whisnant's report, were violations of coed closing hours. In most of these cases, the girls were reported to be from one to 10 minutes late.

The report said the second largest number of violations concerned infractions of minor house rules. These cases came to a total of 63.

Failure to sign in on return to the dormitories ranked third with 53 cases, according to the report. Remainder of the cases, 26, was caused by neglect to pay house fines on time, said the report.

Miss Whisnant reported that out of the total of 563 cases tried during the first semester 69 were excused.

Student Tickets Offered For Gieseking Concert

UNC students may now obtain tickets for the Walter Gieseking concert for the reduced price of $2.50, according to Jim Wallace, secretary of the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

The concert is being sponsored by the Chapel Hill Concert Series and will be presented in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. on March 31.

Tickets for Gieseking's performance may be purchased at the information desk at Graham Memorial.

Live With God, Says Author Mrs. Marshall

"Life with God is a daring adventure in faith—try it—and you'll get the greatest thrill of your life."

This was the advice Mrs. Peter Marshall, author of the best-selling A Man Called Peter, biography of her late husband who was chaplain of the Senate, gave to an audience of students and townspeople in Hill Hall last night.

Mrs. Marshall arrived in Chapel Hill yesterday morning for a visit on the campus sponsored by the Young Women's Christian Association, which is observing the world celebration of the YWCA's 100th anniversary.

The celebrated speaker, introduced by Mrs. William Friday, chairman of the YWCA and YMCA Advisory Board, spoke on "Nothing Can Defeat You." A reception in her honor was held in Graham Memorial following the address. A dinner in her honor was given by the YWCA prior to the program.

"Twenty years ago any talk directed to college or university students usually took the line about

(See MARSHALL, page 4)

Herbert Fred To Conduct Band In Tuesday Series Next Week

The UNC Concert Band, under the direction of Assistant Conductor Herbert W. Fred, will present a concert in Hill Hall next Tuesday at 8 p.m., as a program in the regular Tuesday Evening Musical Series.

Included on the program will be a selection written by Conductor Fred, as well as his arrangement of another work.

Prof. Earl Slocum, UNC band and orchestra director has arranged Frescobaldi's "Toccata," which the band will play. Fred is the composer of "Sea Shanty" and has arranged an excerpt from "Hary Janos Suite," by Kodaly.

Other selections on the program include "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite," by K. L. King; "Mannin Veen," by Haydn Wood and "Psalm for Band," by Persichetti, all written for concert band; and band arrangements of the following:

"Pictures at an Exhibition," Moussorgsky; "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Strauss; "Italian Polka," Rachmaninoff; Intermezzo from "The Jewels of the Madonna," Wolf-Ferrari, and Anderson's "The Typewriter."

Fred is a graduate student in musicology who came to the University from Ball State Teachers College in Muncie, Ind., where he was director of bands and teacher of theory. He has also taught at Evanston, Ill., and was visiting professor of music at the University of Missouri for two summers.

His band compositions and arrangements have been published by several Chicago and New York musical publishing houses.

Fred has been guest conductor at the National Music Camp, Interlochen, Mich.; Mid-West Band Clinic, and University of Missouri Clinic.

PROCEEDS TO WORLD UNIVERSITY SERVICE:

Campus Chest Drive Starts Today

Once again the Campus Chest Drive is about to get under way, but this year it has a new twist.

In the past, the money donated by students has been distributed among many charitable organizations. This year, the bulk of the proceeds will go specifically to a student welfare organization, the World University Service.

From Campus Chest To Indonesia

Djakarta students attend a lecture at the University of Indonesia. Expansion of the University in postwar period has resulted in severely crowded classrooms and a shortage of study materials. World University Service donations will go partly to alleviate conditions there, UNC students will give to WUS through Campus Chest today.

The WUS, according to Graham Rights, who is chairman of the drive, is an agency for intercollegiate aid throughout the world. Students and faculty from all over contribute to the fund and then draw from it according to need.

Last year, the WUS spent nearly half a million dollars to help displaced students, to buy foods and books for students in poverty-ridden areas, for emergency relief in disaster areas like Korea and other reasons.

Seventy percent of the proceeds of this year's Campus Chest will go to this agency.

20 percent of the money will stay right here on campus to help the exchange program with Goettingen University get under way. This part of the fund will benefit this campus directly.

The remaining 10 percent will be given to the Chapel Hill Community Chest for disbursement at their discretion.

The drive will last from March 14 through March 21. Door to door solicitations will begin on Tuesday, March 15.

Competition will be carried on among men's dormitories, women's dormitories, fraternities, and sororities to see which member of each obtains the highest percentage of students donating to the drive. Solicitors have been appointed in all dormitories, fraternities and sororities. These solicitors will meet at 5:00 today in Gerrard Hall to make final plans for the drive.

Committee Chairmen for the drive are Bobbie Walker, in charge of Solicitation, and Joan Leonard, in charge of Education and Publicity.

Real Gone Graduates

The University's sworn mission of taking North Carolina's sons and turning them back to the state as educated citizens has been running into choppy water of late.

Latest statistics show that 22 per cent of Carolina's native sons tip their caps to Chapel Hill after graduation and go off to New York or Philadelphia to be citizens; and a whomping 91 per cent of out-of-staters go back where they came from after their four years are up.

A letter to The State from Fred Springer-Miller (who married Daily Tar Heel editor and native Tar Heel Glenn Harden and who lives in Norwich, Vermont) outlines the problem:

> Unlike the traditional carpet-bagger, I feel embarrassed about this shameless pillage of the Old North State. Like many out-of-staters who have enjoyed an education at Chapel Hill, and like many native North Carolinians who have left the state, I have a genuine feeling of gratitude . . .
>
> The young people in whom the state has invested most heavily and upon whom it will lean most heavily for leadership in years to come—these young people are gone. Why?
>
> Is it that North Carolina cannot provide opportunity for wealth and fame, or at least the security and good living that these young people aspire to? Does North Carolina business make no attempt to recruit its potentially most valuable personnel?

Springer-Miller doesn't know the answer to his questions and we don't either. But, as he says, this University, one of the best, is a losing proposition to the state that maintains it; and the answers, wherever they lie, need to be dug up and acted upon.

Chartres On A Shoestring

A stack of travel folders has accumulated on our desk to remind us to remind you: it's coming on touring time.

Travel, said Bacon or somebody, is a part of education: it couldn't be truer today. In June, thousands of college students will be heading for Punaluu, Salonika and Xochimilco, for the education of it and for the hell of it.

And unfurrow that brow: say not that it's too expensive. If you're willing to work, you can actually come back to school in September with more money than you started with. There are scholarships, loans, jobs and savory opportunities for college students coming from hundreds of schools, foundations and non-profit organizations.

The valve to this New Horizons outpouring was opened for us yesterday by an American Youth Hostels pamphlet. For $100, including food, lodging, insurance and all transportation, you can spend a month with AYH bicycling around New England.

For $225 you can see Mexico by train and bicycle.

For $650—the price of ship fare alone by orthodox standards—you can get to Europe and back with two and one-half months of England, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland and France thrown in.

If you're the scholarly type, there's a table in the South Building hall groaning with European summer school opportunities.

If you're the adventurous type, you can see the world with not much more than a freighter ticket, extra undershirt and toothbrush.

Jet speed and bellicose national attitudes need not be barriers. Lucerne—or even Lake Louise—beats Laurinburg in July, we understand. The line for passport photos forms at the right.

Nothing?

A late, unverified report as we went to press had it that candidates for spring elections were liberally sprinkled through the audience last night to hear Catherine Marshall speak on "Nothing Can Defeat You."

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

'Hey, Mouza, Where's My Sandwich?

Louis Kraar

"HEY, MOUZA, where's that cheeseburger you were gonna make for me," the student asked, his head bobbing back and forth in front of the long counter as the late show crowd shoved their way through.

"Okay. It's in my pocket. Where do you thing it is?" kidded the big, bald Russian who runs the place. "I'll get it in just a minute," he added.

The Saturday midnight show had just belched out about a half hundred hungry students, and most of them crowded into Mouza's place for coffee and sandwiches. Nick, the thin fellow who works behind the counter with Mouza, took upon himself the almost impossible task of taking three orders at a time and keeping them straight.

By 1:30 a.m. students in T-shirts, students in tuxedos, and students in Bermuda shorts filled every booth in the only restaurant open at that hour. An occasional girl drifted in with a date to gaze enchantedly at the spectacle of males talking and eating.

I found a place at the counter just about the time Frank Warren showed up with a banjo. Bill Mudd, equipped with a guitar, decided that a duet would be in order, so he and Frank ran off in a corner to tune up.

Soon the mountain strains of "John Henry" mixed with the sounds of clattering dishes and student voices. Mudd and Warren strummed the folk ballad, and students standing around joined in.

Nick left his post behind the counter to lock the doors at 2 a.m., and I turned to leave.

"Be glad when they all clear out," Nick said to me at the door. "It'll take us till 5 to clean up here. It's this way every Saturday."

I turned up Franklin Street, still hearing the dishes and conversation from the Mouza and feeling a little sorry for Nick.

★

SUNDAY AS I sat out on the wide terrace of the State College student union—a new and modern building — I remembered Gordon Forester's pleas before the Legislature's Complaints Board.

And after a look around the State union, it's obvious that Graham Memorial seems a slum in comparison. When you enter the plush Raleigh building, it gives you the impression of a better hotel.

Upstairs in the building you find a "Quiet Room," a room for students to catch naps in, student government offices, an auditorium, a hobby shop, a photo lab, hotel-like rooms for visitors, and practically everything else a campus could desire.

Downstairs in the basement, a spacious snack bar features — along with good food — an abstract mural that held my attention for some time. You can take your food and sit on the terrace to eat.

All this elaborate description just goes to prove — as Forester so accurately pointed out — that a student union building to serve 2,000 and run of a midget budget is sorry stuff for a growing campus of 6,000 in a day when State and WC sport new student unions.

★

TONIGHT THE University Party will nominate a vice-presidential candidate — probably Jack Stevens.

However, word has gotten around that Stevens won't have the easy time Ed McCurry did in getting his nomination.

★

IN A spring with so many conflicting causes (the political campaigns), it's heartening to mention a common cause.

This week the Campus Chest drive will be held here. About 70 per cent of the funds will go to the World University Service program, 20 per cent to the exchange program being set up here to send students to Germany and 10 per cent to the local Community Chest.

Sovereign People Are The Villains

The Erosion Of Democracy

Ed Yoder

We like to think, in our Western democratic society, that we have government "not of men, but laws."

Walter Lippmann, student and critic of the philosophical undercurrents at work in the Western democracies, challenges that idea in his new book, The Public Philosophy.

Mr. Lippmann's investigation and its findings are not altogether pleasant for the democracies; and he believes, in fact, that the traditional cornerblocks of our society have shifted dangerously close to government by popular opinion—not, as it should be, by popular will and constitutional order.

Mr. Lippmann began to write The Public Philosophy in 1938, a time of crisis in Western society, in an attempt as he says to come to personal terms with the problems confronting liberal democratic government.

HISTORIC CATASTROPHE

Now, "the more I have brooded upon the events which I have lived through myself, the more astounding and significant does it seem that the decline of the power and influence and self-confidence of the Western democracies has been so steep and so sudden. We have fallen far in a short span of time. However long the underlying erosion had been going on, we were still a great and powerful and flourishing community when the First World War began. What we have seen is not only decay—but something which can be called an historic catastrophe."

Hearing our situation and the events of the past few years so sadly pictured, we became anxious for Mr. Lippmann to state his case. What catastrophe? What erosion does he now find in the Western democracies?

The sovereign people of the democracies become the villains of Mr. Lippmann's pice. The nature of the "historic catastrophe" and the "erosion" is what he calls "a functional derangement of the relationship between the masses of people and the government."

THEY ONLY CHOOSE

"The people," he writes, "have acquired power which they are incapable of exercising, and the governments they elect have lost powers which they must recover if they are to govern . . . For a rough beginning let us say that the people are able to give and withhold their consent to being governed—their consent to what the government asks of them, proposes to them, and has done in the conduct of their affairs. They can elect the government. They can remove it. They can approve or disapprove its performance. But they cannot administer the government. They cannot themselves perform. They cannot normally initiate and propose necessary legislation. A mass cannot govern. The people as Jefferson said, are not 'qualified to exercise themselves the Executive Department; but they are qualified to name the person who shall exercise it . . . They are not qualified to legislate; with us therefore they only choose the legislators.'"

The foregoing passage shapes a key, a most important one, to the Lippmann thesis. It should be clearly seen, though it has not been, that Mr. Lippmann himself does not wish harm or injury to the Western democracies; he does not invite the philosophers to throw the gates open to totalitarian or authoritarian revolution; he does not wish, above all, to disenfranchise the sovereign people from whom all the ultimate power in a democracy arises.

WALTER LIPPMANN
'. . . not only decay, but an historic catastrophe'

THE DAMOCLES SWORD

His sentiments run the other way. In political commitment he is a liberal democrat and doesn't wish, he says, "to disenfranchise my fellow citizens. My hope is that both liberty and democracy can be reserved before the one destroys the other . . . If it (the preservation of liberal democracy) is to be done at all, we must be uninhibited in our examination of our condition . . . We must adopt the habit of thinking as plainly about the sovereign people as we do about the politicians they elect. No more than the kings before them should the people be hedged with divinity."

The people, says Mr. Lippmann, have hung the Damocles Sword of their own opinion above the heads of their leaders. This has caused the elected leaders in many cases to be guided, not by the seasoned judgment of their own special training and talent, but by what that sometimes-mistaken opinion desired.

Mr. Lippmann proposes, as the alternative to counterrevolution within the democracies, a return to what he calls the "public philosophy"—the natural law, the contract between governed and governing power, the "spirit of humane interpretation," the traditions of civility—which would set the acting, creating executive power apart from popular opinion.

NEW RADICAL

Thus the people, in being governed, will understand that by their remission of certain rights by consent into the hands of the executive power, their own sovereign title to the final say-so has been strengthened, not weakened.

When they feel their judgment right the duly-elected officials of the democracies may thus ignore the momentary proddings of popular opinion and do what they feel to be right and wise by the standards of law and constitutional order.

However right or wrong the "new conservative" interpretation of American and democratic politics may prove to be, it coincides well with Mr. Lippmann's thesis. In a Reporter article of some weeks ago, "The New American Radical," Peter Viereck traces the spread of McCarthyist blight to swells of mass Jacobin opinion. While we must add that McCarthy's support came from a cross-cut of the American character—from military men whose views on civil government aren't particularly civil, from the gold coffers of upper chambers in the capitalistic economy—as well as from the masses, a glance at the background of most of the "Ten Million Americans Mobilizing For Justice" in the McCarthy Censure period tends to bear out Viereck's—and, in principle—Mr. Lippmann's diagnosis.

If it can be granted that Mr. Lippmann has flicked a light into the darkest depths of the democratic soul and has shown the need for a revision of attitude, questions as to that end will come up. Will the book be read and understood enough to have a creditable effect? Do ideas alone have the punch to restore the proper balance between people and government, the tradition of civility, which Mr. Lippmann finds wanting? Will Mr. Lippman's somewhat ponderous style block the effectiveness of his thoughts?

IDEAS HAVE CANSEQUENCES

At any rate, Mr. Lippmann himself believes ideas—which some would call "airy nothings without mass or energy, the mere shadows of the existential world of substance and force, of habits and desires, of machines and armies" can't be sold short. The illusion that ideas work, Mr. Lippmann says, "if it were one, is ordinately tenacious . . . In the familiar daylight world we cannot act as if ideas had no consequences."

"I do not know the method of drawing up an indictment against a whole people," admitted Edmund Burke, once, in a moment of candidness. Perhaps, at issue with what Mr. Lippmann has done, we must continue ignorant of that method. Perhaps, for all the cogent case he makes, we must go on believing that the peoples of the Western democracies cannot be made the single or even the most absorbant sin-remover. Certainly, we must take issue with Mr. Lippmann when pictures modern men as so perversive that "the harder they try to make earth into heaven, the more they make it a hell."

But it is no less courageous for Mr. Lippmann to challenge the rightness of the sovereignty when it resides in the people than for Jefferson to have attacked when it resided in the King of England. And we should recognize that The Public Philosophy has given us an analysis of the structure and grave problems of Western democratic society perhaps unmatched in our time. By all standards, Mr. Lippmann's book is a great document of political philosophy. He is a prophet who cannot be refused honor in his own country.

'I Had No Idea Elephants Were So Sensitive'

Pianist Fambrough, Wind Quintet Give 'Satisfying' Musicale

Carol Sites

Playing to a capacity audience Sunday night in Graham Memorial, pianist Douglas Fambrough Jr., and the University Wind Quintet gave highly satisfying performances of piano and chamber works.

The young pianist revealed a sensitive regard for tonal contrasts, especially in the second movement of Beethoven's op. 49, no. 2, and Chopin's Prelude in C sharp minor. His concept of classical style was apparent in both Mozart works—Fantasia in D minor and Rondo in D Major, if occasionally at the expense of clarity and precision.

His fine feeling for phrasing and attention to gradations of tone also indicated the responsive action of the beautiful new Steinway piano. The Mozart Fantasia which opened the piano program and the Chopin Pelude in B Flat at the end of the last group, required more authority and technical grasp than the gifted youngster had at his command.

WITH EASE AND DEXTERITY

The second half of the Petite Musicale was devoted to two quintets by Beethoven and Hindemith. Earl Slocum, flute; Thomas Wheeler, oboe; Herbert Fred, clarinet; John Renner, bassoon and Guyte Cotton, french horn gave a competent reading of Beethoven's Quintet for winds, op. 71. This work, originally scored for sextet, was handled with restraint and meticulous attention to phrasing; the imitative passages in the third movement minuet pointed up the composer's early lucidity of style.

Mr. Cotton's control of his instrument in the second movement resulted in some fine duet passages with the woodwinds, notable for fluency and cantabile playing. Except for the occasional discrepancy of attacks in the first movement and the lack of rapport in the first part of the last movement, this Beethoven score was handled with ease and dexterity.

FINE ENSEMBLE PLAYING

Perhaps the five-movement Quintet op. 24, no. 2 by Hindemith was the best performance of the evening. From the monothematic first movement to the exacting technical demands of the final, the instrumentsalists gave an absorbing and often exciting reading of the scintillating score. Especially beautiful was the tonal and dynamic contrast achieved in the third movement. The transparent scoring of the first three movements, particularly the fugual exposition of the first, exhibited to advantage the individual skills of the upper woodwinds.

But special mention should be made of the consistently top-notch performances of Messers Slocum and Wheeler. Although the rhythmic complexities of the last movement presented a challenge to individual performers, fine ensemble playing prevailed throughout the work.

For an encore, the Quintet played "March" by Hartley. Mr. Fambrough's encore was K.P.E. Bach's "Solfegietto."

YOU Said It: A Lot Of Questions About Education & Business

Editor:

It seems to me the editorship of the Daily Tar Heel has been rather short-sighted in its treatment of the subject of liberal arts courses for BA majors. In coming out strongly for more liberal arts requirements, it has not only displayed its own ignorance of existing program requirements and created antagonism, but it has merely scratched the surface of what is growing to be one of the major fields of contention in our times: education for what?

Is our education for our benefit as individuals, or is it for the benefit of society? Is it to fit us into a particular position in society, to perform a given job, to enjoy life, to understand ourselves? Are we to merge acquiescently with the present, or are we to grow with a consciousness of the past and future? Are we to determine our own direction, or let it be determined for us?

The BA issue is not just a symptom of student dissatisfaction. It dovetails into issues which are focal points in the administration and faculty of nearly every educational institution, higher and lower; into the arguments on progressive versus classical methods; on the acquisition of values, perspective, or skills; on public versus private education; on local, state, or federal support for education. And beyond the field of education into broad and conflicting philosophies of human purposes, evolution, and social organization.

Does greater specializatiin in our society preclude a broad framework for the individual, or make it more imperative? Can we fully understand ourselves without a knowledge of the past—its aspirations, its delights, its foibles?

Why are small liberal arts colleges receiving increasing support from industrial and business sources? Why is Bell Telephone sending executive personnel to the University of Pennsylvania for liberal arts courses? Why are adult education courses in liberal arts springing up throughout the country?

It is a sad reflection on the administration of a University if it cannot make it apparent to students why liberal arts courses are required in the curriculum. And it is an even sadder reflection on the liberal arts faculty if they cannot relate the content of their courses to the broad continum of life, time, and events. And our education majors? Why do they remain silent? Are they unconcerned, inarticulate, or just ignorant of the issues themselves?

Dave McCallum

Quote, Unquote

Any well-established village in New England or the northern Middle West could afford a town drunkard, a town atheist, and a few democrats.

—D. W. Brogan

Netters Open Drills For Toughest Slate In Team's History

Carolina Swimmers Set Three Of Six Marks In ACC Tank Tourney

By BOB COLBERT

Six more ACC records were broken Saturday as the ACC Swimming Championships wound up their final day.

Three of the six were by Carolina swimmers, while the remainder were by N. C. State's tankmen. The records started to fall in the first event of the afternoon trials as Charlie Krepp, sophomore from Baltimore, Md., set a mark in the 100 backstroke with a time of 58.4 seconds. In the finals, he beutered this record, going the distance in 57.5 seconds. Krepp had already set a new standard in the 200 backstroke the day before, going 2:08.7.

Phil Drake, sophomore from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in his attempt to set a new world record in the 200-yard butterfly breaststroke, missed the mark of 2:12.9 by only three-tenths of a second, going the distance in the trials in 2:13.2 to set a new ACC record. He did 2:14 in the finals.

N. C. State's Bob Mattson, swimming in the first heat of the 200 butterfly breaststroke, went the distance in 2:23.4 to break the record of 2:29.5 set by teammate Paul Arata last year. He held the record for only five minutes, as Drake lowered it in the second heat of the trial. The other two records were set by sophomore Dave McIntyre. He broke his own record in the 100-yard freestyle by five-tenths of a second, swimming the course in 51.3 in the finals. He had previously held the record of 52.1 until the second heat of the trials Saturday afternoon when he went 51.8.

Of the seven events held Saturday, UNC took four firsts and State the other three, bringing the total to eight for State and six for UNC.

Tom Parker took the high-board diving, beating John Hussey by 40 points. The inter-collegiate record-holding 300-yard medley team went the distance in 2:50 to take that event.

State had the only three-event individual winner in Fred Ruppenthal. Ruppenthal took the 1,000 meters Thursday night, the 220 freestyle Friday night, and the 440 freestyle Saturday night to sweep the distance events.

Krepp was the big man for UNC, taking firsts in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke and was a member of the first place medley relay team.

The team began work yesterday for the National AAU meet to be held April 1-3 in New Haven, Conn., and the national intercollegiate championships to be held later in April at Miami, Ohio.

The summary:

100-yard backstroke: Krepp (UNC), Sonner (NCS), Dunlap NCS), Merchel (NCS), Jewell (UNC), Linker (UNC). 57.5. New ACC record).

200-yard butterfly breaststroke: Drake (UNC), Mattson (NCS), Lynes (NCS), Tice (UNC), Perry (UNC), Etheridge (S. Car.). 2:-14.0. (Drake set ACC record of 2:13.2 in trials).

100-yard freestyle: McIntyre (NCS), Baker (UNC), McMillan (Duke), Foulk (Va.), DeWitt (Duke), Hawes (Duke). 51.3. (New ACC record).

440-yard freestyle: Ruppenthal (NCS), Shannon (UNC), Higgins (UNC), Holmes (UNC), Holmgren (Va.), Prodo (NCS). 4:56.9.

150-yard individual medley: McIntyre (NCS), Heeman (UNC), Merchel (NCS), Gill (UNC), Fuller (Duke), Tice (UNC). 1:32.2.

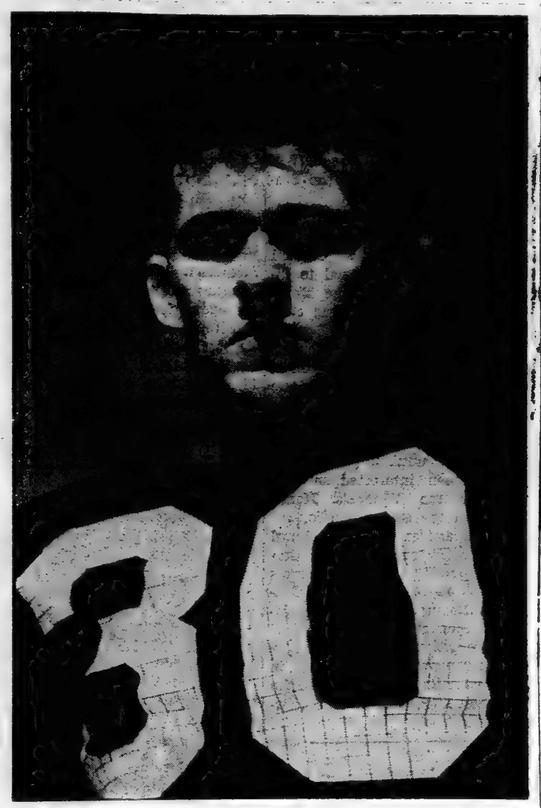
3-meter diving: Parker (UNC), Hussey (UNC), Ricker (Va.), Reams (Va.). 312.5 points.

300-yard medley relay: UNC (Krepp, Drake, Baker), N. C. State, Duke, Virginia, South Carolina.

Browne, Payne And Bradford Scrap For No. 1

Netmen Will Tackle Ivy League Toughies

By CHARLIE BLANKSTEIN



The varsity tennis team began its first full week of practice yesterday afternoon, and for the next few days the men will be practicing out winter kinks as they start to round into shape for one of the toughest tennis slates in the history of the school.

Carolina will face a schedule roughly equal to next year's football card. In addition to the best the south has to offer, including the perenially great Miami (Florida) squad, Duke, and several other vastly improved teams in the conference, UNC will also tackle the best in the East—Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Wesleyan—and to round out a grueling schedule, matches with several of the better midwestern schools, including State.

COACH JOHN Kenfield, although by no means overconfident, is spending more of his time pondering other problems, admittedly far more pleasant than schedule headaches. The mentor is currently perplexed by the question of who is to start for the Tar Heel netters when they first take to the courts a few weeks from now.

One of the greatest teams in recent Carolina tennis history returns intact, which ordinarily would solve any problems of the sort immediately. Herb Browne, Tommy Bradford, Bobby Payne, Don Thompson, Pete Greene and Ronnie Kerdasha all seem to have profited from an additional summer's play and are playing well considering the short time they have been practicing. But the two aces of the last year's crack frosh squad are bidding for starting positions.

Candidates for the teams may report to the courts at 2 o'clock today. All varsity candidates should report Wednesday to room 304 Woollen Gym at 2:30 to fill out eligibility slips.

ED SUTTON
. . . converted halfback will start as pilot Saturday

Hand-picked Field No Better Than Four NCAA Finalists

KANSAS CITY, March 14—(AP)—If you hand-picked the field for the NCAA basketball championships, you couldn't do much better than the foursome which battles it out for the national crown Friday and Saturday nights.

Three contenders, San Francisco, defending champion LaSalle and Iowa, finished among the first five in the regular season Associated Press poll.

Colorado, which meets the No. 1 ranked San Francisco Dons in the Western semifinal Friday night, is the lone contender of dubious distinction, although the 15th-placed Golden Buffaloes are the proud champions of the Big Seven.

Kentucky, rated No. 2 in the AP poll, was bounced out of the Evanston, Ill., regional won by fifth-ranked Iowa which takes on No. 3-rated LaSalle in Friday night's Eastern semifinal.

That accounts for all the the "big five" in the AP poll except for No. 4 North Carolina State which this year was ineligible for NCAA play because of a one-year suspension for holding tryouts.

All signs point toward a dramatic championship scrap Saturday night between San Francisco and LaSalle with the Explorers from Philadelphia trying to become the third team in the meet's history to win two successive titles. Oklahoma A&M won in 1945 and 1946. Kentucky took the 1948 and 1949 crowns.

Besides a sizzling team scrap, a San Francisco-LaSalle showdown would pit the nation's two greatest collegiate performers — 6-10 Bill Russell of the Dons and LaSalle's Tom Gola, both All-America stars this season.

However, an upset of LaSalle or San Francisco, or even both, Friday night is not an impossibility.

UNC Gymnasts Capture Second In Tournament; FSU Triumphs

By CHUCK STRONG

Even without their star Don Holder, who was competing in the Pan-American games, Florida State managed to dominate the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastic Tournament held at Georgia Tech Saturday. State was first with 109 points, UNC took second place with 55 points, Duke collected 18 points for third place and Georgia Tech came in fourth with 16 points.

The officiating at the meet was not all that could be desired and many of the persons present felt that the judges were too impressed with the advance notices of Florida State.

The star of the tourney was State's Jim Tanaka who collected 33 points and who took first place in three events.

Gordon Hudson was the outstanding performer for UNC, taking first place on the side horse, second place on the flying rings, third in the all around, fourth on the parallel bars and fifth in the free exercise for a total of 21 points.

With this performance Hudson brought his yearly total to 108 points, breaking his own record of 106 points which was the all-time high for a Carolina gymnast.

Bill Rivera climbed the rope in 4.4 seconds to tie for first place. BIFF HOWARD and Bill Wilson tied each other for third place on the high bar.

Tumbling was UNC's forte; Pete Brumley took second place and Frank Williams came in third.

There is no doubt that Florida State was the best team in the tournament yet the difference in UNC and Florida State is not as great as indicated by the score State won first, second and third on the trampolin for 16 points. UN C did not compete in that event.

Former UNC Pitcher Wins Pan-Am Game

A former North Carolina pitcher, Bill Lore, was credited with leading the Americans to victory over Mexico in the opening game of the Pan-American Games in Mexico City Sunday.

Lore was the last of three U. S. pitchers who held Mexico to six well-scattered hits and was credited with the 5-1 victory. He worked the last three innings, allowing one hit as he pitched to nine batters. The one-time Tar Heel ace also opened the ninth with a triple and a double by Kenney DeCarlo brought him home.

Where Winter Never Comes

By Marston Bates

If you dream of a winter in the tropics, here's the book for you Does for the natural history of the equatorial belt what "Gods Graves and Scholars" does for archaeology, and a mighty elegant job it is! Published at 3.50.

Our Special

$1.49

There's a bargain just for you at

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

It's gr EAT to EAT
m EAT
and tr EAT at HARRY'S
we sell all premium brand beer

Condition Of 'Hertford Bull' Uncertain As Game Approaches

By JACK MURPHY

The nucleus of Carolina's edition of the 1955 football team romped through their last "blue Monday" practice yesterday, beginning the final week of spring drills which will be climaxed Saturday with the annual Blue-White intra-squad game at Kenan Stadium.

The freshmen of Coach Ralph Floyd are quite concerned over the condition of fullback Howard Williams. The "Hertford Bull" missed last week's scrimmage due to an elbow injury but expects to be ready when his team meets the varsity gridders of Bill Edwards on Saturday.

Other doubtful starters are Paul Pulley of the freshman team and Will Frye of the varsity. Both ends have leg injuries but may see some action this weekend. Frosh Leo Russavage, a tackle, and Steve Kupchick, a halfback, will definitely be out of the contest due to leg injuries. Varsity back Doug Malone, an end last fall, will also miss the game due to an old elbow mishap.

MUCH EMPHASIS has been placed on the option play from the quarterback spot in recent scrimmages. Letterman end Norman Lane continually wrecked the play in the scrimmage session last Friday. Quarterbacks Ed Sutton, Len Bullock, Buddy Sasser, David Reed and Ron Marquette all had considerable trouble getting away from the defensive ends.

Norman Lane's fast charges didn't allow time for the pitchout to the halfback and the play was stopped behind the line of scrimmage time and time again. It was veteran Bullock who finally broke away on the option play and then even he lost his footing after breaking into the clear.

Halfback Ken Keller again had the coaches and several observers on Navy Field gaping with wide eyed disbelief as he scampered through the network of would-be tacklers, neatly dancing and vanishing until suddenly he would be sighted crossing the goal line at the other end of the field.

THE SQUAD worked out in light equipment yesterday and the emphasis was placed on running, running, and more running. The teams should be divided up shortly in preparation for Saturday's clash. As a whole the team is in good condition and Saturday should prove much as to what to expect from the Tar Heels next season when they tackle a suicide schedule of nationally-ranked aggregations.

Giardello Being Tried For Riot And Assault

PHILADELPHIA, March 14 — (AP)—Joey Giardello, number one ranking middleweight challenger, today pleaded innocent to four charges of riot and assault at the start of his trial allegedly beating up a south Philadelphia gasoline attendant last Oct. 29.

Giardello's three co-defendants pleaded guilty to two counts of rioting. Two of them also pleaded guilty to assault and battery charges while the third denied this charge.

Over the objection of Giardello's counsel, Michael von Moschzisker, the district attorney's office decided not to try Giardello on two other counts at this time. He can be tried on them later.

Thinclads Busily Preparing For Florida Relays March 26

By RAY LINKER

North Carolina's conference indoor championship trackmen have shifted to the outdoor oval and are busily preparing for their opening meet—the Florida Relays—to be held in Gainesville, Fla., March 26.

A group of nine thinclads took third place for Carolina last year behind the Florida and Auburn teams.

The Tar Heels are tentatively planning to enter 15 men in the big meet, which will feature 20 college teams, and 45 or more high school squads, as well as a freshman division. A field of just under 700 athletes are expected to show for the meet.

Who will make the trip for the Tar Heels depends a lot on the progress and results in time trials and workouts during the next week, especially in the relay events.

Carolina will enter 13 of 15 events—three of five relays, all six field events, and the three open events. They will be out to repeat their first place of last year in the distance medley relay, and Don Wright (running the 440-yard leg of the race), Boyd Newman (880), Bobby Barden (¾-mile), and Jimmy Beatty (mile), will probably get the nod to tackle the job.

In the sprint medley there will likely be Wright (440) and Newnam (880) again, plus Charlie Scott (220) and Claude Rhule (220). Carolina took a third in this event last year.

THE TWO-MILE relay will probably find Newnam, Bill Booth, Barden, and Beatty running a half-mile each.

Charlie Yarborough will try to better his second place of last year in the broad jump as well as performing in the pole vault, which will find UNC's Richard Waters in top contention also. Steve Marcinko will give the Tar Heels strength in the javelin, while Roger Morris will be the standout in both the shot and discus. Ken Bryant will be top man in the high jump for Carolina. Bob Wilson will perform in the high jump also, as well as in the broad jump and Larry Maslow will follow Morris in the shot.

In the open events, UNC will have Don Mitchell in the 100-yard dash, Glenn Nanney in the two-mile and Rhule and Scott in the 220-yard high hurdles.

Chicago College of
OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

chemical reaction
Exclusive "stain-shy" finish on AFTER SIX formal jackets spurns most stains—even lipstick! Suave styling, easy, "natural" fit, budget prices. Have more fun—go

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's

Susan is making great strides in learning to walk, and with constant training and determination will some day run and play like other children. Play a part in the future of crippled children and support the Easter Seal appeal.

IN PERSON! GENE AUTRY - CHAMPION and Little Champ
HIT SHOW OF 1955 BIG 2 HOUR STAGE SHOW!
WILLIAM NEAL REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. State College — P. O. Box 5905
RALEIGH, N. C.
Two Performances Children's Price
Enclosed is $ ..... for Reserved Seat Tickets as follows:
ADULT Tickets @ $2.00 ..... $1.50 ..... $1.00 ..... MAT. 2:30 ☐ NITE 8:00 ☐
CHILDREN'S Tickets @ $1.00 ..... $ .75 ..... $ .50
Name ..... Address .....
City ..... State ..... Phone .....
For the Safe Return of Your Tickets Please Include 25c for Postage and Handling
COLISEUM SATURDAY MAR. 19

For comfort-PLUS take an Airide Bus!

GO TRAILWAYS

From Chapel Hill to:	1-way	From Chapel Hill to:	1-way
Charlotte	3.60	Dallas, Tex.	24.40
12 departures daily		8 trips, only 1 change
Atlanta, Ga.	8.20	New York	10.50
5 trips		8 trips, fast express from Greensboro or Raleigh
Wilmington, N. C.	3.60	Lynchburg	3.35
2 trips, 1 without change		6 trips daily
plus tax		plus tax

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 W. Franklin Phone 4281
Or contact your nearest Trailways Agency

TRAILWAYS
THE ROUTE OF THE THRU-LINERS

Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra Plays Free Tonight

Director Johnson Is UNC Music Graduate

Thor Johnson, director of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra playing here tonight, is a graduate of UNC.

Johnson received his B.A. degree in music here in 1934.

The orchestra will be presented by the Student Entertainment Committee tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. The performance will be free to students. Townspeople will be admitted at a cost of $1 per person to all seats available after 7:40.

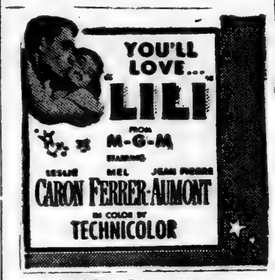
THOR JOHNSON
. . . UNC grad

Johnson, who was appointed the permanent music director if the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in the 1947-48 season, was born in Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin, in 1913. His father, whose forebears were Norwegian seamen, was a minister of the Moravian Church. His mother was a pianist and teacher of music.

While Johnson was still young, his family moved to Winston-Salem, where he attended school.

After having graduated from secondary school in 1930, Johnson enrolled here as a music major. Music also claimed his extra-curricular time, serving as assistant conductor of the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra and the Carolina Ensamble, a student orchestra. In 1934, Johnson left the University of North Carolina with a Phi Beta Kappa key in addition to his Bachelor of Arts degree in Music.

MICHIGAN



The following year he matriculated for his Master's degree at the University. He also was granted the Frank Huntington Beebe scholarship which entitled him to two years of music study abroad, coaching with such eminent conductors as Hans Abendroth, Bruno Walter, Felix Waingartner, Nikolai Malko and Serge Koussevitsky.

Returning to the United States, Johnson was appointed an assistant professor at the School of Music of the University of Michigan, and conducted the University of Michigan Little Symphony. Two years later, he also took over the direction of the University of Michigan Musical Society's Choral Union and May Festival, and of the Grand Rapids Symphony Orchestra.

Lady Milton Shop

Spring has really blossomed out with our full stock of bermuda shorts, short sleeve blouses and cotton cord shirts, all at very low and modest prices.

Milton's

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

FLY PIEDMONT

Route of the Pacemakers

CONVENIENT DAILY SERVICE TO

BRISTOL (Tri-Cities)
LOUISVILLE
CINCINNATI

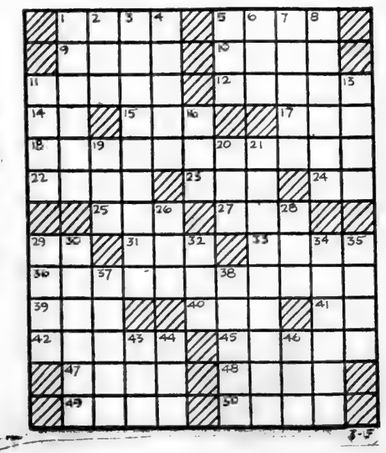
And Many Other Points

Call 5160 (Raleigh) or Your Travel Agent for Reservations, Information.

Timed by Hamilton

PIEDMONT Airlines

55-2A U of NC



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Couch
5. Watercraft used in "Kon-tiki"
9. City (Okla.)
10. Bulging jar
11. Entice
12. Cessation of life
14. Sloth
15. Bind
17. Another name for "Ios"
18. Chief city of the Saar Basin (Ger.)
22. Forearm bone
23. Greek letter
24. Southeast (abbr.)
25. Devoured
27. Bitter vetch
29. Guido's lowest note
31. City (Ger.)
33. Any twining stem
36. Assumed beforehand
39. Assist
40. Longing
41. Plural pronoun
42. Slop
45. Rabbit fur
47. Medley
48. Goddess of discord (Gr.)
49. Feat
50. A preposition

DOWN

1. A continued story
2. Biblical name
3. Filters
4. Insert lines not in the script (slang)
5. Pole
6. Malt beverage
7. Side of an animal
8. Potatoes (dial.)
11. Varying subdivision of the "guz" (India)
13. Sharpen a razor
15. Before
19. Miscellany
20. Shoshonean Indian
21. Secret political society (It.)
26. Ostrich-like bird
28. Little girl
29. Java tree
30. Three-legged stand
32. Enemy scout
34. Somewhat new
35. Paradise
37. Magistrate (Rom.)
38. Former name for "Palau"
43. Recline
44. Danish weight
46. Abyss

Yesterday's Answer

3-15

3-15

WHAT GOES ON HERE

STUDENT WIVES' CLUB

A lecture will be given by Charles E. Flowers, Jr., professor of obstetrics, at the Student Wives' Club meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the Victory Village Community Center. Movies entitled "Labor and Childbirth" and "Normal Birth" will also be shown. The meeting is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

UP CANDIDATES

University Party candidates will meet tomorrow at 4 p.m. in APO room of Graham Memorial.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity will meet tonight at The Pines. All members should be at Graham Memorial at 5:30 p.m.

LINGUISTIC LECTURES

The curriculum in Comparative Linguistics and the department of sociology and anthropology are sponsoring two lectures in linguistics by Dr. Floyd Lounsbury of the department of anthropology of Yale University. The lectures will be held in the Assembly Room of the Library at 3 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

Tuesday's WUNC

7 p.m.—The Man and The Moment.
7:15—Reviews of the British Weeklies.
7:30—Letter From Italy.
7:45—The UN Story.
8—Address by Mrs. Peter Marshall.
9—Musicale.
9:30—How's the Family?
10—Local, State and National News Followed by Program Resume.
10:15—Evening Masterwork.

The most ruthless ROBINSON of all time!

Released thru United Artists

Today and Wednesday

Varsity

Selections Board Begin Meetings

Three Bipartisan Selection Boards will meet today through Thursday to interview candidates for the Men's Honor Council, Women's Honor Council and the Student Council.

The Bipartisan Board will meet today and tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the Men's Council Room of Graham Memorial to interview candidates for the Men's Honor Council in the spring elections.

The seats open on the Council are for three seniors, one junior, one graduate student and one pharmacy student.

The Women's Bipartisan Board will meet tomorrow and Thursday from 7 until 9 p.m. to endorse women interested in running for the Women's Honor Council in the spring elections.

The Bipartisan Selection Board will interview candidates for Student Council positions tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial. All men and women students who are rising juniors and seniors and who are interested in running for Student Council in the spring elections will be interviewed.

Foreign Articles

The Cosmopolitan Club has asked that anyone who has any particles from foreign countries lend them for display on the afternoon of March 20.

The Club will hold an open house on that day from 3:30 until 5:30 p.m. at Hillel House, 210 Cameron Ave.

Anyone who wishes to lend some articles for display has been asked to call the YMCA, 6761, to leave his name and telephone number.

—Marshall—

(Continued from Page 1)

'the brave new world' into which they were about to go," Mrs. Marshall said. She noted that speakers at that time thought only the older people wrestled with trouble and believed that people of college age knew nothing of the problems of evil in the world.

"Now the situation is quite turned around," she said. "Young people have 'no brave new world' to enter—for it is a world vibrating with the challenge of co-existence with brotherhood—or extinction. These days it's the older people who are the safe ones and the young people have far too early an acquaintance with the hard facts of life and must make decisions for which they have neither the intellectual nor spiritual equipment."

Giving some of her experiences since the death of her husband, Mrs. Marshall quoted several Bible verses which she described as a constructive, practical and exciting formula for dealing with problems. These she said were: "Goodness and mercy shall follow you all the days of your life," and "All things work together for good and for those who love God and are called according to His purposes."

Listen to Jimmie Capps at 11:05 Tue. & Thur. Nites by

Records & High Fidelity Equipment
207. E. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N.C.

JUST RECEIVED

Shipment of the best buy you'll find anywhere this spring

Sanforized cotton baby cord slacks, ivy model, in blue, gray or tan —

5.95

Your choice of khakis in black, light blue or khaki, all in Ivy model —

4.95

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

What Goes On Here

FILM CRITICS

The Film Critics will meet Thursday night from 7:30 until 9:30 in the Woodhouse Room of Graham Memorial. The speaker for the meeting will be Andy Gutierrez, manager of the Varsity Theater. His topic will be "Problems of Theater Managing." Discussion will be held of the week's films and film first written film criticism of the club will be prepared.

PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM

Dr. Lawrence Slifkin of the University of Minnesota will speak on "Intermetallic Diffusion" at the Physics Colloquium today at 4:30 p.m. in 250 Phillips Hall.

WESLEY GROUP

Wesley's Young Adult Group will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Student Lounge of the University Methodist Church. Victor Bowles will be in charge of the program.

MATHEMATICS

Pi Mu Epsilon will meet today at 4 p.m. in Phillips 320. Dr. Mann will speak on "Relaxation Techniques."

FACULTY WIVES

The Faculty Wives of the School of Business Administration will meet in Carroll Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. The hostesses will be Mrs. Lowell Ashby and Mrs. J. C .D. Blaine.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

CLASSIFIEDS

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

ANYONE MOVING FROM CHApel Hill in June, who has bedroom and living room furniture to sell, please contact Tom Abernethy, 310 Aycock, Phone 9302. (1-9991-3)

IS A FRIEND SICK? SEND HIM a get-well card from Ledbetter-Pickard's selection. He'll appreciate your thought so much.

Put a SMILE in your SMOKING!

Buy CHESTERFIELD today! Largest selling cigarette in America's colleges

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness—mildness refreshing taste.

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's quality—highest quality—low nicotine.

In the whole wide world no cigarette SATISFIES like Chesterfield

© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Cloudy and warmer today, with scattered showers possible. Expected high, 70.

The Daily Tar Heel

VOL. LVII NO. 118 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

ADVENTURE

"American Adventure": It's the name of a radio show, explained in stirring words on today's editorial page.

Stevens UP Veep Nominee; Cocke Secretary Candidate

Famed Author-Poet Robert Frost Delivers Lecture-Recital Tonight

Robert Frost, celebrated American Poet, philosopher and humorist, will give a public lecture-recital in Hill Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

The speaker's visit will be sponsored by the English Department, according to Dr. Raymond Adams, acting chairman of the department.

The lecture-recital will feature readings from Frost's poetry and comments upon literature and various other subjects.

Frost, who has won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry several times, will be the guest of his long-time friend, Dr. Clifford P. Lyons of the English faculty, while here.

POET ROBERT FROST
. . . an annual affair

The 80-year-old poet is well known to Chapel Hill audiences, having spoken here a number of times in the past.

A native of San Francisco, Frost grew up in New England where he attended Dartmouth and Harvard Universities. His career has been widely varied. He farmed, taught English, worked as a newspaperman, and although he wrote poetry, none of it was printed until he moved to England in 1912.

His first volume, A Boy's Will, was published and warmly praised in England. A year later he wrote the now famous North of Boston.

Deadline

The Daily Tar Heel will continue its 3:30 p.m. deadline for all outside news, editors announced yesterday.

The deadline covers all stories, including political statements.

Editors said they could not promise any story's getting in after the deadline.

Politician Lewis Brumfield present but not voting in Godfrey history class: Crossword puzzle and pencil on his desk, Brumfield fast asleep.

* * *

Petals from Japanese cherry trees covering walkways.

Blue And White Competition To Continue Through Today

The contest being sponsored by the Monogram Club to pick a coed queen to rule over the Blue-White football game will continue through today, according to Wilbur Jones, president.

Jones said the contest is being extended "because we had planned to have it out in Y-Court, but because of the threat of rain we had to have it inside. We feel like it has not reached the attention of enough people."

Jones said the contest will be carried on in Y court today if weather permits. He said voting hours will be from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"We hope the students will turn out and support not only the Blue-White football game, but also the Monogram Club's scholarship fund to which the proceeds of the contest will go," said the Monogram Club president yesterday.

The contest is being conducted on a penny-a-vote basis, with the coed receiving most money being named Miss Blue and White. There are 13 girls entered in the contest, one from each women's dormitory and sorority house. The other 12 girls will serve as sponsors for each of the two squads of the football team on game day. A picture of each contestant is posted in Y-Court.

The game will be played next Saturday. Jones said the winner of the contest will be announced before the day of the game.

Floorleader Stevens Picked Over Monteith

By NEIL BASS

The University Party last night named Jack Stevens as its candidate for vice president of the student body.

Stevens, floor leader of the party, was selected over Jim Monteith by a 37-29 majority.

In other selections of the night, Miss Jane Cocke, UP secretary, was given the nod as candidate for secretary of the student body. Miss Cocke was selected over Babbara Fleishman by an overwhelming majority.

Before the party got into nominations, Raymond M. Taylor, campaign manager for Ed McCurry, UP candidate for the presidency of the student body, told the group, "I'm going to give you the text tonight and I want you to go out and preach the gospel." Taylor then defined what he meant by the "gospel" by saying that they (the UP) ought to go out and tell the students about McCurry's "eminent" qualifications.

In placing Steven's name into the race, Rollie Tillman said, "I couldn't sleep too well if I knew the party had compromised electibility" for Jack Stevens' "ability."

Rueben Leonard, nominator of Monteith, called him "responsible." Leonard went on to say that "the men in dorms would vote like mad if we elect Monteith."

In describing Monteith's capability, Jim Exum, campaign coordinator of the party, brought out the fact that Monteith beat Jim Turner of the Student Party for a seat in the fall elections. Exum concluded "Any man who can beat Turner in political intrigue" is capable.

Luanne Thornton lauded Stevens by hitting on his "experience."

After numerous other speakers poured to the front of the room, time rolled around for the ballot casting. Then the tabulation was announced—a victory for Stevens.

Scheduled nominations in dorm women's district were postponed.

Candidates were selected, however, in three of the town men's districts.

Nominated for seats in town men's I were Charlie Johnson, Mebane Pritchett and Charlie Covell;

Named candidates in town men's II were Bill Morgan and Luther Hodges;

Chosen from town men's III were Mike Weinman, Bob Hornik and Bill Elder.

Bathhouse Scheduled For Kerr

There are no structures on the 400 acres of land at the Kerr Dam and Buggs Island Reservoir in Vance County which has been assigned to UNC for a 25-year period, but long range plans call for a bathhouse, open pavilion and other buildings, according to Dr. Harold D. Meyer.

Dr. Meyer, professor of sociology here, is head of the six man committee which is guiding the project's development.

Located 71 miles from Chapel Hill, on the west side of John H. Kerr Reservoir northeast of Townsville, the land is to be developed by and for University students, faculty, administration and residents of Chapel Hill.

CLEANUP

"Immediate attention will be given," said Dr. Meyer, "to such needs as clearing out the area, providing water and electric power, improving roadways and developing the picnic and swimming areas.

"No state funds are involved in the development of the area," he said. "Financing of facilities and program is under informal and voluntary procedure. All rules and regulations governing the use and discipline of the area follow those now in force on the University campus," Dr. Meyer added.

Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity has announced plans to devote time and labor during the spring months to the physical cleanup needed to put the area in suitable shape, according to Dr. Meyer.

The acreage was secured by lease from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps has the supervisory responsibility of the entire Kerr Dam Reservoir.

Members Of Orientation Committee Are Chosen

The names of the Orientation Committee for the year 1955-1956 were released yesterday by Burt Veazey, chairman of the Men's Orientation Committee.

The following have been named:

Jim Exum, Bev Webb, Miss Jane Cocke, Bob Young, Miss Mary Windley Dunn, Mebane Pritchett, Bob Harrington, Larry Ford, Miss Pat McBane, Miss Donna Ashcraft, John Curtis, Gil Ragland and Bill Baum.

Miss Sara Alice Jackson serves on the committee because of her position as chairman of Women's Orientation.

The committee had their first meeting last week and will meet again next week. Work is being done now on printing letters which will be sent to applicants already accepted.

Orientation counselors will be selected after spring holidays, said Veazey.

Educator Yen Set To Speak In Carroll Hall

Dr. Y. C. Yen, founder and president of the International Committee of the Mass Education Movement, will speak before several groups here today and Thursday.

Dr. Yen will deliver a public address in Carroll Hall at 8 p.m. tonight, under sponsorship of the School of Public Health. A reception in the faculty seminar room in Carroll Hall will follow, honoring the speaker, his wife and their daughter, Miss Alice Yen, who is a graduate student in public health education here.

At noon today, Dr. Yen will address the 10th Annual Working Conference for alumni and students in the Health Education Department of the School of Public Health. Dr. Yen's talk will conclude the three-day conference which will attract health educators from many states and Puerto Rico.

Dr. Yen, a native of Szechuan, China, is the founder of the Chinese Mass Education Movement, which centered around regional rural reconstruction cities in China. He established the College of Rural Reconstruction in China to train men and women in economic and social reconstruction, and enlisted the support of the U. S. Congress and American friends in founding the Joint Commission of Rural Reconstruction, of which he is administrator.

Both Y's Slate Leader Meets March 25-26

The YMCA and YWCA will hold a joint spring leadership conference on March 25 and 26.

Rev. Vance Barron of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church will speak the first day of the conference on the theme of a Christian's view of the world situation and his involvement in it. Small discussion groups will be held on that theme also March 25.

Presentation of the report of the Program Policy Committee will be made on the second conference day. Discussion of the report will follow the presentation. A picnic will follow these activities.

Netherlands Interview

A University library science major from The Netherlands will be interviewed on WUNC-TV tonight.

Miss Arendine Kimmel, president of the UNC Cosmopolitan Club for the spring semester, will talk on "Cosmopolitan Interview." Program time is set for 7:45.

Forester Quits GM To Aid Don Fowler

Gordon Forester has been appointed as campaign manager for Don Fowler, independent candidate for post of student body president, according to an announcement made yesterday.

Forester, who is president of the Graham Memorial Activities Board, said in a statement yesterday, "I am turning over my duties in Graham Memorial to the vice-president of GMAB (David Reid) for the duration of the campaign. He will be in charge of all programming activities for Graham Memorial," added Forester.

"I am very pleased that Don Fowler has asked me to manage his campaign for president of the student body," said Forester. "I am assisting Don in his campaign because I sincerely believe that he is the most capable candidate available. His experience in all three branches of student government, and his academic record make him well qualified for the presidency of the student body," said Forester.

Frats Set Stunts Tonight

"Stunt night is going to be big and we want everybody to come," said Jack Stevens, co-chairman of Greek Week, yesterday.

Activities begin at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall, said Stevens. "We are expecting a lot of originality and we want a large crowd," he added. The winner of the trophy will be announced tonight and the cup will be awarded at the dinner Friday night at Lenoir Hall.

A survey of fraternities yesterday showed some hard at work on stunts and skits. The theme of the Chi Phi skit is "not having a theme," according to Jack Weil. "The scene is a meeting to discuss what we're going to have and everything brought up is censored," he explained.

The KAs are planning a pantomine, "So This Is Fraternity Life" and the Dekes are putting on a mystery program.

The Sig Eps are satirizing the movie "The Wild One" and the TEPs are doing the same for the Oscar awards for movies.

The Zetes were reluctant to give out any information about their skit. After much hemming and hawing, a spokesman for the pledge class said the skit had something to do with a Sunday afternoon on campus.

McCurry Wants Cut Changes

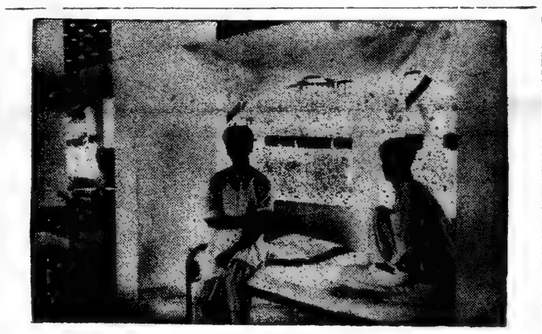
Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate agrees with Dean Spruill that the problem of the cut system is a "mutual one," according to a statement issued yesterday.

Spruill said that "we should work together to get a system both human and effective." McCurry, in agreeing, according to the statement, expressed his opposition to the current setup and made known his desire for a more flexible policy.

McCurry also commented on the fact that the Business Administration School requires an overall B average for dean's list. According to the statement, he favors the same procedure in the other branches of the University as a substitute for the prevailing practice of requiring all dean's list students to have grades of B or above.

"I think any person with an overall B average has shown his acceptance of academic responsibility and should be entitled to the privileges granted by being on the dean's list," said McCurry.

"It is unfair to unnecessarily tax those who have proven themselves competent students," he added.



According to the statement, McCurry noted that Phi Beta Kappa uses an overall, instead of letter, grade average, in selecting its membership, and that an overall average is used in determining the eligibility of students to participate in extra-curricular activities.

Ridgway Coming Back

Gen. Matthew Ridgway is coming to the Carolina campus after all, according to Carolina Forum Vice-Chairman Bob Young.

The General is scheduled to speak here Monday, March 28. He will speak in Hill Hall at 8:30, according to Young.

General Ridgway's speech was previously slated for Feb. 24, but bad weather kept his airplane from landing.

World University Service Helps India

Two out of the 27 patients now receiving care at World University Service students' ward in sanatorium in India are shown above. Ward was largely financed through Campus Chest and other contributions to WUS.

Chest Drive Underway

Solicitors for the 1955 Campus Chest drive met yesterday to hear plans for the rally from Solicitation Chairman Miss Bobbie Walker.

The campaign will only run from last night through Saturday morning. An attempt will be made to conduct a "fast and furious campaign instead of letting it drag on," said Miss Walker.

Large cardboard sheets will be posted in the Y Court listing the names of men's and women's dormitories, fraternities and sororities, each group in a different color. As money is turned in each morning by 10 o'clock, results will be recorded in percentage on the cardboard graphs.

It has been arranged for the solicitors living on second and third dormitory floors to turn in their money to the first floor solicitors, who, in turn, will make his report to the YMCA secretary, said Miss Walker.

When a Campus Chest worker solicits an individual, he will have a handbill of drive information, a leaflet about the World University Service and a receipt card. One half of the card will be turned in with the money each day, and the other half will be given to the donor, said Miss Walker.

CHEERLEADER SELECTION BOARD

The Bipartisan Board for cheerleader selection will meet tomorrow from 4 until 6 p.m. in the Honor Council Room in Graham Memorial to pick candidates to run in the spring election.

SP Meets Tonight

The Student Party will meet tonight at 9 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Putnam Prize Winner Visits UNC

Amos Paul, second from left, UNC Extension student from Rocky Mount who recently was named winner of the annual Putnam Prize for writing, is shown here during a visit to Chapel Hill. Paul discussed revisions of his book with Dr. E. R. Oettinger of the UNC English faculty, with whom Paul is now studying the short story by correspondence. The Putnam Prize, a special gift of $500, was given for Paul's historical novel, Outback. Shown left to right are Miss Jessie Rehder, English lecturer and director of the annual Putnam contest; Paul; Mrs. Paul, and Dr. Oettinger.

Air Force ROTC Men Fly To Palm Beach

Cadets, Officers Inspect Florida Air Force Base

Thirty-one Air Force ROTC cadets and five USAF officers who are instructors in air science flew to Palm Beach, Fla., recently.

The group flew down in an Air Force C-54 motor-cargo type plane. Purpose of the trip was inspection and orientation at the Palm Beach Air Force Base.

As guests of the base commander, the cadets underwent the monthly review last Saturday morning. Following was a full tour of training installations at the base, with briefings on such activities as flight simulators, radio and automoatic pilot school. In the afternoon cadets were shown through such planes as the C-97 and the C-124. The cadets also visited the base weather station and the base operations office.

The cadets were to return on Sunday but due to inclement weather flights were prevented until Monday.

Spring Frost

Eight tonight is the time for the annual little pilgrimage to Hill Hall to hear Robert Frost.

There's an essay—"The Other Frost"—by Woman's College's Randall Jarrell, perhaps the best of all commentators on Mr. Frost, that we especially like. Mr. Frost, says Mr. Jarrell, is known to everybody who ever read any American poetry—"the conservative editorialist and self-made apothegm-joiner, full of dry wisdom and free complacent, Yankee enterprise, the Farmer-Poet—this is an imposing private role perfected for public use, a sort of Olympian Will Rogers out of Tanglewood Tales."

But this, continues Mr. Jarrell, is only a tiny corner of the real portrait of Robert Frost. Naturally, Mr. Jarrell, a poet himself, knows a great deal more about Frost than most of us do; and he maintains that the "Farmer-Poet" handle doesn't fit Frost at all. "These views of Frost," it seems to him, "come either from not knowing his poems well enough or from knowing the wrong poems too well."

We agree. In any anthology, you'll come across "The Road Not Taken" and "Mending Wall"—good poems, of course, but not at all representative of Mr. Frost's world view. The easy and cordial superficiality of "Road Not Taken" is eclipsed in works like "Design" and "Neither Out Far Nor In Deep"—which convey a deep, almost terrifying, and Arnoldesque picture of the universe.

Mr. Frost, in short, is a poet who thinks and writes about man, the heart of man, and human life—and to a deeper degree than whether good fences do or do not make good neighbors.

His annual visit here is always something to reckon with, and we trust it will be for many springs to come.

Cliche Club

It's a curious season, Amid the Frost visit, the baseball practice down at Emerson, the Graham Memorial cherry trees, comes a chilly rain more like January than mid-March.

And to add to the confusion, there is the 60 point type on page one bearing the political tidings.

After several years of 60 point headlines, we find it possible to become a little cynical about the plaudits and promises and parliamentary procedure routine.

One could learn, for example, from yesterday's front page that one nominee was "the finest candidate in the finest party in the finest University in the finest state . . ." and had "a brilliant grasp of the world about him."

One candidate promised to be "responsible," another to "uphold the University's principles," another to "serve to the best of his ability," another to "try to do a good job if elected."

How well qualified is the candidate? "Eminently." What will his campaign be like? "Clean and hard." What kind of support will he get? "Overwhelming."

All is for the best, we suppose, in the most political of all possible milieus. But we're tempted to look around for a lazy, no-good, dishonest, unqualified rascal with a dull grasp of the world around him and cast our "overwhelming" one vote his way, just as a matter of "principle."

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 3, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley
Society Editor — Susan Andes

EDITORIAL STAFF — Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase
SPORTS STAFF — Al Korschun, Bob Colbert, Chuck Strong, Marshall Waldman
BUSINESS STAFF — Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Even The Vets Of Politics Are Surprised

Louis Kraar

EVEN THE old-timers in campus politics — the graduate and Law students who somehow keep a light finger in the campus political pot — were shaking their heads yesterday.

Manning Muntzing's presidential hopes took on a new light with Don Fowler's filing as an independent. Ed McCurry, the University Party presidential candidate, was also worried.

Here's why Muntzing and McCurry were worried:

First of all, Fowler will offer formidable opposition. He gave Muntzing a good race for the SP nomination, and many of the same supporters that he had in that SP meeting are enrolled on his petition.

And, secondly, a run-off election seems almost unavoidable. A majority of all votes cast are required for the election of a candidate. With three candidates as well-known and as energetic in campaigning as Muntzing, McCurry, and Fowler, the student body will be greatly divided.

That's why Muntzing and McCurry—and their backers—are not too happy about Fowler's candidacy.

★

KENAN HISTORY Professor Hugh T. Lefler the other day answered a question long in the minds of students who have listened to his effective, rapid-fire lectures.

The question: how a Southerner (Dr. Lefler) developed such a fast delivery.

Lefler's answer: "I used to teach at Pennsylvania, which is located in the center of the city. Every time I would get wound up in a lecture, a streetcar would come roaring along. So I had to learn to out talk the streetcars."

★

A COLUMNIST for the Emory Wheel (an Atlanta, Ga. liberal arts university) included in his list of the "ten worst movies of 1954" the film "The Barefoot Contessa," one of my favorites.

His only comment was, "A fairly good movie, but it had the most disappointing scene of the year."

★

THE STUDENT party's Monday night session took on a national political convention air as the vice-presidential choosing got underway.

Bob Harrington and Sue Fink were up for the post. And party members asked Harrington and Miss Fink—who had backed Fowler previous to Muntzing's nomination—"Will you pledge, whether you are nominated or not, to support the SP slate?"

★

SPEAKING FOR Harrington, Dave Reid (whose academic difficulties kept him from running) declared frankly: "Neither one of these candidates are my first choice, as you know.'

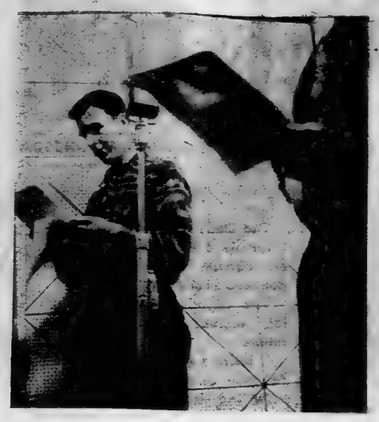
Politics needs more of this type candor.

★

WITH POLITICAL campaigns so close at hand the deadline in yesterday's paper — "Fiction Contest Deadline Just 2 Weeks Away" — seemed ironically appropriate.

Perhaps this spring will be different and candidates will be moderate in their promises to voters. It'd be a pleasant change.

★



TARNATION, CAMPUS humor magazine, will come out with something entirely new this time when it hits the dorms and houses in a couple weeks.

I caught a preview of it the other day. And all I can say is that it's going to be different.

The Script's The Thing: Cast And Crew At An 'American Adventure' Production

SOUND MAN PHIL GOODMAN

ACTOR JACK SPOONER

ACTORS PHIL JOHNSTON & BOB THOMAS

TECHNICIAN GEORGE BRENHOLTZ

'We Were Dealing With The Soul Of America'

Dramatizing 'Man's Greatest Adventure'

By John Ehle

("American Adventure" is a series of radio dramas about the American people produced by the University's Communication Center. It is written by John Ehle and directed by John Clayton, and carried on transcription by radio stations coast-to-coast. The latest series of programs begins on the campus station, WUNC, Thursday night; this, we thought, would be a good time to ask John to write down the purpose of "American Adventure." He responded with the following letter.—Editor.)

Editor:

I hope you read this letter when you are in a reasonably jovial mood, if such moods are permitted editors. It is not that there is anything light, or ever interesting about it, but that the weight I feel as I approach this subject would not be so obvious to you then.

It is a heavy task, writing about America, and you have asked what our purpose was in the 26 recorded American Adventure dramas which John Clayton directed, and which the Communication Center is now ready to distribute nationally.

And I could tell you simply, state it so that no questions would occur unless you are particularly interested. I could say, for example, that we were interested in dramatizing the basic values of the American people.

Certainly no one would care to go on from there.

But the fact is that these values are the life-source of the nation, and that we were dealing with the soul of America. And I must state it like that, because it is the way I feel it, and once having brought up this matter of the soul of this nation—to which we look as citizens with anxiety and hope, and at which the world looks from various viewpoints and with many emotions—then I'm afraid you might ask—"Yes, and what is it—this soul of America?

And I cannot answer you. I have written 26 dramas about it, and I would not think of putting down here what the soul of America is, even to me. Oh, I know; rather I feel. And I do not hesitate to state my feelings because I fear the extremists both left and right who are bound to attack any definition, for attacking is their outstanding characteristic.

Through A Glass Darkly

Rather, my reluctance is based on a respect for that which is best seen when seen through a glass darkly, not face to face. The soul of the country is not one thing, or so it seems to me, but is many things, so cross-pollinated and grafted one to another that a clear statement belies the subject.

We have grown objective, haven't we, so much so that we have reached the point where we feel we can analyze anything. Doubtless there are those who believe that even so simple a thing as the human hand can be understood only when dissected, when its parts are separated and weighed, when its movements are plotted. On the contrary. I believe the hand is made to reach, to touch, to hold, that that is its highest understanding, and is the one which is commonly known.

The fact is created by the spirit, not the spirit by the fact.

So it is with the soul of the nation, I think. It is understood in action. It is a living organism, made to operate with courage when courage is neded, with boundless love, with suffering, with anxiety, with fear, with confusion, and with a dedication to basic truths which come from other men long dead and buried, but living still in that true life which touches us. The soul of the American people is often bantered about by one authority or another, left wingers and rightists, extreme liberals and conservatives, as if by words they can define it to serve a particular purpose. It is designed to serve no such purpose, but it stands as a composite of all that the people are and believe it to be.

America is her demagogues, as well as her visionary statesmen. She is housewives and farmers, businessmen and miners. She is mothers and sons, the living and the dead and the newly buried. Slavery is older on her soil than Plymouth Rock; yet freedom is the way she tries to follow.

Show me the man who would explain her simply. I would like to ask him a question or two. Oh, there may be some in Hollywood, who explain her every week or so to a world audience. They have the Hollywood point of view, which makes all things possible, and they polish her grandly. They paint the picture of America proudly.

But who are the people they paint? Do they change their babies' diapers? Most Americans do. Do they grow potatoes, chop weeds, crop tobacco, pick cotton, work in steel mills, build ships, or do anything else which Americans do? No, America is not a motion picture concept. It's not so clear, not quite so wealthy, is much more human, and has a better plot.

When we consider how soon it was ago that a handful of men and women, scratching themselves and hungry, stepped ashore to look into an utterly dark continent, and there began to do the impossible—to clear a million trees and plant crops—when we know that that was only the week before last as time is counted in centuries, then how can we explain the wealth and power that America now struts in youthful stridings before the world? What a proud thing has taken place here! What an achievement! Where is it equalled?

No, I do not want it to be explained simply. Please do not touch it with a scalpel either. Do not put a footnote to this drama. Let us not reason it out. Let us feel it. And if we cannot, then of what value are explanations carefully made?

WRITER JOHN EHLE

Rather, let us seek ways to grasp the truth of the country closer, remind ourselves of what we know in order to make it even more meaningful.

The Spirit Of Joe Palmer's Beard

In American Adventure we looked in history and in newspapers to find men and women of this country who revealed facts of this American spirit, and we dramatized critical events in their lives, in the belief that Americans would respond to what were their own true feelings.

One of them was Joe Palmer of Massachusetts, who decided he would wear a beard. His fellow citizens decided he wouldn't. Everybody back then knew wearing beards was of the devil. But when they charged Joe Palmer to shave, he refused in a booming New England voice, his eyes blazing over that rich growth of hair that hid most of his face. He would wear the beard. So they attacked with razors. He fought them off. They sent him to jail. For over a year he stayed there, denouncing them from the jail window, refusing to shave, defending himself from attacks of fellow prisoners. Finally the people relented, let him go. He walked out of the jail, his beard flowing longer than before, still a free man.

Joe Palmer was part of the American spirit. So were the townspeople, some may say, and have numbers on their side, and be quite right.

Then there was the legendary Johnny Appleseed, who went about giving away all he had. Naturally this struck many of his fellow Americans as being unnatural. They wanted him to settle down, build a house, marry, rear a family, lay by for the winters and for his old age. A girl he loved came to seek him out, asked him to stop his wandering and become respectable, but Johnny chose to go on his way. So we remember him to this generation because of that quality which, by settling down, he would have sacrificed.

Those who tried to induce him to settle down were good solid Americans, and part of the American spirit. But so was Johnny Appleseed.

One final example:

Back in the late depression there was a young Tennessee carpenter who wanted to build a house. He lived in a shack in a town that had sprung up on free land along a river bank. He had no job, no money. But he couldn't bring himself to live in a shack, didn't want his mother and his brother to live in a tumbling down place that was held together by rusted nails. So he built a house. With ingenuity and courage he worked, until finally it stood, straight and true and clean, a monument to his spirit. His fellow citizens heard of it, traveled long distances to see it, looked with amazement at this symbol of what could be done by an undefeated man. There was something basic about that house-builder, almost tear-provoking to them.

They Were Out Of Step

So in 26 dramas, we wrote about the American spirit, the inner values. Some were about Jefferson, Lincoln, Lee, Jackson, and other outstanding Americans. Some were about common people, who were not common, after all.

It has occurred to me since the series was finished that a large percentage of the men and women who seemed to represent the American spirit were actually exceptions to their own societies. They were out of step.

If there remains anybody who dares to be out of step today, let him take some hope that in a future generation somebody may write a short play about him.

Of course, if he is soundly motivated, he may be remembered more grandly than that, even in his own day. For we cannot all be as strong as the strongest, and most of us must single out certain ones of the strong among us, hold them up, and shout "Here we are." For it is by the strong that all of us want to be remembered.

And rightly so. We should hold them up and claim them as ourselves. For I believe a people is more than what it is. A people is what it is plus what it dreams of becoming. It may be that we will never become what we dream, but the hope of the nation depends on dreaming, anyway.

Today there is a vast army of people polling us to see what we are. This is valuable, of course, but where is the pollster who is interested in what we want to become? Surely we have not decided individually that we are perfect, or that we have created the perfect country.

What is the perfect country? What is the modern American dream?

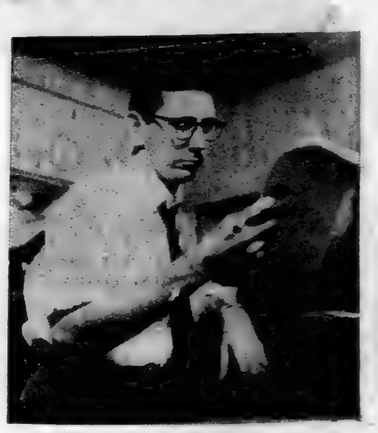
We come from a nation of dreamers. No country has ever had greater faith in the common man, in the worth of humanity and the value of aspirations.

What a tremendous day might come if once more this nation caught a glimpse of its own highest visions.

Before a dream, a wilderness of confusion and doubt might fall. Without it, a people could conceivably fight each tree in the wilderness—each person—until the trees conquer them.

Do we have a posttive crusade, we Americans? I am asking. I don't know of it, but we may.

What is it?



Because we live in a materialistic country, some believe that truly visionary plans are not practical now. But Americans have always been materialistic. What is more materialistically inclined than was the pioneer? From dawn to dusk he was trading and building things—cabins, fences, chairs, cribs—chopping wood, breding animals. Half of this nation was opened up because of a gold strike. Settlers didn't keep going west because of the sunsets.

But they reached great heights on occasions, and so may we.

A Deep Thirst, And A Striving

If a fault exists, perhaps responsibility must fall on the leaders. It would seem that a high percentage of our statesmen, at least, are bound by their own machinations as they energetically try to control this sort of a type of a kind of thing that has been created, lest it run away with them. And our leaders in other fields are prone to seek comfort by blaming the people for lack of taste and vision. But the people do not lead the people; they follow leaders. Are some of our leaders criticizing the people for being leaderless?

Many of our better artists, for example, who might be exploring and interpreting the hope of man's soul, are intrigued by the more despondent and commonplace aspects of modern life. Some have a greater emphasis on technique than content, assuming, as perhaps artists may in these necessary periods of experimentation, that the method of expression is more important than what is expressed. The people do not respond warmly to either technique or disillusionment.

DIRECTOR JOHN CLAYTON

No, the fault does not lie entirely with the people. The people are present, and I do not believe people change so radically in a generation or two that they become deaf to their own high values. They are deaf to them only when they are not stated, or when they are stated so that they cannot be understood. If you state them clearly, the people will either follow you or stone you, or both, but they will not ignore you.

The American people know, below the surface, in that area of the human being which chiefly matters, that an individual is of tremendous value and is born free. They do not confuse a man with animals, or with clay—not the common people. They know full well that a man has a fraction of the patience of God but an even greater dissatisfaction—that he was born to be dissatisfied. They know he wants to move forward, even though he falters on the way. There is among them a deep thirst for beauty and a striving for goodness. Most of them recognize with the slightest suggestion that a man is free, not because the law says so, not because the government permits it, not because it's nice to get out on bail, but because a man is a creation of God, conceived in dignity, and that no other man has the right to stand between him and his creator—or his creations.

I do solemnly maintain that the people of America believe these things are true—emotionally believe them.

Yes, they will throw a Joe Palmer into jail on occasion; they will also let him out, and when they do, it is to recognize in him the spirit that should be theirs, also.

And so with us. Which is a way of saying that I think America has the same heart she had a generation or two ago.

She Is Still New And Unfinished

I must also say before I'm done, because it is the framework of the rest, that I believe the best understanding of America begins with the realization that our country is young yet, that she is still new and unfinished, and that she remains man's greatest adventure in time and space.

It is this adventure that should concern us, lead us on with the promise of added greatness yet to come out of it. I'm sure that this was in Earl Wynn's mind when he placed the facilities of the Communication Center behind these productions, in the mind of Robert Schenkkan when he wrote the proposal which obtained the first of two Ford Foundation Agency grants, and in the minds of the nine professors of the University who so ably served as consultants for this series: Professors Bernard Boyd, John Gillin, Fletcher Green, Everett Hall, Frank Hantt, Clifford Lyons, William Poteat, Clemens Sommer, and the late Howard Odum.

But the opinions expressed in this letter are, of course, my own. I have digressed considerably from the series itself, which was not concerned so much with specific problems of our day—real or imaginary—as with the inherent values of the people of the country, which are lasting.

Thirteen American Adventure dramas have been released, as you know. The other thirteen have been recorded by John Clayton with a staff of some sixty actors and technicians from the whole Chapel Hill community, and are now ready for distribution.

I hope they will be heard by others who can state better and will state frequently the greatness of our country.

Athlete Of The Week!

Krepp Captured Firsts In 100 And 200 Back; Winning Relay Team

By BOB COLBERT

Charlie Krepp, sophomore star of the Tar Heel swimming team, again has been selected by The Daily Tar Heel sports staff as "Athlete of the Week."

Runners-up to Krepp were teammate Phil Drake, who missed breaking the world record in the 200-yard butterfly breaststroke by three-tenths of a second, and Gordon Hudson, who took first place in the side horse competition at the Southern Gymnastic Championships held in Atlanta last weekend.

Krepp set new Atlantic Coast Conference records in both the 100 and 200-yard backstroke events in the ACC Championships held here last weekend. His time in the 200-yard event was 2:08.7. There have been only two swimmers to do faster than 2:07 for the course. Krepp will run into both of them next week at the NCAA Championships in Oxford, Ohio. They are Oyakawa and Wiggins of Ohio State. Oyakawa has been the 200-yard backstroke champion for three years and holds the intercollegiate record with 2:05.1. Wiggins had gone the distance in 2:06.

Krepp's fastest time in the 200-yard backstroke was against Michigan here on February 3.2 He set a new pool and University record, going the distance in 2:07.8. This was after he had led-off the 300-yard medley relay team consisting of himself, Drake, and Dick Baker, which broke the intercollegiate record.

BROTHERS RALPH and Willis Casey, who rarely agree on many things, both think that Charlie will develop into the best backstroker in the country. Said Willis, coach of N. C. State's ACC champions' "Man, they're going to have a hard time beating him in the 200 at the Nationals." Ralph, after the meet, added, "It will be interesting to see how well he'll do against great competition in the Nationals."

Krep is just a sophomore and calls Baltimore, Md., his home town. He is 19 years old and is majoring in Business Adminstration.

HE BROKE HIS own record of 2:09.4 in the 200-yard event Friday night going 2:08.7. Saturday afternoon, he broke the record held by State's Tom Dunlap of 60.0 by going 58.4 in the trials. In the finals, he was paced by State's Bill Sonner. Sonner had Krepp after 75 yards, but Krepp poured it on and finished first by two-tenths of a second, breaking the record he set in the afternoon by nine-tenths of a second. His new record is now 57.5.

Charlie also was lead-off man on the winning 300-yard medley relay team. This is the same team that holds the intercollegiate record. This gave Krepp three firsts in the meet.

COACH RALPH Casey is now pointing toward the NCAA Championships to be held at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio March 24-26 and the National AAU meet to be held in New Haven, Conn., on April 1-3.

CHARLIE KREPP
. . . No sweat. Doin' what comes naturally

Freshman Track Schedule Boasts Five Meets

By RAY LINKER

All candidates for the freshman track team have been asked to meet Coach Joe Hilton in 304 Woollen Gym at 4 o'clock this afternoon to discuss this year's schedule and to fill out eligibility blanks.

Many boys who were on the indoor team as well as several others have already started working out daily on Fetzer Field. Hilton would be glad to have more students come out for the team, however.

Five meets have been carded so far, and a few more may be added to the schedule. The Tar Babies will open with State here on April 2. One night meet, also with State, is planned for April 16 in Raleigh.

Duke will furnish the opposition on two occasions, in Durham on April 22 and in Chapel Hill on May 7. Durham High School will pay the Tar Babies a visit on April 28.

A meet with Greensboro High is being discussed at present. The UNC frosh may meet a team composed of runners from two nearby high schools.

A small nucleus is forming around a few talented thinclads, with the distance men showing up well in practice. Three boys who were outstanding in cross country and indoor track have just about secured the top spots in each of the distance runs. Ben Williams in the 880-yard run, Everett Whatley in the mile, and Richard Rigsbee in the two-mile are the top runners.

James Varnum (100 and 220) and Ronnie Austell (220 and 440) have been outstanding in the shorter distances, although Varnum is in spring football practice at the present. Cledith Oakley in the javelin and Gene Drury in the hurdles have also been impressive in practice.

Cage Semifinal Slated Today

At 5 o'clock this afternoon in Woollen Gym the Town Mens Association will meet Battle-Vance-Pettigrew and the Medical School will take on the Dental School in the semifinal round of the dormitory championships in intramural basketball. The winners of the two games will tangle at 7 o'clock Friday night to vie for the dorm trophy.

In the fraternity division the Dekes play the Sigma Nus at 5 o'clock and at 7 the defending champions, Phi Gam, tangle with the SAEs. Friday evening at 8 o'clock the two winners will meet for the fraternity crown.

The quarter-final round Monday saw Med School stage a comeback drive to defeat Joyner-1, 53-50, in an overtime battle. Lineberger had 19 points for the winners but Arlis Denny of the losers turned out to be the day's top scorer with 27 points. BVP edged Law School in a mild upset, 32-25. TMA had too much class for Joyner-2 and ran up a 32-9 halftime lead to win going away 63-22. Gene Smith had 20 points for the winners. In the fourth game in the dorm league Dental School dropped Alexander 51-42.

Duke Will Hold Football Clinic

DURHAM, March 16. — Coach Bill Murray and members of the Duke University football staff will hold a spring clinic for coaches here Friday and Saturday as the Duke gridders complete the 20 allotted days of off-season drills.

This informal event was started three years ago and has attracted high school and prep school coaches from all parts of the south and east.

Virginia's Buzz Takes Point Title With 32.1; Rosenbluth Makes 25.5

GREENSBORO, March 15 —(AP)— North Carolina State won the championship, but all but one individual or team statistics crown for the 1954-55 basketball season went to the Wolfpack's Atlantic Coast Conference challengers.

Virginia's Buzz Wilkinson claimed the big individual scoring average title with a 32.1 mark.

Wilkinson also won the individual total points crown with 898, giving his Cavaliers a big assist as they won the team scoring title with an average of 89.8 points per game.

N. C. State, according to final ACC Service Bureau figures for the season, placed second in scoring at 88.7 and won its only ACC statistics honor by averaging 58.2 rebounds per game.

The other major title, for team defense, went to Maryland without a close challenge. The Terps' average yield for the season was only 61.8 as compared to 72.7 for second place Duke.

Wake Forest's Dick Hemric, although he set a national major college scoring record at 2,587 points, wound up third in the final ACC individual scoring race. Clemson's Bill Yarborough gaining second with a 28.3 average to Hemric's final 27.6. North Carolina's Len Rosenbluth at 25.6 and N. C. State's Ron Shavlik at 22.1 rounded out the first five scorers for the season.

The individual field goal shooting crown went to Virginia's Bob McCarty, who hit 236 of 444 shots for a 53.1 accuracy percentage. Wake Forest's Jackie Murdock won the free throw title with an 83.5 per cent accuracy mark on 101 free throws made in 121 attempts. A minimum of 100 field goals and 73 free throws scored was required for title contention. Hemric won individual rebound honors with an average of 19 per game. Shavlik was second with 18.1.

Wake Forest claimed both team efficiency crowns, posting a 46 per cent figure in field goal shooting and 75.6 ver cent from the foul line. Virginia was second in field goal accuracy with 44.2 per cent, also second at charity row with 72.8. Wake Forest, with its 75.6 per cent free throw shooting average, led the nation for the second straight season.

The Majors!

"New" Alston Expects Bums To Be Better

MIAMI, Fla., March 11—(AP)—Sophomore Skipper Walter Alston today cited several reasons why his runnerup Brooklyn Dodgers will be better this season, not the least important reason being that he expects to be a better manager.

"I think it will be easier for me this year," said the man who was criticized in some quarters last year for being indecisive, "because I know my own club much better and because I am more familiar with the rest of the league."

Already they're calling the quiet, scholarly gentleman from Oxford, Ohio, the "new Alston" because of the way he has taken charge in camp here. A year ago at this time he was a man groping in strange surroundings, undecided just how to deal with such established stars as Jackie Robinson, Peewee Reese, Gil Hodges, Roy Campanella, Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and the rest. Today, he is giving signs of becoming a take-charge manager.

The players have felt it, too. As a result, the team appears in shape to open the season right now despite the unusually late spring training start.

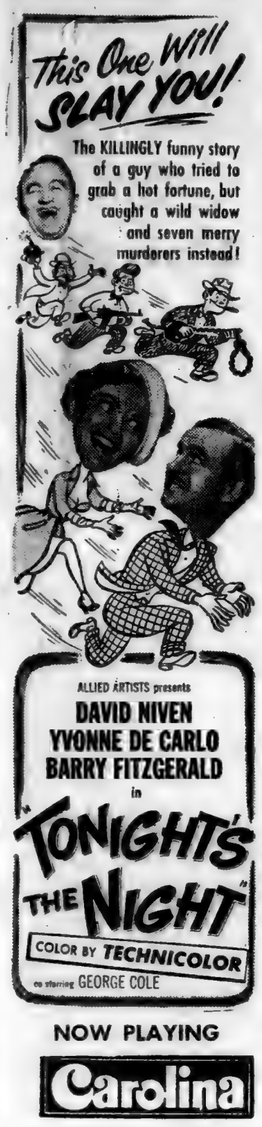
BOB and MONK

of

TOWN & CAMPUS

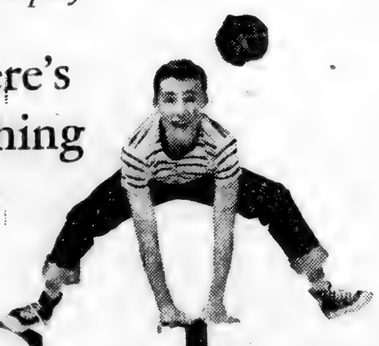
SALUTE

CHARLIE KREPP



for his outstanding performances this past week-end in the Atlantic Coast Conference Swimming Tournament. Krepp took firsts in the 100-yard and 200-yard backstrokes and was a member of the winning medley relay team.

We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house



We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.

TOWN & CAMPUS

50 million times a day
at home,
at work or while at play

There's nothing like a

Coke

1. FOR TASTE... bright, bracing ever-fresh sparkle.
2. FOR REFRESHMENT... a welcome bit of quick energy that brings you back refreshed.

DRINK Coca-Cola

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY

DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

BERMAN'S

KHAKI PANTS
2.98 and 3.98
ANVIL ARMY TYPE
CHINOS
4.98
BLUE DENIM
PANTS
2.98

CROSBY SQUARE
Black loafer 9.98
CROSBY SQUARE
Saddle Oxfords;
Black and White
Brown and White
9.98
New Black Loafers
$5.95
LEE RIDERS—Western
Were 4.50
Now 3.98
U. S. PRO KEDS
White Court King Oxfords—6.95
Other Tennis Oxfords—2.98

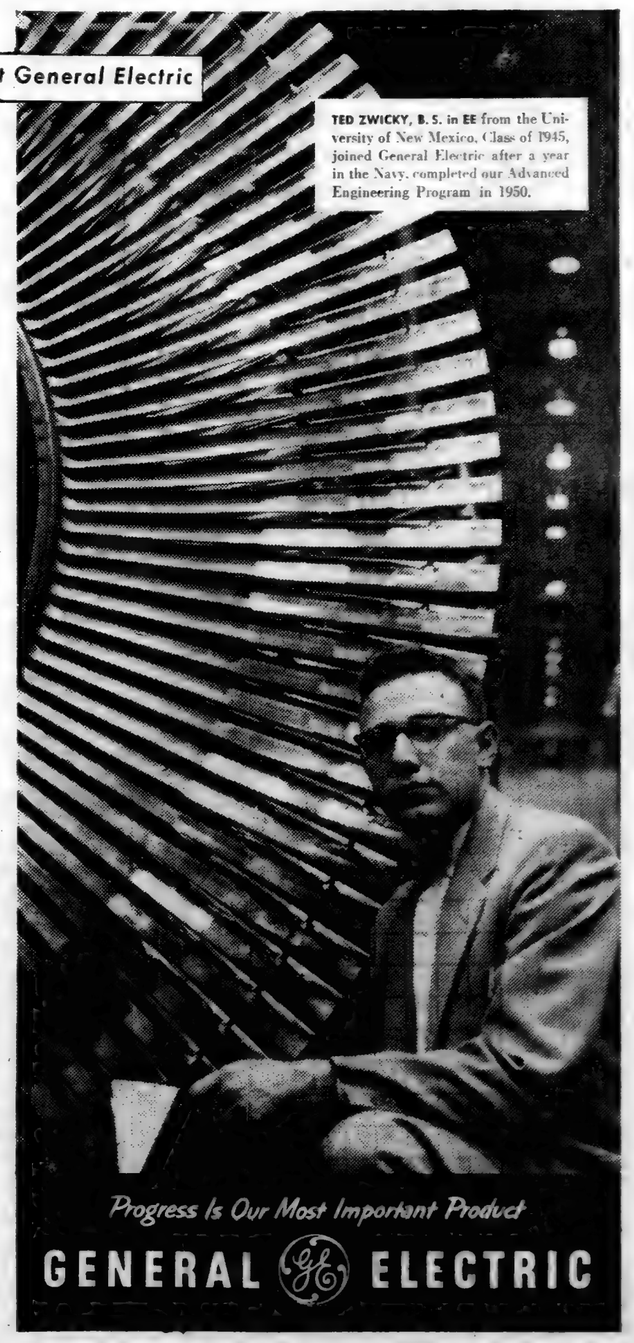
MEN'S PAJAMAS
New Shipment
Bright new patterns
2.98

Black Gabardine Slacks
Ivy League—4.98
Huskies Moccasins
Were 5.00—Now 3.98

BERMAN'S
DEPT. STORE

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer is responsible for design analysis of $3,000,000 turbine-generators



The average large steam turbine-generator costs $3,000,000 and takes two years to build. It is one of the biggest pieces of electrical equipment made. Yet its thousands of parts are put together as carefully as a fine watch. Even a small change in design can affect the stresses and vibration of the turbine, and the way it performs. At General Electric, several men share the responsibility of predicting those effects before the turbine is built. One of them is 29-year-old E. E. Zwicky, Jr.

His job: analytical engineer

Here's what Ted Zwicky does. He takes a proposed mechanical design feature, describes it mathematically, breaks it down into digestible bits, modifies it, and feeds it to electronic computers. (It may take two months to set up a problem; the computers usually solve it in twenty minutes.) Then Zwicky takes the answers from the computers, translates and interprets them so they can be followed by design engineers.

23,000 college graduates at General Electric

This is a responsible job. Zwicky was readied for it in a careful program of development. Like Zwicky, each of our 23,000 college-graduate employees is given a chance to find the work he does best and to realize his full potential. For General Electric believes this: When young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, and the country.

TED ZWICKY, B. S. in EE from the University of New Mexico, Class of 1945, joined General Electric after a year in the Navy, completed our Advanced Engineering Program in 1950.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

---Mundy Still In Race?---

Endorsement Winners Kraar And Yoder, Loser Dave Mundy Issue Statements On SP Meeting

After the Student Party named co - runners Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder its candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel Monday night, both the winning duet and the loser, David Mundy, gave statements to the press.

Kraar and Yoder, now endorsed by both the SP and University Party, accepted the nomination by saying:

"We are, of course, pleased and honored that the Student Party has seen fit to nominate us. We now ask for the support of every student on this campus to help us to make next year's Daily Tar Heel the best ever—an ambassador of the best traditions of the University."

MUNDY STATEMENT

Munday, who yesterday told a reporter that he was undecided whether or not he would run as an independent, said:

"I am quite naturally disappointed by the decision of the Student Party. My candidacy has, however, had part of the desired effect even without winning a party endorsement. I had hoped that the students would have a fair opportunity to make some very important decisions regarding the conduct and emphasis of their student newspaper.

"Yet I think the candidacy itself, and the discussion in the party meetings, has served notice that the student newspaper must be more responsible to the students whose fees finance it.

"Its conduct and emphasis will probably be more responsible in the future, if the threat of possible organized opposition exists to counteract the editor's pechant to criticize for the sake of criticizing.

"I would like to express my appreciation for the kind support and offers of support which have come from individuals throughout the student body.

"The 'soothing balm' of their kind support, and a realistic appraisal of student politics forestalls any possibility of my being bitter about the decision. I would, however, like to remark upon an unfortunate trend in campus politics this spring, the trend towards 'deal making' merely on the grounds of 'you support me and I'll support you.' The students I expect to react very strongly against such behavior. And, in passing, I would like to withdraw my prediction of last Thanksgiving to the effect that Mr. Muntzing would be the next president of the student body."

AT LIVINGSTONE COLLEGE:

Coeds Attend Y Meeting

By AMY COOKE

Last Friday afternoon saw six representatives from the Carolina YWCA and both executive secretaries driving to Salisbury to attend the state YWCA conference at Livingstone College.

They included Misses Jody Derry, chairman of the conference; Sally Folger, president-elect; Jane Cocke, incoming vice-president; Amy Cooke, Peggy Ballard and Jackie McCarthy.

One of the highlights of the weekend was the speech which Mrs. Arnold Nash gave Friday night when she discussed "The Dilemma of Modern Woman," emphasizing the problems women will meet in marriage if they are educated, the responsibilities of a wife who is working at a career of her own and touching on the problems and rewards which an unmarried woman may have.

The discussion groups on Saturday carried out the theme by discussing "Modern Woman: Her Vocation, Her Social Responsibilities, Her Civic Duties." Such questions as "Is a calling simply an immature feeling?" were raised. Long discussions over the problems involved in integration took place, asking "What must an educated woman do when her society faces such a problem?" One group got into an active discussion over sources of political information, so that they could keep themselves informed. Also, the questions were asked, "Where is a woman's primary responsibility?" and "How does she choose in the areas of personal and family enjoyments, cultural benefits, religious work and social responsibilities?"

Some of the time was spent discussing such Y problems as membership, program and finance. The girls heard about the World University Service, for which a great deal of the money in the Campus Chest is going to this year.

The big event of Saturday was the Centennial Banquet, at which Miss Edith Lerrigo, executive secretary of the National Student YWCA, gave the main speech concerning "The Years Ahead."

Among the things most remembered by the girls attending will be the graciousness of their hosts at Livingstone, their sharing in the experiences of another school, their inter-racial discussions on segregation and the problems it brings, their effective worship services and the new meaning which came to them as members of the YWCA.

One For Brumfield . . .

The discussions were heated and the language fiery at Monday's SP meeting where Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder were endorsed by that party for co-editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

It was noticed while the votes were being counted that none other than Lewis Brumfield received one member's nomination for editor.

Village Bingo Party Success

The benefit bingo party held in the Victory Village community center last Saturday night was termed a "big success" by the Village board of directors.

More than $130 was realized from the party after expenses, said Chuck Lewis, board treasurer. The proceeds will be used to buy teaching materials for the Victory Village Day Care Center.

The 75 people who attended the party had more than 60 prizes to try for. Half of the prizes consisted of baked goods—cakes, cookies, pies—that were donated by residents of Victory Village. The rest of the prizes were of a more permanent nature, and 20 of these were donated by as many Chapel Hill merchants.

Many of the participants who arrived for the first game at 7:30 p.m. stayed until the last prize was won at 10:30 p.m.

Music Fraternity Holds Reception For Johnson

A reception was held last night in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial in honor of Thor Johnson, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

The reception was held by Alpha Rho Chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Fraternity, of which Johnson served as president of during two of his undergraduate years here.

Active members of the chapter, local alumni and the members of the orchestra attended the reception along with the guest of honor.

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

ANYONE MOVING FROM CHApel Hill in June, who has bedroom and living room furniture to sell, please contact Tom Abernethy, 310 Aycock, Phone 9302. (1-9091-3)

IS A FRIEND SICK? SEND HIM a get-well card from Ledbetter-Pickard's selection. He'll appreciate your thought so much.

What Goes On Here

WOMEN'S SELECTION BOARD

The Bipartisan Board for endorsement of candidates for Women's Honor Council in the spring elections will meet to interview candidates today from 4 until 6 p.m. and tomorrow from 7 until 9 p.m. in the Honor Council Room in Graham Memorial.

MEN'S SELECTION BOARD

The Bipartisan Board for selection of candidates to run for seats on the Men's Honor Council in the spring elections will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Men's Council Room of Graham Memorial. The seats open on the Council are for three seniors, one junior, one graduate student and one pharmacy student.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

The Young Republicans Club will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge Number 3.

UNIVERSITY CLUB

The University Club will not meet tomorrow night as scheduled. A meeting has been scheduled for March 24 at which officers will be elected. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounges 1 and 2.

LAW WIVES

The Law Wives will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Victory Village Day Center to hear Dr. J. P. Harland speak on "Archaeology and the Bible." Dr. Harland will illustrate his talk with slides.

STUDENT COUNCIL SELECTIONS

The Bipartisan Board for the selection of candidates to run in the spring elections for Student Council will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial to interview interested students. All men and women who are rising juniors and seniors interested in running should attend the meeting.

FILM CRITICS

The Film Critics Club will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial. The speaker will be Andy Gutierrez, manager of the Varsity Theater, who will talk on "Problems of Theater Managing."

UNC-DUKE PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM

The UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the physics building of Duke University. Dr. Keith Brueckner of Indiana University, will speak on "Nuclear Saturation and Nuclear Structure."

Wednesday's WUNC

7 p.m.—Adventures of Clara Chuff.

7:15—Music In the Air.

7:30—French Press Review.

7:45—Cosmopolitan Interview With John Riebel.

8—BBC Drama: "Those In Favor."

9:30—Britain and the Tide of World Affairs.

10—Local, State and National News Followed by Program Resume.

10:15—Evening Masterwork

Easter's Showing Here Now

Larger and more beautiful than ever before, the Morehead Planetarium's annual tribute to Easter opened last night and will run through April 24.

Titled "Easter, the Awakening," the pageant is basically the same as its five predecessors, but for the second consecutive year it has been expanded with larger settings and improved with more colorful and spectacular lighting. The effect of every addition, however, has been to enhance the spiritual value of the Easter production.

One of the new features is a panoramic setting of the land in which Christ preached, partook of the last supper, was crucified and on the third day "arose from the dead." The first portion of the program relates Easter as a festival of the early church, and the second follows closely the Scripture's story of the Savior's last days on earth.

Deadline Set For Coed Advisors' Applications

All coeds who are interested in acting a student advisors for the Women's Orientation program should submit an application to their house presidents before March 25, according to Miss Sara Alice Jackson, chairman of Women's Orientation.

The advisors will be selected within the next few weeks, said Miss Jackson. She added that approximately 70 advisors will be needed for the fall.

The majority of the advisors will be chosen from general college, with the remainder made up of nurses, dental hygienists, medical technicians, town and pharmacy girls, according to Miss Jackson.

Chancellor Assails Lag In Recreation

"The love of working with a dedicated spirit is America's greatest virtue, but her greatest lag is in proper recreation and play, which makes possible creative work," Chancellor R. B. House said Monday in an address before health educators meeting here.

Chancellor House spoke on "Education for a Free Society" at the opening sessiin of the 10th annual Working Conference for Health Educators, which will continue through today, sponsored by the Department of Health Education, UNC School of Public Health.

Dr. Eunice N. Tyler, professor of health education, presided and Dr. Edward G. McGavran, dean of the School of Public Health, spoke briefly.

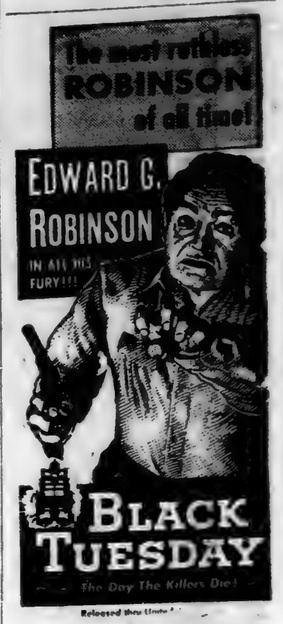
Where Winter Never Comes

By Marston Bates

If you dream of a winter in the tropics, here's the book for you. Does for the natural history of the equatorial belt what "Gods Graves.. and Scholars" does for archaeology, and a mighty elegant job it is! Published at 3.50.

Our Special

$1.49



There's a bargain just for you at

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

TRANSPORTATION CLUB

The Transportation Club will hold a general meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge. The meeting will be open to all interested students.

LAST TIMES TODAY
Varsity

For the best in Combo music call Jim Crisp at 96102 after 5:30 P. M.

By appointment purveyors of soap to the late King George VI, Yardley & Co., Ltd., London

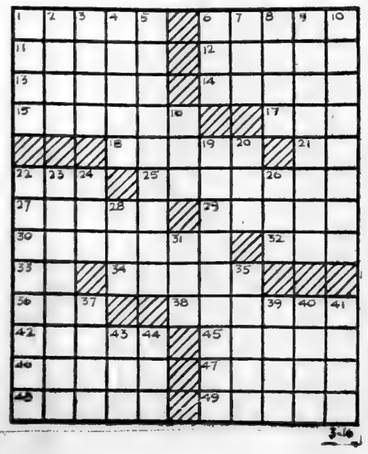
Yardley brings you a super-wetting Shaving Foam—London style

Are you looking for a finer pressure shave? This distinguished product—conceived in England and made in America—has a new super-wetting action which wilts the beard in a trice. The foam washes off the face instantly (or rub it in!) and leaves a most refreshing after-feeling. Normal shaving time is cut by half. At your campus store, $1. Makers and distributors for U.S.A., Yardley of London, Inc., New York.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
Gives You The True Tobacco Taste You've Been Missing!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS



1. Coins (Turk.)
6. Portion
11. Magistrate (Rom.)
12. A book of the Old Testament
13. A wild beast of cat family
14. Live
15. Perish from hunger
17. Common (Hawaii)
18. Lodge doorkeeper
21. Pound (abbr.)
22. One-spot card
25. Comfortable
27. Unit of weight in gem stones
29. A freshet
30. Frame used as a support
32. Property (Law.)
33. At home
34. Sharp ends of hammer heads
36. Man's nickname
38. Kind of drum
42. Turn away
45. Angry
46. Potato (dial.)
47. Girl's name
48. Leave off, as a syllable
49. Jumping disease (Malayan)

DOWN

1. Cherished animals
2. Mine entrance
3. Capital (Latvia)
4. Wide-awake
5. Napkin
6. Feminine pronoun
7. Worry (dial.)
8. Hindu month
9. Determined
10. Things to eat
16. Guido's highest note
19. Indispensable
20. Twilled fabric
22. To make active
23. Traveling amusement show
24. Before
26. Distant
28. Viper
31. Marshy meadow
35. A sacred grove (among Kols of India)
37. Genitive of "Cetus," the Whale
39. A lure
40. Wheaten flour (Ind.)
41. Girl's name
43. Free
44. Golf mound

Yesterday's Answer

LI'L ABNER

By Al Capp

POGO

By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Cold front from northwest bringing cold, cloudy weather for the week; possible showers today.

The Daily Tar Heel

HOUSE

The University's Chancellor House "remember's Chapel Hill" for today's editorial page. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 119 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 17, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Mundy Withdraws From Daily Tar Heel Editor's Race

SP Endorses Brumfield For Head Cheerleader; Chooses Senior Class Candidates

By NEIL BASS

The Student Party last night endorsed Lewis Brumfield as a candidate for UNC head cheerleader.

Frank Warren, lately at odds with the Cobb Dormitory president on political issues, nominated him. The final selection of cheerleaders will be made by a bipartisan board. So the party has just given Brumfield a vote of confidence.

The session, attended by only a handful of people, was called by the SP to wind up its candidate picking.

Three posts were filled with nominees, however, for senior class offices. Like most of the nominations of the night, acclamation was given to Shirley Jordan for secretary, Susan Fuchs for treasurer and Ancy Hoover for social chairman.

In legislative nominations nominees were selected in town men's III; Dan Turner, Bill Cyr and Jerry Brodreau;

In town men's I: Charles Ashby, Dan Wallace and Bill Moore. In dorm men's III; Andy Milnor, and town women's: Jackie Wilkins.

The following slate of nominees was approved by the SP for sophomore class officers: Dave Weinberger; treasurer, and Nancy Nasseur, social chairman. Other posts had been previously selected.

McCurry Wants More Concern With Students

Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, stressed the importance of a more active interest on the part of student government officials in the needs of individual students in a statement released yesterday.

He said that there are many problems of a less extensive nature that effect only certain groups on campus.

"I don't want anything that may interest any student to be overlooked," said McCurry. "I want attention given to the minority as well as the majority."

In his statement the presidential candidate proposed to accomplish the closer contact by issuing periodic reports to The Daily Tar Heel which would contain a report on all executive activities.

McCurry also expressed in his statement a desire to take student government to the basic levels of campus life by attending dormitory meetings and other group assemblies such as the Interfraternity Council and the Women's Residence Council. He said that his purpose in attending these meetings would be to make himself available for questions and discussions which may effect those areas relative the student government.

Poetry Needs 'Submission'

Frost Touches Many Subjects In Lecture

Robert Frost, whose poems have been interpreted many ways by many people, last night told a Hill Hall audience a little bit about reading poetry.

"The bottom of it all," said the poet-author-lecturer, is in "submission." Frost defined "submission" as the ability to "lie back and take (poetry) until it's done what it had in it to you."

Frost's reading-lecture here was sponsored by the University Department of English. Frost spoke to a capacity crowd in Hill Hall.

The poet commented on several areas of life, and recited 11 of his poems.

Frost, who has been coming to Chapel Hill since the 1920's, said "Education gives you the nicest little towns in the United States; . . . never mind whether they educate or not." He defined the country's segregation problem as not a question of "color line," but of "the Mason-Dixon line."

As to interpretation of his poetry, Frost said he didn't mind a person's understanding of it, "but I hope it'll have a little connection with what I said."

Legal Society Names Pledges

Vance Inn of Phi Delta Phi, international legal fraternity, has announced its pledge class for 1955.

The neophytes will be initiated into the brotherhood next week. The initiation will be held jointly with Ruffin Inn of Wake Forest College and Hughes Inn of Duke University Law School. Presiding over the ceremony will be Chief Justice M. V. Barnhill; Associate Justice J. Wallace Winborne; Associate Justice Emery B. Denny, former Chief Justice W. A. Devin of the North Carolina Supreme Court, and Francis J. Fairley, Province 4, President of the national organization. After the initiation there will be a speakers banquet at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh with Dean S. D. G. Ribble of the University of Virginia Law School as guest speaker.

Honorary initiates are Associate Justice R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids and Associate Justice William H. Bobbitt of Charlotte.

Law students being initiated are James A. Alspaugh, Greensboro; Richmond G. Bernhardt, Lenoir; Spencer L. Blaylock, Greensboro; David R. Cockman, Ramseur; James P. Crews, Winston-Salem. Arthur S. C. DeBerry, Tarboro; John D. Eller, Jr., Winston-Salem; Jack T. Hamilton, Smithfield; Lewis H. Parham, Jr., Charlotte; Thomas P. Peacock, Alexandria, Va.

Robert H. Sapp, Reynolda; Bo Snyder, Chapel Hill; Hubert O. Teer, Jr., Durham, and Charles M. White III, Manson.

Coffee Breaks 'Success'

"The coffee breaks were a booming success," said Jack Stevens, co-chairman of Greek Week, yesterday.

Coffee breaks were held by the sororities for pledges in connection with Greek Week.

Greek Week is the week of activities instituted by fraternities to replace the traditional Hell Week.

Tonight fraternities will give exchange dinners so pledge classes may get to know one another.

A late show will be held at the Varsity for pledges at 11:30 tonight, said Stevens.

Cleaning up Victory Village, this year's pledge project, will occupy initiates Friday afternoon.

Winding up the week's events is the banquet in Lenoir Hall, Friday night. Trophies will be awarded for Field Day activities and for the best pledge class.

Burt Veazy is the other co-chairman of Greek Week.

MEN'S SELECTION BOARD

The Bipartisan Board for selection of candidates to run for seats on the Men's Honor Council in the spring elections will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Men's Council Room of Graham Memorial. The seats open on the Council are for thre seniors, one junior, and one sophomore.

Blue & White Winner

Miss Jackie Van Hook is winner of the Monogram Club's annual Miss Blue and White contest, according to Club President Wilbur Jones last night.

More detailed account of the contest will be in tomorrow's Daily Tar Heel.

Playmakers Set Courses For Summer

The Junior Playmakers, a special feature of the summer session sponsored by the Department of Dramatic Arts, will be revived this year by the Carolina Playmakers after having been discontinued for several years.

The students will gain practical experience in acting and stage production through rehearsals and performances of both the senior and junior Playmakers.

Special instructors who have been appointed to assist with the high school sessions are Louise Lamont, head of the Lamont School of Creative Dramatics in Chapel Hill, as instructor of acting; Josephina Niggli, playwright author and Professor of Dramatic Art at Woman's College, Greensboro, as instructor in playwriting: Harvey Whetstone, graduate student at the University, as instructor of stagecraft, and William O'Sullivan, star of "Almanac," WUNC-TV, as instructor in voice and diction.

Kraar, Yoder Remain

(Candidates Yoder and Kraar answer Mundy's withdrawal; see story this column.)

"I will not be a candidate for editor as an independent," announced David Mundy yesterday.

Mundy opposed co-candidates Kraar and Yoder for editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. He sought endorsement from both the SP and the UP. The ex-columnist failed to obtain either party's nomination.

Mundy, in withdrawing from the race yestrday, said:

DAVE MUNDY
. . . can't fight organization

"I will not be a candidate for editor as an independent. This does not mean that I feel any less strongly about the conduct of The Daily Tar Heel; nor does it sig-

(See MUNDY, page 4)

Combo Answers Mundy

Co-candidates Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar expressed "regret" upon learning of David Mundy's withdrawal from The Daily Tar Heel editorship race yesterday.

In making their statement, Kraar and Yoder said:

"We learn with regret that David Mundy will not be an independent candidate for the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel.

"Without meaning to pry into his personal reasons for withdrawal, we feel that they are not altogether the reasons he gave in his statement.

"We have appeared in open debate with Mr. Mundy before the two organized political groups. We have laid our objectives, we think,

(See COMBO, page 4)

Valkyries, Top Organization For Coeds, Initiates Four In Secret, Pre-Dawn Rites

VALKYRIES COOKE, WALKER, McCARTHY & BAUMANN
. . . tapped into society this morning

Baumann, McCarthy, Cooke And Walker

Four senior coeds were tapped for membership in The Valkyries, highest women's honorary organization on campus, this morning in secret, pre-dawn ceremonies.

Bebe Baumann of Lakewood, Ohio; Amy Cooke of Bethesda, Md.; Jacqueline McCarthy of Norfolk, Va., and Barbara Walker of Rye, N. Y., were the four brought into the Valkyries group, which now numbers 13 active members.

Founded at UNC in 1941, the organization replaced Alpha Kappa Gamma, national honorary society, and corresponds to the local highest men's honorary society, Order of the Golden Fleece.

LIMITED MEMBERSHIP

Membership, which is limited to two per cent of the coed student body, is based on leadership, scholarship, character and service to the campus.

The four newly-tapped coeds have been prominent in all phases of campus life since coming to Chapel Hill.

MISS BAUMANN

Miss Baumann is house manager of Delta Delta Delta Sorority and on the staff of the Carolina Quarterly, student literary magazine. She acts as chairman of the Social Responsibility Committee of the YWCA and serves on the Y Hospital and Human Relations Committees.

MISS COOKE

Miss Cooke, a member of the Women's Residence Council and the Independent Coed Board, is chairman of the Student Party Advisory Board and a member of the Canterbury Club.

MISS McCARTHY

A physical education major, Miss McCarthy represents Carr Dormitory in the Women's Athletic Association and serves on the Bible Saudy and Vespers Committee of the YWCA, Wesley Guild Worship Committee, and worked as orientation adviser. She is a member of the Hockey Club and Glee Club.

MISS WALKER

Miss Walker, a member of Chi Omega Sorority, serves on the Panhellenic Council, Women's Honor Council and House Council. She is fiction editor for the Carolina Quarterly, program chairman of the YWCA, member of the University Party, student legislature and YWCA Human Relations Committee.

Muntzing Fears Cars May Be Banned Here

"If student cars are to remain, not just this year alone, but for the future as well, student initiative on this problem must be forthcoming at once," said Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing in a statement issued yesterday.

Muntzing said in his statement that the problem of cars here has been mentioned in the report of the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustees. "In 1948 Saturday classes and the semester system were also mentioned to the trustees, and five years later the semester system replaced the quarter system," said Muntzing. He added "Representatives of the faculty, meeting in Raleigh last week, adopted a measure against the possession of cars by students at the University."

"Students and the student government" must act upon the problem of cars here, according to Muntzing's statement, "if cars are not to take the route that the quarter system did."

"As immediate solutions to this problem," said the presidential candidate, "I should like to see, first, a redistricting of the present parking facilities in order that those restricted areas not presently used during the daytime may be put to their fullest advantage. This would mean dividing those parking areas which have constantly been unused into faculty and student sections.

"In the second place," said Muntzing's stateament, "I should like to se a student traffic court established which would handle student violations of parking on campus and unregistered cars with all fines being reverted to student government. This money would be used to continue the derayment of the cost of campus policement and secondly, to be used to the best interest of the student body, preferably in a fund for the future building of a new student union," added Muntzing.

After Investigation Talk:

Legislature To Settle Down A Little Tonight

Now that the University Party and the Student Party have picked their respective candidates for most of the major student government offices, the student Legislature can again settle down to business. The body meets tonight at 7:30.

Although the last few sessions have seen few bills passed that were of major importance to the student body as a whole, it cannot be said that the meetings were dull. For while the legislators didn't have bills to haggle over, they took to "investigating" and even, in the case of Lewis Brumfield and Frank Warren, having personal feuds among themselves.

The investigation, came as a result of an accusation that The Daily Tar Heel was lacking in "quality." One legislator even went to the extreme and called The Daily Tar Heel the "second Daily Worker." (The legislator later said the newspaper was not Communist.)

Now that the group has a busy agenda coming up, they won't have time for alll these incidents.

The bills to be voted on tonight are SP-introduced measures to give the Legislature another representative on the Graham Memorial Board of Directors and, to give the nurse's dormitory a representative on the Women's Honor Council;

UP-introduced measures are: One to give the attorney general of the student government more power; one to appropriate funds to the All Campus Conference and, one to give the Dance Committee funds to publish a booklet about Carolina traditions to send to surrounding women's colleges so they will be more familiar with Carolina.

Spring: University workmen cutting grass in front of Manning Hall; odor drifting up to second floor Saunders.

* * *

Cross-eyed, toothless Marine on poster in front of Post Office; been up there two months, now.

* * *

Label on Chapel Hill manholes: "Sanitary Sewer."

Cheerleader Interviews Set This Afternoon

The Bipartisan Board to endorse candidates for next year's head cheerleader will hold interviews today.

The board will meet in the Council Room of Graham Memorial. The meeting will begin at 4 p.m. Anyone wishing to be interviewed should be there by 4:40, according to Jim Fountain, present head cheerleader. He said the meeting will last as long as is necessary to interview all persons who have arrived by 4:30.

Fountain requested as many students as have any interest in the post to be on hand for the interviews. Those endorsed by the board will be placed on the spring elections ticket. Anyone may run independently, however.

Applicants will be quizzed as to their character, qualifications and ideas for bettering the cheerleading system in its effect, according to Fountain. He said new yells and cheerleading formations are examples of the ideas that the board will welcome from aspirants.

The board will also conduct an orientation to advise candidates of existing policies and plans, said Fountain.

Spring Elections

All nominations for spring elections must be in by midnight Friday, according to Patsy Daniels, chairman of Elections Board.

The nominations must be signed by the Dean of Student Affairs, she added.

A nominations meeting will be held Tuesday night. All candidates must attend, said Miss Daniels.

Elections are March 29. Run-offs will take place April 5.

$48.79 Raised Here In Heart Fund Drive

In the recent heart fund drive, $48.79 has been raised on the Carolina campus, it was announced yesterday by the state office of the drive, headed by Bill Wood. Wood expressed his thanks to contributors.

Shulman Book Given Free To Students

Copies of Max Shulman Revisited, a collection of some Philip Morris Max Shulman columns, have placed around campus by Philip Morris and Company.

The copies may be obtained free by the students. A company representative said yesterday the pamphlets would be put in places around the campus such as the Y, Monogram Club and the Scuttlebutt.

The columns contained in the pamphlets are those entitled I Was Awarded A Ribbon and Promptly Put In My Typewriter, What Every Young Coed Should Wear, Clothes Make The BMOC, Science Made Simple Numbers 1 and 2 and The Treehouse Of The August Moon.

SAYS CONDUCTOR JOHNSON:

Try Music Last

By ED MYERS

"If you can be anything else, be it, but if you find yourself trapped, then go ahead and enjoy the music profession."

This is the advice that Thor Johnson, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and Carolina graduate, gives to all aspiring musicians.

Before assuming the Memorial Hall podium Tuesday night, which stood near the spot where Dave Brubeck "started" and "stopped" his quartet no more than a week before, Johnson talked excitedly about the class of '34 and how things have changed.

"When I was in school here music was in its infancy at Chapel Hill; why, I had more opportunities to do things than I would have had ordinarily. I directed the music for the Playmakers all four years I was here; then too, the North Carolina Symphony was just forming and there were the small ensembles and dance bands," said Johnson.

"One group I remember particularly well was the Carolina Salon Ensemble." He paused, and said in a serious tone, "be sure to spell that with one "o!" We gave exactly 100 concerts. I shall always be grateful for so many opportunities to direct."

(As a matter of fact, Thor Johnson directed the first orchestra to ever perform in Memorial Hall.)

When asked about progressive jazz and Dave Brubeck, Johnson answered, "I haven't been able to follow Brubeck but I did follow Kenton for a while. The fascinating thing about progressive jazz is that the finest elements of this form are also the most important componants of American contemporary music.

"The rhythmic patterns and voicing of various instruments are also found in the works of our American composers, mainly because all of them have had experience in arranging for dance bands or playing in them."

Help Students Around The World — Give Today To Your Campus Chest

Much Culture, No Dough: WUNC

Without stirring from your easy chair, you could have heard, during the past week, President Gray's significant State of the University speech, the presentation of the O. Max Gardner award and Governor Hodges' speech at the award ceremony, the Cincinnati Symphony in a concert, a speech by the Chinese educator, Dr. Y. C. Yen, and a lecture-recital by poet Robert Frost.

The University's FM station, WUNC, broadcast all this to its listeners last week, along with a fat schedule of fine music, interviews and educational programs.

When it is remembered that half of these special events came from Raleigh and that Yen and Frost spoke at the same time in different buildings on the campus last night (WUNC recorded one speech and played it back later) some of the advantages of this literate, cultural voice in our midst become apparent.

Now—consider this: WUNC's FM interest, entertainment and education is dispensed without a budget. The student-run station has been operating for years without a slice of the state appropriations pie.

University television is asking for $434,000 from the General Assembly; and TV needs it, and should have it. But we can't help thinking that some small portion of that giant figure—say, a pittance of $10,000 or so might be channelled toward radio, which, unheralded and unbudgeted, has become an intelligent speaker and a genuine servant to the University.

New Model

The Spring 1955 model of American foreign policy went into the State Department showroom yesterday.

Says Secretary Dulles: U. S. forces everywhere are now equipped with special purpose atomic weapons designed to kill tactical targets without killing civilians.

So now its minimum, rather than massive, retaliation.

A Shortage Of Barefoot Boys

The Charlotte News

The word is out that the people who give Horatio Alger Awards are finding it more difficult every year to dig up a sizeable list of candidates. There are fewer and fewer success stories in the barfoot-boy-makes-good vein.

Actually there never were very many real-life Horatio Alger heroes in America. A recent analysis made of 300 notable Americans chosen for the Encyclopedia Of American History indicated that at least 204 came from privileged backgrounds—from families of wealth, social position or strong cultural interests. Few actually rose from poverty.

Why then has the rags-to-riches formula been so prominent in American folklore? It goes back to the earliest days of the republic. It can be traced to the persistent conviction that the roots of American democracy were nurtured in the backwoods and farmlands of the nation. The self-made man has always been the American hero. It's a pretty picture but most of the nation's multi-million dollar happy endings today trace their happy beginnings to the day a latter-day Huck Finn marries the boss' daughter, picks up a stake in a floating crap game or awakes in his birth bed to find a silver spoon in his mouth.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor ..... CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors ..... LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager ..... TOM SHORES

Sports Editor ..... BERNIE WEISS

News Editor ..... Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager ..... Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager ..... Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager ..... Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor ..... Ray Linker
Photographer ..... Boyden Henley
Society Editor ..... Susan Andes

NEWS STAFF—Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Ebba Freund, Peggy Ballard, Lois Owen.

Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Sophistication & Chapel Hill's Younger Set

Louis Kraar

THIS UNIVERSITY town has always struck me as having a sophisticated air, but not until yesterday did I realize the extent to which his enchantment affects the younger set.

Three youngsters, two girls and a boy, had found comfortable seats among the magazines in Sutton's. Their twelve-year-old reading habits seemed to find an outlet among the slick-covered publications.

The little girl read comic books. But the young boy—obvious under the sophistication of the Hill—sat intently studying The New Yorker.

★

THE NEWSBOY in front of the Post Office seems to improve in his salesmanship each afternoon.

I was entering the Post Office with an afternoon paper already under my arm, when the boy asked insistently, "Paper?"

I pointed to the one under my arm.

And he replied, "Are you sure that it's today's though?"

★

SINCE MEN began reading the Bible, I guess, they've used quotations from the good book to justify a wide range of actions. The current speakers for and against racial segregation who arm themselves with Bible quotes are nothing new.

Thus, when South Carolina Methodist Minister John P. Roquemore accused evangelist Billy Graham of "misinterpreting" the scripture, I had to laugh.

It all took place the other day at a place called New-Hi Delpha Grange Hall in Darlington, S. C. "Don't let them misinterpret the scripture. God gave Africa to the black man," roared the Methodist minister.

According to news accounts, the minister went on to accuse other ministers of being "brainwashed when it came to relating the Bible verses correctly."

And I never realized there was one "correct" way to relate Bible verses.

★

SEVEN GIRLS, who harmonize nicely on "Tea For Two," stopped students in their tracks the other evening as the septet strolled by Graham Memorial singing, "Picture you upon my knee . . ."

★

A POETIC friend of mine (a male) left a verse called "A Thought for the Politicos" on my typewriter the other day:

"Little men with books and thoughts
Supplied by commissary means
Stroll up and down the brick-laid walks
And smirk in their perplexity."

★

LEWIS BRUMFIELD, who has had an ample share of publicity in this paper lately, will probably run for cheerleader. No one will question his ability to excite audiences by what he says and how he says it.

★

A YEAR ago today the University Party had just taken 20 seconds to acclaim Tom Creasy student body presidential candidate, Don Geiger began his campaign as Student Party presidential candidate, the Di Senate was debating McCarthyism, and Cobb Dorm had come up with a new art cult to replact BRAT.

All candidates were promising to do something about class cuts, free Saturdays, football trips, and "getting closer to the students."

★

JIM MONTEITH, who lost the vice-presidential nomination to Jack Stevens this week, may bolt the University Party and run independently.

Friends of veteran who beat SP wheelhorse Jim Turner in the fall Legislature race are urging him to run. And with one independent already in the field, it would certainly split the party candidates' votes.

'He's Perfectly Healthy—Just Terribly Sensitive'

YOU Said It

St. Patrick's Day Notes

Editor:

"Kuralt" danna sound like an Irish name to me; but this is the day the Irish wish good health to the whole world. So be wearing the green, sir, and advise your readers to do likewise.

North Carolina Irishmen—and our numbers are many—reserve

. . . unless you're Lady Astor

our good cheer this year to all except Lady Astor, who came near spoiling our day with her ill remarks of last week.

So—top o' the morning to you all! Except for the old Virginian named Astor. Bad cess to her! And may her disposition see better days.

R. R. O'Brien

A Word To The Irish: 'Vive, Lady Astor!'

Editor:

Re: Lady Astor and the Irish. Having just returned from viewing this current mediocre flick called "Captain Lightfoot" on the still more mediocre theme, "home rule for Ireland," I'll take the Lady any day in preference to anything the Irish have to offer.

But this is prejudice; and since prejudice is in bad fashion in your newspaper, I would like to let someone else speak. I would like to call your readers' attention to some reflections when Nicholas Monsarrat gives us in The Cruel Sea. He had been discussing Great Britain's allies and her enemies in World War II—and those who were supposed to be neutral.

". . . It was difficult to withhold one's contempt for a country such as Ireland, whose battle this was and whose chances of freedom and independence in the event of a German victory were nil. . .

"From a narrow legal angle, Ireland was within her rights: she had opted for neutrality, and the rest of the story flowed from this decision. She was in fact at liberty to stand aside from the struggle, whatever harm this did the Allied cause. But sailors, watching the ships go down and counting the number of their friends who might have been alive instead of dead, saw the thing in simple terms: They saw Ireland safe under the British umbrella, fed by her convoys and protected by her airforce, her very neutrality guaranteed by the British armed forces: they saw no return for this protection save a condoned sabotage of the Allied war effort; and they were angry—permanently angry. As they sailed past this smug coastline, past people who did not give a damn how the war went as long as they could live on in their fairy-tale world, they had time to ponder a new aspect of indecency. In the list of the people you were prepared to like when the war was over, the man who stood by and watched while you were getting your throat cut would not stand very high."

I dare say that no one in Great Britain, nor for that matter anyone in America whose ancestors came before the potato famine in Ireland, gives a damn about a possible Irish anti-Astor uprising. Furthermore, I hardly think an Irishman is one to talk about Lady Astor's role in world affairs in view of the dastardly little trick Ireland pulled in World War II.

As for my own opinion, I'll shout it so that every shanty Irishman in Boston can hear me: "Vive, Lary Astor! Rule, Brittania- God Save the Queen!"

Wilbur M. Boice, Jr.
Whiteville, N. C.

Is There Political Mileage Left In The Yalta Agreement?

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON—The latest hassle over publication of the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conversations at Yalta ten years ago raises the question: is there any political mileage left in Yalta.

"Certainly not," Democrats answer. "Everybody knows by now that Roosevelt and Churchill accompanied Alger Hiss to Yalta."

But some Republicans answer yes, plenty, and they appear to enjoy the cooperation of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. As a result at least 40 copies of the official Yalta transcript in galley proof are now extant, all "confidential."

Unfortunately for proponents of publication these copies so far have only one political parent, the GOP. No official taker of Democratic party persuasion can be found to receive them and so put himself in a position to be blamed when the inevitable leaks occur.

DULLES BRAIN WAVE

Thus Mr. Dulles' State Department still owns all the copies, lock, stock and barrel and it has announced it would not publish them because it would injure national security and our relations with other powers.

The Dulles brain wave of passing the copies around Congress liberally might have succeeded had it not been for that handy invention, the telephone. When this plan was solemnly announced at noon, reporters dashed to telephones to break the news to such men as Speaker Rayburn, and Chairman Vinson of House Armed Services that at long last they were to be privileged to peek at the secrets of Yalta.

DEMOCRATS SAY NO

These men have an average of 40 years service in Washington and in their creative moments they cannot imagine a political story that 40 members of Congress could keep secret. They perceived instantly the scapegoat role for which they were being cast and the general refusal to accept the copies by the Democratic committee chairmen followed

The State Department is now in retreat: When Dulles played fair with the Speaker and Senator George on the Formosa resolution he got perfect results. The results he will get from this maneuver are precisely what he asked for.

New Liberal Arts Course: 'BA Criticism'

Editor:

Every time I pick up the Daily Tar Heel, I see where some self-styled expert is airing his views on the BA School. In fact, it seems to be the fashion now for the "liberal arts boys" to compete in such criticisms. I haven't noticed it before but there must be a liberal arts course entitled Business Administration Criticism. Otherwise could all these liberal-minded scholars with only a year or year and a half in the school of liberal arts become so qualified to evaluate a portion of the University that has been in existence since 1919 and growing constantly? It really must be a helluva course since so far only students and none of the faculty have felt thus qualified.

The BA School doesn't give a damn about such criticism, but I, for one, have personally gotten sick and tired of reading such bull almost everyday, especially from persons who usually have no idea of what they are talking about, but just find it a good excuse to show their letter-writing prowess. To use the well worn but still applicable term, "GET OFF OUR BACKS."

Ray Harris

'I REMEMBER . . .'

1912: 'I Knew Every Teacher And Student'

Chancellor R. B. House

(Second in the new Daily Tar Heel series, "I Remember Chapel Hill," reminiscenses of some of the University's most distinguished graduates Today, Chancellor House recalls his student days:—Editor.)

In September, 1912, I took the S. A. L. at Thelma, changed to a branch line at Henderson, changed to the Southern at Durham, changed to a branch line at University Station, got off at Carrboro, and rode in to Chapel Hill in a two-horse carriage. Sam Brockwell, Joe Durham, Tank Hunter and Colonel Shakespeare Pendergraph were running automobiles from Chapel Hill to Durham: On other travels to and from Chapel Hill I used these automobiles.

ROOM: $2

Arriving on the campus I went to my room in Vance—$10.00 a month, too rich for my blood. I changed at once to Dr. Battle's cottage, $2.00 a month. I ate at Commons Hall, $10.00 a month. Sometimes I ate at Mrs. Farrar's, or Mrs. Archer's, $15.00 a month. While I was here Swain Hall was opened, with meals at $12.50 a month. I settled down there. Tuition was $60.00 a year, but I got that free by agreeing to teach school a couple of years.

Chapel Hill was as beautiful then as it is now, but there was no paving. We were in dust part of the time and in mud the other part. But, being here, I stayed here. I went home at Christmas, at Easter, and for the summer. Walking was the universal hobby. I explored with friends every possible hike with in ten miles of Chapel Hill.

HUNGRY FOR BOOKS

Socially I knew every person on the faculty and in the student body—not ultimately, but generally. As now, organized or unorganized, we had cliques, groups, and circles of more intimacy. The class was far more of a unit then than it is now. My class has always been a close-knit body.

I came here to study and I never let any other interest interfere with study. I believe to this day that a student's chief business is study. I revelled in the library. I was hungry for books. I still believe that the library is the most inviting place on the campus. My studies were mainly Greek, Latin, and English, but I took every introductory course in science that was offered except Botany, and I wish I could have had that.

CHANCELLOR HOUSE

. . . nothing interfered with studying

THE GREAT TEACHERS

I let the faculty worry about requirements; I followed my bent as far as regulations allowed and chose persons rather than courses. The persons were wonderful—John Lasley (still at it) in Mathematics, Wilbur Royster in Latin, Bully Bernard in Greek, George Sneath in English. Only one, Bully, was a professor. The others were new Instructors. One was just as good as the other it seemed to me. More important, each was good enough to be some miles ahead of me, anyway. Greenlaw, Royster, Hanford, Foerster in English, Horace Williams in Philosophy, Collier Cobb in Geology, H. V. Wilson in Zoology, H. W. Chase in Psychology, Venable in Chemistry, Patterson in Physics were truly great. I am grateful to them.

Administration was simple, both as to money and plant and as to education. I don't think my class made a suggestion in four years to improve any of it. We were too busy enjoying it.

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Cos

(The Horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others.—Hipporotis, circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was currying himself in the lee of Graham Memorial, when I saw him. Patiently waiting their turn at the wire-bristled brush were his sometime companions, Mr. Neckley and Mr Wump. Was all this for Paddy's Day, ohone?

"It's fer iviry day, me lad," The Horse brogued me in honor of The Seventeenth of Oireland. "I have quit the DTH, complete with my high and low-level vision assistants. I'm off to less oinony and perhaps more money-green pastures. Neckley and Wump and sternly stern about this, too."

Double-stern? What meant this?

"Solid behind," The Horse said, "me. And speaking of stern—who caused mine to be sheared off in last Sat'day's issoo? Nipped in the bud is bad, to be sure; but to be nipped in the buddock is the unkindest cut of all. My tale was docked. My colyum ended ere its end."

But, Chollie Kuralt had explained that.

"Explanations be domned!" The Horse reverted to The Ould Sod again. "We put out what must easily win the booby prize of America for fouled-up printing. And I do not refer to merely causing the ink to meet the paper. If there is ooonnneeee thing in God's clean newspaperdom which can offer no excuse, it is petitious errata."

Oh, come now, Horsie!

"I'm not ired, merely tired," The Horse shrugged his platinum mane. "I don't care if I get my copy in two or three days in advance, it comes out looking as if the Print Division of Dix Hill had been at work on it. And for a colyum which strives for a whimsical effect, this is devastating. It is the death-knell. No wonder the kids can't understand it."

I'd heard that mentioned, yes.

"Yeah, I was investigated," The Horse laughed. "Some wondered why the DTH persisted in printing what was constantly puzzling to the students. Well, I do not claim to teach, in my colyum; but if instant understanding were the criterion, no school could open in the following semester."

What did The Horse regard as being his goal, in his colyum?

"Fun with words and ideas," The Horse offered. "Mental gymnastics. Whimsy, fantasy."

What if it depressed some who didn't follow-the-leader with The Horse leading?

"Mental depression is a form of mental exercise," The Horse saw it. "It is akin to touching the brain's toes, and tightens the brain's wasteline. But who wouldn't be depressed when the teller of a joke, after taking up people's time with the groundwork, suddenly says, 'Aw, to hell with the end?'"

Back to that again, eh?

"Yup, back to my end," The Horse agreed. "It is the example closest to hoof. Here I am considering scheduling a seminar on The Eye of the Horse; and what happens? The Horse's tale is docked."

Kuralt had mismeasured The Horse's colyum of that day, I explained again. So he had provided copy to fill it out to a full-colyum length.

"It was already a full-colyum, and Chollie had been so informed," The Horse neighed me. "But it is understandable he mismeasured. So what? So when the proofreader—paid proofreader— saw the addenda was not needed, why not just toss it out?"

What! After spending money to set it?

"Well, money was spent to set my tail," The Horse reminded me. "And it proved a tonsorial service I and the readers could have done without. We return to the prime consideration, me lad, and this is—why cannot the great and good University of North Carolina get themselves a mechanically well-turned-out paper? Yoicks, they have trouble enough, the editors do, with what is readable. But to send out to every major campus in America a sheet of loused-up spellings, upside-down pictures, punk grammar and clobbered reporting is to advertise that we here at North Carolina's Seat of Cultoor & Erudition are not journalistic realists. What is said is important, yes; but nobody listens to an uncouth illiterate when words of wisdom are being sought. And we fit the indictment when we turn out, day after day, a paper which could well be hailed as a compendium of errata."

Did The Horse really think the readers were interested in this hashing over of mechanical details?

"When there remains no excuse for such, yes," The Horse yessed me, although I had hoped he would no me. "I don't care how smart and wise a man is, if he steps into the highways and the byways indecently clad he will be arrested long ere he gets to any lecture hall. My first consideration when scanning the qualifications of editors and-or a printery or a proofreader would be not, 'Can you put out a clever and provocatice paper in a workmanlike way?' but, 'Can you put out a paper?' There is no mystery to how a clean-looking paper is made. The copy must be legible and on time; the editor must specify certain details such as typesize, width, and so on; the linotyper runs the copy off in lines, on his machine; the proofreader reads the proofs and calls for corrections of this and that, or okays the other thing; it is corrected; final proofs are scanned; final corrections are made—and wheee-, off we go!"

Mechanics were everything, with The Horse? "Nay, nay," The Horse neighed floudly. "Merely the first thing. And holding a strict line of discipline here works wonders with a newspaper staff. The editor who won't swallow mechanical faults won't gulp sloppy writing and wrong dates and bad grammar. It is really an editor's duty in training his staff to see that they strive for accuracy and polish. Newspapermen are dictionary-hounds, atlas-conners, date-seekers, almanac-devotees; and curriers of words, phrases, clauses, sentences, paragraphs. But why go to all this trouble and then have some one cog in the mechanics louse up the whole thing? Naw, I'm getting set to quit. I am a copyrighted Horse, and I fear I have forgotten one vital fact: What costs nothing is usually worth just that . . . and is treated thusly."

Ho-ho! ho-ho! The Horse was quitting, then?

"I'm hard to start, and hard to stop," The Horse said, currying the Frog furiously. "I'll continue to quit in my next issue."

"Wump!" Mr. Wump whumped his views of this.

Frosh vs Vets In Blue-White Battle Saturday

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

Not too long ago Frank McGuire, the man who promises to bring big-time basketball to the North Carolna campus, said the only thing he needed to do so was a seven-foot player with talent.

Now that player is in the fold. He's Billy Hathaway, a 17-year-old who spreads 245 pounds over his frame and who, in turn, has been spread over the pages of Life Magazine.

Hathaway, from Long Beach, N. Y., is listed as being 6'10". By the time he plays varsity ball, he will be seven feet. His family announced he once grew five inches within a year.

It was no easy job bagging this prize, especially after Life went to the trouble of promoting him for every coach in the country to note. I have heard that a Wichita coach sent a millionaire to Long Beach every weekend for the specific purpose of nabbing Hathaway.

I also have heard that, among the many other schools, East Carolina College was after him too; only that school knows what they would do with him. It seems Hathaway, though passing, is not a brilliant student and ECC figured his average would not "go" here, and that he should give ECC a try.

But McGuire, now in Kansas at the NCAA finals, was in New York last weekend and talked Hathaway into coming to Carolina. McGuire had the help of Hathaway's high school coach, Bobby Gersten, a former cage star here. Hathaway has definitely said that he would attend UNC.

* * *

This column, titled "Cuff Notes," would lead the reader into believing it is a feature pertaining to music. Usually it does not, but for once, I digress to that field.

Charles "Yardbird" Parker, one of the greatest exponents of bop, died Saturday night in a New York hotel, bringing to an end the production of live notes from his wonderful alto sax.

The great Negro was 53 years old and much of his life was devoted to the music he loved. In fact, New York's famous jazz corner of the world, "Birdland," was named after him.

The nation will miss this man, truly a saxist of tremendous proportions.

Nats May Have First Division Club—Dressen

ORLANDO, Fla., March 16 (AP) —Charlie Dressen seemed in no hurry to begin a detailed discussion of the Washington club and once the new Nats' manager did get going about the team's prospects, the reason for his reticence was obvious.

Aside from some pretty fair pitching, a couple of veterans at first and third and a centerfielder named Jim Busby, the usually chipper little skipper hadn't much to talk about.

"It's still too early to give a fair evaluation of the club," he said. "I haven't even gotten acquainted with all the players yet. There are several I haven't even spoken to. They don't talk English and I don't speak Spanish. They've got an interpreter on the club but he speaks too fast for me."

Based on what he's seen, Dressen thinks his club has a chance to finish in the first division provided "the big guys don't get hurt."

By the "big guys." Chuck meant first baseman Mickey Vernon, third baseman Eddie Yost and Busby.

"I DON'T HAVE the long ball hitters here like I had in Brooklyn," the former Dodger pilot declared. "No Campanellas, Hodges, Sniders and Robinsons. Maybe Roy Sievers, but that's all. I'm not crying, though. What good are long ball hitters in a big park like Griffith Stadium, anyway. Give me the fellows who hit singles and doubles and run like hell. I'll win with 'em."

Beatty's Runs Get High NCAA Ranking

Jimmy Beatty's performances in the mile and two-mile in the Indoor Games here in late February rank him among the top 10 in both events so far this year, according to figures just released by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, the official service bureau of the NCAA.

Allen Pleased With Progress Of Freshmen

By RAY LINKER

As soccer practice nears the half-way mark, many of the boys out for the team have shown skill and ability in the sport worthy of praise by Coach Marvin Allen.

In general, Allen stated that he was satisfied with the progress being made during the spring drills, and commented that his team will have more aggressiveness and strength than was displayed by last fall's squad.

Although bad weather has kept the team from practicing every day, the work that they have done indicates that next fall's lineup will be sprinkled with plenty of this year's freshmen. Allen said there are many freshmen who are showing up exceptionally well.

Some boys out for the first time, including John Lopp and Bobby Moore, drew praise from Allen. In addition to these freshmen and new recruits, there will be 15 lettermen in top contention for posts.

Sophomore Pete Cothran has given a lot of leadership to the forward line, and should be a standout when the season opens in the fall.

The goalie position has not been pulled down by any one person, and Allen said that he is still looking for a top-notch goalie to fill the spot.

There are many fine boys out who can play the halfback position, and Allen must decide which two will get the starting jobs. He has been working the whole team in different places to determine where they can perform best.

This practice session will end March 26, but the team will be called out near the end of the school term for another week of drills. During that time they will hold a practice meet with State College.

Mural Tank Finals Tonight

Here are the participants in the finals of the swimming intramurals to be held in Bowman Gray Pool at 7:30 tonight.

25-yd freestyle—Brumley, Sig Nu; Sutton, Phi Delt; Scholze, SAE; Hornthal, Pi Ka; Pell, SAE; Johnson, Chi Psi.

50-yd breast stroke—Merritt, Sig Nu; Wallace, Chi Psi; Hutchins, SAE; Hare, Phi Gam; Kolman, Phi Kappa; Block, TEP.

100-yd freestyle — Montgomery, Phi Gam; Hicks, Sig Nu; Hudson, Law School; Scholze, SAE; Smith, Phi Delt; Parks; Chi Psi.

50-yd backstroke — Hammrick, Sig Nu; Henderson, SAE; Moore, Phi Delt; Stater, Sig Nu; Wallace, Chi Psi; Ashby, Chi Psi.

Diving — Brumley, Sig Nu; Woods, Phi Delt; Whitehead, Darnell, Phi Delt; Wellons, SAE; Sandridge.

50-yd freestyle—Rossell, Phi Gam; Hornthal, Pika; Jones, SAE; Hudson, Law School; Newcombe, SAE; Smith, Phi Delt.

25-yd backstroke — Hemmrick, Sig Nu; Sutton, Phi Delt; Henderson, SAE; Brumley, Sig Nu; Moore, Phi Delt; Conner, Phi Gam.

75-yd individual freestyle—Hudson, Law School; Hornthall, Pika; Parks, Chi Psi; Pittman, Phi Delt; Smith, Phi Delt; Knight, Phi Delt.

150-yd relay—TEP, Phi Gam, Sig Nu, Chi Psi, Phi Kap Sig, Phi Delta Theta, SAE.

200-yd relay—Chi Psi, Sig Nu, Kap Sig, Phi Delt, SAE.

Ron Marquette And Ed Sutton To Quarterback

Proceeds From Contest To Monogrammers

By JACK MURPHY

The scene is set for the annual Blue-White intra-squad grid battle on Kenan Stadium's grassy confines at 2 o'clock Saturday with the separation of the squad into the Blue and White teams.

The Whites, coached by Ralph Floyd, will be composed almost exclusively of freshmen with the exceptions of junior Len "Teedee" Bullock, the regular quarterback last fall, soph tackle John Bilich and soph end Larry Muschamp.

Freshman quarterback Buddy Sasser will back up Ed Sutton for Coach Bill Edwards' Blue team, otherwise made up entirely of varsity members. Ron Marquette will direct the White attack against Sutton's efforts as pilot of the Blue team.

The two teams will probably practice separately tomorrow.

Yesterday's rain failed to put a damper on preparations for the annual event. Coach George Barclay ran the team through a full practice session despite the inclement weather.

THE GAME IS the climax to spring practice but not the official end. With several days of the 20-day conference limit left after the game, Coach Barclay will have the team out again next week to finish drills.

As sponsor, the Monogram Club provides members to work at the game and makes plans concerning halftime ceremonies and color.

This year for the first time the club will hold a reception for alumni in the club room following the game. Alumni will meet the football team and football coaches as well as coaches and athletes of the other sports at Carolina. Governor Luther Hodges, UNC President Gordon Gray and Chancellor Robert House are among those to whom invitations have been extended. Athletic Council members and other school athletic officials are expected to be present. The reception is open to alumni and Monogram Club members only.

FOR COLOR the club will present the Miss Blue and White queen and the 12 sponsors at halftime. Voting for the queen took place this week. During halftime on the field the queen will present trophies to the varsity coach of the year (1954-55) and the freshman coach of the year as awarded annually by the club. After the game she will award a trophy to the winning team. Monogram members will escort the queen and sponsors at halftime.

This year the cheerleaders and University Band will be on hand for the game to add to the football atmosphere.

The majority of the proceeds goes to the Monogram Club scholarship fund. The club awards two scholarships each year to a deserving minor sport athlete. Proceeds also pay for the orphans' parties, open houses, and other campus functions of the club.

WHILE JONES is general chairman for the game, the committees are headed by Bob Colbert, programs; Albert Long and Bill Booth, game workers; Jimmy Beatty, alumni reception; Scotty Hester, publicity; Pat McCormick, transportation; and Bob Boerner, queen contest.

"We are hoping for cool, clear weather to bring a crowd of at least 6,000 to the game," Jones stated. "Last year's attendance was held down because of the cold."

Students will be admitted for 50 cents plus passbook. The admission price for non-students is one dollar.

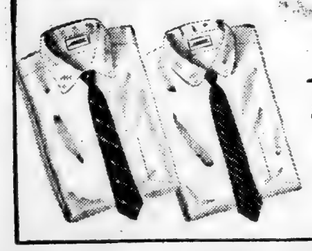
FIVE MEMBERS of the Monogram Club's Blue-White Game committee map out final plans for Saturday's contest in Kenan Stadium. Left to right are Scotty Hester, publicity; Al Long; Wilbur Jones, general chairman; Bill Booth; Jim Beatty, alumni reception. Other members of the committee not present are Bob Colbert, Bob Boerner and Pat McCormick. All proceeds from the contest go to the Monogram Club. (Henley photo.)

FROSH TENNIS

All candidates for the freshman tennis team are requested to report to room 304 Woollen Gym this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

TRANSPORTATION CLUB

The Transportation Club will hold a general meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial. The meeting will be open to all interested students.



BUTTON-DOWN ARROW'S
at
BERMAN'S

ARROW BUTTON-DOWN SHIRTS . . .
JUST THE TICKET FOR ANY OCCASION!

It's the one collar that says: "Right you are," from morning coffee to midnight oil.

You get variety of style, too, with Arrow button-downs. In round collars, spread collars, collars with a soft roll. They're precisely tailored to give you the button-down you like best. See your Arrow dealer. He has button-downs in a variety of colors, just right for you . . . (and your budget, too). $3.95 up.

ARROW
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

Best Selection of ARROW SHIRTS at
Varley's
MEN'S SHOP

Seeing Is Believing

THE BEST BUY THIS SPRING

Baby cord slacks—Ivy model —blue, gray or tan—
5.95

Khaki slacks in Ivy model
—black, khaki or light blue—
4.95

Tweka of Holland polo shirts, solid mesh or fine cotton lisle stripes—
3.95

Large Selection of walk shorts from 4.95

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Today let us investigate a phenomenon of American college life called the student council. First of all, what is the student council? The answer is simple: the student council is a council of students.

Next, what does the student council do? Again the answer is simple: it meets.

Next, what goes on at the meetings? This question is rather more complicated than the others. Perhaps it can best be answered by reproducing here the minutes of a typical meeting of a typical student council.

Meeting scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at Student Union Building. Call to order 9:51 p.m. by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Motion to adjourn made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative. Motion ruled out of order by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Hunrath Sigafoos called "old poop" by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding.

Minutes of last meeting read by Zelda Pope-Toledo, secretary. Motion to accept minutes made by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Motion defeated.

Treasurer's report not read because Rex Mercredi, treasurer, not present at meeting. Rex Mercredi, treasurer, impeached in absentia.

Motion made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative, to allow sale of hard liquor in school cafeteria. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Motion tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, old poop.

Motion made by Booth Fishery, fraternity representative, to permit parking in library. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Gladys Algae, junior representative, to allow attendance in pajamas and robes at first hour classes. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Elwood Feldspar, athletics representative, to conduct French Conversation classes in English. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Esme Plankton, sorority representative, to allow hypnosis during Rush Week. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Pierre Clemenceau, foreign exchange student, to conduct German Conversation classes in French. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Harriet Critter, ag campus representative, to allow faculty members above the rank of assistant professor to perform marriages. Motion referred to committee.

Observation made by Martha Involute, senior representative, that in her four years on student council every motion referred to committee was never heard of again. Miss Involute was tabled.

Motion made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative, to allow sale of hard liquor in Sociology I and II. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Motion tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding crossly.

Refreshments served. Coffee, cake, Philip Morris Cigarettes. The following resolution adopted by acclamation:

"WHEREAS Philip Morris is milder, tastier, more exhilarating, and chock full of rare rich vintage tobaccos; and WHEREAS Philip Morris is contained in the patented Snap-Open pack which is the quickest, simplest, neatest container yet devised for cigarettes; and WHEREAS Philip Morris, the most commendable of smokes in the most admirable of wrappings, is available in both king-size and regular; therefore BE IT RESOLVED that it is the sense of this meeting that Philip Morris is far and away the best cigarette buy on this or any other campus."

Meeting adjourned with many a laugh and cheer at 9:58.

Respectfully submitted,
Zelda Pope-Toledo, Secretary

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, who bring you this column, move that today's PHILIP MORRIS is the best ever. We know you'll second the motion.

SPRING THEME:

To Hogan's
To Hogan's
To quaff a cool brew

In walk shorts
In walk shorts
You come along too!

Spring "activities" call for Bermudas
Call for yours at Town and Campus

For Men:
POPLINS
COTTON CORDS
PLAIDS
CHARCOAL WORSTEDS

For Women:
POPLINS
COTTON CORDS
PLAIDS
CHARCOAL WORSTEDS

WALK SOX FOR ALL

Town & Campus

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 93066.

REMEMBER OCCASIONS WITH GREETING CARDS. Greeting cards are an easy way to let folks know you're thinking of them. Send a card today from Ledbetter-Pickard's collection.

ANYONE MOVING FROM CHAPEL Hill in June, who has bedroom and living room furniture to sell, please contact Tom Abernethy, 310 Aycock, Phone 93021. (1-9091-3)

Chicago College of
OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry
DEGREE
IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Opitz New Morehead Air Chief

Stephen Opitz, senior from Ford, N. J., has been elected commander of the Jesse J. Morehead squadron of the Arnold Air Society.

The new commander succeeds Heiskell Grey.

The Arnold Air Society is a national honorary organization which which has chapters located in many colleges and universities which have AROTC units.

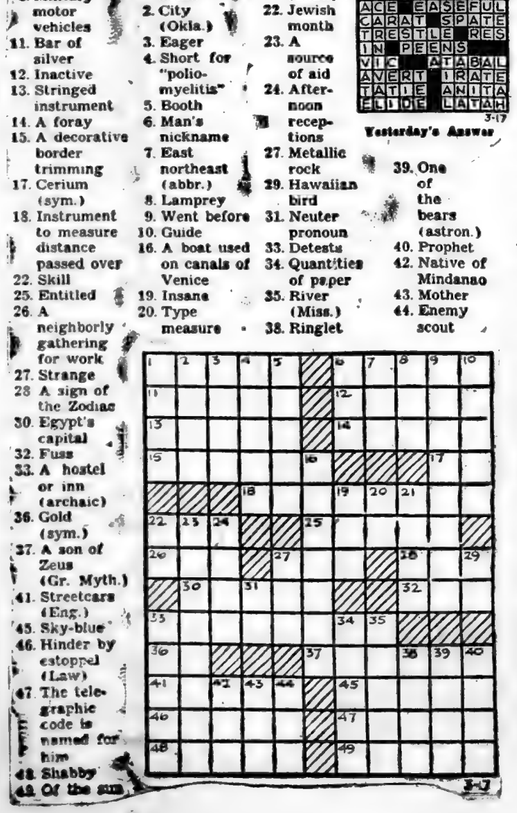
Opitz was first sergeant of Squadron D of the AROTC here during his junior year. Last summer he attended summer camp at Donaldson Air Force Base in Greenville, S. C. He was recently appointed cadet commanding officer of the AROTC unit here.

44 Nurses Make List

Thirty-seven North Carolina students in the School of Nursing have been named to the Dean's List for high-ranking academic work during the last semester, Dean Elizabeth L. Kemble announced today.

Dean Kemble said seven additional girls from seven other states qualified for the honor.

Among the North Carolinians listed were Sylvia Arnold and Joy Pharr Smith, Charlotte; Mary Anderson, Virginia Edwards, Carolyn Elise Greene, Mrs. Patsy Colvard Johnson, and Marion Southerland, Durham; Mary Ben Williams, Greensboro; Nancy Stockwell, High Point; Mrs. Donna Blair Booe and Louise Norwood, Winston-Salem.



Margaret Johnson, Mrs. Janet Meritt Littlejohn, Barbara Pendergraft, and Marilyn Watson, Chapel Hill; Mrs. Diane Guy Fogleman, Martha Lentz, and Sally Winn, Henderson; Bette Davis, Morganton; Dean Coats and Elizabeth Morris, Concord; Mrs. Martha Yount Cline, Hickory and Chapel Hill; Mary Ann Keeter and Barbara McSwain, Shelby.

Sara Catherine Blaylock, New Bern; Geraldine Snider and Winnie Williams, Fayetteville; Gloria Huss and Gwenlyn Huss, Thomasville; Shirley Ann Coggins, Walstonburg; Sara Katherine Burt, Biscoe; Elizabeth Sumner, Asheboro; Myrtle McAnally, Reidsville; Sallie Robeson, Laurinburg; Dorothy Kizer, Brevard; Sarah White, Guilford College, and Patricia Wittmann, Jamestown.

Dean's List students from out-of state are Shirley Guenthner, Washington, D. C.; Ramelle Hylton, Clearwater, Fla.; Sharon Warrington, Bethesda, Md.; Marjorie Staub, Westfield, N. J.; Carolyn Taylor, Martinsville, Va.; Ann Page and Sara Price, Buckhannon, W. Va.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
5-0268

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Piles
6. Military motor vehicles
11. Bar of silver
12. Inactive
13. Stringed instrument
14. A foray
15. A decorative border trimming
17. Cerium (sym.)
18. Instrument to measure distance passed over
22. Skill
25. Entitled
26. A neighborly gathering for work
27. Strange
28. A sign of the Zodiac
30. Egypt's capital
32. Fuss
33. A hostel or inn (archaic)
36. Gold (sym.)
37. A son of Zeus (Gr. Myth.)
41. Streetcars (Eng.)
45. Sky-blue
46. Hinder by estoppel (Law)
47. The telegraphic code is named for him
48. Shabby
49. Of the sun

DOWN
1. A bee's home
2. City (Okla.)
3. Eager
4. Short for "poliomyelitis"
5. Booth
6. Man's nickname
7. East northeast (abbr.)
8. Lamprey
9. Went before
10. Guide
16. A boat used on canals of Venice
19. Insane
20. Type measure
21. A tissue (anat.)
22. Jewish month
23. A source of aid
24. Afternoon receptions
27. Metallic rock
29. Hawaiian bird
31. Neuter pronoun
33. Detests
34. Quantities of paper
35. River (Miss.)
38. Ringlet
39. One of the bears (astron.)
40. Prophet
42. Native of Mindanao
43. Mother
44. Enemy scout

PARAS SHARE
EDILE HOSEA
TIGER EXIST
STARVE NOA
TILER LB
ACE EASEFUL
CARAT SPATE
TRESTLE RES
IN PEENS
VIC ATABAL
AVERT IRATE
TATIE ANITA ELIDE LATAH

Yesterday's Answer

3-17

Astronomy Club Visited B y Durham School Children

Durham school children, above, visited a meeting of the Chapel Hill Astronomy Club meeting recently and were instructed in location of celestial bodies atop the Morehead Planetarium. The Club meets every week.

Tryouts Slated For Three Outdoor Dramas

Auditions for three of North Carolina's outdoor dramas will be held in the Forest Theatre Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Open to all residents of the state as well as students going to school in North Carolina, the auditions will also be held for the new Paul Green out-door drama, Wilderness Road, to be produced for the first time this summer in Berea, Ky. The drama will be directed by Samuel Selden.

Try-outs will be held for the 15th summer season of Green's historical play, The Lost Colony, at Manteo; the sixth season of Kermit Hunter's play of Indian history, Unto These Hills, at Cherokee; and the fourth season of Hunter's drama of Southern Appalachian pioneers, Horn in the West at Boone.

Directors Clifton Britton of The Lost Colony, Harry Davis of Unto These Hills and Kai Jurgenson of Horn in the West have announced that positions for both actors and dancers, especially men, are available.

As qualifications they said actors should have strong, mature voices, capable of speaking clearly over a distance of at least 150 feet outdoors. "Dancers must have had experience in large forms of stage movement and applicants must be at least 20 years old," they said.

Each acting candidate will prepare a reading of his choice, preferably one minute, and not more than two minutes in length. Dancing candidates should bring their work-out clothes, they said.

Second auditions for selected candidates will be held at 2 Saturday afternoon. In case of rain, auditions will be held in Memorial Hall.

– Combo –

(Continued from Page 1)

clearly before the student body. we have tried to engage Mr. Mundy on the issues, principles and precedents which have to do with the newspaper; on the other hand we have not at all tried to make political hay by personal attacks of any kind. We believe those who were present at the two nominations meetings will bear us out.

"We hope it will be fully understood that in making our candidacy for the editorship a joint endeavor we felt we were acting on the best interests of The Daily Tar Heel. We resent the accusations that a joint effort involves us in any dark plots or "machine" politics. Our objectives are open and above board, and the field is still free to any who wish to oppose us on issues and principles.

"As we attempted to make clear before both party meetings, we disagree rather diametrically with Mr. Mundy. We disagree that this year's Daily Tar Heel has been anything other than excellent; we disagree that the size of the editorial page, the open movement of ideas, opinions, should be curtailed.

"We think, finally, that Mr. Mundy can prove his strong interest in the welfare of the newspaper by joining the staff. The welcome mat is out."

NOTICE!
Served Every Thursday
SPECIAL
Fried Chicken or Country Fried Steak
2 Vegetables , Coffee or Tea
Free Seconds
55c
MICHAELS GRILL

– Mundy –

(Continued from Page 1)

nify a relaxation of the fear that the co-editors will follow their same irresponsible course of the past year.

"At the best, I hope that they will devote some concern to the actual functioning of the newspaper; circulation and the news staff being examples. Their inane little campaigns against such things as the imagined "creeping anti-intellectual trend" can be ignored, as they are.

"The decision not to run is based upon several considerations, perhaps the first being the personal scars which the campaign would leave. Mr. Kraar, for example, engaged in a personal and vituperative attack when speaking before the SP. He even tried, directly, a misquotation which carried the all so heavy inference that I was lying, presenting one case to the SP and another to the UP. When such attacks are made openly, I can easily imagine the character assassination which would take place were I not present.

"Discouraging also is the disinclination of the campus political parties to allow a fair opportunity for a ballot box decision on the conduct and policies of The Daily Tar Heel. The straight party ticket voters, the co-editor's continued campaign of at least two years, and the paper itself are just too much for an independent candidate to fight without an organization, which I most certainly do not possess."

Thursday's WUNC

7 p.m.—Songs of France
7:15—News Commentary: Phillips Russell.
7:30—Poetry in Song
7:45—Tar Heel Voices
8—Adress by Gordon Gray.
9—University of Chicago Roundtable
9:30—American Adventure
"Builder on the River"
10—Local, State and National News Followed by Program Resume
10:15—Evening Masterwork

TAR HEEL CAB
8464
To One And All
We Appreciate Every Call

Di Accepts Bill Giving Chief Succession

A bill allowing the Governor of North Carolina to succeed himself was approved 14-2 by the Dialectic Senate this week.

Jim Ellis, the bill's introducer, offered the measure as a means to "let the people show their favor or disfavor for a governor's administration." He pointed out that at present there is no way for the citizens of North Carolina to indicate their feeling on a governor's program.

The bill provided that a governor could serve a total of 10 years. This would allow a man who succeeded to the governorship from the position of lieutenant governor to be elected twice.

An amendement removing any limitation on the number of years the state's chief executive could serve was defeated by the Senate.

Pebley Barrow, spaking against the amendment, said there "are more good things about this limitation than there are bad."

Opponents of the bill, led by Di Clerk David Mundy, said a governor should not succeed himself because succession encouraged the growth of machines.

Cartoons of Cobean
Nobody gets inside a man's mind like Cobean. He takes our most sacred dreams, like, maybe, being left on a desert isle with a dizzy blonde, and exposes them to the cynic eye of the public. Published at $3.95.
Our Special
$1.69
There's a bargain just for you at
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

What Goes On Here

BAPTIST TRAINING UNION

The BTU will be held tonight at 6 o'clock in the Baptist Church. Dr. I. G. Greer will speak after supper. The meeting will be open to the public.

FACULTY CLUB

Roy Armstrong, director of admission for the University, will be the speaker at the Faculty Club luncheon next Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Carolina Inn. His subject will be "The Impending Tidal Wave of Students."

STUDENT COUNCIL SELECTIONS

The Bipartisan Board for the selection of candidates to run in the spring elections for Student Council will meet tonight at 7 o'clock in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial to interview all interested students. All men and women who are rising juniors and seniors interested in running should attend the meeting.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS

The Young Republicans Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL BOARD

The Bipartisan Board for the endorsement of candidates to run in the spring elections for the Women's Honor Council will meet tonight from 7 until 9 p.m. in the Council. Room of Graham Memorial to interview women interested in running.

LINGUISTICS LECTURES

The Curriculum in Comparative Linguistics and the Department of Sociology and Anthropology will sponsor two lectures by Dr. Floyd Lounsbury of the Department of Anthropology of Yale University. The lectures will be held today and tomorrow at 3 p.m. in the assembly room of the Library.

PHYSICS COLLOQUIUM

Dr. Charles P. Slichter of the University of Illinois will speak on "The Overhauser Effect" today at 2 p.m. in 250 Phillips Hall.

RENDEZVOUS ROOM

There will be dancing in the Rendezvous Room tomorrow night from 9 o'clock until midnight. Refreshments will be served at 10.

TALENT BUREAU

Talent Bureau tryouts will be held again next Tuesday from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m. in the Rendezvous Room.

Carolina
NOW PLAYING

We have your favorite sterling pattern as featured in REED & BARTON'S
"SILVER OPINION COMPETITION"

Do these patterns look familiar? Then you've no doubt seen them on bulletin boards throughout your campus. They're featured in Reed & Barton's "Silver Opinion Competition" now being conducted at your college. Stop in soon and see how beautiful these patterns are in actual solid silver. Can't tell — it may be all the inspiration you need to wi.. one of the valuable scholarship prizes!
All prices are for 6-piece place settings, and include Federal tax
For Additional Information see:
MISS CAROL DuPLER
Delta Delta Delta (Tri-Delt)
U. N. C. Chapel Hill
Wentworth & Sloan Jewelers
Chapel Hill, N. C.

LI'L ABNER

By Al Capp

POGO

By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Cloudy and warmer today with an expected high of 68.

The Daily Tar Heel

ORPHAN

The University's ragged orphan comes (again) under the editor's eye. Se editorial column, p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 120 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY MARCH 18, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Legislature Passes Bill 'Liberalizing' UNC Honor System

Allows Second Trial On Insufficient Proof

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature rammed through in hasty action last night a bill called by its introducer, David Reid, a "liberalizer" of the Honor System. Reid introduced the bill on behalf of the Judicial Problems Commission, which recommended it.

The primary change the measure will invoke on the system is that it gives the "accused" the right to retrial before the Honor Council if it is found that "insufficient evidence" was used to convict him.

The bill also provides that the number of "elected" members on the council be reduced from nine to two. The other seven members on the council will be appointed from lower courts because, according to the Judicial Problems Commission, "They should have previous judicial experience."

The only action that aroused any noticeable dissention was a bill calling for the seating of one representative from the nurses' dormitory on the Women's Honor Council. Opposition for this measure came from the University Party floorleader, Jack Stevens.

Stevens contended the measure had "a haze about it" and nobody understood it. He favored referring it to a study commission.

As for the nurses, Stevens said they had enough block vote power now to elect a representative. But, he went on to say, "They lack the initiative to do so."

The big money-spending proposal of the night that was rocketed through was a bill calling for the appropriation of $975 to "expand" student government facilities. The money, according to the bill, will be used to set up an office for a "permanent" student government secretary.

Other measures slammed through with lightning speed were:

A bill to give the student Legislature another representative on the Graham Memorial Board of Directors;

A bill to give the University Dance Committee $150 to print a booklet on Carolina traditions to be sent to nearby women's colleges;

A bill to give the student government attorney general more power, and

A bill to give the Men's Honor Council $25.

David Reid, resigning SP floorleader, perhaps explained the cooperation that the two parties displayed in passing all measures speedily by saying "They had joined hands in a pre-election common effort which is as student government ought to be."

Reid, who complimented both parties and thanked them for "allowing" him to "serve," was given a standing ovation.

UP's Charlie Yarborough sunbathing on steps of Hill Hall.

* * *

Grammar school kids admiring Silent Sam.

Potentialities Need Freeing, Asserts Yen

Release of the great potentialities within the two-thirds of the world's population handicapped by poverty, disease, illiteracy and civic inertia is one hope for the whole world for a better life, an international rural reconstruction leader said here Wednesday night.

Dr. Y. C. James Yen, founder and president of the International Committee of the Mass Education Movement with headquarters in New York, gave a public address sponsored by the UNC School of Public Health.

Dr. Edwin G. McGavran, dean of the UNC School of Public Health, introduced Dr. Yen. Following the address, a reception was held honoring the speaker, his wife, and their daughter, Miss Alice Yen, who is a graduate student in public health here.

Dr. Yen also addressed the 10th annual Working Conference for alumni and students in health education Wednesday morning, outlining the rural reconstruction project now underway in the Philippine Islands.

Dr. Yen's discussion was the final event in the three-day program, which included a Tuesday session at North Carolina College in Durham.

A native of China, Dr. Yen founded the Chinese Mass Education Movement, and worked for 25 years with the rural development program there. Since 1952 he has been promoting the Philippine Rural Reconstruction Movement, which is the first pilot project in a rural reconstruction program for Asia.

"We have found the same four basic problems facing the rural non-privileged people, whether in Asia, Africa or South America," Dr. Yen said.

"Experience has shown us that an integrated attack on all four problems must be used, rather than concentration on health im-

(See DR. YEN, page 4)

Muntzing Wants Study Day At Semester Ends

"From talking to many students in all areas of the campus, I am firmly convinced that there is not only a strong desire, but also a strong need, for a reading day between the last day of classes and the first day of final exams," said Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing in a statement issued yesterday.

Muntzing said a great number of students start taking final exams the day after their classes end.

"I believe that the improved, academic health of the students that a day's break between classes and exams would help bring about certainly justify such a proposal," said Muntzing's statement.

Muntzing said he believes that "even if students used a so-called 'reading day' to sleep," their improved mental state would help. He added that after talking to many students about the reading day he is sure that most of them would use the time to study for exams.

Muntzing noted that Woman's College has a reading day in its schedule now which " . . . they have worked into their schedule very successfully."

"I should like to see the calendar committee here at the University consider this idea of a reading day in light of taking the reading day from the exam period time," said Muntzing. "This would mean that the actual taking of exams would cover a period of eight days instead of nine and insure a one-day break between classes and the start of exams," he concluded.

THE JUILLIARD QUARTET
. . . in Graham Memorial tomorrow

Juilliard Quartet Set For Concert Tomorrow

The Juilliard String Quartet will perform in Graham Memorial tomorrow at 2:30.

Tickets, on sale at Graham Memorial, Sloan Drug Store, and Ledbetter-Pickard, will cost students 50 cents, according to sponsors.

The quartet members are Robert Mann, first violin; Robert Keff, second violin: Ralphael Hillyer, viola; and Arthur Winograd, cello.

Robert Mann, a native of Portland, Oregon, studied at the Juilliard School in New York, gave concert tours, and was with the Albuquerque, N.M., Festival String Quartet.

Robert Keff, the narrator for the children's concerts, attended Oberlin Conservatory and the Juilliard Graduate School.

Raphael Hillyer studied violin privately and at Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, but set out to get another kind of education. With a major in mathematics and membership in Phi Beta Kappa at Dartmouth, he received an M.A. degree at Harvard and went on to complete pre-medical studies.

Mr. Winograd studied at the Curtis Institute and under cellist and teacher Felix Salmond, and has played in the Boston Symphony at Tanglewood and in the NBC. Salmond was the brother-in-law of Mrs. John A. Parker of Chapel Hill.

Student Nurse To Reign Over Annual Fete

Miss Jackie Van Hook, a sophomore in the School of Nursing, has been voted to reign as Miss Blue and White over Saturday's football game, according to Wilbur Jones, Monogram Club president.

Miss Van Hook is from Henderson. She was social chairman of the freshman class last year and now holds the position of secretary of the sophomore class.

The contest, according to Jones, collected over $100 for the Monogram Club scholarship fund and for the orphans' parties which the club gives. He said the amount is twice as much as was made in last year's contest.

Miss Van Hook will be honor guest at the Blue-White football game to be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in Kenan Stadium. The game is the formal climax to winter practice. The queen and the other 12 girls, who will serve as sponsors for each of the squads, will be presented at half-time. They will be escorted by members of the Monogram Club.

Among those invited to the reception, according to Jones, are Governor Luther Hodges; President Gordon Gray; Chancellor Robert B. House; Dean D. D. Carroll; Edwin Lanier, director of the Central Office of Records; William D. Carmichael, Jr., vice-president of the University; J. Maryon (Spike) Saunders, secretary of the Alumni Office; all members of the Athletic Council; all alumni and all coaches.

Cosmopolitan Interview

"Cosmopolitan interview," W UNC program scheduled for Wednesday night, has been postponed until tonight.

Assistant Station Manager Carl Venters said yesterday the program, featuring Miss Arendine Kimmel, student from The Netherlands, will be heard at 7:45. John Riebel of the University YMCA will interview Miss Kimmel.

WUNC is a non-commercial FM radio station operated by the University, with frequency of 91.5 megacycles.

SP's Reid Resigns Floorleader Office To Support Fowler

Two University Party Students Join Reid In Fowler Campaign

Two University Party students have joined Student Party floorleader David Reid in supporting Don Fowler, independent presidential candidate.

Charles Ackerman, UP publicity chairman, and Lionel King, UP nominee for a Legislature seat, and member of the UP Steering Committee, yesterday announced their resignations from the University Party to become supporters of Don Fowler in his campaign for the student body presidency.

Ackerman, who will be the publicity director for Fowler during the campaign, said that he is resigning his UP post "because I want to stand behind a student who is a campus man, a gentleman who respects all groups equally and a leader who will associate himself with the ideas of the students, not with a particular segment of the University. No one else fits this description but Don Fowler," added Ackerman in his statement.

'FEW MINDS'

"After having sat in the meetings of the University Party for many months," said Ackerman, "I am convinced that the candidates they put up and the ideas they try to further are the creation of a few minds. Student government is an instrument of the people within the Carolina community, not a tool which operates only for a small group," he continued.

"Because the college student is himself being developed into a leader, he should have his right to exercise the leadership that is being cultivated in him. Don Fowler will not make the office of president his office, but an office in which not only his voice, but the voice of the campus will preside," said Ackerman's statement.

'EIGHT PEOPLE'

Ackerman said "A party which is run by a steering committee of eight people and which nominates candidates that it doesn't know the qualifications of has no place in a sincere student government. I left because I felt the party did not take the campus government seriously, and I am now backing a candidate whose steering committee is made up of 6,000 students and whose ideas are the ideas of 6,000 people.

KING'S STATEMENT

King, in his statement, said "I am withdrawing from the University Party so that I might support the independent candidate, Don Fowler, who will give the University of North Carolina a more representative government."

He said, "When Jim Monteith lost the nomination for vice-president, the dorm men and veterans lost their chance to voice their needs and opinions through the University Party. If the University Party were to win the coming election, it would mean that a small group within the party would dominate student government."

Eure Outlines Issues

Segregation, reapportionment of representation in the House and Senate, and the widely discussed "whammy bill" are top issues confronting the current General Assembly and nothing will be done about any of them.

That's the prediction of Secretary of State Thad Eure which he made here last night as the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club.

'Unable' To Help Muntzing

David Reid, floorleader of the Student Party, yesterday announced resignation of his party post in order to support independent candidate for presidency of the student body Don Fowler.

"Since I have found myself unable to support Manning Muntzing for president of the student body, I am forced to concur with Manning's request that I resign as SP legislative floorleader," said Reid in a statement yesterday.

"I still anticipate maintaining my membership in the Student Party, and will support all SP candidates other than Manning Muntzing," added Reid.

Reid has been a member of the SP Advisory Board since his freshman year. He was vice-chairman of the party in the fall of last year, and SP Legislator since spring of last year. He became party floorleader last December.

"After Don Fowler announced his candidacy for the presidency, I could, in good faith, do no less than give Don my wholehearted support," said Reid. "Don's outstanding work in all three branches of student government gives him a grasp of its overall scope, which in my opinion is not surpassed by any student on campus," he added.

"Having talked to Don at great length, I have become excited over his plans for student government next year," said Reid. "Under Don's direction I foresee student government elevated to a mature and highly respected junior partnership with the University Administration," he concluded.

Fowler Disagrees On Proposed Auto Court

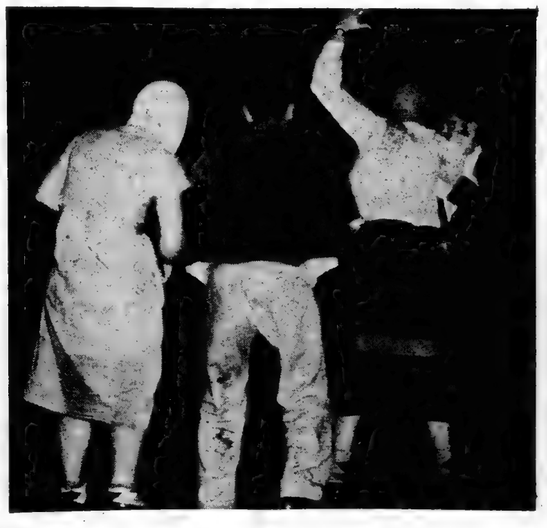
"I do not agree with my opponent (Student Party candidate Manning Muntzing) that a student traffic court should be set up," said independent presidential candidate Don Fowler in a statement issued yesterday.

"I would favor establishing a student traffic committee in line with what has been done at other schools," said Fowler. "This committee would handle registration of all cars. If a student abused the privilege of car, his registration would be revoked, and he would not be allowed to keep a car," added Fowler.

Fowler said, "Cars will be taken away from students if the student body fails to take an immediate and positive stand. He noted that President Gordon Gray has asked for a student reaction to the recommendation made by both the faculty and the Visiting Committee of the Board of Trustes that students not be allowed to have cars here. However, according to Fowler's statement, no student reaction has been made.

" . .. I believe that if we show the trustees and the administration that we can and will control the car problem on this campus, we can stop this irrational move to deprive students of their right to own a car," concluded Fowler.

Deadline's Tonight For Independent Candidates



Midnight tonight is the deadline for independents to file for candidacy in the spring elections with the Elections Board.

Any student may become a candidate for office, provided he or she submits a petition signed by 26 qualified voters and himself. Petitions may be turned in to Miss Patsy Daniels at the Chi Omega house or at the student government office. The petitioner must turn in his grade qualifications as certified by the Dean of Student's office with the petition.

University Fraternities Celebrate Greek Week With Stunt Night Wednesday Night

Phi Kappa Sigmas & Jazz Band

Theta Chis & Frat Row 'Women'

Kappa Sigmas & 'Helpful Harry' All photos by R. B. Henley

The University's Ragged Orphan—II

This morning, by your leave, we will take the part of that building with columns in the northeast corner of the campus—the one you see from the distance while cutting behind BVP on your way to Harry's.

It is called Graham Memorial. It has been there longer than any of us like to remember. It is the student union building.

Some day, an enterprising graduate student will write a master's thesis on why Graham Memorial has never grown into its full stature. We haven't the room to do more than dash off a quick list of reasons:

1. It isn't big enough to serve more than an inconsequential number of students; it was crowded from the day it was built.
2. It is in a bad location, away from student living quarters.
3. It has a poor architectural plan.
4. It doesn't have enough money.

The first three shortcomings of our student union clearly point to the need for a new building—like those at State and W.C.—in a central location and constructed to accommodate Carolina's large student population.

But the telling complaint is the fourth. Inadequate as GM is, it has found new life in the past two years and is now operating at something approaching peak efficiency for the money it has. It does not have enough.

More money would mean an expansion both internal and external for Graham Memorial. It could set up its services—dances, concerts, lectures, exhibits—and its game facilities and so forth; and it could expand these services to the more densely populated areas of the campus.

What's more — and most important — it could hire a professional director. GM, as you likely don't know, has hired graduate students and interested, untalented friends on two-year hitches for many years. Sometimes, as in the last two years, it has been lucky with this slap-dash brand of selection. Sometimes, well . . . like we say, we could use a professional director. We should have had one in 1931: we certainly should not put off getting one beyond 1955.

Whatever it takes to elevate Graham Memorial to proper prominence as the student union of a university of 6,000 students should be done. And what it takes is money.

The student Legislature can raise fees another two dollars per year without red tape; that should be done, as a bare minimum. From there, an attempt should be made—by student referendum, administration and trustee action—to raise the fee still further.

Our $48 activities fee is among the lowest in the nation. The six dollars GM gets from that sum puts the student union near the bottom of the list among national unions. We're being hog-tied just three or four dollars a year short of an effective student program—the sort of program that can put vitality in a dragging student government, lift intellectual tone, and inject a few cc's of morale into these whereabouts.

There are those who dream of a mighty structure in the center of the campus; that building will be a reality some day, but don't hold your breath. We are still many years away from a sparkling new student union.

But that doesn't lessen at all Graham Memorial's present need.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley
Society Editor — Susan Andes

NEWS STAFF—Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Ebba Freund, Peggy Ballard, Lois Owen.

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Ray Harris, The Arts & The Philistines

Louis Kraar

THINKERS HAVE been concerned about the position of the liberal arts long before Business Administration schools vere envisioned.

That's one of the reasons that letter writer Roy Harris' contention that the liberal arts people have a course called Business Administration Criticism is so ridiculous. If Mr. Harris would unruffle his financial feathers a bit, along with some of his BA contemporaries, he would see the real point behind so much talk about the liberal arts.

What has concerned liberal arts proponents is not the rise of the Business Administration School in all its shining glory, but the neglect of the liberal arts.

★

"SO WHAT?" BA backer Harris may shout. And this brings me down to the purpose of this piece.

Obviously the humane letters —liberal arts—are of great value or they wouldn't have attained the place they hold in our University. But why?

Writing in 1867, Matthew Arnold concerned himself with this same problem and came up with a lucid answer.

"Now the use of culture is that it helps us, by means of its spiritual standard of perfection, to regard wealth as but machinery, and not only to say as a matter of words that we regard wealth as but machinery, but really to perceive and feel that it is so," Arnold wrote.

"If it were not for this purging effect wrought upon our minds by culture, the whole world, the future as well as the present, would inevitably belong to the Philistines.

"The people who believe most that our greatness and welfare are proved by our being very rich, and who most give their lives and thoughts to becoming rich, are just the very people whom we call Philistines.

★

"CULTURE SAYS: 'Consider these people, then, their way of life, their habits, their manners, the very tones of their voice; look at them attentively; observe the literature they read, the things which give them pleasure, the words which come forth out of their mouths, the thoughts which make up the furniture of their minds; would any amount of wealth be worth having with the condition that one was to become just like these people by having it?'

"And thus culture begats a dissatisfaction which is of the highest possible value in stemming the common tide of men's thoughts in a wealthy and industrial community, and which saves the future, as one may hope, from being vulgarized, even if it cannot save the present."

★

ALTHOUGH I took the liberty of paragraphing Arnold, whose writing is not always easy to read but whose ideas are exciting, let me put—for Mr. Harris' sake—the explanation into his vernacular.

There is more to this life than making sales, having a Cadallic, and watching television. If one spends his time learning how to make money—taking mostly BA courses—it is going to be difficult for him to be exposed to these other things.

This is not to say that all BA majors are Philistines, or that there is anything wrong with studying to be a business man. But if one spends the amount of time on business courses currently required by the University, it is going to be increasingly difficult for him to see these other things.

'I Don't Know, Fella—I'm A Stranger Here Myself'

Humanities: An End In Themselves

The Mirrors Of Genius

Neal W. Klausner

(Dr. Klausner is Miller Professor of Philosophy and chairman of the department of philosophy and religion at Grinnell College. This article is excerpted from The American Scholar. —Editor.)

The major interest we have in the liberal arts is with man and his achievement. But it is not the abstraction "man" that concerns us. For it was not man that wrote Hamlet, but Shakespears; not man that composed Don Giovanni, but Mozart; not man that painted the "View of Toledo," but El Greco; not man that completed the Summa Theologica, but Thomas Acquinas. It is the human being together with his creation that draws and compels our admiration and study.

The humanities, a general name for such studies, describe a sensitive, imaginative, reflective being, who is puzzled by his own existence, by its promises and frustrations; who reaches out for friendship and love; who is eager to try the powers which he feels moving within him.

HE IS WHAT HE IS

It is in the humanities we discover that a man can never be adequately understood merely by an examination of what he is at any given moment in history. He is what he was and what he wills to be. He is a being able to take the requisite action needed to transform the actual by reference to the ideal. His history can never be written perceptively in physical, physiological or sociological terms alone. Without the pertinent vocabulary of aspiration he is minimized, distorted and misconceived.

There is a tendency among the teachers of the humanities to be greatly encouraged when business exacutives express their approval of the liberal arts education. When a director or manager of some vast enterprise says he needs men of character, with broad training, able to supervise people and to think effectively, and in possession of a solidly based sense of values, and that these ends are achieved primarily by a study of the humanities, then we thing our work has received its ultimate justification.

ENDS IN THEMSELVES

But has it? Suppose none of these ends were achieved by the humanities, or no more so than those studies which have vocationalized our education. Would this mean that the humanities had failed? Certainly in part. But I wish to defend the idea that the humanities are best thought of as ends in themselves, rather than means; man has the capanity for sheer personal enjoyment and satisfaction, and finds this deeply in the arts, literature, philosophy, history and any other subject that expresses man by telling of his birth, struggle, achievements, decay and death.

THE SILVER CORD

I do not mean that the justification of the humanities lies only in a psychological state called enjoyment, which may be induced by almost any slight titillation of the senses. If this were so, our culture would have reached its culmination in the comic book, the juke box, and the "art calendar.

But we know there is a difference between a surface manifestation of sorrow and mutual grief; between minor irritation and mutual hatred; between momentary attraction and mutual love; between effervescent gaiety and mutual joy. And this gives us the clue. A prolonged and comprehending study of the humanities may bring about an experience of mutuality between creator and perceiver so that the agony and joy of the creation is repeated again and again whenever the two meet in understanding.

Here is the silver cord that unites man with man, nation with nation, past with present. This is why Plato is no longer an aristocratic Greek philosopher, nor Jesus a humble Jewish prophet, nor Dante an exiled poet.

HOBBY SUBJECTS?

When I suggest that the humanities may lead to an experience of re-creation between one mind and another, or between one age and another, it may be thought that the necessary relation between knowledge and preparation is minimized in favor of a leisurely, passive absorption.

This curious and utterly mistaken view that the humanities are simply ways of appreciation, which one can postpone or avoid until there is nothing better to do, is based on the false premise that the humanities are the hobby subjects of the curriculum, which calls for no rigorous preparation but only personal interest and a distaste for exactness.

This seems to be the attitude of many of the educationists in our day, who are responsible for sending into the schools of the nation teachers almost totally blind to what is human in the human situation. The results are sadly evident in the first year at college.

No, the humanities cannot be passively absorbed. Their knowledge must be earned by effort, their truths mastered by the critical intellect.

NO CYCLOTRONS

It is true that we do not have glass tubing and Bunsen burners, or microscopes and slides, or cyclotrons and spectroscopes; nor do we find very useful statistical tables and correlation coefficients, all of which are designed to give a rigor and trustworthiness to the claims to knowledge of the social and natural sciences.

But one may be extraordinarily facile with all of the apparatus of the humanities and still be shallow or empty of either knowledge or understanding of humane learning. We must look to the humanities to free us from methodolatry and prepare us for the great gifts of genius.

For the humanities live on in the geniuses of the race. It is not their function to perpetuate mediocrity. The legions of the dead past are sifted exceedingly fine by the criticism of time, and we may become intimate with only the best—a privilege not open to their contemporaries. The point is that art lives on art, literature on literature, and philosophy on philosophy.

The humanities do not depend upon the spirit of inquiry as do the social and natural sciences. This is the spirit that has dominated the intellectual world sinve the Renaissance, fed from the sprigs of curiosity in the human psyche and the need for guiding principles of action. When this spirit is in the ascendant, man's first question is, "What is there?" and his last question is, "What is there in it for me?"

But the humanities cannot live at the level of curiosity and practice. Their interrogations probe the deeper passages of anxious and perplexed man, not to inventory his skills, but to affirm his character. Here man's first question is, "Who is there?" and his last is, "Am I there too?"

MIRRORS OF GENIUS

The answers to these questions are sought in philosophy, literature, history, language and the arts, and in some of the sciences. That is why the humanists must constantly protest the increasing vocationalization of college curricula and why they are distressed by any attempt to eliminate language requirements. For somehow these seem to be ways of lowering standards—not merely standards of academic achievement, but the standards necessary to make man realize his deepest potentialities.

The humanities are not medicine for a sick race, nor amusement for a bored people, no vehicles to prestige for the intellectually ambitious, nor exercises designed to mold a character out of the morally shapeless. The humanities are the mirrors of genius in which we may see ourselves.

Formosa Strait-Jacket: The Enemy Power Superiority

Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG — Probably the worst danger of the Formosa crisis is the danger of drifting into the same mistake that was made when we intervened in Korea.

President Truman and his advisers wrongly believed that the Korean aggressors could be halted without using American ground troops. They gave the order to intervene on the false assumption that our Navy and Air Force could do the whole job. But within forty-eight hours these planned "limits" on the war had to be hastily cast aside.

A repetition of this pattern now seems entirely possible, judging by the authoritative picture of Chinese military preparations that you get here in Hong Kong. This picture, which shows the enemy much stronger than seems to be supposed in Washington, broadly falls into three parts.

Part one concerns the Matsu Islands. The necessary enemy ground forces for an attack on the Matsus have been in position for a good many months. On the nearest point of the mainland the enemy is also emplacing very long range Russian heavy cannon. These will be able to cover the islands with artillery fire. But the real drama of an attack on the Matsus will be the air battle, which is always crucial in a major amphibious operation.

It is precisely the enemy's preparations for the air battle which are the most menacing element in the picture. Jet and rotary engined bombers can reach the Matsus comfortably from the great airbase complex that the Communists have built in Chekiang and Kiangsi provinces. From the most southerly of these airfields, the shorter ranged Mig 15's can also fly high cover as far as the Matsus.

Hence all units in the Chekiang-Kiangsi airbase complex will count in an air battle for the Matsu Islands. This means that the enemy will enter the battle with a minimum force of considerably more than 450 Mig 15's plus a couple of hundred assorted rotary engined bombers well suited for close support missions, plus at least one squadron of their jet bombers, the Ilyushin 28's.

The confirmed presence of a squadron of IL-28's at Shanghai is a new and most disturbing element in the picture. It means tht the enemy is ready to use these bombers which are the greatest single threat to our naval carriers—which have indeed almost the same speed as our carrier borne fighters.

It can also be revealed, moreover, that the Chinese Communists have approximately doubled their strength of IL-28s in the past year. They now have no less than 250 of these formidable aircraft. And although the main body is still in North China at present, they can be redeployed southwards at very short notice.

In addition, there are reports, thus far unconfirmed, that the enemy recently brought a division of Mig 15s into the Chekiang-Kiangsi airbase complex. These planes, represent a substantial improvement on the Mig 15. They can be a serious challenge to our F-86s, the best American fighters on this side of the Pacific.

ington may be thinking of "limiting" this these bleak statistics is extremely simple. In the main, an air battle over the Matsus is going to be a battle between our naval air and a massive land-based enemy air force.

This is not the kind of contest that should be entered with a light heart and one hand tied behind your back. Washington may be thinking of "limiting" this air battle, but it looks very much as though the Chinese Communists are thinking of winning it.

The hope of such a victory in the air is the best explanation, in truth, of the apparent Communist decision to make the Matsus their first target. In all other ways, the Matsus are harder to attack than Quemoy. But the Matsus can be covered from the airbases where the main enemy air strength is concentrated.

Quemoy, of course, is the second part of the picture. If American air strength has already been impaired, and if the fighting is stil "limited," the defense of Quemoy will be a pretty hopeless proposition. The place is ringed by enemy heavy guns. A landing there is no more than a river crossing. And the enemy will be able to give some air support to an assault on Quemoy with the bomber squadrons and the hundred or so Mig 15s that are based around Canton.

As for the third part of this picture of enemy power, it is still in the future. Supply is always the key to every Chinese military problem. The enemy is preparing to support operations against the Matsus and Quemoy from air fields inconveniently distant to the North and to the South, because supply problems dictate this plan.

The big tonnages of fuel needed to sustain jet air operations just cannot be laid down on the much nearer airfields in Fukien Province over the mountainous roads that are Fukien's only links with the rest of China. But when and if the Matsus and Quemoy fall to the enemy, the coastal shipping route will no longer be blocked. The Fukien airfields can then be supplied by sea.

That is the real importance of the offshore islands. Once the enemy can supply and occupy the Fukien airfields, he can bid for air supremacy over the Formosa Strait, we shall hear no more vainglorious talk about an attack on Formosa and Pescadores being "out of the question."

Ezra (A Pretty Boy) Ate The Tulips Petal By Petal

Ed Yoder

The Bingham Hall conference room and some twenty of the Bingham staff had a distinguished New England visitor Thursday morning.

The distinguished visitor, of course, was Robert Frost, looking chipper and reminiscing over his eighty-odd years as an American and a poet.

Mr. Frost is an unmistakable New Englander—by appearance, by accent, by mannerism, and by what he says—and the most striking thing about him is that you would almost expect him to be a character from his own poems; some poets aren't like that. But he dislikes having his poetry associated totally with the New England climate and people—as much as he likes them. "I'm always annoyed," he told his rapt audience, "when some one says: 'I like your poetry—my grandmother came from New England, too'."

If Mr. Frost is not a New Englander—(poetically speaking)—neither is he an Englander. Answering a battery of questions from the students (and perhaps aspiring poets) in the conference room, he advised against an early attachment to Europe.

England, where Mr. Frost himself went at 38 with a wife and four children, and where his first publication came, offers what the poet called "a peasant life"—a rock-bottom standard of living for those who have no money—which proves favorable to the poet. There, he said, to buy a farm with lots of countryside around it and—he quoted Walt Whitman—"invite one's soul" is not difficult.

But, at the same time, he pronounces a warning: He thinks aliens in other lands—Americans in Europe and Europeans in America—contract a strange malady and worry about their own native lands. "I've seen it in the German students who come to America—the ones I've followed—and I've seen it in Rhodes scholars," he said. His final comment on the question: "Go as an exporter, not an importer."

As Mr. Frost talked about his early visit to English shores, his recollections seemed to drift magnetically to talk about Ezra Pound and T. S. Eliot—two American poets of somewhat later generation than his own—and two American poets who've spent a good deal of time on foreign soil. "Ezra," Frost said, "was always trying to tell me how to dress." But he recalled that Pound was not a particularly natty dresser himself. Pound, invited to the home of the venerable editor of the Everyman Book Library, "came in his sweater." Nor was "Ezra's" manner anything to write Emily Post about, recalled Mr. Frost. Not only did Pound appear for dinner and conversation in his sweater; when he sat down at the table which had a bouquet of tulips as its centerpiece, "he leaned forward, and ate the tulips, petal by petal." "Ezra always was a sort of pretty-boy," he said.

Turing to a serious comment on Pound's poetry, Mr. Frost told the story of the careless sea captain who let everything go perilously wrong and then saved his ship anyway; the captain's superiors gave him a medal for saving the ship, then shot him for carelessness. Mr. Pound, suggested Mr. Frost, should be given some medals for his poetry. But his treasonable activity, Mr. Frost considers, put him in the same category with Tokyo Rose.

On T. S. Eliot, Mr. Frost remembered a conversation he'd had with that author of "The Wasteland" and Nobel prize winner about income tax forms: It seems Frost and Eliot have hesitated to list their occupations as "poet." Eliot, Mr. Frost said, has gotten around that by listing himself as a publisher with the British Firm, Faber and Faber) — and justified that title by the fact that he writes book jackets for the publishing house. Frost himself, who is not a publisher, didn't have Eliot's out. He's thought about putting "farmer" on his income tax form. "but you don't like to call yourself a farmer—people think you are putting on airs."

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

The Blue-White game tomorrow, climax to spring football practice, has Coach George Barclay a little "nervous," by his own admission.

Why Barclay is nervous is a mystery, for also by his own admission the game is nothing more than a formal scrimmage. "The object of this game is merely to familiarize the players with the rules and officiating of the game in actual practice, which is one reason why we don't play alumni as other schools do. By playing against ourselves, we get more boys in the game which means that much more experience.

Scheduled for 2 o'clock, the Monogram Club-sponsored tilt should be an interesting affair with the freshmen of last season banging heads with the veterans of vrasity status. Six thousand fans are expected to turn out for the contest. Color will be provided by the queen of the game and her court, plus music by the UNC band.

The game, however, will not officially end practices. The team will get in its final drills Monday when the 20-day limited period for spring work-outs comes to an end. Barclay will just put the squad through offensive drills at that time.

The team didn't scrimmage yesterday, nor will it do so today. Calisthenics, led by the ever energetic line coach, Marvin Bass, and light drills were on the menu.

Barclay will leave Tuesday to go on a scouting and recruiting trip around the state and possibly in Virginia. Prospects for a good freshman club next fall are very good. He has in line a number of guards and tackles from North Carolina, Virginia and Pennsylvania, and will entertain about 25 gridders this weekend at the Blue-White game.

Though optimistic over his big line (the prospects are all over six feet and more than 200 pounds), Barclay is extremely concerned about a top-notch backfield. Good backs he has. What he wants is a halfback who will be a threat whenever he gets his hands on the ball, and that will be his main objective on his tour next week.

* * * *

The lacrosse team at Carolina presents a ticklish situation. Functioning as a club, the team will abide by most ACC and NCAA regulations, but freshmen and graduate students will play against conference teams.

The team has scheduled six games, and may play as many as 12, depending on whether or not it is able to make a trip north and play such aggregations as Lehigh, Penn, Western Maryland, Delaware and others.

Lacrosse is a game slowly appearing on the intercollegiate scene, but "the fastest sport on two feet" has much life in the area and there is no reason why it should not be a recognized sport at Carolina. Within two hours drive, at the University of Virginia, there is one of the strongest lacrosse outfits in the country. Indeed, it may even be said that the Cavaliers are an inter-national power. Last summer they won six of eight games in England from the Empire's best.

Duke finished third in the nation last year.

Nearly 60 boys turned out for lacrosse practice here last Monday, and believe it or not, there was not enough equipment nor locker space for all.

Lacrosse may be classified as a minor sport, but it should receive some consideration from the Athletic Association of for no other reason than its participation figure.

Raugh Hurls Scoreless Ball For Five Innings

Team To Face East Carolina Today At 2

Maultsby Will Pitch Against Pirate Nine

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Carolina's Tar Heels, who yesterday whipped the freshman baseballers, 4-0, at Emerson Stadium, will take on the East Carolina College Pirates today at 2 o'clock.

Tom Maultsby probably will hurl for Carolina. This will be the first game against "outside" competition for UNC.

Jim Raugh retired the side in order in three innings yesterday and faced only 17 men during his five-inning scoreless stint. Billy Joe Johnson was the starter and loser for the freshmen. Johnson pitched four innings and yielded three of the four varsity runs on four hits. Mal Titcomb pitched the fifth and allowed a run and a hit.

The regulars jumped on Johnson for a marker in the first inning and probably would have gotten more had it not been for some daffy baserunning.

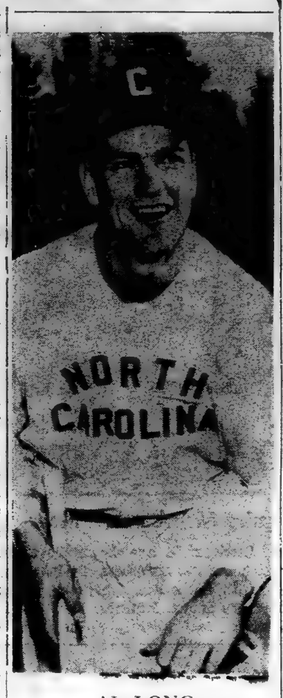
Chuck Hartman led off the inning with a walk and held first as Albert Long skied to center. Hartman took second when Jimmy Love was nicked by one of Johnson's curves and he scored when Connie Gravitte laced a sharp single to left, but Gravitte ran into Love, who was standing on second base. Love was tagged out to end the inning and Johnson got out of hot water.

In the third, Long singled and moved to second as Gravitte walked. Both advanced on a wild pitch and Mel Harding's single to right added two more runs, giving the varsity a 3-0 edge.

Jack Woods was responsible for the fourth and final run for the regulars. He singled to left after Gravitte led off the fifth by bunting out, pitcher to first. Harding fanned. Woods stole second and went to third on a wold pitch by Titcomb. Raugh walked and Titcomb had Raugh picked off at first but Woods streaked home while Raugh was caught in a rundown between first and second. That ended the scoring for the day and also ended the brief spell of good weather because the rain came and the game was called after five innings.

All of the starters were present with the exception of first baseman Tom Zachary. The batting order had Chuck Hartman leading off and playing second base. Hartman was followed by Long, Love, Bob Paller, Gravitte, Woods, Harding, substitute Bill Crane at first and pitcher Raugh in that order. Zachary at first would present the probable Tar Heel lineup which will be used when the season gets under way.

Team Tourneys Slated For Carolina Netters



The varsity tennis team has settled down to its last rugged days of practice as team tournament time rolls around. Starting Monday, the squad will be divided into four groups for position determining round-robin play.

The lead quartet, composed of Herb Browne, Bobby Payne, Tom Bradford and Pete Greene, and the second four, Ron Kerdasha, Bob Bortner, Frank Livingston and Don Thompson, will be pressed for starting positions by the third division, Gustafson, Hudgins, Handel and Lynch.

Providing depth for the heavy matches will be Vic Kasser, Bill Temple, Barckley Gordon and Don Bell.

Practice has been going along at a strong pace so far this spring with few reversals of form. Perhaps the greatest surprise has been Frank Livingston's rise since last year. Livingston was not considered to be among the top five of last year's frosh squad but this year has vaulted into the second four.

Two other sophomores will not be playing varsity matches this spring although they will continue to work out with the squad. Steve Bank is being held out to give him another year of eligibility in the spring of 1958 when his fine talents will probably be of more use to the team. Tommy Holder, No. four on last year's freshman net team, will also not be used this spring.

AL LONG

. . . looks good at shortstop

The tournament starting Monday should be of great interest to UNC tennis fans. The matches will probably be as good as many intercollegiate scraps later in the year. With only 12 days remaining before the first match with Michigan State College, the Tar Heels will be putting on the pressure. Within the next few weeks some of the finest tennis teams east of the Mississippi will be in Chapel Hill and the competition for starting berths against such teams as Swarthmore, Harvard, Dartmouth, Miami, and Presbyterian will be keen.

Deke, Phi Gam Tangle Tonight In Cage Finals

TMA Meets Dentists For Dorm Title Wed.

Tonight at 7:00 in the Tin Can the finals of the fraternity basketball tournament will be played when the dead-eye Delta Kappa Epsilon team tries to break a 21-game winning streak held by the defending champions from Phi Gamma Delta.

The Dekes droped in an amazing 60% shooting average from the floor and a 67% free throw accuracy record to turn back a scrappy Sigma Nu quint in the semi-finals, 62-54. The Phi Gams turned back the SAE's in the other semi-final game, 34-32.

Both of these games were played Wednesday as were the semi-finals in the dorm division. TMA advanced to the finals by droping BVP 58-37 and Dental School eliminated a cold Med School five 41-38. These two clubs will meet next Wednesday afternoon in quest of the dorm championship.

In the action Wednesday, Larry Bell and Tommy Shores displayed a great shooting exhibition to literally dissolve the Nus zone defense. The Dekes made 26 of 39 free tosses in addition to hitting 18 of 32 attempts from the floor. Shores had 27 points, Bell 17, and Jack Moore 11 for the winners. Foy Singleton kept the losers in the game with 26 points.

The Phi Gams managed to keep the SAE's from getting the ball to Bobby Payne, and then held the ball themselves to eke out their victory. Both clubs were without star players—Buddy Sasser, SAE guard, was in the University infirmary while Jim Prescott, Phi Gam forward, was out of town. Payne had 13 points and Tom Ruffin 11 to pace the SAEs while Jim Dillingham's 10 led the champs.

Bill Ellington had 22 points to lead TMA, the class of the dorm leagues, to the finals. Stone contributed 13 in a losing cause for BVP. Harris paced Dental School to their upset win with 13 points while Weeks and Farmer with 12 and 11, respectively, tried to pull the game out of the fire for Med School.

Carl "Butter Anderson Resigns As Assistant To Ev Case At State; To Construction Firm

Raleigh, March 17 (AP)—Athletic Director Roy Clogston today confirmed reports that Carl H. (Butter) Anderson is stepping down as assistant basketball coach at North Carolina State College, effective July 1.

Anderson submitted his resignation in a letter to Clogston. He plans to join Southern Builders and Suppliers Corp. of Raleigh. In his new post he will be associated with Pat Garner in the operation of the building firm and the construction of new homesites.

Anderson said he found it "in the best interest of my family and future" to accept the job. His leaving State College will break up the highly successful coaching duo of Everett Case and Anderson.

There was speculation that Vic Bubas, an assistant and freshman coach, will be named to succeed Anderson. Bubas is a former Wolfpack star.

Clogston said the letter of resignation was received this morning. Reports of the resignation had leaked out last night.

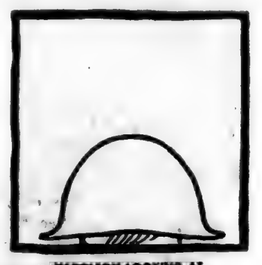
Anderson, 260-pounder, came to State College on July 1, 1946, as assistant to Coach Everett Case. Together they succeeded in moulding great basketball teams at State College and making this area more basketball conscious.

A former Southern California football and basketball star, Anderson had been an assistant football coach until 1948 when he began giving full time to basketball. For five years he was freshman basketball coach, relinquishing the duties to Bubas.

Dons Face Loss Of Big Forward

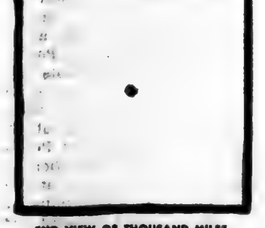
KANSAS CITY, March 17—(AP)—The pre-tourney favoritism of top-ranked San Francisco wavered today. The Dons face possible loss of star forward Jerry Mullen in tomorrow night's opening round of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. basketball championships.

In the first game of the four-team playoof, defending champion LaSalle faces Big 10 champion Iowa. San Francisco goes against Colorodo of the Big Seven.



There will be no national telecast of either tomorrow night's semi-finals or Saturday night's championship game at Municipal Auditorium. A sellout crowd of 10,000 is assured both nights.

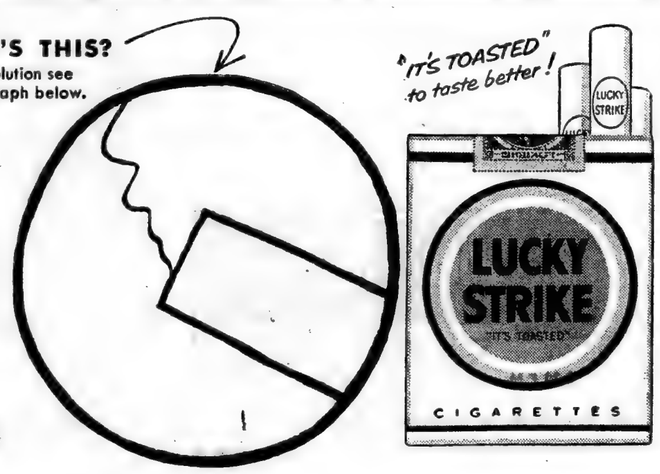
At a news conference today, San Francisco Coach Phil Woolpert said 6-5 Mullen, who sprained his right ankle in Saturday's 57-56 shading of Oregon State, is a doubtful starter against Colorado.



Grammas' Error Gives Yanks 7-4 Victory

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—An error by shortstop Alex Grammas led to three unearned runs for the New York Yankees in the eighth inning today. That enabled the American Leaguers to top the St. Louis Cardinals 7-4.

STOP HERE FOR LUCKY DROODLES!



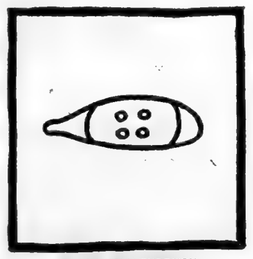
NAPOLEON LOOKING AT SELF IN HIGH MIRROR
Willem Maurits Lange, III
Syracuse University

END VIEW OF THOUSAND MILES OF VERY STRAIGHT WIRE
Osvaldo Bacchetta
Southern Illinois University

WHAT'S THIS?
For solution see paragraph below.

YOU'LL GET A BANG out of the Droodle above. The title is: Daredevil enjoying better-tasting Lucky just before being shot from cannon. Luckies are going great guns everywhere. The reason for their booming popularity is simply this: Luckies give you better taste. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. Enjoy yourself when you smoke. Have a little fun. Light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price



COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES!

Luckies lead all other brands in colleges—and by a wide margin—according to an exhaustive, coast-to-coast college survey. The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

CHECK THAT BOUNCED
Nancy Masterson
U.C.L.A.

BUTTON SEEN THROUGH BUTTONHOLE
Gerry Davis
Richmond Professional Institute

Better taste Luckies...

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!

This is beauty with a bonus . . . for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.

Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield . . . a dramatic style note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line . . . but they are up where they can be seen for safety's sake.

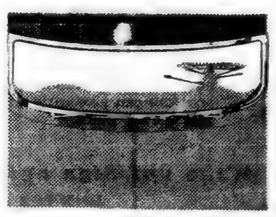
The smart louvers across the hood aren't just decoration . . . they mark the intake for the High-Level ventilation system for cleaner, fresher air. And the whole shape of the body—its lowness, the dipped belt line—is merely a reflection of a lowered center of gravity, the added stability.

This is truly functional styling that serves you better every mile, and preserves its value against the distant day when you trade. This is Body by Fisher—another Chevrolet exclusive in the low-price field. Come in and let us demonstrate that this new Chevrolet is just as exciting to drive as to look at!



motoramic CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET

STEALING THE THUNDER FROM THE HIGH-PRICED CARS!

1 Visored headlights

2 Louvered High-Level air intake

3 Sweep-Sight windshield

4 Distinctive dip in belt line

5 Fender-high taillights

6 Tasteful two-tone color styling

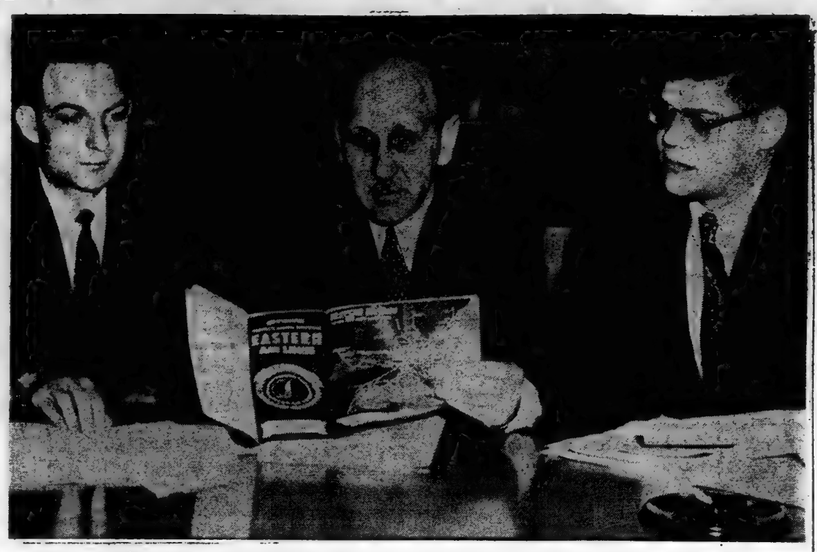
The beautiful Bel Air Sport Coupe with Body by Fisher.

HARRISS-CONNORS CHEVROLET



FILTER TIP TAREYTON

PATENTS PENDING

An entirely new concept in cigarette filtration. A filter tip of purified cellulose, incorporating Activated Charcoal, a filtering substance world-famous as a purifying agent, notably for air, water and beverages.

PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Bipartisan Selection Board Nominates Tice, Brumfield For Head Cheerleader

Business Fraternity Members To Meet With Rickenbacker

Kenneth Argo, left, and Chester Lewis, right are shown above with Professor J. C. D. Blaine checking the flight schedule for a trip which the two members of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, will make tomorrow to meet with Eddie Rickenbacker, chairman of the board of Eastern Air Lines, to discuss plans for the fraternity's annual Business Fair. The Fair is scheduled for April 27 and 28. Professor Blaine is faculty advisor to the fraternity on the Fair.

The Bipartisan Selection Board yesterday endorsed John (Pepper) Tice, High Point, and Lewis Brumfield, Yadkinville, as candidates for next year's head cheerleader.

Brumfield's and Tice's names will be placed on the spring election tickets.

The Selection Board is made up of Jim Fountain, present head cheerleader; Nancy Whisnant, chairman of the Women's Honor Council, and Bob Litaker, president of the University Club.

Fountain said "both candidates have promised to conduct their campaigns on a non-political basis" and to "divorce themselves completely from either parties."

"Anyone may run on an independent ticket," Fountain said.

Fountain said "either Tice or Brumfield will make an excellent cheerleader for the coming season."

★

Head cheerleader Fountain early yesterday said he "will not accept" the Student Party's endorsement of Lewis Brumfield.

Brumfield, questioned later, said his endorsement at a SP meeting Wednesday was "premature," that he was "very much disturbed" about it and that the party acted without his knowledge.

Fountain cited a bill introduced in student Legislature two years ago "by a Student Party member" taking the privilege of endorsing from the "hands of the parties."

"They are stepping out of bounds," said Fountain.

Student Party member David Reid said yesterday the bill "in no way" prohibits a party's endorsing a candidate.

Greek Week Ends

Greek Week activities today will have half the pledges clearing land and building a nursery at Victory Village and half of them clearing away some of the havoc created by Hurricane Hazel in Battle Park, Burt Veazy, co-chairman of Greek Week, announced.

At 6:30 p.m. a banquet will be held at Lenoir Hall. Roy Armstrong, director of admissions, will be the speaker.

Trophies will be awarded to the outsanding pledge class at the banquet.

Monogrammers To Meet For Game Saturday

The following Monogram Club members who signed up to work at the Blue-White game on Saturday have been asked by club President Wilbur Jones to meet at noon in the lobby of Woollen Gym.

Those who will park cars include: Joe Mavretic, Tom Kirkland, Jimmy Neville, Boyd Newnam, Pat McCormick, Scotty Hester, Bob Boerner, Jimmy Hall, Ed Joyner, Bob Eberle, Noel Sullivan, Steve Marcinko, Marion Griffin, Bob Wilson and Steve Trimble.

Those who will sell programs include:

Jim Skidmore, Calvine Lane, Dick Dodson, Zack Waters, Jim Beatty, Sonny Clifton, Frank Butler, Grover Brown, Bill Booth, Don Wright and Herb Callihan. These boys will report to Callihan in the lobby.

Club members will not be used on the gates this year. Members not listed who desire to work were asked to report to the gym at noon.

PLANTATION HOME

Mulberry Hill, a distinguished home built before the Revolutionary War on a plantation established in 1689 near Edenton, will be opened to the public April 15-16 during the Pilgrimage of Colonial Edenton and Countryside. The gracious three-story residence is one of the few brick plantation homes of the region.

Cartoons of Cobean

Nobody gets inside a man's mind like Cobean. He takes our most sacred dreams, like, maybe, being left on a desert isle with a dizzy blonde, and exposes them to the cynic eye of the public. Published at $3.95.

Our Special
$1.69
There's a bargain just for you at
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

Lady Milton Shop

Spring has really blossomed out with our full stock of bermuda shorts, short sleeve blouses and cotton cord skirts, all at very low and modest prices.

Milton's

McCurry Favors Utilizing Vets Building For Students

Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, announced in a statement yesterday his desire to extend student union facilities by utilizing the old Veterans' Club behind Lenoir Hall when it is vacated.

McCurry noted that the building has been used for storage since 1951, when the club was dissolved. He said, "I will work to have it converted into a student activities center as an extension of Graham Memorial."

The facilities, he said, would include a large recreation room equipped with ping-pong and card tables for use by dormitories and campus organizations.

The UP Presidential candidate said that there would be more convenient access to the Library and the Pine Room, and the building would be especially valuable to students whose studies and activities direct them to that area of the University.

"Since we have been unable to obtain as equally fine facilities as our brother and sister institutions of the Consolidated University, the conversion of the Veterans' Club would be a practical and economical addition to our present student union," said McCurry.

According to McCurry, Roy Holstein, director of student activities, in talking with him said he "strongly favored its use by students for various activities, but at this time am unable to say when it will be vacated."

FATHERS and SONS CAN SERVE TOGETHER IN THE
GROUND OBSERVER CORPS

A boy and his dad can work together for their country's security as civilian volunteer plane spotters. Together you can serve two hours a week to fill a vital job in our air defense network. Your time and effort can help lessen the threat of air attack on this country, and your eyes and ears can give early warning if this attack ever comes.

Wake up! Sign up! Look up!
JOIN THE
GROUND OBSERVER CORPS
CALL OR WRITE CIVIL DEFENSE
DURHAM FILTER CENTER
DURHAM, N. C.

What Goes On Here

STUDENT PARTY CANDIDATES

The Student Party legislative candidates will meet today at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker Number 3. The meeting is an "imperative" one and includes all nominated Wednesday night.

MEN'S COUNCIL

The Bipartisan Selection Board for Men's Council will interview persons wishing to run for Men's Council in spring elections at 2 p.m. today in the Men's Council Room of GM. Seats are open for three seniors, one junior and one sophomore. Today is the last time the board will meet.

SOUND AND FURY TRYOUTS

Tryouts for the second production of Sound and Fury will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Memorial Hall. Thirty-two parts are available.

RENDEZVOUS ROOM

Dancing will be held tonight from 9 until midnight in the Rendezvous Room of GM. Refreshments will be served at 10.

TALENT BUREAU

Tryouts with the Talent Bureau will be held again from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m. in the Rendezvous Room next Tuesday.

–Dr. Yen–

(Continued from Page 1)

provements in one region, and on education in a neighboring area."

Dr. Yen stressed the fact that "these people may be illiterate but not unintelligent; they do not lack brains, but rather have not been given an opportunity to develop their great potentialities.

"Asia's greatest asset is not its physical size and materials, but its human power, 85 per cent of which is undeveloped, resulting in a colossal waste of talent," he said, explaining that the rural reconstruction drive emphasizes development of the people, to prepare them to help themselves.

Asserting that "release, not relief" is the answer to Asia's problems, Dr. Yen said that success of technical aid programs will never be complete until the wide gap between the governments of these nations and the people of the tiniest villages has been spanned.

"By means of rural reconstruction we can give the Asiatic a full ricebowl, better health and a realization of his human dignity and freedom. which is the best argument against Communism," he said.

"The Communists fight on more fronts than one," he said, "and we must realize that the ricefields are more important than the battlefields in the struggle for control of Asia."

Dr. Yen explained that the Philippine project is gaining ground against the Huk guerrillas, marking "the end of eight years of desolation." Operation of health clinics and classes in mat weaving, reading and writing, and farming methods has gained enthusiastic support from the peasants as well as top government officials, he reported.

KD, Carr Top Drive

Kappa Delta Sorority and Carr Women's Dormitory have gone 100 percent in the current Campus Chest campaign, said director Graham Rights yesterday.

Rights said 100 percent of the sorority and of the dorm contributed. Graham Dormitory has the best percentage in men's dorms so far, he said.

The drive will end tomorrow morning.

Students living off the campus may contribute in the YMCA office, said Rights. A sign in the Y lobby shows residential areas and their percentages, he said.

AMERICA'S No. 1 SHOW
The HORACE HEIDT SHOW
This American Way
FRIDAY
MAR. 25, 8:30 P.M.
COLISEUM
WILLIAM NEAL ESTRADA COLISEUM
N. C. STATE COLLEGE—P. O. BOX 5103
RALEIGH, N. C.
PRICES: $3.50 $3.00 $2.50 $1.50
CHILDREN ½ PRICE
.....ADULT tickets at $..... each—Total $.....
.....CHILD tickets at $..... each—Total $.....
Please include 25c for Postage and Handling ....$ .25
Amount of Check or Money Order Enclosed ....$.....
Name..... Address.....

NOW PLAYING
Varsity

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

Tuxedos For Rent

Varley's Men's Shop

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

DID YOU FORGET A BIRTHDAY? Don't fret; you can send a belated birthday greeting from Ledbetter-Pickard. Select a card from among our large collection.

ANYONE MOVING FROM CHAPEL HILL in June, who has bedroom and living room furniture to sell, please contact Tom Abernethy, 310 Aycock, Phone 93021. (1-9091-3)

WORK NEAR HOME. TERRITORY OPENINGS for several women past 25. Experience unnecessary Avon sells itself. Write Avon Cosmetics, 122 Camellia Dr., Fayetteville, N. C., for inquiries.

For the best in Combo music call Jim Crisp at 96102 after 5:30 P. M.

DAILY CROSSWORD

HEAPS JEEPS
INGOT INERT
VIOLA MELEE
EDSELS GE ODOMETER
ART NAMED
BEE ODD LEG
CALPO ADO
HOSTESSRY
AU AEACUS
TRAMS AZURE
ESTOP MORSE
SEAMY SOLAR

Yesterday's Answer 3-18

ACROSS
1. Gone by
5. Mountains (Swiss)
9. Downy
10. Block of glacial ice
12. Speak
13. Fact (archaic)
14. Music note
15. Property contributed by the wife (Rom. Law)
17. Hint
19. Upward curving of a ship's planking
20. Frying pans with feet
23. Famous boy's school (Eng.)
25. Foreigners
26. Hasty
28. Seesaw
30. Trial
33. Act of evading
35. Female deer
36. Gold coin (Bulg.)
37. Marry
39. Music note
40. Anoint (archaic)
43. Automobiles (short-ened)
45. Biblical name
46. Disposed
47. Canines
48. Warbled

DOWN
1. Government grant to an inventor
2. Likely
3. Hastened
4. Novices
5. Donkey
6. Sign of the Zodiac
7. Advanced
8. One of the planets
9. Doctor's assistant
11. A game of skill
16. Bird
19. A sailor's chant (3 words)
21. Asian river
22. Prescribed regimen
24. Indehiscent fruits
27. Biblical name
28. Of a membrane
29. Leveled
31. Good-by (2 words)
32. Plague
34. Poles of wagons (U. S.)
38. Biblical name
41. Haul
42. City (Ger.)
44. Unit of weight

3-18

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and cool today, with expected high of 55.

The Daily Tar Heel

ATOM

The atom has attracted the attention—and pen—of the editor again today. See editoral column, p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 121 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

12 Endorsed For Six Coed Seats On Honor Council

Social science prof stopping lecture, walking to window, staring half-minute at belated sunrise.

* * *

In Y-lobby display on Campus Chest, thumb-tacked above poster showing needs of students in India an anonymous note saying:

"Nehru loves me, this I know
For the U. N. tells me so."

* * *

Overworked politician falling asleep in caucus and getting hotfoot.

* * *

Coed telling another: "The word for the day is 'Men—they're no damn good.'"

Twelve candidates have been endorsed by the Bipartisan Board for the six seats open on the Women's Honor Council.

These candidates will run in the spring election, according to Miss Nancy Whisnant, chairman of the board.

Candidates endorsed for the five junior seats are: Misses Connie McMahon, Asheville, McIver; Peggy Ballard, Charlotte, Pi Beta Phi; Gail Lawson, Louisville, Ky., Chi Omega; Ann Scott, Miami Beach, Kappa Delta; Cary Caperton, Charleston, W. V., Delta Delta Delta;

Misses Jean Robertson, Zebulon, Alpha Gamma Delta; Marietta Everett, New York, N. Y., McIver; Martha May, Asheville, Kappa Delta; Dutchie Milligan, Orlando, Fla., Chi Omega, and Joan Purser, Charlotte, Delta Delta Delta.

The two candidates endorsed for the seat-at-large are Misses Barbara Hedburg, Charlotte, and Mary Ann Keeter, Shelby. Both of these girls are sophomores in the School of Nursing.

The Bipartisan Board was composed of Misses Nancy Whisnant, chairman of the Women's Honor Council; Carol Webster, clerk of the Council; Betsy Goodwin, house co-ordinator of the Council; Nancy Carpenter, member of the Council; Virginia Agnew, representative of the Student Party, and Betsy Stoner, representative of the University Party.

Y Elects Officers Monday

YMCA elections are slated for 7 p.m. Monday on the second floor of the Y building.

Nominations for the officers will be made from the floor at that time. All members of the YMCA have been asked to attend the meeting.

The nominating committee has announced the following slate of suggested candidates for the offices during 1955-56: president, Graham Rights, Winston-Salem; vice-president, Ed Hennessee, Parkersburg, W. Va.; secretary, Roy Taylor, Greenville, and treasurer, Jerry Mayo, Chocowinity.

Rights is a rising senior. He is past chairman of the student government elections board and secretary of the YMCA Cabinet.

Hennessee, a rising senior, has been chairman of the YMCA membership commission during the past year.

Taylor, a rising junior, has been chairman of the YMCA Speakers Committee during the past year.

Mayo, a rising sophomore, was one of the chairmen of the YMCA Freshman Fellowship during the past year and attended the Freshman Camp last fall.

Second Sex & Marriage Discussion Set Sunday

The second discussion on "Sex and Marriage" will be held by the Newman Club tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in the Roland Parker Lounge. The group will consider topics for future meetings after the discussion. The meeting is open to the public.

Segregation Series Starts Here Sunday

Wesley Foundation, campus Methodist group, is planning a series of six lectures entitled "Race and Segregation," according to Director Joel Savell.

Savell said the first lecture will be given at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Methodist dining hall by Dr. Maurice Whittinghill, University of Michigan geneticist. Dr. Whittinghill will speak on "A Geneticist Looks at Race and Individualities." Supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. Savell said persons wishing to eat supper should sign up on the church's bulletin board opposite the student lounge.

The lecture will last 20 minutes. A question-and-answer period will follow.

Dr. Whittinghill, said Savell, will refer to the position taken on segregation by the University's Dr. W. C. George. Dr. George, an anatomist in the Medical School, recently compiled a pro-segregation petition on grounds that the Negro race is inferior biologically to the white race.

The following five lectures will be on Tuesday nights at 6:45, second floor of Lenoir Hall.

Later lecture titles are "What Is Race?" "Intelligence and Race," "A Sociologist Looks at Segregation," "The History of the Supreme Court Decision" and "The Bible and Racial Segregation."

McCurry Favors Plan For N.C. High Schools

Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, announced yesterday a proposed plan for a high school student government workshop.

"The purpose of this plan," he said, "would be to set aside a weekend during which time delegates from our state high schools would come to Chapel Hill."

"The workshop would provide a constructive link between the University and afford prospective students a practical introduction to student government on a more advanced basis," said McCurry.

In sponsoring a student government workshop, McCurry pointed out the importance of continued interest in high schools.

"I have found our high school honor committee most functional and beneficial. I feel that this idea should be continued, strengthened and improved upon," he said.

The program would have as its goal the improvement and advancement of student government on the secondary level of education, according to McCurry.

Charles Bernard, assistant director of admissions, said that "This plan would serve to help in discovering the outstanding students throughout the state," according to McCurry.

Bernard commented that this workshop system was currently in use at Emory University, Ga., and was working most successfully, said the UP candidate.

Director Of Admissions Armstrong Tells '55 Pledge Classes To Place Scholarship 'Above Everything Else'

Greeks At Field Day; Week Ended Last Night

. . . after Victory Village cleanup, stunt night; now it's over

Betas Win Strum Cup For Class

By ED MYERS

University Director of Admissions Roy Armstrong last night told the pledge class of 1955 to put "scholarship above everything else."

Armstrong spoke at a banquet, held in Lenoir Hall, which placed the final touch on Greek Week.

In his speech to more than 420 pledges, Armstrong said, "I am very proud of you. I commend you on this type of initiation. You are doing a positive and good thing."

The Sturm Memorial Cup for the outstanding pledge class was awarded to Beta Theta Pi Fraternity on the bases of scholarship, participation in Stunt Night and Field Day and activities of the pledge class as a whole. SAE was judged second, Phi Kappa Sigma and St. Anthony Hall tied for third and fourth places, and DEKE and Zeta Psi tied for fifth and sixth.

The Stunt Night award also went to Beta Theta Phi. Phi Kappa Sigma was awarded the Field Day trophy.

Armstrong said he was disappointed that the fraternities did not have a higher scholastic average than the rest of the student body. "You should be tops on this campus," he said.

"Let's show everyone that you are not interested primarily in driving red and yellow convertibles over to Duke to spread 'brotherhood and visiting Raleigh to put 'culture' into their agriculture.

"You are not just visiting here," he added, 'You are members of this community and citizens of Chapel Hill and this University." He suggested they take a part in school and church activities in order to become a "working part of this community."

UP Meeting

University Party will meet Monday night to discuss party platform and campaign activities.

The party will meet in 105 Hanes Hall at 7:30.

Muntzing Asks Return On Machines' Profits

Manning Muntzing, Student Party presidential candidate, announced in a statement yesterday that he advocates a "40 percent return of vending machine profits" to dormitories for use in social programs.

Muntzing said both the student Legislature and the Interdormitory Council this year have shown an interest in such a proposal.

"The profits from not only the vending machines, but also the book exchange, at the present, go to scholarships which I think is very good," said the candidate. "What I should like to see is a percentage of the increase, approximately $2,080 within the past year and the expected increase from cigaret and other vending machines that are scheduled to be installed in the dormitories, returned to the dormitories," he said.

Muntzing said that the return would also apply to women's dorms.

'Even with an assessment of the members in the various dormitories, the funds available are inadequate to meet the needs of even a fair program," said Muntzing. "For this reason," he concluded. "I think that a return of percentage of vending machine profits to the dormitories will go far in increasing school spirit and making Carolina active for seven days a week."

$12.50 LIMIT ON EXPENSES:

SP Talks Campaign

The Student Party held a meeting yesterday to make sure all SP candidates for student legislature knew of the $12.50 limit on campaign expenses for publicity.

The party's legislative coordinator, Bob Young, reminded candidates that each has to contribute $2 from his own pocket to be used for party publicity, rather than for his personal campaign. The whole sum is for printing, said Young.

Publicity Chairman Al Isaac reminded candidates that a report is due soon showing the expenses of each one in this spring campaign. Isaac asked that everyone get reports in by next Friday.

Young also told candidates that 18 of the 26 seats to be filled in the Legisdlature are now filled by members.

Another meeting, a compulsory one, will be announced next week.

Di Slates Readings Night Next Tuesday

The Dialectic Senate will hold its semi-annual Readings Night next Tuesday at 8 p.m. on the top floor of New West.

The Senate has urged that the members and visitors bring compositions written by themselves or readings and read them to the body.

According to a Di representative, last semester's Readings Night was very successful, and it was felt that one meeting each semester should be set aside for readings.

The representative said that for several years after the Senate was founded in 1795, its activities were not confined to debating. The Senate of James K. Polk and William R. Davie spent part of its hearing declamations, part in having debates and part in hearing its members read compositions, poems and essays that they themselves had written, according to the spokesman.

Political Punch On Tap Monday

The Independent Women's Council, in an effort to have coeds meet the candidates for whom they will be voting in spring elections, will hold a Political Punch Party Monday night.

The party, open to all women students and candidates for offices in the coming elections, will be held in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served. Ron Levin will provide music at the piano.

Miss Libby Whitfield, chairman of the event, has urged that all women students attend the party to get acquainted with the candidates.

Statewide Whisky Bill Introduced In House

RALEIGH, March 18. (AP)—A long anticipated liquor referendum bill was introduced in the House today by Rep. Carson Gregory of Hartnett and 15 others.

The 'all or nothing" bill calls for a statewide vote Nov. 8 on whether to ban sale of liquor throughout the state or to have ABC stores in each county.

Chest Drive Extended

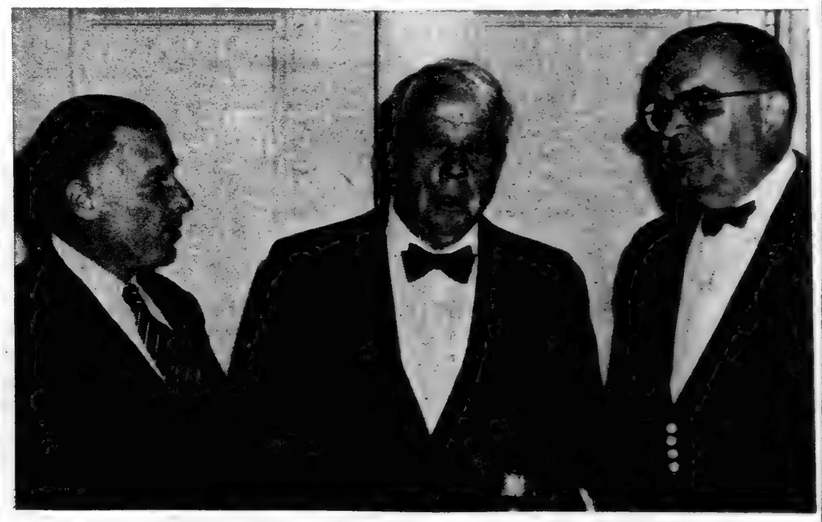
Campus Chest chairman Graham Rights announced yesterday that Kappa Delta and Alpha Gamma Delta Sororities have gone over the 100 percent mark in contributing, as have the SAEs.

The SAEs total is $53, the largest group donation to date. Carr and Smith both went over the 100 percent mark Friday morning.

Rights said the drive will continue until Tuesday morning to give all solicitors a chance to total receipts.

"It's hard to tell now how we're doing, because so many solicitors haven't turned in their figures yet," he said.

News Of The Week In Review In Pictures: Yen, Elections, Frost



Dr. Yen, Chinese Rural Leader, Spoke Here

Dr. Y. C. James Yen, Chinese rural development leader, delivered two addresses here this week. Here Dr. Yen is shown talking with Chancellor Robert B. House (left). Dr. Yen outlined what he termed one of the most successful weapons against Communism in Asia—the rural construction movement. Dr. Yen is founder and president of the International Committee of the Mass Education Movement, with headquarters in New York.

It's Almost Election Time

Student body presidential candidate Manning Muntzing is shown indulging in an old campaign practice—campaigning. Here Muntzing explains his platform to dorm residents. The Student Party is sponsoring Muntzing. —R. B. Henley photo.

Annual Visitor Came Back To Hill Hall

Robert Frost, four-time Pulitzer Prize winner, presented his ninth recital-lecture this week before an overflow audience in Hill Hall. Shown with Frost at left is Dr. Clifford Lyons of the University faculty, Frost's long-time friend and host. On the right is Dr. Raymond Adams, acting chairman of the Department of English, which sponsored Frost's lecture. Poet-author Frost spoke on subjects ranging from interpreting poetry to materialism.

Who Does What In A-Raid?

Here are some headlines for you:

"Scientist Urges Halt to H-Tests"; "Need Of Civil A-Defense Talked", "Faure: France To Build H. Bomb", "Who Does What In A-Raid?"

We came across these disconcerting type displays in yesterday's papers. The day's mail brought Joseph Alsop's column from Hong Kong titled "Atomic War For Quemoy?" and full of phrases like "crises heat."

But it was no afternoon for crisis heat; so we turned to The New Yorker, looking for relief among the Tiffany ads and the Arno cartoons. And E. B. White's lead began "Now that it is quite clear that thermonuclear explosions can make the earth uninhabitable . . ."

Well, it is quite clear and there's no reason E. B. White should not say so. It is the news story of the year, of the last several millennia.

The word from Nobel Prize winning scientist Dr. Linus Pauling (in a single-column AP story next to the baby food ad on page 12 this morning) is that radioactive rain, such as may cause leukemia or hereditary mutations, is falling these days in Germany and China. "Final effects of continued nuclear weapons testing," he says, "can only be guessed at and feared."

One more quotation, just to give you the idea. It is Sir Anthony Eden's understatement of the culture lag, made this week in London. A single sentence:

"I am afraid the advance of science has dimmed our hopes."

We do not wish to ruin your weekend. But the stream of headlines is not likely to stop this March or for a while to come. The human scene's limits extend farther than Hogan's Lake, even on a weekend, and that scene has become vast and fearsome.

Today's question, "Who Does What In A-Raid", might be better put: "Who Does What To Prevent A-Raid?"

That is the question we don't hear anybody asking, least of all those in Washington who might ask it with potency and results.

Amending The Amendments

Our opinion is divided on the new bill to amend the Honor System which the Legislature pushed through Thursday night.

One part of the measure would give the accused the right to new trial before the Honor Council if "insufficient evidence" was used to convice him. This right seems too important to us to have waited so long for clarification; it should hae been understood long ago.

The other half of the provision—making seven of the nine seats on the Honor Council appointive—strikes us the wrong way. Jack Stevens, University Party floorleader, protested in debate that the provision carried "a haze about it" and should be studied.

Certainly so—for no one has yet made it clear why the students should have the right of electing Honor Council officials taken from them.

The Judicial Problems Commission, in recommending the change, advised that appointments be made from lower courts, giving as reason that new members "should have previous judicial experience."

Why can't newly-elected Council members continue to learn their duties after taking office? Again—for this can't be too strongly emphasized—why should the students be denied the important right to elect the peers who might, under conceivable situations, have to try them?

President Creasy ought to withhold his signature from the bill until those questions are answered.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

The Real Story About Politics On Campus

Louis Kraar

"WHY DON'T you put in the paper what really happens in campus politics?" Liz Lynn asked yesterday as a group of us sat about the YWCA office drinking coffee and talking politics.

I wondered what she meant by "what really happens."

"Well, you know, just what goes on—not just facts about the candidates," she said.

"Yes, that would really be good," agreed Charlie Dean.

I wanted to know if that wouldn't make some people—the politcians perhaps—angry.

"Who cares?" Charlie Dean said. "Students would enjoy it."

Thus, with the advice of Miss Lynn of the University Party and Charlie Dean of the Student Party ringing in my ears, I decided to put into practice their bi-partison suggestion. Here goes:

★

THE STUDENT Party—if it can still be called by as unified name as a party—is split wide open over the presidential race.

Now that Don Fowler has bolted the SP and decided to run independently, many of his SP friends are following. This means that many of the SP members who should, according to party standards, be supporting Muntzing, are in the Fowler camp.

Leading SP politicians like Dave Reid and Gordon Forester have quit the party to campaign for Fowler. The effect of the Fowler race on the SP is about the same as would have been caused by the formation of a third campus political party.

★

JIM MONTEITH, who lost the UP nod for vice-presidential candidate, is quitting his party too—but not to run.

The word about Y Court yesterday morning was that Monteith was going to work for one of the SP candidates. However, other reports said that Monteith would bolt the party and run for vice-president as a independent.

★

JACK HUDSON, SP member who led the committee which investigated this newspaper, may also leave the SP fold to support Fowler.

Reid is working on Hudson to join the Fowler backers.

★

WORD FROM the girls' dorm, where the three presidential candidates have been making appearances, is that Fowler's Peter Lawford appearance, McCurry's casual speaking style, and Muntzing's noteriety are the qualities that are impressing the coeds.

★

LEWIS BRUMFIELD cheered the Kappa Delta coffee break with some jazz piano playing Thursday night.

★

McCURRY CAMPAIGN leader Raymond Taylor, when asked about how his man's battle for the presidency was going, replied:

"Ed McCurry is not running against the other two candidates; he's running for the office. Some men run just to keep others from getting it, and others run because they want the office," he said in an oratorical manner.

★

MANNING MUNTZING, obviously spurred on by the large presidential field, campaigned last Monday night instead of attending his party's meeting.

★

MONTIETH supporters are angry about Stevens packing the University Party meeting with fraternity brothers.

'You Sure You Didn't Leave The Scissors Inside?'

SOUNDS

Domestic Jazz: Jim Crisp

Tom Spain

The college jazz movement, lately publicized by the Williams and Princeton recordings, has a strong movement right here in Chapel Hill. Jim Crisp and his three cohorts have been featuring some of the better modern jazz styles in a fashion which should not go unheralded.

This group, though it is made up mainly of North Carolinians, could be easily confused with some of the more successful New York and Los Angeles combos, and their music compares well with many top flight jazz quartets.

CRISP MODERNITY

Crisp, a pianist who favors the Peterson school of jazz, could probably do quite well on his own, despite the competition from the many moderns who are yet to be recognized.

Backed up by a steady and clear rhythm section of bass and drums, Crisp and his tenor saxaphonist Flip Latham are particularly skilled at smooth improvisation and melodic development, not foreign from the Brubeck style. The influence is noticeable, but the sound does not seem second-hand.

A careful listen will prove interesting as Latham's high-register tenor sax parallels Paul Desmond's alto work, and combined with the progressive chords of the modern jazz pianist, the first impression is entirely Brubeck. But on the other hand, Crisp's style could not be further removed from Brubeck's, and thus, the difference.

TONIGHT ON RADIO

Latham and Crisp do not integrate their music as do so many of the moderns, but rather stick to the old school of mutual accompaniment. The solos are singular but most expressive, revealing, on occasion, excellent talent and taste.

Classics in Jazz, WUNC-FM's weekly tribute to the jazz world which is written and produced by Doug Young. will tonight feature the Crisp Quartet. Broadcasting with tapes, recorded last week in Memorial Hall, Classics in Jazz will attempt to define the qualities of the Crisp group, as well as to show what's being done on this campus to further the interests of the jazz arts. As in the past, the weekly show will also move towards seeking a place for jazz within the realms of serious, formal music. Broadcast time is 8:30 tonight.

'LULLABY' TO 'STOMPIN'

The Crisp Quartet recorded several of the modern standards, which include, among others, LULLABY OF BIRDLAND, WE'LL BE TOGETHER AGAIN, TAKE THE A TRAIN, and STOMPIN' AT THE SAVOY. A straight piano solo by Crisp with rhythm accompaniment, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE is perhaps the most delicate of the selections. This above all resembles the subtle touch of Oscar Peterson, and is one of his favorites. Saxaphonist Latham, after a slow start in Ellington's A TRAIN, loosens up and gives a swinging but controlled extended solo.

The Crisp boys perform well as an ensemble. There is little or no clashing or over-emphasis on aynone's part, which goes to create the much sought-after group sound. Avery Mills, drummer, and bassman Ron Oldenburg present a light, clean beat, showing no elements of the over-anxiety found with so many rhythm sections. As most of the selection are of an up-tempo style, Mills and Oldenburg provide steady and scintillating rhythm patterns.

HOMETOWN JAZZ

It is difficult to criticize a jazz group. It can only be done in comparison with other, more well-known musicians. The Jim Crisp Quartet is not Brubeck or Peterson, or anybody but the Jim Crisp Quartet. Theirs is good music and good jazz. What's more, it can be heard right here in Chapel Hill, at a dance, in the Rendezvous Room or over WUNC at 8:30.

★

EmArcy Records, the new label for Mercury Records Corp., has been releasing some recorded jam sessions, recorded in Hollywood and certainly reflecting the more frantic elements of that jazz scene. Entitled simply JAM SESSION, the new release features some of the West Coast's wildest musicians with their wildest jazz. Also included are some of the more gentle and melodic interpretations.

WILD AND WOOLY, SWEET AND SLOW

Maynard ,Ferguson, Clifford Brown and Clark Terry are the Trumpet men, while Harold Land and Herb Geller make up the reed section. Pianists include Richie Powell and Junior Mance, while Max Roach and Ketter Bates finish out the rhythm section. Dinah Washington does one fine vocal, a natural—DARN THAT DREAM.

Opening with a supersonic, highpowered number aptly entitled MOVE, they do just that. MOVE is one o the fastest, most frantically wild recordings ever captured. The solos whiz by at a rate of speed which defies description, ideally epitomizing the more progressive of the progressive movement. It is a study in footloose exuberance.

A Powell piano solo, MY FUNNY VALENTINE, quickly follows, slowing the pace to a standstill. The treatment of the sentimental tune is quiet with a blue air.

NEW NAMES ON THE COAST

Perhaps most striking of all the selections is tenor saxaphonist Harold Land's version of BESS, YOU IS MY WOMAN. The Gershwin classic is treated with careful tenderness, with little deviation from the straight melody.

WHAT IS THAT THING CALLED LOVE, another long session by the Mercury aggregation, is somewhat slower than MOVE, but swings with more easy rhythm. It is packed with riffs and duets, as well as numerous solos which bring memories of the Norman Granz boys in 1948.

For an indication of what they're doing on the West Coast, the new EmArcy album is prepared to offer a really quick rundown. It includes some new names and some real talent.

TRUTH ABOUT THE SOUTH

There are books which tell the truth about the South, and it is to America's interest to encourage this circulation abroad, if only as a counterweight to mendacity. Half a dozen that come to mind, out of a large number, are:

Red Hills and Cotton by Ben Robertson.

John Brown's Body by Stephen Vincent Benet.

The Mind of the South by W. J. Cash.

The South in American Literature by Jay B. Hubbell.

No Day of Triumph by J. Saunders Redding.

America is in a strange position. She needs to convince the world that she is not as indecently glamorous as she has painted herself. The truth is that she is a nice girl who has "made herself up" to look like a street walker.—Greensboro News

WHEN SPEED INCREASES

When speed is increased from 40 to 65 miles an hour, gasoline costs jump almost 30 per cent. Cost of oil consumed goes up almost four times when speed is increased from 40 to 65 mph. At the same time, the cost of wear and tear on tires is two and one-half times as much at the higher speed.

Figures compiled by the N. C. Motor Vehicles Department show that during 1954 excessive speed was a factor in about one out of every three fatal auto accidents in North Carolina.

Covenants Unopenly Arrived At

Phillips Russell

In The Chapel Hill News Leader

Something evil is going on in the government bureaus and agencies at Washington.

We can say this with conviction because of the secrecy which has become so dense and spreading at the capital that newspaper editors, correspondents, and even devout administration organs are complaining.

There was never a worse time for secrecy.

Events and inventions are already so mystifing that the feeling loose in the air, not only nationally but internationally, has created a special kind of apprhension and uneasiness.

Are we on the verge of war or not?

Are we safe not only from outer but inner enemies?

Are our leaders competent and candid?

These are some of the questions that assail the citizen who believes the only safe foundation for both domestic and foreign policy is the topmost of the famous Fourteen Points of President Wilson:

"Open convenants openly arrived at."

The only thing that the average citizen who reads the guesses and surmises of the newspapers can be sure of is that we are being subjejcted almost daily to unopen covenants unopenly arrived at.

Is the government at Washington purposely drawing further and further away from the average man? Even over its routine activities it maintains a veil, and when a citizen asks for the bread of truth he is given the stone of generalities.

History plainly asserts that no government can be built on uncertainty, apprehension, and distrust. We have had secrecy at Raleigh. But worse for a people's morals is the secrecy at Washington.

'Put 'er There, Phillip—I Knew We'd Make It!'

Listening in on a Robert Frost interview:

Tell us more about the bomb, Mr. Frost. How do you think the world will end?

"Phillip Wylie and I are going around this year saying the world isn't going to end with a bang—and that's official, because he's a consultant in the Pentagon."

What if the world does end with a bang?

"We'd wake up on the other side—if there is another side—and congratulate each other on being in on the most remarkable thing in history."

On television aerials:

"Reaching up for ideas, but all they get is what to to buy."

Quote, Unquote

Man unlike any other thing organic or inorganic in the universe, grows beyond his work, walks up the stairs of his concepts, emerges ahead of his accomplishments.—John Steinback in The Grapes of Wrath.

★

Subject openion to coercion: whom will you make your inquisitors? Fallible men; men governed by bad passions, by private as well as public reasons. And why subject it to coercion? To produce uniformity. But is uniformity of opinion desirable? No more than of face and stature. —Thomas Jefferson in Notes On Virginia.

★

If you give to a thief, he cannot steal from you and he is then no longer a thief. — William Saroyan in The Human Comedy.

★

A gifted small girl has explained that pins are a great means of saving life, "by not swallowing them." — Charles Edward Montague in Dramatic Values.

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coe

(The Horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others.—Hipporotis, circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was having a bit of trouble with currying Mr. Neckley, the high-level-vision Giraffe. Horsie was up a tree, a not uncommon predicament in itself. The Giraffe's neck was up a tree, but another tree.

"It's almost as bad as currying favor," The Horse observed, "only in that difficult operation, the curried stand still; until you want something, that is. Mr. Neckley, sir! Neck me your neck!"

Was The Horse still in the inertia of quitting?

"Oh, I have quit, I have," The Horse brogued me in a Paddy's Day echo akin to the heavy scent of funeral flowers after the casket has been removed. "Whisht, now, haven't we been over that question, me lad?"

Yes-s; but wasn't it true that the perhaps questionable physical appearance of the DTH, as well as its numerous errata, was not altogether the fault of the editors and staff?

"Oh, aye, lad," The Horse agreed: "An' you can toss in th' printers thereof; and with some bit av a doubt, perhaps the sinning linotypers an' the myopic proofreaders, into the bargain."

Ah! Then it was nobody's fault, at all, at all! I watched The Horse take a bowling-ball grip with Neckley's nares for a purchase, and grimly finish the currying.

"There now, Neckley," The Horse dismissed his nomcommital brutish companion. "Roger me lad, it's nobody's fault and everybody's fault. It is a matter of our all wanting something without paying the price tag. It starts with the handling of bids for printing the DTH for the year ahead, or whatever is the time contracted for."

Well, I certainly hope we went for the lowest bid, if that was what The Horse meant!

"The lowest bid for what?" The Horse inquired, sliding down out of the tree to crash heavily on the ground. "Careful, now — this is a moot point!"

Why, the lowest bid to print the DTH.

"And now you have stated the complete proposition, as well as the entire misunderstanding," The Horse said with satisfaction, proning himself like a terrier, hind legs stretched behind him. "The fallacy is in thinking that the lowest price represents a saving of money; whereas often, it marks a sheer waste of money."

I knew The Horse would continue without prompting. Nor was I disappointed.

"It is a truism that the best way to save your money is to keep your doggoned hands outa your pockets," The Horse stated baldly, a neat feat considering the prolificacy of his name. "And if you must spend money to achieve some worthwhile result, it does not follow that the lowest price is the cheapest price."

Now I was in a spin! Mayday, mayday!

"There is a foolproof axiom concerning buying anything, or doing anything," The Horse showed his canine teeth to say dogmatically. "There are three — repeat, three! — factors involved in any transaction, Roger me spalpeen: Quality; Quantity; Price. Right?"

Well, there was also color, size —

"It comes under Quality, any specification as to the article involved," The Horse docked my quibble. "Quality; Quantity; Price. Okay, you got that?"

Firmly, but questioningly.

"Good," The Horse gooded me. "Now, the axiom is — when you specify any two factors, the third must follow, Per se, as Doc Ullman of Classics and I say. Or whenseeking emphasis, per sese. Catch? You name two factors, and the third is on the house."

Could The Horse example?

"Sure." The Horse sured me. "Let's say we order seven thousand copies of a DTH: that's Quantity, yes? Yes! At a Price of x-obols or drachmas. Right?"

I knew The Horse would go on. He did.

"Quality, the third factor, must follow," The Horse shrugged his first-baseman-mitt lips. "And this is exactly how we are buying DTH's, and this is exactly why it occasionally looks loused up. It is no accident it is loused up when it is, we specify it when we name quantity and price."

What if we worked it some other way?

"Okay," The Horse okayed me, "let's say we buy a specified representative — representative of our school and campus and aims and ideals, that is — quality of DTH; and specify the Price. Okay, ready? Okay — then Quantity must follow. Maybe be get only three thousand copies of thissa quality at thatta price. You have specified the other two factors; and Quantity follows along."

Were we ready for a neat Q. E. D.?

"Almost," The Horse grudgingly conceded. "What the trouble is now, the DTH editors have had Quantity and Lowest Price specified for them by Student Government, or South Building, or whatever — and thus Quality must follow."

Did this have to do with the paper's appearance?

"Sometimes, its very physical appearance on the campus is a miracle," The Horse said. "It means that dedicated chilluns work hard hours at a pittance to turn out the paper; it means that at x-price of typesetting and correction-time, only x-amount of setting and correcting, make-ready, proof-reading, and so on, can be done. You certainly can't expect the printer to kick in the money if we don't want to. It is our paper, not his."

Then what was the beef with The Horse?

"Frankly, I'm not satisfied nor happy to work whatever Quantity and Quality of work I do or can turn out at the Price of loused-up results," The Horse said. "My minor kicks are few and easily corrected. I'll touch on those presently. But I am going to be permanently unhappy when the powerkles of Price and Quantity, and beat us up with the very Bargain-Basement Quality their shackles conjure up."

Could The Horse continue quitting in the next issoo? I was beginning to see some semse in this!

"Wump!" roared the sorely curried Mr. Wump.

Question-Answer Period Today As Blues And Whites Mix

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

The roughest of major intercollegiate sports briefly shoves track and baseball and golf and tennis aside today as the Blue and Whites bang heads in Kenan Stadium. Starting at 2 o'clock, the game will answer the many questions which have been asked throughout the past four weeks.

Coach George Barclay, his staff and his players will abandon the semi-privacy of Navy Field for a few hours to see what questions they can answer in front o the public. One of the big ones on the menu concerns the quarterbacks.

Yes, we have one. In fact, there are quite a few on the team, among them the converted half-back, Ed Sutton; last year's veteran, Len Bullock; last year's bench-warmer, Doug Farmer; and three frosh of last season in Buddy Sasser, Ron Marquette and Dave Reed. Sutton and Marquette will start.

The problem comes in here: This will be the only chance to see what the six above-mentioned pilots can do under game conditions before the Tar Heels take on Oklahoma in their opener September 24.

Because of a new NCAA ruling, which went through the channels in January, colleges are not permitted to scrimmage outside teams before their regular season opens if the team has scheduled 10 games. If the team has a nine-game schedule, one scrimmage wilth an outsider is premitted. Carolina has a 10-game slate, which means no more scrimmages (except those of the intra-squad nature) ere the Sooners roll into town.

Today will answer the question of who, among the six candidates, works best under the pressure of time and officials. A good performance today could well mean a starting berth against Oklahoma, and each of the so-called "brains" will have his chance. There will be no bitterness among the contestants, but there will be an intense rivalry present.

Sasser, the smallest of the six, may not get the full opportunity he deserves. Yesterday he was still running a slight fever after being in the infirmary for a few days, and his playing condition is questionable.

Among the interested spectators will be Buster Ramsey, former William and Mary great who is now coaching for the Detroit Lions. Ramsey is an old friend of Carolina line coach Marvin Bass, also a former Indian standout.

Football Takes Brief Spotlight On Kenan Grid

6,000 Fans Expected For 2 o'Clock Contest

The "day of reckoning" which White team center Jimmy Jones spoke of only four brief weeks ago is here again.

Execution time is 2 'clock this afternoon as the Whites of Ralph Floyd take on the Blues of Bill Edwards on Kenan Stadium's slightly damp turf in the annual Blue-White game, climaxing spring football practice.

Indeed today is the "day of reckoning" for the Tar Heels. Many questions should be at least partially answered and Coach George Barclay should have a fair idea of what to expect next fall after the smoke clears today.

Immediate questions to be "reckoned" with include, as always, the ever present quarterback situation. Will Ed Sutton perform as well under game conditions as he did in spring practice? Will frosh Ron Marquette confirm the reports he is heir apparent for the field generalship?

Also the game will indicate the potential of the highly regarded freshmen against varsity competition. Buddy Payne, Jack Lineberger, Vince Olen, Buddy Sasser, Hap Setzer, Joe Temple, and Howard Williams are freshmen who present the most serious threats to the varsity members for spots on the first team come next September.

THE FIELD is reported to be in excellent condition for the contest despite yesterday's early rain. Around 6,000 fans are expected to find their way through the picturesque setting of towering trees surrounding the Stadium today in order to get a preview of the Tar Heels of '55, who will face the toughest grid machines in the country. Included are Oklahoma Maryland, Tennessee, Notre Dame and Virginia on the home schedule and N. C. State, Wake Forest, South Carolina, Georgia on the road. Half of these powerhouses were rated among the top fifteen teams in the nation last year, three in the first five and one time or another over the course of the '54 campaign.

All of the October atmosphere will be at the game this afternoon, including the cheerleaders, concession stands, "Woody" and Ramases, and Miss Jackie Van Hook, who will reign as "Miss Blue and White." She was selected in the campus-wide election sponsored by the Monogram Club, which is also directing the Blue-White game. Admission is fifty cents and a passbook for students and one dollar for visitors. All proceeds go to the Monogram Club's fund for scholarships and other activities.

SUCH STARS of the annual contest held last March as Al Long, Flo Worrell, and Larry Parker are gone. Long and Parker are seniors and Worrell did not return to school this year. The passing combination of Long to Worrell highlighted the contest last year. Parker's 80-yard kickoff return was the most outstanding play. Another outstanding performer of that contest will start in the Blue backfield, however, Larry McMullen, a Lumberton sophomore, won high praise for his efforts as a freshman last year in the game.

Actually, the game today is not the last time Carolina's footballers will don its garb this spring. They still have one practice session left under NCAA rules and will take advantage of it with the final practice Monday. Mistakes incurred in the competition today will be pointed out then.

Connie Gravitte Key To '55 Campaign Success

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Every baseball team has at least one key man and the Tar Heels are no exception. The key to the Tar Heel hopes during the coming campaign will be Connie Gravitte, who will patrol the pasture in center field just as he has done so ably for the past three years.

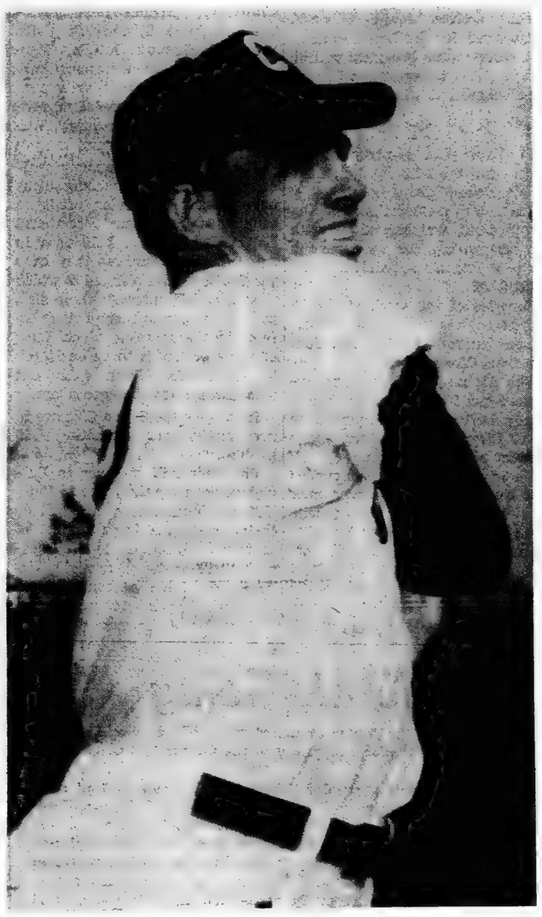
Gravitte was an overwhelming choice for All Conference center fielder after last season and he has been All-State center fielder during the past two years. He has all the attributes of a future major leaguer. He can run and throw as well as the best of them and his home run production is proof that if he gets some wood on a pitch, he can hit it a country mile.

Shortstop was the position Gravitte played while he was attending Roxboro High School. He played four years and never hit below .350. During his senior year at Roxboro, he batted a mere .527 and was selected as All-State shortstop.

Gravitte also found some time to play semi-pro ball while he was going to high school. Dick Groat and Red Smith of Duke were Connie's teammates along with Robert Slaughter, Enos' son.

Gravitte is a native Tar Heel, being born and bred in Roxboro, N. C. His mother and father had a hard time deciding on a name but when his Dad picked up the morning paper and read a headline about Connie Mack, then manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, his parents reached a quick solution and he was christened with the baseball name of Connie Mack Gravitte.

Gravitte inherited his love for the diamond game from his father, who played the outfield with Enos Slaughter, who also hails from Roxboro. Connie played his first baseball game in the uniform of a Little Leaguer.



Gravitte entered Carolina in the summer of 1951. Before he had completed his first season of freshman ball, he was brought up to the varsity and saw a great deal of action in center field.

During his sophomore year, Gravitte started off the season in center field and finished the season with a .285 batting mark, third best on the team. He led the team in runs batted in department by knocking in 20. He also was tops in home runs (4) and doubles (8).

Connie was just as valuable to the squad during last season as he was during his sophomore year. Gravitte led the regulars with an over all .356 batting average. Against tough Big Four opposition, he batted .368. His home run production rose to six he still led in R.B.I.'s with 16.

Four years ago, Gravitte was a member of the team of the Collins and Aikman Co. of Cavel that went to Wichita, Kansas to play in the annual championship tournament promoted by the National Baseball Congress. The Collins-Aikman team had snatched the championship of the Carolina District with the youngest player in the national tournament. Gravitte had that honor because was a mere 17 at that time.

Coaches Walter Rabb and Bunn Hearn are expecting another great season from the amiable gardener. As Gravitte sat in the dug-out resting after running laps yesterday, Rabb dropped the comment that he is the key to the Tar Heel successes of past seasons, and now that he has experience, Gravitte will certainly boost the stock of the '55 UNC nine.

CONNIE GRAVITTE
. . . aims to repeat as all-ACC centerfielder

Rain, Wet Grounds Postpone Scrimmage

Yesterday's baseball scrimmage against the East Carolina College Pirates was postponed because of the early-morning rains and consequent wet grounds at Emerson Field.

Coach Walter Rabb expects to continue workouts this afternoon, a long drill commencing at 12 noon.

Sigma Nu Wins Swimming Title With 5 Firsts

Sigma Nu fraternity came up with 61 points in the intramural swimming championships Thursday night to capture the crown in that division.

The Sigma Nu's captured five first places, including the 50-yard breast stroke, 100-yard freestyle, diving, 25-yard backstroke and the 150-yard medley relay.

The summaries:

25-yard free—Sutton, ATO — 11.1

50-yard breast—Merritt, Sigma Nu—29.6

100-yard free—Hicks, Sigma Nu —60.7

50-yard back—Henderson, SAE —31.2

50-yard free—Rossell, Phi Gam —26.7

Diving—Brumley, Sigma Nu

25-yard back—Hammrick, Sigma NU—13.9

75-yard medley—Hornthall, Pika —50.6

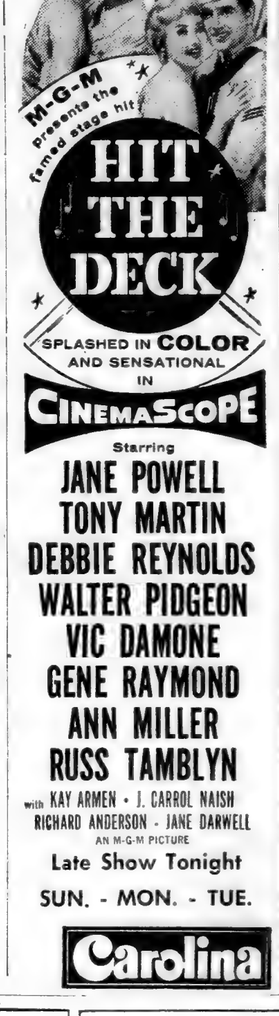
150-yard med. relay—Sigma Nu —1:29.7

200-yard free relay—Phi Delt—1:51.6

Team scores: Sigma Nu, 61; Phi Delt, 52; SAE, 51; Chi Psi, 20; Phi Kappa, 13; Pika, 12; Law School, 11; Phi Gam, 10; ATO, 3.

Dekes Drop Gams 47-37 For Frat Championship

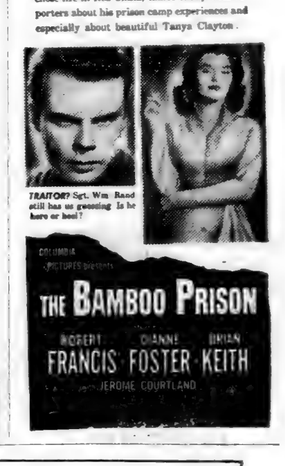
Near perfect accuracy from the free throw line brought the fraternity basketball championship to Delta Kappa Epsilon last night as they snapped a 21 game winning streak of the Phi Gamma Deltas, 47-37 in the Tin Can. The Blue clad victors hit on 31 of 39 attempts from the lane and 8 out of 18 field goal attempts. A cold first half hurt the defending champs as they fell behind 26-13 The scoring: DKE (47) Shores 18 Raines 5, Bell 3, Moore 11, Hartzog 10; PHI GAMS (37) Woods 9. Prescott 11, Hoyt 5, Hackler 6, Dillingham 2, Warren 4.



FENCERS IN RALEIGH

The UNC fencing team will participate in a three-way meet in Raleigh today, meeting N. C. State and Shaw Air Force Base at the home of the Wolfpack. The meet is to begin at 1 o'clock.

NOW PLAYING



Carolina

Late Show Tonight

SUN. - MON. - TUE.

Carolina

Last Times Today

Varsity

Late Show Tonite!

SUN. - MON.

YANK PRISONER IN CHINA CHOOSES BAMBOO CURTAIN!

Did Sergeant Fall for Commie Cutie... or Was He Pushed?

Sergeant William Rand, handsome GI who chose life in Red China, talked freely with reporters about his prison camp experiences and especially about beautiful Tanya Clayton.

WAKE UP!
SIGN UP!
LOOK UP!

Keep your Eye on the Sky in the

GROUND OBSERVER CORPS

Call or write Civil Defense

COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18

$12 a day on this exciting ISLAND PARADISE in the Gulf of Mexico

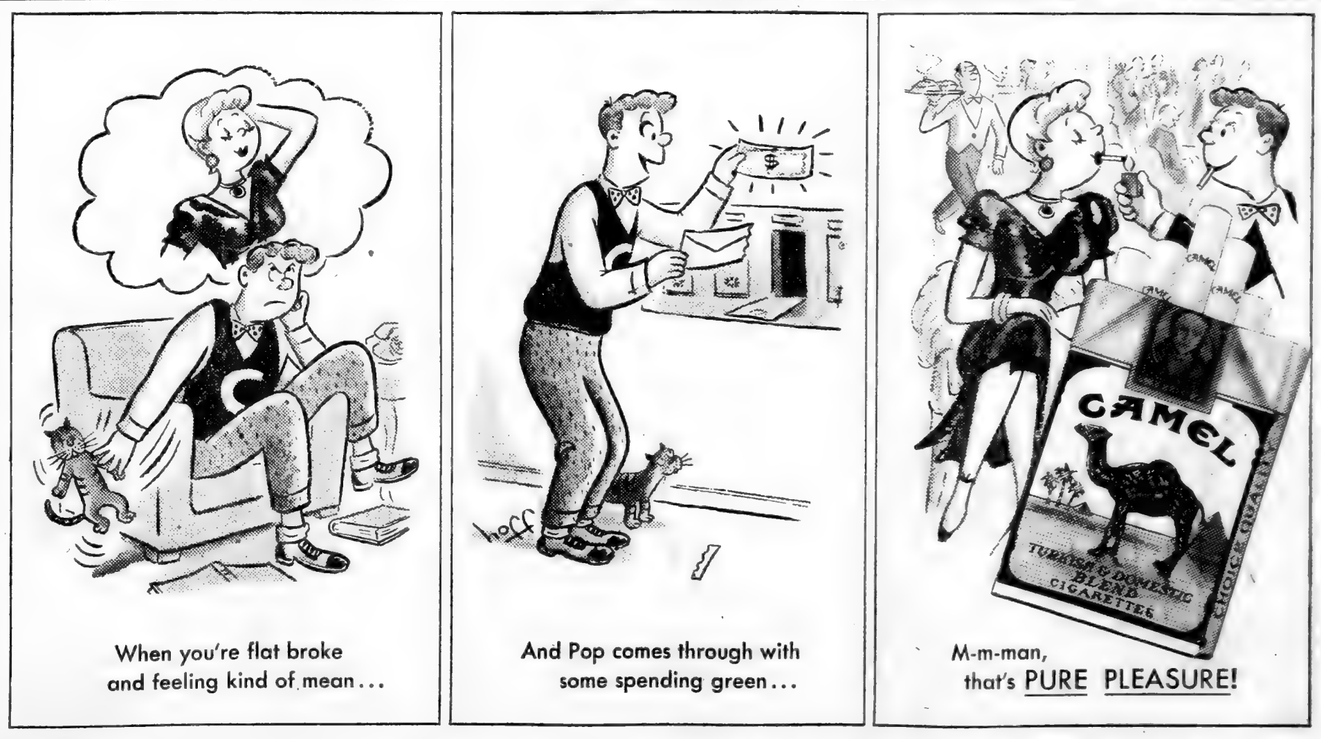
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation... miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, this year, the FIRST ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Famed Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, amberjack, blue fish and some 30 other species. For evening relaxation there's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dance contests and college song fests. You'll be treated like a tycoon for $12.00 a day, including breakfast 'til noon... and dinner.

BOCA GRANDE

Boca Grande hotel

BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA

COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED



WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS

or contact:

JIM FURCHES

301 Cobb Dorm—9-8000

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!

No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!

P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos — one of the reasons why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Covering The Campus

The AFROTC Rifle team defeated the NROTC Rifle team here in a match early this week.

High scorer for the match was AFROTC Cadet Charles Fentner, with a score of 191. Donald Kentopp was high scorer of the NROTC team with 182.

★

The University Concert Band, directed by Herbert W. Fred, will be heard in Hill Hall next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Included on the program will be Moussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition; Strauss' Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks; unpublished arrangements of Toccata by Frescobaldi, and an excerpt from Kodaly's Hary Janos Suite.

★

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet tomorrow for its annual International Open House, announced Miss Arendine Kimmel, president, yesterday.

The meeting will take place from 3:30 to 5:30 in Hillel House, 210 W. Cameron Avenue.

The program will include European folk dances and songs, music of India, an American dance (Charleston) and a Philippine bamboo dance.

★

UNC's service fraternity, Alpha Phi Omega, announced yesterday it is trying to start a chapter of APO at Duke.

The president of the Rho chapter at UNC, John Bolter, announced that 27 men were pledged at Duke Wednesday night.

During semesters APO ran the co-op book exchange here. The fraternity plans to sponsor "Parents' Day" again this year.

APO members help several of the crippled students around the campus and usher at student activities. Members have also conducted guided tours of the campus for high school students.

A Salute to

U. N. C.'s Own

Thomas Wolfe

Thirty-five years ago, come June, a rather stiff little guy named Tom Wolfe graduated from U.N.C. During his stay here he had been a member of the Playmakers, an editor of Tarbeel and Yackety-Yack. In the eighteen years of life remaining to him he was to write some of America's finest novels. Some evening when you're in the shop ask us to show you Tom Wolfe's picture in an old Yackety-Yack, and our copy of the play he wrote in his student days. And while you're at it, take a look at the works of this famous North Carolinian.

Books by Thomas Wolfe:

Look Homeward Angel
Of Time and the River
From Death to Morning
The Web and the Rock
You Can't Go Home Again
The Hills Beyond
A Western Journal

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.

Open Evenings

Children's Art Show Is Now On Display

An exhibition of the art work of many Chapel Hill children will be held in the South Gallery of the Morehead Planetarium until April 1. The work has been done by the students of Marjorie Beshers.

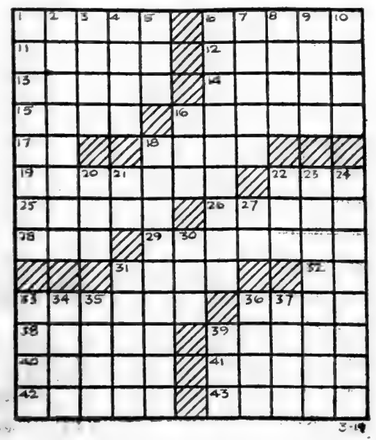
The pictures are grouped into five categories, pointing out the varied approaches of the chilrren to the same subject matter figures and faces, transportation, designs and experiments, animals and holidays.

The children whose work is exhibited are Elinor Allcott, Hal Blackwell, Dawn Christy, Damon Coe, Jimmy Crisp, Tony Dawkins, Terry Dimmick, Sidney Hood, Jenny Johnston, Gordon Jones, Joanne Minturn, Tommy Peterson, Ronny Rogers, Sandy Scholes, David Straley and Janna Wainwright.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Phi Eta Sigma initiation will be held Monday night at 7 o'clock in Di Hall.

AMERICA'S No. 1 SHOW
The HORACE HEIDT SHOW
The American Way
FRIDAY
MAR. 25, 8:30 P.M.
COLISEUM
WILLIAM NEAL REYNOLDS COLISEUM
N. C. STATE COLLEGE—P. O. BOX 5006
RALEIGH, N. C.
PRICES $3.50 $2.50 $1.50
CHILDREN ½ PRICE
_____ADULT tickets at $_____ each—Total $_____
_____CHILD tickets at $_____ each—Total $_____
Please include 25c for Postage and Handling ... $ .25
Amount of Check or Money Order Enclosed ... $_____
Name_____ Address_____



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Stoppers
6. Overcome with fear
11. Think
12. A fold (anat.)
13. Not ever
14. High, dry, arid plateaus (Peru)
15. Woody perennial
16. Instigate
17. Sun god
18. Fall in drops
19. Native of Italy
22. Guido's highest note
25. A skin disorder
26. Long claw
28. Former European coin
29. An assembly
31. Flex
32. Elevated train (shortened)
33. Long-handled scoops (naut.)
36. Unless (Law)
38. City (Fr.)
39. Ruinous damage
40. Gods of the Teutonic pantheon
41. Lizard (Old World)
42. Poem by Joyce Kilmer
43. City (Ger.)

DOWN
1. Penitent
2. Of the opera
3. Split
4. Leg joint
5. Varying weight (Ind.)
6. Named
7. Fat
8. Coniferous tree
9. Biblical name
10. Final
16. Friar's title
18. Thicknesses
20. God of the sky (Babyl. Relig.)
21. French article
22. High priest
23. Lonely in feeling
24. Of England
27. Close to
30. Half ems
31. Misrepresent
33. Narrow strip of wood
34. Textile bleaching vat
35. Otherwise
36. Scolds persistently
37. Yellow bugles
39. Have (Scot.)

P	A	S	T		A	L	P	S
N	A	P	P	Y		S	E	R	A	C
U	T	T	E	R		S	O	O	T	H
R	E		D	O	S			C	U	E
S	N	Y		S	P	I	D	E	R	S
E	T	O	N		A	L	I	E	N	S
		H	U	R	R	I	E	D
T	E	E	T	E	R		T	E	S	T
E	V	A	S	I	O	N		D	O	E
L	E	V			W	E	D		L	A
A	N	E	L	E		A	U	T	O	S
R	E	H	U	M		P	R	O	N	E
D	O	G	S			S	A	N	G

Yesterday's Answer

University Band Concert Set For March 22

The University of North Carolina Concert Band, under the direction of assistant conductor Herbert W. Fred, will present a concert in Hill Hall on Tuesday evening, March 22, at 8 oclock, as a program in the regular Tuesday Evening Musical Series.

Included on the program will be a selection written by Conductor Fred, as well as his arrangement of another work. Prof. Earl Slocum, UNC band and orchestra director, has arranged Frescobaldi's "Toccata," which the band will play. Mr. Fred is the composer of "Sea Shanty" ond has arranged an excerpt from 'Hary Janos Suite," by Kodaly.

Other selections on the program include "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite," by K. L. King; "Mannin Veen," by Haydn Wood, and "Psalm for Band," by Persichetti, all written for concert band, and band arrangements of the following:

"Pictures at an Exhibition," Moussorgsky; "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Strauss; "Italian Polka," Rachmanioff; Intermezzo from "The Jewels of the Madonna," Wolf-Ferrari; and Anderson's "The Typewriter."

Mr. Fred is a graduate student in musicology who came to the University from Ball State Teachers College in Muncie, Ind., where he was director of bands and teacher of theory.

SIGMA XI

Dr. Malcolm Dole, professor of chemistry at Northwestern University, will give a public lecture on "The Oxygen Isotope Cycle in Nature" under the sponsorship of the local Sigma Xi chapter at 8 p.m. Monday in 207 Venable Hall.

THE CAROLINIANS ORCHESTRA
Call 3711. Write Box 902.

HAPPENINGS ON THE HILL:

Sigma Nu Celebrates Pledge Weekend With Crowning Of Its 'Star Princess'

Blue & White Game Tops Social Weekend At UNC

By SUSAN ANDES

Attention! Forward march and shouts of "All the way big Blue" sum up the activities in which many Carolina students will be participating this weekend.

With the Blue and White game this afternoon and the Military Ball tonight things are pretty well taking care of themselves along the party line.

Sigma Nu pledge weekend got off to a tremendous beginning last night when they toasted pledges and the "Star Princess of Sigma Nu" with champagne at the Washington Duke Hotel in Durham.

WHITE STAR

As pledges and their dates formed the traditional White Star, Miss Anne Wrenn, escorted by Tom Gill, was presented with white roses and a sweetheart pin by Buddy Harper, president, and announced as "Star Princess of Sigma Nu" for the year.

Other pledges presented were: Joe Adams, Clinton; Charles Ashby, Garden City, Long Island; Fred Burrell, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Jim Crumpler, Rocky Mount; Charles Davis, Louisburg; Dave Davis, Williamston; Dick Hargitt, Seaford, Delaware; Charles Hicks, Wilmington; George Holden, Henderson; Bob Hoover, Anderson, S. C.; Carl Huff, Henderson; Bill Groce, Asheboro; William Kouri, Shelby; Bob Lynch, Raleigh; Al Mustian, Warrenton; Cledith Oakley, Greenville; Bob Slater, Wilson, and Brit Williams, Hamilton, Ga.

Following the initiation ceremonies of 16 boys this afternoon at the house, everyone will gather in Bermuda shorts for dinner at the Pines. Then a quick change of costume and everyone will explode into the Age of Gambling, Vice, Speak-easies, Flappers, the Charleston and just any old thing at the Little Red Schoolhouse. "The Roaring Twenties" will be the theme of a combo-blast honoring the new actives. Liquid prizes will be awarded for the best costumes.

A recuperation breakfast will be served at the house at one Sunday for all those left standing. Whew!

★

Pi Kaps plan a party at the house after the Military Ball; same goes for the SPEs.

Theta Chi members are hoping for pleasant weather, along with the rest of us, for they have a party at Hogan's scheduled.

SURPRISE

Surprise of the week at the Pi Phi house was when Elsie Broom became engaged to Bob Lee. Both are from Monroe.

The Alpha Gams have a newly-pinned girl in their crowd. She is Trudy Lefler, Newton, pinned to O. C. Eisenhower, Conover, and a student at Lenoir-Rhyne.

Their model pledge announced last week at initiation ceremonies was Mitzi Hall of Birmingham, Ala.; scholarship award went to Ann Page of Burchanan, W. Va.; and activities award to Jean Robertson of Zebulon.

The KDs had a dessert party on Thursday for the Stray Greeks on campus. Following this they entertained at an open house.

SAE OFFICERS

The SAEs elected officers for the coming year. They are: Ed Crawford, Winston-Salem, president; Eddie Pell, Charlotte, vice president; Tommy Ruffin, Winston-Salem, house manager; Charlie Cawfey, Greensboro, treasurer; James Feely, Winston-Salem, secretary, and Louis Woodberry, Wilmington, social chairman.

The Sigma Chis have many projects underway in their house. They have chosen 35 junior coeds as candidates for their Sweetheart Ball which will be held late in April. In the meantime they have a series of parties planned at which time they will entertain these girls and get to know them better before the voting takes place. First of these parties is to be on March 31. Watch this column to find out who these attractive coeds are.

Right now the Sigma Chis are in preparation for initiating 13 pledges.

Phi Kaps will go over to Raleigh today after the game to Betty Kilgore's farm where they will do their partying. A large number of them went en masse to the Chesterfield Show the other night, kinda a celebration in honor of ole St. Patrick, ya know?

Have fun at the game today!

Tickets Going

Tickets for the Walter Gieseking concert "are going fast," according to Jim Wallace, secretary of the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

There are only about 600 tickets available now, and all seats are reserved, according to Wallace. Season ticket holders will occupy many of the reserved seats, but there is still space available in the right orchestra, under the balcony and in the upper balcony.

Students "ought to get tickets now, because the best places in the house are going fast," said Wallace. Students can buy tickets for $2.50, a reduction from the regular $3 price to the general public.

The Walter Gieseking concert, next to the last program in this year's Chapel Hill Concert Series, will be held March 31 at 8:00 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Southern Books Competition Is Featured At UNC Library

A 20-book exhibit of the 1954 Southern Books Competition is currently on display in the lobby of the University Library.

The books, chosen from nearly 100 titles submitted by 23 presses, were selected by a jury of experts as the best in Southern commercial book production.

Selections were made solely on the basis of design and typography.

Duke University Press is represented by two books, The South In American Literature, 1607-1900 by Jay Broadus Hubbell, and The Spanish Speaking Groups in the United States by John Harmon Burma.

CLASSIFIEDS

WORK NEAR HOME. TERRITORY openings for several women past 25. Experience unnecessary. Avon Cosmetics, 122 Camelia Dr., Fayetteville, N. C., for inquiries.

ANYONE MOVING FROM CHAPEL HILL in June, who has bedroom and living room furniture to sell, please contact Tom Abernethy, 310 Aycock, Phone 93021. (1-9091-3)

WORK NEAR HOME. TERRITORY OPENINGS for several women past 25. Experience unnecessary Avon sells itself. Write Avon Cosmetics, 122 Camellia Dr., Fayetteville, N. C., for inquiries.

MEMORIALS: Large stock cut from Allen and Winnsboro Blue Granite. All work guaranteed. Terms if desired. Buy direct from yard and save agents and salesmens commission. Siler City Monument Co., Siler City, N. C., J. S. McIver, Owner and Manager.

Social UNC

The annual Military Ball for both AFROTC and NROTC cadets and their dates will be held tonight in the ballroom of the Naval Armory from 9 until midnight.

The ball is sponsored by the Scabbard and Blade, an honorary military society composed of students in both corps.

The queens of both corps will be presented along with the new pledges of the Scabbard and Blade and their dates.

★

The Epsilon Beta Chapter of Chi Omega Sorority will present its Distinguished Service Award to the year's outstanding woman of North Carolina here Tuesday night, April 12.

The presentation will be made at the Chapter's annual formal Eleusinian Banquet in the Carolina Inn at 6:30 p.m. Miss Martha Clay, newly elected president of Epsilon Beta Chapter from Danville, Ky., will preside.

Chancellor Robert B. House will make the award.

Chi Omega has honored the State's outstanding woman of the year annual since 1950. Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, of Raleigh and Morganton, was last year's award winner.

Miss Patsy Daniels, Raleigh, who is in charge of arrangements for the event, has urged all Chi Omega alumnae to make arrangements for the Eleusinian Banquet by March 25.

★

Miss Mitzie Hall, junior from Birmingham, Ala., was awarded the Alpha Gamma Delta's outstanding pledge award at a banquet held last weekend following the sorority's initiation.

Miss Jean Robertson, junior from Zebulon, was given the pledge activity award, and Miss Connie Carbaugh of Roanoke, Va., was awarded the activity award.

Miss Ann Page from Buckhanan, W. Va. and Miss Lucia Johnson were given the scholarship awards.

Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.

HERBERT TAREYTON
CIGARETTES
Filter Tip
MODERN SIZE
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
Gives You True Tobacco Taste
And Real Filtration, Too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

WHAT GOES ON HERE

PHYSICAL ED CLUB

The Physical Education Majors Club brought 100 boys from five North Carolina high schools here yesterday and held six clinics in badminton, golf, tumbling, bait-casting and tennis. The schools also competed in volleyball, badminton, box-hockey and ping-pong. Mebane High School took first place.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club will hold an open house at Hillel House, 210 W. Cameron Ave., tomorrow from 8:30 until 5:30 p.m.

BAPTIST SUPPER FORUM

Professor John Tumblin of Randolph-Macon College will speak at the BSU supper forum tomorrow night. The meeting will be held at the Baptist Church at 6 p.m. Supper will be served at a cost of 50 cents. The topic of the talk will be "The Southern Baptist Mission Program." Professor Tumblin is on a leave of absence and is doing graduate work in sociology at Duke University.

WESTMINSTER FELLOWSHIP

"The Sound of a Stone," a film concering civil rights, will be shown at the Westminster Fellowship meeting tomorrow night at the Hut, one block behind the Presbyterian Church. John DeGrove, instructor in political science, will lead a group discussion following the movie. Supper will be served at 6 p.m. at a cost of 50 cents, and the program will begin at 7 o'clock.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Cloudy, some warmer and scattered showers today with an expected high of 70.

The Daily Tar Heel

ART

Staff member Barbara Willard writes an editorial page feature on the fine arts. It's to be found on p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 122 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 22, 1953 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

PETITE MUSICALE SINGERS SUSIE ROBERTS, JAN SAXON & LORRAINE YANCEY
. . . half of the group to sing in Graham Memorial next Sunday

Gilbert And Sullivan Featured Sunday Night

Excerpts from four Gilbert and Sullivan operettas will be presented next Sunday evening in the third of the spring Petites Musicales.

The performance will be given by the Basingstoke Ensemble. The group is composed fo Mis Jan Saxon, soprano; Miss Lorraine Yancey, mezzo; Miss Susie Roberts, alto; James Pruett, tenor; John Sudwig, baritone, and James Chamblee, bass. Mrs. David Basile will accompany the group on the piano.

Excerpts from The Mikado, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Pirates of Penzance and Patience will be sung. The program will include a total of 16 songs.

The performance will be given at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

John Ludwig has at one time sung with two members of the English D'Oyly Carte Company.

Miss Saxon has appeared many times in music department programs, the latest being The Marriage of Figaro. Miss Yancey has worked both in musical shows and choral groups. Miss Roberts has worked with religious choral groups previous to joining the Ensemble.

James Pruett appeared in The Marriage of Figaro, while James Chamblee has had previous experience in Gilbert and Sullivan and has worked with choral groups in the billet of bass.

"In working on this program," said Ludwig, "we have paid equal attention to the vocal and dramatic requirements of the songs. We have tried to include as many of the traditional actions that characterise Gilbert and Sullivan, and we hope that the sparkle and laughter that show through all Gilbert and Sullivan will be present in our performance," he concluded.

There will be no admission charge for the performance, and no seats wil be reserved. The production is being sponsored by the Graham Memorial Activities Board.

American flag flapping humidly through early morning downpour.

* * *

Carotne Coed executing modern dance in fraternity house Saturday night.

* * *

"KK" on side of Bynum Hall, facing Steele Dormitory.

* * *

Carolina Gentleman asking philosophy prof, "Do you have to take the quiz?"

* * *

Coed, her car stalled in center of Franklin-Columbia intersection, hollering frantically to filling station attendant to come "do something!"

* * *

Sign carved on desk in Caldwell: "I hate School."

Fowler Man Charges McCurry Act 'Unfair'

According to a worker for presidential candidate Don Fowler, Bob Colbert, chairman of the Monogram Club's program committee, has said that the "handbills given out by presidential candidate Ed McCurry were unfair to the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund."

Accordng to Charles Ackerman publicity director for Fowler, Colbert said, "The McCurry handbills had the starting lineups on them and thus took away money from the fund which would have been gained through the sale of the official game programs."

Ackerman, in commenting on the statement, said, "This, of course, hurt the sale of official programs and took away needed money from the fund. Campus campaigns should be run on an ethical basis with the intent of bringing out the qualifications of the candidates. It is not a channel through which we are able to help ourselves by hurting others," he said.

"I hope that from now on when trying to get votes, the presidential candidates do so in a manner that will not be at the expense of so worthwhile a cause as the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund," Ackerman concluded.

Marcopulos Is Named Tice's Campaign Man

Pepper Tice, one of the candidates chosen by the Bipartisan Selection Board to run for head cheerleader, announced yesterday that Nick Marcopolus will be his campaign manager.

In accepting the appointment, Marcopulos said, "Ordinarily I wouldn't be in politics. But I feel that this job can be very important, and I believe that Tice can handle it best."

In making the announcement, Tice said, "I'm very glad that a clean hard fighter like Nick has agreed to become my campaign manager. Both of us want a clean campaign with the accent on the qualifications of the candidate."

HENNESSEE VEEP:

Rights Named Prexy Of Carolina YMCA

By EDDIE CRUTCHFIELD

Graham Rights, rising senior from Winston-Salem, was elected president of the YMCA for the year 1955-56 last night.

Other officers named were vice-president, Ed Hennessee, Parkersburg, W. Va.; secretary, Roy Taylor, Greenville, and treasurer, Jerry Mayo, Chocowinity.

All of the newly-elected officers were previously nominated by a nominating committee, comprised of senior YMCA members with Mrs. Ida Friday and Dr. Virgil Mann of the advisory board. None received any opposition when present Y President Bob Hyatt asked for floor nominations.

Rights is past president of the student government Elections Board, chairman of the Campus Chest and past secretary of the Y.

Hennessee, a rising senior, has served as chairman of the YMCA membership commission during this past year.

Taylor, a rising junior, has been chairman of the YMCA Speakers Committee during this past year.

Mayo, a rising sophomore, was one of the chairmen of the YMCA Freshman Fellowship and attended freshman camp last fall. He was recently inducted into the Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor society.

Leave Frats To IDC, Says Candidate Fowler

"I believe that the overall control of fraternities should be in the hands of the Interfraternity Council," said independent presidential candidate Don Fowler in a statement made yesterday.

"Although I am not a member of a fraternity," said Fowler, "I find it necessary to take a stand on the policy with which the adminstration has and will handle fraternity rights."

Fowler said it has come to his attention that the "administration is thinking of forcing the fraternties into including housemothers as part of their group. This is certainly putting fraternities on a childish level," he continued.

The presidential candidate said he is sure that most members of fraternities realize that they are not in the University for social reasons.

He said social life is an important part of all programs for college students.

"Whether we be fraternity men, dorm men, graduate students or professors, it cannot be denied that we must exercise the social

(See FOWLER, page 4)

OFF ALL CANDIDATES:

Muntzing 'Aware' Of UNC Band's Situation

"I feel that it is disgraceful that a university of our size and prestige is unable to give more financial support to as worthy a representative of our University as is our band," said Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing in a statement released yesterday.

Muntzing said he is "fully aware" of the financial situation concerning the University Band and the "limitations" placed on authorizing the Band more funds. "However," he said, "I feel the band to

(See MUNTZING, page 4)

McCurry Wants Dorm To Play Bigger Part

Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, in expressing a desire to work closely with the dormitory residents of the University, said yesterday he is especially concerned about this group which comprises the major portion of the campus population.

He "deems it necessary to bring student government to the individual needs of the dormitories," he said.

"I realize that I'm not able to ascertain all of the needs of the dorm residents, but I want to give them an opportunity to make their desires known to me personally."

McCurry proposed to accomplish this by attending dorm meetings and hence establishing a better

(See McCURRY, page 4)

Freshman Scholastic Group, Phi Eta Sigma, Names 46 A & B Students To Ranks

Forty-six UNC freshmen were initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, high ranking national freshman scholastic scholarship fraternity, in ceremonies in Di Hall, last night.

To be eligible for the fraternity, a student must make A's on at least half of his courses and B's on the remainder, Dr. Ernest L. Mackie, dean of Student Awards and Distinctions, advisor of the group, said.

There are 86 chapters of the fraternity, which was founded at the University of Illinois in 1923.

Officers of the local chapter participating in the initiation were William W. Morgan, Canton, president; John Gray Blount, Washington, N. C., vice-president; Joseph G. Walser III, High Point, secretary; Luther H. Hodges, Jr., Raleigh, treasurer and Louis J. Fisher, III, High Point, historian.

The initiates are Robert Johnson Allison, Sylva; Charles Hall Ashford Jr., New Bern; Larie Kent Brandner, Holton, Kan.; Thomas Skinner Brickhouse, Wilmington; Joseph Mark Clapp, Greensboro.

Daniel Eason Clark, Everetts; Charles Reuben Danel, Roanoke Rapids; Eli Nachamson Evans, Durham; Joel Fleishman, Fayetteville; Norman Anthony Germino, Durham.

William London Godwin, Smithfield; Irvine R. S. Haig, Rome, Italy; James Geraty Harrison, Jr., Charleston, S. C.; Nathan Holt Hart, West Cornwall, Conn.; Graham Davis Holding Jr., Charlotte.

William Holmes Johnson, Reidsville; Elbert Richard Jones Jr., Winston-Salem; Roger Conrad Jones, High Point; Archibald Kelly Maness, Jr., Greensboro; Gerald Mack Mayo, Chocowinity.

Don Harold Miller, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Richard Wylly Molten, Chapel Hill; John August Mraz, Chicago, Ill.; Charles Walker Oyer, Wolcott, N. Y.; Michael Joseph Padula, Hollywood, Fla.; John Curtis Parker, Groton, Mass.

Malcolm Overstreet Partin, Enfield; Jasper Louis Phillips, Kinston; Karl G. Pickard Jr., Asheville; James Y. Preston, Matthews; Hoyle Lynwood Robinson, Ellerbe; Edward Chadwick Ross, Augusta, G.; John Loesch Shultz, Winston-Salem; Lonnis George Stephenson, Halifax.

William Ernest Stewart, Marshville; Thomas Cullom Taylor, Henderson; Stephen Jay Trachtenberg, Jacksonville; Charles V. Tompkins Jr., Alexandria, Va.

Henry Catlett Turner, Greensboro; Thomas Hugh Upton Jr., Raleigh; Donald Wayne Wade, Raleigh, John Luther Walker Jr., Roanoke, Va.

Roy William Wilson, Marion; Robert K. Yowell, Raleigh; John H. Zollicoffer Jr., Henderson, and Leslie Andrew Scott, Jackson Heghts, N. Y.

University Party Nails Down 15-Point Program

By NEIL BASS

The University Party met last night with a handful of members present to announce its platform for the coming election.

As a primary plank in its platform, the party chose to "favor the installment of telephones on every floor of every dormitory."

Another chief plank in the UP platform calls for working toward "taking The Daily Tar Heel editorship out of politics." The UP was strenuously opposed to having The Daily Tar Heel editorial candidates nominated by the campus parties this year.

(It was the UP that introduced a bill in student Legislature calling for "establishment of a bipartisan board for the selection" of editor candidates of The Daily Tar Heel and The Yackety Yack.)

The remaining planks in the 15-point platfrom that the UP, according to the executive committee that drew up the program plans to initiate are:

To work toward a fairer and less restrictive cuts system;

To attain free passes for students' dates to home football games;

To give more support to the University Band; To work for improved regulations concerning coed visiting in dormitories;

To attempt to get more parking facilities;

To present a periodical report, to the students, from the three branches of student government;

To offer opposition to restrictions on the possession of student cars;

To return 25 percent of the campus store profits to the students:

To get a test for veterans so that they may be exempt from physical education;

To reinstate the hygiene exemption test;

To convert the Veterans' Club room into a recreation club, and

To continue the high school honor system program.

As an answer to the Student Party endorsement of Lewis Brumfield for head cheerleader, the UP went on record as favoring election of Collie Collison for the same post. In nominating him, Bill Sanders said he "had nothing to gain" but thought that it was for the best interest of "the student body."

In discussing the recent member losses that the parties have been experiencing due to the shift of support from some of the SP and the UP to independent Don Fowler, party Chairman Charles Yarborough said, "I don't think that our party split is half as bad as the SP's."

OF ALL CANDIDATES:

Meeting Tonight

A compulsory meeting of all candidates running in the spring elections will be held tonight at 7:30 in Memorial Hall.

Absence excuses for candidates may be granted only by the chairman of the Elections Board for being in the infirmary; having a conflict with classes or other reasons approved by the Board's chairman. Candidates not attending the meeting and not having excuses will be dropped as candidates. They may be reinstated by contacting the chairman of the Elections Board within 48 hours after the meeting begins and paying a $1 fine within the same time.

Miss Patsy Daniels is chairman of the Elections Board. She may be reached at the Chi Omega house.

The candidates who will speak at the meeting are Don Fowler(independent), Ed McCurry (University Party) and Manning Muntzing (Student Party), candidates for president of the student body; Bob Harrington (SP) and Jack Stevens (UP), candidates for student body vice-president; Misses Jane Cocke (UP) and Joan Palmer (SP), candidates for secretary of the student body; Joe Correll (SP) and Jim Martin (UP), candidates for student body treasurer; and Louis Brumfield, John (Pepper) Tice and Walter (Collie) Colison, candidates for head cheerleader.

The three presidential candidates will each speak for five minutes, and the other candidates wil speak for three minutes each, according to the Elections Board chairman.

Miss Daniels said that the candidates will be given their expense account sheets and that Article Nine of the general election laws, which deals with expenses, accounts and penalties, will be read.

UNC Band Plays Varied List Tonight, 8 O'clock, In Hill Hall

The program for the UNC Band Concert to be presented tonight at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall was released yesterday by Herbert W. Fred, assistant band conductor, who will direct.

Featured on the program will be the following works written for concert band: "Barnum and Bailey's Favorite," King; "Mannin Veen" Wood; "Psalm for Band," Persichetti, and an original composition by Fred, "Sea Shantey."

Other arrangements will include "Pictures at an Exhibition," Mousorgsky; "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Strause; "Italian Polka," Rachmaninoff; "Toccata," Frescobaldi; 'Intermezzo" fron "The Jewels of the Madonna,' Wolf-Ferradi; "The Typewriter,' Anderson, and "Entrance of the Emperor and His Court" from "Hary Janos Suite," Kodaly.

Prof. Earl Slocum, director of the University Band and Orchestra, is the arranger for Frescobaldi's "Toccata."

Monteith Says He Won't Run For Veep Job

"After careful and extensive consideration I have decided not to be a candidate for the vice-presidency of the student body," announced UP member Jim Monteith yesterday.

Monteith filed a petition with the elections board Friday but withdrew it Sunday evening. He had lost the UP nomination for vice-president to Jack Stevens Tuesday night.

Yesterday Monteith also came out in favor of veep candidate Bob Harrington, who is running on the SP ticket. 'I am supporting Harrington because I beleve he represents the entire campus—not just a special faction," he said.

"I am not bolting," continued Monteith. " I am not leaving the party now."

"My withdrawal is not a political sellout of any kind," he added.

MISS MARGARET UNDERWOOD:

Coed Ballad Singer To Appear On Horace Heidt Show Friday

Hobbies not only can be fun, but they also may lead to fame and financial rewards, as a UNC coed ballad singer who has just won a Horace Heidt talent audition can well testify.

Miss Margaret Underwood, a senior from Greensboro, has been selected to appear on the Horace Heidt television show which will be broadcast from Raleigh Friday. Accompanying herself on a guitar, Miss Underwood will sing several folk ballads, a performance she has given often in North Carolina musical circles during the past year.

Auditions for the program were held recently at Station WPTF in Raleigh, with Miss Underwood competing with many other aspiring young musicians, dramatists and singers.

Her renditions of "The Rebel Song" and "My Heart's in the Highlands" were judged tops, along with the performances of two other competitors, a Raleigh ninth-grade soprano and a pianist.

BALLAD SINGER UNDERWOOD
. . . with guitar

North Carolinians who attended the State Folk Festival here last June got a sample of Miss Underwood's first public ballad singing. Since then she has sung folk songs in a number of North Carolina towns and oevr several radio and TV stations.

Her guitar playing began strictly as a pastime while she was a student at Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va., two years ago. "A lot of the other girls played the guitar, so I just picked it up too," she explained.

An older brother, who now works in Raleigh, introduced Miss Underwood to folk songs through his large recorded collection of them several years before. She explains her reaction then was one of dislike.

HUDSON CLASS

Not until she came to Carolina

(See COED, page 4)

the Ballot Box

One week from today, Carolina students will elect campus officers.

From now until election day, more political mur is expected to be slung than has been slung so far.

A check of presidential candidates' statements, up until this week, shows two things:

(1) Candidates—all three of them—have engaged in positive campaigns, with constructive platforms.

(2) Ed McCurry, University Party candidate, has the edge on rivals Manning Muntzing (SP) and Don Fowler (formerly SP, now independent), when it comes to making statements.

McCurry has piled up four statements as of Saturday. He wants a change in the recently-instituted cut system, closer liason between students and student government, a branch of the student union in the old Veterans' Club and a high school student government workshop.

Student Party canddate Manning Muntzing has made three declarations so far, all of them positive. Muntzing's statements

(See BALLOT BOX, page 4)

State Dept. Attaches Visit Campus Today

Carreer opportunities in the Foreign Service of the United States will be presented to UNC students today and Wednesday, during a visit of two State Department representatives to the campus.

Verne Larson, assistant executive officer, Office of Security, and Philip W. Ireland, Office of Personnel, will speak at class meetings in the Departments of History and Political Science.

Dr. C. B. Robson, chairman, Political Science Department, has announced a meeting today at 3 p.m. in 202 Caldwell for all students interested in such careers. Personal conferences will also be arranged, he said.

Under a revised State Department plan, Dr. Robson said, "Virtually all officer positions in Washington and overseas will be staffed by Foreign Service officers, creaitng an urgent need for new officers in the corps."

10 Get 100 Percent

10 groups have reached the 100 percent mark in their donations to the Campus Chest, according to Graham Rights, chairman of the drive.

These 10 groups, in which every member contributed, are Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Upsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Chi Fraternities, Carr and Smith dorms, Alpha Gamma Delta, Chi Omega and Kappa Delta Sororities.

According to Rights, none of the men's dorms have reached the 100 percent mark yet. Graham, Old West and Pettigrew are nearing the 50 percent mark. Twenty-five percent of the men in Aycock, Joyner, Old East, Stacy and Steele have contribued so far.

Phi Assembly To Meet Tonight; Yalta Confab

The Philanthropic Assembly will meet tonight at 8 o'clock on the top floor of New East to debate a bill proposing that the United Sates repudiate the Yalta agreement.

"This currently very controversial topic should produce fiery debate in the old society, which was established at the University in 1795," said a Phi spokesman yesterday.

Swing Low, Old Chariot

"Shed a tear," as Nero sobbed in the much-ballyhooed Quo Vadis when he learned of Petronius's suicide. Not, we ask, for poor Petronius but for poor Oveta Culp Hobby.

You see, Mrs. Hobby, a prominent member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, is reduced to thumping about Washington-on-the Potomac in a three-year-old Cadillac.

The shame of her plight is this: The whole Cabinet, in the words of a United Press wire story, has contracted "the Caddie fever." Last week, Secretary of Agriculture Benson retired his old model for a spanking new '55 model. He was only following in the new fad which has put rented Cadillacs of latest breeding in the garages of Cabinet members. Only one dissenter from among Cabinet members refuses to join in. He is Secretary of State Dulles who prefers Packards. No information is immediately available about Defense Secretary and kennel-dog aficionado Charles E. Wilson's car, but we'll give you one guess what kind it is.

Mrs. Hobby will have to drive her three year older for a while yet, we suspect. Unlike the other Cadillacs (all rented) her king of the horseless wagons came free to her keeping from the Narcotics Bureau—which seized it in a raid.

To drive a three year old car—and a Cadillac at that—is sorry penance for a Cabinet member to pay and our cold Democratic eyes have even misted a bit for Mrs. Hobby. But there's not a thing we can do, short of making a suggestion: Consider the source of all Cadillacs, Mrs. Hobby, and learn like the rest of us that infallible economic dictum: What is good for General Motors is good for the country.

Gracious Living—XXVIII

Gracious Living, by definition, demands easy locomotion; but hundreds of students daily are being thwarted in their attempts to perform no more subtle an operation than walking outside a classroom building. It's the doors, one half of which remain, for some reason known only to janitors and locksmiths, firmly bolted. So — on leaving nine o'clock classes on the way to ten o'clock classes, students find a steady stream of other students entering through the half-doorway and the other half locked so tight it can't be budged. This log-jam routine has been going on in divers buildings for years, maybe centuries. Caldwell, Lenoir and Graham Memorial are among the worst offenders, but no building is, so far as we are aware, immune to this lunacy. Gracious Living, needless to say, cannot thrive, especially in the spring, on half-portals. Janitors must be supplied with keys — or crowbars, if that's what it takes. The other half must be flung open.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman

Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin

Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley

Subscription Manager — Jack Godley

Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel

Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker

Photographer — Boyden Henley

Society Editor — Susan Andes

NEWS STAFF—Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Ebba Freund, Peggy Ballard, Lois Owen.

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

'The Battle-Ax' Takes Another Slam At UNC

Louis Kraar

IN RALEIGH they call her "the battle-ax," and she's the biggest damner of the University at Chapel Hill.

I'm talking about Nell Battle Lewis, who every Sunday writes a column in the Raleigh News & Observer. This past weekend's offerings from her column included another slam at the Hill, and—as usual—it was unfair.

Writing about the fact that one of the food stores here is offering such delicacies as French-fried grasshoppers, old Nell goes on to comment that this shows "how impressively sophisticated, how cosmopolitan Chapel Hill has become."

She adds, "No doubt these exotic foods imported into that formerly charming village are designed to tempt the jaded palates of those exotic characters one often sees on its streets nowadays."

The word "exotic" means introduced from a foreign country, according to my dictionary. And while "the battle-ax" might have meant something else, the fact that the Hill has exotic characters on its streets—and in its classrooms—is almost a compliment.

Like any University, Carolina is a bringing together of many kinds of people with varied ideas. The fact that we have students from other countries and ideas from other places is an asset to the University.

But I don't expect narrow-minded malcontents like Nell Battle Lewis to be enlightened by all this. The village is still "charming," despite the Raleigh columnist's slam.

Since the University's opening, newspaper people have been criticizing it, sometimes rightfully, but often unfairly. An early criticism of the University leveled by a newspaper editorial was that it was a place that "unsettled" the minds of youth.

And like "the battle-ax's" criticism, the ancient gripe that Carolina unsettles the minds of young people is also a compliment.

Just to show you that there's no hard feeling on my part, I'd be glad to invite old Nell over for some fried grasshoppers and talk this whole business over.

★

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: "Mr. Mouza," the man who runs the Mouza Cafe here is not Mr. Mouza. His name is actually Miltos Tassos. And, furthermore, he's not Russian but Greek. And to further unsettle common notions, the correct name of his eattery is Mouza's Royal Spaghetti House — although I've never seen anyone eating spaghetti there.

★

PIANIST JIM Crisp and his modern sounding combo made for pleasant listening this past Saturday night when they sounded forth over WUNC-FM.

Tenor sax man Flip Latham blew some Stan Getz-like sounds, and the combo as a whole sounded professional. Why not more of this type jazz on the University station?

★

ALL KINDS of things can happen when a college newspaper cuts out one of its issues during the week.

Take the Ivy League campus of stately Yale, for example. The Yale Daily News ceased publishing on Saturdays. But reader-conscious Harvard students sneaked on the Yale campus at dawn last Saturday and distributed 2,000 copies of a special "New Haven edition of the Harvard Crimson.

Yale men called the stunt "part of an insidious pattern of the Harvard man's typical desire to take over the country." And an editor of the Harvard paper kindly called the venture "a real mercy mission."

'Not Apart From Life, Nor For The Few'

Investment In Living: The Creative Arts

By Barbara Willard

So this is the Atomic Age! So assembly lines produce all the things necessary to existence! So, "it ain't necessarily so!" Regardless of the trend to make a mass production out of everything, the fine arts are still fine; and, at Carolina, they are still art—art produced on a line far removed from the factory hustle and bustle.

The fine arts are not, however, at a standstill, or on the decline. Like everything else in this fastmoving world, they are making progress by leaps and bounds. Dr. Kenneth A. Ness, acting head of the Art Department while Dean John V. Allcott is on leave of absence, says the expansion of UNC's Art Department is typical of a "world wide upturn" in which interest in art is "three times what it was 10 or 12 years ago."

LOOKS TO NEW HOME

The Art Department, with Person Hall as a home base, has grown until its lecture rooms and studios are scattered in all corners of the campus. Whereas 85 was the average number of art students per year during the war period only 10 years ago, Dr. Ness placed the number enrolled now at 200 to 250. He attributed the growth, in part, to a movement that started in all parts of the country about 20 years ago, becoming more obvious in the past 10 years—a new burst of interest in all of the art forms.

With a continuous growth since 1937, the year the Art Department was begun, and particularly in recent years, there is now a pressing need for a new building to house the art activities. "Plans are in the final stages," Dr. Ness says, for just such a building. "Ground will be broken within the year and construction started" on an art center made possible by the Ackland endowment.

WHO GETS THE MONEY

Ackland, a Tennesseean, in his will left 1,300,000 dollars or the construction of an art museum and the acquisition of art collections. This was 15 years ago, action being slowed by legal difficulties. There was a disagreement over the will as to which school would get the endowment. After several years, the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington finally gave the endowment to UNC, in preference to Rollins, the other school in question.

A WORKING MUSEUM: COMING SOON

"We in the Art Department like to look to the new building as an art center, where progress becomes more active than in a museum," Dr. Ness explained. The Ackland building will have an art gallery, studios and classes, and exhibits that will change periodically.

Although the building will face Columbia Columbia Street, there will be a campus entrance facing Hill Hall. It will occupy the Roberson and Archer House lots. It is expected to become one of the show places of Chapel Hill.

There are three art studios in operation now, and Dr. Ness expressed hope to get additional studios through state funds.

In the new building, which according to Dr. Ness would represent "a more concrete and less scattered base of operation," there will be better facilities for carrying out their plan of "seeing, through doing." In addition to the prints and slides already employed in teaching, there wiuld be a permanent teaching collection and "our own representative collection" of work done by UNC students in years past and the present year, to be on exhibit from time to time.

THE PRACTICAL VIEW

"We don't lose sight of the practical view," Dr. Ness said. He explained how various courses are designed primarily for those interested in advertising, art education, etc. There is a four-year A.B. program, with the possibility of graduate work leading to a M.A. in Creative Art, or M.A.C.A. "The surface appearance is modern or contemporary," he said, "but we are not overlooking the past." Art students study the history of art, as well as the composition, design and color as used by both old and modern masters.

The most recent line of study is that of sculpture, in which classes were started seven years ago. Painting, in both lecture and studio, has been a part of the Department throughout its existence. Courses are taught in architecture also, coming under Classics, in the case of archeology.

NOT JUST MAJORS

Art courses are not limited to art majors. Many courses have no prerequisite and are open to all who are interested. Changing exhibits are open to the public at Person Hall and at Morehead Planetarium, throughout the year. The new Ackland building, as well as these two, will contribute much to Chapel Hill as a culture spot in the south.

Dramatic Arts Turns Out Professionals

In 1918, when most young men were away at war, one tall, lanky young man enrolled in the first theatre course at UNC. He was the only male in the otherwise female class, and he apologized for not being in uniform, but added that the quartermaster just couldn't find one to fit him. He was Tom Wolfe, one of the former Dramatic Art students to make his mark in the world. There are many, such as George V. Denny, moderator of "Town Hall of the Air;" Foster Fritz-Simons, novelist; Paul Green, Pulitzer playwright, and others who have become succesful in the commercial theatre, radio, television, Hollywood, and as writers.

The start came with creative writing courses in playwriting, under the English Department. Professor Frederick H. Koch came from South Dakota t ostart the work in 1918 and remained until his death in 1944. At the time of Professor Koch's death, Professor Samuel Selden, who had then been associated with the department for 17 years, became the directors of instruction and production. Dr. Selden says, "Emphasis from the beginning has been on original work."

NOT JUST TECHNIQUES

"This is not simply a department of techniques," Dr. Selden explains, "but an introduction to the theater. The Department of Dramatic Art is a regular part of the College of Arts and Sciences. It offers courses in dramatic literature, history and technique—playwriting, acting, directing, stage lighting, costuming designing, theatre administration, radio, motion pictures and television—leading to a B.A. or M.A."

The producing organization, the Carolina Playmakers, and the University Communication Center provide practical laboratory training. Although regular courses of the Department are only open to those in junior year or above, the activities of the Playmakers and Center are open from freshman year on.

The faculty of the Department, assisted by students, is the working staff of the Playmakers. "Although it is the laboratory group for the Department." Dr. Selden remarked, "it isn't simply a university theater. We have always regarded it as a sort of community theater with productions open to anybody on the campus or anyobdy in the town."

BUSY PROGRAM

September-June activities for the Playmakers include four major productions of old and modern dramas, standard and popular, and four experimental productions of new plays, both one-act and full length. This program includes those produced in the Playmakers Theatre, as well as one classical play done outdoors in the Koch Memorial Forest Theatre and one big musical play presented in Memorial Hall each year.

"Showboat," the 1955 musical, was presented this month. It was produced in collaboration with the Music Department, with Professor Wilton Mason serving as conductor and musical director. This was the first university production of "Showboat."

REGIONAL DRAMA

The Playmakers took an early lead in creating regional American drama. In the beginning, they wrote and produced principally "folk plays" concerning farmers, mountaineers and citizens of small North Carolina towns. The writing became more cosmopolitan as students from other areas were attracted.

Over the years, the Playmakers have presented at Chapel Hill more than 800 plays of all kinds. Of around 2,200 original scripts written since Professor Koch began the first class in playwrighting, more than 600 have reached the Playmakers sage, and many more have been produced elsewhere. A number of them have been played in very successful Playmakers tours, throughout North Carolina and other states, "as far South as Miami, as far North as Boston, and as far West as Dallas and St Louis," Dr. Selden noted.

HISTORICAL DRAMAS FROM CHAPEL HILL

The development of the outdoor historical dramas has perhaps been the most significant work of the Playmakers in recent years. The group has provided scripts, direction, and much of the staff and acting personnel for four of these plays: Paul Green's symphonic drama, "The Lost Colony", on Roanoke Island; Kermit Hunter's drama of the Cherokee Indian, "Unto These Hills," at Cherokee; Hunter's drama of Abraham Lincoln in Pioneer Illinois; "Forever This Land-", at New Salem State Park Ill.: and his drama of the Southern Appalachian highlands, "Horn in the West," at Boone.

Given each summer in July and August, these historical productions have given experience to about 700 selected actors, singers, dancers and technicians. Audiences total more than a million people.

BUREAU AND FESTIVAL

The Bureau of Community Drama, under the direction of John W. Parker of the Playmakers staff, provides services to theater organizations throughout North Carolina and offers them assistance in problems of organizations, programing, play selection and production.

In the spring, the Carolina Playmakers serve as hosts for the Annual Dramatic Festival in Chapel Hill. To this come producing groups from high schools, colleges, universities and community theaters in all parts of the state to present their plays, listen to talks, see demonstrations, discuss technical problems, and show their designs in models, posters, program and costumes. About 600 groups have participated in the activities of the Bureau and Festival.

April 13-16 of this year has been set as the time for the 1955 Festival. Last year 40 groups participated, and this year more are expected.

NEW DEGREE

"We are now working on a degree that represents a year of specialized training," Dr. Selden said, "in one of the four fields: stage direction, technical practice, theatre administration and playwriting." This will enable the D.A. student to go beyond the A.B. and M.A. degrees to strengthen his specialty in one field."

SELF-HELP AND SCHOLARSHIPS

The Department administers five University Graduate Fellowships. For both graduates and undergraduates, three shop assistantships are awarded yearly. Available annually is the Kay Kyser Fellowship in Dramatic Art. Several awards are made in the field of original playwriting.

To attest the quality of the Department graduate work is the fact that the Report of the "Committee on Research and Creative Activity of the University Conference, Proceedings from 1950" (representing 49 Southern colleges and universities) rated the Department of Dramatic Art as one of the 10 departments at UNC which stand in scholarship and creative work "among the best in the country" and one of the four departments without equals in the South.

'A CENTER OF FEELING, IMAGINATION, VISION . . .'
. . . Lynda Vestal at work in Caldwell art studio

BODY TRAINING

Among the required courses for D.A. majors is one in body training, or dance. "This does not duplicate dance training in physical education," Dr. Selden sxplained. This course, taught by Foster Fritz-Simons, one of the former students in Dramatic Art who has become famous, is devoted to the history of the dance, as well as actual training.

In the formal sense, it is open to D.A. majors and to recreational majors who plan to do minor work in the theater. Informally, the course is open to anyone on campus, but not for credit.

Further training in dance is secured through work and training in shows and actual productions.

Reading, 'Riting Have A Home

Although it may sometimes seem that all UNC courses are endless reading in texts and parallel reference books, there are those that are concerned with the creative aspects of the second of three R's, namely, writing.

Under the English Department, two courses, taught by Miss Jessie Rehder, are offered in creative writing. The first is an introduction to the short story, with technical training in the writing of original stories, and a second advanced course is for students who have had previous experience in this field.

In the School of Journalism, Phillips Russell teaches two continuous creative writing courses, one being taught each semester. Students are instructed in writing original manuscripts, including short stories, essays and articles. Class discussions of individual papers help the student to improve his writing by hearing the criticisms of others.

Through the years Carolina has produced a number of graduates who write or have written for their income. Noel Houston, Betty Smith, Thomas Wolfe, Phillips Russell, William Woods and Bernice Kelly Harris are but a few of the successful writers who made their start here.

NEW ENCOURAGEMENT FOR WRITERS

Plans are being made for a program to offer new encouragement to undergraduates with a talent and interest in creative writing.

Dr. Clifford P. Lyons of the English Department is chairman of a "Creative Writing Steering Committee" which has been developing the program for the past two months. Faculty members from the English, Dramatic Art, and Radio, Television and Motion Pictures Departments compose the committee.

The plan calls for an honors course for those upperclassmen declared eligible by an administrative board. This special course would, in reality, be two courses in creative writing under two different professors.

Original manuscripts submitted to the board for criticism and instructive comments would substitute for written examinations in the honors course, which course would count as allied courses.

If passed, the program will go into effect this fall, as another step toward insuring Carolina's reputation for producing good writers.

Music, Music, Music

Sending its sounds in all directions on campus is the Music Department which Chancellor Robert B. House aptly classified as "a very active and aggressive department."

On the football field, the University Band, under Director Earl Slocum and Assistant Director Herbert Fred, is an essential part of the sports events, as well as rallies, send-offs and celebrations.

Then after football season, this versatile group is reorganized as a concert band, and rehearsals begin for public performances.

The University Symphony Orchestra has its own pattern of concerts for University life and affairs. The orchestra is composed of students, faculty and townspeople. A formal program is given each semester.

In additional to several singing groups on campus, there are three main choral organizations: men's and women's glee clubs, composed entirely of students, and the Choral Club composed of students, townspeople and staff members.

EARLY BEGINNING

The man who can relate most about the progress of this Department is Dr. Glen Haydon, who has headed the Department since President Frank Graham brought him here in 1934.

As early as 1796, the same year of Washington's "Farewell Address" and only one year after UNC received its first student there was contact with music, for that year permission was granted for students to study the latest social dances (even the minuet) with a Mr. Perrin. But there were restrictions. North Carolina Acts of 1824, 1827 and 1855 protected the student morals in other ways by forbidding "concerts, serenades, or performance in music, singing, or dancing" within five miles of Chapel Hill without faculty permission secured at least a week in advance.

During most of the 19th century, the chief music at UNC was that introduced at chapel services and special programs.

FIRST ORGANIZATION

The first musical organization at this University was founded by Karl P. Harrington in 1891. This was the University Glee Club, with 16 singers and two organists.

Formal instruction in music was inaugurated in 1919 by Paul J. Weaver, offering courses to upperclassmen in appreciation, history, sight-singing and ear-training, and harmony. "The A.B. in Music" was instituted in 1929. Since then programs leading to the A.B., the A.B. in Education with a North Carolina Teacher's Certificate in Music, the B.M., the M.M., the M.A. and the Ph.D. have been added.

The numerous activities, the courses of study, the concerts, the library and other equipment, and the special functions all go to make up a full-scale Music Department.

An Investment In Life

At the opening of the Art Department in 1937, President Graham told why "in slender times it was decided to make an investment in art." Since Carolina opened its doors, its investments in art have rapidly increased, and the progress the fine arts have made has shown these investments to be more than an investment in tae life of the University and every student influenced by its culture.

NOT APART FROM LIFE

President Graham said, "Art as a department is not to be apart from life, nor for the talented few. Rather it is to become a part of the general life and culture of all . . . The University is to be not only a tree center of old knowledge and new inquiry, but also a creative center of fine feeling, heightened emotion, noble imagination, the inner vision and the beautiful creations of the human spirit. Through the fine arts, may youth in this place have more and more opportunity for an artistic and creative participation in his own education."

Reed, Keller, Sutton Show Wares In Blue-White Game

Frosh Star Excellent AT Quarterback As Ed Shows '54 Form At Old Position; Kenny Scores 15 Points

By JACK MURPHY

The three musketeers rode herd once again Saturday, this time over the muddy, rain soaked plains of Kenan Stadium under the aliases of David Reed, Ken Keller, and Ed Sutton as they paced coach Bill Edwards' Blues to a 23-6 win over the Whites of Ralph Floyd in the Monogram Club's annual Blue-White intra-squad game climaxing four weeks of spring football drills.

The spunky Reed, one of seven freshmen on the Blue squad, took the reins from starting quarterback Sutton and promptly marched his more experienced varsity mates up and down the field almost at will. Reed personally picked up 58 yards running and another 48 passing. He ran the option play like it has never been run before by a Carolina quarterback in varsity competition. Chief understudy last fall to Buddy Sasser, who did not dress for the game because of an illness, Reed was the surprise of the day and was easily "Mr. Quarterback" last Saturday.

Posibly a greater surprise was Sutton's switch to halfback after starting the game at quarterback, a position he has been learning throughout spring practice. He gained 64 yards in eleven carries for a 5.8 average. A 50-yard scamper was nullified by a clipping penalty. Sutton's total offense for the day was 102 yards.

KELLER LIVED up to his press notices and flashed the form he displayed two years ago as a sophomore. The scatback gained 70 yards from scrimmage in nine tries for a 7.7 average. His total offense for the game was 165 yards. Keller tallied 15 of the 23 points for the Blues with a 70-yard kickoff return, a 35-yard run on a pitchout from Reed, and three conversions.

The losing Whites had their heroes too. Freshman Wally Vale put on a magnificent display of punting despite the adverse weather condtions, kicking four times for 86 yards and a 46.5 average. One of his kicks zoomed 57 yards and rolled dead on the Blue three-yard line. In addition, the Farmville, Va., ace gained 29 yards in five carries for a 5.8 average to lead the Whites.

JIM VARNUM, Dickie Darling, Jimmy Jones, and Jack Lineberger also were outstanding for the losing cause. Don Lear, George Stavinitski, Buddy Payne, Will Frye, Jack Maultsby, and Roland Perdue led the Blue victory.

The Blues wasted little time breaking the scoring ice. Early in the first period, after two running plays failed, Marquette was thrown trying to pass. On the next play Len Rhyne's center flew over the head of punter Darling, who was dropped in the end zone trying to retrieve the ball by Maultsby, John Jones, and Perdue.

The kickoff following the safety was taken by Keller on his own 30. Starting slowly, to his left, the fireball suddenly shifted gears, moved into the passing lane, and skipped down the sidelines for the score. His conversion made it Blues 9-0.

A WHITE MARCH, engineered by Marquette, was ended as Sutton, now a halfback, intercepted a pass and returned it to he White 42. Three plays later Reed pitched out to Keller who broke away once again for 35 yards and a touchdown. Again he kicked the point. Blue 16-0.

There was no scoring in the second period and at halftime John Kenfield and Buck Freeman were honored as varsity and assistant varsity coaches of the year respectively. Larry Parker was presented the trophy as Most Valuable Player on the '54 football team. Miss Jackie Van Hook was crowned queen of the Blue-Whte affair.

WHITE BACK Howard Williams was carried from the field after the second half kickoff with a jaw injury but left the infirmary Sunday with only a swollen jaw. He was sorely missed in the White backfield after gaining six yards in his only carry.

A 25-yard gallop by Sutton put the ball on the White eight in the third period, but Reed was stopped on the one trying to sneak over. Vale kicked out of the hole but Keller put them right back in it with a 25-yard return to the White 26. Several plays laer the Whites got their only score as Reed, trying to pass, was hit and the ball fell into the surprised arms of linebacker Jimmy Jones, who raced untouched 70 yards for the score. Blue 16-6.

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's

UNC Fencers Drop Two To State, Shaw

Carolina's fencing team bowed to N. C. State, 17-10, and Shaw Air Force Base, 11-10, in two separate dual meets in Raleigh Saturday. The Shaw team also turned back State, 19-6, in another match.

Henry Rupp was the outstanding performer for the Tar Heels, winning 11 bouts in both meets, against no setbacks. He won six bouts in the epee (three from State and three from Shaw), three sabre contests against the Wolfpack, and two sabre matches from the Shaw team.

Dan Mayo won six matches for the Tar Heels, three foils victories from each of the opposing teams.

Because of poor flying conditions the length and number of bouts were cut short in order that the Shaw outfit might return to its base in South Carolina.

Against the Wolfpack, Shaw captured the sabre event by 7-2, and took the foil by a 12-4 count. No epee (duelling sword) event was held between the two teams.

The Carolina squad proved to be a tougher team for the Air Force as the Tar Heels lost both foil and epee by close 5-4 scores. Shaw also won the abbreviated sabre event, 2-1.

In the meet between State and Carolina, the usual 27 matches were fenced, with State taking the foil by 5-4 and Carolina winning the sabre by the same score. State won the epee by an overwhelming 8-1.

21 Tar Heels Departing For Florida And 4 Tilts

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

A 21-man aggregation of Tar Heel baseball players will leave Emerson Stadium at 5:30 p.m. this evening and begin the long trip south to sunny Florida where they will play four top-flight teams in three days.

Wildwood, Fla., is the destination and the team is scheduled to arrive there at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. From Wildwood, a short bus ride will take the squad into Winter Park where they will be given the rest of the day off for relaxation.

Coach Walter Rabb is taking along six hurlers and has a squad which has been bolstered with the addition of outfielder Ken Keller, ifrst baseman Will Frye and catcher Jack Maultsby.

GOING ON the trip will be first basemen Tom Zachary and Will Frye; second baseman Harry Lloyd, Buddy Strause and Chuck Hartman; third basemen Jack Woods and Iver Lee Hill; shortstop Albert Long; outfielders Connie Gravitte, Ken Keller, Bob Paller, Mal Harding and Dick Hudson; catchers Jimmy Love and Jack Maultsby and pitchers Jim Raugh, Tom Maultsby, Morris Hall, Arthur Stone, Billy Joe Johnson and Don Hill.

Raugh is slated to hurl the opener against Georgia Tech on Thursday. Maultsby will face Rollins and Stone will pitch against Ohio State in a Friday doubleheader. Johnson will get the fourth assignment when he faces Ohio State in the windup game on Saturday.

WITH THE ADDITION of Keller, Frye and Maultsby and the improved condition of second baseman and captain Lloyd, things are looking up for the diamonders.

Taylor's Return Lacrosse Aid

By CHUCK STRONG

Hal Taylor, former UNC lacrosse star who has spent the past several years in the service of Uncle Sam, has returned to the Carolina campus to considerably boost the Tar Heel lacrosse stock.

Taylor, who has been practicing with the team for a week, has been tabbed by Coach Art Greenbaum as very promising.

Toby Haynesworth played midfield last year and was also co-captain. This year he will probably repeat in both departments. Sharing the honors with Haynesworth was Steve Trimble and it looks like another repeat for him also.

As soon as the swimming season is over Dick Baker will join the team. The experience that these men wll give the team should make UNC a highly regarded power in the field of lacrosse.

The first practice game of the season will be at Duke Friday. Duke is one of the strongest lacrosse powers in the country and that practice game should give a good indication just how well UNC will fare this season.

STUDENTS!
More often than not there's room for you in the
G.M. POOL ROOM
Especially at
10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
5-7 p.m.
9-11 p.m.

Bobby Avila Gets Smart, Signs 'Pact He Rejected

TUCSON, Ariz., March 21 (AP)—Bobby Avila, second baseman for the Cleveland Indians, ended his holdout today when he accepted the same contract he walked out on last week.

Avila told General Manager Hank Greenberg by long distance telephone he had "reconsidered" and would report to Tucson immediately. Avila rejected the Indians' offer last week and flew home to Vera Cruz, Mexico.

The contract is believed to call for a salary of $27,500 and the possibility of an extra $2,000 in bonuses. Avila got about $18,000 last season, but was holding out for $32,000 after winning the American League batting title. Avila was the Indians' last holdout.

Carolina
Last Times Today
HIT THE DECK
CINEMASCOPE

STUDENTS!
There's a new barber in your G.M. Barbershop.
Haircuts are still only
75c
Hours: 10-5:30 p.m.

MARCH INTO SPRING THIS WAY!

To The BEACH!
For The Week-End
House Parties
At The Beaches
Swim Trunks
In Plaids, Solids &
Checks — Cotton,
Orlon & Poplin

Sport Coats
Light Weight Wool
Sport Jackets —
Just The Thing
For Spring
Two Button &
Three Button

Walking Shorts and Walking Socks . . .
From Cotton Cords
To Imported Egyptian
Cottons — Walk Socks
In Plaids & Solids
1.00 up
Men & Women

COME ON IN WE MAIL BILLS HOME!

Socks
Spring Weight Wool
Argyles Styled by Byford Of England
Char Grey & Borwn

Town & Campus

'Collie' Collison Runs As Independent

we bet you a new shirt!

this is the age of Wings ROCKET

With Guaranteed Airplane Cloth Collar only $2.95

ADVERTISED IN LOOK ADVERTISED IN LIFE

A safe bet... the specially woven 2 x 2 Airplane Cloth Collar will outwear the fine broadcloth shirt or... a new one free. Wings Rocket is cut for comfort and tailored for smart good looks. Add the newest collar styles and you have the country's outstanding shirt value!

Berman's

Covering The Campus

Nature and Chapel Hill were yesterday successfully heard proclaiming spring over such obstacles as rain and "blue Monday."

Mr. F. J. LeClair of the Buildings Department says that the shrubbery which was planted around the Old Well is getting along "very well."

The weather bureau says that even though UNC has had rain on each of the past 12 days, there is a deficiency of nearly an inch for this month and a shortage of about 1½ inches for the year.

The grounds committee was kept busy yesterday clearing the Arboretum of weeds. Yes, spring is here!

The Valkyries' award to the outstanding senior girl will not be given this year, according to a statement made yesterday by the president of the group.

The award has been given every year since 1941 to the senior girl judged by a selection committee to be the most outstanding.

Sound and Fury, campus musical-comedy organization, will hold tryouts for its spring production, Satan's Saints, tonight at 7 p.m., announced director Bo Bernardin.

There are 32 parts open in the new musical, which will be presented April 28 and 29, she said.

TALENT BUREAU

Tryouts with the GMAB Talent Bureau will be held again today from 4:30 until 5:30 p.m. in the Rendezvous Room of GM.

COMPLAINT BOARD

The legislative Complaint Board will meet today at 3 p.m. in the lounge of the Monogram Club. Bob Harrington, chairman of the board, has urged that all students, especially those living in Cobb or the Lower Quad, bring any complaints they have before the group.

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY

Serving an Attractive Profession

Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS

Professional Recognition by U.S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.

Two Large Eye Clinics

University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on campus adjoining I. I. T. Campus.

Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses)

CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY

3243 South Michigan Avenue, Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Lady Milton Shop

Spring has really blossomed out with our full stock of bermuda shorts, short sleeve blouses and cotton cord skirts, all at very low and modest prices.

Milton's

Walter (Collie) Collison, who announced last Friday that he will seek independently the post of head cheerleader, said yesterday that if elected his main goal will be "to create a sustained interest in all athletics on the part of the student body."

Bill Sanders and Jake Phelps, Collison's campaign co-managers, said that Collison had received a great deal of support from his fellow students as exemplified by six petitions signed by a total of 180 people.

Collison said in yesterday's statement he will wage a clean campaign. He said that he has long been interested in Carolina athletics, and he added that in the past the cheerleading at the games has been carried out in good spirit. He said he feels "there is a pressing need for better organized pep rallies."

Sanders and Phelps said yesterday, "It is a privilege and a pleasure to aid Collie in his efforts to attain the head cheerleader position. We sincerely believe that he is well qualified to had the Carolina cheering squad. His constant interest in Carolina athletics has proven that he is the type of person that is needed for the post," they said.

"His vitality, sincerity and pleasant disposition are admired by his fellow students. All these qualities should be possessed by a person serving as the head cheerleader," concluded Collison's campaign managers.

—Coed—

(Continued from page 1)

in the fall of 1953 and enrolled for an English Department course in the ballad, taught by Dr. A. Palmer Hudson, considered a leading state authority on folklore, did Miss Underwood begin her ballad study in earnest.

To meet a class requirement for research into a ballad or folksong, she presented her vocal versions of a group of folksongs, eplaining the history behind each. Dr. Hudson then arranged for her to sing at the annual festival, in which the best performers in the entire state participate.

Miss Underwood's musical abilities have been utilized throughout her school career, both at Greensboro Senior High School, where she played the cello in the orchestra, and at Randolph-Macon, where she played in the string ensemble. She also plays the piano and trumpet "just a little," she says.

While at the Lynchburg school, Miss Underwood was active in the local dramatics organization, Sock and Buskin, and in Delta Delta Delta social sorority, serving as president of her pledge class.

Since coming to Chapel Hill she has continued her Tri Delta activities, and belongs to the Tennis Club. She was a member of the Beauty Court in the 1954 Yackety-Yack. Although she loves literature and was considering a career centered around an English major, Miss Underwood says her greatest interest is in science, with physical therapy, laboratory technology or some other phase of medicine her preferred choice now.

A friend of Miss Underwood yesterday said winners on Heidt shows are judged by applause from the audience. Carolina students in the audience Friday night might be of help, the friend said.

COMMUNITY DRAMA GROUP

The Community Drama Group will meet next Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in the Assembly Room of the Library. Miss Myra Lauterer will direct the reading of The Long Voyage, by O'Neal, and Riders To the Sea, by Synge. The meeting is open to the public. Election of officers for the coming year will be held.

FACULTY CLUB

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions here, will not speak at the Faculty Club luncheon today as previously announced. The speaker will be Gunnar Helen, a member of the Swedish Parliament, who is on a tour of several United States universities. The topic will be "General Education in Sweden." The luncheon will be held at 1 p.m. at the Carolina Inn.

Di Readings

The Dialectic Senate will hold its semi-annual Readings Nght tonight at 8 p.m. on the top floor of New West.

All members and any other interested persons have been asked by the Senate to attend tonight's meeting, and to bring compositions written by themselves or readings to read to the body.

—Ballot Box—

(Continued from page 1)

have been in favor of a student traffic court, return for vending machine profits and a study day at semester ends.

Independent Fowler got off to a late start, made only one statement so far. That one was a disagreement with Muntzing on the value of a student traffic court.

Political outlook around Graham Memorial is one shared by the rest of the campus—the candidates have seemed to let time slip by. Elections are about to catch up with them. As a student Party member said yesterday, when asked why the SP wasn't meeting last night: "We're going to study tonight. Might campaign some, too."

Report from Lower Quad is that the boys can't walk down the hall to take a shower without stumbling over a politician.

Campaigning can be exasperatng, too. One hard-working politician was observed over the weekend in the Goody Shop, beating an empty beer can against his head.—F. P.

—McCurry—

(Continued from page 1)

means for personal contact.

In discussing dorm conditions, McCurry said that from a physical standpoint, there is a need for telephones on each floor. Work has been done by President Tom Creasy concerning this," he said, but Creasy's work is a long run proposition, and continued efforts are needed.

From a social standpoint, McCurry said he favors a more liberal visiting agreement and an increase in dormirtory facilities for entertaining coeds. In accord with this, he restated his desire to have the old Veterans 'Club concerted into a student social room.

"This building could be used by dormitories and serve as a supplement to the existing dorm facilities," he said.

McCurry also commented on the need for closer social cooperaton between the sororities, women's dorms and men's dorms through coffee breaks and parties.

—Muntzing—

(Continued from page 1)

be a very important representative of our University to the people of North Carolina and our nation as well. It is only fair to the band members who have been doing such a fine job, and to ourselves, that we make sure we are putting our best foot forward by helping the band financially in any way possible. I have high hopes that student funds next fall will be such that we will be able to give the gravely needed support to the band through the student Legislature," said Muntzing.

The SP presidential candidate said he stands firmly behind the University Club in its try to "rejuvinate the famous 'Carolina Spirit.' Through the years one of our greatest attributes has been the outspoken loyalty and support of the University and its athletic teams. I will work in all manners available to maintain this cherished tradition of the 'Carolina Way of Life,'" concluded Muntzing.

—Fowler—

(Continued from page 1)

inclinations we have," Fowler said. "By putting housemothers in the fraternities, the administration would be indicating that they have no faith in the morals of the fraternity members and no belief in the behavior in the coeds as they are the ones that the University would be trying to protect by this move," he continued.

Fowler mentioned that the Louis Armstrong Concert, sponsored by ATO for the March of Dimes fund, the contributions of fraternities and sororities to the clothing drive, the Tri Delta dinner given to raise scholarship funds, the "consistently high scholastic averages of the fraternities and the many fraternity members who hold leadership positions on the campus" as proof that fraternities are "responsible."

"I hope that the administration will leave such decisions to the fraternities as they are in the best position to determine what is best for them," concluded Fowler.

APO MEETING

Alpha Phi Omega, Carolina's honorary service fraternity, will meet tonight to discuss plans for this year's Parents' Day.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in APO room, Graham Memorial.

AMERICA'S NO. 1 SHOW The HORACE HEIDT SHOW The American Way

FRIDAY MAR. 25, 8:30 P.M. COLISEUM

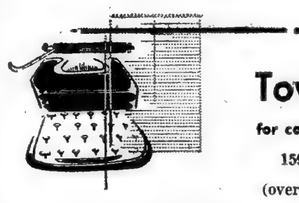
WILLIAM NEAL REYNOLDS COLISEUM N. C. STATE COLLEGE—P. O. BOX 5709 RALEIGH, N. C.

ADULT tickets at $ ..... each—Total $ .....

CHILD tickets at $ ..... each—Total $ .....

Please include 25c for Postage and Handling $ .25

Amount of Check or Money Order Enclosed ... $ .....



Name ..... Address .....

Dick Levin's Combo-Orchestra 16 FLEMING RD. B-0268

PERSONAL TYPING

New Classes Begin March 28

For information, dall new number, 9-2861

Town Classes

for college men and women

159½ E. Franklin St.

(over Sutton's Drug Store)

JULIAN'S

Presents An Entirely New Concept In Men's Summer Clothing

With DACRON Blended With COTTON In FINE HAIRLINE CORDS

in the new coin edge stripes... in handsomely defined colors in an amazingly luxurious fabric that you can

Wash 'n Wear WITHOUT IRON CARE!

34.95

Julian's College Shop

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Chair
5. Island of Napoleon's first exile
9. Sea eagle (Eur.)
10. Husband of Ruth (Bib.)
11. Shun
12. Nobleman
14. One of the colors in the French flag
15. Spanish matron
16. The country of the Blarney Stone
19. Bill
20. Indefinite article
21. Frosty
22. Minus
23. To the right!
24. Torrid
25. Incite
27. Coin (Fr.)
28. Thus
30. Nocturnal bird
31. Flasks
33. Shoots from a hidden spot
35. Polynesian drink
36. A famous lady of Troy
37. Stream
39. Peruse
40. Across
41. Places
42. Foundation

DOWN

1. River (Wales)
2. Eat away
3. Cuckoo
4. Man's nickname
5. Subsided
6. Money lent at interest
7. Member of British hereditary order of honor
8. Islands in the North Atlantic
11. Operatic melody
13. Seizes
15. Upward curving of a ship's planking
17. Told a falsehood
18. One-spot card
22. A boor
23. Province of ancient Palestine
24. Torrid
25. Exclamation
26. Proprietors
27. Distress signal
28. Hard to endure
29. Eskers
31. Curves
32. Washes
34. Kind of fuel
37. Steal
38. The yellow bugle

▨	1	2	3	4	▨	5	6	7	8	▨
▨	9				▨	10				▨
11					▨	12				13
14			▨	▨	15
16			17	18			▨	19
20		▨	21			▨	22
▨	▨	23			▨	24			▨	▨
25	26			▨	27			▨	28	29
30			▨	31				32
33			34			▨	▨	35
36					▨	37	38
▨	39				▨	40				▨
▨	41				▨	42				▨

A	M	M	A	N	A	M	E	N	S
R	I	A	T	A	D	E	V	I	L
A	N	N	E	S	A	L	I	N	E
L	E	A	G	A	M	B	L	E	D
		C	A	R	U	S	O
B	E	L	I	A	L	U	P	O	N
E	V	E	R	Y	G	R	O	P	E
E	A	S	E	G	A	N	N	E	T
		D	E	E	M	E	D
D	I	G	A	M	M	A	E	M	E
E	D	I	L	E	S	I	R	A	N
E	E	L	E	R	A	M	E	N	D
P	A	L	S	Y	H	I	D	E	S

Saturday's Answer

IF YOU LIKE

SCIENCE FICTION

If you get a kick out of being frightened by men from Mars, you'll enjoy a treasure-hunt in the Intimate Bookshop.

Used Paper-Backs 3 for 25c

Swell New Novels $1.00

Recent Anthologies $2.95 and up

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St. Open Evenings

CLASSIFIEDS

JUNE: BRING KITTY AND MEET ME Blue Room Lenoir, 12:45 today. Will be wearing red tie. Don.

FOR RENT: TWO ROOM FURNished apartment with kitchen unit. Available immediately. Call 9458 or 9459. (chg)

WORK NEAR HOME. TERRITORY openings for several women past 25. Experience unnecessary. Avon Cosmetics, 122 Camelia Dr., Fayetteville, N. C., for inquiries.

TEACHERS NEEDED FOR BEAUtiful towns and cities in California, Colorado, Arizona, Oregon, etc. Salaries $4000 up. Especially need grade teachers and high school Music, English, Girls Phys ed, Home ec., Math. Teachers and Specialists Bureau, Boulder, Colorado.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

GET YOUR EASTER CARDS EARLY

100's TO CHOOSE FROM EASTER IS APRIL 10 SO HURRY!!

LEDBETTER - PICKARD

U N C Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER

Sunny and cool today with an expected high of 50.

The Daily Tar Heel

SERENADE

The editor writes on promises made by politicians. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 123 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 23, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

AND RIDGWAY, TOO:

Humphrey, Douglas Coming

The Carolina Forum yesterday announced that two famous speakers—Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Justice William O. Douglas—will speak here soon, in addition to Gen. Matthew Ridgway.

Senator Humphrey will speak April 1. Douglas will speak April 5. Ridgway will be here next Monday.

Ridgway was unable to keep a previous speaking date due to bad weather conditions.

Hubert Humphrey

SENATOR HUMPHREY

Senator Humphrey is expected to speak on United States foreign policy.

A Democrat from Minnesota, he is at present serving on 5 Senate committees, including the Committees on Foreign Relations, Agriculture and Forestry and Democratic Steering Committee.

In the field of foreign affairs, Senator Humphrey has been an active supporter and sponsor of Point Four program, Reciprocal Trade policy, Mutual Security and North Atlantic Treaty and the Marshall Plan.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS

Justice Douglas was born in Maine, Minn., in 1898. He received his AB degree from Whitman College, Walla Walla in 1920, and his LLB from Columbia School of Law in 1925.

W. O. Douglas

Douglas was a member of the faculty of the Columbia Law School from 1924-28 and Yale Law School 1928-29.

Justice Douglas was nominated by President Roosevelt to be an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court in 1939.

Douglas has also written several books: Being an American, 1948; Of Men and Mountains, 1950; Strange Lands and Friendly People, 1951; Beyond the High Himalayas, 1952; North from Malaya, 1953, and An Almanac of Liberty, 1954.

WC TRIO: (LEFT TO RIGHT MARTHA FULCHER, ESTHER BENEDICT, ELEANOR MARTIN ... to sing in Woman's College's Consolidated University night Saturday

Candidates Present Platforms

By ED MYERS

All campus political candidates met last night in Memorial Hall, discussed election procedures and briefly presented their platforms.

Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Election Board, presided over the meeting which heard speeches ranging from tieless cheerleader candidates to sophisticated presidential nominees.

Don Fowler, first of the presidential aspirants to speak, said his non-affiliation with either political party would enable him to better serve the students. "I shall make appointments on the basis of merit instead of political affiliations," said Fowler.

He added he would strengthen the voice of the students, be filling to "stand up" for them, and "would not have just 10 of 12 advisors but would listen to anyone with a suggestion."

Ed McCurry, UP president candidate, spoke on his motto, "Achievement through cooperation," emphasizing the need of cooperation between student government and administration. "It is the student's government and not that of the leaders alone," McCurry said.

Elaborating, he said "Of course there will always be differences in ideas, purposes and procedures. There will always be the element of excessive personal pride and ambition on the part of some. There will be those seeking only selfish credit and desiring only to criticize."

Manning Muntzing, the last of the presidential candidates to speak, proposed a "four-year-plan," saying "things are not accomplished overnight." Muntzing is SP candidate for president.

The six points in Muntzing's plan were changes in classes, particularly Saturday classes; housing, better facilities for married couples and a new fraternity row; new student union building; more support to Carolina spirit; better deal for veterans, "do away with physical education and possibly hygiene" and help clear-up the car situation.

Bob Harrington, SP candidate for vice-president, said "We should serve fellow constituents and make the student body a more responsible group."

Jack Stevens, UP veep candidate, "underlined" service. He said the vice-presidency is the place "where real service can be rendered."

Muntzing Scores Cost Of Tickets For Dates

Presidential candidate Manning Muntzing yesterday said "one constant source of irritation" to the students is the "cost of date tickets to Carolina football games."

Muntzing, a Student Party candidate, said his conclusion came after "the past week of campaigning throughout the campus."

"I, along with the vast majority of students, feel that the regular gate price is too much to charge for tickets for the dates," said Muntzing.

"In talking with officials concerned with this problem," said Muntzing, "I have found them extremely cooperative and in sympathy with our problem. Frankly, however, I find it impossible at this time to state that I can secure free date passes for students.

"It is a financial impossibility. However, because of the new Federal reduction on amusement taxes, I have high hopes that some plan in the near future may be worked out for a reasonable reduction in ticket prices. I shall work to the fullest extent of my abilities for this reduction."

University workmen on ladders pruning trees in Aboretum.

* * *

Pretty coed with full skirt having one heck of a time with the wind.

* * *

Planetarium employee eyeing with disgust a busload of school children.

Summer Registry June 9

Registration for first session summer school will be held June 9, according to a spokesman for the summer school office.

Students may register until 4:30 p.m. June 13 if they are willing to pay a $2 fee.

The two Saturday classes for the first session will be on June 11 and on July 25, said the spokesman.

Second session registration will take place on July 18. Registration closes on July 21.

Saturday classes for second session will be on July 30 and August 20.

Tuition for in-state students for one session of summer school is $25, plus $15 registration fee. Out-of-state students will pay $60 plus $15.

There is a possibility that all the women's dormitories will be open for the first session of summer school, according to the spokesman. The men's dormitories to be open are Joyner, Old East, Old West, Steele and the first three floors of Ruffin. Conner will house graduate men, the spokesman said.

Truman Notifies Gray He Won't Speak Here

Harry Truman, former President of the United States, has notified UNC President Gordon Gray that he will be unable to deliver the Weil Lectures here this spring.

Gray had invited Truman to deliver the lectures in April or May.

Truman said he was in the midst of reading proof on his memoirs for publication in a national weekly magazine. He said conditions had arisen which would prevent him from "doing the necessary work on the lectures."

"We are also just about to start construction on the library in Independence," said the former U. S. President, "and the cataloging of material that goes into the library plus (work on) the book will take all of my time for the next few months."

He told a reporter that his hospitalization at Kansas City for three months last summer set him back in his work. He requested a "raincheck" on the invitation "until next year when I hope to have more time."

The lectures, endowed by the families of Henry and Sol Weil, are delivered on American citizenship. William Howard Taft delivered the first series of lectures in 1914.

Gray To Talk At UCLA Fete Next Friday

President Gordon Gray will be the guest speaker at the University of California at Los Angeles, Calif., Friday.

President Gray will be the University's Charter Day speaker for the celebration of its 87th birthday. He will speak twice in connection with the Charter Day celebration. The first time will be at 10:30 a.m. (PST) at a special convocation for alumni and students. His second address will be made at 7 p.m. (PST) at the annual UCLA Charter banquet to be held at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. The banquet is being sponsored by the Alumni Association of UCLA for alumni and friends.

The Charter celebration marks the beginning of UCLA on March 23, 1868, when Governor Henry H. Haight of California signed the enabling act creating the state university.

GM's Got New Candy, Peanut Machine Now

Something new has been added. Graham Memorial now boasts a candy vending machine for the added convenience of habitues.

It is located second on the right from the Coke machine and directly across from the pool room in the basement hall.

Nabs, candy bars, peanuts and mints, all five-cent items, are the current selections. The machine will handle 10-cent items also. It gives change from a dime on nickle items.

The machine was installed March 13 and is doing a business of about 40 sales each week. Director Jim Wallace said. It is serviced and kept full by the Graham Memorial staff.

CU Night Slated For WC With Dance Next Saturday

A Consolidated University night, last of this year, will be held Saturday at Woman's College in Greensboro.

Larry Ford, chairman of the UNC delegation to the Consolidated University Student Council, said yesterday the gathering will feature open houses, a talent show and dance—all in WC's student union, Elliott Hall.

Festivities will start at 5 p.m. in the union building, said Ford. The dance will start at 9 p.m. Reg Marshall and orchestra will provide music.

Ford urged "all students" to attend the CU night. He said no admissions would be charged to any festivities.

In addition to Ford, chairmen of delegations include Miss Harold Lee, Woman's College, and Eugene Pickler, State College in Raleigh.

Ford said Saturday's event would be the last this year. The next will be held in the fall at the Carolina-State football game in Raleigh.

Fowler Wants Revision Of Council's Structure

Presidential candidate Don Fowler said yesterday he feels the Student Council revision amendment, which will be put to the students for a vote March 29, will provide a more experienced council and "insure the accused the right to a new and fairer trial if any of his rights have been denied."

Fowler is running for office of student body president as an independent.

Fowler said the student body "will be asked to vote one one of the most important constitutional amendments in the history of student government . . . the Student Council revision, which I would like to heartily endorse and encourage the student body to vote in favor of."

(The amendment would give the council one representative each from the Men's Council, Women's Council, Interdormitory Council Court, Interfraternity Council Court, Women's Residence Council Court, Law School Court, Medical School Court, Dental School Court and two representatives-at-large from the student body.)

"The Student Council," said Fowler, decides on constitutional questions and hears appeals from all the other councils on campus. In hearing these appeals, they only rule on whether a constitutional or procedural right has been denied the accused. If the Student Council grants an appeal, the case is returned to the council which had original jurisdiction and the case is heard by the same people who previously convicted the accused.

"The new system," said Fowler, "will provide a Student Council composed of people experienced in the various aspects of campus judicial procedure. I believe that a council such as this can hear the case without any preconceived opinions and insure the accused the right to a new and fairer trial if any of his rights have been denied.

"This would also relieve some of the councils which are already overworked from being further burdened with appeals," added Fowler.

Dixon-Mayer Recitals Slated Here Tomorrow

Miss Roberta Dixon, mezzo-soprano from Raleigh, and Lutz Mayer, Greensboro violinist, both students here, will be presented in a junior recital in Hill Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Miss Dixon will sing a group of arias from operas by Gluck, two arias from Carmen by Bizet and a group of songs by Michael Head. Mayer will present works by Vitali, Beethoven, Saint-Saens, Chaminade-Kreisler and Bloch.

Miss Dixon, a junior, is studying voice with Prof. Joel Carter, head of the UNC Voice Department. She was a music major at Woman's College before coming to UNC. She is president of the Women's Glee Club and a member of Kappa Delta social sorority.

She will be accompanied by Eugene Hudson, junior from Black Mountain.

Mayer, a native of Hamburg, Germany, is a student here of Edgar Alden. He is a member of the first violin section of the University Symphony Orchestra, and of Phi Eta Sigma Fraternity. George Thomas, Carthage, will accompany Mayer at the piano.

Planetarium's Lights Are Visible In Carrboro

The bright lights recently installed on the north side of Morehead Planetarium are no more powerful than those they replaced, according to Planetarium Manager A. F. Jenzano.

The new lights, which can be seen as far away as Carrboro, have a more efficient reflector than the old ones and were acquired by Manager Jenzano from a surplus of old lamps on campus.

the Ballot Box

A head cheerleader, almost anybody will agree, should have a sense of humor. All three candidates for head cheerleader ("Pepper" Tice, Lewis Brumfield and "Collie" Collison) have a sense of humor, and are accepted among their associates as wits.

But politics have entered into the running for head cheerleader.

Last Wednesday, the Student Party endorsed Lewis Brumfield for the position. Monday night, the University Party endorsed "Collie" Collison. The UP move was obviously an answer to Brumfield's endorsement.

This year's head cheerleader, Jim Fountain (who made several Kenan Stadium appearances atop the guest box and who was haggling with the U. S. Army for a helicopter ride onto the turf one Saturday), doesn't like the idea of mixing politics and cheers. Fountain said, after Brumfield's endorsement, that he "will not accept" such an endorsement.

Fountain was speaking in the position of head of the Selection Board, which endorsed Brumfield and Tice. The Selection Board is set up as a bipartisan affair.

But the UP, not to be outdone by SP, endorsed Collison for head cheerleader.

The office wonderer wonders if next fall's halftimes will be given over to political addresses.

* * *

A little mud has started to be slung. One presidential candidate's man claims another presidential candidate has been "unfair" to the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund. With only six days left until election day, and no ferocious charges made yet, the campaign seems tame compared to national, state and other campus elections.

* * *

Human minds, typewriters, night editors, proofreaders and printers get mixed up, especially at this time of year, when all things are promised all people by all candidates.

LEAVE FRATS TO IDC, SAYS CANDIDATE FOWLER, said the headline. Somewhere along the line, IFC (meaning Interfraternity Council) got changed to IDC (meaning Interdormitory Council).

To set the record straight, Candidate Fowler's statement said he was in favor of putting "overall control" of UNC fraternities into the hands of the Interfraternity Council (IFC). The headline was wrong, and The Daily Tar Heel is sorry.

* * *

Campaign expenses, according to elections laws, run from $30 for presidential candidates to $12.50 for legislative and Honor Council nominees. Here's the way the law sets down expense maximums:

President—$30.
Vice-president—$25.
Editors of campus publications—$22.50.
Secretary-treasurer—$20.
Head cheerleader—$17.50
Student Council—$15.
All other offices—$12.50.

* * *

While every other candidate is running around campaigning, co-editorial candidates for The Daily Tar Heel have an easy job. After David Mundy withdrew from the race for editor, Candidates Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder have had no competition.

Yoder has his duties as associate editor as usual, and Kraar writes his daily column and works for The Chapel Hill Weekly.

Nevertheless, says Candidate Kraar, he and Yoder aren't sitting out the campaign. He said yesterday the combine is visiting "500 students."—F.P.

Outstanding Theologist To Talk Here Tonight

One of England's most outstanding Biblical scholars will be presented by the UNC Department of Religion in a public address in Carroll Hall tonight.

Dr. H. H. Rowley, professor of Hebrew language and literature at the University of Manchester, England, will be heard at 8 p.m. His subject will be "The Meaning of the Old Testament for Today," according to announcement by Dr. Bernard Boyd, chairman of the Religion Department.

Dr. Rowley, the author of more than 15 books dealing with the Old Testament, holds honorary doctorate degrees in divinity and theology from Universities all over Europe. He received his education at Wyggenston School, Bristol Baptist College and Bristol University.

He was a minister of the United Church in Wells until 1922, when he became a missionary of the Baptist Missionary Society in China. In China he was also associate professor of Old Testament Literature at Shantung Christian University. He has been Dean of both Bangor School of Theology and on the faculty of Theology at Manchester University.

Colbert Says He's Not Fowler Man After Ackerman Statement

Bob Colbert, chairman of the Monogram Club program committee, yesterday said it was "untrue" he is a supporter of Don Fowler for president, that he is a supporter of Ed McCurry for president and that Fowler forces have taken a "minor incident" and blown it "up into a big issue."

Colbert's reply came to a statement Monday by Charles Ackerman, worker for Fowler, that Colbert had said "handbills given out by presidential candidate Ed McCurry were unfair to the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund."

Fowler is an independent candidate for student government president. McCurry is University Party candidate. They run against Manning Muntzing in March 29 elections.

Ackerman claimed Colbert said "The McCurry handbills had the starting lineups on them and thus took away money from the fund which would have been gained through the sale of the official game programs."

Colbert, in his statement yesterday, said Ackerman and he discussed the presidential campaign "informally."

"I told him that McCurry supporters had distributed handbills with starting lineups at the Blue-White game Saturday, and that I thought they might have hurt sales of the official programs, proceeds of which go to the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund."

Colbert said Ackerman requested permission to quote him, and was granted it. Tuesday, said Colbert, he noted the story of his statement, "a very slanted slam on Ed McCurry."

Colbert said the "only use of 'unfair' in the story is attributed to me. The headline, therefore, implies I am a Fowler supporter." (The headline read FOWLER MAN CHARGES McCURRY ACT 'UNFAIR'.)" That is untrue.

"I am a supporter of Ed McCurry," said Colbert. "After discussing this matter with Ed, I believe he has no intention of doing anything detrimental to the Monogram Club Scholarship Fund or any other good cause.

"It is unfortunate," concluded Colbert, "that the Fowler forces have seen fit to take such a minor incident and try to blow it up into a big issue which might take the emphasis of the campaign off choosing the most qualified candidate."

How Do You Recognize A Good Intention?

A high-level conference among the big powers, says Chairman Walter George (D.-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is the one "real hope of avoiding war."

Senator George says he would like to see President Eisenhower take the lead in calling a conference and call it right after full ratification of the Paris agreements, without waiting around for what the President has repeatedly called "proof of Russia's good intentions."

Mr. George, a good student of foreign affairs, seems to see the storm clouds as bigget than anybody is letting on: his proposal may almost be viewed in the nature of clutching at straws with the blind hope of grabbing a life raft.

Well, the time has come for clutching at some straws: we string along with the Senator's view that talking with the Russians is better than shooting at them. We fail to see any disadvantage to a conference such as George (and Churchill and Mendes-France before him) has urged.

Disagreement has come—as it would be expected to come—from Senator William F. Knowland. Speaking in Charlotte Monday night, Knowland said "there is no purpose" in such a conference unless we are prepared to pay a price.

His reasoning goes this way: If we had talks with Russia, she would probably ask that all the territory presently behind the Iron Curtain be recognized as Russian. And that would make slaves of the people in that territory. So—no conference, until Russia shows some (and here the phrase popped up again) good intentions.

We are tempted to revise a maxim: The road to hell is being paved while we wait around for good intentions. The official U. S. attitude that all Soviet peace overtures are phony may be exactly true. But one thing bothers us: Suppose the Russians do, someday have that long-awaited change of heart, suppose those good intentions finally arrive on the Soviet scene.

Who is going to know it if we persist in keeping channels of communications effectively blocked. Who among Washington officialdom is going to know a good intention when he sees it?

You Have Piped But We Have Not Danced

The trumpets of campus presidential campaigns have gone to tooting. We have had a statement (yesterday morning) on the "improper use" of Monogram Scholarship funds; we have learned that one candidate is "aware" of the Band Situation. Cut systems, student traffic courts, vending machine profits, high school student government workshops—all relevant but minor key issues—have a point-counterpointed between the candidates' horns.

As for us, we are saving among the trumpets (like the Biblical warhorse) aha, aha! That is, we're interested but neither deafened nor moved to pat our feet in time to the music.

Maybe we've been getting our ears boxed by too much Dizzie Gallespie lately, but anyway we say to the candidates: Let us hear something syncopated for a change. There are plenty of good fast scores lying around—to wait, what about admission of Negro students to the University? What about inviting the Russian college editors to tour the region from Silent Sam to Medical Hill?

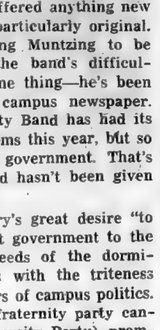
In short, let's move from serenades to symphonies.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor ..... CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors ..... LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager ..... TOM SHORES
Sports Editor ..... BERNIE WEISS
News Editor ..... Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager ..... Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager ..... Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager ..... Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager ..... Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor ..... Ray Linker
Photographer ..... Boyden Henley
Society Editor ..... Susan Andes

NEWS STAFF—Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Ebba Freund, Peggy Ballard, Lois Owen.



Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Gather Round Manning, Don & Ed For Tips

Louis Kraar

WHY DON'T the three presidential candidates offer decent platforms?

Thus far, Don Fowler, Ed McCurry, and Manning Muntzing have promised the same things that presidential candidates have been promising for years. Not one of the candidates has offered anything new or anything particularly original.

For Manning Muntzing to be "aware" of the band's difficulties proves one thing—he's been reading the campus newspaper. The University Band has had its money problems this year, but so has student government. That's why the band hasn't been given its handout.

Ed McCurry's great desire "to bring student government to the individual needs of the dormitories" rings with the triteness of many years of campus politics. Always the fraternity party candidate (University Party) promises things for the dorms and the non-fraternity party (Student Party) promises things for fraternities.

Take Don Fowler for the latter type promise. He expresed the hope for not putting fraternities on such a "childish level" as having housemothers. For fraternities to have housemothers—despite Fowler's declaration—does not mean that the administration has "no faith in the morals of the fraternity members."

★

WHAT THE candidates should do during this next week of vote gathering activities is try to find out not only what students want, but what the University needs.

Class cuts, free tickets for dates, telephones on every floor of each dorm, and so on down the long, hackneyed list don't amount to anything but empty promises.

It's true that some of these things are needed. Take the UP's pledge to continue the high school honor system program and the promise to have the hygiene exemption test revived. These are valid promises.

★

FIRST ON my list would be an all-out effort to establish a tradition for scholarship in the University.

To do this, candidates could pledge to see that the dorms observe quiet hours. Currently, study conditions in most dorms are nonexistent. The places are simply too noisy to study. And the library is too small for all.

Secondly, the candidate could promise that through reports in the paper can through personal contact with students that the Honor System would be more than something one hears about during Orientation.

At the present time—mainly because of the stubborness of the Men's Council in not giving REGULAR reports to the campus parer—students are completely out of contact with the Honor System.

Aside from the pledge on a quiz paper, one hears little about the student courts. A pledge to keep the students in contact with the workings of the courts could be accomplished.

And lastly, I would vow not to say that I was "misquoted" in the campus paper whenever something unfavorable appeared about me.

But, after all, I'm not a candidate for president. And if I were (with this platform), I would lose.

★

SIGN IN SP mogul Jim Turner's office after the Fowler folks broke from the party:

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity—Psalm 133."

YOU Said It

Utilitate Prodest: The Cut Rule

Editor:

We have been part of the University for four years and have been subjected to some pretty stupid regulations in our time. However, the idiocy in the current absentee rule has reached an all-time height. Each of us has been absent from class for a different reason this semester and, of course, have had to descend into the maelstrom of inefficiency, bureaucracy, and red tape that is designated as the proper procedure for the obtainment of an excuse.

Several steps are required: (1) Going to the dean or doctor; (2) Waiting for the dean or doctor: (3) Seeing the dean or doctor and being called a liar; (4) Taking an oath on the bible; (5) Going to Haynes Hall; (6) Being told that the excuse is not in correct form; (7) Undergoing the inquisition from your class instructor for not having an excuse; (8) Back to the dean or doctor for proper form; (9) Listening to the doctor or dean cuss the system; (10) Back to Haynes Hall; (11) Being told that the excuse has not come through South Building; (12) Finally obtaining an excuse: (13) Being told you've flunked the course due to too many cuts while seeking an excuse.

The ingenuity of this scheme escapes us but unfortunately we have not escaped the system. We agree that "omnis innovatio plus novitate perturbat quam utilitate prodest."

C. A. Norris
L. H. Addington

How Ragged Is The Orphan?

As an interested student, I have noted carefully the references to the "Ragged Orphan," and here are a few observations and questions which I feel we should take into consideration.

What kind of logic is this: "Mommie, I want a red sucker because you gave Bill a red sucker." If WC's and State's having fine new buildings be the only reason we feel we need a new building, we had better try again to find a reason. I do not doubt, however, that it would be nice for us to have a new building, but—

How often is GM crowded? Can North Carolina afford the capital investment of a new plant to be used at capacity only an hour or two a week? The Daily Tar Heel in the first "Ragged Orphan" editorial said that "... it is never visited by most students." I say that when the program is so dynamic and when every possible resource is used at capacity, then we have a right to ask, not demand, for a new building. A building does not make a program, and the program is the thing that counts.

Now for the money matters—The Student Legislature, The Daily Tar Heel, and any other interested groups or persons can not even think of raising the student fees one penny after the "sob story" we just gave the State Legislature. We may need the money, and a little raise might be easy to get, but if we raise the fees one or two dollars, the State Legislature should feel free to raise the fees as high as they feel it necessary to meet the expenses of the University. If this publicity be to encourage alumni to build the building, why not ask them outright? Maybe a donation cup in the lobby of GM would get things started.

Although I am only a voter, let me congratulate Ed McCurry for his sensible outlook and proposal concerning Graham Memorial.

Frank Brooks

Not Just Cadillacs In B. A. School

Editor:

Open letter to Mr. Louis Kraar:

Ordinarily you write articles of considerable interest and some worth. However, in your article of March 18 you slipped to a low lever of absurdity.

My major in the Business Administration school, accounting, is the most restrictive of any B.A. field. When I graduate I will have taken eight courses in accounting, twelve in other B.A. and economics courses, eight in sciences, psychology and sociology, and twelve in "liberal arts;" to sum up, 50% in B.A. and 50% outside of B.A. Your contention that liberal arts and humanities should not be neglected is a good one. My belief that you should take B. A. courses to "round out" your education I also consider worthy. Your fallacy, Mr. Kraar, is that you see things from your own viewpoint only, presupposing that you are right and that B. A. majors are wrong. Why do you not try to visualize the situation from our realm, that that of trying to train ourselves to be useful members of society, both from the economic and the social aspects? We are not interested merely in buying Cadillacs and watching television. We want to be able to earn a decent living for our families and ourselves.

Mr. Kraar, I accuse you, when you are faced with the undesirable (from your point of view) of taking B. A. courses, of resorting to ridicule when unable to make any sound, logical objections to your taking such courses. Furthermore, I dare you, with the education you will have received upon your graduation, to get a job with and succeed in an accounting firm without the aid of family or friends.

Let me emphasize again that liberal arts must not be neglected in their entirety. I point to Bell Telephone as an outstanding example of the progress which I believe is to be made along these lines. However, I believe Bell Telephone and many other firms will be more willing to risk their money on hiring B. A. majors and training them in humanities than the opposite course of taking humanities majors and starting at ground level teaching them the fundamentals of our economic and busines world. In our studies of B. A. courses we get history and the social aspects of the field. In fact, to understand fully the subject matter (which no course by and of itself can do for us) we have to know the social impacts of wars, depressions, customs, and so forth. Why don't you take your subjects out from under the gilded covers you have placed over them and apply them to the practical as well as the philosophic side of life?

D. G. Angell

Bookcase Blues In Alexander

Editor:

Now that the Student Legislature has completed its investigation of The Daily Tar Heel, we would like the honorable Solons to investigate the lack of bookcases in certain dormitory rooms.

The UNC Country Club (next door to the Monogram Club) is presently being equipped as an Arthur Murray dancing studio, rumored to be mamboing to the tune of $10,000. A practical course in ballroom dancing is a wonderful cultural attainment, but three veterans in Alexander wonder why they have to live in a three-man room and study out of one bookcase.

We feel that another bookcase would cost considerably less than $10,000, and we really don't care to do the Charleston in our basement.

Tim Wood
Marvin Isreal
Jackie Kriegsman

'I Guess I Shouldn't Have Pulled The Trigger'

Needed: The Scoop On The Armed Forces

The Charlotte News

The presence today of a multitude of armed forces organization through which draft-eligible youths may complete their selective service requirements spotlights a need for which Uncle Sam should have provided long ago.

The need is for the accumulation of data on all reserve and active armed forces groups into a handbook to be distributed among high school and college graduates.

When our country's young males finish their educations they are faced with the problem of whether they should allow the Army to draft them into service or enlist in some other branch. If they choose the latter, they must pick from a lengthy list of service organizations and programs.

The recruitee frequently has no organizatized conception of the requirements and stipulations of all these numerors voluntary branches of service. He picks his branch haphazardly from a radio recruiting announcement, a street poster, or a tip from a friend that a certain branch is a "good deal."

There is no central agency or office to which he may go and become fully informed on the programs into which he is eligible to become enrolled.

So instead of choosing wisely after a thorough examination of all the possibilities, he plunges blindly into a branch of service which may or may not particularly suit his individual circumstances, but which will take from two to four years out of his life.

The Defense Department, therefore, owes it to U. S. youth to compile a handbook including accumulated information on every branch of service, reserve and active, through which a person may complete his selective service requirements. Such a book would give detailed information on each program and make the prospective recruitee fully aware of the circumstances surrounding his enlistment.

Quote, Unquote

The life of every man is a diary in which he means to write one story, and writes another; and his humblest hour is when he compares the volume as it is with what he vowed to make it.—James M. Barrie in The Little Minister.

★

Marriage is a damnably serious business, particularly around Boston.—John P. Marquand in The Late George Apley.

★

Life does not give itself to one who tries to keep all its advantages at once. I have often thought morality may perhaps consist solely in the courage of making a choice.—Leon Blum.

★

Speech is civilization itself. The word, even the most contradictory word, preserves contact—it is silence which isolates. —Thomas Mann in The Magic Mountain.

★

LOGGERHEAD SHRIKE

A tree hung with the dead bodies of lizards, worms, and small snakes—that was the sight that sometime ago mystified the people of Troy, N. C.

The tree was found to be a storage place for shrikes, which kill then impale on thorns or fences not only shall animals but other birds.

This shrike measures just over 9 inches. It has a 4 inch tail and a 13 inch wingspread. The female is smaller than the male. The related northern shrike has a breast that is slightly barred. Both are essentially gray birds with light throats, dark areas on the wings, some white on the tail and a black broad streak from the bill through the eyes and to the back of the face. To some, it seems appropriate that this bird should wear what appears to be a black mask.

Shrikes are inclined to perch high and alone. When attacking or when taking flight they usually drop from their perch and fly directly toward their goal with a steady wing beat. At the end they may make a sharp upturn before coming to a stop.

The Chapel Hill News Leader

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coe

THE HORSE had his curried and combed companions, the elongated Neckley and the compressed Frog, in attendance when I saw him, at Graham Memorial.

"Stand aside, Roger," he crisped militarily. "Make room for the troops! The attack unfolds!"

Oh? Then it was not a retirement?

"A retirement, or withdrawal of support, is an attack with a negative accent," The Horse stated dogmatically through his canine teeth. "Everything today is negative. Especially the DTH, which translates into English as Daily Tar Heel."

Why, I thought the DTH was positive, indeed! It had an enterprising editorial-page policy of running ever new material; it sat interestedly at the death-bed of The Humanities, a living wake which has been going on for lo!, 2400 years now; it played down Athletics even unto burying it under bad spelling and worse grammar; it conducted post-mortem clinics on the too-bashful scion of Pedagogy, Educational-TV, despite the child was breathing and fighting for life. What more did The Horse want?

"I want a little realism," The Horse shrugged his platinum mane. "I want us all to recognize that the manner in which we say things is important, as well as what we say. I am casting to one side the fact that we publish a freak-size paper: this undoubtedly has very plausible raisons d'etre and is inextricably, for the nonce, linked with cheaper production. But this very variance from the norm is all the more reason for us to be meticulous in our presentation of our paper. Let's muzzle it, we can't do it under the present apprpriation."

Let's muzzle it?

"A Horsely way of saying 'face,'" The Horse translated. "A Horse's face is mostly muzzle, no? It would seem we are suffering painfully in the areas of proofreading and corrections of original linotype setting—and doubtless there are cogent reasons why this is so. Time, would be one factor; plethora of authors' and linotypers' Errors would be another. In combination they are incapable of correction under our present set-up."

Wasn't proofreading easy?

"The way of the proofgessor is hard," The Horse horsed himself up a new word. "He does not merely look for misspellings and sinning grammar, but as well he traditionally is responsible for factualities such as dates, names, places, records, claims. Supposedly, he checks original copy for such cullings ere he sends the copy to the typesetter. Then, he checks the typesetter's copy to be sure that the changes he has indicated have been made . . . and after that, all he has to do is check for correct font of type, size of type, margins, spacings. And, when he finds same, he has to note it in standard proofgressor hieroglphs and ideograms and return same to the typesetter for execution; and then re-check and maybe again re-check for eratta that crop up during the re-setting, or re-linotyping. Then, when the final form is ready, the proofgressor checks it all—heads; cuts; sub-heads; cut-titles; everything."

Well, gee, That took time!

"So we all know," The Horse said equusably. "We all know, also, that Time can be duplicated synthetically by money—Time cannot be stretched, but other factors involved may be manipulated; less newspapers in the same Time; or more workers in the same Time. Since every demand for money is akin to a Pier Six brawl—again, understandably—it but remains to determine what we want: a clean, literate, pleasing and errorless DTH; or one that annoys even its best friends, unnecessarily."

The Horse meant, there was a choice? How?

"Cut the DTH to an every-other-day-publication and—."

The Horse could get no further because of my screams. Why, even now, we were having enough of trouble maintaining we were a Daily Tar Heel when we missed a Monday publication! What heresy! What utter treason! What — what — -

"What law is there says that an idea must live when its existence makes it like unto a burden?" The Horse shrugged. "The idea of a daily Tar Heel was fine . . . when it was practical. But ever-mounting print costs and ever-mounting living-costs of the students made the heavy load of a daily newspaper a trial. Further, it was clear that we were sacrificing prestige and integrity when we turned out a newspaper that was not clean, crisp and flawless."

Was a Semi-Daily Tar Heel the only alternative?

"I've already said we could do the job with more money," The Horse reminded me. "But let's not discuss that, because that is the hardest proposition to tackle. We could cut the size of the DTH to less than it now is; which is another way of saying 'more money for the same thing—and idea.' We might publish, every-other-day-including Sunday, a full-size DTH; and alternate it other-day-ly with a single sheet confined to What's Doing To-Day, and such other material as the editor(s) hit upon for this."

How would that be any great help?

"The staff would have more time," The Horse said, "to comb their copy for errata of spelling and grammar; and buddy, they need it! The proofreaders would have more time for corrections, and to see that corrections are carried out. The linotypers would have more time, and no excuses, glory be!, to carry out directions. Deadlines could be set with knowledge that they didn't automatically make for a loused-up publication. But let's not hang ourselves on the gibbet of a masthead that is impractical, individious and introverted. The problem is simplex, or at the most, duplex. It is not complex. The answer is not to be found by staring into our innards and mumbling over that the DTH traditionally is, but rather one of facing facts and making noises like the acolytes of a fact-finding, forward-moving educational institution should make—the noises of rationality and common-sense. What we want is a good newspaper on the campus as often as r-number of dollars and x-amount of student sacrifice and labor can produce; not a tradition that can be supported only at cost of ideals, integrity and prestige."

And The Horse, personally, wanted—?

"Shorter columns; regularly scheduled; reasonably proofread; The Horse 'cut' back;a few cobs a week—"

Oh, oh! Here was a Horsely factor again! Time. Space, too- Could The Horse continue to quit in the next issoo?

"OOOhhhhhhhh, Wump!" Mr. Wump groaned.

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

Left-overs from the Blue-White game Saturday. It turned out to be a Brown-Brown game:

Line coach Bass says, "Perdue and Maultsby showed unusual hustle and determination. Koman played a very good game. Frye and Payne at ends played in surprising fashion, and Payne did an exceptionally fine job for a rising sophomore. He was in the White secondary on almost every play. Stavnitski and Keller were most impressive on Buster Ramsey (the Detroit Lions' backfield coach who was in attendance.)

"The over-all play of both lines was very good. The blocking was aggressive and the tackling could have been better, but was satisfactory.

"We worked on punting only one day before the game, and look what Vale did. He will help us a lot. We spent most of the time during off-season practice on blocking and tackling, and this will pay off next fall.

"John Bilich showed much improvement in the game. He has lost 12 pounds and is more agile now, weighing about 210.

"Generally, I would say that we looked ragged only in those phases of the game on which we didn't work, such as pass protection."

Head coach George Barclay's comments: "The only drawback with Reed (who quarterbacked the Blues to a 23-6 victory) was his voice, and that is just about cured now. He used to come up to the line and slur his calling of the signals. The line would anticipate the call and charge offsides, but that doesn't happen any more. He did as well as I expected him to because he looked very good in practice.

"Sutton will still get some work at quarterback. He can be of some value to us there, not to mention at halfback. I don't think he got a fair trial at quarterback, having just been shifted to that position.

"Vale, who was out with a back injury last fall, will be a big help to us in punting. Varnum's tremendous speed is going to give us a fast backfield including Sutton and Keller.

"Keller played as well as he was capable. He's in better shape now at 175 pounds. Lear, at fullback, is looking awfully good on his defense and blocking. Marquette had a tough time against that Blue line, but he'll be okay.

"All in all, we made many mistakes, but they can easily be corrected."

Barclay is joyous over picking up a few ball players for his freshman squad during the past weekend. Two boys who have indicated they will come to Carolina next fall are Stuart Pell, a guard now in the Navy, who will station his 240-pound, 6'4" frame at tackle, and Rabe Walton, an outstanding quarterback from Churchland, Virginia. Pell is a product of Pennsylvania.

★ ★

Off-season basketball drills got under way yesterday afternoon, which brings to mind a series of new rules for the game adopted this week by the NCAA.

The rules which will apply to college basketball are:

1. The bonus free throw rule (a second shot if the first one is a success) will now be in effect the whole game, not just 37 minutes with the last three minutes being an automatic two-shot period.
2. The foul lanes have been widened from six to 12 feet.
3. A five-second possession rule to apply to dribblers.
4. A flagrant technical violation will call for two free throws.
5. On jump shots, elapsed time will go into effect as soon as the ball is tapped, not when it leaves the official's hands.

Shades of Phil Fox! That referee predicted that these changes would be made before long. But another Fox prediction hasn't come about yet—that a 24-second possession limit be placed on the offensive team before taking its first shot. The NCAA did consider, but not seriously, the 24-second rule.

Waters, Beatty Bolster Chances Of Tracksters

By RAY LINKER

The top 10 high scorers from last year's once-beaten frosh outdoor track squad have moved up to the varsity team to give Coaches Dale Ranson and Joe Hilton another strong contender for the conference crown.

Nineteen sophomores are scattered throughout the team roster, and there will be at least one second-year man in every event, which is expected to bolster the team considerably.

Richard Waters, pole vaulter and hurdler who in six meets led all freshman scoring last year with 81 points (including 13 first places), heads the list of outstanding sophomores. Waters pulled a leg muscle recently indoors (at the VMI Relays), and he hurt it again in the Indoor Games here, but is expected to be all right for outdoor season, although he will not be able to hurdle at the season's start.

Waters set a new all-time Carolina freshmun record in the pole vault last year by clearing 13 feet on two occasions. The UNC varsity record is only one-half inch higher, and coaches expect him to go well above this. In fact, Hilton stated that Waters would jump better than 14 feet before the season ends, barring injuries, of course. He will also be a top man in both the high and low hurdles.

TOP POSITION in the mile will be taken over by Jimmy Beatty, who won 10 races for the frosh. Ranson will also use him in the two-mile and 880 when necessary, for Ranson considers him versatile enough to do good jobs in all three. In one frosh meet last season, Beatty won the 880, mile, and two-mile. His wins in the Indoor Games in the mile and two-mile, the latter being run in record time, established him among the nation's top 10 in both events according to times run so far this year. His mile was the fifth fastest in the country and the two-mile was good enough to place him ninth in that event.

Jim Bynum, who scored 46 points as a freshman, along with Larry McMullen and Ed Sutton, are being counted on in the dashes to aid the team greatly.

JOHNNY JONES will give strength to the team in the weights. He was the fifth highest freshman scorer last year with 32 points in the discus and shot.

Claude Rhule is being counted on this year along with Waters and other varsity men to boost the team in the two hurdle events. Hilton said he thought Rhule could get down below the 15-second mark in the high hurdles.

Richard MacFaddin, whose best 440-yard run last year was 52.4 will probably nail down the No. 2 spot in that event. George Stavnitski is considered a good prospect for the javelin.

KEN BRYANT has already shown his capabilities as a varsity high jumper by taking second in the conference in the Indoor Games, and the coaches are hoping for continued improvement.

Bob Boerner, a soph who didn't compete last year will give strength to the 440. Boerner is a former high school 880 champion.

Other men who are being counted on to help carry the team to many wins are Marion Griffin in the two mile and Larry Thames and Dave Weil in the 880. Stan Donnohoe will be a contender for a place among the discus throwers.

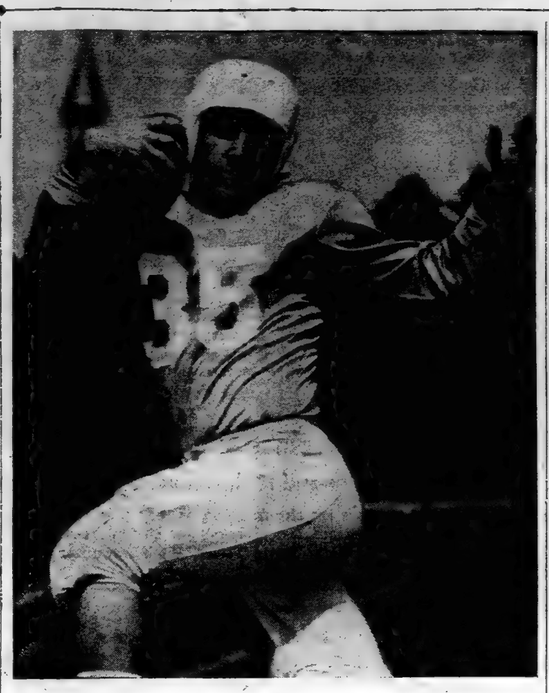
Three Wrestlers To NCAA Meet

Miles Gregory, McGehee And Cowan Entered

Cornell Tourney Host Friday And Saturday

By AL KORSCHUN

UNC wrestlers Hugh Cowan, Pete McGehee, and Miles Gregory will carry the Tar Heel banner up to Ithaca, N. Y. to participate in the twenty-fifth annual NCCA Wrestling Tournament which will be held at Cornell University this week end.



The trio, each of whom will be hoping to become Carolina's first national wrestling champion in the school's history, will leave today by car with coach Sam Barnes and Earl Hoffman and will return late Sunday night.

All three of the grapplers wrestled well during the regular season for a Tar Heel team which posted a disappointing record of one victory and nine defeats. Cowan at 130 pounds began the season unimpressively but finished strong in compiling a 3-4-4 record and won Carolina's only individual championship in the conference tournament.

McGEHEE, Barnes, regular 147-pounder for the last two years, was the only member of the team to see action in all of the Tar Heel's 10 matches. Pete began the season very impressively by scoring four straight victories, three of them on falls, but thereafter ran into stiff competition and was able to win only one more match and finished fourth in the tournament.

177-pounder Miles Gregory, who saw limited action during the year because of a heavy scholastic load, nevertheless proved to be the backbone of the team in winning four of six matches and placing second in his class in the tournament finals.

LAURELS FOR the NCAA tournament, which will produce the finest collegiate wrestling in this country, will be closely contested by such powerful teams as Oklahoma A. and M. and the University of Oklahoma from the west; Iowa, Iowa State and Michigan from the Midwest; and Pittsburg in the East. Returning champions who will be strong contenders to repeat last year's performances will be 137-pounder Mike Broderick (Okla. A&M), Joe Solomon, 167-pounder from Pittsburg, and Ned Blair (Navy) at the 191-pound class.

Athlete Of The Week!

Keller's 15 Points High Spot Of Game; Sutton, Reed Sharp

Ken Keller has been selected "Athlete of the Week" by The Daily Tar Heel sports staff for his outstanding performance in the Blue-White game Saturday.

Blue halfback Ed Sutton, who got off some sparkling runs, and David Reed, who quarterbacked the Blue team to its 23-6 victory, pushed Keller for the honor.

Showing his old form of two seasons ago, the rising senior continually broke through the White forward wall for sizable gains. From scrimmage the 175-pound halfback gained 70 yards in nine tries for a 7.7 average.

The 5'-10" Salina, Pa., product scored 15 of the Blues' 23 points. He returned a kickoff 70 yards for one touchdown, and scampered 35 on a pitchout from Reed for another. He also made three conversions.

KELLER SCORED the Blues' first two touchdowns in the first quarter following a safety by his team.

Among the crowd at the game were several pro coaches. One in particular, Buster Ramsey, Detroit Lions backfield coach, stated that he was greatly impressed with the play of Keller.

Charlie Justice Speaks At UNC Monogram Meet

Charlie Justice will discuss some of his experiences on the gridiron at the Monogram Club's meeting Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in the Club Room.

The former Carolina great will relate the highlights of his career with the Washington Redskins as well as tell of his UNC days.

All members have been asked to be present by club president, Wilbur Jones, who stated that a business meeting will precede the talk by Justice. There will be a review of the Blue-White game project, and discussion of the Valkyries sing entry and the orphans party, which is coming up in about two weeks.

In The Majors!

Yankees Again Loaded With Top-Notch Talent

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 22. (AP)—On the surface Casey Stengel appears happy, carefree and confident of resorting the New York Yankees to their former lofty perch. But diligent and patient listening to this master of the double talk creates a different impression—that the New York leader realizes he has some perplexing problems confronting him this season.

Just listen to Casey and see what you think.

"I've got 22 pitchers in this here camp," he started out, "but I can't name you but three that I figure will start during the regular season. They would be Ford (Whitey), Grim (Bob) and Turley (Bob). The two bonus boys I got must stay with us (Frank Leja, first baseman from Holyoke, Mass., and Tom Carroll, shortstop from Notre Dame). They take up two places.

"In two years I lost two of my best pitchers, Raschi (Vic) and Reynolds (Allie). This Grim you might say made up for Raschi last year. He won 20. Now we make a trade with Baltimore and get me this Turley. If he goes as good as he should he might make up for Reynolds. Right now I haven't decided on a fourth pitcher. This Larsen (Don) hasn't pitched yet. He's got some arm trouble. Lopat (Eddie) is my fifth pitcher.

"We also got Sain (Johnny), Konstanty (Jim), Byrne (Tommy) and Morgan (Tom). Now there's a couple of youngsters I like . . . Sturdivant (Tom), who has good control and knows how to pitch and Kucks (John) whose got a good fast ball and curve. That's pretty good pitching but this Cleveland team, with a bunch of experienced pitchers, now have this other feller (minor league strikeout king Herb Score). That could be rough.

"No club has got five outfielders as good as the five I have (Mickey) Mantle, Irv Noren, Hank Bauer, Enos Slaughter and Bob Cerv. Some of the other clubs might think they have but they haven't.

"I got a good infield but I wish we had Billy Martin (now in the army) back. I got a lot of first basemen (Bill Skowron, Joe Collins, Ed Robinson, Dick Kryhoski and Leja). Skowron, who hit around .340 in his rookie year, gets first call. Collins can play first or the outfield if I need him there. The others can pinch hit.

Tuxedos For Rent

Varley's Men's Shop

Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.

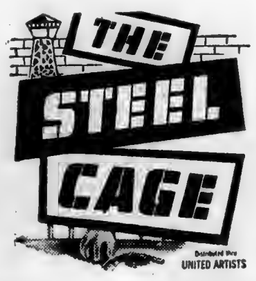
BOB and MONK of TOWN & CAMPUS SALUTE

Ken Keller

Ken, a rising senior, gave notice last Saturday in the Blue-White game that he would be a big cog in Coach George Barclay's football machine next year. He got off some sparkling runs and had an average of 7.7 yards per carry. Keller scored 15 of the Blues' 23 points.

We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house

We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.

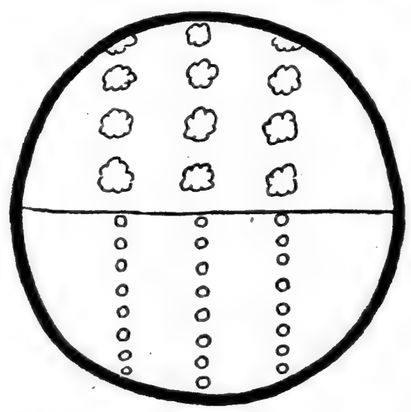


TOWN & CAMPUS

Starring:
James MASON
Michael RENNIE

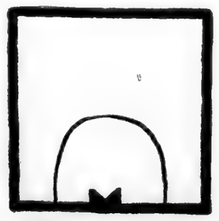
TODAY ONLY

VARSITY



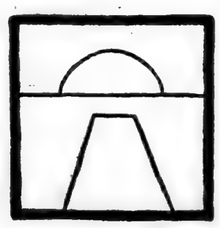
STARRING
* Paul Kelly
* Maureen O'Sullivan
JOHN RIELAND
WALTER SLEZAK

LATE SHOW SATURDAY
SUNDAY-MONDAY



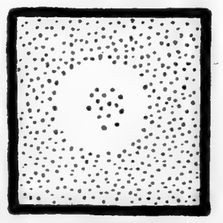
LUCKY DROODLES! LOADS OF LAUGHS!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below:

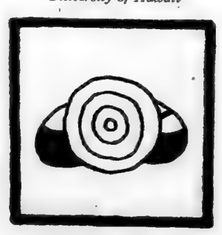


"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

SMALL GIRL SKIPPING ROPE OUTSIDE WINDOW
Pierre Midol-Monnet
Lehigh University



LAST SUNSET SEEN BY PIRATE WALKING PLANK
Ernest Gorospe
University of Hawaii



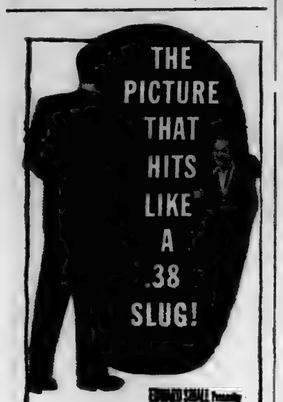
STUDENTS!
EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price

AERIAL VIEW OF CUSTER'S LAST STAND
Robert L. Wright
University of Virginia

FAT MAN AND FAT LADY BEHIND BEACH UMBRELLA
Judy Gendreau
Marquette University



NO MATTER WHERE YOU ARE, you'll get more pleasure from your cigarette if it's a Lucky Strike. That's the point of the Droodle above, titled: Three deep-sea divers enjoying Luckies. You get deep-down smoking enjoyment from Luckies because they taste better. Why do they taste better? That's easy to fathom. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, when it's light-up time, light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER...Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!

©A. T. Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

UP MEETING

There will be a "very important" meeting of all University Party candidates today at 4 p.m. in the APO room, Graham Memorial.

EDWARD SMALL Presents

NEW YORK CONFIDENTIAL

Suggested by the sensational best-seller!

STARRING BRODERICK CRAWFORD · RICHARD CONTE · MARILYN MAXWELL

ANNE BANCROFT · J. CARROL NAISH

Produced by CLARENCE GREENE

NOW PLAYING

Carolina

Saturday Stranger Scheduled

For their next production, scheduled March 30-April 3, the Carolina Playmakers will present a new play, Saturday Stranger, by a graduate student in the UNC Department of Dramatic Art.

Joseph Rosenberg, Chapel Hill, also wrote Friends, a one-act play which was produced by the Playmakers earlier this year.

The young playwright received his A.B. and M.A. degrees in English from the University of Wisconsin, Saturday Stranger was written this years as his thesis play.

Cast in the production, which will be directed by James Riley, of the Playmakers staff, are Martha Dow, Wellesley Hill, Mass.; June Eschweiler, Parma, Ohio; Len Bullock, Ayden; Harvey Whetstone, Des Plaines, Ill.; Gene Overbeck, Fayetteville, and Bobbie Lee Moretz, Elizabethton, Tenn.

Christian Moe, New York, will be stage manager and sets will be designed by Donald Treat, Chapel Hill. Costumes will be by Helen Patton, Chicago, Ill.

Group Of UNC Students Attend Fifth Annual Television Seminar

A group of students majoring in radio and television here are shown above as they prepared to depart recently to attend the fifth annual Television Seminar which was held at WAAM in Baltimore, Md. Some of the students making the trip were, left to right, Donald Patterson, Robert Hice, Paul McCauley Jr., Miss Marianne Thomas, David Setzer, Hugh Downing, Jarvis Latham, Robert Carswell, Miss Margaret Bernard, Robert Churchill, William Branch and Edward Sloan Jr.

—To Revamp Council—

Bill Would Give 3 New Appeal Rights

The bill recently passed by the student Legislature will, if favored by the student body in March 29 elections, give those convicted of offenses in UNC honor courts new rights of appeal.

The bill would change the make-up of the Student Council so as to give students three new rights. Previously The Daily Tar Heel reported the bill would change the Honor Councils.

The bill was introduced by David Reid (SP) after the Judicial Problems Study Commission had recommended it.

The three new rights of appeal, which entitle the accused to a retrial, may be used:

(1) If the conviction was based on insufficient evidence:

(2) If the penalty was unusual or unjust, and

(3) The right to retrial by the Student Council on the submission of new and pertinent evidence by the accused.

Wednesday's WUNC

7:00 Adventures of Clara Chuff
7:15 Music in the Air
7:30 French Press Review
7:45 Cosmopolitan Interview, with John Riebel
8:00 BBC Drama: "Treasure Island"
9:00 Adventures in Song
9:30 Britain and the Tide of World Affairs
10:00 Local, State and National News, Followed by Program Resume
10:15 Evening Masterwork

STUDENTS!

More often than not there's room for you in the

G.M. POOL ROOM

Especially at
10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
5-7 p.m.
9-11 p.m.

Covering The Campus

Daniel Vann III, sophomore from Greenville, S. C., was elected president of the local Baptist Student by acclamation during an executive session at the weekly Supper Forum meeting last Sunday.

Vann has served as acting publicity director and editor of the Christian Student, the publication of the UNC group, during his two years on the executive council.

Before entering the University, Vann studied at Furman University, where he performed with the Greenville Symphony Orchestra and the Furman Chamber Players. He studied in the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University, where he was awarded the Medill Award trophy for feature writing.

He has worked on the staff of The Daily Tar Heel, written for the Carolina Quarterly and served as counselor for Orientation and YMCA Freshman Camp here. He is a member of the Dialectic Literary Society.

Vann, a European History major, plans to study in graduate school and a seminary upon graduation before entering Baptist educational administration.

★

Tryouts for the coming Sound and Fury production will continue through today and tomorrow. They are held at 7 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

★

All returning coeds who are interested in taking part in the Women's Orientation Program as student advisors may get applications from their house presidents. The applications should be returned to house presidents before Friday.

★

S. G. Khaliq, cultural and educational attache from the Embassy of Pakistan in Washington, D. C., will appear tonight at 7:30 on the Cosmopolitan Interview program on radio station WUNC, 91.5 on FM radio dials. Khaliq has been visiting UNC this week as part of his responsibility of working with the more than 250 students from Pakistan who are studying in the United States. He will discuss some of his observations on education in the U. S. as well as describe his work as a cultural and educational attache on tonight's program.

★

T. E. Gilmer Jr. will speak on "The Solar Battery," and Dr. E. D. Palmatier will speak on "The Anomalous Scattering of Mu-Mesons" at the Physics Colloquium today at 4:30 p.m. in 250 Phillips Hall.

★

"Let's all go to the Tennis Ball" will be the theme of this year's Tennis Ball. The dance and parade, sponsored for the first time last year by the Women's Residence Council and Interdormitory Council, will be held April 22.

Music for the affair will be furnished by Role Cole and his orchestra. According to the event's chairman, Ted Kemp of the IDC, the whole campus is invited to participate in both the dance and the parade.

The dance, complete with refreshments, will be free to the campus, courtesy of the IDC. It will be held on the tennis courts and will feature a cabaret style setup.

Working in conjunction with the IDC in the event will be the Women's Residence Council and the Independent Women's Council.

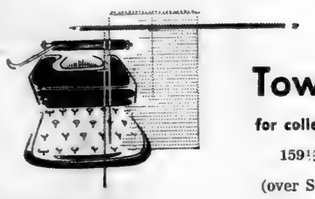
A prize will be awarded to the parade entry which best depicts the theme "Lets all go to the Tennis Ball." Last year's prize for the outstanding entry in the afternoon parade, went to the Pi Phis.

Ruth Jones of the Women's Residence Council will serve as assistant chairman along with Kemp.

★

American graduate students may apply for five fellowships to study in Spain, announced Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education recently.

The awards, given by a private donor, are administered by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th, New York City. Closing date for application for the 1955-56 academic year is May 1.



The eligibility requirements for the fellowships are: a bachelor's degree; demonstrated academic ability and capacity for independent study or research; a plan for advanced study at a Spanish University for research; a good knowledge of Spanish; good moral character, personality and adaptability; good health, and ability to provide for any dependents.

Applications may be obtained from the U. S. department of the Institute of International Education.

PERSONAL TYPING

New Classes Begin March 28

For inormation, call new number, 9-2681

Town Classes

for college men and women

159½ E. Franklin St.

(over Sutton's Drug Store)

IN FULL BLOOM

THE EARLY AZALEAS, LATE CAMELLIAS, AND A HOST OF BEAUTIFUL SPRING FLOWERS ARE IN FULL BLOOM IN THE GARDENS OF

HISTORIC ORTON PLANTATION

Near Wilmington

THE SPECTACULAR SHOW OF AZALEAS WILL LAST UNTIL AFTER EASTER.

Fine Plants May Be Purchased at the Nursery

IF YOU LIKE

SCIENCE FICTION

If you get a kick out of being frightened by men from Mars, you'll enjoy a treasure-hunt in the Intimate Bookshop.

Used Paper-Backs
3 for 25c
Swell New Novels
$1.00
Recent Anthologies
$2.95 and up

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

FILTER TIP TAREYTON

Gives You The True Tobacco Taste You've Been Looking For!

PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Y Executive Coming To Carolina Tomorrow

Maynard Catchings, associate executive of the National Student Council of the YMCA, will be on the campus tomorrow and riday.

Catchings is responsible for interracial and intercultural relations of the YMCA. He has conducted a survey among colleges on the desegregation question as it applies to higher education, and particularly to church-related colleges.

The YM leader was born in Houston, Texas. After graduation from Prairie View College and a period of teaching, he received the B.D. and M.A. degrees at Howard University in Washington, D. C. He did further graduate work in the sociology of religion at the University of Chicago. From 1942 to 1944 he was Student YMCA Secretary in the Southern Region. From 1945 to 1947 he was a member of the faculty and administration of the Social Science Institute at Fiske University in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1947 Catchings was called to the pastorate of the Plymouth Congregational Church in Washington, D. C. where he has served to the present time. While in Washington he has been instructor at Howard University, chairman of the Commission on Community Life of the Washington Federation of Churches and a member of the Board of Trustees of United Community Services and of the District of the District of Columbia Board of Public Welfare. He has been on the Executive Committee of the Fellowship of Southern Churchmen and is now on the Executive Council of Christian Action. In the summer of 1950 he served as associate director of the Christian International Work Camp in Chambon, France.

From the time of the first intercollegiate conference of student YMCAs in 1877, the work of the group with college students has been interracial. The National Student Council of the YM is interracial in its composition and staff.

While the YMCA leader is here he will meet with Dr. Guy Johnson of the sociology department, meet with members of the Residence Council and the student government, have dinner with YM-YWCA leaders, meet with Director of Student Activities Roy Holsten and attend a luncheon meeting with the student chaplains.

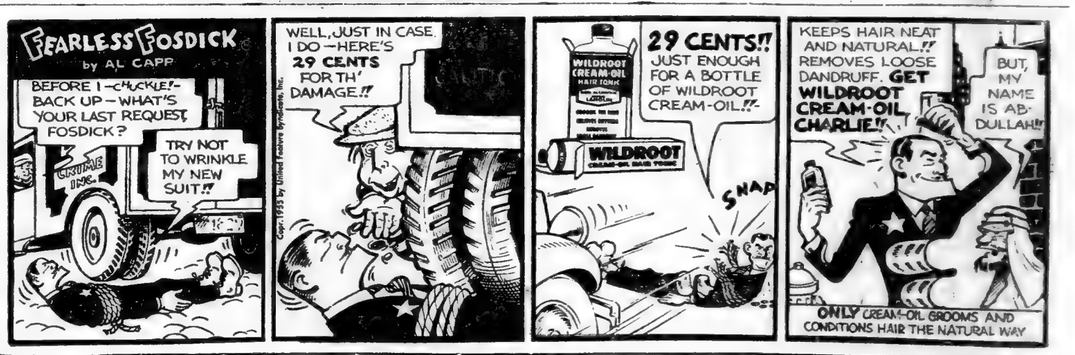
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Stupid
6. Organized military body
11. Custom
12. A German submarine (hyphenated)
13. Semblance
14. Coronet
15. Thus
16. Man's nickname
18. Russian village
19. Remnant
21. Ridge of sand or rock just under water
24. Erbium (sym.)
25. Placed
27. Stylish (slang)
29. The largest ocean
31. Hurled
33. Float
36. Gold (Her.)
37. Pay attention
39. Bind
40. Narrow inlet (geol.)
42. Cutting tool
44. South America (abbr.)
45. Fingered
48. Manorial courts
50. Funeral song
51. Weird
52. Grasslike plant
53. Spectacles (shortened)

DOWN
1. A shaping tool
2. Title of a novel by Helen Hunt Jackson
3. Arabian garment
4. Mark
5. Guide
6. Slice
7. Sash (Jap.)
8. Wander
9. Wall of a hollow organ (Biol.)
10. Star-studded
17. Resolves
20. Slopes
22. Sprite
23. Exhibition
26. Run at top speed
28. Begone!
30. Letter C
31. A kind of light (obs.)
32. Bright-colored bird
34. Pugilistic (colloq.)
35. Plagues
38. Valleys (poetic)
41. Voted "yes"
43. Cry
46. Ovum (Biol.)
47. Coloring agent
49. Before

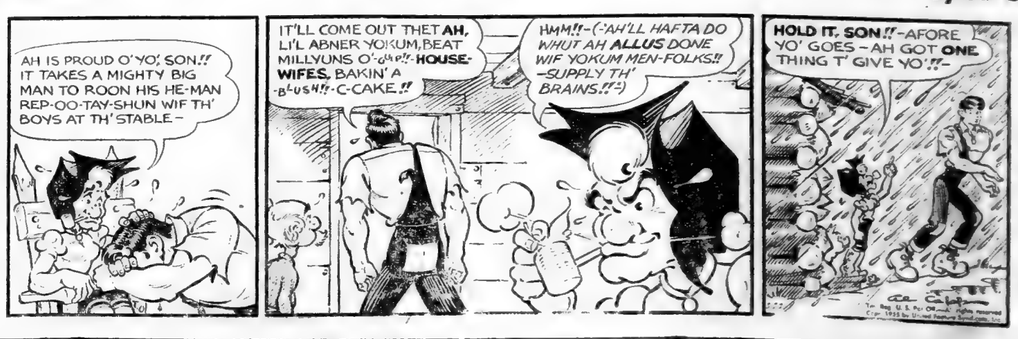
1	2	3	4	5	■	6	7	8	9	10
11					■	12
13					■	14
15			■	16		17	■	■	18
19		20	■	21		22	23	■	24
25			26	■	27			28
■	■	29		30					■	■
31	32						33		34	35
36		■	37				38	■	39
40		41	■	■	42		43	■	44
45			46	47	■	48		49
50					■	51
52					■	53

S	E	A	T	■	E	L	B	A	■	■	■	■	■	■
■	E	R	N	E	■	B	O	A	Z	■	■	■	■	■
A	V	O	I	D	■	B	A	R	O	N	■	■	■	■
R	E	D	■	■	S	E	N	O	R	A	■	■	■	■
I	R	E	L	A	N	D	■	N	E	B	■	■	■	■
A	N	■	I	C	Y	■	L	E	S	S	■	■	■	■
■	■	G	E	E	■	H	O	T	■	■	■	■	■	■
G	O	A	D	■	S	O	U	■	S	O	■	■	■	■
O	W	L	■	B	O	T	T	L	E	S	■	■	■	■
S	N	I	P	E	S	■	■	A	V	A	■	■	■	■
H	E	L	E	N	■	R	I	V	E	R	■	■	■	■
■	R	E	A	D	■	O	V	E	R	■	■	■	■	■
S	E	T	S	■	B	A	S	E	■	■	■	■	■	■



Yesterday's Answer

CLASSIFIEDS



WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

WANT TO RENT: UNFURNISHED room, private entrance desired. Call Ed Lipman at 91011 from 5-7 p.m. (1-9094-1)

COLLEGE MEN: EARN $75 PER week during summer (part-time work during college term also available). This is your invitation to attend a group interview at Gardner Hall—Room 105, 2:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24. Please be on time.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U N C LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Cloudier and warmer today, with expected high of 65.

The Daily Tar Heel

VOL. LVII NO. 124 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

1970

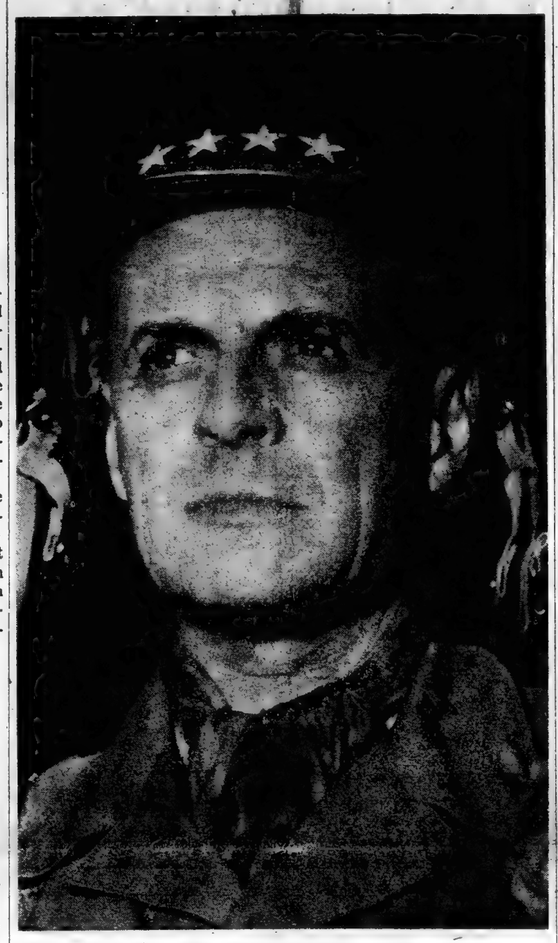
1970, says the editor, is just 15 years away. And there's a tidal wave of students coming toward us. See editorial, p. 2.

Legislature's Appropriations Men Seriously Considering Hiking Tuition Rates For Out-Of-State Students At UNC

Student Insurance Program Set To Go Into Effect In Fall

A student insurance program will go into effect next fall, student body President Tom Creasy said yesterday.

The student insurance policies will be carried with the Pilot Life Insurance Company of North Carolina. The cost per student will be $10.20 for 12 months. According to Creasy, the policy will cover all accidents except those of intercollegiate football. "Within the policy," said Creasy, "there is a $200 surgical rider which will take care of operations."



The student body president said letters will be sent to all parents of UNC students during the summer concerning the policies. If they desire to cover their child they will send the application directly to the company.

Creasy said that the policy will cover a student on his way to school next fall and then for the next twelve months. The policy may be renewed each summer until the student graduates.

Work on the student insurance program was begun last spring by the student government, according to Creasy. He said that administration aid was asked, and an advisory committee was set up. The members of the committee were Dr. Hedgpeth, University physician; Fred Weaver, dean of student affairs; James Williams, personnel officer; Frank Schwentker, Julian Price lecturer in life insurance in the School of Business Administration; Rueben Leonard and Creasy.

These companies made bids during November and December, said Creasy, and their agents were interviewed by the advisory committee. After the committee had studied the bids and finished the interviews it decided upon the Pilot Life Insurance Company to receive the bid. Chancellor Robert House approved the committee's decision, said Creasy.

"I think that this one of the finest additions to the entire set-up of the student body," said President Creasy yesterday. "It is something that we have been in need of for many years. I am very happy that it could be accomplished this year," concluded Creasy.

Ridgway Talks Here Monday

Gen. Matthew Ridgway, above, Army Chief of Staff, will speak at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Memorial Hall. General Ridgway is expected to talk on U. S. foreign policy, according to Bob Young, vice-president of the Carolina Forum, student organization which is bringing Ridgway to the campus. Chancellor Robert B. House will introduce the general. After General Ridgway's speech, a reception will be held in the main lounge of Graham Memorial.

No Action Taken Yet, But Discussion Slated Today

By CHUCK HAUSER
Special to The Daily Tar Heel

RALEIGH, March 23 (AP)—The General Assembly's joint Appropriations subcommittee today took under serious consideration the question of raising tuition charges for out-of-state students at the University of North Carolina.

Newspapermen covered the meeting, but they were operating under an agreement that they would not print the names of committee members in their accounts of the day's business.

The subcommittee took no action on tuition fees today, but they were scheduled to discuss the matter again tomorrow afternoon. Whatever decision they reach must be passed on by the full committee, and then by the Senate and House.

A prominent representative "reluctantly" brought up the question of whether out-of-state students should pay more of their proportionate share of education at the University.

He told the subcommittee that non-North Carolinians attending state-supported schools here exceed Tar Heels going to other states' public institutions by 1,937 students.

Two representatives went on record as favoring an increase in tuition to the point where "out-of-state students are paying their own way." According to figures made available to the group, this would increase tuition for non-Tar Heel students in the University by $310 per year, and in the Medical School by as much as $1,424.

"If we increase the fees," one legislator asked the subcommittee, "will that cut down enrollment? In other words, what will the traffic bear?"

Another member commented: "It's our duty to make the price of higher education reasonable for the boys and girls here in North Carolina: we don't have the same obligation for students from outside the state."

Out-of-state license tags on student-owned cars in Chapel Hill had caught the eyes of at least two members of the committee, and they took them as an indication of prosperity among members of Chapel Hill's non-Tar Heel community.

One representative said he recently visited a state-supported school in South Carolina, 'and all I saw were South Carolina license plates on the cars. They're taking care of their own children down there, and we should take care of ours."

Group Wants To Cut Library By $25,000

RALEIGH, March 23 (AP)—The Joint Appropriations subcommittee today approved a request by the University of North Carolina to create a new $12,000 a year post of business officer and treasurer for the Consolidated University.

The subcommittee also cut $25,000 a year from the $100,000 a year library budget of the Chapel Hill branch of the University for the next biennium.

In its lengthy afternoon meeting, the subcommittee covered all the budget items for the Consolidated University administration and the entire operation of the University at Chapel Hill. For the most part, it ignored the extensive list of requests which the University made over the recommendations of the Advisory Budget Commission.

The appropriation for the University Library created a lively debate in the subcommittee before its members cut the item $25,000 a year on a standing 11 to 8 vote.

One senator challenged the University's necessity for buying $125-000 worth of books and periodical publications "every year," while another told the group that the University had been "starving" on its library appropriations for past years.

The legislator who made the motion to grant the University's request for the new $12,000 position told the subcommittee he had received "a definite commitment from University officials that they would hire someone from the outside for that job, so no one could say he was playing favorites among the three branches."

The same legislator told the group that the creation of the position would probably save the University a great deal of money in the future. At his insistence, the committee also approved a $3,000 item for the official's secretary.

Press representatives attended the meeting under terms of an agreement that they would not print names of committe members in their reports of committee action.

MUNTZING AND FOWLER:

Two Prexy Candidates Take Stands On Negro Question

Two of the three student body presidential candidates yesterday took stands on the question of segregation.

Manning Muntzing, Student Party candidate, and Independent Don Fowler were contacted yesterday. University Party candidate Ed McCurry could not be found.

The first statement, that of Muntzing, went like this:

"The Supreme Court has ruled on the issue of segregation, and it is now the law of the land. It is a matter which is delicate in nature and one which must be handled with complete diplomacy, so that as few hard feelings as possible will be aroused.

"At the moment, to my knowledge, it is not a problem which faces the University; this is not to say that it will not be a problem.

"At such time as this matter and the admission of Negroes does arise, I hope that the student body and student government will work together to meet the situation, and above all express its opinions on this measure."

Questioned on the matter of segregating Negro students in Steele Dormitory, candidate Muntzing replied that it was a policy laid down by University officials who were more familiar with the matter than he.

Independent candidate Don Fowler had this to say:

"The Supreme Court has abolished segregation. As American citizens we must take cognizance of this fact. However, a question with the broad and sweeping sociological implications of segregation must be studied carefully before any drastic action is taken. As mature students of this University, we must give this problem a great deal of consideration and strive for a solution which will benefit all the citizens of North Carolina."

Fowler's statement on the segregation of Negro graduate students in Steele Dormitory was this:

"It is my personal belief that the problem can be solved only by the housing authorities of the University administration.

"I am confident that the decision reached was made in the best interests of all parties concerned."

the Ballot Box

Campaigning works campaigners down to a frazzle, especially when the campaign is in its last week. Elections will be held Tuesday. Candidates' tempers are short. They have to work, and have very little time in which to work.

Independent presidential Candidate Don Fowler was asked yesterday how he liked the correction run in this column. (A previous day's headline incorrectly said he wanted to "Leave Frats to IDC," rather than to the Interfraternity Council.)

"Mighty small type," was Fowler's reply.

* * *

Charles Ackerman, who quit a job as University Party publicity chairman to help Fowler because "I want to stand behind a student who is a campus man, a gentleman who respects all groups equally and a leader who will associate himself with the ideas of the students, not with a particular segment of the University," has entered the front page before.

In November, Ackerman started a study of the "distinct line of division between fraternities and dormitories." Ackerman said he and other members of his committee (Ackerman announced one member's name before he notified the member) would investigate the "general thought" that the University Party is dominted by fraternity men.

The Wednesday afternoon box score stands like this:

Independent Candidate Fowler has made three statements, ranging from disagreeing with another candidate to letting the fraternities alone to favoring a proposed amendment to the student Constitution.

Student Party Candidate Manning Muntzing has five statements to his credit. They include fears that student-owned autos may be banned here, need for return of vending machine profits to dormitories, awareness that the UNC Band's in bad shape and notice that students' dates' ticket prices are too high and something should be done about them.

University Party Candidate Ed McCurry has made five statements so far, ranging from changes in cut system, closer liason between students and government and closer work with dormitory residents.—F. P.

McIver Dance Schedule

McIver Dormitory will hold its annual spring dance tomorrow night from 9 until midnight in the dorm's parlor.

The dance will be semi-formal for men, and it will be open to all campus men.

The highlight of the evening will be the presentation of McIver's queen and her two attendants during the intermission. The queen will be crowned by Chancellor Robert B. House. The identities of the queen and her attendants, who were elected by a vote of the dorm's residents, will not be revealed until the dance.

The music for the dance will be provided by a local combo.

Fowler Wants 'Junior Partnership' To Prevail

"I want to see student government elevated to a genuine junior partnership with the University administration," said independent presidential candidate Don Fowler in a statement issued yesterday.

Fowler said, "This is not necessarily an idle wish to be talked about during a political campaign; the realization of the junior partnership idea can, with mature student effort, be attained in a year's time."

He attacked the "lack of effectiveness' of the student government "in dealing with the University administration' as one of its weakest aspects."

"How often," asked Fowler in his statement, "do we see the Legislature pass a resolution and nothing happens?"

The independent candidate said, "We have yet to see South Building change its policy on the strength of a resolution or bill passed by the student Legislature."

Fowler said student government will gain the "respect and council" of the administration "only when its leaders become more aware of their responsibility to the University community." He said that would call for a "reduced emphasis on partisan politics and greater attention to the needs of the student body."

Prexy Candidate Fowler & Staff, Hard At Work

Independent Candidate Don Fowler, who will run for student body president next Tuesday, is shown with campaign workers. Left to right, around Fowler, they are Gordon Forester, campaign manager; Campaign Advisors Miss Anne Wrenn, Charles Ackerman, Jim Fountain and Miss Gerry Snider. Fountain was yesterday appointed campaign coordinator.—R. B. Henley photo.

Homesley In Race For Cheerleader

A fourth candidate for head cheerleader announced yesterday that he intends to raise hell next year if elected.

T. C. "Country" Homesley, junior accounting major from Cherryville, is running as a write-in candidate under the slogan, "UNC Needs T. C."

Homesley, who has never run for any office before, said, "I'm no politician whatsoever. But 'If Strom can do it, so can I-' "

Political observers have commented that this is the first write-in campaign ever to be carried on at UNC.

Howard Fogleman, campaign manager, and Layton McCurdy, advisor, announced that Homesley's headquarters will be in the Y.

"I decided to run mostly because I thought spirit was missing in the elections, and because candidates were running for the name of the office rather than for what they could do for the school spirit," Homesley said.

Homesley also observed that spirit has nt been sufficiently behind the teams. "I'm tired of just cheering for a winner and kicking a loser."

He said he thinks sports are a vital part of school spirit. "And it's really fallen down lately. Now's the time to build it up because the teams are building."

Fogleman remarked, "I am glad that T. C. is answering the call of the students for more school spirit. It's a pleasure to work with such an enthusiastic personality."

McCurdy added, "I sure am glad to see old T. C. run for head cheerleader. I believe that he is a great man for the job. He may not be an athlete . . . And I want the students to remember to write in 'T. C.' "

Fowler Names Fountain To Campaign Post

Jim Fountain was yesterday named by Don Fowler, independent presidential candidate, as his personal campaign coordinator.

Fountain, a senior from Wilmington, is a member of Chi Psi and present head cheerleader.

"I consider it a privilege to offer my support to Don Fowler, whom I consider the most qualified candidate for the presidency," said Fountain in a statement made yesterday.

"Don's qualifications speak for themselves," he continued. "As a student interested in furthering first of all the name of Carolina, I consider it my duty to support Don. As campaign coordinator, I intend to devote my time and efforts to an effective and successful presentation of Don's record and ability to the student body," he said.

Legislature Tonight

The student Legislature will meet tonight at 7:30.

No new bills are expected to be voted upon.

UP Candidates Hear Exum And McCurry

University Party candidates met yesterday to hear a pep talk from campaign coordinator Jim Exum and an explanation of the party platform from presidential candidate Ed McCurry.

Exum emhasized that door-to-door campaigning was the only way to get votes.

Exum announced that campaign expense accounts must be in to the Elections Board by 6 p.m. Monday.

Give Students Part Of Profits, Says McCurry

"I strongly feel that the student body at large shoult get at least 25 percent of the campus store fund," said University Party presidential candidate Ed McCurry in a statement issued yesterday.

McCurry explained that the campus store fund is taken from vending machines, the Book Exchange, the Y, the Scuttlebutt and other profit organizations.

He said the 25 percent would amount to about $10,000 a year which "I feel the Campus Store Committee might give to the students if presented with a constructive program on which the money would be spent."

As possible programs to be undertaken, the UP candidate suggested the University Band, a stronger high school visitation program and a high school weekend here for outstanding students.

1970 Is Just 15 Years Away

Now that the General Assembly has wisely flushed the "whammy bill," the venerable law-givers can look to more important matters. One of them, we suggest, is the University.

We wouldn't have the temerity to ask the senators and fepresentatives to spend the time thinking about education that they spent worrying about the giant moral issue involved in techniques of catching speeders.

But, offhand and by the by, we refer them to a paragraph from President Gordon Gray's State of the University speech.

> Credible current estimates indicate that by 1970 there will be about 100 percent more young North Carolinians enrolled in college than at the present. It is not possible now to say just how many of these students will be enrolled in the University. Decisions not yet made and factors not yet known will determine the result for any given institution. Should we receive our pro rata share, then we will have at that time in the neighborhood of 25,000 students. 1970 is just 15 years away.

We seriously wonder if anybody has told the gentlemen assembled in Raleigh that they are likely to have 12,500 extra students kicking around in 15 years. Or if anybody has added up for them just how many millions of dollars in faculty members, books, buildings and services this is likely to cost.

North Carolina has heard a good deal lately, in full page ads and radio commercials, about the "crippling effect" soft drink and cigarette taxes would have on our economy.

Well, gentlement, here's a crippling effect for you: 12,500 students with no place to go. The University isn't budgeted for newspaper ads or lobbyists or you'd be hearing that figure more often.

When you accept that tall, cool one from the tobacco lobbyist from down east tonight, roll that figure around in your mind: 12,500 students. And 1970 is just 15 years away.

Regrets

The Daily Tar Heel, The Weil Lectures—and, we are sure, the whole University community—regret that Mr. Truman will not be able to come here.

Mr. Truman's experiences in American democracy were forged in problems and crises whose gravity would have challenged the capacity of any statesman. His knowledge of American government and citizenship is intimate and the former President has, in the past, demonstrated a talent for forceful oratory. All in all, we are sure the Weil Lectures, their dignity and aim, would have been enhanced by having Mr. Truman on the lists.

We hope he means what he says—that this is a raincheck, not a cancellation. With that hope in mind, taking into balance the importance of getting another President's memoirs into print, we will be glad to wait another year.

Abolition Movement

There is, as we have been saying, a great deal of foam and very little beer in this season's political campaign; there are three presidential candidates, all running so scared they are noncommittal beyond being opposed to Saturday classes, and for "standing up for the students" and "achievement through cooperation", whatever that may mean.

We find one platform plank, however, with which The Daily Tar Heel is in full agreement. In a last-ditch effort to avoid the Cataclysm of Cobb Parking Lot, we join the multitude of political candidates who have indicated their opposition to the Trustees "abolishing" student cars. We trust the campus cops will be alert to grab the first Trustee they see slinking down Cameron Avenue with a sledge-hammer concealed beneath his vest.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley
Society Editor — Susan Andes
Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Is A Third Party Going To Be Formed?

Louis Kraar

AFTER SO much talk about freedom of the student press and this newspaper, one bebins to wonder if Carolina isn't unique.

At other campuses there have been many recent moves to curb student freedom on publications, so many in fact that the accounts are sometimes frightening.

At Cornell the editors of the student magazine were censured by the faculty because of the "tone of the recent issue." From Vanderbilt comes news that the student editor of the paper was ousted by the faculty for printing material that exhibited "editorial irresponsibility."

For students to sit in classrooms and learn about a system of government, of living, and then not be able to practice it is pure hypocrisy. Here at Carolina the publications are free, but to have them any other way would be unnatural.

Fortunately, there have been few broaches of student responsibility, and this perhaps explains the ideal freedom that the University publications enjoy.

★

FROM HANES High School in Winston-Salem comes editorial advice for those afflicted with the malady caused by the vernal equinox.

Spring is the time, according to the Hanes people, when "young men will turn to the ancient and glorious art of lovemaking." However, the high school paper warns its readers that "ladies and gentleman do not lie under the trees during lunch periods acting like Psitta love birds, nor would they walk the halls with their arms about each other like a pair of Grecian wrestlers."

★

POLITICAL TALK, and there is much of it, has mentioned the chance of a third campus political party being formed.

Most say that many of the Fowler backers are considering the formation of a third party—after the election, of course.

However, for all practical purses, the Fowler followers have formed a third party in supporting their "independent" candidate. From the Student Party men like Dave Reid and Gordon Forester have joined Fowler, and from the University Party there are supporters.

If this isn't a third party, in effect, what is it?

★

WHILE RIDES to Hogan's are becoming more frequent here at Carolina, Miami students are concerned with a great moral question.

The problem that the Floridians are wrestling with is whether or not the construction of a beach would add to the University of Miami's "reputation of 'Sun-Tan U'."

A poll revealed that students were concerned about the "country club atmosphere" that the beach would probably bring. One male observed: "I believe the dean of women will be able to work out regulations as to beach attire."

And the dean of women said, "The introduction of a beach on campus is too far in the future to make plans for clothing regulations."

★

THE BILL to revise the make-up of the Student Council would give the campus a real supreme court. This is much-needed.

Currently, the Student Council merely decides whether or not a case may be appealed. If the appeal is granted, the case is tossed back to the court that first tried it.

Under the new setup, the Student Council would try the case itself on appeals, allowing students a chance to present their please before a fresh, and probably less biased, group.

Plans now call for submitting this to the students in the election next week.

'Run For Your Life'

The Egghead Revolution

Days Of The Diplodicus

Ed Yoder

(Synopsis: Perhaps it has been wondered why our account of the Egghead Revolution has undergone this lapse of several months. Just before Christmas our records showed that the Revolution had reached this stage: The Anti-Eggheads were embedded in the Wall Street Canyons; the subterranean rattle beneath the pavement had reached the inclined ear of General Flicker Clambers, who was leading the movement against revolution. The vanguard Revolutionists had come into sight far down the street; they were marching along, singing a song called the "Interacademe," and General Clambers had just protested Fifth Cannons, saying, "We don't want any First and Fifth Cannon Americans." Just as the attack seemed imminent, General Clambers had barked, "Don't fire till you see the pinks of their eyes."

Our account could move that far and no more; for the truth was that only the preceding pages, up to that one, had floated down out of the stratosphere. Meanwhile, we Revolutionary historians have been sitting quietly, reading the suriving fragments of Toynbee and Grote and Gibbon, wondering when another page from the story would drift down out of the skies.

The outline began to take shape, finally, yesterday while a group of us sat laughing at how wrong most Twentieth Century prophets had been. (Their prophecies are all recorded in the half-finished eleventh volume of Toynbee.) Take George Orwell, for instance. 1984: That was to be the year of Big Brother watching you through the screen, of Doublethink and Newspeak, and the supernatural state; of course, Orwell wasn't the only one; there were others, other prophets, and they were wrong—all wrong. We were laughing; and suddenly this charred page flipped down out of the sky. We examined it and—find of all finds—it was a page from the diary of Ialda Nosnevets himself. The writing was dim, but the words, after some chemical treatment, began to take shape:

"I am on a commuters train, bound for Wall Street. Word has come (at the Cambridge Station) that the Revolution has started. It really jolts me when I think back to my words during the 1952 coup—"Eggheads" of the world unite; you have nothing to lose but your yolks"—and then consider that the movement has come to open revolution.

"Just ahead of me I can see a few of the straggiers—probably just in from California—and the New York skyline is visible. The notes of the "Interacademe" are dim, but I can hear them.

(One half hour later) "We are in the Bronx, headed still for Wall Street. The sound of battle deafens one, even here, far beneath the pavement. The subway, as we dip under the earth is deserted. Almost like the last day. Looks like a good place to sign this off for the time being. Remle Sivad has come to escort me to the front lines."

That was all the first page said, and it seemed we were doomed to wait in ignorance indefinitely—as we had during these long months—for the final end to it all.

Just as we were giving up hope and the sun began to go down and darkness gathered, the companion piece floated down. We grabbed it with unsteady hands and began to read:

". . . I am reminded of pictures I have seen of the days of the Diplodicus, except that all the verdance has vaporized and nothing remains except the Gorgon's Head image of the monster, roaming up and down on an empty desert. There is no sunlight, only the great black cloud stretching from horizon to horizon; our eyes do not filter the light properly since the sight-taking flashes of unbelievable light came; we see things ridged with a brownish dimness and have the sensation that endless pinwheels spin in front of our eyes.

"We? I should say I—and I alone. Remle Sivad is here in the shelter with me; but he is failing from radiation, the very radiation from which he said enough of us would be survive to be free. We all learn.

"It would be reassuring to hear the sound of another human voice. But perhaps I expect too much; perhaps within minutes there will not be any planet to have voices on—not even my important as its success was, has now lost all purpose; when all is destroyed, Revolutions—even the noble ones—vanish and there is no use. I wonder, still, if those people in the Senate were sane enough to foresee the impact at ground zero.

"But, finally, in the end, we may withdraw into philosophy: The days of man are as grass—and another Bomb is expected any minute. . ."

Euphoria On Wall Street

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON—Senator Homer Capehart's adventures in McCarthyism have enlivened the stock market inquiry but they are a side issue. The main trouble with the inquiry is that like Capehart, it has been dealing with everything but the problems of the market.

There has been no dearth of intelligent and cooperative witnesses. In the main they have proved excellent spokesmen for their own enterprises. Any relation to the over-all problem of public policy with relation to the market has been purely coincidental.

The one witness who undertook to inject a tentative dose of pessimism into current thinking about the market is Capehart's target, Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith. A Harvard professor has long been a fair, if not indeed favorite, target of Congressional inquisitors but Galbraith was so patently well-informed and well-balanced, it seemed for a while that his views would be given great importance.

But Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall preceded Capehart with a "red bias" attack on Galbraith. All this is the essence of McCarthyism. It would appear that the Administration which boasts of turning its back on the old master is still willing to play his tunes.

Galbraith is a sophisticated anti-Communist who is capable of defending himself and will shortly do so in the forum in which he has been attacked. His experience with the investors parallel that of members of the Senate committee. Their mail indicates that a certain euphoria prevails with respect to the market and that the public shows few signs of wanting to stop, look and listen.

YOU Said It

Editor:

Thank-you Note To the Fraternity For Cleaning Up Victory Village:

We want to express our deep appreciation for the beautiful job you did in cleaning up Victory Village. We didn't know it was in such a mess but we can see the improvement and have decided to return the service.

A committee is now being organized in the Village to: (1) Return all "empty" beer cans to the fraternity houses which were left scattered over the Village. (2) Take as our project for next year, the cleaning up of these same fraternity houses.

Thank you again for showing us that this was just what the Village needed.

A Small Delegation of Victory Village Residents

P.S. Seriously, we think this is a wonderful project that the fratetrnity boys have taken, but we would like to see more of the cleaning and less of the beer cans. Any time these boys feel so inclined again, may we suggest they knock on any door and I am sure we can give them a few jobs tht would beautify the Village, such as: racking leaves, trimming brushes, filling in yards with top soil and planting grass.

Our Timid, Contradictory UN Policy

Joseph P. Lash
In The N. Y. Post

It has become fashionable in some Administration circles to defend the United Nations chiefly as a world forum—"the greatest loudspeaker in the world," Ambassador Lodge has called it—for answering the Communists and setting forth our own point of view.

This is an expedient formula. It has an anti-Communist twist and so blunts the criticism of Senator Knowland and evades the hooks of Senator Bricker, probing for pretexts to attack the UN as a superstate; yet it keeps the internationalists quiet.

It is true, of course, that one of the important functions of the UN is to serve as the "town meeting of the world" as the late Senator Vandenburg put it.

But the UN is much more than a town meeting and should be even more important than it is.

With three nations already producing the hydrogen bomb, the achievement of a balance of power provides no safety unless it is followed up by the taming and dispersion of power. This is primarily a job for the UN.

An unprecedented Afro-Asian conference is scheduled to be held in Bandbung, Indonesia, next month. It could well lead to a fatal split in the world between the haves and have-nots, the white and the colored races. The place to head off that split is at the UN, through programs aimed at reducing the gap between the developed and underdeveloped regions of the world.

Both the US and the USSR have now conceded, in words at least, that there is no alternative to coexistence. Even should this become much more fully embodied in the policies of East and West than it is at present, that would not mean the end of the struggle between the two systems for the allegiance of mankind.

But the method of struggle would be that of peaceful competition. If that is the prospect for the next decade, then no arena becomes as important as the UN. It is here that the two systems will have to justify themselves before mankind in terms of which is prepared to do more to promote peace, human rights, self-determination and economic and social progress.

Against this background it might be expected that full support of the UN would more than ever be the keystone of US policy. Unfortunately the approach of this Administration to the UN continues, chiefly because of domestic political pressures, to be capricious, timid and full of contradictions.

SELF-OWNING TREE

Down in Athens, Georgia, there is a tree that owns itself. And, doubtles for that reason and for that reason alone, it has stood firm into a grand old age.

It seems that, early in the 19th century, a Col. William H. Jackson, owner of the land where the tree stands, decided that something special must be done to protect it: it was to big and old and beautiful to risk to the uncertain tempers of uncertain Man. So he got up an inscription, had it engraved on a plague and the plaque firmly set into the base of the tree. It reads like this:

"For and in consideration of the great love I bear this tree and the great desire I have for its protection for all time, I convey entire possession of itself and all land within eight feet on all sides to the tree."—Southern Pines Pilot

On 'Keeping Them Guessing'

Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG—With President Eisenhower's full authority, the British have already sounded the Chinese Communist on a cease-fire deal in the Formosa Strait.

Peking's answer, thus far, hah been a flat, indignant refusal even to consider relinquishing their intention "to liberate Taiwan" in exchange for the offshore islands now occupied by the Chinese Nationalists.

As previously reported in this space, the pattern of Communist preparation to attack the offshore islands is now complete. All competent authorities here, British as well as American, agree that an attack impends this spring, probably some time after Chou Em-ai has made propaganda hay at the Bandung Conference.

A BLUFF IN THE BIG TALK

Judging by every sign that has been given, the Peking leaders still think that the Eisenhower administration will either duck the defense of the off shore islands at the last minute; or, worse still, that the American defense effort will be so gingerly and "limited" that another shattering victory for the Communist cause can be achieved after American prestige has been thoroughly committed.

One cannot blame the Peking leaders, either, for suspecting a bluff in the big talk in Washington. They remember the extraordinary American vacillations and tergiversations that preceded the Asian Munich at Geneva. They recall the Administration's haste to make the weak truce in Korea which is the root of all the present troubles in Asia.

They have followed, no doubt with delighted interest, the vacillations and tergiversations which have also marked the Administration's handling of the problem of Quemoy and the Matsus. And in Peking, furthermore, they are fully aware of the grave weaknesses in the American position.

A-BOMB STORM

There are three of these weaknesses. First, American power in the Pacific at present is grossly inadequate to insure a successful defense of the offshore islands without using nuclear weapons.

Second, this fact has apparently been recognized at last in Washington, judging by the public statements of President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles that tactical atomic bombs are now "precision" weapons, which would normally be used in any military operation. But world public opinion and especially Asian opinion does not recognize the fine distinction between different types of atomic bombs.

The use of any kind of atomic bombs to defend Quemoy and the Matsus will, in the present circumstances, raise a storm in Asia surpassing anything yet seen. One of the Chou En-lai's primary objectives at Bandung will be to insure that such a storm is raised if need be.

Finally, and much the most important, the Western Alliance is split wide open on the issue of the offshore islands. And this split can be fatally dangerous, if atomic bombs are used, as they may well have to be used, to beat off an attack on Quemoy and the Matsus.

HOW MUCH ALLIED SUPPORT?

Communist China's intensive preparations for military action in the Formosa Strait were directly preceded by the long visit to China of the new and more belligerent team that now head the Soviet goevrnment. The Soviets have affirmed their support of China on the Formosa issue. The Sino-Soviet pact still stands.

But if a serious war starts over Quemoy and the Matsus, the United States cannot now count on the support of Britain, where the vital forward bases of the Strategic Air Command are situated. There is even some doubt about the support of Canada, which is the vital key to what passes for the American air defense system. And for these reasons, no one can be quite sure that the Chinese and Soviets do not want a big war on this divisive issue.

If retreat is not intended, on the other hand, then it is essential to convince the Peking leaders that the big talk about the islands is not a bluff like the big talk at the time of Dienbienphu. If the enemy can be dissuaded from attacking, this is the best and probably the onl yway to dissuade them.

STATEMENT OF INTENTIONS

And if the enemy is not dissuaded, it is also desperately necessary to heal the breach in the Western Alliance inso far as this may be possible. Both aims can be attained at once, moreover, by a single simple action. Let the President state American intentions publicly and clearly, about as follows.

"We regard the offshore islands as vital advance positions for an attack on Formosa (which indeed they are. The Peking government has made no secret of its intention to attack Formosa, which America is committed to defend.

"On the other hand, we also recognize that indefinite occupation of these islands by the Formosa government is and will always be a serious cause of international tension. Hence, if we can obtain serious guarantees that the Peking government does not intend to attack Formosa and the Pescadores, we will not assist in the defense of the offshore islands, and we will do everything in our power to persuade the Generalissimo to evacuate his troops.

CLEAR U. S. WARNING

"On the other hand, if this fair and reasonable arrangement cannot be made, we see no reason to surrender vital advance positions when we know very well that an attack on Formosa will follow. In these circumstanes, we shall defend the islands with everything we've got, and we hope our allies will understand our motives."

Such a statement would publicly express the policy which the nation has been pursuing behind the scenes. It would make an electric change, according to the highest British authorities, in the whole situation in London. It would justify the American position before the rest of the world. And it would warn the enemy clearly of what he was getting into, as Secretary Dulles himself used argue the enemy should always be warned, in the old days when he was denouncing the Truman administration for "keeping them guessing."

Indeed the only known objection to this move, which might conceivably save us from the disaster we seem to be drifting into, is that it would make serious trouble in American domestic politics.

Jim Raugh To Hurl Tar Heel Opener Against Tech Today

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

Bill Meade, gymnastics coach, was doing the talking and an interested listener took notes:

"We have about 30 people working out now in the back of the gym. About 12 freshmen are down there, plus a number of sophomores who didn't make last year's team and last year's varsity boys who are coming back.

"This year we may have a freshman team in conference competition, because it is hard for a boy who has had no previous experience to go right out on a varsity team and do well. State, Duke and Carolina are the only schools in the conference now with gymnastic teams and they all want some freshman competition. Maryland had a team, but dropped the sport in 1952.

"I think we'll limit the freshman matches to four events. It takes plenty of time before a fellow can get the strength and confidence it takes on the varsity level, and four events as a freshman should do the trick.

"We have never had an experienced varsity gymnastics team here in the five years gymnastics has been at Carolina. Getting a team used to be just like going into a gym class, picking out 10 guys and moulding a basketball team out of them. High schools around here are picking up the sport now, and with freshman teams too, gymnastics should soon be a top sport in the south.

"Gymnastics is growing all over the country. It is prevalent on the west coast, midwest and around the Philadelphia area. It is a hard sport to get started in a school because coaches, being specialists, are difficult to find; but gymnastics in America is beginning to catch on and even the Europeans are amazed at the swiftness with which we have developed ourselves, especially in Olympics.

"We have an advantage over Europeans in that our teams are usually much younger than theirs. Some European teams average 35 years in age. The Swedish team we had here was an exception, but only five of the Swedes competed in the '52 Olympics. The remainder were national champions. The Russians are by far the best gymnasts in the world, but even they are surprised at our improvement and figure on trouble from us in future Olympic Games."

The Carolina squad began its period of off-season drills Monday. Unlike basketball and football, the team is not limited in time allotted to the practices, and Meade's boys have given many exhibitions in high schools around the state, including Mt. Airy, Charlotte, Alamance Co. schools, Durham, Concord, Wilmington and others. April 5 the team is scheduled for an exhibition at A & T College in Greensboro.

Currently the gymnasts are just experimenting on new tricks for next season's competition. They will continue to do so until Woollen's main floor gets so hot in the afternoon that the "boys' hands get sweaty and they can't hang on," as Meade puts it.

April 8 and 9 Meade will take three of his boys to the National AAU championships at Georgia Tech. Biff Howard, Pete Brumley and Bill Waddill will make the trip. Waddill, a freshman, is rated by Meade as the best rope climber he has ever coached. Howard will compete in the parallel bars and high bar, his specialties, and Brumley will participate in the side-horse and tumbling exercises. Both will see action in the all-around, which is something on the order of the decathlon in track.

Carolina doesn't use the trampoline for a couple of reasons. One, because it has proven fatal here in the past. During the war, before gymnastics caught on at UNC, an unexperienced football player began bouncing on the tramp, bounced off, landed on his head and broke his neck. Now Meade keeps the instrument locked up and brings it out only for exhibitions as a crowd-pleaser. Another reason for its absence in matches is that it is too time-consuming and hardly worth the trouble to coach.

At one time the tramp was taken out of NCAA competition for a 24-hour period. It was reinstated after rules for its use were revised. Participants were formerly allowed one minute to go through their routines, but they would get dizzy and often land off the spring mat. Now the rules allow eight contacts with the mat with 10-second rest periods between routines.

Carolina has the best gymnastic equipment in the south, and for this reason Meade is dickering for the national collegiate championships next year. Here's hoping he gets the bid.

Hack's Newcomers Are Expected To Give Cubs Higher NL Respect

MESA, Ariz., March 23 (AP)— New faces are sure for Wrigley Field this season, but Chicago Cubs Manager Stan Hack continues to puzzle over just which ones.

He brought a squad of 50 to spring training camp in the rebuilding program to lift the club from the seventh place position to which it finished the 1954 campaign 33 games off the pace.

Although Hack has been experimenting continually, his club has performed well in exhibitions, winning the last five games.

Hack believes the trade that sent slugger Ralph Kiner to Cleveland strengthened the Cubs defensively. And pitcher Sam Jones who came in the deal is counted on for regular duty.

Asked what his front pitching line would be, Hack replied:

"It might be Paul Minner, Bob Rush and Jones with some help from Howie Pollet."

Warren Hacker also is available.

Several rookies and Bubba Church, getting another shot at the majors, have pitched well this spring. Included are Bobby Thorpe seeking to make the big jump from Class C Stockton to the majors; John Andre, who won 21 with Shreveport; Hy Cohen, who had 16 victories at Des Moines, and John Pyecha, who had 7-7 with Los Angeles. Al Lary, who came out of military service last year, has been getting a lot of work.

The infield is possibly set with Dee Fondy at first, Ransom Jockson back at third and the keystone combination of shortstop Ernie Banks and second baseman Gene Baker.

Problems remain in the catching and outfield.

"I know our catching will be better," Hack says. "Harry Chiti looks very good."

Slugger Hank Sauer is certain of his job in left field but Hack says center and right are wine open. Bob Talbot, centerfielder last season with only a .241 batting average, has a tough battle with rookies Jim Bolger, Gale Wade and Solly Drake.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
14 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

SANDWICHES

N I A
A N R
C N R
K E Y
S R '
S S

UNC Pops Lid Of '55 Season In Winter Park

Maultsby And Stone Will Pitch Friday

Winter Park, Fla., March 24—Carolina's baseball Tar Heels open their 1955 season here today when they take on Georgia Tech in the opening round of a round-robin tournament on the campus of Rollins College.

Jim Raugh, sophomore righthander from Rosemont, Pa., has been given the nod by Coach Walter Rabb and is slated to hurl for the Tar Heels against the Engineers.

Junior Tom Maultsby, also a righthander, and Arthur Stone, a sophomore from Oxford, are listed to work the two games tomorrow against Rollins and Ohio State. The final game of the series is scheduled for Friday.

Sophomore Jimmy Love has been named the starting catcher, with Senior Tom Zachary at first base, sophomore Chuck Hartman at second, senior Albert Long at shortstop and junior Jack Woods at third base.

Outfielders starting in the opening game will be Connie Gravitte, Bobby Paller and Mal Harding, all lettermen.

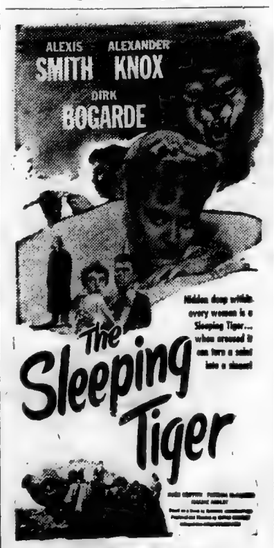
Others on the traveling squad in addition to those listed as starters in the opening game are pitchers Tom Maultsby, Billy Joe Johnson, Arthur Stone, Don Hill, Morris Hall, Don Saine and Martin Titcomb; catcher Jack Maultsby; infielders Will Frye, Harry Lee Lloyd, Buddy Strause, Ivar Lee Hill; outfielders Ken Keller and Dick Hudson.

Some of the lettermen are not expected to be in the starting lineup as the result of being thrown behind by spring football.

TMA Cops Dorm Title

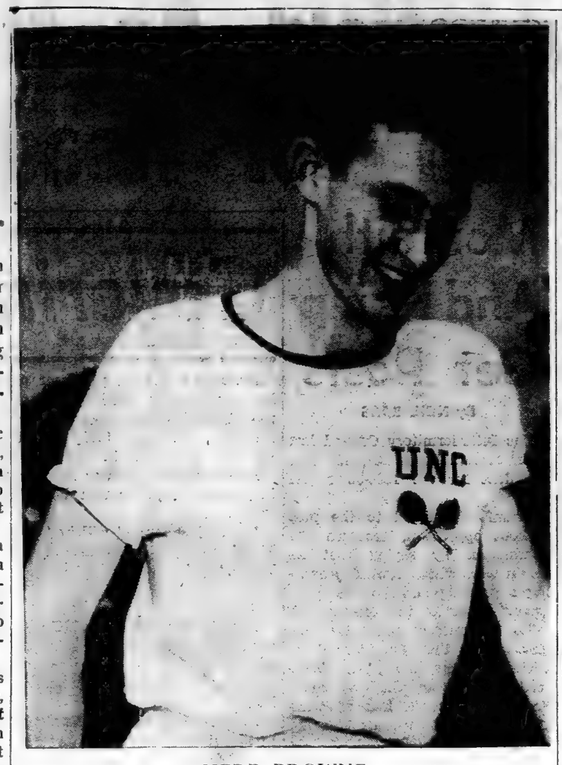
Meets Dekes Tonight For Campus Crown

TMA captured the dormitory division of the intramural basketball championship yesterday afternoon, defeating the Dental School, 45-36, in Woollen Gym.



Bill Ellington's 15 points was high for TMA. Ike Neeley scored 13, considerably aiding the winners in their surprising victory.

Ollie Oldenburg tallied 16 in a losing cause for the Dentists.



Tonight TMA will take on the Dekes, winners of the fraternity division crown, for the campus championship. Game time in Woollen is 7 o'clock.

INTRAMURAL GOLF

Qualifying rounds for the intramural golf tournament must be played by April 6, it has been announced by mural officials. Further information may be had by contacting pro Ed Kinney at Finley Golf Course. Eighteen holes must be played to qualify.

TODAY ONLY!
Varsity

HERB BROWNE
. . . brushing up on net play

Bad Weather Hampers Netters, Who Open Tuesday With MSC

By CHARLES BLANKSTEIN

The Carolina varsity tennis team ran through its third round of tournament play yesterday. The squad so far has looked erratic at best. The inclement weather of the past few days has been hardly conducive to good tennis and the UNC netters are rounding into shape slowly.

The wind and chilly weather has had a sharp detrimental effect on several of the players. Because of this fact, the tournament results are not as significant as might be hoped at this stage of the game. With less than a week to go before the first match, nothing conclusive has been settled.

WHILE THE weather continues to hamper work, practice time is running out for Coach Kenfield's minions. Next Tuesday the squad faces Michigan State on the varsity courts. Although MSC was several years ago the powerhouse of midwestern tennis, the Spartans pose no great threat currently. Matches with Dartmouth on the 31st and April 1st likewise hold no great worries for UNC.

The April 2nd match with Swarthmore, however, promises to be one of the toughest of the year. Tim Coss, who beat Herb Browne in last year's Eastern Intercollegiates, will lead the Indians in Carolina's first big test.

In the few remaining days before the season's opener, much work remains to be done. However, with a nod from Jupiter Pluvius, Carolina's netmen should be in top form in short order.

Chicago Bears Sign Indian Grid Star

CHICAGO, March 23 (AP)—The Chicago Bears of the National Football League announced today the signing of Charley Sumner, backfield ace fromi WIlliam and Mary.

Sumner starred the last three years as a quarterback and offensive halfback.

He led the Southern Conference in total offense in 1953 and was the top passer in the circuit with a 52.2 completion percentage.

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

Beatty Heads Frosh In Florida Relays

Fifteen members of the North Carolina track team will compete in the Florida Relays Saturday in Gainsville, Fla., with sophomore flash Jimmy Beatty, who took both the mile and the two-mile in the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games, heading the group.

Others making the trip include Bob Barden, Bill Booth, Ken Bryant, Steve Marcinko, Lawrence Maslow, Donald Mitchell, Roger Morris, Glenn Nanney, Boyd Newnam, Claude Rhule, Charles Scott, Robert Wilson, Don Wright and Charlie Yarborough.

Six of the Tar Heels placed in last year's relays and the other nine tracksters are making the trip for the first time. Last season, Barden took a second in the two mile, Marcinko a fourth in the javelin, Newnam and Wright were on the winning sprint medley team, Scott was fourth in the hurdles and Yarborough was second in the broad jump.

Coaches Dale Ranson and Joe Hilton will accompany the team.

ON BEING FIT TO LIVE WITH

By Harry Emerson Fosdick

We can't guarantee that this collection of frank and friendly sermons will make a new man of you, but they will certainly show you where there is room for improvement. Published at $2.00.

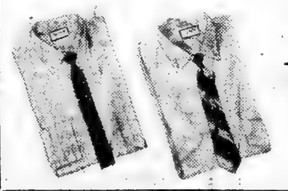
Our Special

$1.00

There's a bargain just for you at

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings



Good Collection of ARROW PRODUCTS at
BERMAN'S

1 DARK SUIT + 1 NEW ARROW SOFTONE SHIRT = 1 WELL-DRESSED COLLEGE MAN

With dark suitings the big campus preference, Arrow introduces its new Softone shirts with harmonizing ties—soft muted colors to blend naturally, easily, with darker fabrics. They give you the look of a man who wears his clothes well.

See your campus Arrow dealer for these fine colored shirts. You'll find a wide range of checks, stripes and solids. Best of all, Arrow Softones are priced right. You can own one (or several), and still have money left to eat on. They're but $5.00 the shirt.

ARROW
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

Best Selection of ARROW SHIRTS at
Varley's
MEN'S SHOP

I'VE GOT NEWS FOR YOU

It is my earnest hope that an occasional column of mine has pleased you enough to make you want to clip it out and keep it. But I'm sure that being preoccupied with more important things—like getting down to breakfast before your room-mate eats all the marmalade—the impulse has passed and been forgotten.

So I am pleased now to report that the makers of Philip Morris Cigarettes, bless their corporate hearts, have published a booklet called MAX SHULMAN REVISITED, which contains six of my favorite columns, along with some brand new material, all of this profusely illustrated—all of this available to you gratis when you buy a couple of packs of Philip Morris at your favorite tobacco counter on or near your campus.

But this is not the only news I've got for you today. Following you will find a roundup of news highlights from campuses the country over.

Southern Reserve University

Dr. Willard Hale Sigafoos, head of the department of anthropology at Southern Reserve University and internationally known as an authority on primitive peoples, returned yesterday from a four year scientific expedition to the headwaters of the Amazon River. Among the many interesting mementos of his journey is his own head, shrunk to the size of a kumquat. He refused to reveal how his head shrinking was accomplished. "That's for me to know and you to find out," he said with a tiny, but saucy grin.

Northern Reserve University

Dr. Mandrill Gibbon, head of the department of zoology at Northern Reserve University and known to young and old for his work on primates, announced yesterday that he had received a grant of $80,000,000 for a twelve year study to determine precisely how much fun there is in a barrel of monkeys.

Whatever the results of Dr. Gibbon's researches, this much is already known: what's more fun that a barrel of monkeys is a pack of Philip Morris. There's zest and cheer in every puff, delight in every draw, content and well-being in every fleecy, flavorful cloudlet. And, what's more, this merriest of cigarettes, king-size and regular, comes in the exclusive Philip Morris Snap-Open pack. A gentle tug on the tab and the package pops obligingly open. A gentle push on the open pack and it silently folds itself back, sealing in the savory vintage tobacco until you are ready to smoke again.

Eastern Reserve University

The annual meeting of the American Philological Institute, held last week at Eastern Reserve University, was enlivened by the reading of two divergent monographs concerning the origins of early Gothic "runes," as letters of primitive alphabets are called.

Dr. Tristram Lathrop Spleen, famed far and wide as the discoverer of the High German Consonant Shift, read a paper in which he traced the origins of the Old Wendish rune "pt" (pronounced "krahtz") to the middle Lettic rune "gr" (pronounced "albert"). On the other hand, Dr. Richard Cummerbund Twonkey, who, as the whole world knows, translated The Pajama Game into Middle High Bactrian, contended in his paper that the Old Wendish rune "pt" derives from the Low Erse rune "mf" (pronounced "gr").

Well, sir, the discussion grew so heated that Dr. Twonkey finally asked Dr. Spleen if he would like to step into the gymnasium and put on the gloves. Dr. Spleen accepted the challenge promptly, but the contest was never held because there were no gloves in the gymnasium that would fit Dr. Twonkey.

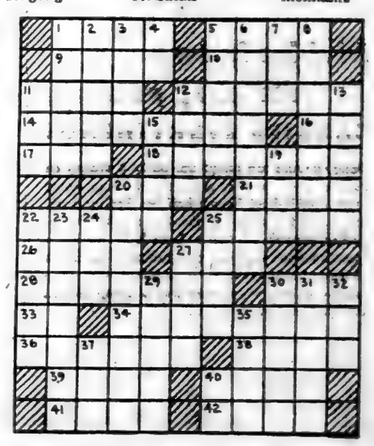
(The reader is doubtless finding this hard to believe as Eastern Reserve University is celebrated the length and breadth of the land for the size of its glove collection. However, the reader is asked to remember that Dr. Twonkey has extraordinarily small hands and arms. In fact, he spent the last war working in a small arms plant, where he received two Navy "E" Awards and was widely hailed as a "manly little chap.")

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, sponsors of this column, urge you to get to your tobacco store soon for your copy of MAX SHULMAN REVISITED. The supply is limited.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS



1. Contend (with)
5. Applaud
9. On the ocean
10. Period of time
11. Broad smile
12. Putter
14. One of the Hills of Rome
16. Dutch (abbr.)
17. Thrice (mus.)
18. Rubber band
20. Chum
21. Cry of pain
22. Long lance
25. Hit hard
26. Ireland
27. He wrote "The Raven"
28. Runs off the rails
30. River (Eng.)
33. French conjunction
34. Popular singers
36. Say over again
38. Birds as a class
39. Tidy
40. Kind of poem
41. Native of Denmark
42. Thaw

DOWN

1. Fashion by cutting
2. Variety of willow
3. Founder of Pennsylvania
4. Water god (Babyl.)
5. Any porcelain ware
6. Depressed by solitude
7. Flightless bird
8. Foretell
11. Gun (slang)
12. Money drawer
13. A pleated ruffle
15. gang
19. The parson bird (Maori)
20. Pertaining to cure-alls
22. Jewish festival
23. Make believe
24. Goddess of healing (Norse)
25. Tolerable
27. Scheme
29. Angry
30. Satan
31. Build
32. Large worm
35. Back of the neck
37. A size of coal
40. Girl's nickname

C	R	A	S	K		C	O	R	P	S
H	A	B	I	T		U	B	O	A	T
I	M	A	K	E		T	I	A	R	A
S	O	N	E	D		M	I	R
E	N	D		R	E	E	F		E	R
R	I	D		C	L	A	S	S	Y
		P	A	C	I	F	I	C
U	P	S	S	E	D		R	A	F	T
O	H		H	E	E	D		T	U	R
N	I	A		S	A	W		S	A
M	O	V	E	D		L	E	E	T	S
E	L	E	G	Y		E	E	R	I	E
A	B	O	D	E		S	P	E	C	S

Yesterday's Answer

WITHOUT OPPOSITION:

IDC Chooses Lewis Brumfield As New President; Says He Will Not Run For Head Cheerleader

Dixon-Mayer Tonight In Hill Hall

Miss Roberta Dixon, a mezzo soprano, and Lutz Mayer, violinist, will be presented in a junior recital tonight by the University's department of music.

The recital will be in Hill Hall at 8 o'clock.

Miss Dixon, a junior student of voice under Professor Joel Carter, head of the UNC voice department, will sing a group of arias from operas by Gluck, two arias from Carmen and a group of songs by Michael Head.

Mayer, a student here of Edgar Alden and a member of the first violin section of the University Symphony Orchestra, will present works by Vitali, Beethoven, Saint-Saens, Chaminade-Kreisler and Bloch.

Miss Dixon was a music major at Woman's College before entering UNC. She is president of the Women's Glee Club and a member of Kappa Delta social sorority. She will be accompanied by Eugene Hudson, junior from Black Mountain.

Mayer, a native of Hamburg, Germany, is a member of Phi Eta Sigma. He will be accompanied by George Thomas.

Monteith And Kemp Get Posts

By NEIL BASS

The Interdormitory Council last night elected Lewis Brumfield its president for the 1955-56 school year.

Brumfield, named to the post without opposition, accepted the nomination by saying that he would work "hard toward providing a growing and dynamic program." After he was elected, the Cobb Dormitory president acknowledged that he planned to withdraw from the head cheerleader's race so that he could "completely devote" himself to the IDC. Brumfield succeeds Manning Muntzing as council head.

In other elections of the night, the Council named Jim Monteith its vice-president. In his acceptance speech, Monteith, IDC representative from Steele Dormitory, said he would "employ" his "every faculty to see that the dormitory man gets a fair deal."

Ted Kemp, named by acclamation as secretary of the IDC for the coming school year, told the body that he was keenly "interested" and would seek to do a good job.

Ray Long, elected treasurer, accepted by saying that he would "give everything" he had to the "task."

The most keenly contested office was the IDC Court chairmanship. After much discussion the body named Shelton Alexander over David Reid, present judicial problems study commission chairman, by a 24-9 vote. Reid, however, was picked by the Council to serve as IDC court clerk.

Other action of the night included a report by the incoming President Brumfield, present chairman of the IDC Housing Committee, that dormitory rents might still be raised. Brumfield told the council he had talked with state government officials and that the general impression given indiccated that dormitory rents would be hiked.

Covering The Campus

Applications are being taken today for the UNC delegation to the United Nations Seminar to be held in New York City from April 7 through 9.

Those wishing to apply may fill out applications at the YMCA or YWCA offices. The applications will be sent to New York this afternoon.

The cost of attending the Seminar will be approximately $27 plus $10 for transportation to New York. Nine dollars the registration tours and seminar dinner should accompany applications.

★

"My Little Chickadee," starring Mae West and W. C. Fields, the fifth film in the Spring GMAB series, will be shown tonight in Gerrard Hall, instead of Carroll Hall, at 8 p.m.

★

The Faculty Newcomers Club will present a luncheon and style show at the Carolina Inn at 12:30 March 30.

The Little Shop will provide the fashions to be shown.

Reservations for the luncheon must be made by Saturday. The cost will be $2. Reservations and checks should be sent to Mrs. Charles Shaffer, 716 Gimghoul Road.

Italian Scholarships' Deadline Is April 1

Competition for scholarships being offered to American graduate students by the Italian government and two Italian universities for the year 1955-56 will close on April 1.

Information concerning the eligibility requirements for the Italian awards and applications may be obtained from the United States Student Department of the Institute of International Education, I East 67th Street, New York 21, N. Y.

Covering The Campus

Dr. H. H. Rowler, professor of Hebrew language and literature at the University of Manchester, England, will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in Carroll Hall.

Due to an error it was reported in yesterday's paper that he was to speak last night.

His subject tonight will be "The Meaning of the Old Testament for Today."

★

Tryouts for Sound and Fury's coming production, Satan's Saints, will be held for the last time tonight at 7 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

According to Gordon Forester, president of GMAB, none of the 32 parts available will be assigned until after tonight's tryouts. He said "over 40 people" tried out in Tuesday's session. According to Forester, they tried out by singing, tap dancing, doing to Charleston and reading parts.

The production is set for April 28 and 29. Full rehearsals will begin Sunday night, according to GMAB's president. He said the show concerns a boys' dramatic school and a girls' dramatic school during the "roaring 20's."

★

A bill advocating repudiation by the United States of the 1945 Yalta Agreement was defeated by the Philanthropic Literary Society in its regular weekly assembly on Tuesday night, March 22, in Phi Hall.

The bill of the evening was introduced by Rep. Lawrence Matthews. Proponents of the bill included Representatives Iobst, Porterfield, Johnson, and Matthews. Speaking negatively were Representatives Glass and Albert, and Conditional Representative Moore.

By roll call vote of the Assembly, the bill was defeated 9-3. A vote of members and guests stood at 15-3 against the bill.

The bill for the next meeting would be "Resolved: that laws prohibiting denominational religious instruction in U. S. public schools be repealed."

★

Women students planning to attend the University either during the summer terms or the fall semester (or both) should make their room reservations before April 10, according to a statement from the Dean of Women's Office.

The notice said rooms will be held for students until that date, but if women students have not made their room reservations by that time, it will be assumed that they do not plan to be in attendance, and their places will be assigned to other students.

★

The Film Critics will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Woodhouse Conference Room of Graham Memorial.

★

Alpha Pi Omega, service fraternity, will hold an open rush meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the APO Room in Graham Memorial. The fraternity has invited all students to attend.

★

The Baptist Training Union will meet tonight at 6 o'clock in the Baptist Church. The meeting is open to all.

★

Ray Mathis, director of Camp Hanes, the summer camp of the Winston-Salem YMCA, will be on campus tomorrow between 9 and 10:30 a.m. to interview students who wish to apply for camp counselor jobs. He will see students at the YMCA office. Any students who wish to be interviewed may register today at the YMCA office for an appointment.

★

The director of Camp Paradox for boys will be on campus today to interview students interested in jobs as nature counselors, photography counselors or kitchen help. For further information and an interview appointment students may contact the Placement Service, 204 Gardner Hall.

★

The current exhibit of original signed color prints in the Person Hall Art Gallery will close Sunday. A feature of this showing is Love in Flight by Seong May, a series of 21 prints.

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

COLLEGE MEN: EARN $75 PER week during summer (part-time work during college term also available). This is your invitation to attend a group interview at Gardner Hall—Room 105, 2:30 p.m. Thursday, March 24. Please be on time.

Enjoy the Best in Filtered Smoking!
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
with the Activated Charcoal Filter
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

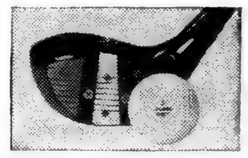
New Samsonite
Hang-It-All...$25
PLUS TAX

Top hangs up... holds up to eight dresses. Bottom lies flat ...easy packing for accessories, cosmetics, shoes, etc.
Divides-in-Two for Easy Packing...Carries Everything
Put both halves together...it's the lightest way to carry everything in one case.
Divides in two for easy packing
CARRIES EVERYTHING!
Hang-It-All's top hangs up, packs 8 dresses on its non-snag hangers. A special fold-bar keeps them wrinkle-free! Bottom half lies flat for packing shoes, toiletries, etc. Put top and bottom together, snap shut the smart brass locks, and Samsonite's tongue-in-groove construction keeps things dust—and moisture-proof! Samsonite's better-than-leather finishes wipe clean with a damp cloth... and you've a choice of six.
BERMAN'S

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining L. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (All Semester Credits in Specified Courses)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
1800 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

NOTICE!
Served Every Thursday
SPECIAL
Fried Chicken or Country Fried Steak
2 Vegetables, Coffee or Tea
Free Seconds
55c
MICHAELS GRILL

chemical reaction
Exclusive "stainshy" finish on AFTER SIX formal jackets spurns most stains—even lipstick! Suave styling, easy, "natural" fit, budget prices. Have more fun —go
After Six



LOOK SHARP ON A SHOESTRING
Baby cord slacks in Ivy model, in blue, tan or gray—
5.95
Chino slacks in khaki, light blue or black—Ivy model—
4.95
Amho knit or Tweka of Holland polo shirts—complete assortment from soup to nuts. Take your choice from our 29 different combinations, all at one price—
3.95
Just received shipment of silk-sheen cotton gabardine walk shorts Ivy model in natural or black—lowest price anywhere—
8.95
Very large assortment of English tab shirts including imported English fabrics and fine madras candy stripes—only—
5.00
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

TAR HEEL CAB
8464
To One And All
We Appreciate Every Call

TAKE YOUR DINNER HOME WITH YOU!
Banish cooking tasks on busy evenings. Pick up the family's meal here . . . all ready to serve and eat!
PINES
Raleigh Road

JAZZ AT THE SADDLE CLUB
SATURDAY
MUSIC BY THE SYMPHONIC SIX

WHO ARE THE "TOP-FLITE" GOLFERS ON YOUR CAMPUS?

If you've watched them on the course, you've probably thought: "Boy, if I could just get my game down like that!"
Constant practice is the answer, of course, but getting the best from your equipment is just as important, too.
That's where Spalding TOP-FLITE® clubs have the edge. They have more to offer in precision balance that gives an absolutely uniform swing-feel with every club in the matched set.
That's the secret of Spalding SYNCHRO-DYNED® clubs. And, it will pay off for you from the first round. You'll make the same shots with new uniformity. The perfect balance of these clubs lets you swing through the ball with confidence. Without "choking-up" or "compensating." You get the ball away cleaner, longer, and with more shot control.
These are the clubs that have lowered handicaps by as much as ⅓: Spalding SYNCHRO-DYNED TOP-FLITE clubs. Your Golf pro has them now. And, now's the time for you to start playing better golf.
SPALDING SETS THE PACE IN SPORTS
SPALDING EQUIPMENT CARRIED BY
CAROLINA SPORT SHOP

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and cooler today with an expected high of 60.

The Daily Tar Heel

DARK DAYS

The editor writes on the University's future. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 125 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

PERMANENT DIRECTOR?

Wallace Resigns GM Job Effective Start Of Fall Term

By LOIS OWEN

Jim Wallace, for two years director of Graham Memorial, has announced his resignation.

Wallace's resignation will be effective at the beginning of the fall semester. It came at a recent meeting of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors will try to find a permanent director for GM, Wallace said yesterday. Board President Tom Creasy will appoint a selection committee, made up of faculty, administration and students, for the purpose of finding a new director.

The board approved a salary increase of approximately $6,000 or $7,000, provided a suitable director may be found.

It was decided at the meeting that Director Wallace should attend the regular convention of the Association of College Unions at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. for the special purpose of looking around for a new director. One student will be chosen to accompany Wallace.

Wallace yesterday remarked on a number of improvements that might be attempted by GM, should it have a new director and sufficient funds.

For instance, a patio might be built in back of the Rendezvous Room, the basement darkroom could be revamped, better use could be made of the old Veterans' Club in the back of Lenoir Hall and the facilities in Cobb's basement could be managed by GM, said Wallace.

He also suggested that the lecture series be improved.

In Consolidated University Night Program

Miss Dolores Mills, above, will sing in Saturday night's Consolidated University festivities at Woman's College in Greensboro. Miss Mills will take part on a talent program. A dance will be held tomorrow night.

Homesley Will Be Able To Run For Position

The question about whether or not T. C. (Country) Homesley will be able to run as a write-in candidate for head cheerleader has been settled. He can.

Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Elections Board, said that Ray Jefferies, assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, looked over Homesley's record and has okayed him as a write-in candidate.

Homesley, who has promised to "raise hell next year if elected," said that "next year is a make or break year at Carolina. We need a head cheerleader who will get enthusiasm and yells out of the students."

Brumfield Still Wants To Help With Cheers

Louis Brumfield, newly-elected president of the Interdormitory Council, said he still intends to "go out for the cheerleading squad" in a statement made yesterday, in which he explained why he withdrew from the head cheerleader race after being elected to the IDC post.

Brumfield gave three reasons for his withdrawal. He said that being both IDC president and head cheerleader would be "almost a physical impossibility," that he is "not familiar with the duties of head cheerleader to the extent which I feel is necessary to serve the students in this capacity" and he feels "that my work in the IDC would be very rewarding."

The new IDC head added, ". . . I believe that I am familiar enough with the situation in the dormitories to work for them."

Brumfield expressed his appreciation to the students who had offered support in his campaign for head cheerleader.

Tuition Study Set

(From AP Reports)

RALEIGH, March 24 — The Joint Appropriations subcommittee today voted to name a 5-man group to study the question of increased tuition charges to nonresident students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The subcommittee also followed up its action of yesterday in cutting University Library appropriations for the libraries at State College and Woman's College.

Taylor Requests Lists Of Candidate Records

A publication in The Daily Tar Heel of the record of each presidential candidate was requested yesterday by the campaign manager for Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate.

The Daily Tar Heel replied to Taylor that it would publish records of the three candidates.

In the statement in which he made his request, Taylor said, "My basic objective in this campaign is to get the students to use their common sense and good judgement, both of which require that the student body know essentially the same information about the various candidates that an employer wants to know about prospective employees."

Taylor said an employer knows that a person's past record in the best way of telling what he will most likely do in the future. He added ". . . the same thing is true in campus politics. Indeed the various candidates' statements in favor of things we all favor and in opposition to things we all oppose are relatively unimportant when compared with the actual records of those candidates," he said.

Taylor has said that he has tried to make his candidates record familiar to the students, but that financial limitations prevent printing enough copies for each student. He said that by having the three candidates' records published in the paper, the students will have "some basis for making a comparison of the respective candidates and using their common sense and good judgement in selecting the best qualified among them."

"Of course, I make this request with full assurance that such a comparison of actual records will result in victory for Ed McCurry," concluded Taylor.

Candidate Collision For Bigger, Better Rallies

"There is no such thing as a lack of Carolina spirit," said candidate for head cheerleader Collie Collison yesterday.

"The spirit is here but the students need better opportunities to show it, namely in the form of bigger and better pep rallies," added Collison. "I for one would like to see more good, clean, hell-raising like that which occurred at the Maryland pep rally two years ago," he continued.

"Another thing I want to see," said Collison, "is a pre-game parade on the order of those at the Army-Navy games, but carried out on a smaller less expensive scale."

Collison said he is not a University Party candidate for head cheerleader. "The UP, as I understand, went on record favoring my election . . . I greatly appreciate the support of the UP," he said, "but I am not a UP candidate. I am an independent.

"I am for and with the students," continued Collison. "There should be no such thing as a political cheerleader. If elected I will not be one."

SAYS McCURRY:

Nothing On Segregation

"Like my opponents, I have nothing to say either."

That's presidential candidate Ed McCurry's stand on segregation.

The University Party candidate was asked his stand on the question of segregation in the public schools, as were candidates Manning Muntzing (Student Party) and Don Fowler (Independent). Wednesday Muntzing said he hoped the "student body and student government will work together to meet the situation."

Fowler said segregation "must be studied carefully before any drastic action is taken."

McCurry, who dismissed the question with "nothing to say either," had something to say about a rumored increase in student fees.

"It is my firm belief," said McCurry, "that before such an increase can be made, the question must be brought directly before the student body in the form of a referendum."

McCurry noted that last year a $3 raise in student fees was made by the student Legislature. The UP candidate said an additional raise should be done by and with approval of the students.

"If elected, I would veto a bill of this nature if it were not first placed before the students in the form of a referendum," said McCurry.

Student Legislature Talks Raising Out-Of-State Tuition; Says DTH Broke Contract

By NEIL BASS

A resolution was introduced, but not voted on, at last night's meeting of the student Legislature asking that he group go on record as "opposing any tuition raises" for out-of-state students at UNC.

The resolution, introduced by the University Party, called such action (tuition hike) a "discriminating influence." The state Legislature announced near the beginning of this session that increased dormitory room rents were being "considered" as a possible fund source.

According to a report given at Wednesday night's meeting of the Interdormitory Council by Lewis Brumfield, talks with state officials have "indicated" that the dorm rent hike proposal will go through. Brumfield is a member of the UNC committee appointed to fight the proposal.

The resolution, brought to the attention of the Legislature by Jim Martin of the UP, stated that such "discriminating" action would not be conducive toward encouraging out-of-state students to attend the University. It further stated that out-of-state students had made a definite contribution to the University.

In gist, the resolution brought to the front the fact that many students not from North Carolina would be denied the chance to mingle and to disseminate in their home regions the knowledge and mode of life acquired from this University and from North Carolina if the state Legislature's decided to pass such a law.

It went on to imply that North Carolina as a whole would be sold short if a "tax" (meaning the tuition raise) was levied on the opportunities of peoples from the same Democratic country (but from the different states) to intermingle and promote good relationships for all involved.

In conclusion the resolution implied that a disadvantageous situation would be created for the state if the state Legislature "discriminated" and levied funds from only out-of-state students, thus inhibiting the freedom of people from all corners of the United States to "peaceably assemble" and acquire an education.

In other action of the session, the chairman of the committee "investigating" The Daily Tar Heel introduced a bill which, according to Charles Hyatt, grew out of the student-publication's "violation" of a contract.

The bill calls for a "legal authority" to review all student government contracts exceeding $100 before final approval of them is announced. Apparently this was aimed at what Hyatt, member of the investigating committee, called the "discovery" of a contract compelling The Daily Tar Heel to make a door-to-door delivery of newspapers.

This was one of the main kicks that the student Legislature had at its recent session during which it set up the investigating committee. Hyatt went on to say that The Daily Tar Heel circulation department was being paid for such door-to-door service and was not keeping its bargain.

The third bill introduced at the final session before elections calls for the establishment of a "student union," similar to Graham Memorial, at Victory Village.

4th Fair Slated By B. A. Frat

The fourth annual Business Fair, sponsored as a service-to-school project by Alpha Kappa Psi professional business administration fraternity, has been set for April 27-28 in Carroll Hall, with the theme of "Wings, Wheels and Rudders, the Story of the American Transportation System."

Kenneth Argo, Kannapolis senior, new president of Alpha Kappa Psi and chairman of arrangements for the fair, and Dr. J. C. D. Blaine, UNC professor of transportation and faculty advisor, jointly announced the plans for the yearly event.

The local Alpha Tau chapter sponsored its first business fair in 1952, with a central theme of finance, on which outstanding bankers from New York and North Carolina spoke. The development of advertising was stressed at the second fair, with Bruce Barton of New York as main speaker.

"Tar Heel Jobs for Tar Heel Grads" was the topic last year, when R. D. Harwick, Raleigh, president of the State Association of Chambers of Commerce, headed the list of speakers.

"The concept of the business fair," Dr. Blaine said, "is one which has been highly commended by educators and businessmen alike for its wide educational value, as well as for the experience gained by those who participate in its planning and execution.

"The service is not only to the school but to the entire University and to the state at large," he added.

The "Wings, wheels and rudders" approach is believed to be the first presentation of this type in the United States, Argo explained.

JUNE ESCHEWEILLER (Back) AND BOBBIE LEE MORETZ

. . . in scene from Saturday Stranger

'Stranger' Plans Underway

Saturday Stranger, a new play by Joseph Rosenburg, graduate student in the department of dramatic art, will be the next full length production of The Carolina Playmakers, announced a spokesman for the group yesterday.

Rosenburg, who has written a drama dealing with lonely women and the effect of a handsome young man upon their lives, is a graduate assistant in the Department of Dramatic Art.

Earlier this season another of his plays, Friends, was presented in the Playmakers Theater as a part of a series of student one-act plays.

The cast includes Martha Dow, June Eschweiler, Len Bullock, Harvey Whetstone, Gene Overbeck and Bobbie Lee Moretz. James Riley directed the play.

Tickets for the production go on sale today at 214 Abernethy Hall.

Quarterly Deadline

According to an announcement made yesterday by Jim Dunn, editor of the Carolina Quarterly, only one week remains for entries to be made in the Quarterly's Fiction Contest.

IN CAMPUS ELECTIONS:

Students To Vote On Atty. General's Job

Four proposed amendments to the student Constitution will be placed before the campus in Tuesday's election. One, introduced in student Legislature March 10, would place certain duties on the Attorney General of student government. The amendment in full follows. Other amendments will be published later.

A BILL TO AMEND THE OFFICIAL STUDENT CONSTITUTION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Whereas: The powers of the office of Attorney General are nothing more than advisor to the president of the student body, and

Whereas: An office of this nature with such limited power is superfluous, and

Whereas: There are only limited means for the investigation and prosecution of offenses and offenders of the student Constitution of the University of North Carolina, and

Whereas: In the immediate past there have been flagrant Constitutional violations which have persisted uncorrected because of the confusion and multiple channels through which prosecution must proceed before reaching the Student Council;

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ENACTED BY THE STUDENT LEGISLATURE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, THAT

Art. 1—That the following paragraph be added to Article II, section 5, of the Official Student Constitution of the University of North Carolina:

It shall also be the duty of the Attorney General to investigate, gather evidence against and prosecute any and all offenders of the official student constitution of the University of North Carolina. (For this amendment offenders may take the form of individuals, groups or organizations under the auspices ofthe student constitution.)

Art II.—This amendment upon passage by the student Legislature shall be put to the student body for approval in the next special or regular election authorized by the student Legislature.

the Ballot Box

Politicians, as we have found out in covering small-town courts, murder the king's English.

In the mill of campaign statements turned in to The Daily Tar Heel, rewriters have found such words as "coart" for court, "axis" of access and "partizan" for partisan.

In politicians' written statements, here and elsewhere, nine-tenths of the words are capitalized. It would be as unpardonable for a campus politician to spell Student Body or Student Government or Administration with lower-case letters than for a county lawyer to slip up and spell Highway highway, or Commissioner commissioner.

And you can bet every one of them would like to spell voter Voter.

* * *

Nice Elections Board Chairman Patsy Daniels had a few statements of her own yesterday.

Miss Daniels warned candidates, and candidates' friends, not to place posters on trees, not to use Scotch tape on walls and not to move a poster to put another one up.

Violaters, said Miss Daniels, will be prosecuted by the Honor Council. Violations may be reported to her or another member of the Elections Board.

* * *

FIVE DAYS UNTIL ELECTIONS

* * *

Davis (Dusty) Lamson, last year's Elections Board chairman, said yesterday that T. C. (Country) Homesley's campaign for head cheerleader is not the first write-in campaign on record.

"There have been several write-in campaigns," said Lamson. "I am familiar with several during the four years I have been here."

Lamson said the Elections Board in the past has thrown the candidate out because his grades weren't checked, and he didn't submit an expense account."

* * *

The elections law says "no campaign literature of any type shall be permitted within a radius of 50 feet of the ballot boxes.

"No person shall endeavor to advance the interest of any candidate within 50 feet of the polling places.

"No person shall station any sound mechanism for the purpose of advancing the interest of any candidate within hearing distance of any polling place.

"There shall be no commercialization, such as distribution of sample cigarets, pamphlets, etc., within 50 feet of the polls."

* * *

The presidential candidates' apparent refusal to skate out on segregation's thin ice was to be expected.

A softer campaign couldn't have happened.—F. P.

Dark Days For The University

The ill wind from Raleigh blew over two bits of bad news for the University yesterday. The joint Appropriations subcommittee's proposal to hike tuition to out-of-state students is unfortunate, especially since the legislators appear to be working with a dearth of information; a couple of them mentioned the abundance of out-of-state license tags on student cars as proving students can stand the tuition increase — questionable reasoning to say the least.

But just which way this wind is blowing was demonstrated by the decision to cut $25,000 a year from the Library's budget. The Library, as the representatives must know, is the very heart of the University; its annual appropriation is already barely enough, and far less than most libraries receive. If this cut is not restored, and there seems to be little hope that it will be, it becomes a sign for anybody who is interested:

The General Assembly has little respect for higher education this season. The University can expect little better treatment for the rest of its requests. We may as well begin hitching up our belts; we're in for dark days.

Plea For Conscience

The college undergraduate of today, says President John Sloan Dickey of Dartmouth College, "is different, faced with graver issues than we were a generation ago, more responsible in his decisions, and much more lonely."

Needed from the colleges, as mentors, writes Mr. Dickey, is a heavier stress upon the development of conscience. The tendency lately has inclined too much the other way—toward the development of competence by specialized studies. These disciplines whose age-long purpose has remained the cultivation of conscience have, in light of the need, failed to receive due emphasis. But "it is the job of the college (and the liberal arts) to keep competence civilized," President Dickey says and adds:

> I am increasingly persuaded that the cause of liberal education will not be overrun by vocationalism if the college holds to its birthright and remains committed as a matter of purpose to serious concern with the issues of conscience. A concern for the choice of good and the rejection of evil in an institution of liberal learning quickens all humanistic studies and prevents our increasing reliance on the physical and social sciences from smothering those intuitive insights which both produce and spring from goodness in man.

Recently we heard of a religion teacher's complaint that certain books of The Bible—notably the Book of Job—can't be adequately taught, the reason being the difficulty to create in students the tragic sense of life. The tragic sense of life, too broad a concept to treat here, is one broad area of conscience; the great religions, the great systems of rational ethics, are parts of conscience; taste and the feeling for beauty are parts of conscience—"borrowed from the total store of human woe and joy," in Mr. Dickey's words. The "tradition of civility," for which Walter Lippman sees a crying need in the western democracies, is a part of conscience.

As the undergraduate moves from his peculiar role on the campus to a peculiar role in the world, the development of conscience by contact with humanities and other liberal studies may be the last, best hope. Dartmouth, putting action behind their president's idea, has set up a Tucker Foundation; its purpose is best expressed in the words of the man for whom it is named, spoken some years ago:

> I make no . . . plea for any formal religion, but I do plead now as always for the religious spirit . . . Seek . . . moral distinction. Be not content with the commonplace in character any more than with the commonplace in ambition or intellectual attainment. Do not expect you will make any lasting or very strong impression on the world through intellectual power without the use of an equal amount of conscience and heart.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Fattening Up The Calf For Spring Eating

Louis Kraar

CALVES I Doubt Were Ever Fattened Department:

The Carolina Quarterly, campus, literary magazine, has had its troubles this year, although having greatly improved.

"The rigors of putting out a literary magazine in the spring, when the campus is concerned with other rigors, were evident in this sign on the Quarterly's door:

"Notice. Business being done. Proceed with caution at your own risk. Alterations going on as usual.

"Those in search of Miss Quarterly had best cross the paved lot to the chapel and seek solace in pious meditation; Miss Quarterly has temporarily departed the fold in search of greener fields, but wil return within a moon or so, at which time the admirers are invited to join the staff in barbecuing the fatted calf, imbibing the cool and amber, and lightening this wail of editorial tears in general."

This is the lit magazine's literary way of saying: "Open for Business.

★

ONE OF the most unusual tales of the current political season concerns the female candidate who was curious about her opponent.

Finally, at the political punch party the other night the curious coed sought out her opponent, and the conversation went something like this:

"Oh, don't you remember that fabulous cocktail party we went to together?"

"Sure. It was nice," agreed the curious coed.

"Boy, what a party."

"Sure was," said the formerly surious coed, confident now that the campaign would be clean and the cocktail party would go unmentioned.

★

"WHAT HAS segregation got to do with the presidential candidates? You're just trying to create an issue."

That's what a Student Party member declared upon hearing that Managing Editor Fred Powledge had sent a reporter to find out how the three presidential candidates felt about the issue.

My only answer is that since the Supreme Court has declared segregation unconstitutional and since the University has to meet the issue right away, what could be more vital?

As for creating issues, it's about time there were some in this rather vacuous campaign. One begins to suspect that Muntzing, McCurry, and Fowler would make as unimaginative presidents as they do campaigners.

★

THE BILL for revamping the Student Council into a supreme court of the campus offers several new rights to accused students.

The right of appeal, under the bill that will be voted on in Tuesday's election, can be based on grounds that the conviction was based on insufficient evidence, that the penalty was unjust or unusual.

Also students will gain the right of retrial by the Student Council on the "submission of new and pertinent evidence by the accused."

What the plan will do is to make the Student Council a real appeal court. Right now, if a student appeals to the council, all it can do is decide whether or not the court that originaly tried the case will have to hear it again.

Battle Of The Classical Scholars

'Learning Doth Make Thee Mad'

Editor:

In The Daily Tar Heel, March 11, 1955, in the first of a series of articles under the general heading "I Remember Chapel Hill," I quoted a remark of the late Thomas Dunston, colored barber, to the late Edwin Anderson Alderman, famous educator:

"Marse Ed., what's got into you? I believe you is going crazy. As Epaminondas said to Themistocles, 'Much learning doth make thee mad'."

Upon this, I made the following comment:

"Where Tom could have picked up the famous saying of Petronius, no one knows; but at least the use of the names Epaninondas and Themistocles was purely original."

On March 14 I received a pleasant letter from my good friend, Preston H. Epps of the Department of Classics, in which he says, among other things, referring to the passage quoted by Tom Dunstan:

"If you can find it in Petronius, please let me have it so I can confront my Latin colleagues with it. They don't recognize it as from Petronius."

This shook me for a moment, as I was relying entirely upon a memory of something that happened 56 years ago. In January, 1899, during my first year of teaching here, I read in The Bookman, New York, a review by Frederic Taber Cooper entitled "A Precursor of Realism." It was a review of "Trimalchis's Dinner By Petronius Arbiter. Translated from the original Latin, with an Introduction and Bibliographical Appendix by Harry Thurston Peck" (New York, 1898). I read it with keen interest; and shortly afterwards read the book by Peck, who was then editor of The Bookman, a brilliant writer, and professor of the Classics at Columbia. I had not read Petronius since that date.

It was unthinkable that Epps's "Latin colleagues"—Ullman (who was actually teaching Petronius), Allen, Suskin—could all be wrong. Was all my work here in the Classics—under such able and inspiring teachers as Frances Kingsley Ball of Harvard, Eben Alexander of Yale, who had been Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Greece, Rumania and Serbia, and was equally fluent in ancient and modern Greek, James T. Pugh, who afterwards became a famous lawyer in Boston, Karl P. Harrington, University of Maine, and Henry Farrar Linscott, University of Chicago, one of the most sensitive and engaging teachers ever born—during the years 1894-1898 to go for nothing? Was it possible that my memory at the comparatively early age of seventy-seven years and eight months was failing?

As Peck's translation was not in my house, I turned at once to Burton Stevenson's magnificent, indispensable "The Home Book of Proverbs, Maxims and Familiar Phrases" (New York, 1943). Herein on page 1377 appears the following:

"We know that you are mad with too much learning." (Scimus te prae litteras fatum esse.) Petronius, Satyricon, sec. 46."

I wrote at once to Professor Epps, giving him this citation. Immediately afterwards, I borrowed from Miss Lucile Kelling, Dean of the School of Library Science and a gifted classical scholar, a copy of the standard reference work, doubtless consulted at least once every week by faculty and students in the Classics Department, "A Literary History of Rome in the Silver Age" by T. Wight Duff, (New York, 1933.) In the scholarly chapter (2) on Petronius, I hoped that this particular passage may be referred to. My hope was fulfilled; for there, on page 181, I found the passage given, in both plebeian Latin and correspondingly plebien English translation. Echion, the rag-dealer, says to Professor Agamemnon:

"We know as how much learning doth make you mad."

As I have had no reply from my letter to Professor Epps of March 15, I am sending you for publication in The Daily Tar Heel this letter, in vindication of the principles of Classical scholarship. I give below several other translations of the passage:

"I know you're cracked on account of your learning." H. T. Peck (1898).

"We know you are mad with much learning." M. Heseltine (Loeb), 1913, 1916,1919.

"We know that much book learning has made you mad." J. M. Mitchell, 2nd edition, 1922.

I am inclined to agree with Echion. Perhaps too much learning tends to cloud the memory and disturb the higher centers of intellectual activity.

Archibald Henderson

DR. HENDERSON
. . . Petronius said it, sure enough

'You Win It, Pal'

The Formosa Invasion Timetable

Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG—The moment when the Chinese Communists began intensive preparations for military action in the Formosa Straits can be rather exactly dated.

There were, of course, many preliminaries. The construction of the great Chekiang-Kiangsi airbase complex started in earnest as soon as the Korean War ended. Redeployment of units out of Korea was noted more than a year ago. The public outcery for "the liberation of Taiwan" was turned on in Peking as soon as Communist victory in Indo-China was signed and sealed at Geneva.

The Sino-Soviet agreement on the best approach to the Formosa problem was almost certainly hammered out during the long visit to China of Khrushchev, Bulganin and Mikoyan. This visit, which may also have been linked with the great change in Moscow, ended in mid-October.

FIRST SIGN

But the first sign to the West that the "liberate Taiwan" shouting was in deadly earnest, was given here in Hong Kong. It took the form of a precipitous rise of the open market prices of kerosene, which is jet airplane fuel, and light diesel oil, which is the necessary fuel of an invasion fleet of motorized junks. The two prices shot up simultaneously just about the middle of last December.

Since then the struggle has been continuous between the oil companies and the British control officers on the one hand, and the eager fuel buyers from the Communist mainland on the other. As always when such contests involve the ever ingenious Chinese, the struggle has had its interesting quirks.

FUEL A-PLENTY

Hong Kong's motorized junks, for instance, have long been subject to fuel rationing to keep them from supplying the Communists. But wtih mainland buyers offering larger profits than all the fish in the East China Sea, the junk owners have been using their sails and selling most of their diesel rations at a special depot in the Pearl River estuary.

Because of the controls, the quantities of diesel and kerosene leaking out of Hong Kong have not been militarily important. Most probably the buyers have been private or state traders supplying the civilian market in South-East China. But for almost two years previous to last December, there had been no sign of fuel shortage on the Communist mainland.

Thus it seems clear that in December, the order came down from Peking to begin building maximum stocks of the two invasion fuels. And this order immediately created the demand felt in Hong Kong and more recently reflected in the voyage of the "Aruba."

READY TO MOVE

With intensive military stockpiling starting in December, the enemy should be ready to move in April or early May, if indeed he is not ready now. Here in South China, to be sure, Communist stocks of fuel and other military necessities are unlikely to be big enough to sustain operations on a big scale lasting a long time.

But South China is only a secondary center. There are hardly one sixth of the aircraft in the Canton airbase complex, for instance, that are stationed in the Chekiang-Kiangsi complex. And there are no indications of the kind of fuel shortage in Shanghai that would quickly appear if stocks in this more important area were unsatisfactory. The different fuel situations, like the military dispositions themselves, are simply explained. The Canton region has to b emainly supplied by one overworked railroad, while tankers and freighters can ply freely between Mukden, Tientsin and Shanghai.

PSYCHOLOGICAL INVASION

Another kind of preparation has also been going on in an interesting way. The Communists cannot attempt the physical invasion of Formosa until they have stocked and occupied the Fukien airfields that command the Formosa Strait; and they cannot stock the Fukien airfields until they have taken Quemoy and the Matsus. But there are no such barriers to psychological invasion. And this is being attempted in a very sly way.

Thus when the new constitution was promulgated and the Peking government was recognized, a significant role was allotted to former members of the Kuomintang government. The evil old ex-governor of Yunnan, Lung Yun, the Generalissimo's ex-favorite, Gen. Fu Tso-yi, who sold Peking to the Communists, and several more turned up as vice chairmen of the National Military Council. And a really considerable number of turncoats were given simple council memberships.

CHOSE COMMUNISM

Only last week, moreover, another old favorite of the Generalissimo's, Gen. Wei Li-huang, who headed Chiang's expeditionary force in Manchuria, slipped across the border from Hong Kong and turned up Canton in a blare of welcoming publicity. There is no doubt that Wei Li-huang "chose communism" at a carefully prearranged time. If Wei Li-huang's old friends in Taipei are having any doubts about the future, the effect among them should be considerable.

Overall one can discern a pattern of methodical, all embracing preparation that became intensive soon after the Khrushchev-Bulganin-Mikoyan visit to China. It is an ominous pattern. A carefully elaborated national plan is unlikely to be abandoned by the grim, dedicated men who rule in Peking, at least unless they are decisively convinced there is no smallest element of bluff in the big talk in Washington.

Last Lap

Eye Of The Horse

Roger Will Coo

(The Horse sees imperfectly, magnifying some things, minimizing others.—Hipporotis, circa 500 B. C.)

THE HORSE was having trouble keeping his troops in line, at Graham Memorial. Wump, his low-visioning Frog, kept bumping off into some near bushes; and Neckley, with Spring in his elongated neck, kept trying different windows of the student center for high vision effects.

"We got to have a farewell parade," The Horse stated. "Two whole years now, we been putting it on the line, or between lines, with the good ol' DTH. This necessitates memorializing, Roger me lad. But as to Wump and Neckley — well, they've been waiting for four issoos now for us to parade. But they are both stoutly behind me."

I took this to be a figure of speech since Wump was directly below The Horse, and Neckley high above him, The Horse really was on his last lap, then, with the DTH?

"This race, yes," The Horse nodded. "I have found the occupation interesting; but higher education here at Chapel Hill has rooned me, in a manner of speaking. It has taught me to put principal, as well as principle, above interest, ospecially since interest-rates now are not what they used to be."

Oh, yes! Only last issoo, The Horse had again mentioned 'a few cobs.' What meant this?

"Cobs, fish, bucks, simoleons, pieces of eight," The Horse strove for intelligibility, with not a single typo (we hope) to frustrate him. "Folding money, coin of the realm, ducats, obols, piasters, peses — "

What! The Horse was being crassly commercial when others were doing and dying for sheer patriotism, for dear old UNC!

"Roger, I have bled and died for lo!, two years now," The Horse sighed. "At first, full columns each day, and that's six a week, count 'em. Then, half-columns six times weekly. Later, this simmered to columns thrice weekly until a style and an alleged following had been established. Following that, we kept fairly well to thrice weekly. And through all this time errata multiplied as the copy lessened. At times, even I could not understand what I had been trying to say. Ah, the pity of it all!"

So what, of all this computation of copy?

"Several things," The Horse supplied immediately, almost as if he knew I was going to ask this. "If I donate copy free from charge. I have a right to roar and rant over its butchery. If I cleave to former commercial habits — for even an infinitessimal sum per column — I shrug it off and say, 'Okay, it's his property, let him cut The Horse's throat if he doesn't give a dang.' But even then, an author doesn't like to see his child's sternum — this means, Roger, chest bone — kicked. Then there is the matter of the 'cut' of The Horse. It marked my column and sort of carried the idea."

Yes; and besides, people could see instantly it was The Horse, and turn elsewhere. I sidestepped nimbly and The Horse's hooves missed by inches.

"And Mrs. O'Horse has a quaint idea I am at an age and a simultaneous state of fiscal disease where my tappings on the typer should be production of a few cobs," The Horse mourned. "I find it hard to argue I am needed by the DTH when such prosy truths are fed me."

Well, how much had The Horse's writing for the DTH amounted to?

"Depending on spacing," The Horse judged, "a column can hold up to twelve hundred words. Let's say it averages nine hundred. Let's say the old width and depth measured six hundred words, at a minimum. That adds to three thousand words of copy a week, yes? I flatter myself I could earn a penny a word if I spent like time commercially. But what really sticks me is, I have two books under way, one of which could and should have been finished several years ago. Frankly, I don't think anybody writes a book until he is ready to write it, for whatever reason there is, financial or creatively compulsive. But it goes without saying the hundred thousand words or so I have battered out for DTH might have gone into the book. I find myself without further excuse to delay further. A few cobs a week for my stuff could give me a semi-plausible excuse, catch?"

Well, yes, but —

"But me no but, lad," The Horse said. "Not alone is the die cast, but the cast of Horse, Frog and Giraffe is dyed a deep, commercial hue. Other columns eke pay, why should I refuse to let my columns merit the same small, if grudging, crackling appreciation? Besides, I am a copyrighted Horse, and chances look that a Horse column of a different subject mater, but like handling, will be appearing on commercial newsstands ere another era has screamed into oblivion. My prospective employers might not look with favor on my giving their (then) property away. This proposed way, whatever stipulations are entered into would be subject to my DTH work being not their affair."

Zounds, but this was businesslike for a Horse notorious for his cool (and to Mrs. O'Horse, unrealistic) disregard for and of the greenish quad pro quo popular along East and West Franklin! The Horse was indeed turning!

"Yeah," The Horse yupped me, proudly. "Now, it doesn't make much difference when a worm turns, because it is the same on all sides. But when a Horse turns — well, people take notice."

I feared The Horse was only too right: that his stand on this question would cause many to not alone remark on his turning, but call him New Directional in uncomplimentary terms. Could I say that The Horse is ask — I ducked the whistling hooves again, and continued more rapidly. The Horse is asking understanding?

"Well, that would be nice, too, but I do not insist on the impossible," The Horse shrugged. "I will settle for the return of the Cut, some better proofreading, and a few cobs. I'll even throw in half-column lengths."

What! He'd jjust been horsing around — excuse it: beefing — about full columns.

Halves make better reading, and twice the work," The Horse said. He cleared his throat and half the campus area, simultaneously. "Ten-shun." he barked, proving he has more than a bit of dog in him. "Attack, men! To the rear, I mean!"

And away they went in triple-deck style: Mr. Neckley skyward; The Horse in the middle; and Mr. Wump wumping along in his low-vision place.

And . . . thank you-all, you-all Tar Heels. It's been a pleasant race . . . . .

Carolina Swimmers Get First Action Today In NCAA Tank Tourney

By BOB COLBERT

Oxford, Ohio, March 25—(Special)—More than 200 swimmers representing 50 colleges and eight foreign countries, in addition to the Territory of Hawaii, are gathered here at the University of Miami for the 32nd annual NCAA swimming championships this weekend.

Of the collection, 12 swimmers are veterans of the 1952 Oylmpics and more than 40 are among last year's collegiate all-americans.

The meet got under way last night with the swimming of the 1,500 meter free-style, won by Ford Konne, of Ohio State.

The Tar Heel entries got their first test today as trials begin in the 50-yard freestyle and the 200-yard backstroke. Dick Baker will compete in the 50 while Charlie Kropp will swim the backstroke for Carolina.

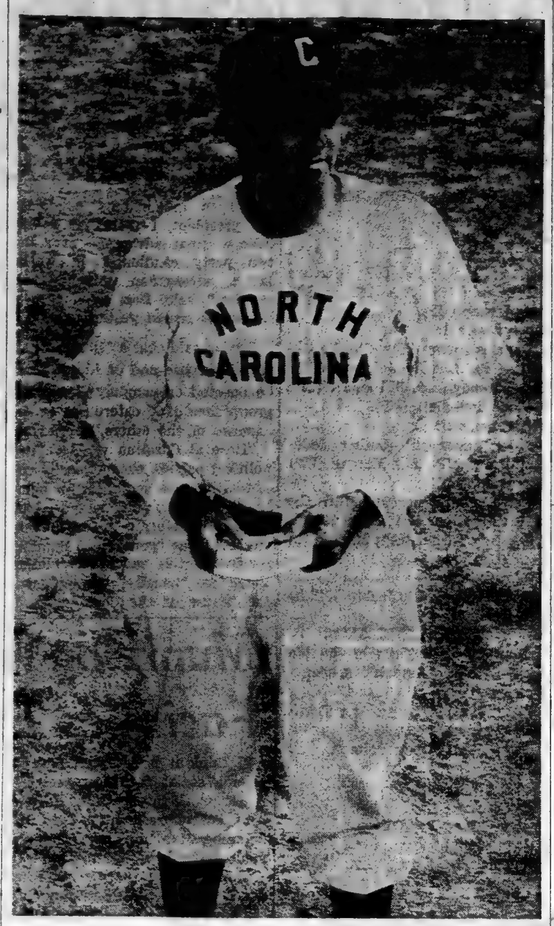
Saturday Phil Drake will swim the 200-yard butterfly breaststroke, Kropp the 100-yard backstroke, and the intercollegiate 300-yard medley relay recordholders, Kropp, Baker and Drake, will try to better their record against this competition.

Defending champions Ohio State are favored to take the team championship. Yale, champions in 1953, are expected to give the Buckeyes some strong competition.

The events will be held in the John Shaw Billings Natorium, a structure of three years' age on the Miami campus. The pool is 75 x 42 feet and seating for about 800 people is provided. The walls, except for the seats and the office, are all glass and the ceiling has full accoustical tilling.

Why do more college men and women smoke VICEROYS than any other filter cigarette?

BECAUSE ONLY VICEROY GIVES YOU A PURE, NON-MINERAL, NON-TOXIC FILTER WITH 20,000 FILTER TRAPS IN EVERY FILTER TIP!



1. Yes, only Viceroy has this filter composed of 20,000 tiny filter traps. You cannot obtain the same filtering action in any other cigarette.
2. Besides being non-mineral and non-toxic, this cellulose-acetate filter never shreds or crumbles.
3. The Viceroy filter wasn't just whipped up and rushed to market to meet the new and skyrocketing demand for filtered cigarettes. Viceroy pioneered. Started research more than 20 years ago to create the pure and perfect filter.
4. Smokers en masse report that filtered Viceroys have a finer flavor even than cigarettes without filters. Rich, satisfying, yet pleasantly mild.
5. Viceroy draws so easily that you wouldn't know, without looking, that it even had a filter tip . . . and Viceroys cost only a penny or two more than cigarettes without filters!

That's why more college men and women smoke VICEROYS than any other filter cigarette . . . that's why VICEROY is the largest-selling filter cigarette in the world!

20,000 TINY FILTER TRAPS . . . plus Richer, Smoother Flavor

Carolina-Tech Game In Florida Rained Out

COACH WALTER RABB
". . . dad-burned Florida rainy season"

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

There is a new figure among the freshmen and varsity players now drilling on off-season basketball each afternoon in Woollen Gym, and he is easily distinguished among the six-footers not only by his size, but by his shooting ability.

The boy is sophomore Kenny Rosemond, 24 years old, married, a Navy veteran. He is only 5'-10" tall, which puts him in the Tommy Kearns-Charley Adams class.

But this guy has a set shot which no doubt is about the best on the team, and it was just developed with the aid of Coach Buck Freeman.

Rosemond played for Appalachian in 1948, then saw service with the Navy at San Diego and Norfolk, playing ball in both places. He got in the habit of becoming a "driving" ballplayer and he's good at that also.

But he can pop them in from outside with the best, and he should considerably aid the Tar Heels in that aspect.

★ ★

Buddy Baarcke, the former UNC swimming star who opened eyes with his record-breaking performances in the trials for the Pan American games, came through with a third place in the 100-meter backstroke championships.

Baarcke, of Clearwater, Fla., was also a member of America's winning 400-meter relay team.

Baarcke's third in the backstroke smacks of uncleanliness. He had a faster time than did the second-place winner, Pedro Galvao, of Argentina—1:07.6 to 1:07.8. The judges over-ruled the timers.

★ ★

Herb Lodder, sports editor of the Duke Chronicle, is again sounding off on the inadequate athletic facilities at that school.

"Duke does not have enough coaches," he says. "There are not adequate locker room facilities, also."

"The first two objections could be overlooked, however, if there were adequate playing fields." He explains that some fields are actually parking lots, another is the outfield of the varsity baseball diamond. He points out that the varsity soccer team plays on a parking lot.

"The swimming pool is clearly unsatisfactory. Only four lanes wide, the pool looks extremely outmoded when compared with those of UNC." Hooray! A Blue Devil admits Tar Heel superiority.

He also admits that collegiate athletics are not for the spectator but principally for the participant.

The idea he is trying to get across is that Duke needs some improvement in the athletic set-up—such as inexpensive, portable backstops for diamonds and sod (free of glass and stones) to cover the parking lots.

Carolina can use the same thing on our intramural field, which is employed as a lot every now and then.

Six Carolina Golfers Play In Invitational

Six Carolina golfers will be slamming their tees this weekend in the 10th annual Azalea Invitation Golf Tournament at Charleston, S. C.

Aubrey Rothrock, the current South Carolina amateur champ, and Jimmy Sykes, holder of the Pennsylvania title, are leading the Carolina aggregation.

Also included in the group are Billy Lord, Bob Sisk, Joe Correll and Larry Parker.

Qualifying rounds for the tournament were played yesterday.

The 32 golfers who qualified will go on the meet with their qualifying scores being counted as the first round of play. The 72 - hole meet will continue through Sunday. Match play will govern other flights.

Tar Heels Play Two Today vs Rollins, Ohio

Team Has Bat Drill After Skies Clear

By JAKE WADE

UNC Sports Publicist

Winter Park, Florida, March 24—(Special)—Probably the nation's most disappointed group of athletes today was Carolina's baseball squad as the result of having its opening game of the season with Georgia Tech here called off on account of rain and wet grounds.

Sophomore pitcher Jim Raugh was warmed up and set to go. There had been a spirited infield workout. Everybody, from the bat boy up to Coaches Bunn Hearn and Walter Rabb, were sitting and ready when, in weather much less undesirable than they had been accustomed to during many of their drills back home, the powers that be decided the game should not be played.

THE SKIES were overcast and there was a slight drizzle but the Tar Heels, anxious to get started, thought conditions were satisfactory for a contest. Tech, which had played two games yesterday, and is billed to meet Florida tomorrow, was of a different opinion. Hosts for Rollins College "Baseball Week" agreed with Tech.

Friday in this baseball marathon Carolina plays a double-header with Ohio State at 1 p.m. and Rollins at 3:30 p.m. The game with Tech was cancelled.

Alabama and Virginia Tech participated in earlier games during the program and each wound up with a 2-2 record. Rollins, last year's runner-up in the national collegiates, is 3-2 and is the favorite to come out on top in the spring training season foray.

BEFORE THE game was called off, Carolina's starting batting order was announced as follows: Chuck Hartman, third base; Jack Woods, shortstop; Bobby Paller, right field; Connie Gravitte, center field; Tom Zachary, first base; Albert Long, shortstop; Mal Harding, left field; Jimmy Love, catcher; and Jim Raugh, pitcher.

A North Carolina boy, Burton Grant of Wilmington, had been slated to pitch for Georgia Tech.

The Tar Heels, who had a pleasant but uneventful train trip down, with a side excursion to Silver Springs, had a long batting practice under clearing skies after the game was called off.

In The Majors!

Marion Insists Chicago Tops

TAMPA, Sla., March 24—(AP)—Marty Marion, managing his third major league team in five years, is convinced this is the first time he is opening a season with a bona fide contender.

Not many agree with him when he insists his Chicago White Sox who wound up third last year, 17 games back, will finish ahead of Cleveland and New York this year. It is a good ball club, but as in previous years, it is short a long ball hitting outfielder and a third baseman who can be depended upon to play 150 games.

Skeptics believe Marion's optimism is the result of his firing by Baltimore last year when he frankly told his employers the type of club they had purchased from St. Louis. But those who know Marion are convinced he is sincere in his appraisal of the White Sox.

"It's a club we are happy about right now," the tall, lanky, former Mr. Shortstop of the National League, said. "We believe we have a chance to go all the way. We won 94 games last year which is enough to win a pennant but not in a season when one team wins 111 games and another 103.

"You can bet me that Cleveland won't win 111 again and I don't believe the Yankees can claim the pennant just because they acquired Bob Turley. It is my opinion that Turley still has to prove he's a real pitcher instead of just a thrower. I'll concede he can throw hard, maybe harder than anybody in the league. But just let him lose a little of that zip off his fast ball and see what happens.

Baker-Mederos On TV Tonight

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Bob Baker, the No. 3 heavyweight in the land, takes on Julio Mederos, until three weeks ago an unknown from Havana, in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Mederos became a fistic celebrity overnight when he knocked out Roland La Starza in the fifth round in Miami Beach March 2. Until then, La Starza never had been down for the count.

When Harold Johnson withdrew from his scheduled bout with Baker because of a cold, the International Boxing Club grabbed Mederos. He's being thrown in against a ring-wise veteran who would like to get a shot at the heavyweight title, so Baker has been installed as 7-2 favorite.

Not much is known about Mederos, except that he has done most of his fighting around Miami, stopped La Starza, was trained by Jake La Motta at one time and speaks no English.

It also goes without saying that he must have a punch, judging by his job on La Starza. He also is reputed to be fast for a big guy. He stands 6-1, weighs 195 and is 22 years old.

"I believe we have better pitching than the Yankees, but not as much as the Indians. Defensively, we're better than Cleveland and about on a par with New York. The Indians have the edge on us in the long ball department but we are better offensively than the Yankes."

The White Sox' lineup is set with only three positions on the eventual 25-man squad still in contention. Two of them are on the pitching staff and the other is the fifth outfield spot.

One of the reasons for Marion's optimism is the tremendous new depth acquired by the White Sox bench which last year was as thin as a fungo bat. Marty is especially high on Jim Bridesweser, who is enjoying a fine spring both in hitting and fielding. Bridesweser can play any infield position but is best at short and second. Bill Serena probably will back up George Kell at third base, Phil Cavarretta is behind Walter Dropo at first and Bob Nieman is the fourth outfielder behind Minnie Minoso, Jim Rivera and Johnny Groth. The fifth flychaser probably will be Lloyd Merriman, obtained via waivers from Cincinnati.

UNC Thinclads Invade Gainsville For Relays

15 Carolina Athletes To Compete With Stars Of Other Top Southern Teams For High Honors

By RAY LINKER

Gainesville, Florida, March 25—(Special)—Weary from their long journey of more than 500 miles, 15 members of the North Carolina track team rolled into this north-central Florida community shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. They were among the first of over 20 college teams who will be invading the University of Florida today and tomorrow in anticipation of winning honors in Saturday's annual Florida Relays.

After resting from their long trip, which took almost 15 hours, the team will go through light exercises this afternoon as a final preparation for the meet.

The Carolinians will enter almost every event in hopes of bettering their third place in the unofficial team score of last year. They will have to reckon with the host University of Florida team, Auburn, and other strong Southeastern Conference teams.

CHARLIE YARBOROUGH (pole vault and broad jump) and Roger Morris (shot and discus) will pace the Tar Heels in the field events. Ken Bryant in the high jump and Steve Marcinko in the javelin throw are expected to score high for UNC, also. Bob Wilson (high and broad jump) and Larry Mashow (shot put) will also perform for the UNC thinclads in the field events.

The Tar Heels had planned to enter four of the five relays but since their personnel is limited, they may be forced to cut this to two or three because of the Florida heat. The UNC men will defend their title in the sprint medley relay and hope to enter the distance medley, the 440-relay, and the two-mile relay.

OCCUPYING VARIOUS positions on the one or more relay teams will be Don Wright, Bill Booth, Boyd Newnam, Bob Barden, Jim Beatty, Claude Rhule, Charlie Scott, Don Mitchell, and Wilson.

Mitchell (and possibly Scott) will enter the 100-yard dash. Rhule and Scott are slated to run the high hurdles, and Glenn Nanney is scheduled for the two-mile, with Barden and Beatty as possible entries.

ON BEING FIT TO LIVE WITH

By Harry Emerson Fosdick

We can't guarantee that this collection of frank and friendly sermons will make a new man of you, but they will certainly show you where there is room for improvement. Published at $2.00.

Our Special

- $1.00

There's a bargain just for you at

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

A Campus-to-Career Case History

He keeps up with 440,000 customers

"I used to think accountants wore green eye shades and sat on high stools," John Merrick will tell you. "That's before I started working in a modern accounting department.

"I trained for about a year and a half in different phases of telephone accounting. Then I was placed in charge of the section which maintains telephone service records. I have more than 60 people in my group with four supervisors reporting to me. Our job is to keep a running record of monthly charges for 140 exchanges in Central Massachusetts. That comes to 440,000 different customers.

"Customers expect their bills on time and they want their charges to be right. So on my job my primary concern is to maintain constant and rapid production and at the same time keep our work accurate and reliable. One of the best ways to do this is to be sure that 'the right person is on the right job at the right time,' an old cliche. But I found it works and it gives me a chance to use my Sociology training since it means handling all sorts of personnel situations."

John finished Bates College in 1952 with a degree in Sociology, and started with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. His work is typical of many assignments in the Bell telephone companies. The opportunities open for college graduates with other operating companies of the Bell Telephone System are many and varied—also with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation. Your Placement Officer has full details.

BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

YOU PAYS YOUR MONEY AND YOU TAKES YOUR PICK:

Here Are Candidates In Next Tuesday's Election

WUNC-TV Director Says Building Station Takes Time

"The development of all potentialities of an educational television station requires many months of experimentation before the programs which can best serve all portions of the viewer audience can be determined," Robert F. Schenkkan, director of television, Consolidated University of North Carolina, said in an address here last night.

Schenkkan addressed a banquet session of a Junior League Radio-TV Workshop being held at the University of North Carolina.

During the day the delegates were briefed on radio, motion picture and TV facilities at the University, and studied telecast procedures.

Larry Walker, TV director for Station WSOC in Charlotte, and Frank Jarman, WDNC in Durham, spoke on "Station Relations" at a luncheon session.

"WUNC-TV, the University's educational TV station, is one of the best things that has ever happened to radio and television in North and South Carolina," Walker said. He commented on the "good training, which radio-TV students at UNC are now receiving, both through the Communication Center and the WUNC-TV facilities, which prepares them to step into key jobs in the two Carolinas."

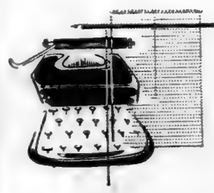
Schenkkan, in his dinner address at the Carolina Inn, noted that WUNC-TV is "attempting something that practically no other station would dare, in scheduling a farm program at 8 o'clock in the evening, when commercial stations are carrying their best entertainment.

"If, through this program, we can reach just 20,000 North Carolina farmers and help them raise their annual income $1,000 each, the state benefits from increased taxes on this added income alone, will compensate for our expenditures," Schenkkan said.

Schenkkan added that some critics feel that the educational programs are not academic enough, while other critics describe them as too much like textbook material.

"Our problem is to determine when we should present each type of program to the various interest groups in our TV audience," he said.

Shining Shoes



Jerry Martin and Hugh Upton, UP candidates for legislature from dorm men's III, announced yesterday they are in the shoe-shining business.

"We figured that the boys wouldn't mind listening to us campaign if we shined their shoes while we talked," said the two candidates.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
brings you the true taste of Tareyton's famous quality tobacco
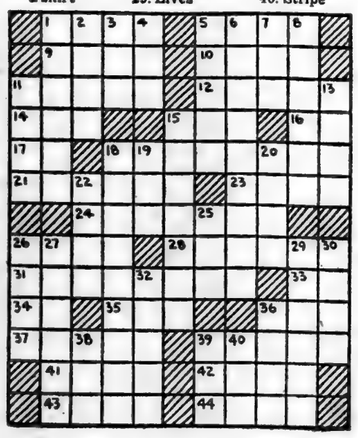
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

PERSONAL TYPING
New Classes Begin March 28
For information, call new number, 9-2681

Town Classes
for college men and women
159½ E. Franklin St.
(over Sutton's Drug Store)



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Revolve
5. Spoken
9. Walking stick
10. Withered
11. Backbone
12. Young sheep
14. Tray for carrying bricks
15. Fabulous bird
16. Music note
17. American moth
18. Kind of nut
21. Kind of wine
23. Electrified particles
24. A box for cigars
26. Sacred bull (Egypt)
28. Long table scarf
31. Pagans
33. Greek letter
34. Elevated train (shortened)
35. Island in Aegean sea
36. Little sister
37. Fashions
39. Mistreat
41. Trial
42. Male red deer
43. Emmets
44. Greek god of war

DOWN
1. Institution of learning
2. Put out, as money
3. Small hotel
4. Born
5. Capital of Norway (poss.)
6. Responsive actions
7. Fortify
8. President of France 1932-1940
11. Stylish
13. Places
15. Withdraws
18. Having most crust
19. Edge of a skirt
20. Teutonic demi-goddess
22. Biblical name (D.)
25. Demand as payment
26. Exclamation
27. Game played with curved wicker racket (Span.)
29. Lives
30. Ascend
32. Multitudes
36. Certain
38. A lion's cave
39. Exclamation
40. Stripe

COPE		CLAP				ASEA		HOUR
GRIN		TINKER				AVENTINE		DU
TER		ELASTIC				PAL		OUCH
SPEAR		SMITE				ERIN		POE
DERAILS		DEE				ET		CROONERS
REPEAT		AVES				NEAT		EPIC
DANE		MELT

Yesterday's Answer

Covering The Campus

The Graham Memorial Activities Board will hold its final banquet of the year Monday night at 6 o'clock in the Carolina Inn Ballroom, according to a GMAB spokesman.

The banquet will welcome the new officers and honor the retiring officers and committee members. Invitations for the free banquet have already been sent out, said the spokesman.

The event will be informal, and entertainment will be provided.

★

Dr. Elmer G. Butler, professor of zoology at Princeton University, will give a lecture on "Cellular Reactions in Repair and Regeneration" on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the hospital auditorium. Dr. Butler is the managing editor of the Journal of Morphology, president of the Union American Biological Societies.

★

Alpha Pi Omega service fraternity will hold an open rush meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the APO Room of Graham Memorial. All students are invited.

★

Dean Fred Weaver and Tom Creasy, president of the student body, will arrive in Boston, Mass., today to participate as UNC representatives in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology national intercollegiate conference on "Selectivity and Discrimination in American Universities."

Over 200 students and deans from more than 70 colleges throughout the nation are taking part in the conference, which is being sponsored by Undergraduate Student Association of MIT.

★

Cadet Colonel Stephen J. Opitz is attending the annual Cadet Commanders conference which is being held at the Pennsylvania State University at University Park, Pennsylvania, according to Cadet Lt. Colonel Claude J. Johns.

Opitz is commander of the AFROTC Arnold Air Society.

★

Officers for the coming year were elected by members of Phi Delta Kappa education fraternity at a smoker held Wednesday evening.

The officers elected are Arthur Linksley, president; Robert Hanes, vice-president; Claude Rickman, secretary-treasurer, and Dr. W. D. Perry, faculty sponsor. Thirty-three persons working for degrees in the School of Education here were elected to membership also.

CLASSIFIEDS

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

STUDENT WANTED TO SOLICIT, For couple hours each day. Little sales ability and personality all that is required. If interested contact Rowe Tyepwriter at 103½ West Parish street in Durham. Telephone 53901.

By JOE TERRELL

Here is a complete list of the people that will be hoping for your votes on Tuesday.

Running for president of the student body are Don Fowler, Independent; Ed McCurry, University Party, and Manning Muntzing, Student Party.

Vice-president candidates are Bob Harrington (SP) and Jack Stevens (UP).

Jane Cocke (UP) and Joan Palmer (SP) are running for secretary.

Running for treasurer are Joe Correll (SP), and Jim Martin (UP).

For head cheerleader there are Collie Collison and Pepper Tice.

Running as co-editors of The Daily Tar Heel are Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder, unopposed.

Jim Beatty (UP) and Roland Perdue (SP) are running for president of the Carolina Athletic Association.

Jimmy Raugh (UP) and Ed Sutton(SP) are running for vice president of C.A.A.

SENIOR CLASS

The candidates for senior class officers are:

President:
Scotty Hester (SP), Ogburn Yates (UP).

Vice-president:
Ken Anderson (UP), Jerry Vayda (SP).

Secretary:
Faye Abell (SP), Judy Talley (UP).

Treasurer:
Susan Fuchs (SP), Dave Whitaker (UP).

Social Chairman:
Kitty Coleman (UP), Ancy Hoover (SP).

SOPHOMORES

Running for the sophomore class offices are:

President:
Ken Clark (SP), Jim Kimzey (UP).

Vice-president:
Steve Phelps (UP), Marilyn Watson (SP).

Secretary:
Amy Morse (SP and UP).

Treasurer:
David Weinburger (SP), George Johnson (UP).

Social Chairman:
Nancy Nussear (SP and UP).

STUDENT LEGISLATURE

The candidates for seats in the student Legislature in dorm men's I are:

Teddy Kemp (SP), Al Laughinghouse (SP); Ned Meekins (UP), Buzz Merritt (UP).

Dorm men's II:
Will Conn (UP), Ed Gaines (UP); John Heath (SP), Jim Holmes (SP).

Dorm men's III:
(Year seat) Jerry Clark (SP); Tom Davis (UP), Jerry Martin (UP); Andy Milnor (SP.
(Six months seat) Ray Long (SP), Hugh Upton (UP).

Dorm men's IV:
Bennie Craven (SP), Harley Gilleland (SP), Tom Lambeth (SP); Lloyd Lohr (UP), Phil Malone (UP), John Raper (UP); Vade Rhoades (SP).

Dorm men's V:
Gees Davis (SP), Larry McElroy (SP); Jay Walker (UP), John Zollicoffer (UP).

Dorm women:
Susan Andes (UP); Donna Ashcraft (SP); Sue ink (SP); Barbara Fleshman (UP); Ann Miser (SP), Ann Wrenn (UP).

Town men's I:
Charles Ashby (SP); Charlie Covell (UP), Charlie Johnson (UP); Bill Maready (SP), Bill Moore (SP); Mebane Pritchett (UP).

Town men's II:
Allen Bader (SP), Luther Hodges (SP and UP), Bill Morgan (UP).

Town men's III:
Jerry Boudreau (SP), Bill Cyr (SP); Bill Elder (UP), Bob Hornik (UP); Dan Turner (SP); Mike Weinman (UP).

Town women:
Kit Malloy (UP); Jackie Wilkins (SP and UP).

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSN.

Running for offices in the Women's Athletic Association are:

President:
Trudy Lefler, Laura Ann Travis.

Vice-president:
Amy Morse, Joan Palmer.

Secretary:
Anne Williams.

Treasurer:
Ann Miser, Pat Oliver.

The candidates for Awards Chairman is Betty Stacy.

WRC

Nan Brown and Sue Fink are running for president of the Women's Residence Council.

MEN'S HONOR COUNCIL

In the Men's Honor Council, the following are seeking the sophomore seat:

Sonny Evans, Macan Patton, Kelly Maness.

Junior Seat:
Quincy Ayscue, Bob Jacobus, Bill Morgan, Townsend Holt, Mebane Pritchett.

Senior Seat:
Dick Baker, Don Huntington, Noel Petree, Graham Shanks, Earl Garett, Charles Katzenstein, Robert Pullman.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Candidates for the Student Council are Sally Cowles, Jane Edwards, Jane Howie and Jean Robertson.

Seats-at-large in the Student Council—Jim Allen, Buddy Harper, Bob Kimzey, Pat Patrick, Jim Raugh and Mike Soper.

Candidates for junior seats on the Women's Honor Council are Peggy Ballard, Cary Caperton, Marietta Everett, Gail Lawson, Martha May, Connie McMahon, Dutchie Milligan, Joan Palmer, and Joan Purser.

The two candidates for the seat-at-large are Barbara Hedburg and Mary Ann Keeter.

Graham Says UN Lives

ASHEVILLE, March 24 (AP)—Speaking here tonight at the opening general session of the North Carolina Education Association, Dr. Frank P. Graham said the "United Nations is not in a building on the Island of Manhatten, but it is in the minds and hearts of the people reaching around the world."

Dr. Graham, as a principal convention speaker, spoke on the place of the United Nations in the world's hopes for peace.

He said that, in time, and with patience and understanding, the state would follow the rulings of the Supreme Court, in guaranteeing full educational advantages for all its children.

Independent Fowler For 'Spirit Of Unity'

"As an independent candidate for president, I feel that I will have a great advantage over the two party candidates in working to strengthen unity on the campus," said Don Fowler in a statement issued yesterday.

Fowler said that a "spirit of unity, of purpose and of ideas" must be enacted on campus. "No single group should be catered to at the expense of the others," he added.

"Here at Carolina we have two political parties, each basically representing two segments on campus," said the independent candidate. He referred to the University Party as "generally" standing for fraternities, and to the Student Party as "usually" championing the "cause of the dormitories. It is my ambition as an independent candidate to, as much as possible, eliminate this favoritism," said Fowler. "I will work towards bringing the student body together on a campus-wide basis."

Fowler said in his statement that a student government is needed for which each student on campus can work and through which each student can express himself.

"No one should be silenced or his efforts minimized because he does not belong to a particular segment," said the presidential hopeful.

"This ambition, if attained, will put more meaning into the 'Carolina way of life' than ever existed before," Fowler concluded.

Muntzing Wants Social Facilities Extended

"I think it is essential that we extend social facilities, especially for weekend needs," said Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing in a statement made yesterday.

Muntzing proposed the extension due to the fact that "Saturday classes have made it necessary for many more students to stay on campus on the weekends."

The SP candidate said an extension of the "facilities and services of the student union to other locations on and off campus" is needed now. He proposed that the old Veterans' Club, the east basement of Cobb dormitory and the Victory Village Recreation Center be "staffed and equipped with the help of the union for use by students and student groups."

Muntzing also said he would like to see "students and student government interested and helping with the coming development of the land granted to the University at Kerr Dam near Danville."

"In the Graham Memorial building itself," added the presidential hopeful, "the patio outside the Rendezvous Room should be developed for dancing in the fall and spring."

Muntzing concluded that these things can be done "if the students really want them," adding that 'the president of the student body, as chairman of the Graham Memorial Board of Directors, can be directly influential in accomplishing them."

NROTC Team Meets USC Here Saturday

The Naval ROTC Rifle teams from UNC and the University of South Carolina will meet in a shoulder-to-shoulder match Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Naval Armory, according to Capt. Frank Good, USMC, officer-in-charge of the North Carolina team.

Good said this would be the first firing for a large, new NROTC Rotating Rifle Trophy to be awarded annually after competition among UNC, USC, and Duke NROTC teams.

Tech. Sgt. John A. Quinn, USMC, coach of the Chapel Hill team, said today that the Saturday match is expected to be close as both teams have enviable past records. The South Carolina team placed both in the 3rd Army Area matches and their State ROTC matches last year.

JAZZ AT THE SADDLE CLUB
SATURDAY
MUSIC BY THE SYMPHONIC SIX

None For NSA

No one will be running for chairman of the National Students Association in Tuesday's election, chairman of the Elections Board Patsy Daniels announced yesterday.

The chairman of NSA will be appointed by the incoming president of the student body, Daniels said.

This year's NSA chairman is Chal Schley.

LADY MILTON SHOP

Just received additional styles in our fabulous short sleeve shirts at $4.95

Lady Hathaway has gone lowbrow and can now easily fit into your budget. Just received sleeveless batiste shirts in fabulous array of colors—at only

$4.95

You'll want several at these low prices

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U N C Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER

Cloudy, cool and chance of rain today, with expected high of 58.

The Daily Tar Heel

SHOGUNATE

There's a sunshiney shogunate thriving on the Potomac. Today's editorial colum treats this subject. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 126 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

PIANIST-TWINS BARBREE & SHIRLEE PRESTWOOD
... will play tonight at Consolidated University fete

CU Event's Tonight

The last Consolidated University event of this year will be held today at Womans' College in Greensboro.

Festivities, which include open house, a talent show and dance, will be in WC's student union, Elliott Hall.

The events, slated to begin at 5 p.m., will be climaxed by 9 p.m. with Reg Marshall and orchestra providing music until midnight.

Larry Ford, chairman of the UNC delegation, urged "all students" to attend the CU night. No admission price will be charged, according to Ford.

The next CU event will be held in the fall at the Carolina-State football game in Raleigh.

At WC Tonight

Pretty tap dancer Patsy Petit will perform at Consolidated University Night tonight at Woman's College, Greensboro. Festivities start at 5 p.m. in Elliott Hall, and dance will be held at 9 p.m.

the Ballot Box

Presidential hopeful Ed McCurry dropped by yesterday and confirmed something.

Asked if he was going to win on the University Party ticket Tuesday, McCurry said: "I'm still hopeful."

* * *

Ballot Boxscore stood like this as of yesterday:

Don Fowler, Independent presidental candidate, has made six statements so far. He has said he is for leaving fraternity affairs to the Interfraternity council; he favors a student Constitution amendment reconstructing the Student Council; wants a "junior partnership" between students and administration; is in favor of a "spirit of unity" between campus political parties. He disagreed with Student Party Candidate Manning Muntzing that a student traffic court should be set up.

On segregation, Candidate Fowler gave (like the other candidates) a very weak statement. He (like the other candidates) had to be asked for a statement concerning the Supreme Court's ruling. "As American citizens," said Fowler, "we must take cognizance of" the fact that "the Supreme Court has abolished segregation." Folwer called for a "great deal of consideration" and asked students to "strive for a solution which will benefit all citizens of North Carolina."

Fowler entered the campaign as an independent March 14. His campaign is being managed by Gordon Forester.

FOUR DAYS UNTIL ELECTION

* * *

University Party Candidate Ed McCurry, who became a candidate March 7, has seven statements to his credit.

McCurry wants to give students 25 percent of campus store profits; he wants changes in the cut system; closer liaison between students and student government; a sub-Graham Memorial in the old Vets' Club building; high school student government workshop; closer work with dormitory residents.

Like the other candidates, McCurry had nothing to say on segregation. He admitted it, though.

On March 7, the Student Party named Manning Muntzing its candidate for president. Muntzing chose Sam (Buddy) Wells his campaign manager. Muntzing has seven statements beside his name.

The SP candidate wants a student traffic court; a study day at the ends of semesters (like WC); return on dormitory vending machine profits; he's "aware" of the UNC Band's situation; he doesn't like the high cost of tickets for students dates at athletic events; he has made what he called a statement on segregation—"I hope that the student body and student government will work together to meet the situation"—and he wants weekend social facilities to be extended.

* * *

All presidential candidates have lifted items from each other's programs. They have not been ashamed because they lifted items.

They need not be ashamed. None of the items mentioned so far has been controversial enough to worry about.—F. P.

UP FOR VOTE TUESDAY:

Amendment Deals With Interdormitory Council

Four amendments to the student Constitution will be presented to the student body for a vote in Tuesday's election. One proposed amendment, to give student government Attorney General specific powers, was published yesterday. Two others are printed today. The first, below, deals with Interdormitory Council. The second, on page four, concerns student nurses.

A BILL TO AMEND THE OFFICIAL STUDENT CONSTITUTION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Whereas: Through practice, Interdormitory representatives, elected by the individual dormitories, have taken the place of advisors appointed by the University as members of the Interdormitory Council; and

Whereas: Interdormitory Council officers elected in the spring automatically hold over and eliminate the necessity for any other hold-over members; and

Whereas: A social program in the residences, as directed by the Interdormitory Council, for the residents of the dormitories has proven very effective; and

Whereas: A chairman and clerk of the Interdormitory Council Court eliminate the necessity of a hold-over member of the Court;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ENACTED BY THE STUDENT LEGISLATURE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, THAT

Article I. The official student Constitution of the University of North Carolina shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. Article I, Section 10. Men's Interdormitory Council. The Men's Interdormitory Council shall be composed of the presidents of the men's dormitories and the IDC representatives elected by the dormitories. The Men's Interdormitory Council shall choose its own officers in the spring to serve until the following spring. The officers of the Interdormitory Council shall have the power to authorize and carry out dormitory elections, and no election shall be valid without their authorization. The Men's Interdormitory Council shall have power to

a. make rules affecting conduct of men in dormitories.

b. represent dormitory men in dealings with the university.

c. promote social activities in the dormitory for the residents.

d. provide for continuation and operation of the Council and Court during summer school.

Section 2. Article I, Section 11. Men's Dormitory Execuitve Committee. The Men's Dormitory Executive Committee shall be composed of the president, vice-president, secretary-trasurer and IDC representative. The Executive Committee shall have power to make such special rules concerning conduct in the respective men's dormitories as shall not conflict with the rulings of the student Legislature and Men's Interdormitory Council; and each Dormitory Executive Committee shall have power to plan and propose all activities of the respective dormitories.

Section 3. Article II, Section 2, Sub-section F. Men's Interdormitory Council Court. The Men's Interdormitory Council Court shall have original jurisdiction in all cases involving infraction of dormitory rules of conduct as outlined in the by-laws of the Men's Interdormitory Court, and as stipulated on each individual door, and in all cases involving damage to dormitory property.

Section 4. Article II, Section 3, Subsection F. Men's Interdormitory Council Court. The Men's Interdormitory Council Court shall be composed of five members elected by and from the Interdormitory Council in the fall and a chairman and clerk of the Interdormitory Council Court elected by the preceding Men's Interdormitory Council in the spring.

Article II. These amendments upon passage by the student Legislature shall be put to the student body for approval in the next special or regular election authorized by the student Legislature.

(See other amendment, page 4.)

GEN. MATTHEW RIDGWAY
... speaks Monday

Ridgway To Speak Monday

General Matthew Ridgway will speak at the first spring program of the Carolina Forum Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Following the speech there will be a reception for the speaker in the GM Lounge. The general will attend the reception and then leave immediately for Washington.

Graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, April 29, 1917, Ridgway has led an illustrious military life. In 1942 he was promoted to brigadier general and in 1951 he became a full general. It was at this time that he was serving as commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command in the Far East. In 1952 he was named Supreme Commander, Allied Powers in Europe, succeeding Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Archibald Henderson's Wife Dies In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, March 25 (AP)—Mrs. Archibald Henderson, wife of George Bernard Shaw's official biographer, died last night at a nursing home here after a long illness.

Her husband retired several years ago as head of the University of North Carloina mathematics department.

The funeral will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Burial will be at Fletcher.

TUESDAY'S THE DAY...

Prexy Candidates Make Last Talks Before Elections

Student body presidential candidates made their last statements yesterday before Tuesday's election.

Candidates Ed McCurry (University Party), Manning Muntzing (Student Party) and Don Fowler (Independent) made statements.

Muntzing Wants Thinking Board

"I should like to see established what I would call a student thinking board, composed of students from every segment of the University, said the Student Party's presidential candidate yesterday.

Manning Muntzing said he proposes such a board due to the fact that the student government often acts on matters which are vital to the whole student body "only when it is too late." He said Saturday classes, new cut system and present possibility of an increase in tuition and dorm rents are examples of matters on which student government has acted too late.

"This board would see that student government is not caught napping, but would look to the

(See MUNTZING, page 4)

Fowler Outlines Plans

"Every stand that I have taken has been one which I believe in, and one which can, by hard work, be effected in the coming year," said Don Fowler, independent presidential candidate, yesterday.

Fowler said throughout his campaign he has been urged to make promises to many groups on campus which "have ranged from promising the vets a clubhouse to planning the Victory Village Center on the Graham Memorial. All of these I have been forced to refuse."

The presidential aspirant said he did not feel that he could make promises "for the sake of soliciting votes," adding that some of the promises he was asked to make were ones which "no candidate,

(See FOWLER, page 4)

McCurry Names 4 Projects

Four "small but practical projects" were enumerated by University Party presidential candidate Ed McCurry yesterday as things which he will do his "best" to obtain for the students.

McCurry said the projects have been brought to his attention while carrying on his campaign by visiting students. He lists them as follows:

(1) "Pavement of the parking area behind Cobb, and painting parking lines there and behind Connor so that parking will be more orderly and thus accommodate at least a few more cars.

(2) "Pencil sharpeners in the dorms.

(3) "Making the Planatarium parking area available to students

(See McCURRY, page 4)

Homesley Calls For Support

"We've got to have more support for our teams, and I promise to do my utmost to achieve this," said T. C. (Country) Homesley, who is campaigning for a write-in vote as head cheerleader, yesterday.

"I am for more student participation through a greater variety of yells, more comical yells and using gimicks to arouse interest during lax periods," he added.

According to Howard Fogleman Homesley's campaign manager, "T C. for UNC is sweeping the campus on a cheering bandwagon of enthusiasm." He added, "T. C. is going all over the campus and his extraordinary personality is really shining."

Joan Palmer Asks Turnout

Joan Palmer, Student Party nominee for secretary of the student body, yesterday delivered her first statement of the campaign.

"It is my earnest desire," she said, "that each student will acquaint himself with all candidates. In past elections we have fallen low in exercising our democratic right to vote. Records show this to be true."

"I would like to thank those people who have helped me with my campiagn," said the SP candidate, "and at the same time urged all students to go to the polls and vote for the candidate of their choice."

News Of The Week In Review In Pictures

YMCA Picked Its Officers

The UNC Young Men's Christian Assn. picked its leaders for the next year. Front row, left to right, Graham Rights, new president; Ed Hennessee, vice-president; back row, Roy Taylor, secretary, and Gerald Mayo, treasurer.

Gray Ate With Student Leaders

Consolidated University President Gordon Gray ate upstairs in Lenoir Hall with heads of campus organizations. Eating with him, left to right, are Rollie Tillman, head of Orientation Committee; Gray; Tom Creasy, student body president, and Joel Fleishman, Carolina Forum president. President Gray also went to the University of California at Los Angeles yesterday to make a speech.

Brumfield Elected

Lewis Brumfield, formerly running for position of head cheerleader, was elected president of the IDC.

Political Punch Was Served

Politicians got a spot of political punch, served by Independent Women's Council. Affair was a general get-together of folks running for campus offices.

—All photos by R. B. Henley.

Sunshiney Shogunate

Just before the GOP's unsuccessful bid to return their Congressional majorities, campaign steersmen hit on a happy ditty. It want something like this: "Ike, Ike—we love the sunshine of your smile, etc." The sunshiney smile theme has been so long and loud for so long that sometimes we're led to think a new Golden Calf sits in the White House—not mortal man. Gerald Johnson, writing in the New Republic, has this to say:

> A Shogunate is not a practicable form of government for this country at this time. Japan had to abandon it as long ago as 1868 and make the titular head of the state the actual ruler. This country cannot revive the system of keeping the emperor shut off by the Palace Guard from all contact with political reality while persons to whom the nation owes no loyalty conduct public affairs in his name.

While we don't call for blanket, unjust, or unreasonable railings at Mr. Eisenhower, we think the pretty-picture-on-the-wall attitude has reached the danger point. And though the toga has hung long unspattered, we think the way is open to some complaint. For instance:

How can the President of the United States, in times when thousands of different and subtle currents move in world affairs, afford to have it noised about quite openly that he doesn't read the newspapers? How can he allow the frightening ambiguity of our Formosan policy without being called on the carpet of public opinion? How long will he allow the Oppenheimer-Ladejinsky-Matusow security circus to play on? How long can he continue to wink at Nixon's tactics?

A long list of questions should begin to be asked by responsible spokesmen for the people. As Mr. oJhnson concludes, "the country cannot safely continue to vote for an image that does not correspond to the man."

Mayflower Monickers

A glance down the big list of political candidates on yesterday's page four led to some reflection on names: never have we seen such a collection of Mayflower to Main Street Americana as the Anglo-Saxon bunch that is running for election on this campus. You must choose between Hester and Yates (for senior class president), Harrington and Stevens (for student body vice-president), Morse and Palmer (for WAA vice-president).

This is, as you know, contrary to all the rules of politics, where, ordinarily, you need a name like Pastore or O'Hara or Desapio to succeed, though Amy's pop Wayne has done all right. (Oh there is a Cyr in the race, and even a Zollicoffer, but these are exception to the Plymouth Rock rule of thumb on the campus.)

Well, Hester or Harrington might get elected here, but they wouldn't have a chance up north, where not only politicians but football players must have names like Mycenivich or Diczadnilo if they expect to gain a vote—or a yard.

Chapel Hill, it would appear, joins Hollywood as the only places in the country where a real or contrived English ancestry is still necessary for immortality.

For, just as you have to be named Stevens or Yates to get elected around here, you must be known as Cyd Charisse to make the big marquees. Tula Finklea (Cyd's pre-West Coast name) just never would have done at all: and who's to say what would have become of Frances Gumm, Issur Danielovitch and Sarah Fulks if they hadn't de-nationalized their handles down to Judy Garland, Kirk Douglas and Jane Wyman.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley
Society Editor — Susan Andes

EDITORIAL STAFF — Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase
SPORTS STAFF — Al Korschun, Bob Colbert, Chuck Strong, Marshall Waldman
BUSINESS STAFF — Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

BA School Is Here To Stay, Writes Poet

Louis Kraar

University Party candidates for the student Legislature in Dorm District 3 are offering to shine shoes for their voters during the campaign.

No doubt, the UP boys had some practice as fraternity pledges and can give an adequate glow to all but white bucks.

★

Apparently taken aback by his lack of liberal arts training, a Business Administration major turned poet yesterday, leaving this verse enscribed on a Hanes Hall blackboard:

"Stay calm and cool,
BA is her to stay.
You're in the Business School,
So brother—just pray."

★

WHAT HAS happened to the editorship of the Yackety-Yack?

Hardly anyone's asked, but in case you're interested, no one is running. The most qualified candidates had troubles—one lacked the academic requirements and the other decided he didn't want the job.

Thus, when you vote Tuesday, there won't be a yearbook editor on the ballot. An annual editor—probably the aspirant who didn't have the academic requirement—will be appointed.

This same situation arose last spring when Jim Fountain wanted to run for cheerleader, but didn't have the academic requirements.

★

SEVERAL POLITICOS have marched up to the Veterans Affairs office in South Building trying to find out how to win the vet vote.

With 1,488 male veterans and 19 female veterans in school this term, no wonder the politicians are eager to win their support.

★

THE PROPOSED constitutional amendment to allow the student Attorney General powers to "gather evidence against and prosecute any and all offenders of the official student constitution" leaves me rather cold.

Under the present system, it is possible for the Attorney General to take any constitution offenders to the Student Council for prosecution. To grant powers of investigation to this appointive post (occupied by Ed McCurry this year), would be extending wide authority to one man.

The bill, perhaps, embodies a good idea—giving the attorney general something specific to do. But in its present form there are no limits drawn for the investigating powers of the post.

Conceivably, under this bill, the attorney general could go through the files of the honor councils, search political party records, and practically everything else.

In short, the amendment is poorly drawn up and should be voted down unless safeguards are offered in the bill for the protection of students.

★

ED MCCURRY'S segregation statement—or lack of one—underscored the chief weakness of all the presidential candidates—they haven't committed themselves on any controversial issue.

Muntzing's love the "Carolina way of life," McCurry's concern for dorm men, and Fowler's "independent" bid for a "spirity of unity" are the most tarnished of generalities.

It's rather sad that a smiling face, a handful of generalities, and a list of activities are all a presidential hopeful of generalities, and a list of activities are all a presidential hopeful has to present. Perhaps Muntzing, McCurry, and Fowler have more to offer, (and somehow I feel they must), but why are they afraid to speak out?

Does Anyone Have Time To Think?

Norman Cousins
In The Saturday Review

We in America have been concerned for some years with the lot of underpriviledged peoples throughout the world. But we have yet to do anything for one of the most underprivileged peoples of all. Ourselves.

We have more food than we can eat. We have more money per person than anywhere else in the world; with 6 per cent of the population we hold 80 per cent of the wealth. We have bigger homes, bigger television sets, bigger cars, bigger theatres, bigger schools. We have everything we need, in fact, except the most important thing of all—time to think and the habit of thought. We lack time for the one indispensable for safety of an individual or a nation.

Thought is the basic energy in human history. Civilization is put together not by machines but by thought. Similarly, man's uniqueness is represented not by his ability to make objects but to sort them and relate them. Other animals practise communication; only man has the capacity for comprehension. Displace or eliminate thought, and the species itself has as little claim on survival as the dinosaurs with the four-foot skulls and the pea-sized brains. The impotence of the brute alongside the power of the sage is represented by thought.

Consider where we in America stand today. We have been told and we have told ourselves that we have the responsibility to lead. We are asked to keep freedom alive; we are asked to find some way to prevent a war that would incinerate one billion or more human beings and twist and deform the rest. It is not a simple task. Leadership today requires not so much a determination to smash the other fellow as an understanding of the lessons of human experience. It requires a profound knowledge of the diseases of civilizations. It requires ability to anticipate the effects of actions. In short, it requires thought. But who is doing the thinking? Who is giving sustained and incisive thought to the most complicated and dangerous problem in the age of man?

WHO HAS TIME?

Next question: Does anyone have time to think? Does the President have time to think? The daily calendar of an American President, with its endless appointments and glad-handing chores, not only excludes sustained thought but creates the kind of staccato, jangling pattern of mental activity that leads to a demand for surcease rather than study. A day on the golf links thus becomes a useful cathartic for eliminating congested impressions and helping a man to retain his sanity, but it doesn't necessarily provide the occasion for concentrated and consecutive thought.

If the President has not time to think, then who? Almost everyone in Washington is spending so much time being strategical that almost no one is being historical. There are so many movers and shakers that there is hardly any room for thinkers.

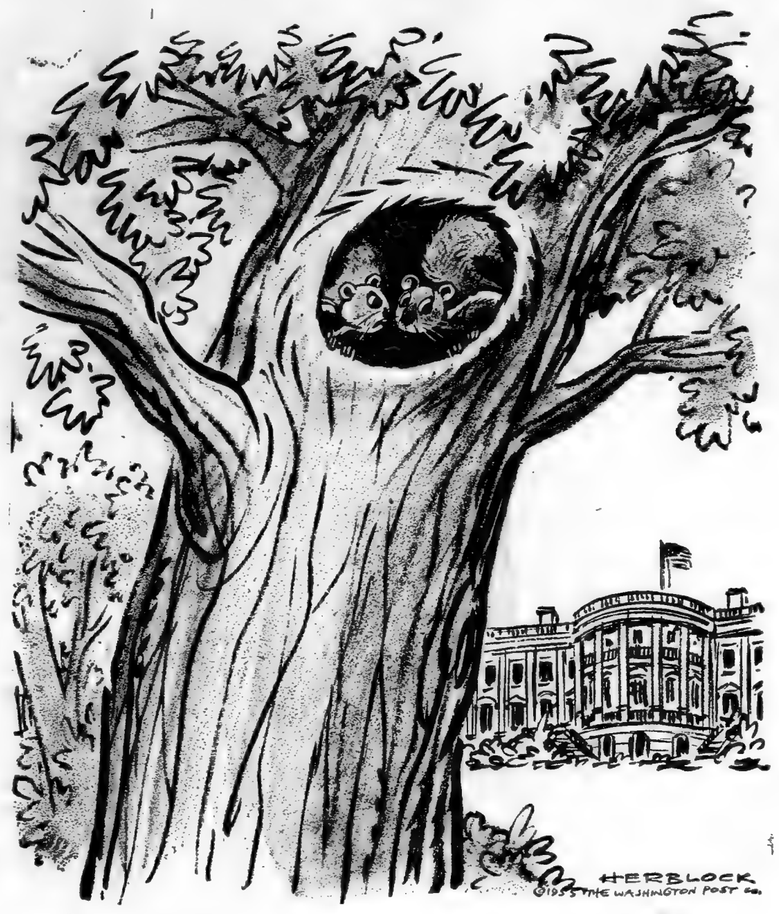
THE PARADOX

This is not a political party matter; the churning and flailing easily crosses party lines. Washington does not exist in terrible isolation. Washington can be only a reflection and a projection of the national character and temperatment. If office-holders are too busy to think, do they differ from the business executive, college president, teacher, man on the assembly line, or housewife?

The paradox, of course, is that we are busy doing nothing. Never before has so much leisure time been available to so many. Leisure hours now exceed working hours. But we have a genius for cluttering. We have somehow managed to persuade ourselves that we are too busy to think, too busy to read, too busy to look back, too busy to look ahead, too busy to understand that all our wealth and all our power are not enough to safeguard our future unless there is also a real understanding of the danger that threatens us and how to meet it. Thus, being busy is more than merely a national passion; it is a national excuse.

GREAT IMPERATIVES

The real question, however, concerns not the time or lack of it we provide for thought, but the value we place on thought. What standing does thoughtfulness enjoy in the community-at-large? What great works of contemporary literature assign importance to thought or make heroes of thoughtful men? Action, accumulation, diversion—these seem to be the great imperatives.



Everyone seems to agree, from the President down, that we have to find some way other than war to protect ourselves, support the cause of freedom in the world, and serve the cause of man. But who is giving any consecutive thought to an "other way"? We ask the world's peoples to spurn the lie of Communism, and we back up this advice with the offer of guns, but what revolutionary idea do we ourselves espouse? War in Asia seems all to imminent but we talk about it as though it is some unpleasant little business at a distance instead of the curtain raiser for a war in which the big bombs will be dropped on America just as surely as they will be dropped on the enemy. Meanwhile, we are told by government that there is no real defense against atomic attack, after all. Surely, all this requires some thought.

NO BUCK-PASSING

This nation of ours will not reproduce itself automatically. The meaning and the wonder of it will not be sustained by momentum alone. If we have something worth saying, as we have, somewhere in our national culture or economy we shall have to find a proper place for thought.

There is no point in passing the buck or looking for guilty parties. We got where we are because of the busy man in the mirror.

'Well, I Certainly Hope He Goes To A Big 4 Conference'

YOU Said It

Council Head Backs Amendment

Editor:

In any college it is very seldom that every student actually has a voice in his well-being. Such an opportunity has come to students at Carolina, and I hope they will exercise that voice. I am speaking of the proposed Constitutional Amendment to reconstitute the Student Council and its general procedure. I cannot help but believe that if this measure fails it will be due to the fact that the students do not know the issues involved, the present situation, and the need for reform. It is with this thought in mind that I urge the passage of this proposed amendment.

Under the present Constitutional provision the Student Council is composed of nine members elected by and from the student body, and can hear appeals from the lower judicial bodies only on the grounds that a Constitutional right was denied the accused in his original hearing. These Constitutional rights are too limited to afford the student ample justice under student Council can hear an appeal are if the accused was denied a fair hearing, due notice of his trial, the presumption of innocence until guilt is proven, the right to face his accuser, and the right of assistance by a member of the judicial body, if requested. Currently if the Student Council finds that one or all of the Constitutional rights was denied the only power it has is to remand the case to the original court for retrial. It is ridiculous to call this procedure just. When a case is appealed, and the appeal is considered valid, a higher authority ought to retry the case, not the court that has already tried the case once. Under the proposed amendment the Student Council would consider the appeal, and if found valid, retry the case itself.

Under the present situation the other grounds for appeal—that the conviction was based on insufficient evidence, and that the penalty was unjust or unusual—are submitted not to the Student Council but to the Faculty Honor Committee. Here is another injustice; the honor system and the judicial system should be a student system. Under the proposed amendment these grounds for appeal plus a new one, the submission of new evidence, would be grounds to be considered by the Student Council not the faculty. However, the faculty committee would remain as a higher body to which the accused could appeal the decision of the Student Council.

The powers stated this far that would be granted the Student Council are not new powers. Prior to 1952 the Student Council had this power. These powers were taken away from the Council as it was felt that the elected members of the Student Council did not have the experience commensurate with the power. The result of this change was a denial of complete student justice and jurisdiction, and an inequitable situation. The proposed amendment on one hand would restore student jurisdiction and equity, and on the other hand provide for an experienced Student Council by changing its composition.

Under the new amendment the Student Council would be composed of one member of the Law School Court, IFC Court, IDC Court, Dental School Court, Med School Court, Dance Committee, two members from the Men's Council and Women's Council, and one man and woman elected by the student body. This would provide a Council composed of people with judical experience, and one person in every case who was familiar with the procedure of any lower court.

Prior to 1952 there was a lack of experience; since 1952 there has been inequity. The proposed amendment corrects both of these faults; it will provide an experienced Student Council, restore the system to the student, and provide more equity. I feel sure that if the students realize the importance of this measure they will exercise their right to call for a better juricial system and pass this amendment.

Walton K. Joyner
Chairman, Student Council

Southern College Papers Accepting Integration Edict

The Christian Science Monitor

Easy generalizations about Southern public opinion and the Supreme Court's decision on law-enforced segregation in the public schools tend both to be a bit previous and to ignore that there are several "public opinions," one of which is yet predominant.

On the other hand, there is evidence that some of the younger generation hold different views. The college paper of Florida State University has undertaken a roundup of Southern student opinion. The excerpts we have seen come from the papers of Alabama, North Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Miami, Georgia, Mississippi State, Emory, and Texas universities.

All take for granted the inevitability of desegregation—the most conservative, Mississippi, predicting upwards of 20 years. All but one advise a policy of gradualism. And that one, Tennessee, acclaims the 4-to-1 student vote which approved the court decision and the fact that the state legislature has thus far sought for no methods of evasion.

It would be defeatist indeed to accept at this date the verdict that the South will never accept integration.

That is why an approach of reasonable gradualism makes good sense.

SOUNDS

Condon Mob

Tom Spain

The philosophy of one of jazzdom's greatest organizers and most popular musicians might be summed up in the hurried instructions he was given upon beginning his first job. "We" start out each time on a different tune. If we get lost everybody go into IDA in the key of C."

Eddie Condon is about as successful as a jazz musician could be. Though he is the owner of a New York night club, his first love has always been Chicago jazz and those who helped him develop it. The name Condon is a watchword to college students in the New York area, for it means good loud Chicago jazz in a good loud club in the Village. And the Irishman with the wisecrack for every occasion is still producing and promoting the music of Chicago. His Chicago boys are still with him too. Pee; wee Russell, Bud Freeman, Joe Sullivan, George Wettling, and many others of the old school regularly appear at Condon's club for jam sessions and melodic reunions.

BLUE BLOWERS

"X," the label on the Victor originals, has been fast becoming a standard term in the vocbaularies of the jazz historians and enthusiasts. Almost all of the big jazz musicians who recorded during the late twenties and early thirties have appeared on the new label in LP form. Now Condon, playing with the colorful Red McKenzie and the original Mound City Blue Blowers, and with the almost forgotten Boyd Senter and his Senterpedes, as well as with his own band, Eddie Condon's Hot Shots, has his famous name and face on the classic label.

Also featured with Condon and McKenzie are Jack Teagarden, Glenn Miller, Mezz Mezzrow, Joe Sullivan, Russell and Coleman Hawkins. Yet of all these greats, perhaps McKenzie is the most interesting He is a Chicago jazz tradition.

COMB AND PAPER

McKenzie plays the blue blower, an instrument on which most anyone could become proficient—a comb and tissue paper. Despite the fact that McKenzie's place among the jazz musicians was due to his ability to organize, promote and lead them, his talents with the comb and paper are not to be overlooked. Since he cannot be compared to anyone else in his field due to the absence of competitors, his music has a style and quality that is not at all displeasing. Though his comb and paper routine was first only a novelty stunt to secure a job, McKenzie developed it into a famous fad. Sounding something like a harmonica with a trumpet part, the blue blower blown by Red McKenzie gets off some of the hottest licks of the area, as well as providing expressive solos for the commercial ballads.

TEAGARDEN'S BLUES

Jack Teagraden's solos, both instrumental and vocal, in the two versions of I'M GONNA STOMP MR. HENRY LEE, greatly reflect the imitations of the Negro New Orleans groups, which the Chicago boys worked so hard to achieve. Teagarden's mourful blues treatments are the only New Orleans characteristic still prevalent in Windy City jazz.

The Condon record, a ten inch LP, is a killjoy for the ardent discollector, but its value to those who work for the preservation of honest jazz is unlimited.

★

HARRY CARNEY WITH STRINGS is one of Norman Granz' new releases. The rich body and depth of the baritone saxaphone sound forms a rare contrast with a full orchestra, and presents a new field for soloists, not unlike the Bobby Hackett-Jackie Gleason rage. Carney, who handles the instrument as well as anyone ever has, plays MOONLIGHT ON THE GANGES with an orchestra led by Ralph Burns. He does not, however, make an appeal to the moods, as does Gleason, but performs as a soloist in the blues-ballad vein. With the utilization of the baritone sax growing in all forms of jazz and popular music, the trend towards concerto solos seems a good one.

OLD BILLIE, NEW BAND

Billie Holiday is probably the first to record WHAT A LITTLE MOONLIGHT CAN DO, and now, on the CLEF label, she has done it again. Vocally speaking, the new one is not too much different from the first which was done about 1932 when she was but 17 years old. The accompaniment is a far cry from the days of the Teddy Wilson Orchestra.

Oscar Peterson, Charlie Shavers, Ray Brown and Ed Shaughnessy romp along with Miss Holiday, who, incidentally, allows ample time for Shavers and Peterson solos. Both of these artists hotfoot it through the various runs and scales with the greatest ease. (Shavers has been proving himself a great side man with the new Goodman Quintet lately.)

This side is backed up with a Holiday regular, HOW DEEP IS THE OCEAN, which does not compare with former renditions, but is well worth its price for the Shavers-Peterson accompaniment.

'Listen to that . . . New Sounds . . . they call that music . . . these youngsters are mad, I tell you, mad, mad, mad . . .'

—Interlandi, Register & Tribune Syndicate

Drake Takes Fifth In 200-Yard Backstroke

Tar Heel Just Barely Edged; State's Mattson Cops Crown

By BOB COLBERT

OXFORD, Ohio, March 25.—(Special)—Bob Mattson, ACC champion orthodox breaststroker, tonight became the first ACC or Southern Coference swimmer to ever win a first place at an NCAA championship meet. Mattson, of N. C. State, went the 200-yard distance in 2:26.0, touching out Michigan's "Bumpy" Jones.

The orthodox is a new stroke and since there were no existnig records, Mattson's time becomes an NCAA championship meet record.

Tar Heel Charlie Krepp qualified third in the 200-yard backstroke and then was nosed out by Don Brown of Denver for fourth. He was awarded fifth place with a time of 2:13.3. Intercollegiates recorderholder Yoshi Oyakawa, of Ohio State, easily took first with a time of 2:07.7.

Krepp, following Coach Ralph Casey's orders, went all out and led Oyakawa at the 50, but he faded out, losing stamina in the fast pace and lost yardage in the next 75 yards. at the 175-yard mark he was almost even with Brown for fourth place but Brown, with a strong finish, just barely won.

After seven events, Ohio State has taken a lead over the other schools in team scoring. They have 43 points, Michigan has 28, Yale 27. Carolina has two.

Tomorrow will see trials and finals of the remaining seven events, including the 20-yard butterfly breaststroke and the 300-yard medley relay. Phil Drake, who turned in the fastest time in the country this year, will be out to bring home an NCAA championship for Carolina. The medley relay team of Krepp, Drake and Dick Baker will be trying to take a second championship while bettering their intercollegiate record-breaking time of 2:45.9 set against Michigan last February.

Tar Heels Down Ohio State, Bow To Rollins

Gravitte Gets Homer, Double, Two Singles

Raugh Wins; Maultsby Falls In Afterpiece

By JAKE WADE

UNC Sports Publicist

Winter Park, Fla., March 25 (Special) — Carolina's Tar Heels played handsomely to defeat Ohio State, 4-3, in the first of two games here today, but collected only one infield hit in the afterpiece and bowed to Rollins, 2-0.

They were the season's openers for the Tar Heels and a part of the Rollins College baseball week celebration which winds up tomorrow. Carolina meets Ohio State tomorrow in its closing appearance on the Florida junket.

Art Brophy, a quick lefthander who has never lost a college game, was the pitcher in the twilight who spoiled the day for the Carolinians. His only slip in the way of yielding hits was when Tom Zachary dribbled a roller that curved crazily down the third base path before finally turning inside. This was in the fourth inning with two out and Brophy promptly retired the next hitter.

TOM MAULTSBY, who opposed him, worked a satisfactory game, giving up nine hits but most of them cheap blows. The Tars' first run came in the fourth with an error playing a part and their second came the next inning when they bunched four of their hits.

The Tar Heels have rarely looked better than they did in the game against Ohio State, with Al Long blasting a double in the ninth, Connie Gravitte, who also had doubled, crossing the plate with the winning run.

Jim Raugh bested Skip Burns in a tight mound duel and he could have hugged both Long and Gravitte. The latter had one of his biggest day with four for four, including a 360-foot home run which cleared the center field barrier. That came with none on but it was the classic blow of the day and the fanciest of the week.

GRAVITTE ALSO turned in the fielding gem of the game in pocketing a terrific drive by Donald Kelley against the railings in the seats.

The box score of the State game:

Ohio State	AB	H	PO	A
Engert, lf	3	1	0	0
Schabel, rf	2	1	2	0
Ellis, 3b	4	1	4	1
Cassady, cf	4	1	3	0
Kelley, 1b	4	0	10	0
Mitbutani, cf	1	0	3	0
Feinthal, cf	2	0	0	1
Adornetto, 2b	1	0	0	0
Shay, ss	4	0	1	4
Brentlinger, c	2	2	2	1
(A)Saduk	0	0	0	0
Purvis, c	1	0	0	0
Burns, p	4	0	0	4
Totals	32	6	25	11

(A)—Ran for Bretlinger in 7th.

North Carolina	AB	H	PO	A
Hartman, 2b	4	0	4	0
Wood, 3b	4	0	0	2
Paller, rf	4	0	3	1
Gravitte, cf	4	4	4	0
Zachary, 1h	3	0	8	0
Long, ss	3	2	3	0
Harding, lf	2	0	0	0
Love, c	3	0	5	3
Raugh, p	3	1	0	3
Totals	30	7	27	9

Ohio State	000	000	030—3
N. Carolina	010	101	001—4

Tar Heels Go After Relay Crown In Florida Today

GAINESVILLE, Fla., March 25—(Special)—North Carolina's 15-man squad was among the 700 athletes going through final workouts before tomorrow's (Saturday's) first southern outdoor track meet —The Florida Relays.

The large field includes entries from 20 colleges in the varsity division. Forty-five teams are slated for the high school division, and a freshman division is also scheduled.

The Tar Heels, who arrived late Thursday night took a brief warmup this afternoon which consisted of little more than a few exercises to get their muscles loosened after the long trip.

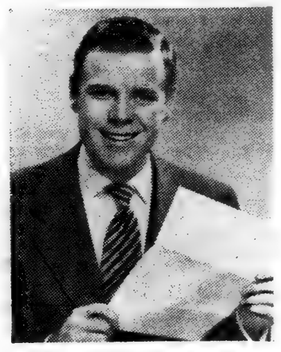
ROTHROCK THIRD

At the half-way point of the Azalea golf tournament in Charleston, S. C., UNC sophomore Aubrey Rothrock is in third place, three strokes behind leader Bill Ford. Ford had a 73-72—145 after the first two rounds, followed by Bob Hacket of Duke with 70-77—147. Rothrock had a 72-76—148.

CLASSIFIEDS

THE CAROLINIANS ORCHESTRA Call 3711. Write Box 902.

MEMORIALS: Large stock cut from Allen and Winnsboro Blue Granite. All work guaranteed. Terms if desired. Buy direct from yard and saye agents and salesmens commission. Siler City Monument Co., Siler City, N. C., J. S. McIver, Owner and Manager.



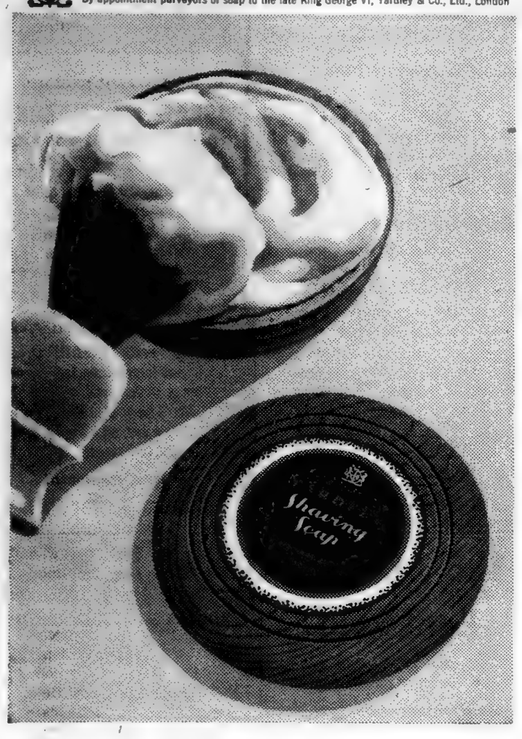
STUDENT WANTED TO SOLICIT, For couple hours each day. Little sales ability and personality all that is required. If interested contact Rowe Tyepwriter at 103½ West Parish street in Durham. Telephone 53901.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

NEED CASH!
We'll Swap
CASH for those pocket books you were going to throw away.
Intimate Bookshop
Open Evenings

Hank pounded pavements... Frank sent telegrams...

GUESS WHO GOT THE JOB!



You're right, Frank got it.*
You can play it smart, too. Send telegrams to set up job interviews, and get the jump on everybody (including Phi Betes).
A telegram makes your message stand out from the rest . . . gets attention from the man you want to reach. Shows him you're efficient, that you know time is valuable —his and yours.
Let Western Union help you with your prospecting. Go after that job BY WIRE.

* Hank finally went to work for his father.

when it means business it's wise to wire WESTERN UNION

121 North Columbia St.
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
Tel.: 3511 and 2681

By appointment purveyors of soap to the late King George VI, Yardley & Co., Ltd., London

Yardley brings you months and months of shaving luxury— London style

From London, the world's center of fashions for men, comes the Yardley Shaving Bowl. This distinguished soap — imported from England and packaged in America — should give you up to six months of shaving luxury. The rich lather wilts the beard, soothes the face and softens the skin in wondrous fashion. At your campus store. $1.25. Makers and distributors for U. S. A., Yardley of London, Inc., New York.

AIR CONDITIONED VIKING looks cooler — is cooler!
Light but sturdy, cooler and drier, sweet and satisfying
'AJUSTOMATIC' (patented screw bit) $2.95
DE LUXE (push bit) $1.95
INTERCHANGEABLE BOWLS: 95¢ each
IMPORTED BRIAR
POLISHED ALUMINUM

R. S. HERBERT CO., Inc.

WE ARE THE Exclusive Carriers of the Viking Pipes IN CHAPEL HILL
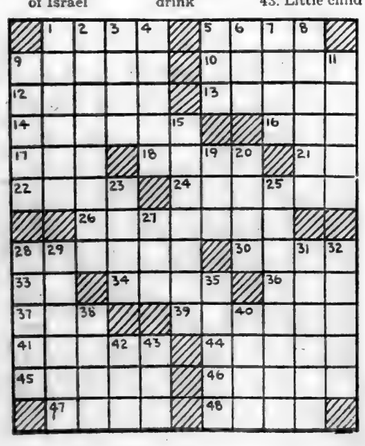
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
Telephone 5531

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

DAILY CROSSWORD



ACROSS
1. Baby's bed
5. Agreement
9. A steep slope for tobogganing
10. Tapestry
12. Greek poet
13. Fragrance
14. Rolled around the edge of a hole (golf)
16. Self
17. River (So. Am.)
18. Examination
21. Gold (Her.)
22. State flower of Utah
24. Examination of tissue (Med.)
26. Support
28. To make dear
30. Native of Scotland
33. Sun god
34. Genuine
36. One and one
37. Slender metal
39. Man's name
41. A blow (colloq.)
44. Peeled
45. Four: comb. form
46. Like slate
47. Material on a beach
48. Lampreys

2. Poked around
3. Article
4. Basque-like cap
5. Dance step
6. Portion of a curved line
7. American Indian
8. Spanish dance (pl.)
9. Diminutive of "Christopher"
11. Tale
15. Prophetess and judge of Israel
19. Title of respect
20. Hurl
23. Unique person (slang)
25. Of the chest
27. Do (Scot. var.)
28. Upright
29. City (It.)
31. Little owls
32. A hot, spiced, alcoholic drink
35. A slip
38. Greek letter
40. A chest sound
42. Receptacle for coffee
43. Little child

DOWN
1. Selection

Yesterday's Answer

Plan Now for Executive Career in RETAILING

Unique one-year course leads you to Master's degree. Individualized training for those COLLEGE GRADUATES who desire top-paying positions, have average or better academic records, broad educational backgrounds. Training in nationally known retail organizations with pay (covers tuition, books, fees). Scholarships. Coed. Graduates placed. Next class begins Sept. 6, 1955. Applications accepted now. Write for Bulletin C.

SCHOOL OF RETAILING
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH
Pittsburgh 13, Pa.

It's no joke!... Civilian volunteer plane spotters are urgently needed to warn against enemy planes that may sneak under our Radar Defenses...

...and they can sneak under! Yes, miraculous as radar is, present sets do not work effectively under 5000 feet. This means that low-flying enemy planes can come in undetected, unless they're spotted by the human eye and ear.

How serious is the threat of an attack, you ask? Here are some cold facts. We know the Reds are equipped to attack right now. They have about 1000 heavy duty, long range bombers stationed at strategic points within bombing radius of any part of the United States. They are capable of destroying 89 top cities in a single blow.

Regardless of whether the Russian leaders are talking sweet or tough, we cannot ignore this danger as long as the Iron Curtain still exists. That's why our Anti-Aircraft Command and Air Force are operating on a 24 hour schedule. But they alone can't do the job of protecting the country, not even with radar. They need your help, your eyes, your ears to warn them of low-flying enemy planes.

Today there are already 250,000 members of the Ground Observer Corps, young and old alike. But they are not enough. The job is so big, our borders so extensive, that twice as many civilian volunteer plane spotters are needed. Won't you give 2 hours a week to help protect your country, your town, your own family? Sign up today.

Keep your eye on the sky in the
GROUND OBSERVER CORPS
JOIN TODAY—Write or phone—Name and address of Civil Defense Director—Telephone No.

Contributed as a public service by
The Daily Tar Heel

Wake Up!
Sign Up!
Look Up!

BASINGSTOKE ENSEMBLE: PRUETT, CHAMBLEE, LUDWIG
... they, plus the ladies, will sing tomorrow night

Basingstoke Ensemble Sings Sunday In Petite Musicale

The Basingstoke Ensemble will present excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in the third of the Petites Musicales series tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, according to John Ludwig.

The members of the ensemble are Miss Jan Saxton, soprano; Miss Lorraine Yancey, mezzo; Miss Susie Roberts, alto; James Pruett, tenor; John Ludwig, baritone, and James Chambles, bass. Accompanying the singers will be Mrs. David Baisle at the piano.

The Basingstoke Ensemble will present selections from The Mikado, H.M.S. Pinafore, The Pirates of Penzance and Patience.

In getting up the program the group has "paid equal attention to the vocal and dramtic requirements of the songs," said Ludwig. "We hope that the sparkle and laughter that show through all Gilbert and Sullivna works will be present in our performance."

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

—McCurry—

(Continued from Page 1)

in view of the fact that it is rarely filled during the restricted hours.

(4) "A more effective method of informing students of their graduation requirements and deficient courses in transferring.

"These are merely a few of the many suggestions which I have heard." said the UP candidate. "There are many others, some of which are absolutely impossible, and others which have great possibilities and certainly are well worth looking into," he concluded.

Our Prices Are Right
Our Styles Are Right
Let's throw away those cotton pickin' clothes and get some lightweight duds.
Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

—Fowler—

(Continued from Page 1)

in good faith, could promise. I can only conclude that it would be better to lose the election than to make promises which I cannot fulfill," he said.

Fowler said if he is elected he will "immediately" appoint a committe to work on a solution to "our traffic problem on campus" and "take a strong stand in opposition to the move to take away student cars." He said that he will "work with next year's Student Council members to increase their effectiveness," after mentioning that he has already stated his support of the proposed Student Council revision.

"The elevation of student government to a genuine partnership with the administration is perhaps my highest ambition," said the independent candidate, adding that "This can be accomplished next year."

He said that since he has no party affiliation he will need the "advice and opinion of all students. I will consider every member of the student body as part of my cabinet."

Fowler concluded, "...I shall use the office of student government president to defend the rights of all the students whenever they are threatened. This will be my policy regardless of who seeks to reduce our privileges, be it the administration, Board of Trustees or the state Legislature."

DRAMA GROUP MEETS

The Commnuity Drama Group meet tomorrow night at 7:45 in the assembly room of the Library. Myra Lauterer will direct the reading of The Long Voyage and Riders To the Sea. The election of officers for the coming year will be held at the poen meeting.

YOUR Ideal Honeymoon
In Your Own Private Cottage
♥ Only honeymooners, just 12 couples at a time, can come to this haven in the hills. Graduates of 562 colleges have found it the perfect way to start life together. Just you two in your own secluded cottage, with wonderful meals (breakfast till 11:00) at the oldtime farmhouse. Recreation and sports when you wish, with other couples you'll really enjoy. Mention dates, we'll send you "THREE HONEYMOON PLANS."
The Farm on the Hill
Box 120 SWIFTWATER 10, PA.

Expense Deadline Is Monday

A copy of all literature, and itemized description of any other campaign expenses and a complete itemized and signed statement of expenditures must be turned in to the Elections Board by all candidates before 6 p.m. Monday, according to Miss Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Elections Board.

Bills should accompany these statements, which may be turned in at the student ogvernment office in Graham Memorial, said Miss Daniels.

If a candidate has no expense, he should submit a signed statement to that effect on or before 6 p.m. Monday.

Failure to submit an account shall cause a fine of $1 to be charged against the candidate. If the fine is not paid within 24 hours of its occurrance the candidate will be disqualified according to Miss Daniels.

—Muntzing—

(Continued from Page 1)

future, plan accordingly and thus be able to represent the student body as it should be," said Muntzing.

He said that he would like to see such a board lookint oeh tsituation of cars on the campus and "do all that is necessary now so that any criticism of cars can be stopped before the situation is no longer in the hands of the students."

"We must not take our freedoms for granted or else we shall be in danger of losing them," said Muntzing. "If student government ever fails to know impending problems and thus fails to act on them, it will have lost one of its greatest freedoms. I believe that the Student Thinking Board will be a great aid to the student community in solving the problem that we shall have to face in the coming year," he added.

Muntzing also said that he would like the student government to "represent the opinions and thoughts of all the students..." He said only by having "every student who is interested in student government doing that where in his interests lie" can that be accomplished.

The SP candidate said the "biggest thing" which student government can give to the campus "is to make a place for every idea and every person who is interested." He added its educational value would continue to be useful throughout later life.

"I should like to ask each and every student who would like to take part in student government to let it be known, and I will personally see that he or she has an opportunity to take part," he said. "I should like to ask any one who at any time has a suggestion or criticism to express it so that student goevrnment can consider it and act on it," said Muntzing.

The presidential hopeful concluded that only when such a relationship is established does he feel that "you will be getting the most out of student government and that student goevrnment will be doing its best in representing all the students."

Pi Lambda Phi Celebrates Pledge Weekend

Pi Lambda Phi Fraternity is celebrating its annual pledge weekend by honoring its pledge class with a banquet, dance and cabin party. The banquet and dance, held last night at Johnnie's in Raleigh, included the awarding of the Best Pledge Trophy. Festivities continue tonight with a costume-cabin party. Dates of the pledge class officers include: top, left to right, Joyce Kline, Charleston, S. C., with Joel Fleishman, president; Janice Specter, Imporia, Va., with Gilbert Rothstein, vice-president; bottom, Jo Ann Herbert, Seattle, Wash., with Robert Lyon, secretary, and Ann Harris, Greensboro, with Jake Zeemon, treasurer.

Covering The Campus

Joseph Banks Rhine, professor of psychology and director of the Parapsychological Laboratory at Duke University, will address the Canterbury Club tomorrow night at 6 o'clock.

His subject will be "Extrasensory Perception and Religion." He is the author of several books, including Extrasensory Perception, New Frontiers of the Mind and The Reach of the Mind.

★

The Graham Memorial Activities Board will hold its final banquet of the year Monday night at 6 p.m. in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn, according to a GMAB spokesman.

The banquet will be held to welcome the new members to the board and honor the retiring officers and committee members. Invitations to the free banquet have already been issued.

The banquet will be informal, and entertainment will be provided.

★

Alpha Pi Omega service fraternity will hold an open rush meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the APO Room in Graham Memorial. All students have been invited to attend.

★

Violet Calvin, soprano, will present a senior recital in Hill Hall, Tuesday, at 8 p. m. Accompanied by Henry Miller, Bessemer, Ala., Mrs. Galvin will sing works by Brahams, Strauss, Lalo, Duparc, Moussorgsky, Rakov, Rachmaninoff, Puccini, Barber, Stevens and Britten.

Mrs. Galvin is a student of Assistant Professro Joel Carter of the Music Department. Formerly of Albany, N. Y., she served in the USAF during the Second World War, and lived in Austria for two years after the War.

★

A team of recent college graduates will be on campus March 28-31 to lead discussions in the dormitories and fraternity houses on practical Christianity, announced Bennet Meyers of the Carolina Christian Fellowship, UNC chapter of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

"Man Alive—Who Is?" will be the topic discussed at the ATO, Phi Gam. St. A., Phi Delt, Lambda Chi and Chi Psi houses. The team will also appera in Winston, Joyner, Cobb, Manly, Nurses' Residence and several other dormitories. Discussions will be informal.

★

The second session of the joint YMCA-YWCA spring leadership conference will be held this afternoon and tonight at the farm of Mr. Claude Shotts, general secretary of the YMCA.

The conference, for the purposes of study and discussion of the Christian basis of the Y program, evaluation fo this year's program and planning for next year. began last night with a banquet at Lenoir Hall.

★

The observance of Passiontide will begin Sunday with Holy Communion at 7:30 a.m. The celebration of the Student Eucharist at 9:30 will be followed by breakfast in the parish house. At 11 a.m. the Rt. Rev. Edwin A. Penick, Bishop of North Carolina, will administer Holy Confirmation.

★

The Baptist Church at Chapel Hill will hold a 5-night revival March 27-31 with evenings meetings in the church sanctuary.

★

The Bah'a'is of the University student body will meet Sunday at 11 a.m. Walter Wootten will speak on "The Story and Current Trends of the Bah'a'i World Faith."

★

The Frank Porter Graham Chapter of the Future Teachers of America will meet Monday in the library of Peabody Hall. A panel of the delegates to the State Convention will present the program for the evening.

★

The BSU will meet Sunday night at 6 p.m. in the Baptist church. Jim Cansler will present the last topic in the Missions series. There will also be a movie, "Missionary to Walker's Garage."

A Salute to UNC's Own
Robert E. COKER
Dr. Coker's new book. "Ponds Lakes and Streams" has already established itself as a best seller in our Nature Shelf. Here is all the complex magic of life in fresh water, displayed with a sort of early-morning delight. You'll enjoy it!
Also by Dr. Coker:
The Great and Wide Sea
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St
Open Evenings

COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18
$12 a day on this exciting ISLAND PARADISE in the Gulf of Mexico
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation ... miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, this year, the FIRST ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Famed Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, amberjack, blue fish and some 30 other species. For evening relaxation there's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dance contests and college song fests. You'll be treated like a tycoon for $12.00 a day, including breakfast 'till noon ... and dinner.
BOCA GRANDE
Boca Grande hotel
BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA
COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED
WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS
or contact:
JIM FURCHES
301 Cobb Dorm—9-8000

IN CAMPUS ELECTIONS:

Amendment To Add Nurse To Coed Group

This is the third out of four proposed student Constitution amendments to be published. The third may be found on page one. The last, an amendment to reorganize structure of the Student Council, will be printed Tuesday. Students will vote on all four in campus elections Tuesday.

A BILL TO AMEND THE OFFICIAL STUDENT CONSTITUTION OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Whereas: There were no nursing students on campus when the Constitution was drawn up; and

Whereas: Two hundred nursing students are expected to be enrolled in the University next year; and

Whereas: The House Rules of the Nurses' Residence vary somewhat from those of the coeds on the campus proper; and

Whereas: Members of the Women's Honor Council are not as aware of these rules as would be a student in the Nurses' Residence.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ENACTED BY THE STUDENT LEGISLATURE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA, THAT

Article 1. The official student Constitution of the University of North Carolina shall be amended to read as follows:

Section 1. In Article II, Section 3, subsection b, the first sentence shall be amended to read as follows:

"The Women's Council shall be composed of three seniors, four juniors, one graduate student and one student nurse."

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

Poll Tenders

There will be a meeting of all poll tenders at 7:30 Monday night in Gerrard Hall, according to Miss Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Elections Board.

JAZZ AT THE SADDLE CLUB
SATURDAY
MUSIC BY THE SYMPHONIC SIX

LAWN NEED TRIMMING?
NEED A BABYSITTER?
We have men to do jobs of any description. They can work from 1-6 Saturday afternoons, and in the evenings.
Call the TEP House, 4011, and ask for
FRANK BLOCK OR JACK WIESEL

50 million times a day
at home, at work or on the way
There's nothing like a Coke

1. Bright, bracing taste ... ever-fresh and sparkling.
2. A welcome bit of quick energy ... brings you back refreshed.
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

Late Show Tonight
SUNDAY
MONDAY - TUESDAY
Carolina

NOW SHOWING
Varsity
LATE SHOW TONITE!
Regular Showing Sunday — Monday

U N C LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy, cool and chance of rain today, with expected high of 58.

The Daily Tar Heel

VOL. LVII NO. 127 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, MARCH 29, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

CAN-CAN
You can't can-can like a candidate can, avers the editor. See editorial column, p. 2, for comments on election day.

Co-op Necessary —Ridgway

It is of vital importance that the stateman and military man collaborate in formulation of foreign policy, United States Army Chief of Staff Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway emphasized last night in an address in Memorial Hall.

General Ridgway, who was introduced by UNC Chancellor R. B. House, said, "The military man is an adviser and an executor, not a formulator, not an advocate, with regard to the basic national policies determined by the civilian authorities of the government.

"Bearing in mind, however, that war is a device for achieving national objectives by force, it is therefore fought to achieve political goals—thus, a military means to a political end."

The means for attaining an end from a vital factor and must be available, he said. "Hence, the political policy maker must rightly look to the military man for sound, impartial opinion and fact concerning military means and capabilities.

General Ridgway, whose appearance was sponsored by the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student organization, presented views on the effect of foreign relations upon military operations and described the Army's role in peace and war. Bob Young, Asheville, Forum vice-chairman, presided.

General and Mrs. Ridgway were guests at a 6:30 p.m. private dinner in the Pine Room of the Carolina Inn, and a reception in the Main Lounge in Graham Memorial was held immediately following the program.

Expense Accounts

All candidates in spring elections who have not turned in expense accounts must do so today, and pay a $1 fine, or be disqualified, said Elections Board Chairman Patsy Daniels yesterday.

Galvin Recital Slated Tonight

Mrs. Violet Galvin, soprano, will present a senior recital in Hill Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

Accompanied by Henry Miller, she will sing works by Brahms, Strauss, Lalo, Duparc, Moussorgsky, Rakov, Rachmaninoff, Puccini, Barber, Stevens and Britten.

Mrs Galvin is a student of Assistant Professor Joel Carter of the Music Department.

Legislature Candidates Up For Election

Candidates for seats in the student Legislature in dorm men's I are Teddy Kemp (SP), Al Laughinghouse (SP), Ned Meekins (UP) and Buzz Merritt (UP).

From dorm men's II: Will Conn (UP), Ed Gaines (UP), John Heath (SP), Jim Holmes (SP).

From dorm men's III: (year seat) Jerry Clark (SP), Tom Davis (UP), Jerry Martin (UP), Andy Milnor (SP).

Six months seat: Ray Long (SP), Hugh Upton (UP).

Candidates for dorm men's IV are: Bennie Craven (SP), Harley Gilleland (SP), Tom Lambeth (SP), Lloyd Lohr (UP), Phil Malone (UP), John Raper (UP) and Vade Rhoades (SP).

For dorm men's V are: Gees Davis (SP), Larry McElroy (SP), Jay Walker (UP), John Zollicoffer (UP).

Dorm women: Susan Andes (UP), Donna Ashcraft (SP), Sue Fink (SP), Barbara Fleshman (UP), Ann Miser (SP), and Ann Wrenn (UP).

Town men's I: Charles Ashby (SP); Charlie Covell (UP), Charlie Johnson (UP), Bill Maready (SP), Bill Moore (SP), and Mebane Prichett (UP).

Town men's II: Allen Bader (SP), Luther Hodges Jr. (SP) and UP), Bill Morgan (UP).

Town men's III: Jerry Boudreau (SP), Bill Cyr (SP), Bill Elder (UP), Bob Hornik (UP), Dan Turner (SP), Milke Weinman (UP).

Town women: Kit Malloy (UP), Jackie Wilkins (SP and UP).

OFFICIAL BALLOT

President of Student Body
(vote for one)
- ☐ DON FOWLER (Independent)
- ☐ ED McCURRY (UP)
- ☐ MANNING MUNTZING (SP)

Vice-President of Student Body
(vote for one)
- ☐ BOB HARRINGTON (SP)
- ☐ JACK STEVENS (UP)

Secretary of Student Body
(vote for one)
- ☐ JANE COCKE (UP)
- ☐ JOAN PALMER (SP)

Treasurer of Student Body
(vote for one)
- ☐ JOE CORRELL (SP)
- ☐ JIM MARTIN (UP)

Head Cheerleader
(vote for one)
- ☐ COLLIE COLLISON
- ☐ PEPPER TICE (Select. Board)

Editor of The Daily Tar Heel
- ☐ LOUIS KRAAR and ED YODER

President of Carolina Athletic Association
(vote for one)
- ☐ JIM BEATTY (UP)
- ☐ ROLAND PERDUE (SP)

Vice-President of Carolina Athletic Association
(vote for one)
- ☐ JIMMY RAUGH (UP)
- ☐ ED SUTTON (SP)

Sample of Today's Ballot

Official ballot for top officers in today's election is shown above. Other ballots will be voted upon in various districts for student Legislature seats, constitutional amendments and other offices.

Voting Places To Be Near At Hand Today

It's going to be easy for students to vote today. The ballot boxes are going to be close at hand.

Polls will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Students will need their ID cards.

Students who live in a dormitory can vote right there in the dorm or at Lenoir Hall.

Town men I (southern section of Chapel Hill south of Cameron Ave. extended) vote in the Victory Village entrance, Scuttlebutt, Gerrard Hall or or Big or Little Fraternity Courts.

Town men II (rectangle bounded by W. Cameron Ave., S. Columbia St., W. Franklin St. and Mill Rd) vote in the Scuttlebutt, Gerrard Hall or Big and Little Fraternity Courts.

Town men III (all other men students) vote at the ATO House Scuttlebutt or Gerrard Hall.

Town women (women students not living in University-owned buildings and women in sorority houses) vote in the Scuttlebutt, Gerrard Hall or the entrance to Victory Village.

Under the student Constitution, no campaign literature or no person trying to "advance the interest of any candidate" will be allowed

(See VOTING, page 4.)

Carolina Students Vote Today In Biggest Campus Election This Year; 3 Running For Student Body Prexy

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES DON FOWLER . . .
Independent . . .

. . . ED McCURRY . . .
. . . University Party . . .

. . . AND MANNING MUNTZING
. . . Student Party

Other Top Jobs Up For Vote

UNC students will vote today in the biggest campus election of the school year.

Top student offices—student body president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, head cheerleader, editor of The Daily Tar Heel, president of Carolina Athletic Assn. and CAA vice-president—will be at stake.

Students will vote on 26 seats in student Legislature.

Men's and Women's Honor Councils and the Student Council will be elected.

Runoff vote, if needed, will be held April 5.

FOR PRESIDENT

Three candidates are running for student body president. Independent Don Fowler, University Party's Ed McCurry and Student Party's Manning Muntzing have entered the race.

Student body President Tom Creasy has challenged the students to a 75 percent vote today.

Creasy said yesterday that in the past elections over 50 percent of the students have voted and he believes that today the students can top this, bringing the vote close to 4,500.

Chairman of the Elections Board Patsy Daniels said she believes the vote today will be a "little better than 4,000."

Miss Daniels said last spring's election turned out about 3,000 votes.

Vice-president candidates are Bob Harrington (SP) and Jack Stevens (UP).

Two coeds, Miss Jane Cocke (UP) and Miss Joan Palmer (SP) are running for student body secretary.

Joe Carrel (SP) and Jim Martin (UP) are running for treasurer.

"Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice are running for position of head cheerleader. Tice has endorsement of the Bipartisan Selection Board. Another candidate, T. C. Homesley, is running for head cheerleader as a write-in candidate.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL

Two students, Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar, are running for co-editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. They are unopposed.

For president of the Carolina Athletic Assn., Jim Beatty (UP) and Roland Perdue (SP) are running.

Jimmy Raugh (UP) and Ed Sutton (SP) are running for vice-president of the Carolina Athletic Assn.

POLLING HOURS

Polling hours, according to Elections Board Chairman Patsy Daniels, will run from 8:30 this morning to 6 p.m.

Men's Honor Council

In the Men's Honor Council, the following are seeking the sophomore seat: Sonny Evans, Macan Patton, Kelly Maness.

Quincy Ayscue, Bob Jacobus, Bill Morgan, Townsend Holt and Mebane Pritchett are seeking the junior seat.

Senior seat: Dick Baker, Don Huntington, Noel Petree, Graham Shanks, Earl Garett, Charles Katzenstein and Robert Pullman.

Student Council

Candidates for the Student Council are Sally Cowles, Jane Edwards, Jane Howie and Jean Robertson.

Seats-at-large in the Student Council: Jim Allen, Buddy Harper, Bob Kimzey, Pat Patrick, Jim Taugh and Mike Soper.

THE BIG THREE FOR PRESIDENT:

Candidates State Their Records

SP Candidate Muntzing

The following is a record of Student Party presidential candidate Manning Muntzing.

The information was submitted by his campaign headquarters.

The candidate's full name is Lewis Manning Muntzing. He was born on June 24, 1934, in Harrisonburg, Va. He now lives in Moorefield, W. Va. He is a Presbyterian.

Muntzing weighs 150 pounds and he stands 6'.

During his high school days the candidate was president of the student body, editor of the school newspaper, president senior class, editor of the school yearbook, president of the National Honor Society and salutatorian of his class.

He received two scholarships for debating, an award for outstanding journalism and a citizenship award. He was a member of the National Honor Society.

Muntzing is a history major here with an average of A.

His student government activities include membership on the Budget Committee, President's Executive Committee and National Student Association.

He has been a member of the student Legislature for three years and chairman of the Executive Committee, Ways and Means Committee, Finance Committe and Social Improvements Committee. He has worked on Bipartisan Selection Boards and with the Interdormitory Court.

Muntzing has been president of Aycock dorm and of the IDC. He has also been president of Phi Eta

(See MUNTZING'S, page 4.)

UP Candidate Ed McCurry:

The following is a record of University Party presidential candidate Ed McCurry.

The information was submitted by McCurry's campaign headquarters.

The UP candidate's full name is Edgar Woodfin McCurry Jr. He is from Shelby. He is a Baptist. He was born July 3, 1934.

McCurry weighs 180 pounds and stands 6'1".

During his high school years the candidate was a class officer at Shelby High School, which he first attended. He was salutatorian of his graduating class of the United States Capitol Page School, which he later attended. He was also honored by the District of Columbia Rotary Club as the outstanding 1952 graduate of the U. S. Capitol Page School. He also appeared on Faye Emerson's television show for outstanding work as U. S. Senate page.

McCurry is a political science

(See McCURRY'S, page 4.)

Independent Don Fowler:

The following information is a record of Don Fowler, independent candidate for the post of student body president.

The information was submitted by Fowler's campaign headquarters.

The independent candidate's full name is Donald Owen Fowler. He was born in Winston-Salem on September 2, 1934. He is a Methodist.

Fowler weighs 165 pounds and stands 5' 10½".

During his high school years the candidate was a class officer for three years and a member of the Debating Club, National Honor Society, Monogram Club and Key Club. He also played on the football and baseball teams and was a member of the track team. He was voted as the member of his graduating class who was most likely to succeed.

The presidential candidate is an English major here with an average of B plus .

His student government activities here have included the post of treasurer of the student body, membership in the student Legislature for two sessions, member of the Interdormitory Council Court and of the Dance Committee. During his sophomore year Fowler was president of Joyner Dormitory.

His other activities have included work in the President's Cabinet, the Consolidated University Student Council, Graham Memorial Board of Directors and the Men's Interdormitory Council. He has also been chairman of the Budget Committee and of the House Rules

(See FOWLER'S, page 4.)

Late Permission

Women students who are ballot counters, campaign managers or candidates will be given leave until midnight tonight, following action by the Women's Residence Council and the Office of the Dean of Women, according to a statement from the Office of the Dean of Women.

Late leave will not be given to any woman student unless she is in one of these three categories, according to the statement

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS:

Students Vote On 4 Changes In Law Today

Following is a proposed amendment to the student Constitution, which will be presented to the student body in a vote tdoav. This is the fourth such amendment. The other three would (1) Place certain duties on student government's Attorney General; (2) Deal with the structure, power and officers of the Interdormitory Council, and (3) Allow a student nurse on the Women's Council. This one, termed by most observers as the most important proposed amendment, would revise structure of the Student Council.

A RESOLUTION CALLING FOR A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO RECONSTITUTE THE STUDENT COUNCIL AND ITS GENERAL PROCEDURE

Whereas: Under the present provisions in Article II, Section 3, Subsection (a), there are no effective means of ensuring that the Student Council will be composed of students who are suitably qualified and experienced to serve on a court that hears appeals from all the lower courts on campus; and,

Whereas: The provision in Article II, Section 4, whereby the accused, if granted a retrial, is sent back to the original court for retrial is not healthy, efficient, or in accord with our state and national judicial systems; and,

Whereas: The list of rights of the accused as provided for in Article II, Section 4, Subsection (c) are incomplete; and,

Whereas: Subsection (d) of the same Article and Section does not allow for the change in composition of the Student Council proposed for

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED BY THE STUDENT LEGISLATURE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA THAT

Article I—Article II, Section 3, of the student Constitution be amended to read:

a. The Student Council shall be composed of one member of the Men's Council, Women's Council, Law School Court, Interfraternity Council Court, Interdormitory Council Court and Dental School Court, to be elected by and from these judicial bodies in the spring elections, one woman elected from the women students in the spring, one member of the Men's Council, Women's Council, Medical School Court and Dance Committee, to be elected by and from these judicial bodies in the fall election, and one man elected from the men students in the fall.

(See AMENDMENTS, page four.)

the Ballot Box

A gentleman in the business of student politics gave us a good argument for not allowing 18-year-olds to vote.

"Why," he asked, "should students be allowed to vote in national elections when they are 18, when no more than 50 percent of them vote in campus elections?"

He is right. Records show last fall's election drew to the polls something like 48 per cent of the students enrolled in the University.

About 56 percent of the students voted in last spring's election.

Both elections were singular ones. Dave Reid's "leniency bill" — the most controversial thing to come out of student Legislature in our time — was put before the campus for a vote. It was voted down, but less than half the students used their right.

FOWLER, MUNTZING, McCURRY
. . . you pick the winner

Last spring, Charles Kuralt and Tom Peacock were running for editorship of The Daily Tar Heel. It was by far the hottest race of the year, with Candidate Peacock calling a Kuralt man a liar, and Candidate Kuralt saying Peacock was "scampering for cover whenever the real issues came out." Yet only 56 percent of the students voted.

It is entirely correct for the state lawmakers to wonder if 18-year-olds care enough, or are mature enough, to vote in national elections.

At Carolina, where the absurd promise registers in the voter's ear as the Gospel, where looks and speaking ability and wit come before platform and mental ability and energy, where half or less than half of the students vote on matters and people directly affecting them, apathy prevails.

* * *

Although we will make no predictions about today's election, we will guess that a runoff vote will be held for president of the student body.

* * *

Polling places are located on first floors of every dormitory this year. There are stairs leading to voting places from the second and third floors. — F.P.

You Can't Can-Can Like A Candidate Can

Dawn this morning, if it was like previous election day dawns, brought a heaping of clever signs and political gimmicks to clutter up the campus landscape.

And sometime ere midnight we will have a new president (or what is more likely a run-off), new legislators, new Women's Athletic Association officers. Party dreams of conquest, a "dynamic pep program", text book prices at the Book Ex are at stake in this seasonal strutting and fretting.

But thump the political barrel and what you get is a distinct hollow sound. Who among the dozens of candidates has firmly established his viewpoint on such a thing as segregation, with which, as a student officer, he will certainly have to deal next year?

No one, that's who. They have all sidestepped the issue without missing a step in their can-can before the sleepy audience.

Which of the candidates has looked beyond empty phrase-making to the University's real problems? Which of them has shown any interest in the University's first concern—education? (Besides opposition to Saturday classes, we mean.)

Time was, believe it or not, when there were candid candidates who, even at the expense of a few votes, felt it necessary to unburden themselves of their solemn convictions before asking for election.

After this most extensively watered down political season of the half-century, it is not hard to conclude that that time is past. But it would be out of character for a student editorialist not urge you to get out there and vote on election day. So — get out there and vote, especially if you have been able to perceive, amid the glacial wastes, the penguin you think to be worth it.

Last Things First

And what is it, we'd like to know, about legislative bodies in the spring? Our three favorite deliberative organizations stack up this way:

(1) UNC student Legislature—with the University entering on dark days, has been bogged down in pre-election pyrotechnics like calling The Daily Tar Heel names, and worse.

(2) North Carolina General Assembly—faced by gigantic budget difficulties, has had at least one hot debate: not, as you might suppose, over schools, roads or public works, but over the whammy, an amoral device used by the state cops to catch speeders. Has so far declined to uphold the Constitution it is sworn to support by re-districting legislative representation.

(3) Congress—Shows every sign of once more ignoring civil defense in the face of growing danger to great population centers. Has cut UN technical assistance funds (in the House) by half in the face of growing international antipathy and need. Biggest talk among members: Yalta, which happened 10 years ago.

The list could, of course, be lengthened beyond the meager evidence presented here. All we're suggesting is there must be something in the March air that befuddles representatives at every level on the matter of what's important and what's not; and what, amid the jumble of legislation they face, ought to come first.

Progress Report

Our men on the Progress In The Arts & Sciences beat has called our attention to an AP news story datelined College Park and outlining the following equivocal step forward at Good Old Maryland:

The University of Maryland Board of Regents today gave tentative approval for establishing a new (2-man) department of classics and building an 18-hole golf course on the campus at College Park.

Or, as Herblock puts it, "Ankle to ankle, men, and backward into the fray!"

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

A 'Thrillingly Imminent' Time Of The Year

Louis Kraar

CONTRARY TO poets and Kinsey, spring is the time when this campus turns it mind and energy to politics. This particular spring it's been the verbal sparring of candidates Ed McCurry, Don Fowler and Manning Muntzing.

It is the time when all leaders of the campus world compete to see who can wear the best smile for the longest time, who can win the most votes.

Here at Carolina, politics are taken pretty seriously. The campus politicians, above all else, take themselves more seriously than their jobs. Those who are running find the spring a treadmill of campaigning, and the voters (about half the students) find the whole business a pleasand diversion from academic duties.

★

THE TEMPO of the campus, usually a rather casually-paced place, steps up to a point at which life is "thrillingly imminent," as alumnus Thomas Wolfe once wrote. In "Of Time and the River," Wolfe—who was somewhat of a politician himself in his undergraduate days, reflected:

"It was just that season of the year when the two events which are dear to the speculations of the American had absorbed the public interest. These events were baseball and politics, and at that moment both were thrillingly imminent.... Both events gave the average American a thrill of pleasurable anticipation: his approach to both were essentially the same. It was the desire of a man to see a good show, to 'take sides' vigorously in an exciting contest—to be amused, involved as an interested spectator is involved, but not to be too deeply troubled or concerned by the result."

Such is the Carolina student's approach to campus politics. He spends hours listening to would-be statesmen promise elaborate dormitory facilities, extra holidays, and football trips; he argues endlesly about the relative merits of candidates; then he votes with the casualness of purchasing a coke in the Y.

On the other hand, the candidates have decided that it's high time someone started "doing something for the students." In his mission to serve the students of this first state university, the the candidates discover that the campus dining hall—a place featuring prosaic, but wholesome food—is the platform from which to save the campus.

First things come first to candidates, so when the campaign gets heated classes are sacrificed for the sake of "doing something for the students." Candidates are seen on posters, knocking on dorm doors, attending every conceivable social event, and anywhere else where they might glean a vote—except in classes.

★

ALMOST ALWAYS in a campus campaign (and this year may have been an exception) someone is accused of lying. And always the politicians swear that they are "not one of those politicians."

Nearly always — particularly this time—there are no issues, except which candidate is most popular. The dormitory party promises things for fraternities, and the fraternity party promises fraternities parties to the dorms. And so it goes on and on for several noisy weeks.

After it's over, administrators nod their heads in agreement over the great educational benefits of the political season. And they have reason to nod, for the University has turned out many state governors, Congressment, and a U. S. President (James K. Polk).

The candidates will quietly sink back into comparative obscurity after the battles, return to classes to learn, and stay away from voters to forget their promises.

A prominent history professor, amused at the spring sorties between campus politicians, seemed to sum the whole busines up when he declared:

"Politics? That's just another way of talking about human nature."

Classical Controversy (Contin.)

Tom Dunston Quoted Acts 26:24

(The writer of the following letter is Kenan Professor of Greek.—Editor.)

Editor:

I regret having to ask space for this, but Dr. Henderson's comments in Friday's Tar Heel seem to leave no choice in the matter. If I had had the slightest idea that a personal letter would ever be used in such a manner, I would never have written it. How Dr. Henderson could consider his statement a "vindication of the principles of classical scholarship," remains a mystery to me. Here are the facts, which I offer and leave it to the reader to decide for himself.

In his article in the Tar Heel of March 11, Dr. Henderson quoted Tom Dunston as saying to Dr. Alderman: "Marse Ed, what's got into you? I believe you is going crazy. As Epaminondas said to Themistocles, 'Much learning doth make thee mad' (Italics mine). Where Tom could have picked up the famous saying of Petronius, no one knows."

It was this sentence that evoked my letter. I wrote and suggested that Dunston might have picked his quotation up from the King James version of Acts 26:24, since the Bible was so well known in those days even to illiterate people. It seemed natural to me for Dunston to have mixed his quotation up, as unlettered people frequently do, and to have attributed a Biblical quotation to two Greeks with big sounding names (neither of which appears, by the way, in Peronius). I merely added that my Latin colleagues didn't recognize it as coming from Petronius. (I have since discovered that Dr. Ullman misunderstood my question, since I asked him about the quotation during a lively informal discussion about the source of another quotation, "veni, vidi vici," after a doctoral examination. He had, of course, known the passage for years.) On March 16th, I had a reply from Dr. Henderson quoting the passage in section 46 of Petronius' work. The Latin reads: scimus te prue litteras fatuum esse. This is not what is called good Latin, since Petronius had his parvenu speak in the vulgar Latin of the day. But, translated according to the Latin, without any added "filler" or any reading into it, this quotation says: "We know you are foolish as a result of literature," or one might say "literary studies." This then is the issue, which Dr. Henderson for some reason ignored: The language Dr. Henderson attributed to Dunston, namely: "Much learning doth make thee mad" is the exact language of the King James version of Acts 26:24, and cannot be a literally correct translation of the Latin quoted above from Petronius. Moreover, it seems certain that no one could ever "translate" Petronius' Latin into the exact words of the King James version of Acts 26:24, except one who knew already the King James version. The French translations by Ernout and by Rat seem to bear this out, since the French vocabulary they use is not even remotely like in meaning to the King James version. Such a meaning as Dr. Henderson gives might, of course, be read into the Latin but it cannot be legitimately read out of the Latin. Such so called translations are loose paraphrases and not translations, even though many translators, who know better, use such paraphrases apparently to give a more modern tone to their versions.

As to this quotation from Petronius which Dr. Henderson translated as follows in his letter to me: "We know that you are mad with too much learning" (italics mine), there is no Latin word in the Petronious statement for "too" or for "much." Moreover the unabridged Lewis and Short Latin Dictionary does not allow "mad" as a meaning for fatuus. The only meanings it gives for this word are: (adj.) foolish, simple, silly, awkward, clumsy, insipid, tasteless. As a noun the meanings given are: fool, simpleton, jester, buffoon. Moreover, the Latin dictionary does not give any meaning, even for this Petronius passage, which is equivalent to the Greek mania, from which the "mad" in the King James version comes. The only synonyms the dictionary gives for the Greek mania are furor and insania. The only Latin quotation mentioned in Dr. Henderson's letter which might legitimately yield his translation of the Petronius passage is Jerome's version of Acts 26:24. This reads: Multae te litterae ad insaniam convertunt, and strictly translated means "Much learning (or literature) is turning you toward madness." One has only to compare this with the translation given above of the Petronius passage to see how impossible it is for the Petronius passage to yield this meaning.

I saw what had misled Dr. Henderson the moment I read his letter. It is something we have to combat continually in courses in Greek and Latin literature in translation. By about the middle of the 19th century there had grown up among translators of the classics a pernicious practice of departing from translating and resorting to loose paraphrase by well known kindred, though not equivalent, phrases and statements. Such translators must have known perfectly well that they were not translating in such passages but were giving only a rough kindred idea which would make their translations seem more up to date and also more attractive to readers.

To give just one example. In Choephori 313-314 Aeschylus says that a very old saying states this: "The doer must suffer." Morshead translates this statement, "The doer must suffer," as follows: "Whoe'er shall take the sword shall perish by the sword." That is how far such translators can desert their texts to bring in some well known paraphrase. Even Stevenson, Duff and Heseltine, whom Dr. Henderson quotes, have yielded to this temptation. One of the worst offenders in this respect is Professor Gilbert Murray, who knows as much Greek as any living scholar, yet his translations are generally so inflated with such paraphrases that they are too misleading to be suitable for texts in classes where the teacher knows how far they vary from the Greek. Anyone interested in seeing how extensive this is in Professor Murray's translations should read T. S. Eliot's essay entitled "Euripides and Professor Murray" in his volume of Selected Essays from 1917-32.

There is no space here to go into the tortured question of what is translation, but what I have had in mind throughout this statement is what is generally regarded as correct translation. I am not speaking of mere verbal metaphrase. I submit therefore that no Latin professor who knows his Latin would accept "We know that you are mad with too much learning" as literally correct translation of the Latin in Petronius. He might very well accept it, as Duff, Heseltine etc. do, as a loose paraphrase redolent of the King James version of the Bible.

Such are the facts back of Dr. Henderson's statement in last Friday's Tar Heel, and back of his similar oral presentation before Mr. Robert Frost and a group of his callers last week. Any one caring to should not have much trouble deciding for himself about this question. We don't have to depend on secondary sources, translations or paraphrases. We have these four things:

(1) Petronius' Latin, which simply means: "We know you are foolish as a result of literature."

(2) The inflated paraphrases (not translation) used by Dr. Henderson, which says: "We know that you are mad with too much learning."

(3) The King James version of Acts 26:24, which reads: "Much learning doth make thee mad."

(4) And finally the direct words attributed by Dr. Henderson to Tom Dunston: "Much learning doth make thee mad."

As can be readily seen, the King James version (No. 3) and Tom Dunston's words (No. 4) tally verbatim, even to the "doth" and "thee," whereas neither the King James version (No. 3) nor Dunston's words (No. 4) tally with either the translation (No. 1) or the paraphrase (No. 2) of Petronius. It seems clear, therefore, that Dunston's words could not have come from Petronius' Latin, but must have come from the King James version of Acts 26:24.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, for this space, and for your indulgence.

P. H. Epps

Square Bashin' Vs. Typewriter

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON.—The Administration is now at long last asking itself seriously whether it is really such a brilliant idea to reduce American ground strength by 30 per cent, to a million men. But there is also another question which ought to be asked—why do we get less than twenty divisions out of a million men, when the Russians get more than forty-five?

During the last war, this reporter developed a theory which has a bearing on this question, and which may be worth repeating, for what it is worth. They theory is that the greatest problem for any army, aside from fighting, is what to do with trained troops when they are not fighting, which is most of the time. The whole character of any army is determined by the way this problem is solved.

FAMILIAR EXCHANGE

Take the British army, in which this reporter served during the course of an unheroic but peculiar military career. Anyone who knows the British army will recall the following familiar exchanges:

Captain: "I say, Sergeant Major, what on earth will we do with the troops today?"

Sergeant Major: "How about a spot of square-bashin', sir?"

Captain: "I say, splendid idea. Lay it on, Sergeant Major."

Square-bashin', or drill, is the British army's way of solving the problem. British drill has no relation at all to war. It is an end in itself, a kind of military ballet, beautiful to watch when well done, infinitely time-consuming.

WITH SPEED AND STOMPING

When an American soldier receives the order, "about turn" he turns around in the way the human body was designed to turn. Not so the British soldier. He must execute six separate and difficult movements of his feet, plus added movements of his arms, and he must be able to do so at various speeds, with varying degrees of stomping.

Moreover, just to be sure that the absolute maximum of time is wasted on drill, the British have devised orders fiendishly calculated to entrap the unwary (this reporter was caught every time). For example: "Platoon will ADVANCE in columns of three. To the REAR, march." Or "Company will move to the RIGHT in columns of three. LEFT turn."

For reasons hidden in the mists of time and the mysteries of national temperament, the American army has found an entirely different solution to the same problem. The American army's solution is the typewriter.

HANDWRITTEN ORDERS

When this reporter, at the front in Italy, was given a chance to transfer to the American army, his British colonel gave him the customary "chitty"—a handwritten note, torn out of the colonel's notebook, authorizing the bearer to "go to Algiers to join the American army." When the American army asked for "orders," the chitty was produced. It was regarded as a sort of horrible joke throughout the American army, and this reported was "out of channels" from the very start.

In the American army an order is not an order until it has been typed in innumerable faultless copies, validated at headquarters, perhaps even in Washington, signed, stamped, processed, and Heaven knows what else. Any American soldier—as the hearings in the case of the celebrated Major Peress served to recall—proceeds through the army in a vast suffocating sea of documents.

VOCO SQUEEZED US THROUGH

This is unquestionably a brilliant solution to the problem of keeping soldiers busy. In our army the number of man hours daily devoted to composing orders or other documents, and tying or mimeographing or printing them, and signing and stamping and distributing and processing and filing them, and even reading them, is absolutely astronomical. There are those who swear that in the last war the system would have stopped the American army dead in its tracks, before a shot was fired, if the brilliant device of VOCO—"Verbal Orders of the Commanding Officer"—had not been invented in the nick of time.

It is hard to see how any sensible man can disagree with Gen. Matthew Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, when he argues that this is no time to be cutting American ground strength. Even so, maybe Gen. Ridgway ought to try a revolutionary experiment—an absolute ban on typewriters, at least below the division level. After all, wars have been fought and won with absolutely no typewriters at all—and by American armies.

The Furry Ones

Residents Of 1600 Penn. Ave.

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON—Senator Richard Neuberger's plea to President Eisenhower to spare the White House squirrels made only the late editions of the afternoon newspapers that day. Yet his mail the next morning contained more than a hundred approving letters with $30 in small contributions toward his fund to build a squirrel-proof fence around the President's putting green.

BOX-TRAP TREATMENT

The President ordered the squirrels deported because they scratch up his putting green at the back of the White House. An effort was made first to scare them away with electronic shocks but it failed. Now they are box-trapped and taken off to the West Virginia woods and released. The theory is that they will not be able to find their way home.

Operation Sqquirrel is Mr. Eisenhower's first experience with one of "the little things that count." Like that pastel mink coat, a squirrel is an easily comprehended symbol to many people for whom the stock market, synthetic rubber plants and reciprocal trade have only academic interest.

OLD-TIMERS

The White House squirrels who have failed to respect the President's passion for golf, are as Neuberger pointed out, a Washington tradition. Tourists and their children may fail to meet or see any important politician but with a handful of peanuts they have long made the acquaintance of residents of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue whose antedates Mr. Eisenhower's.

He is not the first to find them something of a nuisance. The country-bred Harry S. Truman laughed off the complaints of gardeners about the squirrels and appointed a five-year old boy as their official feeder.

NEUBERGER COUP

Animal-lovers protest that the present deportation system releases in woods household pets who are too domesticated to flourish wild. Others insist the operation is futile because deportations can't keep up with squirrel capacity to breed.

Senator Neuberger caught the Republicans off guard with his decision to celebrate National Wildlife Week by an offensive in behalf of the White House squirrels. As he began to speak they decided instantly that discretion was the better part of valor and vanished from the floor, leaving only Senator Kuchel of California to hold the fort. Kuchel did not permit himself to smile but he did not answer back either.

Quote, Unquote

Freedom from interruption may be counted by artists as not the least of the five freedoms.
—Charles L. Morgan

★

Races didn't bother the Americans. They were something better than any race. They were a People. They were the first self-constituted, self-declared, self-created People in the history of the world. And their manners were their own business. And so were their politics. And so, but ten times so, were their souls —Archibald MacLeish in A Time To Act

★

Heroes are created by popular demand, sometimes out of the scantiest materials . . . such as the apple that William Tell never shot, the ride that Paul Revere never finished, the flag that Barbara Frietchie never waved.—Gerald W. Johnson in American Heroes and Hero-Worship.

★

I haven't been abroad in so long that I almost speak English without an accent.—Robert Benchley

★

If you make people think they're thinking, they'll love you. If you really make them think, they'll hate you.—Don Marquis.

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

Carolina football coach George Barclay has released a list of boys, officially accepted to the University, who have indicated they would like to play ball with the Tar Heels next season.

The players, judging from Barclay's comments, appear to be very impressive. They include:

David Coates, of Culpepper, Va., end, 6'-2", 210 pounds; Charles Jackson, Chowan, S. C., halfback, 6', 175 pounds; Fred Swarringer, Petersburg, Va., guard-center, 6'-2", 210 pounds and only 17 years old; Billy Hardison, Edenton, center, 6'-1", 200 pounds; Jim Boggs, High Point, guard, 6'-2", 220 pounds, a high school wrestling champion who has won 34 consecutive matches; Dan Droves, Washington, D. C., halfback, 5'-10", 170 pounds (This boy is at Carolina now, having begun school last month.); Curtis Hathaway, Norfolk (now at Fork Union Military Academy), quarterback, 6', 180; Doug Harless, Norfolk (also at Fork Union), guard, 6', 200 pounds; Ron Koes, Duryea, Penn., fullback, 6'-2", 200 pounds; Ed Lipski, Larksville, Penn., halfback, 6'-1", 190 pounds (had a brother who was a star at W & M); Armond Shew, Clinton, end, 6', 180pnuods.

Two other players will come to Carolina next year on Morehead Scholarships. They are Mason Wilkins, a quarterback from Durham, and Charles Reed, a halfback from Sylva.

Barclay said yesterday he was hoping to land about 24 players. Half of these are already in fold. The remainder are still questionable.

Red Smith, sparkling New York Herald Tribune columnist, came up with a gem last week, although he obviously confused North Caro- from Walter Prichard Eaton, former newspaperman and part-time Chapel Hillian:

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 23—This is the home of the University of North Carolina, a pleasant town among the sandy pine forests where distinguished textile engineers like George Stirnweiss and Charley Justice studied spinning and weaving and where, apparently, memories are long. In evidence whereof, there is in the current issue of the "Chapel Hill Weekly" a letter to the editor.

The author of the letter, Mr. Walter Prichard Eaton, tells of a ball game that was begun here fifty-seven years ago and has not yet been completed, and it sets a reader to wondering whether the years have brought an improvement or a worsening of diplomatic relations in intercollegiate sport. There is a temptation to lift Mr. Eaton's letter in one piece and let it stand as a column, but one gathers from the news on Jelke that it is unwise these days to prostitute any art. A summary seems to be indicated.

It seems that a recent visitor to Chapel Hill was C. L. McIlvaine, who had not been here since he was student manager of the University of Pennsylvania baseball team that came to play North Carolina in 1898. Feeling flush because he had a guarantee of $250, the manager chartered a Pullman car in which the Penn team traveled and dressed for combat after arrival.

The ball park in Chapel Hill must have been a bit on the primitive side. Behind the rightfielder, a steep declivity pitched down into deep woods, so that any ball hit beyond the fielder rolled into wilderness and became an automatic home run.

In the very first inning, a Carolina drive disappeared into these wilds, and the Penn rightfielder peltered down out of sight in frantic pursuit. Confident that the ball would not be recovered that week, the batter was enjoying a liesurely stroll around the bases when the outfielder scrambled back up the back, threw, and retired him at second base.

Before one inning had been completed, the game ended in howling dispute. The Carolinas insisted the Penn man must have had a spare baseball concealed in his pocket. The Penn man said he had found the batted ball lodged in a chuck hole just over the rim of the hill. Carolina declared this could not be, because no such thing ever had happened before.

The Carolina manager scrammed with all the gate receipts, refusing to honor Penn's $250 guarantee. The Penns returned to change clothes and discovered that their Pullman had been hauled away because they had not been expected to return inside two hours. To this day, Mr. McIlvaine hasn't got his $250. Nobody, Mr. Eaton points out, had thought of resolving the argument by sending a search party down the hill to see whether there was a baseball lying around there.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
gives you the full, rich taste of quality tobacco
and real filtration, too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Diamonders Open ACC Slate Today

Raugh To Hurl Against 'Pack At 3 O'clock

Tar Heels Are Looking For Second '55 Win

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Carolina's baseball Tar Heels launch a 12-game home schedule when they tackle N. C. State's Wolfpack this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Emerson Stadium.

This will be Carolina's first taste of conference competition after a split in two games at the annual Rollins Baseball Tournament in Winter Park, Florida.

State is still licking its wounds from a terrific 19-6 beating they absorbed at the hands of the Wake Forest Deacons Saturday. The Wolfpack's 13-hit attack went for naught as Lefty Davis led the Deacs to an impressive initial victory in conference play. State, with an 0-1 conference record, will be seeking its first loop victory at the expense of the Tar Heels.

Jim Raugh will probably start for the Tar Heels and Tommy Hargrove, the State ace, might hurl for the Wolfpack. Hargrove lasted only one-third of an inning against Wake Forest before he was forced to the showers. State coach Vic Sorrell may bring him back for a crack at the Tar Heels.

IF STATE starts a lefthander, there is a good possibility that Tar Heel captain Harry Lloyd will start at second base. Ken Keller may also see some duty for Carolina.

Last year, Carolina won eight and dropped eight against conference competition. State took the measure of the Tar Heels in two of three games .

Coach Rabb of the Tar Heels is a graduate of N. C. State where he played shortstop during the "thirties." Rabb would like nothing better than to kick off the home schedule with a victory against his alma mater.

The Tar Heel lineup should have Tom Zachary at first, Chuck Hartman or Lloyd at second, Jack Woods at third, Albert Long at shortstop, Connie Gravitte, Bob Paller and Mal Harding or Ken Keller in the outfield and Jimmy Love behind the plate.

THE TAR HEELS were scheduled to play four contests in Florida but ran into wet weather and ended up with a 4-3 victory over Ohio State and a 2-0 setback at the hands of the Rollins nine. Raugh, the big Tar Heel righthander, had one stormy inning in which the Buckeyes touched him for three runs but otherwise, he scattered six hits and pitched a fine game to get credit for his first victory of the season.

TOM MAULTSBY hurled the nightcap of the Thursday doubleheader and yielded two runs to the Rollins Tars but his team-mates could manage only one infield hit against lefthander Art Brophy, who has yet to lose a college game.

Although disappointed at the unusual Florida weather, Rabb said, "I've seen everyone that I wanted to see . . . The pitching looked real good and we are looking for this boy Stone (Art Stone) to help us quite a bit."

Stone pitched in a scrimmage against Ohio State and allowed one run in seven innings. His performance might give the Tar Heels a third dependable starter along with Raugh and Maultsby.

Netters Tackle Michigan At 3

The Carolina varsity tennis team opens its 1955 campaign this afternoon here against Michigan State College. The Spartans are not expected to be too great a threat for the UNC netmen, who are tackling one of the toughest tennis slates in the country this spring.

The starting single lineup for UNC will be Herb Browne in the No. 1 position, captain Bobby Payne in the No. 2 slot, Tommy Bradford at three, Pete Greene, Ron Kerdasha, and Don Thompson.

In doubles Browne and Bradford will play first, Payne and Greene second, and in the third doubles birth either Thompson and Kerdasha or Eddie Hudgins and Bob Bortner.

Hopes are high for a betterment of last year's fine 22 of 24 record in spite of the more difficult schedule. Carolina has a fine No. 1 man in Browne and depth to spare. Today's match, starting at 3:00 o'clock on the varsity courts, should prove to be an afternoon of good tennis for Carolina tennis fans.

Drake Sparks Tar Heels At NCAA Tank Tourney

By BOB COLBERT

Sophomore Phil Drake of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, became the first Tar Heel to win an NCAA swimming championship as he took the 200-yard butterfuly breaststroke in the 32nd Annual NCAA meet held in Oxford, Ohio, last weekend.

Drake won the event in spite of stiff competition from defending champion Dave Hawkins of Harvard and Bumpy Jones of Michigan with a near record time of 2:13.7. Hawkins was clocked in 2:14.6 and Jones in 2:15.2.

Drake, who qualified third behind Hawkins and Jones, took the lead at the end of 50 yards, but then Jones and Hawkins caught up with him and they were even at the end of 100 yards. By 150 yards, Drake had slipped into third place, but he started moving and caught up with them again at 175 yards. He took the lead with 15 yards to go and poured it on to finish about six feet in front of Hawkins. There was only nine-tenths of a second difference in their times.

In other Saturday events, Charlie Krepp qualified first in the 100-yard backstroke, but came in fourth in the finals. His time was just one second slower than that of world record holder Yoshi Oyakawa of Ohio State who was clocked in 58.0.

In the final event of the three-day meet, Ohio State's 300-yard medley relay team broke the existing national intercollegiate record. Oyakawa, Al Wiggins, and Ed Kawachika went the distance in 2:42.2. The Tar Heel team of Krepp, Drake, and Dick Baker was nosed out of third place by N. C. State. State, swimming Bill Sonner, Bob Mattson, who won the 200 yard orthodox breaststroke on Friday, and Dave McIntyre, was clocked in a time of 2:51.0 while the Tar Heels' time was 2:51.1.

Ohio State easily won its ninth national championship, amassing 90 points. Yale and Michigan were tied for second wth 51 points each. N. C. State and Carolina, each with three-man teams entered in the meet, finished fourth and fifth with 20 and 17 points respectively. Sixth place went to Harvard with 15 points.

The Tar Heels, reinforced by Bill Roth, Walt Rose, Mac Mahaffey, Ned Meekins, Bob Lynch, Parker Ward, Bill Zickgraf, and Lee Holmes will leave this week for the National Indoor AAU meet to be held at New Haven, Connecticut, this weekend. This will wind up their indoor season.

Linksmen Meet MSC, 2 O'clock

The North Carolina golf team opens its 1955 schedule here today at 2 o'clock on the University owned Finley Course, when they play host to Michigan State.

Tar Heel links Coach Chuck Erickson will have no less than six of last years lettermen on hand, who won six of seven matches.

Lettermen Bill Ford, Larry Parker, Joe Correll, Jim Sykes and Bill Armfield are slated to team with sophomores Aubrey Rotrock, Bobby Sisk, Cal Mitchell and Larry Bell in this afternoon's opener.

Jimmy Sykes, behind seven strokes as the final round began, cruised around in even par 71 to capture runner-up spot in the recent Charleston, S. C. Azalea Invitational Golf Tournament with a 295 total.

Other Carolina players in the Azalea event were Rothrock, Ford, Correll and Bell.

North Carolina lost the team trophy in competition with Duke and The Citadel. The Blue Devil's top four men fired a total of 294 on qualifying day to edge the Tar Heels by two strokes.

Yankees Lose Noren For At Least Week

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28. (AP)—Outfielder Irv Noren will be lost to the New York Yankees for at least a week with an injured finger. The player, who has been sidelined for two weeks with a knee sprain, injured the small finger of his right hand while engaging in bunting practice. X-rays showed no break.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor examined the finger today, prior to the afternoon rain which cancelled the scheduled game with Baltimore.

Frosh Meet Wolflets Today In Raleigh

Coach Henry House was fairly optimistic about his freshman baseball squad yesterday as he previewed prospects for today's opener against N. C. State in Raleigh.

"I don't know how we'll do," he said, "but we usually hold our own." He stated that this year's team offered better material than he has had in past years.

House announced that he would start southpaw Charlie Cross on the mound, and that Cross would be backed by right hander Joe Gilliland.

The team opens its home schedule here tomorrow againstt Cranbrook High.

McGUIRE BOOKED UP

University basketball coach Frank McGuire, who has built up a fine reputation as an after dinner speaker, is booked up practically solid for speaking engagements during the next two months.

UNC Takes Second In Relays; Distance Medley Team Wins

By RAY LINKER

North Carolina's track team opened the outdoor season by placing in nine events in the Florida Relays this past week-end, including a first in the distance medley relay, to come away from the meet with a second place in the team standings behind Louisiana State.

LSU captured the meet's unofficial team crown with 25 points, although they had only one first place, and the Tar Heels trailed with 21½.

The Tar Heels' first in the distance medley relay was an easy victory with Don Wright running the 440 leg of the relay followed by Boyd Newnam (880), Bobby Barden (¾ mile), and Jim Beatty (mile). Carolina was out front from about the half-mile mark and went on to win by a considerable distance in 10:31. Bob Jones, in the anchor-man position on the N. C. State team, ran a fine race that brought the Wolfpack home in second place, but the Tar Heels were too far out front to be in danger of being beaten.

ROGER MORRIS took second place in both the shot and discus behind Georgia Tech's Carl Vereen. Vereen threw the shot 49' 10½" to nose out Morris by a half-inch, and scored a 153'2¾" in the discus to Morris' 148' 11". Vereen took the discus event with his last throw, as Morris was leading up to that point.

Charlie Yarborough scored high by taking third in the broad jump with a leap of 23' 6⅜" and scoring a tie for third in the pole vault with a height of 12' 5¾". Yarborough had more good jumps in the broad jump in the meet than he has ever had in a single meet. He soared to 23' four times.

Loyola won the 440-relay in the record time of 42.2. North Carolina was third with Claude Rhule, Bob Wilson, Charlie Scott, and Don Mitchell.

THE SPRINT MEDLEY relay was dominated by ACC teams, with Fred Roberts anchoring South Carolina to a new record of 3:30, with Maryland second, Duke third, and Carolina fourth. Bill Booth, Rhule, Mitchell and Newnam composed the UNC team.

Auburn's John Barton set a new record of 9:28.5 in winning the two-mile, but not before turning back N. C. State's Mike Shea. Barden finished in fourth in the race for UNC, with Glenn Nanney of Carolina just out of the running in fifth place.

STEVE MARCINKO'S 187' 4¾" in the javelin was good for a third place behind Joe May of LSU and Dick Bartulski of South Carolina.

Chicago College of
OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry
DEGREE
IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's

MANAGEMENT JOBS!
If you're graduating this year
you may qualify for this unusual offer

The opportunity—To join a few men in a training program which will prepare you for a place in management with a growing organization that must maintain the highest type of intelligent administration. It is an opportunity in management operations in the Home Office rather than sales or sales management.

The job—If you are selected to join us, you will spend your first eight months in comprehensive training designed to qualify you as a Company management consultant. You will be trained in procedure analysis, production planning, management surveys, quality control, cost control, conference leadership, public relations, report writing, interviewing technique, and life insurance principles.

The future—Immediately following completion of training you will be assigned to consulting work within our Home Office organization. There you will be expected to develop ideas for the improvement of the day-to-day organization of the Company.

The salary—The starting salary compares favorably with those of other organizations. In addition, all of our personnel receive regular medical and dental examinations and luncheon in the Company's lunch rooms at the Company's expense. We also maintain a well-rounded insurance and retirement program for our personnel and their dependents.

The requirements—Personality, appearance, creative ability and initiative are essential qualities. Evidence of leadership as demonstrated in scholastic and extra-curricular activities is considered important in the selection of qualified men. Although preference is sometimes given to those who hold a graduate degree in industrial engineering or business administration other factors are given thorough consideration.

If the facts in this brief description interest you, write directly to Management Education, Coordination Division, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company
1 Madison Avenue New York 10, N. Y.

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

GET YOUR EASTER CARDS
EARLY
SO HURRY!!
100's TO CHOOSE FROM
EASTER IS APRIL 10
LEDBETTER - PICKARD

The Most Colossal Scoop Of The Season

Think of it—you can now get a pair of sanforized baby cord slacks, in a perfect ivy league narrow, ready cuffed, in either blue, gray or tan for the low, low price of

$4.95

We are still continuing our below cost sale on 265 pairs of slacks—all in pleated model, including Irish linens—

All that formerly sold to $10, now

$3.99

All that were ever $10.00 now

$5.99

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

The Man Who Came To Dinner — Again

Consider Cornelius McGillicuddy. No charm boy he—there is even a record of a time when a tiny morsel of chop suey landed on his cravat. None of the Phi Beta Kappa boys rushed him.

But Cornelius holds one distinction. He's the champion repeat guest. Most anybody can get invited out for one week-end. Cornelius was invited to come again—and again.

How did this ordinary jerk rate such popularity? It's simple, pal, it's simple. He Remembered His Hostess.

It's a fact. Never did he go meandering off for a week-end's fun and frolic at somebody's house without taking along a book for Somebody's Mother. In times of plenty, he took something costly—in tough times he visited our dollar table and used a little eraser he had on the price mark. But the results were always good.

As Easter Vacation approaches, may we suggest that you, too, can be a Guest Who Gets Invited Back. Stop in, pal. We'll help you.

The Intimate Bookshop

295 E. Franklin St.

Open Evenings

Di, Phi Meet Tonight

The Dialectic Senate will debate Eugene Whitehead's bill calling for the abolition of political parties at UNC tonight at 8 o'clock. According to a Di spokesman, the bill is expected to cause a great deal of debate because of the current interest in the campus elections. He added that the body hopes to greet a large number of visitors.

The Philanthropic Literary Society will debate a bill advocating repeal of laws prohibiting denominational religious instruction in public schools tonight at 8 o'clock on the fourth floor of New East.

According to a Phi spokesman, the public is encouraged to attend, and any students visiting are encouraged to participate in the debate.

Muntzing's Record

(Continued from Page 1.)

Sigma.

His other activities have included membership on the Graham Memorial Board, Consolidated University Student Council and in the Dialectic Senate and the State Student Legislature. He has been editor of the Carolina Handbook and orientation counselor and freshman camp counselor.

The SP candidate is a member of the Order of the Grail.

In addition to the Student Party Platform, Muntzing has promised the following things.

The setting up of a student-run traffic court to work toward solving the car problem by handling ticket violations and car registration. The court would have the power to levy fines, which would be used to build more parking areas and construct a new student union building.

Extend all possible support toward the continuation of the campus activities program. The means for such an extension would be continuing support to the IDC-sponsored social program and continuing support to the Graham Memorial social program.

600,000 SEE PLANETARIUM

Some individual student among 29 sixth graders from Vanceboro Elementary school in Craven county was the 600,000th person to visit the Morehead Planetarium since its opening in 1949. The class was given a world globe, a constellation globe and a set of miniature prehistoric animals, representative of those which appeared in "Billions of Years Ago."

Fowler's Record

(Continued from Page 1)

Committee of Graham Memorial.

Fowler was honored as the outstanding freshman cadet in the AFROTC. In his sophomore year he was given the Order of the Grail's award to the outstanding self help student. He has been a scholarship student for three years. He is a member of the Order of the Grail and Phi Eta Sigma.

Fowler's independent platform is as follows.

"Student traffic committee to regulate the traffic problem on the campus and present the students' views to the Board of Trustees on the student's right to own a car.

"Endorsement of the Student Council revision as proposed in the Constitutional amendment and a pledge to work for continued improvement of the Honor System.

"Control of fraternities by the Interfraternity Council. Due to the responsible leadership demonstrated by fraternities, the administration should maintain a 'hands off' policy in such issues as housemothers, etc.

"Promotion of a spirit of unity throughout the campus. The campus has become wider split between small groups, such as those representing dormitories and fraternities. I promise to give all groups an equal voice in student government and to appoint the most capable people to positions available.

"A closer unity among all three branches of student government with one common purpose—a better student government for all.

"To elevate student government to the position of a genuine junior partnership with the administration.

"I am making no sweeping promises to any group on campus. We all recognize the goals of student government, but no candidate can promise that these various projects will be done."

McCurry's Record

(Continued from Page 1)

(pre-law) major here with an average of B.

His student government activities have included membership on the Consolidated University Student Council, President's Council and the President's Committee on State Affairs. He has also been chairman of Consolidated University Day, the Faculty Evaluation Committee and the Special Committee on Rushing. He has been attorney general of the student body.

He has been a member of both the student Legislature and the State Student Legislature. The UP candidate is a member of the Men's Honor Council and the Judicial Study Committee. He is chairman of the Dance Committee Court. He has been secretary and treasurer of Mangum dorm.

His other activities have included treasurer and vice-president of the Interfraternity Council, chairman of Greek Week and Rush Week for Interfraternity Council, delegate to the National Interfraternity Convention, secretary and vice-president of the Pi Kappa Alpha chapter here and delegate to the national convention of Pi Kappa Alpha.

He has been exchequer of the Order of the Grail and is a member of the University Dance Committee.

McCurry's platform, in addition to that of the University Party, is as follows.

"Dean's list for entire University computed on B average basis as in the School of Business Administration.

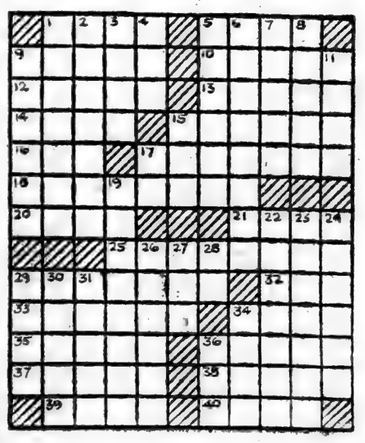
"Closer relationship between students and their elected officers, to be brought about by periodic student government reports in The Daily Tar Heel, attendance by student government officers at meetings of dormitories, Interfraternity Council, Women's Residence Council and other student organizations.

"Improved relations between the University and our high schools, including High School Weekend and visitation program."

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS



1. Buffoon
5. Man's name (abbr.)
9. Mont ——, a pass in the Alps between France and Italy
10. Milk: comb. form
12. Filmy fabrics
13. Mistake
14. A month of the Hindu calendar
15. Of the sea
16. A genus of swine
17. Apportions
18. Furthers
20. Withered
21. Eskers
25. Reprove gently
29. Cents
32. Sure (dial.)
33. Ate away
34. Town (D.)
35. French river (poss.)
36. Give forth music, as a bell
37. Tapering summit of a tower
38. Sharpens, as a razor
39. Soviet News agency
40. Filled with solemn wonder

DOWN

1. A metrical unit
2. A tooth
3. Bearing
4. Large worm
5. Split
6. A. U. S. president
7. Bitterly pungent
8. Famous American actor
9. Embraces
11. Metallic rocks
15. Fingerless glove (var.)
17. Note of the scale
19. Wanderers aimlessly
22. Of a pope named Sixtus
23. Abashed by guilt
24. Island in Aegean Sea
26. Double dagger marks
27. Medical (abbr.)
28. Bone (anat.)
29. Letters of the alphabet
30. Burst forth, as a volcano
31. Undershot waterwheel
34. Exhibit
36. Mandarin tea

Saturday's Answer

Amendments Proposed

(Continued from Page 1)

b. All members shall serve terms of one year. If a member's term on the council from which he was elected should expire before the expiration of his term on the Student Council, it shall not affect the completion of his term on the Student Council. If the term of the person elected to the chairmanship in the spring shall expire at the following fall elections, it shall be extended until the following spring elections. No executive committee shall be a member of the Student Council. No person who has not attained at least the status of "junior" shall be eligible to serve on the Student Council.

Article II—Article II, Section 4, of the student Constitution be amended to read:

a. RIGHT OF REVIEW. Any student who is convicted by the Men's Council, Women's Council, Law School Court, Medical School Court, Dental School Court, Interdormitory Council Court, Interfraternity Council Court or Dance Committee shall have the right to have his case reviewed promptly by the Student Council. In a review, if the Student Council finds that all or any of the constitutional rights were denied the accused, the Student Council shall have the power to retry the case.

b. OFFENSES AND PUNISHMENTS. Except where the student Legislature shall have fixed the offense and limitations to punishment, the Men's Council, Women's Council, Law School Council, Dental School Council, if established, and Medical School Council shall have discretionary authority, providing that they shall take full cognizance of the traditional offenses and punishments heretofore enforced at this University.

c. RIGHTS OF ACCUSED. The accused person in any judicial hearing shall have the following rights:

(1) The presumption of innocence until guilt is proven.
(2) The right to due notice and a fair hearing.
(4) The privilege of assistance by a member of the judicial body, if requested.
(5) The right of appeal on the grounds that a member of the original court was prejudiced against him.
(6) That the conviction was not based on insufficient evidence.
(7) That the penalty was not unusual or unjust.
(8) The right to retrial by the Student Council on the submission of new and pertinent evidence by the accused.

No person presenting testimony for or against the accused shall sit in judgment of the accused. The council shall inform each accused person of his rights guaranteed under this section at the time he is notified of the charges against him.

d. No student shall be a member of more than one judicial body except that he be a member of the Student Council elected from a lower judicial body.

THEIR PROGRAMS:

The SP & The UP

The University Party has promised during its campaign to work for the following objectives.

"A fairer and less restrictive cut system.

"Phones on every floor of every dorm.

"Remodeling of Veterans' Clubhouse into a recreation hall.

"Continued attempts to get free passes for dates to home football games.

"More support to the University Band.

"Continuation of High School Honor Committee and institution of a student government High School Weekend.

"Removal of the editorship of The Daily Tar Heel from politics.

"Improved regulations concerning coed visiting in the dorms.

"Referendum for any further additions to student fees.

"Better parking facilities for student automobiles.

"Continued opposition to restrictions on student ownership of automobiles.

"Periodic reports to the campus from the executive, legislative and judicial branches of student government.

"Return of 25 percent of the campus store profits to the students.

"Tests for exemption of veterans from physical education.

"Reinstatement of hygiene exemption tests."

The Student Party has promised that the following things will be done if its members are elected.

"Open the Graham Memorial Patio for dancing.

"Establish a Student Thinking Board to prepare us for future anticipated demands on student freedoms such as Saturday classes, the cut rule and now car restrictions.

"Furnish 100 percent support of the University Band improvements and a dynamic pep program.

"Set up a voluntary program to secure riders for those with cars during holidays and rides for those wanting them."

In addition, the SP has said that they "will do all that students can do" to see that the following things are accomplished, although "it is impossible to promise" that they will be done "because they will need cooperation from South Building or others outside of student government."

"Reduce ticket prices for football date tickets.

"Return 40 percent of the vending machine profits to the dorms.

"Institute a reading day between the last day of classes and the first day of exams.

"Secure a class-free Saturday during the spring.

"Extend social facilities on the whole campus.

"Reduce text book prices at the Book Ex.

"Establish a student parking court so that we may keep our cars.

"Fight against an increase in tuition or dorm rent.

"Increased parking area for students on campus."

—Voting—

(Continued from Page 1.)

within 50 feet of the polls. Sound equipment advertising a candidate within hearing distance of the polls is not allowed, nor is "commercialization such as distribution of sample cigarettes" allowed.

The poll tender has been instructed to report any violations.

Women's Athletic Assn.

Running for offices in the Women's Athletic Assn. are:

Trudy Lefler and Laura Ann Travis for president, Amy Morse and Joan Palmer for vice-president, Anne Williams for secretary, Ann Miser and Pat Oliver for treasurer. The candidate for Awards Chairman is Betty Stacy.

Nan Brown and Sue Fink are running for president of the Women's Residence Council.

Sophomore Officers

Running for the sophomore class offices are:

Ken Clark (SP) and Jim Kimzey (UP) for president; Steve Phelps (UP) and Marilyn Watson (SP), for vice-president; Amy Morse (SP and UP) for secretary; David Weinburger (SP) and George Johnson (UP) for treasurer; Nancy Nusesar (SP and UP) for social chairman.

Dental Dames will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in Victory Village Nursery for nominations of next year's officers.

Hank Crane, former missionary to the Belgian Congo, will speak to the Wesley Foundation on Christianity and segregation at a supper meeting tonight at Episcopal parish house.

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will hold open house tonight at 7 o'clock in the APO Room of GM.

Covering The Campus

★ ★ ★

Dr. Elmer G. Butler, professor of zoology at Princeton, will give a lecture on "Cellular Reactions in Repair and Regeneration" tonight at 8 o'clock in the Hospital Auditorium.

★ ★ ★

The GMBA film "My Little Chickadee," starring Mae West and W. C. Fields, will be shown in Gerrard Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. The film was originally to be shown last Thursday. Admission will be only to holders of season tickets.

★ ★ ★

Don Christopher, vice-president of Alpha Kappa Psi, national professional fraternity in business administration, has announced that State Senator O. Arthur Kirkman of High Point will address the fraternity at a dinner meeting tonight.

Senior Class Officers

Here are the candidates for senior class officers:

Scotty Hester (SP) and Ogburn Yates (UP) for president; Ken Anderson (UP) and Jerry Vayda for vice-president; Faye Abell (SP) and Judy Talley (UP) for secretary; Susan Fuchs (SP) and Dave Whitaker (UP) for treasurer; social chairman candidates are Kitty Coleman (UP) and Ancy Hooper (SP).

LAST TIMES TODAY

Carolina

A CRIME CLUB BEST-SELLER

HERBERT J. YATES presents
DOROTHY McGUIRE
STEPHEN McNALLY
Make Haste to Live
A REPUBLIC PICTURE
with MARY MURPHY • EDGAR BUCHANAN
JOHN HOWARD • RON HAGERTHY • Screen Play by Warren Duff • Based on the Novel by The Gordons • Associate Producer-Director WILLIAM SEITER

TODAY ONLY!

Varsity

Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS

FOR EASTER

GIVE HER
Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS

EASTER CANDY GIFT WRAPPED FREE

SUTTON'S
DRUG STORE
Phone 98781

CAMPUS "STAND-OUTS" ★ ★ ★ Man Most Likely To——

Dig those L&M's!—America's best filter cigarette. What a filter—that pure white Miracle Tip really filters. And you get all the taste! Campus after campus agrees—"L&M stands out from all the rest!"

© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER
Fair and warmer today, with expected high of 65.

The Daily Tar Heel

CEMETERY
The 2nd Battle Of Cemetery Ridge was fought in Chapel Hill in 1909. See editorial page.

VOL. LVII NO. 128 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

APPROXIMATELY 3,300 VOTERS:

Candidates McCurry, Fowler In Runoff For President

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

UP Gains Control Of Legislature Over SP, 29 To 21

Student Party Loses Six Offices And Its Majority

By NEIL BASS

A sweeping wave of University Party support completely reversed the tables in the student Legislature after yesterday's balloting was completed to give the UP a 29-21 majority.

The Student Party had the most representatives during the last session to the tune of 28-22.

It was University Party all the way during the course of last night's tabulating as a number of the SP candidates bit the dust in the early stages of the vote return announcements.

The final calculations were not released until 2:00 a.m. today but after returns were posted the first couple of times, there was little doubt SP legislative control had gone down the drain.

The UP only needed to grab four of the seats that were held down by SP legislators during the last term to have a majority, but they rallied to take seven instead.

The successful candidates, listed by districts, are as follows:

Dorm Men's I,
Ted Kemp and Al Laughinghouse, both SP;

Dorm Men's II.
Jim Holmes (SP) and Will Conn (UP);

Dorm Men's III,
Jerry Martin (UP) and Andy Milnor (SP);

Dorm Men's IV,
Vade Rhodes, Tom Lambeth, Bennie Craven and Harley Gilleland, all SP;

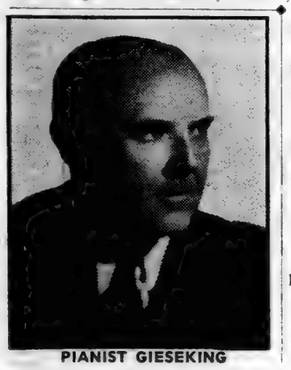
Dorm Men's V.
John Zollicoffer (UP) and Larry McElroy (SP).

In dorm men's districts the SP registered a net loss of three seats to the UP.

In town men's districts the University Party kept its stronghold intact, while the SP was losing two important seats.

The winners by districts are:
Town Men's I,
Mebane Pritchett, Charlie Johnson and Charlie Covell, all UP;

Town Men's II.
Bill Morgan and Luther Horges Jr. both UP although the SP gave its sanction to Hodges also and endorsed him;;



Town Men's III,
Bob Hornik, Bill Elder, and Milke Weinman, all UP.

The race in dorm women's district resulted in the net loss of one legislative seat for the SP. This was taken by Anne Wrenn (UP). The two SP candidates who were victorious were Susan Fink and Donna Ashcraft.

The final race involved a hands-down victory for the two candidates in town women's district who ran without opposition. These were Kit Malloy (UP) and Jackie Wilkens, doubly endorsed.

The race began to show a decisive trend in the early stages of the ballot tabulating, and a cast-out flock of SP candidates could never get their feet back on solid ground after the first returns were announced.

According to UP Chairman Charles Yarborough, this is the first time that his party has had an edge in the Legislature in "several years." Yarborough expressed an "overall" happiness about the outcome of the elections.

PIANIST GIESEKING
. . . Memorial Hall tomorrow

Gieseking Scheduled Tomorrow

Walter Gieseking, international famous concert pianist, will present the third program in the Chapel Hill Concert Series tomorrow, Jimmy Wallace, secretary of the Series said yesterday.

Gieseking, who is making his first appearance in the southeast two days after a concert in New York, will play in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. His program will include a sonata by Beethoven, five pieces by Brahms, two impromtus by Schubert, a selection by Castelnuovo-Tedesco and other works including six preludes by Debussy.

Wallace said 500 tickets are still available to the public and may be purchased at the door for $3. Student tickets are on sale at Graham Memorial for $2.50.

Considered by many to be the world's greatest pianist, Gieseking is able to play upon notice and without score 24 concertos for orchestra, several hundred sonatas and approximately 1,000 shorter pieces.

Born in France, he has been the recipient of France's highest decoration, the Legion of Honor.

The last presentation of the Concert Series this year will be Jan Peerce, world famous tenor, who is slated to appear April 15.

Gieseking started his American tour in Philadelphia Feb. 1 and will end it in Washington Saturday.

Kraar & Yoder Win Unopposed

Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar, running jointly for editorship of The Daily Tar Heel, won without opposition last night.

Kraar, junior from Charlotte, and Yoder, junior from Mebane, had no opposition since March 16, when Independent David Mundy withdrew from the editorship race.

Yoder and Kraar were jointly endorsed by the Student Party and the University Party.

The two thanked supporters and promised a "fair, impartial and stimulating" newspaper. They will take over as co-editors next Monday.

Said Kraar and Yoder last night:
"We would like to thank all the students who have taken time to discuss the paper with us during the past few weeks. As editors, we plan to continue staying in touch with their views and opinions.

"Our office door is always open and so are our minds. As we promised in the beginning, The Daily Tar Heel will continue to be fair, impartial and stimulating. We are humbled at this opportunity to continue the fine work of Charles Kuralt."

Both Kraar and Yoder have worked on The Daily Tar Heel since their freshman years. Kraar is presently an associate editor and columnist; Yoder is an associate editor and editorial and special writer.

VOTING
. . . a lot of it yesterday

ELECTION COLOR:

Photos Do It?

By LOUIS KRAAR

The smiling big photos of Don Fowler, independent presidential candidate, might have done the trick.

That was the word that floated about with the smoke in the ballot-filled Roland Parker Lounges of Graham Memorial last night. Graham Rights of the Elections Board said the Fowler photos, under the present law, won't be counted in his expense account.

Pat McBane, manning the Student Party headquarters in the Publications Board office, kept Manning Muntzing informed on the results of the election as the evening droned on.

"We're losing the Legislature," she said about 11 o'clock last night. A girl on the other end of the line groaned.

"How's Manning taking it?" Miss McBane asked, meaning how the SP candidate was taking his almost certain low spot in the three-deep race.

"He isn't talking to anybody," said the voice on the other end of the line.

Wise-guy (and gal) voters had a big time writing in candidates for Daily Tar Heel editor. Among the most popular write-in candidates were Dave Mundy, Tom Peacock, Ben Wilcox, Pogo, Drew Pearson—and Joe Stalin.

One voter wrote, "Never, BA School." Another said, "Hell no."

Don Fowler hung out during the vote counting at a friend's house. Dave Reid stood around and Gordon Forester kept Fowler informed by phone.

Early in the evening, when Fowler grabbed a good lead, Reid stood around in the GMAB office, phoned Fowler, and talked about issuing a statement for his man—who was certain to be in the runoff.

Roland Parker Lounges, scene of the vote counting, had the atmosphere of a New Orleans gambling house as the politicos sat around counting, speculating and trying to estimate the result.

The trend of the evening was Fowler, McCurry and Muntzing in that order, and the looks on various supporters' faces were directly proportional to the tally.

Increase Budget

RALEIGH, March 29. (AP)—The Joint Appropriations subcommittee today voted to increase the appropriation to Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill by almost $423,000 for the next biennium.

All Four Changes Approved

All four constitutional amendments were passed by the student body in election yesterday.

Final results this morning showed the Student Council amendment passed 2,467 to 354; the nurses' amendment went through 2,302 to 528; Interdormitory Council bill passed 2,166 to 577, and the Attorney General amendment passed 1,947 to 919.

The Student Council amendment will change the student Constitution so the judiciary body "will be composed of students who are suitably qualified and experienced to serve on a court that hears appeals from all the lower courts . . ."

The nurses' amendment will add one student nurse to the staff of the Women's Honor Council.

The Interdormitory Council bill gives the IDC the power to make rules enforcing conduct of men in dorms, represent dorm social activities and provide for "continuation and operation of the Council and Court during summer school."

The amendment dealing with the Attorney General of student government will give him power to "investigate, gather evidence against and prosecute any and all offenders" of the student Constitution.

Others Not Named Due To Mixup In Counting Ballots

By FRED POWLEDGE

Independent candidate Don Fowler and University Party candidate Ed McCurry won out in elections for student body president yesterday.

Students will pick their president from the two in runoff elections next Tuesday.

McCurry and Fowler won over Student Party candidate Manning Muntzing.

The vote for the three was 1,360 for Fowler, 1,194 for McCurry and 674 for Muntzing.

Approximately 3,300 students voted.

Decision came early this morning. The Elections Board did not complete work on several other campus offices, due to a mixup of ballots from the Scuttlebutt. Final counting is expected to be announced sometime today. Final results will appear in tomorrow's Daily Tar Heel.

Joan Palmer (SP) was named as certain choice for secretary, although the choice was not official.

Jim Martin (UP) was unofficially named treasurer.

Ed Sutton (SP) was unofficially chosen Carolina Athletic Assn. vice-president, but president (either Jim Beatty, UP, or Roland Perdue, SP) was not named.

BULLETIN — Official count shows Jack Stevens (UP) elected vice-president over Bob Harrington (SP) by 131 votes.
"Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice will runoff for head cheerleader.

The mixup prevented Men's and Women's Honor Councils and the Student Council from being chosen by press time at 4 a.m.

Ballot counting droned on past 3 a.m. today as Elections Board officails attempted to straighten out the Scuttlebutt mixup. Officials did not know the cause of the trouble.

Both McCurry and Fowler forces made statements as the voting appeared to be going their ways.

Fowler promised to "wage a clean battle in the ensuing runoff, upholding the same principles and ideals of my previous campaign."

Raymond M. Taylor, campaign manager for McCurry, said "if common sense and good judgment prevail in the runoff . . . Ed McCurry will be victorious. Our campaign will continue to be a clean, honest and vigorous one directed toward that goal."

Gray Honored At UCLA Talk

President Gordon Gray received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of California at Los Angeles last week, it was learned yesterday.

Gray addressed the university Friday at its Charter Day celebration in Royce Hall on the UCLA campus. Following his address, the degree was bestowed upon him formally by UCLA Chancellor Raymond B. Allen.

President Gray arrived in Chapel Hill Saturday.

KIRKMAN ADDRESS

State Senator O. Arthur Kirkman will address a dinner meeting of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business administration fraternity, tonight at 7 o'clock at the Monogram Club. His subject will be "The Professional Business Fraternity and the Development of Management Personnel." The spring pledge class will be welcomed into active membership at the meeting.

UP Tops Senior, Soph Lists

The University Party made an almost clean sweep in sophomore and senior classes.

Senior class: President, Ogburn Yates (UP); vice-president, Jerry Vayda (SP); secretary, Judy Talley (UP); treasurer, Dave Whitaker (UP), and social chairman, Kitty Coleman (UP).

Sophomore class: President, Jim Kimzey (UP); vice-president, Steve Phelps (UP); secretary, Amy Morse (SP and UP); treasurer, George Johnson (UP), and social chairman, Nancy Nussear. etaoin etaoin etaoin etaoin etaoin Elected president of the Women's Residence Council was Sue Fink.

New officers of the Women's Athletic Assn. are Laura Anne Travis, president; Amy Morse, vice-president; Anne Williams, secretary; Pat Oliver, treasurer, and Betty Stacy, awards chairman.

Campus Chest Nets $750

Approximately $750 was contributed to the Campus Chest during the drive, according to Graham Rights, chairman of the drive.

A total of 24 dormitories, fraternities and sororities had 100 percent contribution to the drive, according to Rights. They are as follows: Beta Theta Pi, Chi Phi, DKE, Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Sigma, PiKA, SAE, Sigma Chi.

Sigma Nu, SPE, Theta Chi, Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Sigma Pi, Delta Upsilon, ADPi.

Alpha Gamma Delta, Chi Omega, Tri Delta, Pi Beta Phi, KD, Carr, McIver and Smith.

Visitor From Congo Set For WUNC Show

William Henry Crane, a visitor to the campus from the Belgian Congo, will be a guest on the Cosmopolitan Interview Program over WUNC radio tonight at 7:30.

Crane will discuss the country's educational system and his work in the field of education.

John Riebel of the University YMCA will interview Crane.

WUNC, campus radio station, broadcasts on 91.5 megacycles on FM dials.

AZALEAS SUFFER FROM COLD

By The Associated Press

The current cold snap was no respecter of azaleas and other spring blossoms that are a major tourist attraction in coastal sections of the Carolinas.

Wilmington and Charleston reported that almost all the plants that were in full bloom suffered severe damage. If the weather turns warmer, as predicted, there should be enough bursting buds to make a pretty showing within a few days.

CALDWELL LECTURE

Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell, professor of ancient history here, will present an illustrated lecture on "Travel by Car in Europe" in the Library assembly room tonight at 8:30.

DAILY TAR HEEL EDITORS ED YODER & LOUIS KRAAR
. . . won with no opposition in last night's election

COUNTING THE VOTES
. . . a tiresome job

Goettingen: Operation New Horizons

Behind all the election season hoo-row, some students have been quietly working for something that may be of far greater consequence than who did or did not get elected to the Legislature yesterday.

Student government, the YMCA, fraternities, dormitories, and the University administration have combined to establish a student exchange scholarship program with Goettingen University in Germany.

For two years, students here and at Goettingen have been working on the idea. Now, it appears ripe; the first exchange student from Goettingen will be here next fall.

He will get free meals from fraternities.

The Interdormitory Council will provide a room, to be paid for out of dormitory treasuries.

The University will provide a full tuition scholarship.

Other campus groups have agreed to help; all expenses will be paid.

Then, it is hoped, the program will expand. Students will be exchanged every year and receive full credit for their year's work. The Planners envision such further affiliation as exchange of news articles and editorials, short wave roundtables, mutual assistance in research, exchange of professors, contact between campus religious, sports, art, literary organizations, exchange of books and written material.

What we have a-borning here is an idea of deep significance.

In full bloom, the working plan will bring rare opportunities to Carolina's students for inexpensive travel and study in Europe. It might even serve as a dose of No-Doz for students whose horizons extend no further than Kenan Stadium.

Those in the Y, student government, in dormitories and fraternities who have worked so well and so long on the Goettingen program deserve congratulations; more, they deserve support — for a plan that is imaginative and thoughtful and full of implications that bode two great universities good.

Swain Hall's 'Popular Fillup'

There are signs that Carolina's educational televisional station, WUNC-TV, may yet turn out to be educational. It is even possible, these evenings, to see and hear a University professor on the station if you tune in at just the right time.

But our television child still has a lot of growing to do before it can be rightfully looked upon as a mature channel from the University to the state.

The argument, in case you haven't been listening, is this: Should WUNC-TV try to compete with commercial video and offer entertainment spiced with education — or should education be the main dish?

Much of the station's brainwork has been done by Kay Kyser. His belief — which The Daily Tar Heel does not accept — is that the public just won't take un-sugarcoated education. A big segment of ex-professional WUNC-TV staff members agree with him.

What does Kyser propose instead? Here's what Variety, the show biz bible, told the world last month:

> Kyser seems to be aiming for a "popular" fillup in educational TV, the idea being that the best way to pull an audience for educational programming is to give them teaser shows geared to compete with regular commerical channels. His plan to pick up network casings (regular commercial network shows without commercials) is part of this "educational TV for the masses" theory.

We have nothing but admiration and respect for Mr. K. as a quizmaster and bandleader. But a "popular fillup" is no substitute for an educational TV station.

The University has grown great without teaser shows for the masses. Why can't the same techniques of rational inquiry, informed and good-humored teaching that have brought Chapel Hill to a place of educational eminence be successfully transferred to television?

And if they can't, why should the University become a vehicle for amusement? CBS can do it better.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Election Day At Dawn—A Bevy Of Signs

Louis Kraar

DAWN BEAT me to the Y Court by only a few minutes yesterday morning, so I was in time to watch the last minute poster plastering.

Rubbing the sleep out of my eyes, I shivered into the Y building in time to see Fowler-followers Kason Keiger and Joe Barber pasting "push for Fowler" signs shaped like hands.

"Good morning. Mighty early to be up," Keiger said, looking a little sheepish with a huge pot of paste in his hand.

I agreed that it was early, he pasted another paper hand, and then the Fowler followers left to join others in a waiting station wagon.

★

BESIDES WANTING to see the last day posters, my original plan in getting up so early was to attend an election morning breakfast with Reuben Leonard and Liz Lynn, a couple who are interested in politics and each other, and another friend.

Finally, after a chilly wait for the couple, my friend and I decided that we were stood up.

Just about then a hammering noise near the Old Well (new style) attracted my attention, and I turned to see the Muntzing men driving long-staked yellow and orange signs into the ground.

"Repairs!" shouted Jim Turner, as one of the signs fell off the big stick. And a co-worker came running with a pack of thumb tacks.

"Oh, I've been up all night," Turner declared. "I had to stay up so the others would get up," he explained, looking less sleepy than the others.

By then, we had made our way down to Hill Hall. "Just a minute," Turner said, smiling at Muntzing and his other supporters. Then Turner bent down and straightened out a McCurry sign that was in the ground.

★

MUNTZING SAID something about treating his campaigners to breakfast, and they tramped down cold Franklin Street to the College Cafe.

Inside the restaurant, they spied Fowler and his boys in a back booth. "Say, isn't it a little crowded in here?" said one of Muntzing's men, and the crew headed for another place.

I went to the back booth to see Fowler, who was "confident," smiling, and eating breakfast. I said something about his signs shaped like hands.

"Oh, did you boys put up some signs for me?" Fowler asked, turning to Keiger and several others.

"Yeah, we forgot to tell you, Don. We got up this morning and put a few up," Keiger said, grinning knowingly at the others.

I grinned, went back to eat breakfast, found all three candidates grinning up at me from my morning paper, and wondered when the campus would have some issues in a political campaign.

Later, walking to class, I noticed how colorful the campus was with its red McCurry signs, yellow Muntzing placards, and fingered Fowler signs. Perhaps the slogan for the spring should have been: "May the best sign-maker win."

★

FROM THE Orange Printshop comes the tale of a coed who came to have some political posters printed and had to borrow a Yack to see what office she was running for . . . Bob Harrington's dorm newspaper (Stacy's "Rebel Yell") reported that "one of Harrington's lady supporters . . . threatened to print the true story of Bob's getting about 100 votes in Stacy during the last election when that many of Stacy's 105 residents didn't vote" . . . Most of the University Party's balloons put up yesterday morning were either blown away or punctured, letting out the last gusts of hot air from the campaign.

'I Remember Chapel Hill'

Second Battle Of Cemetery Ridge

Kemp D. Battle

(Kemp D. Battle, a long-time friend and servant of the University, is a member of the class of 1909. He is a direct descendant of University President Kemp Plummer Battle, has been a member of the Board of Trustees for many years and is presently chairman of the Trustees Committee on Honorary Degrees. He is a Rocky Mount attorney, and swears that the Second Battle of Cemetery Ridge took place just as related here.—Editor.)

In the Spring of 1909, the University community was clandestinely invaded by a small task force from the Durham chapter of that profession, which, by the time of Mary Magdalen, was already ancient, if not venerable. These business trips were planned with hopes of a brisk patronage from the student body. The project was on a small scale, but their reliance on the carnal weakness of mankind was not ill-placed.

THE Y COMMANDOS

They had, however, badly underestimated the vigor of the response of the campus leaders, who were not only strict practitioners of virtue for themselves, but equally resolute advocates of austerity for their weaker brothers. The President of the YMCA was a lad, small in stature but destined for greatness. When reports of the shocking traffic reached his ears, he assumed the leadership for which he was fitted by courage and character, and organized a squad of commandos determined to end the business.

CEMETERY COUP

Came a Saturday night, with a tip-off to the Vigilantes that the fallen angels were on their way, and would be stationed in the village cemetery, of all places, ready to make the acquaintance of such as might call. Under the nominal, but wholly inactive, leadership of "Jug" Whitaker, the village's sole police, officer, the guardians of law and order advanced toward the enemy, deployed, and indeed surrounded them. A pistol fired into the air threw the customers into headlong flight, and the attackers rushed forward and actually captured two bedraggled and frightened daughters of Eve and of sin.

A strange procession wended its way through the woods and brush, over ditches, on to the campus, and so to the office of Squire Barbee, the local magistrate, whose Temple of Justice stood alongside the yard of the Methodist Church. Before midnight the Squire was there, as was Judge MacRae, Dean of the Law School, especially requested by President Venable to prosecute on behalf of the University.

VERDICT: GUILTY

Meanwhile the news had spread and hundreds of students, attracted by the excitement and vibrant with an understandable curiosity, were there too. Perhaps a score could crowd into the small building. The rest filled Franklin Street from side to side and listened with unrestrained enthusiasm to the testimony of the witnesses, relayed to them by the shouts of those occupying points of vantage in door and window. The evidence was both specific and convincing. A judgment of guilty of agrancy was soon pronounced by the Squire and a waiting conveyance, with its woe-begone passengers, was on its way to the county jail in Hillsboro.

And so the second Battle of Cemetery Ridge took its honored place in history.

Senator George and Yalta

The Biggest Bit Of Boobery

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON—It is clear by now that the way the Yalta papers were released amounts to the biggest bit of plain boobery very long time.

Consider the results. This country's best friend abroad, Sir Winston Churchill, has been angered. Opinion throughout the committed in Washington for a world, especially in Britain, France, and Germany, has been alienated at a most critical moment. The Soviets have been presented with fine grist for their propaganda mill.

It might still be argued that this trouble abroad is not too high a price to pay for a useful object lesson from the past. But the reaction at home is really more significant than the reaction abroad. Almost to a man the Democrats in the Senate deeply resent, not so much the fact that the papers were released, as the way they were released. And if we are to have any foreign policy at all, after all, the State Department has got to work with the Democratic majority.

SENATE RESENTMENT

Among those who feel most strongly in the matter is Sen. Walter George, of Georgia, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. George is the dominant figure in the present Congress, and the kingpin of the bi-partisan foreign policy. There is no doubt about the way George feels.

JOHNSON AND GEORGE

His own public comments have been relatively mild. But he was consulted in detail by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson before Johnson made his brief but angry speech last Tuesday, attacking the way the documents were released.

It is also significant that George made his proposal for a meeting of the heads of state without consulting Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in advance. George's proposal springs from genuine conviction.

This is not to say that George or the other responsible Democratic leaders are going to act like spoiled children where foreign policy is concerned. But the close, intimate, and mutually confident relationship which a bi-partisan foreign policy demands has been badly eroded. And it is not hard to see why.

GEORGE TO RESCUE

Within the last few weeks, George has saved the Administration's bacon, on the only two really important issues to come before this session of Congress. One was the $20 tax cut — George's opposition to the compromise Senate bill killed the issue. The other was the Formosa resolution, which George saved by a single, moving talk, when the Administration was heading into really bad trouble on the issue.

Consider the way George was rewarded for all this bacon-saving. He was not consulted before the Yalta documents, ostensibly classified, were sent to his committee. The State Department passed the documents under the counter to one newspaper, and this was then used as an excuse for a general release.

NO POLITICAL VALUE

Finally, it is generally agreed that the Yalta papers will not be of any real political benefit to the Republicans, even though they do occasionally show the late President Roosevelt in an unlovely light. This is the irony of the whole sorry business. But the mystery remains—how Secretary Dulles, who has wisely gone to great lengths to establish good relations with Sen. George, and who courageously withstood fierce political pressure to release the Yalta papers for the 1954 campaign, allowed this messy business to occur.

'Couldn't You Sometime Lock The Door First?'

Purpose Of Order Of The Grail

(Each year at this time, The Daily Tar Heel prints the "purpose of the Order of the Grail" in order to acquaint the student body with the nature of this beneficent order in our midst prior to its tapping ceremony.—Editor.)

The purpose of the Order of the Grail is to preserve unity in our student life. Recognizing that the aims of the University can best be served by a student body sensitive to the values which transcend differences of race, creed, background, and social station, the Order seeks to cultivate harmonious student relationships and democratic student life.

The Order was founded at a time when the student body was divided by antagonism between fraternity and non-fraternity men. The ideals of the University had been subordinated to conflict between the factions within the University. The founders of the Grail recognized the higher values of tolerance, unselfishness, modesty, and service. They undertook to afford a substitute motivation for strife by inspiration of example and the active expression of the lesson of the Holy Grail.

The watchwords of the Grail are Friendship, Truth, Courage, and Service. Of these, Service is the foremost in the minds of the Knights of the Grail.

The Order performs many services for the campus. It sponsors a series of dances on home football weekends, manages the sale of class rings, and composes, sells, and distributes graduation invitations. It regards itself as a trustee of the funds it realizes through these activities, and returns them to the campus through Grail Scholarships and through contributions to worthy causes.

It also seeks out and recognizes contributions to campus unity and welfare that might otherwise go unnoticed. It stands ready to offer its help to any individual or group that needs its assistance—in the form of ideas, of financial aid, or physical labor—working always to "help the campus in every possible way in making it a better place in which to live and work."

In the selection of its members the Grail looks for students who already bear evidence of Public recognition, skill, and social prominence are not considered qualifications for membership in the Grail. Modesty, self-effacement, and unostentatious service to the end of unity, the positive inspiration to character, principle, and integrity, through exemplary campus citizenship are the values which are necessary to the realization of the aims of the Order.

Membership in the Grail is indicative not only of high recognition for achievement and unselfish devotion to altruistic endeavors, but also of the willingness to serve and to exhibit these qualities in the interest of the student body.

Postmaster-General Versus Aristophanes

Gerald W. Johnson
On WAAM, Baltimore

It appears that Postmaster-General Summerfield has lately assumed responsibility, not merely for delivering the mail, but also for its moral quality. He issued orders to "Clean up the mails" and of course the first thing his boys landed on was a Greek classic that has been in circulation for 2,400 years. They impounded a copy of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata" and after a round in the courts the government backed down; but the story will be arousing laughter throughout the civilized world for weeks to come.

Well, it's just what you may always expect when people, not content with attending to their own business, undertake to do the work of the police, too. Of course it's true that dirty books are always being peddled. Of course it's true that it is against the law. Of course it's true that every law-abiding citizen ought to help prevent law-breaking. If the postmaster finds that what he thinks is pornography is being sent through the mails, it is his duty to inform the police, but it is not his duty to take the law into his own hands.

For determining what is obscene is not a simple matter. There are passages in the Bible that, if torn from their context and printed in a newspaper, would be regarded as obscene by some people. Old Aristophanes was undoubtedly a rowdy character, but his object in writing "Lysistrata" was not to make vice attractive, but to make war ridiculous—which some of our super-patriots regard as worse than obscenity. But Mr. Summerfield should be content to deliver the mail on time and leave morals to the people and the courts.

Basingstoke Ensemble & Gilbert & Sullivan

Lilian Pibernik

An expectant and eager audience gathered last Sunday night in Graham Memorial to hear a Gilbert and Sullivan program offered in the Petite Musicale series.

The expectations were fully realized. The Basingstoke Ensemble, consisting of the Misses Jan Saxon, Lorraine Yancey, Susie Roberts, and the Messrs. James Pruett, John Ludwig and James Chamblee accompanied on the piano by Mrs. David Basile, gave a fine performance of excerpts from four operettas. Using a bare minimum of stage properties the performers were entirely successful in conveying the gay and light spirit of these operettas by their enthusiasm and vivaciousness, both as individuals and in ensemble. Continuity was amusingly presented by narrator Carl Williams.

The opening number "Three little maids from school are we" from the Mikado was one of the best on the program. It proved a great pleasure to listen to the well-blended voices of the three ladies of the Ensemble. Other highlights of the evening were Mr. Chamblee's "A more humane Mikado never did in Japan exist;" Mr. Ludwig and the Ensemble in "I am the very model of a modern major-general" from the Pirates of Penzance and in "When I was a lad" from H.M.S. Pinafore. Miss Saxon displayed fine control in the coloratura passages in "Poor wand'ring one" from the Pirates. Excellent diction—an important factor in the tongue-twisting texts of Gilbert—contributed to the general success of the program.

The vocal ensembles were thoroughly enjoyed by this listener, but at times one might have wished for more dynamic, sparkling instrumental support. The singers assumed the characters of their roles and enacted them convincingly, maintaining a continuity of atmosphere throughout the performance.

The Ensemble should be highly commended for undertaking such a program and are to be congratulated on the successful performance.

YOU Said It: Look At Finances Realistically

Editor:

The staff of The Daily Tar Heel with all of its "liberal education" seems to have failed to recognize a basic economic truth of which we in B.A. school are made aware. In a case where one has a given income, and expenses greater than that income, he must either cut down expenses or raise the income or both, or he must go out of business. No one wants the University to go out of business.

You seem to be violently opposed to the State Legislature's increasing income by reasonable means and to its decreasing expenses by reasonable means. The students should pay their share of the expenses whether they are overjoyed by the idea or not. I recommend that your staff look at the problem of finances realistically or not at all. I also feel certain that the State Legislature will be glad to have any suggestions which you might have about other means of solving this great problem.

Frank Brooks

Quote, Unquote: Voting Day Psalms & Couplets

In every free and deliberating society, there must, from the nature of man, be opposite parties, and violent discords and dissensions; and one of these for the most part, must prevail over the other for a longer or shorter time.—Thomas Jefferson to J. Taylor, 1798.

★

When someone terrible gets elected, they say—"There, that's just what I expected."—Ogden Nash

★

He is one of those wise philanthropists who in a time of famine would vote for nothing but a supply of toothpicks.—Douglas Jerrold.

★

Sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I give my hand and my heart to this vote.—Daniel Webster.

★

The freeman, casting with unpurchased hand, The vote that shakes the turren of the land.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Clutch Hurling Kills UNC, 7-5

State's Dickman Throws Water On Tar Heel Fire In Ninth

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Lou Dickman tramped in from the bull-pen in the ninth inning and snuffed out a Tar Heel rally to give N. C. State's Wolfpack a 7-5 win over Carolina on Emerson Field's cold, wind-swept turf yesterday.

Tommy Hargrove started for the Wolfpack and allowed only three hits but the Graham southpaw got himself into a load of trouble during the late innings because of his wildness. After he fanned Jack Woods to start off the Carolina ninth, Jimmy Love walked and took second as relief pitcher Tom Maultsby looped a single to center. Hargrove then got Lloyd on a sky to center but proceeded to walk Albert Long and Bobby Paller to force in a run and make the score 7-5 in favor of State. State Coach Vic Sorrell brought in Dickman and the big righthander, famous for his activity on the basketball floor, made the Tar Heel cleanup batter Connie Gravitte bounce into a force out and gave Hargrove and State their first loop victory.

JIMMY RAUGH started for the Tar Heels and hurled seven innings, during which the Wolfpack got to him for four runs and 10 hits. Raugh left for a pinch-hitter during a four-run Carolina uprising in the seventh and Maultsby finished up and was charged with the defeat.

State scored single tallies off Raugh in th esecond, fourth, sixth and seventh innings to give Hargrove a comfortable 4-0 lead when the Tar Heels came to bat in the seventh. Up to this point, Hargrove had limited the Tar Heels to only ont hit, a bouncing single over third base by Harry Lloyd in the sixth inning.

Trailing by four tallies, the Tar Heels capitalized on Hargrove's wildness and managed to push across four markers in the big seventh inning to knot the score at four apiece. Gravitte led off with a walk and he moved to second when Will Frye, batting for Tom Zachary, banged a single to right. Ken Keller and Jack Woods also got free passes and this gave the Tar Heels their first run. Frye scored from third on a wild pitch and two more runs scored to tie the game when NCS centerfielder Carmen Santoli lost Lloyd's high fly in the wind.

MAULTSBY CAME in to pitch against the Wolfpack in the eighth. With each team having four runs, Barringer ignited the Wolfpack spark by looping a single to left field. Norm Norris sacrificed Barringer to second and Joe held second when West popped to Long. With two out, Hargrove batted for himself and singled to right, scoring Barringer and giving State a 5-4 advantage. Russ Casteen followed with a single to center and when Keller booted a fly ball hit by Santoli, Hargrove and Casteen scampered home to give State a 7-4 lead and the ball game.

Barringer and Norris were the batting stars for the Wolfpack, each getting three hits. Harry Lloyd played his first game of the season at second base and got a single and double which means that he accounted for two-thirds of the Tar Heel hits, the only other being a single by Frye.

State's victory gives them a 1-1 season and conference record. The Tar Heels are now 0-1 in conference play and 1-2 overall.

The windy weather had the players scampering all over the field in an effort to flag down the balls hit up in the air. About five fly balls were misjudged and another five came close to dropping in for hits because of the gale.

CAROLINA DIDN'T get anything resembling a hit off Hargrove for the first six innings. During this span, three Tar Heels reached first via free passes and five went down swinging. Hargrove walked six more during the next two and two thirds innings and finally had to be yanked in the ninth with the bags bulging and two outs. Dickman then put out the fire by disposing of Gravitte.

The losing pitcher, Maultsby, has now lost two games with no victories. Maultsby yielded three runs in the two innings he worked but only one was earned. Raugh left the game with the score tied after he had worked seven innings and was taken off the hook.

THE TAR HEELS will play Maryland on Friday and come right back against Michigan State on Saturday. Both games will be played at Emerson Stadium and game time Friday is 3:30.

The line score:

State	010 101 030	7—13—0
UNC	000 000 401	5— 3—2

Hargrove, Dickman (9) and West; Raugh, Maultsby (8) and Love.

UNC Smashes Michigan State 9-0 In Tennis

MSC Netters Unable To Gain A Set

The Carolina varsity tennis team successfully opened its 1955 campaign by swamping a game but overmatched Michigan State College team, 9-0, yesterday afternoon. Coach Kenfield's netters showed such complete mastery of the match that the Spartans were unable to take a single set.

In the first match Herb Browne did not look too spectacular in beating Menzel 6-4, 6-2 but he hardly found it necessary to press. Abandoning his usual forcing game, Browne coasted to an easy win.

IN DOUBLES, a new combination broke into the starting lineup. Sophomores Bobby Bortner and Ed Hudgins took Levine and Beachum of MSC love and one.

The next match for the netmen will be Thursday against Dartmouth on the varsity courts.

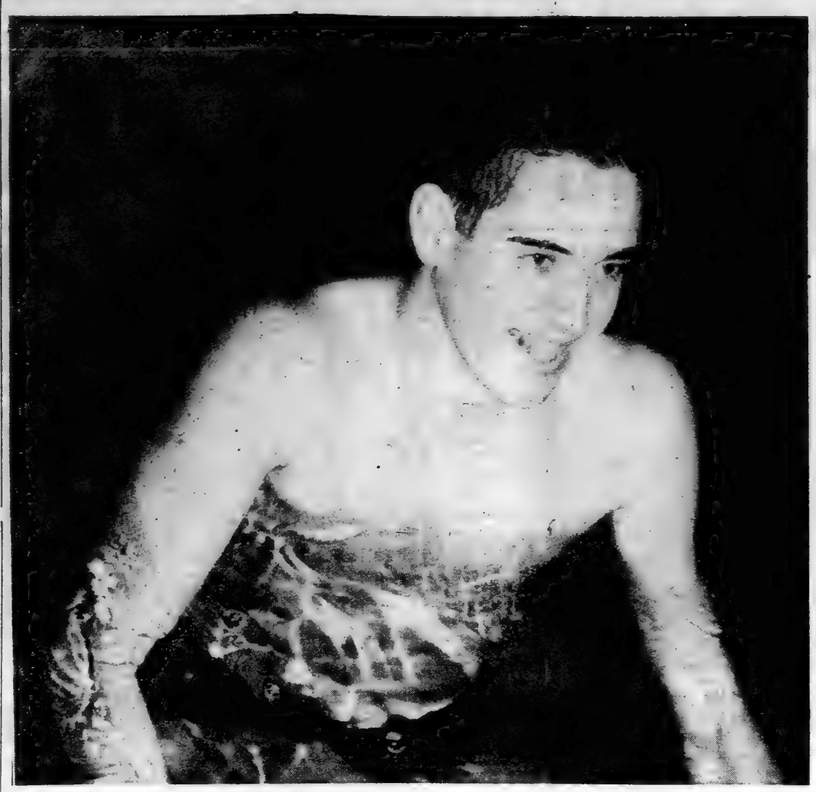
The summaries:

Singles—Browne defeated Mencel, 6-4, 6-2; Payne defeated D. Brogran, 6-2, 7-5; Bradford defeated Stepanovic, 6-0, 6-0; Green defeated J. Brogan, 6-1, 6-1; Thompson defeated Levine, 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles—Brown and Bradford defeated Mencel and D. Brogan, 6-1, 6-1; Payne and Green defeated Stepanovic and J. Brogan, 6-1, 6-1; Bortner and Hudgins defeated Levine and Beacham, 6-0, 6-1.

UNC Grapplers Lost, But Won Knowledge

By AL KORSCHUN



Tar Heel wrestlers Hugh Cowan and Pete McGehee and coaches Sam Barnes and Earl Hoffman returned from the national wrestling championships at Ithaca, N. Y., without any national titles but with an unforgettable experience of having seen the best college wrestling in the country. Both Cowan and McGehee lost their opening matches in the two-day tournament which was held last weekend.

Cowan, who is ACC champion at 130 pounds, lost his first match to Onviperos (Illinois) on a hard-fought 5-0 decision. McGehee, who had wrestled in the 147-pound class for UNC during the regular season, moved up a weight class for the NCAA tournament to 157 pounds and was pinned in the first round by Ward (Army) in 8:20.

THE ACC had five wrestlers entered in the tournament, all of whom were beaten in their first round mtaches. In addition to Cowan and McGehee from Carolina, Duke's Jerry Chadwick and Virginia's Butch Schwab, ACC champs at the 157 and 167 pound classes, respectively, and Bill McHugh from Maryland rounded out the ACC entries.

Both Barnes and Hoffman were amazed at the caliber of wrestling shown in the tournament. Barnes commended the championship wrestling of each of the performers and estimated that 90 per cent of next year's Olympic team would come from the group. Hoffman was especially amazed at the big difference between wrestling in the nationals as compared to the inferior ACC. This is evident in the fact that none of the ACC matmen, three of which were Conference titlists, got past the first round. The tournament "separated the men from the boys."

The tourney was the biggest ever held, with 177 wrestlers from 60 schools participating. Oklahoma, A&M perennial kingpins of the Southwest Conference, won the title with 40 points. None of the ACC teams scored.

Athlete of the Week!

Phil Drake Sparked UNC Tankmen In AAU Meet, 1st Tar Heel Winner

NCAA 200 - yard butterfly breaststroke champion Phil Drake has been selected by The Daily Tar Heel Sports Staff as "Athlete of the Week."

Runner up this week was Connie Gravitte, who got four for four against Ohio State in the first game of a double header Friday afternoon. In a scrimmage Saturday afternoon he hit another home run.

Drake, a sophomore from Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, has been one of the outstanding men on the swimming team all year.

While in high school, he was named to the All-American team in the butterfly breaststroke and the individual medley. Last year he set new American records in the 100-yard breaststroke for the 200-yard course and 1000-yard course. He was fourth in the 100-yard butterfly in the National AAU outdoor event last year and fourth in the indoor event.

This year he had the two best times in the country in the 200-yard butterfly going the distance in 2:13.2 in the ACC meet and 2:13.7 to take first in the NCAA championships last Saturday. He was also a member of the 300-yard medley relay team which was fourth in the Nationals and which broke the then existing record in that event against Michigan.

He holds the ACC records in the 200-yard butterfly breaststroke in 2:13.2, the 440 freestyle in 4:53.5, and a member of the ACC record holding medley relay team.

In the National Collegiate meet last week, he outswam last year's champion Dave Hawkins, of Harvard, and runner-up, Bumpy Jones of Michigan, to become the first Tar Heel to ever win an individual championship in the Nationals.

SURE TO BE PLACED

Howard Williams, freshman from Hertford, N. C., is expected to be one of Carolina's best football runners next fall. He has been groomed to play both fullback and halfback.

UNC NETTERS FACE BEST

The perennially great Miami team, along with the top Eastern contingents, are on the University tennis schedule this spring.

Linksmen Win Handily, 24-3

Aubrey Rothrock's medalist score of 73 led the North Carolina golf team to a 24-3 victory over the Michigan State Spartans yesterday afternoon on the Finley Golf Course.

Carolina won best ball in all three foursomes.

Larry Parker, Joe Correll, Jim Sykes, Billy Ford, Rothrock and Larry Bell all won their matches with ease. Sykes, Rothrock and Bell shut out their opponents without a point.

The Tar Heels' next match is on April 7 against the University of Michigan.

LACROSSE MEETING

Lacrosse Coach Art Greenbaum has requested that all boys participating in lacrosse meet in room 304, Woollen Gym, Thursday night at 7:15. Greenbaum stresses the importance of the meeting.

Eight-Team Dixie Baseball Classic Opens Next Thursday In Durham

Carolina Meets Rollins In First Round Play

College baseball at its best will be on display in Durham next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 7-8-9, when the first annual Dixie Baseball Classic will be unreeled with five afternoon and one night doubleheaders slated for two parks.

North Carolina's Big Four—Carolina, Duke, State and Wake Forest—will tangle with four other top flight teams in the three-day tournament. The visiting teams are Rollins College, runners-up in last year's NCAA World Series, Yale, Notre Dame and Ohio University.

Heading the list of visiting teams and favored to cop the title is Rollins. The Tars compiled a 20-6 regular season record last season and marched to the NCAA District Three title. In the World Series in Omaha, Neb., Rollins bowed to Missouri in the finals but earned the distinction of being the only team to defeat the champions in the double elimination event.

THE TARS LOST only five men from their 1954 team and they have twelve lettermen back, including pitchers Bill Cary and Art Brophy, around which is formed the nucleus of this year's outfit. These two southpaws won 16 and lost only two for the Tars last year.

Pairings for Thursday's first round follow:

Duke Park: 1:30—N. C. State vs. Ohio, 3:30—Duke vs. Notre Dame.

Durham Athletic Park: 1:30—Wake Forest vs. Yale; 3:30—Carolina vs. Rollins.

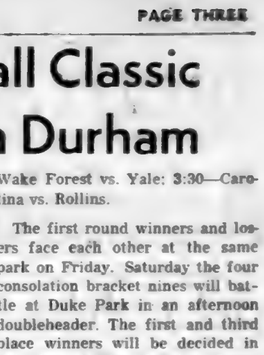
The first round winners and losers face each other at the same park on Friday. Saturday the four consolation bracket nines will battle at Duke Park in an afternoon doubleheader. The first and third place winners will be decided in the championship bracket Saturday night under the lights of Durham Athletic Park.

The Man Who Came To Dinner — Again

Consider Cornelius McGillicuddy. No charm boy he—there is even a record of a time when a tiny morsel of chop suey landed on his cravat. None of the Phi Beta Kappa boys rushed him.

But Cornelius holds one distinction. He's the champion repeat guest. Most anybody can get invited out for one week-end. Cornelius was invited to come again—and again.

How did this ordinary jerk rate such popularity? It's simple, pal, it's simple. He Remembered His Hostess.



It's a fact. Never did he go meandering off for a week-end's fun and frolic at somebody's house without taking along a book for Somebody's Mother. In times of plenty, he took something costly—in tough times he visited our dollar table and used a little eraser he had on the price mark. But the results were always good.

As Easter Vacation approaches, may we suggest that you, too, can be a Guest Who Gets Invited Back. Stop in, pal. We'll help you.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS
FOR EASTER

GIVE HER Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS
EASTER CANDY GIFT WRAPPED FREE
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
Phone 98781

BOB and MONK of TOWN & CAMPUS SALUTE PHIL DRAKE

Phil Drake, who paced the Tar Heel swimmers in the recent AAU meet.
We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house
We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.
TOWN & CAMPUS

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Inspiring—Entertaining
A RICH EXPERIENCE!
JAMES R. FRIEDRICH presents
Day of Triumph

The Greatest Story of All Time!
A CENTURY FILMS PRODUCTION starring
LEE J. COBB · ROBERT WILSON · JAMES GRIFFITH
and JOANNE DRU as Mary Magdalene
GLORIOUS COLOR
CINEMASCOPE

Word's sure getting around campus:
WINSTON tastes good— like a cigarette should!

WINSTON brings flavor back to filter smoking!
■ College smokers are welcoming Winston like a long-lost friend! They found flavor in a filter cigarette — full, rich, tobacco flavor — when Winston came along!
Along with finer flavor, Winston also brings you a finer filter. The exclusive Winston filter works so effectively, yet lets the flavor come right through to you.
Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!
R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

ABOUT NUMBER OF STUDENT-OWNED CARS:

Administration Studying Board Of Trustees Recommendation

By ED MYERS

The Council on Student affairs has interrupted its scheduled agenda in order to consider the student automobile problem, Dean Fred Weaver has announced.

The annual report of the Visiting Committee to the Board of Trustees of the University of North Carolina outlines the automobile situation here and at N. C. State, and "recommends that the administration attempt to improve the regulation of the use of cars and that it consider seriously the question of possession of automobiles by undergraduates, particularly by those living on or near the campus." The Board of Trustees approved the recommendation.

This recommendation means the University must do something about the situation. "Exactly what will be done, I don't know," said Weaver.

In 1953 a letter was sent to the parents of each student, suggesting they discourage their son or daughter from keeping an automobile on the campus. "We received a number of interesting replies, but there was no noticeable decrease in the number of cars," said Weaver, who stressed that this was not a product of his own initiative, but an act in compliance to a previous suggestion by the board.

He said that the status of the discussions is incomplete, but the committees have tried to look at it from every standpoint and are inviting students to give their opinions as well as studying the actions of other schools in regard to this same type of problem.

"One thing is clear," he said. "There will be a stricter enforcement of the regulations, particularly the registering of automobiles."

30 Entries Scheduled For Valkyries' Event

The Valkyre Sing, to be held on April 18 in Memorial Hall, has 30 entries in this year's competition, according to Miss Luanna Thornton, chairman otfe Shing.

In addition to the four original competitive groups, women's dormitories, men's dorms, sororities and fraternities, another for special organizations has been added. Miss Thornton said APO, Monogram Club and Phi Chi medical fraternity have been entered in the fifth group.

She said three women's dorms have entered the competition. They are Smith, McIver and Alderman.

Five men's dorms have been registered. They are Cobb, Aycock, Joyner, Stacy and Ruffin.

According to the chairman of the Sing, six sororities and 13 fraternities have entered. The sororities are Alpha Gamma Delta Chi Omega, ADPi, Tri Delta, KD and Pi Beta Phi. The fraternities are Pi Kappa Phi, Delta Upsilon, Phi Kappa Sigma, St. Anthony Hall, Chi Psi, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Nu.

Saturday Stranger Cast With Warner Bros. Scout

Some of the members of the cast of Saturday Stranger, original play to be produced by the Carolina Playmakers today through Sunday, are shown with S. S. Baiano, casting director for Warner Bros. studio. Baiano, who attended a rehearsal of the play, was in Chapel Hill during his talent-scouting tour of outstanding university dramatic groups. With him are (left to right) Len Bullock, Martha Dow, Baiano, Gene Overbeck and June Eschweiler.

Playmakers' New Play To Start Run Tonight

James Riley, technical director for the Carolina Playmakers and a newcomer to the staff, will be the director of Saturday Stranger, a new play to be presented here tonight through Sunday.

Riley, who has had his name on Playmakers programs this season as technical director and scenic designer, has an established reputation as designer of sets for a number of outstanding drama groups throughout the country, a Playmakers spokesman pointed out.

A dramatic arts graduate from UNC and M.F.A. degree winner at Yale University, he has worked in New York as assistant to the designer for the Robert Montgomery television show and in Palm Beach, Fla., as designer for the Palm Beach Playhouse. He has also been designer for the New London, New Hampshire Players; the Fair Haven Summer Theatre in Massachusetts, and lighting designer for Unto These Hills at Cherokee.

Taking Riley's place as scenic designer for Saturday Stranger will be Donald Treat, assistant technical director, and a winner of the Playmakers master award for excellence in technical work.

Saturday Stranger is an original play by Joseph Rosenberg, graduate student in dramatic arts. Already holding an M.A. degree in English from the University of Wisconsin, Rosenberg wrote the forthcoming production as his thesis play.

Performances will be given nightly in the Playmakers Theatre at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are now on sale at Abernethy Hall.

Featured in the cast will be Martha Dow, Wellesley Hill, Mass.; June Eschweiler, Parma, Ohio; Len Bullock, Ayden; Harvey Whetstone, Des Plaines, Ill.; Gene Overbeck, Fayetteville, and Bobby Lee Moretz, Elizabethton, Tenn.

Christian Moe will be stage manager and Helen Patton is costume designer.

WINS THIRD PLACE

Miss Margaret Underwood, Tri Delta ballad singer, won third place on the Horace Heidt show Friday in Raleigh.

Miss Underwood said she had planned to sing a slow ballad on the program but changed her mind at the last minute. She sang the "Rebel Song" because "Mr. Heidt wanted me to sing a fast one," she said.

"That was the mistake of the year," she said.

Vandalism Charged

Vandalism charged to Carolina students has drawn heated comments and criticism from sources this week.

The operators of the Hill House, plagued by damage to the motel on W. Franklin St., are considering closing.

Grady Putnam Jr., 2,0 Zeta Psi house, of Washington, D. C., was arrested last Saturday, charged with damage to Hill House property.

Andy Kinghorn, manager of the tourist home, said a half-gallon of white paint was dumped on the jockey statue in the front of Hill House last Thursday night.

Kinghorn said many times the lawn had been torn up and that intoxicated students have tried to force their way into the front door.

Three screened windows on the tourist cottages were destroyed Friday night, reportedly by a student.

At the Cafe Mouza there has been trouble, too.

Friday night a boy jerked a public phone from the wall and threw it through the plate glass window of the cafe.

TELEPHONES

Local telephone servicemen are being called on to repair phones in men's dorms two or three times a week, according to O. S. Hunt of the local exchange.

Hunt said a phone on third floor Manley was put out of order over the weekend when someone ripped away the dial face.

Last week the handset on a phone on third floor Cobb was torn off.

The destruction, according to local exchange officials, ordinarily occurs during weekends. Hunt said that "we get more calls on Sunday morning than any other time."

The costs of repairs is usually assumed by the Chapel Hill Telephone Co., which operates campus phones.

WESLEY OFFICERS

Four officers of Wesley Foundation for the coming year were elected Sunday at their regular program.

Roy Epperson, graduate student in the Chemistry Dept. from Caledonia, Miss., was elected by acclamation to the presidency. Others elected were Scotty Hester, Reidsville, vice-president; Jeannine Thompson, Mooresville, secretary, and Bill Porterfield, Goldsboro, treasurer.

METHODIST CANTATA

The University Methodist Church choir will present an Easter cantata during the regular 11 a.m. service Sunday, according to Scotty Hester, choir president.

Soloists for the performance of The Seven Last Words of Christ will be Joel Carter, Charles Kim and Miss Anzenette Andrews. The choir is directed by Milton Bliss with Mae Marshbanks accompanying at the organ.

FTA MEETING

The Frank Porter Graham chapter of the Future Teachers of America presented Miss Joan Leonard and Herb Stephens as Miss and Miss Future Teacher of the chapter at meeting Monday.

A panel discussion was also held on the State Future Teachers Convention held recently in Asheville by chapter members who attended the convention.

HERBERT TAREYTON
CIGARETTES
Filter Tip
MODERN SIZE
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
gives you true tobacco taste... is smooth and easy-drawing!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Candy
Goodies
Gifts
Easter remembrances
at
DANZIGER'S

COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18
$12 a day on this exciting ISLAND PARADISE in the Gulf of Mexico
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation... miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, this year, the FIRST ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Famed Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, amber jack, blue fish and some 30 other species. For evening relaxation there's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dance contests and college song fests. You'll be treated like a tycoon for $12.00 a day, including breakfast 'til noon... and dinner.
BOCA GRANDE
Boca Grande hotel
BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA
COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED
WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS
or contact:
JIM FURCHES
301 Cobb Dorm—9-8000

50 million times a day at home, at work or while at play
There's nothing like a Coke
1. BRIGHT, RIGHT TASTE.. tangy, bracing, ever-fresh.
2. FAST REFRESHMENT... a bit of quick energy for a wholesome little lift.
DRINK Coca-Cola
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

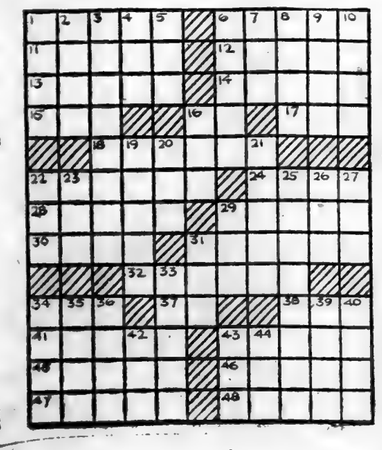
TODAY and THURSDAY
THE NO. 3 MONEY MAKING PICTURE IN ENGLAND FOR 1954
THE BELLES OF ST. TRINIANS
Starring
Alastair Sim
Varsity

BERMAN'S
Khaki and Black Cotton Pants
STRAP-IN THE-BACK
Ivy League Model
Only 4.98
WHITE DUCKS
$4.00 Value
Just 2.98
BERMAN'S

CLASSIFIEDS

FOR RENT: Single room for man, in modern home on University Drive. Comfortable and ideal for study. Telephone 9-2366.

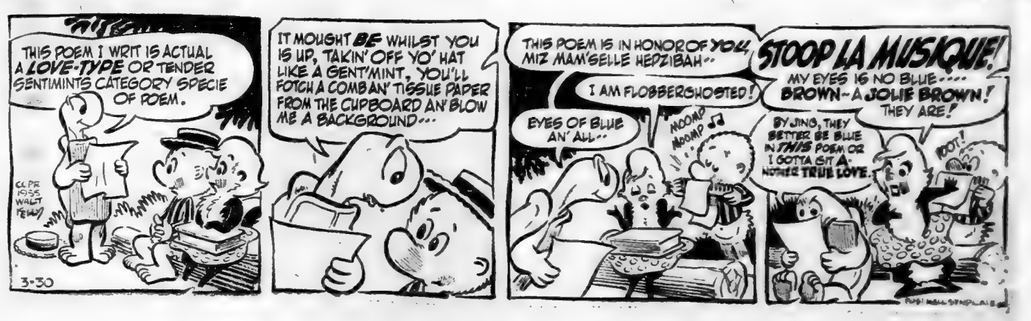


DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Red-flowered tree (Pac. Is.)
6. Strife (dial.)
11. Appearing as if eaten
12. More infrequent
13. Discharges
14. An ax wielder
15. Sailor (slang)
16. Ahead
17. Malt beverage
18. Site of Cornell University
22. British political party
24. Rodents
28. Mohammedanism
29. Harmonize
30. Feat
31. Flowing substances
32. Expressions of pleasure
34. Bah!
37. King of Bashan (Bib.)
38. Head covering
41. Fencing swords
43. Make, as cloth
45. Cautions
46. Bury
47. Questionable (colloq.)
48. Web-footed birds

DOWN
1. Opposed to right
2. Assam silkworm
3. Dreadful
4. Employ
5. Roman money
6. French coin
7. Not strict
8. Girl's name
9. Kind of duck
10. Sea eagle (Eur.)
16. Rowing implement
19. Garden amphibians
20. Drone
21. Debate
22. Cover
23. Ashes (Scot.)
25. Awned
26. Man's nickname
27. Southeast by south (abbr.)
29. Entire amount
31. A fruit
33. Covered with moss
34. Long benches in churches
35. Brightly-colored fish
36. Queen of heaven (Gr. Myth.)
39. Birds as a class
40. Mountain pool
42. Conclude
43. Covering of false hair
44. East-northeast (abbr.)

M	I	M	E		C	H	A	S
E	N	I	S		L	A	C	T	O
L	A	C	E	S		E	R	R	O	R
A	S	I	N		M	A	R	I	N	E
S	U	S		D	I	V	I	D	E	S
P	R	O	M	O	T	E	S
S	E	R	E			O	S	A	R
		A	D	M	O	N	I	S	H
P	E	N	N	I	E	S		S	H	O
E	R	O	D	E	D		S	T	A	D
F	U	R	E	S		C	H	I	M	E
S	P	I	R	E		H	O	N	E	S
T	A	S	S			A	W	E	D



Yesterday's Answer

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U N C Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER
Cloudier and warmer today, with expected high of 65.

The Daily Tar Heel

CALM
The editor outlines a calm procedure for meeting the segregation issue. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 129 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

'CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME'

State Appropriations Men Again Bring Up Question Of Out-Of-Staters' Fees

(From AP Reports)

RALEIGH, March 30—The question of raising out-of-state students' tuitions at the University of North Carolina came up again today as the Joint Appropriations subcommittee considered the state's educational budget.

The lawmakers were considering budget increases for five state teachers' colleges when one member, who must remain unnamed under subcommittee rules, suggested increasing non-resident tuition at schools such as UNC, where a large number of non-resident students are going to school. He continued:

"We've been subdizing people from the Bronx and Brooklyn so they can come down here and get a good education at a small cost. If they're able to pay, we're glad to have them—but not at the expense of the state of North Carolina. Charity begins at home—that was written 2,000 years ago, and it's still the truth."

The question of raising non-resident tuition at state-supported colleges is being studied by another subcommittee appointed from the full Appropriations Committee.

More Returns Are In; Palmer Is Secretary

Men's Council, WAA

The following run-offs and victories were registered for Men's Honor Council seats:

Sophomore seat: run-off between Sonny Evans and Macon Patton;

Junior seat: run-off between Bill Morgan, Townsend Holt and Mebane Pritchett;

Senior seats: Charles Katzenstein, took a record number of votes, and Dick Baker took two of the three available seats while the third will be determined in a run-off election between Graham Shanks and Don Huntington. To fill executive positions on the Women's Athletic Association these were named:

Laura Ann Travis, president, Amy Morse, vice president, Anne Williams, secretary, Pat Oliver, treasurer, and Betty Stacy, awards chairman.

Palmer Secretary

Joan Palmer, SP candidate for secretary of the student body, won by 24 votes announced elections board chairman Patsy Daniels yesterday. The vote was 1,560 to 1,584.

Tuesday's results proclaimed UP candidate Jane Cocke the winner, but yesterday Miss Palmer's campaign manager demanded a recount.

"I want to thank everybody for helping me," said Miss Palmer yesterday," and I'll do the best job I can."

Beatty CAA Head

Jim Beatty, endorsed by the University Party, was named president of the Carolina Athletic Association after an Elections Board session yesterday afternoon.

Beatty gained the post after a run against Roland Perdue, Student Party candidate.

The other CAA officer's spot at stake in the elections, the vice presidency, was taken by Ed Sutton.

(See WOMEN'S, page 4)

Election Results

	DM1	DM2	DM3	DM4	DM5	DW	SB	G	L	B&LC	VV	I	Tot.
STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT
Fowler (I)	221	215	139	146	136	173	123	98	46	47	13	3	1,360
McCurry (UP)	48	82	41	105	97	172	33	148	27	87	49	3	1,194
Muntzing (SP)	82	121	93	94	57	112	23	38	28	5	10	5	674
VICE-PRESIDENT
Stevens (UP)	117	85	76	128	126	275	414	205	33	141	35	5	1,613
Harrington (SP)	229	274	180	206	155	173	64	73	64	21	31	7	1,482
SECRETARY
Jane Cocke (UP)	100	114	84	125	158	262	385	170	54	101	34	4	1,560
Joan Palmer (SP)	240	246	172	239	145	203	100	109	54	39	29	8	1,584
TREASURER
Jim Martin (UP)	140	160	127	156	152	300	367	198	53	108	40	7	1,808
Joe Correll (SP)	197	190	122	179	126	142	104	80	42	32	25	5	1,244
CHEERLEADER
Tice	129	136	122	122	83	194	179	122	45	25	34	6	1,197
Collision	81	107	87	133	117	184	129	62	27	28	21	5	971
Homesley	122	110	44	85	81	75	155	88	25	80	6	0	871

LEGEND: DM—Dorm men's; DW—Dorm women's; SB—Scuttlebutt; G—Gerrard Hall; L—Lenoir Hall; B&LC—Big and little fraternity courts; VV—Victory Village; I—Infirmary.

Fireman, Save My Pants

UNION, S. C., March 30. (AP)—Smoke billowed from a dry cleaning establishment here. Fire Chief J. W. Sullivan was down on hands and knees inside trying to locate the fire.

He saw a man walk quickly into the building, riffle through the identification slips in a long row of cleaned clothing, select a pair of trousers and walk out.

Outside the man sought out the proprietor of the business and paid the charges for his trousers. Didn't want them smoke-damaged, he explained.

SEN. HUBERT HUMPHREY
. . . tomorrow night

Humphrey To Speak Tomorrow

"United States Foreign Policy" will be the subject of a public address by Senator Hubert M. Humphrey (D-Minn.) to be presented here tomorrow night under sponsorship of the Carolina Forum.

Senator Humphrey will be heard at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

The Forum, an official agency of student government, brings to the campus from time to time "speakers who reflect the varying shades of economic and political thought." Joel Fleishman is Forum chairman.

Elected to the Senate in 1948 and again in 1954, Humphrey is presently serving on the Committees on Foreign Relations, Agriculture and Forestry, Small Business and Government Operations. He is also a member of the President's Commission on Intergovernmental Relations and a member of the Democratic Steering Committee in the Senate.

An active supporter of the Marshall Plan and the Point Four Program, the Senator is also an advocate of the Reciprocal Trade Policy, Mutual Security and North Atlantic Treaty.

In domestic affairs, he hsa been a leader in behalf of the Hoover Commission government reorganization plans, particularly that for the reorganization of the Bureau of Internal Revenue in 1952.

Humphrey was also a leading spokesman for Midwest agriculture in legislation aimed at price stability, conservation of resources, rural electrification, development programs for housing and slum clearance, civil rights legislation, immigration and refugee legislation and labor-management relations.

Senator Humphrey is a native of Wallace, S. D. He was graduated from Denver College of Pharmacy, the Universitv of Minnesota, where he received his B.A. degree magna cum laude, and Louisiana State University, where he won a M.A. degree.

Three Sophomores And 10 Juniors Picked By Grail, High-Ranking Men's Group

Thirteen Carolina men were tapped into the Order of the Grail last night.

The honorary men's organization took in three sophomores and 10 juniors in ceremonies last night. They are: Kenneth Ray Argo, Kannapolis; Richard Henry Baker Jr., Greensboro; Lewis Shore Brumfield, Yadkinville; James Gooden Exum Jr., Snow Hill; Luther Hartwell Hodges Jr., Leaksville;

Claude Edwin Pope, Dunn; Gilbert Gray Ragland, Oxford; Graham Henry Rights, Winston-Salem; Hudson Wilson Shoulars Jr., Rich Square; John Shorter Stevens, Asheville; James Reginald Turner, Winston-Salem; Perry Burt Veasy, Raleigh, and Robert Terry Young, Asheville.

The Order of the Grail is one of the highest honorary men's organizations on campus.

According to the statement of the organization's purpose, "Membership in the Grail is indicative only of high recognition for achievement and unselfish devotion to altruistic endeavors, but also of the willingness to serve and to exhibit these qualities in the interest of the student body."

The Order of the Grail sponsors such campus services as dances after every home football game, the sale of class rings and the composition, sale and distribution of graduation invitations.

"In the selection of its members the Grail looks for students who already bear evidence of public recognition. Skill and social prominence are not considered qualifications for membership in the Grail. Modesty, self - effacement, and unostentatious service to the end of unity, the positive inspiration to character, principle and integrity, through exemplary campus citizenship are the values which are necessary to the realization of the aims of the Order."

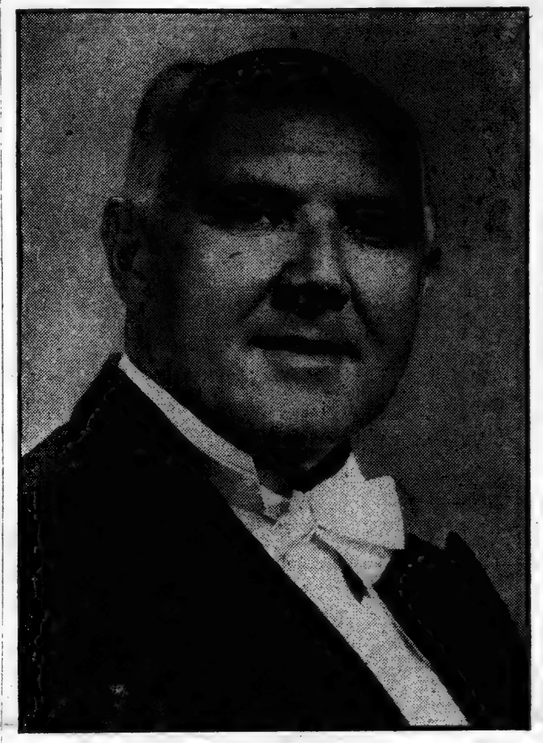
Muntzing Not For Either One

Statements were issued yesterday afternoon by Don Fowler and Ed McCurry, the two remaining presidential candidates. Manning Muntzing, Student Party candidate who lost in Tuesday's elections, asked that the "student body consider the two candidates in the light of which one will be able to do the most capable job when elected," adding that at the moment he is "not asking for support of either of the two"—candidates in runoffs.

After expressing his gratitude for the students who "expressed their confidence in me," the University Party's McCurry said, ". . . I shall strive to prove myself worthy of the student body's support in this final bid for an opportunity to serve in their best interest."

FOWLER

Fowler, an independent candidate, said he feels "deeply greatful and indebted" to the students for the "faith and confidence that they have shown in my candidacy." He added, "I assure you that your faith and cnofidence was not misplaced, but shall grow through the close coordination that we can establish in student government."



Fowler said "The student body's fine turnout for the election is to be commended. A large turnout for next Tuesday's runoff will show conclusively that the Carolina students are truly interested in student government and in the cause of elevating student government to its proper position on campus.

"I want to thank you, each and every one of you, for your enthusiasm," he concluded.

MUNTZING

Muntzing said he wanted to thank the students who supported him in Tuesday's election, adding, "I should like to ask everyone who did support me to stand behind the eventual winner in order that student government may next year be a united force moving in one direction toward the good of the stu-

(See RACE, page 4.)

PIANIST WALTER GIESEKING
. . . plays here tonight in Memorial Hall

Concert Pianist Walter Gieseking Here Tonight

Walter Gieseking, world famous concert pianist, will appear in Memorial Hall tonight at 8 p.m., according to Jimmy Wallace, secretary of the Chapel Hill Concert Series, Gieseking's sponsor.

Wallace said 300 tickets are still on hand and may be purchased at the door for $3. Student tickets are on sale at Graham Memorial for $2.50.

This will be Gieseking's only appearance in the southeast, said Wallace. His program will include a sonata by Beethoven, five pieces by Brahms, two impromptus by Schubert, a selection by Catelnuovo-Tedesco and other works, including six preludes by Debussy.

The last presentation of the concert series will be Jan Peerce, tenor, who will be here April 15.

Student Legislature

The student Legislature will not convene for its regular weekly meeting tonight. The agenda interruption is the result of elections.

Recitals Slated On Campus

Three recitals will be presented in Hill Hall within the coming week.

Miss Ann Lee, pianist, will give a recital at 4 p.m. Sunday. Joseph McGugan, baritone, will present a senior recital at 8 p.m. Sunday, and David Bar-Illan, Israel pianist, will present a recital next 8 p.m. Tuesday.

MISS LEE

Miss Lee is a student of Dr. Wilton Mason, associate professor in the music department, and a senior in Sanford High School. She began her musical studies at the age of five. Miss Lee was piano soloist with the North Carolina Little Symphony in Mozart's Concerto in B Flat Major at the age of 15.

McGUGAN

McGugan, a student of Assistant Prof. Joel Carter, will sing arias from Handel's Semele and Samson, Leoncavallo's Pagliaccii, Gay's Beggar's Opera, Mozart's Magic Flute and Menotti's The Old Maid and The Thief.

He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity and has appeared as soloist with the UNC Men's Glee Club.

BAR-ILLAN

Bar-Illan first came to the United States in 1947 to attend the Juilliard School of Music as a scholarship student. He later studied with Hans Neumann at the Mannes College of Music in New York.

In 1954 the Israel pianist gave his New York debut recital in Carnegie Hall after touring the United States, Canada, England and Israel. After playing during the festivities of Queen Elizabeth II's coronation, he received the medal awarded annually by Dame Harriet Cohen, pianist to the queen, on behalf of the British Music League. Bar-Illan was the first non-Commonwealth citizen to receive it.

His program here will include works by Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms and Chopin.

He appeared on a Petites Musicals program here during last semester.

POPULAR PHILOSOPHY PROFESSOR:

Bill Poteat's China Childhood Was Colorful

By LOIS OWEN

Dr. William A. Poteat, professor of philosophy, had the kind of childhood that most young boys and girls dream about. Had there been a television set handy he probably would not have watched it.

Dr. Poteat was born in Kaifeng, Honan, China, in 1919. His mother and father were Baptist missionaries there. The Poteat family arrived in China in 1917, and they did not leave until 10 years later. While they were living in Kaifeng they began to feel the vibrations of the beginning of the Chinese Civil War. The war lords in the north were moving down on Kaifeng, and the forces of Chiang Kai-Shek were coming up from the south.

BANDIT SERVANT

Banditing and smuggling were thriving commercial occupations in Kaifeng. The Poteats discovered that they had been harboring a bandit chief in their home, in the guise of a servant. One day he was arested by the police, taken off to jail, and there beaten to death.

When fighting broke out in the city in 1925, the family was forced to live in the basement for several days, eating canned Norweagian margarine and powdered eggs. When the Poteats left the city they were able to take only a few essentials with them.

From Kaifeng the Poteats went to Shanghai, where Dr. Poteat's father taught philosophy and ethics at the University of Shanghai. This city, too, was an unsettled one, divided into sections like present-day Berlin.

The University was located about five miles outside the city. But the American School was in town, in the French section. Every morning the University children would mkae the trip into the city in a Willys-Knight seven-passenger touring car driven by a white Russian cavalry colonel, who always carried a 45 cal. service automatic with him. He had been chosen to chaffeur the children precisely because he was so tough.

One afternoon the car was stopped at a curb. The driver had gone into a store on University business. With no warning a stream of men and guns came flashing down the street—robbers chased by huge, strong Indian Sikhs.

DR. WILLIAM POTEAT
. . . colorful childhood

INTERESTING FRIENDS

On the boat returning to China from a short visit to the States, Dr. Poteat became buddies with a well-tailored, proper six-year-old, named Harold Ison, who spoke the language of fashionable boarding schools. In view of this alliance the parents became friendly, too.

Soon after arrival in China the Poteats learned that polite Harold was the son of Maxie Ison, who belonged to the gang that had been shot up in the Chicago St. Valentine's Day Massacre.

The Poteats left China in 1929 and came back to North Carolina where Dr. Poteat's father became the minister of Pullen Memorial Baptist Church, Raleigh. North Carolina had been home to the Poteats for years. The old family home is in Yanceyville, Caswell County.

Dr. Poteat's grandfather was Edwin MacNeill Poteat I, a Baptist minister, also the president of Furman University. His brother, William Louis Poteat, was president of Wake Forest College. Miss Ida Isabella Poteat, their sister, was a professor of art at Meredith College.

Dr. Poteat's father, Edwin MacNeill Poteat Jr., was educated at Furman. He was active in the Student Volunteer Movement. It was at a SVM meeting in Kansas City that he met his wife. Dr. Poteat recalled that his mother and father were introduced by a Mr. Harry Comer, secretary of the YMCA at UNC. Years later, when Dr. Poteat first came to Carolina, he was an associate of Mr. Comer's.

SAME PIANO

When the Poteats were settled in Raleigh they still had the piano that had been with them in Kaifeng. When they went to Shanghai, they had to leave it behind. Later Dr. Poteat's father went back for the piano and found it had been chopped up for firewood by bandits or fighting men. Only the action was left, which he brought back to Shanghai. An English cabinet-maker rebuilt the piano and it is now in Rev. Poteat's home in Raleigh.

Dr. Poteat attended grammar and high school in Raleigh. These were extra-curricular days for him, he said. When he went to Oberlin College in Ohio, he played football, studied hard and me: Mrs. Poteat, who was two years behind him.

Dr. Poteat commented that it was he who talked her into majoring in history with him. She said she did because it seemed easiest for her.

Dr. Poteat reminded his wife that she had been the captain of the field hockey team one year. This reminded him of the time he and some cohorts had dressed in wigs, skirts, and bobby sox and snuck into the annual "Yale-Princeton" basketball game and skits, which was strictly a girls' affair.

Mrs. Poteat, Marion Kelly before her marriage, was from Elkins Park, Pa., the fourth of seven children. Her mother was of German descent and her father was an inventor. He started a textile mill in Pennsylvania which is still in existence. Originally in the educational field, Mr. Kelly went into business to support his very large family.

After his graduation from Oberlin, Dr. Poteat went to Yale Divinity School. During these three years in New Haven Dr. Poteat held three jobs. He was football coach for the Sillimian College team of the University. He was also dean of men at a nearby boys' prep school. But Dr. Poteat says the job he most liked was running an elevator in large, elaborate Payne-Whitney Gymnasium.

The Poteats were married in 1943, at the beginning of Dr. Poteat's last year in Divinity School.

"Marion came to New Haven to support me," Dr. Poteat said. Mrs. Poteat worked with the New Haven Religion and Labor Foundation.

When Dr. Poteat first came to Carolina it was as secretary of the YMCA, a position in which he remained for three years. When Comer, the man who had introduced the elder Poteats, met them at the bus he said:

"Marion, you're a brave woman."

TEACHING HERE

Next Dr. Poteat began teaching in the Philosophy Department. During this time he was getting his Ph.D. in philosophy of religion at Duke.

'Proceeding Calmly' On Segregation

The sounds on segregation from Raleigh remind us that the University, as well as the public schools, must soon face the issue.

Negro students are sure to apply for admission here next fall, and the next year, or the year after that, Carolina must open the doors of the General College to Negroes. If qualified Negro students are denied admission solely because of their race, the University is then standing against the law; and by law, if not by our will, the barrier that has kept Negroes from becoming undergraduates here will be removed.

One hears, from responsible public officials, a good deal about "meeting the issue calmly" and "progressing slowly." It is good advice, and, in fact, North Carolina has followed it. Except in isolated corners, we have experienced none of the wild rebellion of Louisiana or South Carolina.

On this campus, however, the issue has been somewhat obscured through the months under a stack of letters to the editor—calm and otherwise. One thing needs to be recalled: that if the University is to meet the issue "calmly" it must meet it soon. For the attempts of the Negro to gain the rights the Supreme Court has declared are his as a citizen will first be focused here.

So there must be an end to the silence that was typified by the over-cautious tip-toes of of this week's presidential candidates and that prevails, by some impromptu rule of etiquette, in polite Y-Court conversation.

It is possible for students to put off discussing many of the moment's momentous affairs—the draft, the H-bomb, the threat of war, the guaranteed annual wage, the stock market situation; it is no longer possible to decline comment on segregation at the University. For with or without student approval, it seems clear that today's freshmen will be going to class with Negro students before they are seniors.

"Let sleeping dogs lie" we were admonished in a friendly argument on the subject yesterday.

But the dog is no longer sleeping. He is coming wide awake.

The student's decision is not "shall we go to school with Negroes?" but "in what frame of mind shall we go to school with Negroes."

The Daily Tar Heel's oft-repeated contention this year has been that students should not passively wait for the year or two that remain before Negroes may attend Carolina by Supreme Court direction; they should say—and say now and say loud enough so that the state might hear—to Negro high school graduates: We welcome you here. For this is your University as much as it is ours.

We believe that is so; we can find no reason in the human law or in the human heart that says it is not so.

A welcome by Carolina's students to Negroes would be heard around the world. It would be heard farther: it would reach the ears of a senior at Lincoln High School who all his life has walked down Franklin Street, believing that he can never turn onto the brick walks of the campus with his books under his arm and be at home, and at peace.

"Proceed calmly" we are told. What calmer or greater procedure is there than this: to tear down barriers built on the flimsy foundation of bigotry, to do it voluntarily, to do it now?

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman

NEWS STAFF — Neil Bass, Ruth Dalton, Ed Myers, Woody Sears, Peggy Ballard, Sue Quinn

Advertising Manager — Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager — Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager — Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager — Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor — Ray Linker
Photographer — Boyden Henley
Society Editor — Susan Andes

EDITORIAL STAFF — Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase

SPORTS STAFF — Al Korschun, Bob Colbert, Chuck Strong, Marshall Waldman

BUSINESS STAFF — Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue — Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

The Ghost Of J. C. Calhoun In Raleigh

Louis Kraar

A GOOD name for this spring's election might be "The Rise and Fall of the Student Party," for the liberal SP appears to have lost where it hurts most — everywhere.

Manning Muntzing, the SP presidential candidate, found himself a lonely man after Don Fowler left the party to run for President, taking with him almost half of the SP.

The student Legislature, in SP hands since thre years ago, is now in the hands of the University Party. Jack Stevens, the new vice-president will will head it as speaker.

Even the class officers, with one exception, went to the University Party. In short, it's a sounding beating for SP people.

★

IF DON Fowler takes the run-off election next week, most of his supporters—bolters of the SP—will fnd themselves with pretty good jobs. And the SP will almost certainly be in worse shape.

Dave Reid, the biggest Fowler supporter, would probably get the attorney-generalship. A third party, either official or unofficial, would probably spring forth to include the Fowler camp.

If Ed McCurry wins in the run-off, the University Party can throw out its political chest at sweeping the entire election—major executive posts, Legislature, and class officers. Actually, from the Student Party standpoint, a McCurry victory would be a better thing for them.

With a University Party student government, the SP could take the role of an active opposition, instead of being a fragmented group.

★

WORD FROM Wilmington that the Azaleas are in frozen shape will have little effect on the mass migration of Carolina students to the coast this weekend.

Chances are most attenders of the weekend festival don't even see azaleas—or much of anything else after the partying.

★

"RED-BLOODED legislators and citizens should take their stand, shoulder to shoulder, to preserve Southern civilization."

No, that's not a quote from John C. Calhoun, the venerable South Carolina Congressman of a century ago who stood for Southern rights — even if it meant doing away with the idea of majority rule. That's a statement made this week by a North Carolina legislator, Byrd I. Satterfield, speaking against the "local option" school bill.

Although I am personally opposed to the local option bill—or any other measure that tries to dodge the Supreme Court's segregation decision — speeches like Satterfields's reflect a narrow view of the South.

Southern civilization, if there's such a thing, is United States civilization. The age of Southern nationalism passed with the gitter Civil War, which settled the question of states rights in permanent and painful fashion.

Now the question of integration in the public schools is appearing a painful one in the South. This tradition-bound part of the country has been asked to change its way of thinking, and this is difficult — particularly when the thinking isn't very logical.

The hope of the South is this problem lies in quiet, clear thinking—not shouting to tones of John C. Calhoun.

One would expect to find the thinkers in the General Assembly, but instead I see politicians more interested in the sentiment back home.

As for the "local option" law itself, which allows city and county school boards the authority to assign pupils to public schools, this reporter is confident that it will be swept aside by the U. S. Supreme Court as a diversionary tactic.

Poor, Maligned, Fangless 'Radical'

Ed Yoder

Among the plethora of political statements, sound and unsound, that flood the campus during election time a few always survive in the memory because they are marked off from the others by some particular point of originality. Sometimes good, sometimes bad.

An example of the latter slid quietly under my door one day last week. The statement was to be found in a handbill for one of the political aspirants running for Legislature. It read, in part:

"But (the candidate) is the type of boy who will sincerely do his best for our district—without any "give-away" programs, or radical or sensational statements that are embarrasing to the entire student body."

THREE LITTLE WORDS

Three little words—which may or may not be laughed off as political enticement or claptrap—interested me from this excerpt: "give-away," radical," and "sensational."

"Give away," and "sensational" can immediately be weighed for their political value and motive and discarded. "Give-away" possibly goes back to criticism of national economic policy, perhaps to campus economic policy which brought the somewhat controversial television sets to the dorms. Otherwise, the phrase has no real meaning.

"Sensational" is likewise a political catchword. Everyone wants to appear unsensational during an election, even those who go in occasionally for what others call sensational.

Take, for example, Senator Hubert Humphrey, a good example since he's to speak here Friday night under the auspices of the Carolina Forum. Senator Humphrey is widely known (and respected by those who agree with him) for his liberal views on civil liberties. Yet, when the vote to outlaw the Communist Party came up in the Senate last summer, Senator Humphrey jumped on the careening and unsensational bandwagon and voted for the bill. He knew ballot-marking time lay right over the horizon.

"Radical," so cleverly hidden between the other two meaningless words, is the word which stopped me and started me thinking about the statement. The statement avowed that the candidate in question would not make "radical" statements which would "embarrass" the entire student body. If people are embarrassed by the "radical" why is it? It is a perfectly good English word and, at least up until the time of Chaucer, its equivalent had perfectly clean status; in other words, it wasn't breathed in hush-hush tones and didn't, I'm sure, embarrass anyone. At the risk of boring the reader with semantics, let me defend the word "radical."

PRESSURED WORDS

The trouble with "radical"—like the trouble with "left wing," "right wing," "liberal," conservative"—comes from the stains pressure groups have put on it. Words change meanings, of course, but no semanticist ought to recognize the blinding plunge taken by so good a Latin word as "radical"—and especially when propelled to that low position by the most unlettered of pressure artists.

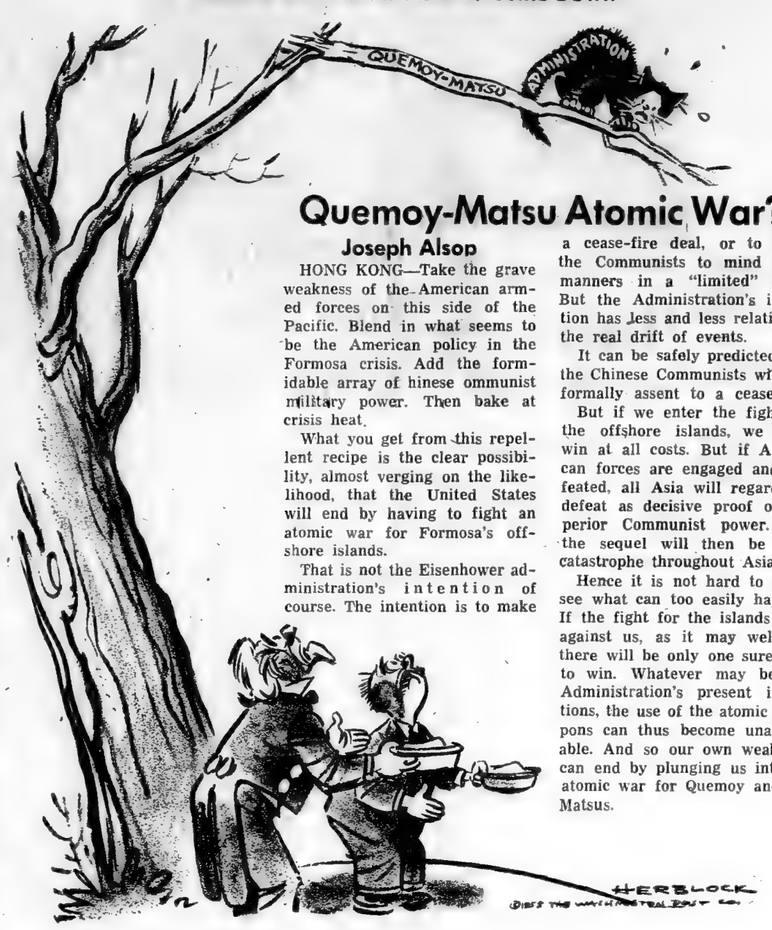
There's no reason why "radical" sentiment should prove embarrassing to anyone except the unlettered—especially in a university where students should dedicate themselves to learning the proper depth of words. The tragedy of word-pejoration is that when words are stigmatized they can lead to all sorts of bad and far-reaching consequences.

The truth is that everyone who has any convictions which reach beyond the immediate circumstances is a "radical." "Radical" comes from the Latin noun radix, meaning "root." Students who know their Chaucer will recall that one of his clergymen preached repeatedly on the text: "Radix malorum est cupiditas"—"Desire (or greed) is the root of all evil." So "radical"—"deep-rooted"—is, in a matter of belief, that which has come to be believed deeply and strongly.

HOW 'RADICAL' IS RADICAL

Everyone nowadays is aware that "radical" usually associates with what the anthropologists call "radical opposition"—that is basic opposition to the deeply rooted set of beliefs of a society. But the person who affirms these beliefs as strongly (or bitterly) as another challenges them is, at the same time and by all rights, a "radical."

Looking at any situation objectively—as all people engaged in politics claim they do—one must admit that there is just as much ground for "radical opposition" as for "radical affirmation." The preamble to our Declaration of Independence—a "radical" document if people ever wrote one—makes plain that the revolutionaries who snatched this country out of the colonial sphere of Great Britain believed in the right to radical opposition.



IT WON'T BITE

In any society where the people rule the right to "radical" statements—whether they affirm or challenge—goes without saying. We ought to be able to assume, though maybe that would be rash, that everyone who feels himself firmly allied with a society will have "radical" sentiments; being the ultimate, higher, finer sentiments, they should be rampant. But a visitor from Mars might deny that this is true of Americans, in light of what has been happening to the word "radical."

There's nothing dark or shady or evil about "radicalism;" it belongs to all who take thought about ultimate things. And to say that individuals have the right to hold deep commitments and then to turn around and slander the word "radical" is to engage in contradiction.

Let's welcome the word "radical" into our vocabularies. It won't bite!

'I'm Not Sure I Know How To Come Down'

Quemoy-Matsu Atomic War?

Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG—Take the grave weakness of the American armed forces on this side of the Pacific. Blend in what seems to be the American policy in the Formosa crisis. Add the formidable array of hinese ommunist military power. Then bake at crisis heat.

What you get from this repellent recipe is the clear possibility, almost verging on the likelihood, that the United States will end by having to fight an atomic war for Formosa's offshore islands.

That is not the Eisenhower administration's intention of course. The intention is to make a cease-fire deal, or to teach the Communists to mind their manners in a "limited" fight. But the Administration's intention has less and less relation to the real drift of events.

It can be safely predicted that the Chinese Communists will not formally assent to a cease-fire.

But if we enter the fight for the offshore islands, we must win at all costs. But if American forces are engaged and defeated, all Asia will regard the defeat as decisive proof of superior Communist power. And the sequel will then be total catastrophe throughout Asia.

Hence it is not hard to foresee what can too easily happen. If the fight for the islands goes against us, as it may well do, there will be only one sure way to win. Whatever may be the Administration's present intentions, the use of the atomic weapons can thus become unavoidable. And so our own weakness can end by plunging us into an atomic war for Quemoy and the Matsus.

Tradition May Be A Foe

Nixon: Most Likely To Succeed

The Charlotte News

The wreaths Dwight D. Eisenhower has been piling on Vice President Nixon have some Republicans as worried as those presidential excursions to Gettysburg almost every weekend. Wasn't Mr. Eisenhower giving the vice president some kind of green light when he commended him for "courage and honesty which have earned him the respect of all who seek a better and stronger America?" Is the White House starting a 1956 buildup for the controversial Californian?

Mr. Nixon himself added fuel to the flames of suspicion when he proclaimed that "someday . . . we have to have a presidential candidate (other than Eisenhower) strong enough to get the Republican Party elected."

If the President has any ideas of not accepting a second term draft, he might like to pass the latch key to the White House along to his vice president. But what he is really doing is making a marked man of Mr. Nixon. Party stalwarts with ideas of their own about the presidency can now team up to meet the distant obstacle of the vice president's growing figure by whittling it down before it's too late.

There are plenty of Republicans, too, who are not at all happy about the type of campaign speeches Mr. Nixon made in 1954. Considering the controversial status of the vice president as a result of those speech-praise a little too glowing. For instance, the Ikeism quoted above could be read to imply that those who withhold their "respect" for Mr. Nixon do not "seek a better and stronger America."

But tradition may be Mr. Nixon's strongest foe. Not since the days of Martin Van Buren in 1836 has a vice president advanced directly into the presidency except as the constitutional successor of a chief executive who died in office. In Van Buren's case it was Andy Jackson himself who paved the way.

The vice presidency has been the trap door to obscurity for many a party warhorse. Others have used the office merely to mount raucous attacks on their presidential superiors. Mr. Nixon has so far neither dropped from the public eye nor bucked his boss on any major issue.

Not all of his predecessors have been so wise or so fortunate. What some political writers have called the "Throttlebottom tradition" is represented by such forgotten men as Daniel D. Tompkins, William R. King, Henry Wilson, Levi P. Morton and Charles W. Fairbanks. All were U. S. vice presidents; all knew oblivion.

This is not always the case however. Vice presidents who have risen to fame include John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman.

Vice presidents Jefferson, John C. Calhoun, Millard Fillmore, Hannibal Hamlin and John Nance Garner all had well-publicised fights with their chiefs. Vice president Chester A. Arthur once complained that "President Garfield has not been honorable nor square nor truthful. It is hard to say that of the President of the United States," he added, "but it is, unfortunately, only the truth."

From the other side of the fence, there are the words of Woodrow Wilson, speaking of the office of the vice presidency: "The chief embarrassment in describing it is that in saying how little there is to be said about it one has evidently said all there is to say."

Mr. Nixon, then, fits no mold of the past. But that does not necessarily mean that he is destined for greatness—or the White House.

Ike: Can He Be Beaten?

Joseph C. Harsch
In The Christian Science Monitor

Democratic Party leaders have decided to sit up and challenge the current and widely accepted theory that Dwight D. Eisenhower is a sure winner if he decides to run again in 1956.

Whether they really believe down deep in their hearts that "Ike" can be beaten is something none but themselves can know, but they have worked out an elaborate and detailed set of reasons to support their proposition that they can win not only the Congress but also the White House in 1956 even if Mr. Eisenhower runs again. It goes like this:

1. 1952 was an unusual political phenomenon in United States political history.

2. 1956 will be a very different story. Both conventions will do the expected and renominate the candidates of 1952. The candidates will be familiar. The campaign will be less acrimonious.

3. The Democratic Party is the stronger and more numerous party. As a party it has more appeal. Even Republican Vice-President Richard M. Nixon agrees with this. If the campaign were to be waged exclusively between the parties, the Democrats would win.

4. There will be more Republican unpopularity rubbing off on Eisenhower than Eisenhower popularity rubbing off on the party. This will be so because the Republican Party as a party has been losing ground in many and important sectors of voters.

5. The decline of Republican popularity in the Old South is obvious and axiomatic. No "confederate" states will go Republican in 1956.

6. Decline of farm prices continues to erode the traditional Republican position in the Midwest Farm Belt.

7. The Democrats have seized the popular side on taxes, and stand to gain widely.

8. Organized labor is becoming more organized and more anti-Republican.

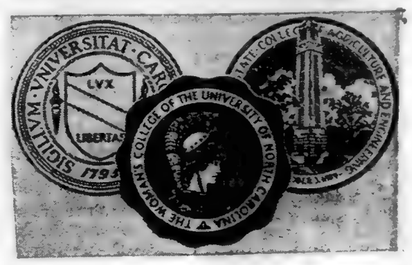
9. Adlai E. Stevenson will be a "happy warrior" in 1956 instead of being a reluctant one, as he was in 1952.

For these reasons the Democrats say they can beat even Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956.

Is it reason or rationalization?

Should Student Fees Be Raised?

Gordon Gray



(The following statement on student fees was made by President Gordon Gray to the University Board of Trustees recently.—Editor.)

In the present situation of the State's finances and of our needs, it is necessary to look at the matter of student fees. For it is entirely possible that we will be faced someday, in a quite bald way, with a decision either to raise fees, or to cut back our program.

Well before that day arrives, I want to report to you on our present situation with respect to student fees, and to lay before you our best thinking on the matter.

Fundamentally, that portion of the cost of the student's education not met by the fees he or she pays is met by state appropriations. Information presently available to us indicates that the portion paid by our students is equal to the national average of comparable institutions. In terms of absolute amounts, a recent study of fees charged by state universities and land grant colleges throughout the Nation shows that among all these colleges and universities, only ten charge the home state student higher fees than we do at our three institutions. Of this ten, only Virginia is in the South, and Virginia's charges are less than one dollar per student more.

This is no more than an introduction to the matter, though. For the question of student fees involves basic educational policy and philosophy, and

I doubt that we in North Carolina will be content to measure ourselves merely by what our neighbors do. The decision must be made as to the level of cost at which we shall set our university education, with respect to the ability of the great majority of our young people to pay.

There is no absolute magic figure for student fees, nor even a relative one. Both have varied greatly over the years. But there is a constant principle involved. This principle, I believe, is that we are firmly committeed to the proposition that it is desirable to have as many as possible of our young people, from all economic categories, obtain a college education. As I think about this problem, the figure that stays in my mind is that college and university education is as important to the individual, and to the State, as was high school education a generation and more ago. Clearly, then, our aim should be to maintain fees as low as possible, and to raise them only as a last resort.

We do not know what effect a small increase in student fees would have on our enrollments. We will begin some studies of this during the current year. However, in all realism, we know that current family income in North Carolina is such as to make sending a son or daughter to college a major undertaking for the great majority of our families. We ought not to increase the obstacles unless absolutely necessary.

Should we be forced to raise fees, an increase in tuition would be the fairest way, for this would apply to all students alike. An increase in dormitory rates only would affect a great many who can least afford greater expenditures.

The Outer Meshes Of Musical Criticism

Walter Pritchard Eaton

(Mr. Eaton, a seasonal resident of Chapel Hill, wrote this piece for The Gazette of Pittsfield, Mass. —Editor.)

Early in my professional life I became tangled in the outer meshes of musical criticism. Not that I knew anything about music, but there was so much going on in the musical world of New York that the music critic couldn't possibly attend all the operas and concerts. He had to have a leg man to keep reportorial tabs on them, and what he wanted was a reporter who knew so little about music that he wouldn't be tempted to butt in on the critic's province.

I was just the man for this job. Sometimes on a Saturday I looked in on the Manhattan Opera House, matinee and evening, at the Metropolitan matinee and evening and at concerts matinee and evening at Mendelssohn Hall and Carnegie Hall. Almost never was I even tempted to write more than the bare report.

A young violinist played at Mendelssohn Hall, and I was so fascinated that I remained in my seat for the entire recital, and wrote a flowery review. My boss, H. E. Krehbiel, was infuriated, not only by my insubordination, but by the fact that I had he said, "stultified the paper." He would have to go to the young fiddler's next recital, and set the record right.

He did go, and later towered over my desk, glared at me with all the malevolence he could summon to his sweet old German countenance, and thundered, "God damn it, you were right."

That young fiddler is now a summer resident of the Berkshires. His name is Fritz Kreisler.

Quote, Unquote

Puritanism, believing itself quick with the seed of religious liberty, laid, without knowing it, the egg of democracy.—James Russell Lowell.

East is East and West is San Francisco, according to Californians. Californians are a race of people; they are not merely inhabitants of a State. They are the Southerners of the West.—O. Henry in a Municipal Report.

Consistency is a paste jewel that only cheap men cherish.—William Allen White in the Emporia Gazette, 1922.

The one certain thing which we know about Shakespeare is that in his will he left his second best bed to his wife.—Stephen Leacock.

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

A platform for "Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice, who will be scraping for votes the next few days as the run-off in the cheerleader election nears:

Why not some organized cheers at the baseball games?

There aren't 35,000 fans out there, as is the case with football; there aren't even 5,000, as is the case with basketball. In fact, only a few hundred showed up Tuesday for the State game at Emerson Satdium, but organized cheering was noticeably lacking.

★

Bob Colbert, member of this department who covered the National Collegiate swimming championships last weekend at Oxford Ohio, received an award from the NCAA swimming committee for his work at the meet.

Colbert, also manager of the Tar Heel Dolphins, took over the diving events at the Miami pool for the committee and handled all complications and details in fine form.

At Monday night's team banquet, Colbert was presented with a gift from the coaching staff, Ralph Casey and Dick Jamerson, for his two year's service with the squad.

★

Frank McGuire, the basketball coach, is running his team through defensive fundamentals in the gym four days a week, Monday through Thursday.

McGuire says there is nothing exceptional about the drills—no scrimmages or team games—just routine drills on maneuvers in which the Tar Heels lacked finesse during the past season.

On the 20th of the month a Blue-White game will be staged.

★

Local sportswriters are mourning the death of intercollegiate boxing at Virginia, not without cause.

It seems that television boxing by the pros is not only forcing the small boxing clubs, where the sport gets the source of its participants, out of action, but also the collegiates. As one writer pointed out, students would rather see video matches than stroll to a gym and watch college boxing.

Virginia cut the sport because of the difficulty in securing a schedule, as other schools have also dropped boxing. Last season the Cavalier pugilists traveled about 5,000 miles to meet a schedule.

★

Down at the football office in Woollen, a slate of the games this fall is posted. Four games have stars next to their dates: Oklahoma, Maryland, Notre Dame and Duke. The athletic secretary, known to all as just plain "Doris," says these games are the "big" ones, and that's no exaggeration.

The first three will be played in Kenan Stadium. The Blue Devils will be fought at Duke.

Fans in these parts are going to see some football! The opener against the Sooners is posted for Sept. 24.

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
1853 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Barden, Morris Will Serve As Track Captains

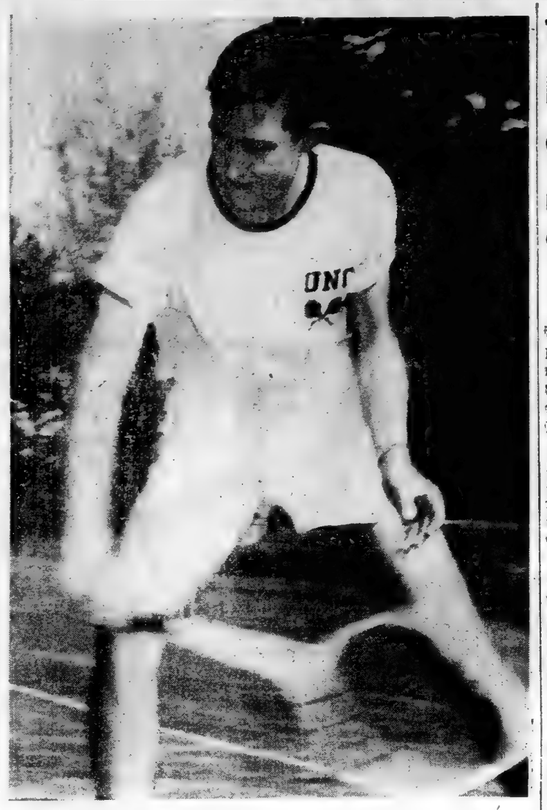
Senior Duo Together Since High School

By RAY LINKER

Two Tar Heel trackmen who have been performing together since their high school days will serve as co-captains of this year's fine UNC squad. They are distance runner Bobby Barden and weights-event man Roger Morris, both seniors who starred for Westside High in Newark, N. J., before coming to Carolina.

Both thinclads have had illustrious records while performing for the Tar Heels, and the coaches expect this season to be the best for both men.

Roger is good for from eight to 10 points in about any meet on the Tar Heel schedule. He holds the University record in the shot put with a throw of 51 feet, and was runner-up to Duke's Durham Lawshe in the Atlantic Coast Conference meet last spring.



MORRIS CAPTURED the conference discus crown with the best throw of his career last year, a heave of 150 feet, 1¼ inches. With the coaches counting on him to improve, he is almost assured of another conference win, and will certainly score highly in the dual meets, also.

In the Indoor Games, Morris has been runner-up in the shot for the last two years.

He has already started the season with two fine showings in the Florida Relays, placing second in both of his events. At 49'9½" he was just one-half inch behind the shot put winner, Carl Vereen of Georgia Tech.

BARDEN HAS BEEN one of the top distance runners for the Tar Heels since he arrived on the Hill. As a freshman he was a No. 1 man on the cross country team. That was during the time when UNC was in the old Southern Conference and freshmen were eligible for varsity competition.

Five days after school opened in the fall of Barden's sophomore year, an epidemic of polio hit some of the athletes of the campus, and Barden was among those affected. Four months later in a tremendous comeback, the bold lad finished second in the Indoor Games two-mile.

HERB BROWNE, captain of the Tar Heel tennis team, will lead his charges against the Dartmouth Indians this afternoon at the varsity courts. Carolina will be seeking its second win of the season, having defeated Michigan State Tuesday, 9-0. The match is slated for 3 o'clock. Carolina will also face Dartmouth in golf at the Finley course at 2 o'clock. L

Frosh Golfers Trim High Point, 27-0, For First Win Of Season

Carolina's freshman golf team opened the season yesterday by whitewashing the High Point Junior College varsity, 27-0, in a match at Finley course here.

The Tar Heel's Gene Lookabill, playing in the No. 2 position, was medalist with a 73.

The summary:

Don MacMillan, UNC, defeated Jack Powell, High Point, 3-0. Lookabill, UNC, defeated Paul Stanton, HP, 3-0. MacMillan and Lookabill defeated Powell and Stanton, 3-0.

Bill Marsh, UNC, defeated Don Murray, HP, 3-0. Bob McCartney, UNC, defeated Raymond Herndon, HP, 3-0. Marsh and McCartney, defeated Murray and Herndon, 3-0.

Walter Summerville, UNC, defeated Jim Uttley, HP, 3-0. Bob Ruffin, UNC, defeated Frank Rutledge, 3-0. Summerville and Ruffin defeated Uttley and Rutledge, 3-0.

Tar Heel Frosh Defeat Cranbrook

Prep School Hurlers Give UNC 15-4 Victory

By DON GRAY

North Carolina's freshman baseball team, with the aid of 19 free passes to first base, yesterday romped over Cranbrook Prep School of Detroit, Mich., 15-4, in their home opener at Emerson Field.

Righthander George Currin was given credit for the Tar Heel win, although he was relieved in the fifth by Everette McIver. Together the pair limited the visitors to three hits and nine walks.

Carolina, meanwhile, was tearing into two Cranbrook men for seven hits. Joe Temple, who gained a name for himself last fall as a frosh football halfback, slammed a double and a triple in four trips to lead the Carolina attack. First Baseman Tom Cooper aided with a pair of singles.

THE BIG INNING for the Tar Babies was the first when they quickly jumped out front, 9-3, with a nine-run splurge following a three-run Cranbrook frame. Carolina picked up two more tallies in the fourth and three in the fifth. Cranbrook got their final tally in the sixth.

The Tar Babies battled the N. C. State freshmen to a 7-7 deadlock in an extremely cold and wind-swept game at Raleigh Tuesday. The score see-sawed throughout the entire game and after State knotted the count in the bottom of the ninth, play was discontinued because of darkness. Carson Oldha wmas the big man in the Carolina attack, collecting a double and two singles in three trips. He went hitless yesterday.

Lacrosse Opens Here April 6 Vs. Williams

By AL KORSCHUN

The 1955 edition of the UNC varsity lacrosse team will officially open its spring season when it plays Williams College from Williamston, Mass. in the home opener April 6 on Navy field.

The Tar Heels got their first taste of game action when they scrimmaged Duke's powerful squad last Friday in an informal practice session. Although the Blue Devils won, 8-3, coach Art Greenbaum was quite pleased with the early season play of his "stickmen." The Tar Heels, apparently unsure of themselves at first, spotted the Blue Devils a 4-0 lead in the first five minutes, but settled down and played them on practically even terms for the remainder of the game.

FROM THE results of the first two weeks of practice, Greenbaum's first string team will probably consist of Hal Taylor, Jack Spooner, and either Wilbur Jones or Jim Morrison at the attack positions; Co-Captain Toby Haynesworth, Joe Converse, and Mike Weinman in the first midfield. Weinman was recently shifted from attack to midfield and his experience and stickhandling should add depth to what promises to be a strong midfield. Also expected to break into the starting lineup is letterman Dick Baker who will return to the squad after swimming season is over.

Leading the defensemen is Co-Captain Steve Trimble who has nailed down a starting berth and Ned Whitmore, Al Bryant, Ronnie Current, and Vic Blair all of whom are battling for the other two first string positions. Letterman Thorne Walker seems to have the goalie slot sewed up but he will get help from Steve Phelps.

THE TEAM is experienced and should they continue to show up as well as they have in the last two weeks, they should be the best since the 1949 team which was the first lacrosse team fielded after the sport was revived here at Carolina in that same year.

For his individual performance, Coach Greenbaum singled out Converse who has tremendously improved since the initial practice. Converse has improved his stickhandling and has developed three new shots that will make him a definite scoring threat. Should he develop his potentialities to go along with his fine attitude, Converse will be the man to watch in the future for All-Conference and possibly All-American honors. Also looking good are newcomers Bill Beebe and Walt Sturdivant, both of whom have shown a lot of improvement in recent practices.

In addition to his plans to schedule 15 games, Greenbaum hopes to include in this schedule a seven-day trip and play six of the 15 games on this trip.

Heemann And Rose Recipients Of Jamerson Swimming Honors

Walter Rose and Warren Heemann were named recipients of the annual Richard E. Jamerson Outstanding Swimmer Awards at the swimming banquet held Monday night.

Each year Jamerson gives a trophy to the most outstanding freshman and senior on the team Basis for the award is attitude, ability, scholastics, and competitiveness.

Rose, winner of the frosh award, comes from South Miami, Florida. He is a freestyler and a breaststroker. In his first meet last fall, he set two new freestyle records.

Heemann, senior award winner, comes from Baltimore Maryland. He was co-captain of this year's team. He has swum freestyle, breaststroke during his four years.

Also named at the banquet were permanent co-captains of this year's freshman team. During the season, individual meet captains were chosen. The winners were Walt Rose and Bill Roth.

Town and Campus goes to bat for you with their new line of COTTON CORD suits by Gordon of Philadelphia

Sure-to-SCORE!

These handsome cotton cord suits are made of wrinkle resistant, self-recovering fabric designed to give you the COOLEST of suits without wrinkling and wilting. Washable.

In tone or tone shades of: Blue, Grey, Tan, Oxford, Brown, Navy

DOUBLE PLAY!

Jackets, slacks and shorts are also sold separately, giving you a number of combination possibilities.

it's a Steal!

These fine suits are a real bargain at a low low price.

NOW at

Town & Campus

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE

The first thought that comes into our minds upon entering college is, of course, marriage. But how many of us go about seeking mates, as I like to call them, in a truly scientific manner? Not many, you may be sure. Most of us simply marry the first person who comes along. This can lead to unpleasant consequences, especially if the person we marry is already married.

Let us today make a scientific survey of the three principle causes of marriage—homogamy, personality need, and propinquity. We will examine these one at a time.

Homogamy means the attraction of like for like. In marriage it is rarely opposites which attract: the great majority of people choose mates who resemble themselves in taste, personality, outlook, and, perhaps most important of all, cultural level.

Take, for example, the case of two students of a few years ago named Anselm Glottis and Florence Catapult. Anselm fell madly in love with Florence, but she rejected him because she was majoring in the Don Juanian Poets and he was in the lowly school of forestry. After graduation Anselm got a job as a forest ranger. Still determined to win Florence, he read every single Don Juanian Poet cover to cover while sitting in his lookout tower.

His plan, alas, miscarried. Florence, sent on a world cruise as a graduation present, picked up the betel nut habit in the Indies. Today, a derelict, she keeps body and soul together by working as a sampan off Mozambique. And Anselm, engrossed in the Don Juanian Poets, failed to notice a forest fire which destroyed 29,000,000 acres of second growth blue spruce. Today, a derelict, he teaches Herrick and Lovelace at the Connecticut School of Mines.

The second reason why people marry, personality need, means that you often choose a mate because he or she possesses certain qualities that complete and fulfill your own personality. Take, for instance, the case of Alanson Duck. As a freshman, Alanson made a fine scholastic record, played varsity lacrosse, and was very popular with his fellow students. Yet Alanson was not happy. There was something lacking in his life, something vague and indefinable that was needed to make his personality complete.

Then one day Alanson discovered what it was. As he was walking out of his class in Flemish pottery, a fetching coed named Grace Ek offered him a handsome brown package and said, "Philip Morris?"

"Yes!" he cried, for all at once he knew what he had been needing to round out his personality—the gentle fulfillment of Philip Morris Cigarettes, the soul-repairing mildness of their vintage tobaccos, the balm of their unparalleled taste, the ease and convenience of their bonny brown Snap-Open pack. "Yes, I will take a Philip Morris!" cried Alanson. "And I will also take you to wife if you will have me!"

"La!" she exclaimed, throwing her apron over her face, but after a while she removed it and they were married. Today they live in Prince Rupert, British Columbia, where Alanson is with an otter glazing firm and Grace is a bookie.

Propinquity, the third cause of marriage, means closeness. Put a boy and a girl in a confined space for a long period and they will almost surely get married. A perfect example is the case of Fafnir Sigafoos. While a freshman at Louisiana State, he was required to crawl through the Big Inch pipeline as part of his fraternity initiation. He entered the pipe at Baton Rouge. As he passed Lafayette, Ind., he was agreeably surprised to be joined by a comely girl named Mary Alice Isinglass, a Purdue freshman, who had to crawl through the Big Inch as part of her sorority initiation. When they emerged from the pipeline at Burlington, Vermont, they were engaged, and, after a good hot bath, they were married. Today they live in Klamath Falls, Ore., where Fafnir is in the weights and measures department and Mary Alice is in the roofing game. They have three children, all named Norman.

©Max Shulman, 1955

For your enjoyment the makers of Philip Morris have prepared a handsome, illustrated booklet called MAX SHULMAN REVISITED, containing a selection of the best of these columns. Get your copy, absolutely free, with the purchase of a couple packs of Philip Morris at your favorite tobacco counter. Hurry! The supply is limited.

Contributed as a public service by

DAILY TAR HEEL

UNC'S ANN MAY IS IN COURT:

Eighth Azalea Festival Slated This Weekend

MISS SARA SHANE
. . . Queen Azalea VIII

Sara Shane, lovely Hollywood actress seen in Universal-International's "Magnificent Obsession" and countless television productions, has been selected Azalea Queen for the Eighth Annual Wilmington Azalea Festival.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., and now a resident of fashionable Beverly Hills, Miss Shane is 5'6", has blue-green eyes and honey blonde hair.

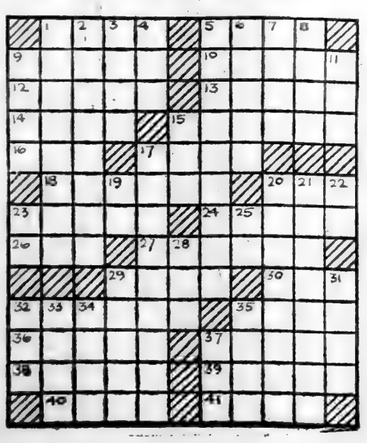
Tentative plans have Queen Sara arriving at Wilmington's airport this afternoon after an overnight stay in Washington, en route from Hollywood. She will remain in Wilmington for all the elaborate Festival activities, and will end her reign late Sunday.

Miss Shane had a career as a fashion model in New York before moving to Hollywood. It was through chain store heir Huntington Hartford that she met her husband William Hollingsworth.

Photographs of Sara Shane have appeared on the covers of many motion picture and television publications, and she is currently shown modeling Bermuda shorts in a full page color picture in the March 21 issue of Sports Illustrated Magazine.

Though some girls might think that life had nothing else to offer after experiencing Sara's thrill of being cast in a role opposite Rock Hudson in "Magnificent Obsession," Sara looks forward with unbounded enthusiasm to her first visit to North Carolina and to playing her role as Azalea Queen.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
is smooth and easy-drawing. It gives you everything you've been looking for in a filter cigarette—all the full, rich taste of fine tobacco and real filtration, too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. A wrinkle or fold (anat.)
5. Fail to hit
9. Per. to punishment
10. Notions
12. Nimble
13. A besieging
14. Parasitic insects
15. Tends, as a furnace
16. Frosty
17. Classify
18. Hanging pendant of ice
20. Book of the Old Testament
23. One who doesn't work
24. Conscious
26. River (Eng.)
27. To be present
29. Biblical name
30. Writing fluid
32. Thickset
35. Diminutive of "Stanley"
36. Of hours
37. Make amends for
38. Harangue
39. Legendary enchantress
40. Malt beverages
41. Scottish Gaelic

DOWN
1. The killing of a king
2. A wheeled vehicle
3. Strong wind
4. Malt beverage
5. Abuses
6. Simpleton
7. Search
8. Aromatic spice
9. Language of the Buddhist scriptures
11. Southeast by south (abbr.)
15. Coin (Peru)
17. Mixes together confusedly
19. That is (abbr.)
20. Caretakers of buildings
21. Cannon or artillery
22. Exist
23. Fish
25. Plural pronoun
28. Plaything
29. Subside
31. Leg joint
32. Sure (dial.)
33. The five books of Moses
34. River (Russ.)
35. Mix
37. One-spot card

J	E	R	U	A	■	F	L	I	T	E
S	P	O	S	E	■	R	A	R	E	D
F	I	R	E	S	■	A	X	M	A	N
T	A	N	■	O	N	■	A	L	E	■
■	■	■	I	T	H	A	C	A	■	■
L	A	B	O	U	R	■	C	A	T	S
I	S	L	A	M	■	A	G	R	E	E
D	E	E	D	■	F	L	U	I	D	S
■	■	■	S	M	I	L	E	S	■	■
P	O	H	■	O	G	■	T	A	M	■
E	P	E	E	S	■	W	E	A	V	E
W	A	R	N	S	■	I	N	T	E	R
S	H	A	D	Y	■	G	E	E	S	E

Yesterday's Answer

Covering The Campus

In observance of Palm Sunday the full choir of the Chapel Hill Presbyterian Church will sing at the services to be held at 9:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at both services.

The choir's program will include Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates, Hosanna To the Son of David and Ah Thou Poor World.

★

The Film Critics will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Woodhouse Room of GM. The recent academy awards for this year will be discussed, and Chapel Hill monthly awards will be selected.

At its last meeting the Film Critics had Andy Gutierrez, manager of the Varsity Theater, as their speaker. He explained the operations of the chain of small independent theaters of which the Varsity is a member. He said his biggest problem arises from inavailability of good films. He said the Varsity's policy is to concentrate on films with good plots and fine acting rather than on musicals, extravaganzas and movies with trick photographic methods.

★

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions for the University, will speak on "The Impending Tidal Wave of Students" at the Faculty Club luncheon to be held at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Carolina Inn.

★

The 1955 Freshman Camp Planning Committee will meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Y building.

Several committees, including those on speakers, worship, publicity, recreation and leadership, will be formed tonight to begin actual planning of the camp.

—Women's—

(Continued from Page 1)

Women's Honor Council, five Junior seats: Peggy Ballard, Cary Caperton, Connie McMahon, Dutchie Milligan, and Joan Purser.

Seat-At-Large: Mary A. Keeter.

Student Council: Sally Cowles, Jane Howie, Jane Edwards.

Seats-At-Large: Jim Allen, Bob Kimzey, Jim Raugh.

—Race—

(Continued from Page 1)

dent body and the University as a whole."

In his statement, Muntzing directed a request to the two remaining presidential candidates. "While representing the entire student body," he said, "I hope that they will not forget the promises made during the campaign, and especially those promises made each year, and usually forgotten, to the dormitory residents."

He concluded, "The campaign has been a very tremendous experience for me, and I appreciate the opportunity I had to run."

EASTER LILY PARADE

The Easter Lilly Parade will be held in downtown Chapel Hill and Glen Lennox this Saturday as a part of the current fund drive for the N. C. Society For Crippled Children And Adults. Drive Chairman Bernice Ward announced that Y-Teen girls will be selling the symbolic lilies in the shopping districts of Chapel Hill and Glen Lennox. Richmond Sloan is in charge of this phase of the campaign.

M'grammers Slate Practice

Members of the Monogram Club will meet tonight at 7 o'clock for a Valkyrie Sing practice.

Publicity Chairman Scotty Hester said yesterday the meeting will not concern business. "All members who are interested in participating in barbershop singing should come to the meeting," he said. The meeting, said Hester, will last about one hour. Members will meet in the Club Room.

Remember . . .
Easter Gift Selections
GIFT WRAPPED AND MAILED FOR YOU.
merrimac shop
Antique and Modern Gifts — Jewelry
(Next to Berman's)

The Most Colossal Scoop Of The Season
Think of it—you can now get a pair of sanforized baby cord slacks, in a perfect ivy league narrow, ready cuffed, in either blue, gray or tan for the low, low price of $4.95
We are still continuing our below cost sale on 265 pairs of slacks—all in pleated model, including Irish linens—
All that formerly sold to $10, now
$3.99
All that were over $10.00 now
$5.99
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

TOY CHICKS for EASTER
• •
Fluffy baby chicks to symbolize Easter.
See them at
DANZIGER'S

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

NOTICE!
Served Every Thursday
SPECIAL
Fried Chicken or Country Fried Steak
2 Vegetables, Coffee or Tea
Free Seconds
55c
MICHAELS GRILL

CLASSIFIEDS

FOR RENT: Single room for man, in modern home on University Drive. Comfortable and ideal for study. Telephone 9-2366.

Satan's Saints Coming On OK, Says Director

"It's coming along fine—everything is wonderful," said Director Bo Bernardin yesterday about the rehearsals for Satan's Saints, the Sound and Fury production, scheduled for April 28 and 29.

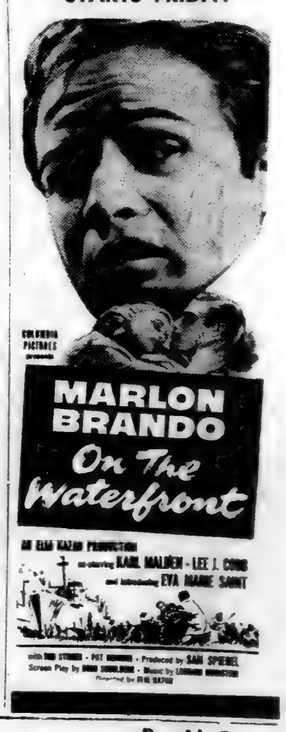
The musical comedy, student written, acted and produced, is about four girls from Saint Satan's, a girls'-school of dramatic art, and four boys from Carlton College, according to Miss Bernardin. The comedy takes place in the 20's.

Students taking the leads in the production are Tom Gill, Tom Davis, Ulyssee Lancaster, Dave Reed, Patti Andrews, John Steed, Jane Edwards, Sue Fryer, John De Vogt, Frances Bennett, Bill Hayes, Ken Lowry, Miss Bernardin, Garry Nichols, Gerri Turner, Bob Hicks, Ellen Ozon, Johnnie McLarin and Jim Sims.

Fiction Award Contest Ends On Friday

The fifth annual fiction award contest, sponsored by the Carolina Quarterly, closes tomorrow, announced Jim Dunn, editor, yesterday.

Titles of stories entered and their authors are "Naked Innocence," by J. D. McRorie, "One Sunday Morning," by Brownie Goode, "Tsali, Cherokee," by Larry McElroy, "Region of Innocence," by Ralph Dennis, "Winter of their Youth," by Marietta Everett, "The Breaking Point," by William Withers.



"The Wildest Time," by Ted Prevatte, "The Enchantress," by Elliott Hill, "Toy," by David Garmise, "The Red Parasol," by Jean Chandler Andrews, "Lonesome," by Jean Chandler Andrews, "The Summer Sun," by Robert Byerly and "Life Upon," by Barbara Willard.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

Carolina
NOW PLAYING
Inspiring
ENTERTAINING
A RICH EXPERIENCE!
Day of Triumph
The Greatest Story of All Time!
LEE J. COBB · ROBERT WILSON · JAMES GRIFFITH
and JOANNE DRU as Mary Magdalene
GLORIOUS COLOR
WIDE SCREEN

As Spontaneous as a Robin's Song
There's nothing stuffy about our Easter cards. Touched with the magic of Spring morings, they're fresh and delightful. Even if you never send cards, your heart will be refreshed if you stop in and just look at these beauties.
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

THE NO. 3 MONEY MAKING PICTURE IN ENGLAND FOR 1954
THE BELLES OF ST. TRINIANS
Starring
Alastair Sim
Last Times Today
Varsity
STARTS FRIDAY

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer today with an expected high of 72.

The Daily Tar Heel

CAPTAIN
The captain at GM's helm is still needed, says the editor. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 130 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

$434,800 BID SLASHED:

Lawmakers Recommend Cutting WUNC-TV Budget In Half

Motion Approved 9-8 After Debate

RALEIGH, March 31 (AP) — The Joint Appropriations subcommittee today cut by 50 percent the appropriation of the University of North Carolina's Educational TV station.

Educational Television touched off a lively debate in the subcommittee. Everyone present seemed to feel that some reduction should be made in the TV budget, and the argument revolved around the amount to slice.

As recommended by the Advisory Budget commission, the state Educational Radio and Television Commission would get $4,700 for the biennium. This amount was not touched by the subcommittee.

The Budget Commision had approved the requests of the Television Commission for $434,800 for the biennium to operate the three-studio TV operation at the three branches of the University in Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro. This is the figure that was chopped in two by the legislators, who recommended that it be replaced by increased receipts.

The motion to cut the TV budget in half was approved by a 9-8 vote after a lengthy argument which ranged from the value of television farm programs to the effectiveness of recently televised sessions of the General Assembly itself.

One or two legislators, who cannot be named under subcommittee rules, seemed to feel that the television appropriation should be stripped out of the budget completely. Others pushed for a one-third reduction, rather than the one-half proposal.

A major point in the argument for the lesser cut was that the industries and individuals in the state who contributed the money to establish the TV station would interpret a sharp budget cut as a slap in the face.

Student Budget Committee Favors Bill Raising Block Fees $5 Per Student; If Passed, Referendum Must Be Held

Legislature Will Receive Proposal

By NEIL BASS

The student Budget Committe, a presidentially-appointed body, yesterday voted to recommend to the student body that student fees be raised by $5.

The committee's recommendation will go to the student for approval. If the Legislature gives the proposal the go sign, then the student body will vote in a referendum to decide the final fate of the raise.

Of the proposed increase, amounting to $5 per student per year, $3 would go to Graham Memorial and $2 to student government.

ONE OPPOSES

According to Bill Formyduvall, one of the seven committee members present at the closed session, the committee felt student government and its agencies could not continue to operate without serious loss of efficiency unless a fee raise was instituted. Formyduvall was the sole committee member voting against the proposal.

John Zollicoffer, another of the committe members present at the meeting, said consensus of the group was that the present fee figure $6 per person per year (as compared to $20 per person per year at N. C. State) was just not enough to keep student government and the student union operating at their present levels.

According to Don Fowler, chairman of the committee, who was unable to attend the session because he "was in class," the meeting was called, not by Fowler, who has official authority as chairman to do so, but by Norwood Bryan, a member of the committee. Fowler is Independent candidate for President.

FOWLER OPPOSES

Fowler's official statement was:

"I am opposed to any fee raise at this time. I was unable to attend this meeting because I was in class. I do not feel that this is the time for a referendum on a student fee raise. This decision (the fee raise) is up to the student body and I will abide by their decision; however, since the state Legislature is still in session and is currently discussing a tuition raise, this would be an indication to them that the students favor a fee raise." With this positive stand the state Legislature might feel more inclined to increase our tuition and dorm rent."

According to Fowler, the meeting was called by Bryan with Fowler's consent, but he knew nothing of the action that the committee took.

McCURRY WANTS REFERENDUM

When Ed McCurry, the other student body presidential candidate, was notified of the committee's recommendation, he said he thought there should be a "referendum" before anything is done about a fee raise.

The student Constitution states that a referendum is necessary if the fees are raised higher than $20 per student per year.

The overall fee at this time is $18; therefore, a constitutional amendment will be required before fees can be raised.

So the eventual fate of the recommended raise, if it passes the Student Legislature, will lie in the hands of the students in a referendum.

Legislature Approved Last Raise

The last fee raise for students was passed by the student Legislature in February of 1954.

The Legislature passed the block fee raise of $3 unanimously. There was, however, opposition to last year's action. Two students, Raymond M. Taylor and Malcolm Cox, said they were plain country boys "from the eastern part of the state" and felt the bill should be defeated, or at the extreme, put before the student body in a referendum.

Last year's action by the student Legislature raised the student fees from $15 to $18 per year.

ZBT, ADpi At Top In Academics

Ray Jefferies, assistant to the Dean of Student Affairs, released yesterday the scholastic averages and relative rank for sororities and fraternities for the fall semester of 1954.

Sororities ranked as follows: Alpha Delta Pi, Delta Delta Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Chi Omega, Alpha Gamma and Kappa Delta.

Zeta Beta Tau led fraternities in scholastic averages. ZBT was followed by Beta Theta Pi. Delta Upsilon, Delta Psi, Sigma Nu, Pi Lambda Phi, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Phi Delta Theta, Tau Epsilon Phi, Zeta Psi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Chi Phi, Chi Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, Phi Kappa Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, Lambda Chi Alpha, Pi Kappa Phi, Phi Gamma Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Theta Chi.

Averages are computed on the basis of rosters of membership as submitted by the sororities and fraternities. Active members and pledges were included.

Y To Talk On Bills Now In U. S. Limelight

The YMCA Social Responsibility Commission will sponsor an Effective Citizenship Forum this afternoon dealing with current, significant legislation now in Congress, according to John Reibel, secretary of the Y.

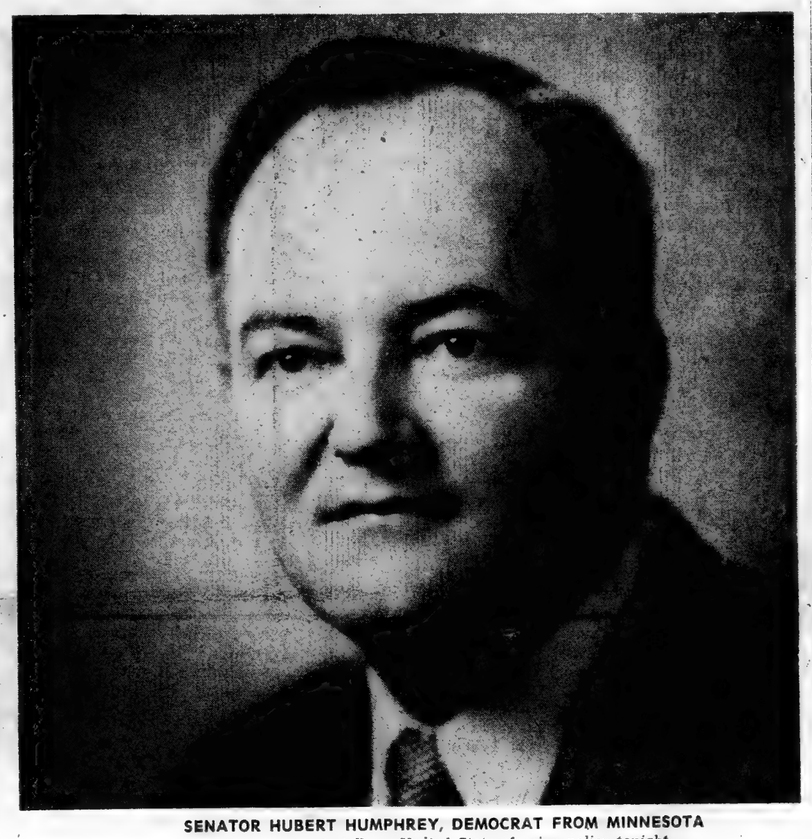
Three bills will be discussed at 4:30 in the Library assembly room.

One of the bills is the Military Training bill, which is to go into effect when the 1951 law expires. This new bill is aimed at bringing in permanent peace-time conscription. Ray Hartsough, AFSC consultant on UMT, will lead this portion of the forum, said Reibel.

The Trade Agreements Act bill, which is designed to renew the Trade Agreements Act for three years, will also be studied at today's forum.

This bill was recently passed by the House of Representatives and hearings are now being held in the Senate Finance Committee. Indications are that the bill is being amended in favor of a number of special interest groups which are putting pressure on some of the senators, said Riebel.

The third bill is one concerning the United Nations' technical assistance program. The original bill



(See Y TALKS, page 4)

Auditions Set Saturday For Barter Playhouse

Aileen Ewart, a former student and graduate of UNC, will conduct auditions for the Barter Theatre of Virginia at the Playmakers Theatre Saturday.

Apprentices should contact Miss Ewart at the Carolina Inn, or Harry Davis, a director of the Playmakers.

The Barter Theatre of Virginia will open its current season on Monday, June 13.

SENATOR HUBERT HUMPHREY, DEMOCRAT FROM MINNESOTA
... to talk on United States foreign policy tonight

Humphrey's Schedule

Here is Senator Humphrey's schedule on the campus.

Director of Student Activities Roy Holsten and Carolina Forum members Joel Fleishman, Jim Turner, and Tom Lambeth will meet the Senator at Raleigh-Durham Airport. The Senator's airplane, from Washington, is scheduled to arrive at 5:43 p.m.

From the airport the party will go to the Carolina Inn, where Senator Humphrey will "freshen up," according to the Forum.

Banquet will be held with student leaders in the Inn's television room at 6:30.

Senator Humphrey will deliver his speech in Hill Hall at 8 p.m.

A public reception in Graham Memorial will follow the speech.

Senator Humphrey is scheduled to leave Chapel Hill for Washington at 10:45 p.m.

Democrat Humphrey To Talk At 8 In Hill Hall

Democratic Senator Hubert Humphrey will speak here tonight on United States foreign policy.

Senator Humphrey will speak at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall. The Carolina Forum, student organization, will sponsor his talk.

Senator Humphrey has been a member of Congress since 1948. He is presently serving on several committees and is a member of the Democratic Steering Committee in the Senate.

He is a supporter of the Marshall Plan, Point Four program, Reciprocal Trade policy, Mutual Security and NATO.

Humphrey, elected from Minnesota, is a leading spokesman for Midwest agriculture. He has been a businessman, government administrator, political science professor and municipal executive.

Candidates Fowler & McCurry For Limited Govermental Secrecy

Both candidates for student body president have come out in different ways for limited secrecy in student government.

Don Fowler, independent candidate, said, "Students should always be informed of the happenings of student government." He said all group meetings from Legislature to Interfraternity Council should be open.

The Daily Tar Heel has been barred from IFC meetings since early last semester.

The Interfraternity Council, according to the student Constitution, is a part of student government.

However, Fowler said, in case of executive sessions of a group, "the proceedings should be made public." This means, Fowler said, the press and/or public should not be allowed in the executive meetings unless the group is willing.

Ed McCurry, University Party candidate, attacked the problem from a different angle. He divided all student groups into two divisions: those which use compulsory student fee money, and those "of a private nature with members from and representing only a part of the campus.

"I feel," he said, "any organization which receives or spends money from compulsory student fees (with the exception of the

(See CANDIDATES, page 4)

News Bureau's Madry Back In N.C. Hospital

An attache of the North Carolina Memorial Hospital said that Robert W. (Bob) Madry, head of the UNC News Bureau, had a "fair day" yesterday.

Madry entered the hospital on March 22 after falling down the steps of his home. He had been in the hospital earlier during the year suffering from hypertension and kidney trouble.

Educational TV Chairman Has Statement

Gordon Gray, president of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, and William D. Carmichael Jr., vice-president, had no statement to make yesterday on the recommendation of the Joint Appropriations subcommittee to cut the Advisory Budget Commission's recommended budget for WUNC-TV 50 percent.

"I am disappointed at the cut in the appropriations recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission and by both Governor Umstead and Governor Hodges," said Irving Carlyle, chairman of the North Carolina Educational Radio and Television Commission, yesterday. "I am still grateful that the Joint Appropriations Committee has seen fit to include educational television in their recommendations," he said.

Carlyle said, "We have seen enough of WUNC-TV to know of its great potentials for the good of the state, and I hope that this means that educational television in the state will go forward." He added, "The way it has been conducted up to this point is a great credit to the state of North Carolina and the faculty men and students of the Greater University who have furnished most of its programs."

Robert F. Schenkkan, director of TV for the Consolidated University, concerning the cut recommendation said, "I had hoped we would get the whole package," adding, "We will just have to what we can with what we get."

He said, "It does indicate that they think enough of (WUNC-TV) to give it some money . . ."

DTH Sets Sunday Editions

The Daily Tar Heel will come closer to being a daily newspaper Sunday.

On that day, the newspaper will resume six-day-a-week publication. The Daily Tar Heel will be published every Tuesday through Sunday.

"We seem to have weathered the financial storm caused by insufficient appropriations from the student Legislature," said Editor Charles Kuralt yesterday. "Advertising income has been sufficient to enable us to resume publication Tuesday through Sunday; we are pleased to be able to return to a six-day week."

Editor Kuralt said "we hope the Legislature's appropriations this month will be enough to insure a regular six-day Daily Tar Heel publication next year."

Managing Editor Fred Powledge listed three new policies in regards to the Sunday paper.

Presidential campaign statements for the Tuesday runoffs, he said, must be in by 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Sunday will be the last statements will be run.

Powledge said deadline for any material to appear in Sunday issues must be in The Daily Tar Heel office by 3 p.m. of the preceding Saturday. Deadline for all other days is 3:30 p.m.

The News of the Week in Review in Pictures, he said, will be run Sundays. The feature, which Powledge said was "being received well," formerly ran on Saturdays.

Kraar, Yoder Polled Near 1,743 Votes

Incomplete totals show that Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder, newly elected editors of The Daily Tar Heel, polled something like 1,743 votes during this week's election.

The co-editors ran without opposition.

The figure would be a complete total if the Elections Board had registered the ballots cast for Krarr and Yoder in Scuttlebutt voting district.

However, according to Claude Pope of the board, the members were pushed for time and since there was "no question" about the two's being elected, the Scuttlebutt tabulation was not recorded.

The vote by districts for the joint-editors was:

Dorm-men's I, 169; dorm men's II, 179; dorm men's III, 153; dorm men's IV, 216; dorm men's V, 192, dorm women's 420; Gerrard Hall, 185; big and little fraternity courts, 82; Victory Village, 43; Lenoir Hall, 97 and Infirmary, 7.

Absentee Ballots

Miss Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Elections Board, announced yesterday that anyone who wishes to vote in the runoff election on an absentee ballot may see her and obtain a ballot.

She said that in reference to the fact that some students will be leaving before Tuesday for practice teaching.

FOR LAST TUESDAY'S ELECTION:

Expense Accounts Turned In; Fowler Used 'Handmade Kite'

By JACKIE GOODMAN

Total expenses of the three presidential candidates during their campaigns were $24.47 for Don Fowler, $23.12 for Manning Muntzing and $22.58 for Ed McCurry.

These figures were obtained from accounts which candidates handed in to the Elections Board.

The total amount allowed to a presidential candidate is $30.

Fowler, an independent candidate, listed 150 cards, 500 sheets of "Push for Fowler," 12 handmade posters and one handmade kite as his main publicity items. He also had glue, 5 jars of tempra paint, staples, thumbtacks, wrapping paper, flour paste, string and one piece of lumber in his itemized account.

Manning Muntzing, the Student Party presidential candidate in Tuesday's election, listed 105 posters, materials used to paint signs and a contribution to candidates' pool as his expenses.

The account of Ed McCurry, University Party presidential candidate, listed paper and labor for football programs, 1,000 Multilith sheets giving his record, paint for banners, 100 cardboard posters, 100 paper posters, colored marking pencils and hardware tacks as his expense items.

The accounts of the two vice-presidential candidates, Jack Stevens and Bob Harrington, totaled $8.65 and $24.60 respectively. Vice-presidential candidates are allowed expenses of $25.

Miss Joan Palmer listed $19.72 of expenses, and Miss Jane Cocke listed $14.19. Both were candidates for the position of secretary of the student body and were allowed $20.

Joe Correll and Jim Martin, candidates for student body treasurer listed $5.82 and $13.10 total expenses. They are also allowed $20.

The candidates for head cheerleader, T. C. Homesley, Collie Collison and Pepper Tice, listed $11.65, $17.25 and $13.73 total expenses. They are allowed $17.50.

Ragged Orphan's Guardian

Graham Memorial, we learn, stands in danger of losing the hand that has steered it through the past two years of trial and progress.

That steering hand belongs to Jimmy Wallace, who left his study of history to direct the expansion program which has brought the University's Ragged Orphan at least a few of the new frocks she cried for. Redecoration, repainting, countless new services, a catalized lecture and entertainment program (from Aldous Huxley to the Julliard String Quartet) have represented an accelerating GM program to the students.

Needless to say, much is left in limbo between plan and accomplishment. But the Graham Memorial Board of Directors—at the behest of Jimmy Wallace himself, who wants to proceed with his education—has set in motion a swap to give us a new horse in midstream.

That, we say, is not by any means the wisest policy that could be pursued at a time when student union facilities and services at the Chapel Hill branch lag far behind student demand and far behind the services at brother and sister schools.

It is plain to see that Mr. Wallace's fine labors of the last two years have not been rendered for the emolument offered a Director of Grafam Memorial. The salary as it stands is but pittance for a job so demanding.

But the Board of Directors has now okayed a plan to increase the Director's salary—at least to boost it to fair living wages—and plans with the new salary to bring in a "professional" hand for the wheel.

We wonder if it would not be far wiser to retain Mr. Wallace at the new wage, if he will stay. But that action, Graham Memorial in this important transition could retain the sparkplug who saw it through two years of mushroom growth. Graham Memorial, if Jimmy Wallace may be pursuaded to remain with it, coud have the service of a man who knows the students and their wants; a man, most of all, who knows what must be done for Graham Memorial if it is to expand and serve.

We offer, then, a Janus-faced plea: With one face we ask the GM Board of Directors to bring urgent pressure to bear to keep the logical captain at the helm. With the other, we ask Jimmy Wallace to defer his studies partially while the Ragged Orphan undergoes her metamorphosis into the Cinderella we want—to stay at an operation table where there is need for a steady hand.

Ike Didn't Know

At least part of the country's trouble, we have been saying, is that President Eisenhower doesn't read the newspapers. He gets his news "boiled down" by White House attaches. Saves time.

Well, Bernard Baruch says Eisenhower good-naturedly told him he had not heard about the frantic Washington efforts to get rid of the White House squirrels until it was all over.

Nor did he know about the Post Office's failure to deliver Pravda and Izvestia to American subscribers.

Nor did he know about the State Department's leak of the Yalta papers, though everybody else in the country knew right after it happened.

Think about it. No Pogo for Ike. No crossword puzzle. No news, except what somebody thinks he ought to see.

"I don't know what it is about, really," said he when told about the Pravda order.

And he really didn't.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.5(a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Chapel Hill Seat of the University of North Carolina which first opened its doors in January 1795

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager — TOM SHORES

Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS

News Editor — Jackie Goodman

NEWS STAFF — Neil Bass, Ruth Dalton, Ed Myers, Woody Sears, Peggy Ballard, Sue Quinn

EDITORIAL STAFF — Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase

SPORTS STAFF — Al Korschun, Bob Colbert, Chuck Strong, Marshall Waldman

BUSINESS STAFF — Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night Editor: J. EDWARD CRUTCHCREEK, XIV

Carolina Front

An Idle Dream Of Squirrels, Yells, Issues

Louis Kraar

ALTHOUGH MANNING Muntzing has stated that he is not going to support either Don Fowler or Ed McCurry for President, it is evident that the Student Party will not back popular Fowler.

It's not bitterness on the part of Muntzing men, but the SP seems to have little sympathy for a bolter of the party. Since the SP would have much better chances as a party with a completely University Party government, this reporter thinks they will back McCurry.

All of this party intrigue, however, will probably have little effect on how students vote. Since the issues are non-existent, the run-off election is still a popularity contest between candidates McCurry and Fowler.

★

REPUBLICAN DEMANDS that the Yalta agreements be revoked and the Washington muddle over war seem to have livened up a dull national political scene.

"If the Republicans of the Knowland faction continue their shrill demands for the repeal of the Yalta decisions," wrote Atlanta Constitution Editor Ralph McGill, "they may in time inspire the government of Georgia to demand a repeal of the decision at Appomattox Court House and a rescinding of U. S. Grant's order permitting 'Cump' Sherman to march from Atlanta to the sea."

Perhaps the exchange of views on national politics might be blood-plasmaed into the current campus campaign. Instead of the Yalta papers, maybe the candidates could grapple over the question of releasing the minutes of this year's secret InterFraternity Council meetings.

I can picture it now—Fowler screaming about repudiating the coed visiting agreement, McCurry talking about "twenty months of SP treason," and smiling Tom Creasy assuring the campus that all is well despite the absence of squirrels near his golfing green.

Dave Reid and Jim Turner could launch an investigation of Y court coffee prices, Lewis Brumfield could probe Reid and Turner, and Joel Fleishman could issue weekly reports on the progress of his memoirs being prepared for publication.

But all this is idle hoping, for why should such personable gentlemen as Ed McCurry and Don Fowler confuse the campus by injecting issues into such a pleasant popularity contest?

★

IN REPORTING what Bob Harrington's dorm newspaper said about him, a line was omitted, creating a wrong impression.

The bit—which appeared AFTER the election—said that Harrington got 109 Stacy votes when he ran for another office, although that many of Stacy's 105 residents didn't vote.

Omitted was the explanation that "they counted in some of Lenoir Hall votes with" Stacy's.

★

BOTH MOVIES that won Academy Awards will be playing here this weekend, proving that local theater managers guessed correctly.

The Varsity will show "On The Waterfront," the Marlon Brando flick that won a big prize, and the Carolina will open with Bing Crosby's "Country Girl" this weekend.

★

JIM DUNN, editor of the Carolina Quarterly, has a short story in the latest issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Dunn's story, "Caroldine's Men," is slick, humorous, ano enjoyable. However, one Southern character says, "Thank you, suh. Right kind of you. Too bad the gal ain't in. Got here from No'th Ca'lina jus' two days ago," and I've never heard anyone talk like that.

But, then again, I've never sold anything to the Post, either.

The Poets Of April

When Nature Busts Her Buttons

Hal Boyle In The Saturday Review

April is a time when nature busts her buttons, and the feelings of mankind become as exposed as the last oyster of the season on it pearly half shell.

April is the grab-bag month. It is a capsule of the entire year in thirty days. The calendar is on a teeter-totter between the death of winter and the life of summer, and the human spirit rides up and down with the changing weather.

In April come the days when the air wears a chill in the shade and a sudden softness in the sun. The woods explode in a surf of green, as each leaf unfolds like a child's hand reaching for fresh warmth.

April has everything—from All Fool's Day to Resurrection services, from the informal launching of the marble season to the annual formal debut of big league baseball.

It is harlequin in mood, harlequin in costume. Gout arrives in April, but you can still catch pneumonia or get a mild sunburn digging your car out of an overnight snowdrift. An ancient Lotos virus, known by the folkname of spring fever, infects both man and his oldest friend, the dog. (I don't know about cats, except they do seem to yowl with a new note in the night.) Children complain of growing pains, old people feel a hurt in the scars left by Aprils past.

The race of man is as mixed up and confusing in April as the weather itself. Ferment rules. You really can't tell what anybody will do. The plodding white-collar peasant dares a brighter necktie. Girls flower and shiver in bright new thin dresses, and plump in unexpected places. Bank telers abscond. Middle-aged men run off with blondes. Housewives assault their homes from basement to attic, and feel a strange urge to move every piece of furniture in the place. Bachelors snarl at old maids. Old maids snarl right back.

It is also a time when friends gone swim back into the memory. And so it is that in April I think often of Ernie Pyle, a friend in four wartime campaigns, who died in April. During the bombing of London he once wrote he could not stand it if he thought he should not live to see the beauty of another spring.

Everybody wants a fresh dream to follow. Take pity on any April fool. If he mstakes a phantom for a dream it is only because he clutches at joy while he can, realizing his desperate dilemma—April comes but once a year, and the supply of any man's Aprils is never endless.

Chaucer In Canterbury Tales

When April with his showers sweet with fruit the drought of March has pierced unto the root,

And bathed each vein with liquor that has power to generate therein and sire the flower;

When Zephyr also has, with his sweet breath, quickened again, in every holt and heath, the tender shoots and buds

And the young sun into the Ram
one-half his course has run,
And many little buds make melody that sleep through all the night with open eyes;

So Nature pricks them on to rant and rage; —then do folk long to go on pilgrimage and palmers to go seeking out strange strands,

To distant shrines well known in sundry lands.

Henry D. Thoreau In Walden

The change from storm and winter to serene and mild weather, from dark and sluggish hours to bright and elastic ones, is a memorable crisis which all things proclaim. It is seemingly instantaneous at last.

Suddenly an influx of light filled my house, though the evening was at hand, and the clouds of winter still overhung it. I looked out the window and lo! where yesterday was cold gray ice there lay the transparent pond already calm and full of hope as in a summer evening sky in its bosom, though none was visible overhead, as if it had intelligence with some remote horizon...

The pitch pines and shrub oaks about my house, which had so long drooped, suddenly resumed their several characters, looked brighter, greener and more erect and alive, as if effectually cleansed and restored by the April rain. I knew that it would not rain any more. You may tell by looking at any twig on the forest, ay, at your very wood-pile, whether its winter is past or not.

Thomas Wolfe In Look Homeward, Angel

The plum-tree, black and brittle, rocks stiffly in winter wind. Her million little twigs are frozen in spears of Ice. But in the Spring, lithe and heavy, she will bend under her great load of fruit and blossoms. She will grow young again. Red Plums will ripen, will be shaken desperately upon the tiny stems.

They wil fall bursted on the loamy wet earth; when wind blows in the orchard the air will be filled with dropping plums; the night will be filled with the sound of their dropping, and a great tre of birds will sing, burgeoning, blossoming richly, filling the air also with warm-throated plum-dropping bird-notes.

The harsh hill-earth has moistly thawed and softened, rich soaking rain falls, fresh-bladed tender grass like soft hair growing sparsely streaks the land.

My Brother Ben's face, thought Eugene, is like a piece of slightly yellow ivory; his high white head is knotted fiercely by his old man's scowl; his mouth is like a knife, his smile the flicker of light across a blade. His face is like a blade, and a knife, and a flicker of light: it is delicate and fierce, and scowls beautifully forever, and when he fastens his hard white finders and his scowling eyes upon a thing he wants to fix, he sniffs with sharp and private concentration through his long pointed nose. Thus women, looking, feel a well of tenderness for his pointed, bumpy, always scowling face: his hair shines like that of a young boy—it is crinkled and crisp as lettuce.

Into the April night-and-morning streets goes Ben. The night is brightly pricked with cool and tender stars. The orchard stirs leafily in the short fresh wind. Ben prowls softly out of the sleeping house. His thin bright face is dark within the orchard. There is a smell of nicotine and shoe leather under the young blossoms. His pigeon-toed shoes ring musically up the empty streets. Lazily slaps the water in the fountain on the square; all the firemen are asleep—but Big Bill Merrick, the brave cop, hog-jowled and red, leans swinishly over mince-pie and coffee in Uneeda Lunch. The warm good ink-smell beats in rich waves into the street: a whistling train howls off into the Springtime South.

T. S. Eliot In The Wasteland

April is the cruellest month, breeding
Lilacs out of the dead land, mixing
Memory and desire, stirring
Dull roots with spring rain.

Stephen Vincent Benet In City Spring

Now grimy April comes again,
Maketh bloom the fire-escapes,
Maketh silvers in the rain,
Maketh winter coats and capes
Suddenly all worn and shabby
Like the fur of winter bears.

William Shakespeare In Sonnet 98

From you I have been absent in the spring,
When proud-pied April, dress'd
in all his trim,
Hath put a spirit of youth in everything.

Robert Frost In Two Tramps In Mud Time

The sun was warm but the wind was chill.
You know how it is with an
April day:
When the sun is out and the wind
is still,
You're one month on in the middle of May.
But if you so much as dare to
speak,
A cloud comes over the sunlit
arch,
A wind comes off a frozen peak,
And you're two months back in the middle of March.

'Fireman, Save My Child'

'Stranger' Has Its Weaknesses

Ted Rosenthal

Joseph Rosenberg has tried to write a drama about Today and Loneliness. Like Williams', Capote's, and McCullers', his characters are people caught in a world they haven't made, which they don't pretend to be able to understand; their strongest need is to resolve the complexity of their environment, alien but everpresent, by finding security through interpersonal relationships.

NEED, BUT NO COMMUNICATION

There is the searching for understanding to enable them to focus life around themselves as individuals, and so to end the sense of hollowness and bewilderment. Yet, most often, the attempt to bring their a-human surroundings down to a human level does not succeed, and the desperate need which they share falls short of actually achieving communivation between them.

In Mr. Rosenberg's play, Saturday Stranger, as in much of modern drama, this need for closeness and the inability to satisfy it is highlighted by having characters find sexual intimacy without gaining from it the emotional rapport which is their basic lack. The people tend to throw themselves and their cravings into these relationships, rather than learning to share them. The idea is expressed that "there are givers and takers", but the point is the "givers" are unable to attain their desires, except by this indirect means of projecting the fulfillment onto other individuals—and since these have their own inadequacies, a vicious cycle of frustration results. The major premise of this genre, is that, because everyone is presumed to be inescapably alone, it is impossible to overcome the isolation.

MAXINE SHARED THE SOULS

The author of Saturday Stranger seems to feel very deeply into the plight of contemporary man; unfortunately the play fails to convey much of what he appears to be trying to express. Its essential weakness lies in the development of the fate of the protagonist Maxine, a divorcee who rents rooms of her apartment to "young girls in the arts". Her life barren, she tries in this way to share, through conversation with them, the souls and satisfactions of her tenants.

But as soon as the despair of her existence is built up to a telling degree, where her problems begin to come painfully alive for the spectator, humor is interjected, of a sort not intrinsically funny, but laughable because it jars against the mood being created. The effect of actions which have clashingly different natures, is to dilute the force of the protagonist's difficulties to a point which obscures the maning of the play. The conception of the characters is real enough, but some of the representations chosen act to enfeeble the themes, instead of strengthening them.

MONICA'S IN A DIFFERENT WORLD

For example, Monica, the girl who in becoming engaged to a boy she loves, seems to near happiness, does nothing to further the impact of the play. She exists evidently to provide a contrast with the dismal situation of the principals; the effect however, instead of contrast is incongruity. She appears to be of a different world from that which the playwright is primarily attempting to portray, and while this may be possible enough in "life", here is detracts; while disorder may be the reality in which these characters exist, a certain amount of dramatic-order, in this case sustained development of the isolation theme, is necessary to transmit the disorder effectively.

By attempting analytical revalation of the autagonist Linda, further complications are introduced. Because the framework of Maxine's unhappiness has not been made strong enough; the play is unable to bear the weight of this additional material. Besides becoming involved with Linda's personality dynamics when the scope of the play doesn't have the room for this exploration, she is made to aceuse Maxine of living on and for pity. If the isolation motif had ben adequately developed by then, the hypothesis of pity could have been followed up, instead of onl ytossed out; this might have provided a focus for conflict, which would have integrated the entire plot.

A SERIOUS LACK OF UNITY

As it stands now, although there are occasional moments of compelling poignancy, there is a serious lack of unity , which dissolves the stronger places of the play in a general indecisive murkiness.

Marty Dow's characterization of Maxine gave the performance the majority of the cohesion it did muster: her interpretation, sensitive and consistent, virtually held the production together.

Len Bullock, playing George, seemed unsure of himself several times; those lapses aside, he acted capably. Jean Overbeck, Bonnie, appeared stiff at first, but gained some vitality as her speeches progressed.

The remainder of the cast, as directed by James Riley, did not succeed very well. June Eschweiller, as Linda, seemed to bear down too hard; she was more agitated than the role demanded most of the time, so that where stress was called for, the result was a repetitious level of continuous tension. Harvey Whetstone as Brian, appeared resigned; there was a flattish inanimacy to his performance, which also characterized that of Bobbie Lee Moretz as Monica.

The technical factors, in particular Donald Treat's realistic Greenwich-Villagesque set, were good. Helen Patton handled costumes, June Craft the make-up, and lighting was by Lewis Goldstein.

BOOK NEWS

"The North Carolina Guide", to be published by The University of North Carolina Press on April 23, not only tells the traveller where to go and what to look for but also tells the visitor how to recognize a Tar Heel at home or abroad.

William T. Polk, associate editor of the Greensboro Daily News and author of "Southern Accent", draws a vivid and lively picture of the State in his chapter in "The North Carolina Guide" on folkways and folklore, food and drink, speech, literature, art, handicraft and music.

"How can you tell a Tar Heel?" Mr. Polk asks. "Is he different, and if so, how and why?

"The Tar Heel is not a distinct species, but he may have some distinguishing marks.

"North Carolinians are what they are largely because of racial heritage. This is mainly Anglo-Saxon with a strong infusion of Scotch and a weaker one of German blood; about a third of the population is Negro. The Anglo-Saxons account for the law-making, law-abiding, commercial-minded, self-reliant, practical and determined strain; the Scotch are the proud, stoical, imaginative, high-tempered democratic folk, their heroes being the parson, the teacher and the statesman; the German are the shrewd, the economical, the hard-working and the good-humored, placing much stress on church, school and business, but not much on politics; the Negro is the one who works most and loafs most, suffers most and rejoices most, is the most violent and the most patient, the one who enjoys and endures most and absorbs the shocks of life as a rubber tire absorbs the shocks of the road."

In such a historic setting, we become , according to Mr. Polk, "independent, courageous, resourceful, democratic, gregarious and individualistic.

"But there is no pouring aTr Hee Is into a mold. hTe point is that we are by preference and habit individualists, or what we call 'characters'.

"So much for our good side. Generally we are liable to be pretty good folks, but we have a bad side too, and the truth is that we can be, when we take a notion or for no reason at all, as violent, ornery, cantankerous, stubborn, narrow and lazy as any people anywhere on earth, civilized or uncivilized.

"We cut and shoot one another at a rate not even equaled in the centers of urban civilization.

"Furthermore we sometimes have fits of laziness and indifference which set our reformers wild.

Quote, Unquote

Manifestly, not every young man or woman who gets to college makes the most of it. Some don't even belong there. But to deny the opportunity to those who want to make the try runs so counter to American tradition that any scheme for arbitrary reduction of numbers seems unthinkable.

To ignore the resource of public funds and private generosity and make every student pay all his way would rest upon a very dubious thesis: that higher education is only for the financially well-to-do, not also for the intellectually and purposefully qualified. —The Christian Science Monitor.

Maultsby Slated To Hurl Against Terps Here Today

Frye Also Expected To Start At First In 3:30 ACC Contest

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Tom Maultsby will probably toe the hill this afternoon when the Tar Heel baseballers, still seeking their first conference win, battle the Maryland Terrapins in a contest slated to start at 3:30 in Emerson Stadium.

The Terps are currently on a tour through the south and will come into Chapel Hill with a sound and strong ball club. Maryland coach Burton Shipley, starting his 32nd year at the helm, has not named his starting hurler and so the Tar Heels will be kept in the dark 'til game time.

Maultsby has recorded an 0-2 record so far this year but in both contests he experienced some tough luck. He was beaten by a strong Rollins team during the recent Florida trip but only allowed two runs in going the route. Against N. C. State Tuesday, he came in to relieve Jim Raugh in the eighth inning and would have gotten out of the inning with one run scored against him, but for an error in the outfield that allowed two more unearned runs to cross the plate. Maultsby was tagged with the defeat as State went on to win, 7-5.

A BRIGHT NOTE for the Tar Heels is that first sacker Will Frye, who banged away at a .345 clip last season, has been pronounced well enough to see full time duty. He had been troubled by an ankle injury and also missed the major portion of practice due to his football commitments. Frye's bat should be a welcome addition to the Carolina hitting order.

Official statistics released yesterday show that Connie Gravitte, the Tar Heel center fielder, is leading the team in batting with a .400 average. Gravitte has collected 4 hits in ten trips to the dish and has a double, triple and home run among his bingles. Connie has also scored five runs, which makes him tops in that department.

Varsity, Frosh Track Opens Here Saturday Against 'Pack

By RAY LINKER

Both the North Carolina varsity and freshman tracksters open their dual meet schedule here on Fetzer Field tomorrow afternoon against the N. C. State Wolfpack.

The freshman teams of both schools are untried in meet performance this spring, but both schools had entries in the Indoor Games in late February, in which the Tar Babies finished third behind Duke and Maryland and the Wolflets failed to score.

Delegations from both the State and Carolina varsity participated in the Florida relays last Saturday, with North Carolina's 21¾ points placing second behind Louisiana State University's 25. State finished in 11th place with its few representatives scoring seven points.

The Wolfpack finished second to North Carolina in the distance medley, which may well be an indication that the longer runs will be the most contested tomorrow. Dave Miller, conference outdoor champ in the two-mile last year, will be the top State man in that event, unless Coach Paul Derr runs his sophomore ace Mike Shea in that event as well as in the mile.

In State's first dual meet of the season Tuesday, they were beaten by the Camp Lejeune Marines, 112½-18½, but Bobby Jones captured first in the 440-yard run, and took a third in the half-mile. Shea was second in the mile, which was won in 4:26.6.

Both teams are weak in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, but the Tar Heels seem to have the edge.

Arthur Scott is State's top hurdler, and is expected to pick up points in both the lows and the highs. James Wheat will lead the Wolfpack in the field events, and will probably do his best in the broad jump and javelin. Bill Allin will do the State high jumping.

J. H. Christie will be among those leading the State frosh, as will D. D. Andrews, S. A. Helms, G. W. Hipps, and H. C. Abernathy.

The Tar Heel varsity club, which beat State soundly last year, 107-18, will be fielding one of their best teams in many seasons, as was indicated by their victory in the Indoor Games conference division. With three more events added to the schedule now that the team has moved outdoors, the Tar Heels hope to strengthen their squad considerably.

Although State's best men are distance runners, they will still have a hard time beating the Tar Heels in these long-race events. Boyd Newman had a pulled leg muscle indoors and State's Bob Jones won the 880-yard run, but it will take more than Jones' indoor time of 1:55.9 to beat Newnam Saturday. The UNC runner, who is outdoor conference champion in his event, has been clocked several times recently with a better showing than the one Jones gave indoors. Bill Booth, always a good man, and Larry Thames will back Newnam in the 880.

Newnam may also run the mile,

BOYD NEWNAM
... outdoor half-mile champ

but Jim Beatty will be the top man in the event for UNC, with Ed Joyner and Dave Weil also running. Coach Dale Ranson may also run Bobby Barden in the mile, but his best event will be the two-mile, which may see Beatty in the running, too. Glenn Nanney and Marion Griffin will be strong in this event for the UNC club.

Claude Rhule and Charlie Scott will oppose the Wolfpack in the hurdle events, with Bob Wilson aiding them on the lows. Wilson and Ken Bryant will go over the high jump bar for the Tar Heels, which will also have Hilliard Greene in the running for honors. Charlie Yarboroubh will go for Carolina in the pole vault and the broad jump, teaming with Richard Waters on the pole and Wilson and Greene in the broad jump.

Letterman Don Mitchell, who placed second in the 60-yard dash in the Indoor Games, will be expected to score highly in the 100 and 220. Ed Sutton and Jim Bynum will be in the 100 and Larry McMullen and Bynum will run the 220 with Mitchell.

Junior Don Wright, a letterman, sophomore Richard MacFaddin and senior war-veteran John Whitehead carry the Tar Heels' hopes in the 440-yard run. Javelin thrower Steve Marcinko will be teamed with George Stavnitski and Bob Bryan in hopes of bringing down top honors in that event for Carolina.

Co-captain Roger Morris will lead the shot and discus, with letterman Larry Maslow backing him in the shot and another letterman, Roland Perdue, assisting in the discus. Johnny Jones and John Bilich will also toss the shot for UNC, while Jones and Ralph Beaver will throw the discus for the Tar Heels.

Coaches were hesitant to give out facts concerning the freshmen runners. Ranson said he didn't really know how well his boys will perform in the meet, but he has a good idea of their ability and skill as shown in practice. Ranson has a few good boys in almost every event.

John Upchurch and Oscar Davis are the two leading candidates for the pole vault honors, while Jim Varnum is presently the top man in the broad jump, which has several men seeking berths. The shot and discus will see Bob Allison as the best Tar Baby against the Wolflets, while Cledith Oakley and Richard Smith appear to be about equal in the javelin throw. The high jump looks like a weak spot at the present with Phil Straus, George Revelle, and Marvin Hofler bidding for the top spot.

Tar Heel Netters Down Indians, 9-0, For Second Straight Shutout

By DAVE LIEBERMAN

North Carolina's varsity tennis team yesterday won its second straight match of the year, defeating Dartmouth's Indians, 9-0, before 300 fans here.

It was also the second whitewashing administered by the Tar Heels, for they thrashed Michigan State by an identical score Tuesday.

In the No. 1 singles match, Herb Browne overcame Dave Kerr of Dartmouth, 6-4, 8-6, after an upward struggle. Kerr broke Browne's service in the second game and trailed 3-0 before coming up to win five straight and eventually take the set. In the second set, it was more or less the same story, Browne trailing 2-5, then coming in to win, mainly on the strength of his net game.

Bobby Payne and Tom Bradford, playing the second and third positions, respectively, were in good form as they rolled over their opponents, Payne beating Darche, 6-2, 6-1, and Bradford taking Norm Anzel handily, 6-0, 6-1.

In doubles, the Tar Heel netters looked very impressive, taking the Dartmouth teams without any trouble.

Today Carolina meets Dartmouth in a return match, but this time the positions will be reversed, with Browne playing Dartmouth's No. 2 man, Darche, while Payne meets Kerr.

In what should prove to be an interesting match, Carolina will play Swarthmore College Saturday afternoon at 3:00.

Celanese

Interviewing on Campus
Tues. & Wed., April 5-6

Celanese, a leader in the expanding fields of chemical fibers, plastics, and chemicals, can offer outstanding career positions to qualified graduates. If you will receive a degree in . . .

CHEMISTRY ACCOUNTING

CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

. . . you are invited to see the Celanese representative, Mr. S. B. McFarlane or Mr. Louis Amato for further career information.

Contact your Placement Office today for an appointment
Ask for a copy of our brochure, "Celanese Careers"

CELANESE CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Why do more college men and women smoke VICEROYS than any other filter cigarette?

BECAUSE ONLY VICEROY GIVES YOU A PURE, NON-MINERAL, NON-TOXIC FILTER WITH 20,000 FILTER TRAPS IN EVERY FILTER TIP!

1. Yes, only Viceroy has this filter composed of 20,000 tiny filter traps. You cannot obtain the same filtering action in any other cigarette.
2. Besides being non-mineral and non-toxic, this cellulose-acetate filter never shreds or crumbles.
3. The Viceroy filter wasn't just whipped up and rushed to market to meet the new and skyrocketing demand for filtered cigarettes. Viceroy pioneered. Started research more than 20 years ago to create the pure and perfect filter.
4. Smokers en masse report that filtered Viceroys have a finer flavor even than cigarettes without filters. Rich, satisfying, yet pleasantly mild.
5. Viceroy draws so easily that you wouldn't know, without looking, that it even had a filter tip . . . and Viceroys cost only a penny or two more than cigarettes without filters!

That's why more college men and women smoke VICEROYS than any other filter cigarette . . . that's why VICEROY is the largest-selling filter cigarette in the world!

20,000 TINY FILTER TRAPS . . .
plus Richer, Smoother Flavor

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS
Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

North Carolina's varsity golf team, ranked No. 2 in the nation last year behind Stanford, is apparently headed for another outstanding campaign under the softly cracking whip of Chuck Erickson, the UNC athletic director who doubles as golf coach.

The club-swingers jumped off on th right foot Tuesday when they soundly thrashed Michigan State, 24-3, and all indications point to continuing crushing scores. "We only lose about one match a year," Erickson said yesterday before he took off for Raleigh and a discussion on the proposed out-of-state tuition hike. The record bears him out, for the team has won 30 of 33 matches over the past two seasons.

One would think, from the calibre of the game in Chapel Hill, that talent flocks here lured by scholarships, but that isn't the case. Scholarships for golf are not and never have been extended; the game is just popular, not only among the students but also throughout the high schools in the state. Wilmington and Charlotte are the big developing centers.

Erickson said that more than 35,000 rounds of golf were played last season at the Finley Golf Course, most of the activity coming from Carolina students. Erickson had 38 boys report for the varsity team a few weeks ago when he issued his first call, and he found it necessary to pare off 28 good golfers to get his 10-man squad.

Carolina is fortunate in having the Finley layout, a tough course about five years old. It is the only 18-hole course in the Atlantic Coast Conference, although Wake Forest has a nine-hole tour. Erickson rates the 445-yard third hole, with its narrow fairway and accompanying trees, the toughie.

But the Carolina golfers can handle it. Among the individuals on the team are Jim Sykes, Pennsylvania Amateur Champion; Aubrey Rothrock, South Carolina Amateur Champion; Billy Ford, who won the Pinehurst and a number of other junior titles when he was only 14-15 years old; Bob Sisk, a Jaycee champ at Charlotte; and Joe Correll, who went to the quarterfinals of the NCAA golf championships last year. There are others, too: Larry Parker, Willis Henderson, Larry Bell, Cal Mitchell, Billy Armfield and Fred Butters.

The Tar Heels have always ranked high individually in national tournaments, and they are just about the best in the southeast.

The freshmen are not to be overlooked, either. On the frosh squad is a trio which made up the state high school championship team at Myers Park High in Charlotte last year—Gene Lookabill, Don MacMillan and Walter Summerville.

. And the graduates are tops. Harvie Ward, the UNC great of a few years back, is the British Amateur champ and a holder of an NCAA crown.

How's that for talent?

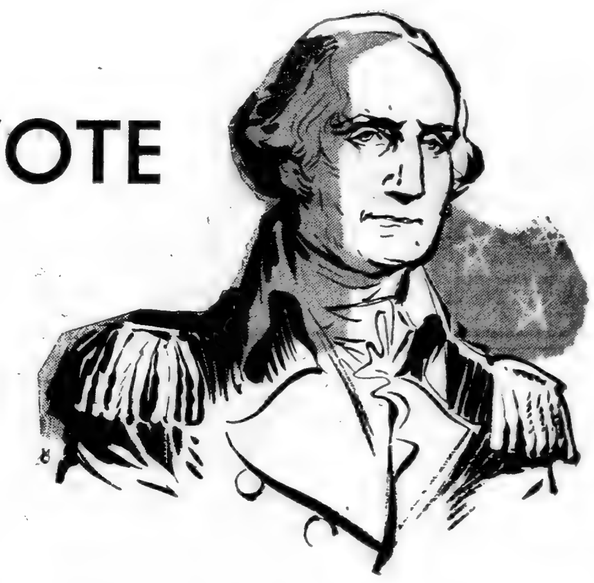
In The Majors!

Giants Picked To Retain Flag In National

NEW YORK, March 31 — The New York Giants, a well-balanced, strong and confident club, were picked to win their second straight National League pennant but only after a terrific, hand-to-hand, three cornered battle with the Milwaukee Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

These three clubs figure to dominate the rest of the National League with the youth-studded St. Louis Cardinals squeezing into the first division in another three-team fight with Cincinnati and Philadelphia. Despite obvious improvement that should give their backers hope for the future, the Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates cannot hope to improve their 7-8 finishes of a year ago.

THE BRAVES and Dodgers undoubtedly are stronger than they were last year when injuries rendered such key men as Milwaukee's Bobby Thomson and Brooklyn's Roy Campanella hors de combat for lengthy spells. But neither club has the soundness, the smooth team play, the tight defense, the clutch hitting and pitching and the winning spirit of the Giants. In addition, the Giants have the confidence of a champion going for them.



Indicative of the Giants' balance are four key men, each a dominant influence in his own sphere—Alvin Dark, the leader of the infield; Willie Mays, the leader of the outfield; Johnny Antonelli, the leader of the pitching staff; and Leo Durocher, the leader . . . period.

THE GIANTS have made no major moves to strengthen their forces but they have no glaring weaknesses. They could use another starting pitcher, but so could every club. Antonelli, Sal Maglie, Ruben Gomez, Don Liddle and Jim Hearn, backed by the wonderful bullpen pair of Hoyt Wilhelm and Marv Grissom, give the Giants ample pitching protection. Wes Westrum, Ray Katt and Mickey Grasso insure good catching. The infield of Whitey Lockman, Davey Williams, Dark and Hank Thompson is solid, as is the outfield consisting of Don Mueller, Mays and Monte Irvin.

And then there's always Dusty Rhodes.

(This is a paid political announcement)

VOTE

FOR PRESIDENT of YOUR Student Body

HIS RECORD IS HIS RECOMMENDATION AND WE PREDICT GREAT THINGS FOR HIM. HIS PLATFORM:

- A clean, hard fought campaign
- Sincere beliefs
- More hitching posts on campus
- An "independent" spirit

Support
YOUR PARTY

the party that believes in YOU, the student

Fowler Says Another Party Is 'Ridiculous'

Independent presidential candidate Don Fowler yesterday issued a statement to "squelch a false rumor" that he is going to form or associate with a third campus political party.

Fowler cited a prediction made yesterday by co-editor-elect Louis Kraar in his column. Kraar said if Fowler wins Tuesday's runoff election, "A third party, either official or unofficial, would probably spring forth to include the Fowler camp."

Fowler termed this as "ridiculous."

"By forming or associating with a third party," said the independent candidate, "I would obviously defeat one of my main purposes as president, that being to reduce the partisanship which now exists in student government."

He said, "....as an independent, I feel that I can work more effectively than my opponent in the cause of campus unity through student government effort."

The independent candidate concluded that "one of the major reasons" for his entering the presidential race was the "number of students from both campus parties who so whole - heartedly pledged their support," adding that many of his supporters are "outstanding leaders of student government."

VILLAGE NEWS

Village May Get Some Help

By DAN WALLACE

There is a possibility that the Village community center may get some funds for entertainment purposes.

The Ways and Means Committee of the student Legislature will meet next Wednesday at noon in Graham Memorial to discuss a resolution suggesting that the community center be made an extension of Graham Memorial. This move would allow the center to share some of the student block fees which support the Graham Memorial operation and its programs.

The meeting of the Village board of directors, scheduled to be held tonight, has been called off. The next meeting will be held Friday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m.

On the agenda will be a discussion of where to erect the giant-size Village map and bulletin board combination. Those interested in joining the volunteer fire team should attend this meeting.

* don't forget—today is April Fools

These JAYSON Pajamas available only at Varleys MENS SHOP

Typical CAROLINA COED and Friend at Beach*

Saturday Stranger Is Underway Here

Martha Dow, left, Len Bullock and Gene Overbeck, right, are shown in a scene from Saturday Stranger, a new play by Joseph Rosenburg which opened at the Playmakers Theatre last night. Saturday Stranger will continue through Sunday, with performances nightly at 8:30. Tickets are on sale at Abernethy Hall and at the door.

Three Units From UNC ROTC To Perform In Azalea Festival

CADETS FROM UNC
...in Azalea Festival

Three units of the UNC detachment of AFROTC will participate in the Azalea Festival, now being held in Wilmington, said Cadet Lt. Col. Claude Johns yesterday.

Johns said the units participating are the Drill Squadron, Band and Color Guard.

"While en route in the parade, which begins aSturday morning at 11 o'clock, these units wil execute special precision maneuvers," said Johns.

Commander of the Band is Cadet Major Ken Pruitt. Commander of the Drill Squadron is Cadet Lt. Col. Don Thornton.

Abstractions On Exhibition

An exhibition of electronic abstractions, a new kind of abstract art by Ben F. Laposky, Cherokee, Iowa, will go on display in Person Hall Art Gallery on the UNC campus today.

The exhibit, which will continue through April 17, consists of 50 photographs of design compositions formed by electrical wave forms produced on a cathode-ray oscilloscope.

The oscilloscope is an instrument which may be compared with a TV receiver but which has varied uses in the field of electronics, according to George Kachergis, Director of Exhibits and professor in the University's Department of Art.

Laposky, a native of Iowa, has made an intensive study of design based on various mathematical forms and other related types of natural forms since 1940. He began experimenting with electronic circuits to determine design possibilities in this field in 1950.

The result is a fascinating series of abstract designs, many of which give the impression of being suspended in space, Kachergis said

Covering The Campus

An account of the efforts of a college fraternity to free itself of discriminatory requirements imposed by its national organization will be presented by the National Broadcasting Company Tuesday from 10:30 until 11 p.m. The program is part of a series entitled "The People Take The Lead."

★

The service of worship of the Community Church on Sunday will include baptism and dedication of infants, regular family sermon and a program of music for Holy Week by the choir, assisted by soloists and instrumentalists.

A small choir will present the "Four Motets for a Time of Penitence." Martha Fouse and Margaret Stanback will sing the "Third Tenebrae Service for Wednesday of Holy Week." The choir will perform the first of the "Lamentations of Jedemiah."

★

John A. Parker, head of the department of city and regional planning here, and F. Stuart Chapin Jr., professor of planning are in Kansas City attending the annual meeting of the American Institute of Planners. Last Wednesday Parker spoke at the first Kansas Conference on Planning held at the University of Kansas at Lawrence.

Professor George Katona, director of the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan, will address the Statistics Colloquium here on Monday at 4 p.m. in 206 Phillips Hall. He will speak on "Psychological Economic Surveys."

—CANDIDATES—

(Continued from Page 1)

courts) should be open to the public and the press." This would include such organizations as student Legislature, orientation committee and IDC. "However," McCurry continued, "any organization which is of a private nature . . . should be responsible only to that group." This group would include fraternities and dormitories, German Club and IFC, he said.

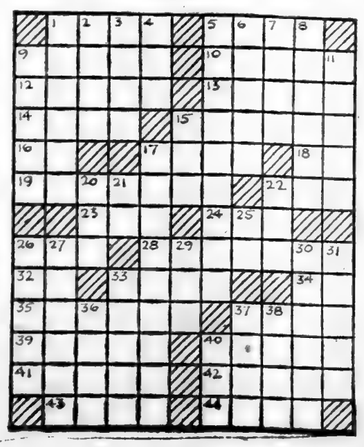
—Y TALKS—

(Continued from Page 1)

that the United States continue its financial support in the amount of eight million dollars, but it has now been cut to four million, which will jeopardize the work of the UN technical assistance program, Riebel feels.

Representatives from the Chapel Hill League of Women Voters will present the facts on these two bills.

Candy
Goodies
Gifts
Easter remembrances
at
DANZIGER'S



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Girl's nickname
5. Fringe of hair on the forehead
9. One hundred lacs (Ind.)
10. Nest-building fish (S. A.)
12. Showery
13. Ceases to have
14. Capital (Nor.)
15. Small perfumed bag
16. Northeast (abbr.)
17. Subsided
18. From (prefix)
19. Queer
22. God of war (Scand. Myth.)
23. Past
24. The stitchbird (Maori)
26. Viper
28. A sequence of rulers from same stock
32. Guido's lowest note
33. King of the Amalekites
34. Hawaiian bird
35. Idle talk
37. Outer covering of a tree
39. Run away and marry
40. Mother of pearl
41. Vexes
42. Species of iris
43. Small depression
44. Obnoxious plant

DOWN
1. River in Canada
2. Stir up
3. River (It.)
4. French marshal
5. Poising
6. In a cocked position
7. U. S. humorist
8. Avaricious
9. Ugly old woman
11. Showy flower
15. Capuchin monkey
17. Dullest
20. Knock
21. Silver (sym.)
22. It is (contracted)
25. Exclamation
26. Hole-boring tool
27. Dull
29. Bark, as a dog
30. Hot
31. Couples
33. Tree
36. Fish
37. Unadorned
38. Measure of land
40. At the present time

RUGA MISS
PENAL IDEAS
AGILE SIEGE
LICE STAKES
ICY SORT
ICICLE JOB
LOLER AMARE
DEE ATTEND
AMOS INK
STUBBY STAN
MORAL ATONE
ORATE CIRCE
ALES ERSE

Yesterday's Answer

Sign on door in Steele Dorm: "All politicians who do not enter this door will be voted for."

* * *

Carolina Gentleman walking through Library, barefooted.

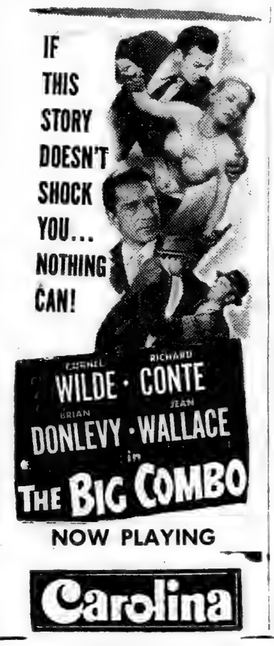
Soviet Editors To Visit U. S.

Eleven Soviet student editors will arrive in New York City April 5 to begin a look into American academic life.

The Russian delegation has received invitations to visit 44 colleges and universities in 23 states, with Swarthmore College Student Council acting as co-ordinator. The Institution of International Education, asked by the State Department to administer the visit, plans for the Soviet editors to have an opportunity to meet and talk with American students.

A tentative itinerary includes stops in New York City, Washington, Detroit, Ann Arbor, Chicago, San Francisco and Tuskagee, Alabama.

The visas, recently granted by the State Department, were applied for by Russia last summer. The student visit is at the expense of the Soviet government.



"If the Russian government is willing to expose 11 student editors, aged 25 to 39, to a close-up view of higher education in this country, it is wise of us to accept the challenge," said a New York Times editorial

Miss Palmer Issues Thanks

"Thanks, everybody, for helping me with my campaign," said Joan Palmer, winning SP candidate for secretary.

Miss Palmer won the post after a recount was made Wednesday afternoon. The final vote was 2,594 to 1,570.

"I sure appreciate the support you gave me," she said, "and I'll do the best job I can."

NOW PLAYING

Carolina

'...A Good Southener'

WASHINGTON, March 31—(AP)—Do you know what you sound like? Sen. Ervin (D-NC) admits he didn't until he heard himself on the radio.

It happened like this: The senator, his wife and his secretary, Harry Gatton, were on their way from Washington to his home town, Morganton, N. C.

The radio was on.

Said Ervin to his wife and secretary: "I wonder who is speaking. I can tell by his voice that he is a good Southerner."

Harry laughed: "That's you, Senator."

Then, said Ervin, "I realized I was listening to my own radio program . . . one's own voice on a radio broadcast sounds strange to himself. I did not recognize my own voice when I referred to myself as a 'good Southerner.' But I do not fall in this instance under the condemnation of the adage that self praise is half scandal."

Premed Frat Initiates

North Carolina Beta of Alpha Epsilon Delta, national honor society for premedical students, initiated 14 new members recently.

The new members are Richard Hines Jr., Edenton; Robert A. Richardson, Besssemer City; William Michal Jr., Atlanta, Ga.; Edward Sutton, Cullowhee; Cecil Neville Jr., Scotland Neck:

Laurie Smith, Oswego, S. C.; Josh Tayloe, Washington; Ferrell Shuford Jr., Clinton; Richard Shermer, Winston - Salem; William Brown, Roanoke Rapids;

Arvid Sieber, Hendersonville; Thomas Fox, Asheville; Leonard Reaves, Fayetteville, and John Curtis, Bessemer City.

The national society was founded at the University of Alabama in 1926, and it now has 64 active chapters at schools throughout the country. The local chapter was established here in 1936.

As Spontaneous as a Robin's Song

There's nothing stuffy about our Easter cards. Touched with the magic of Spring mornings, they're fresh and delightful. Even if you never send cards, your heart will be refreshed if you stop in and just look at these beauties.

The Intimate Bookshop

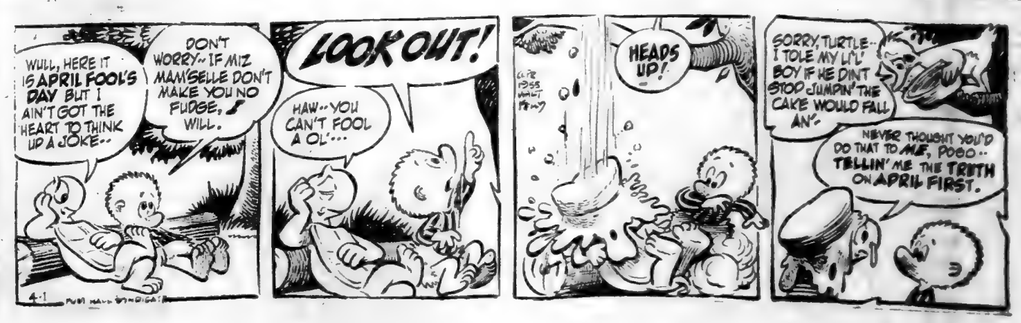
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

Winner Of
8 Academy Awards

1 BEST PICTURE OF YEAR
2 BEST ACTOR
3 BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS
4 BEST DIRECTOR
5 BEST CINEMATOGRAPHY (Black & White)
6 BEST SET DECORATION
7 BEST STORY AND SCREENPLAY
8 BEST FILM EDITING

FIRST TIME AT POPULAR PRICES!

Varsity



TODAY and SATURDAY

FEATURES AT 1:00-3:00-5:00-7:00-9:00

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N.C.
8-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer today with an expected high of 72.

The Daily Tar Heel

SMILE
Wipe off that smile, says the editor—if you want to get elected. The illustrated lecture is on p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 131 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

MAY NOT APPLY TO PRESENT STUDENTS:

General Assembly Gets Bill To Require Future Students From Out-Of-State To Pay For Entire Cost For Educations

Additional Cost Would Be $310 To Chapel Hillians

By CHUCK HAUSER

RALEIGH, April 1 (AP) — A bill to make future out-of-state students at state-supported colleges pay the entire cost of their education was introduced in the General Assembly today by a former University of North Carolina student.

Rep. William W. Taylor Jr. of Warrenton, who attended the University at Chapel Hill during the 1929-30 academic year, tossed a bill in the House hopper which would eliminate the state "subsidy" for all students who enter state-supported schools after this spring. The bill provides:

"That any person not a bona fide resident of the state of North Carolina who enters any state-supported institution of higher learning after the regular 1954-55 term shall be charged by, and shall pay to, such institution an amount equivalent to the entire cost to such institution of providing to such student instructional service, custodial care, and any and all other services furnished to such student by such institution, such cost to be determined by the Advisory Budget Commission with the assistance of the state auditor and the assistant director of the budget . . . provided, however, that the provisions of this section shall not be mandatory in the case of any student who may have enrolled in or been accepted for enrollment in any such institution prior to the effective date of this act."

According to information furnished the Appropriations Committee, the additional cost to out-of-state students would be the following amounts annually: UNC $310. UNC Health Affairs $1,424, State College $400, and the Woamn's College $332.

A key word in the bill is "mandatory," in connection with the exemption of students now enrolled or accepted for enrollment. It indicates they may still be charged the higher rates.

Spring is here: Middle door at Post Office is open.

* * *

Carolina Gentleman & Caroline Coed smooching on Arboretum bench; old maid grammar schoolteacher spying them, telling her students not to look while she watches.

* * *

Producer-Politician Joel Fleishman all set to meet Senator Humphrey, with Ziegfeld-like necktie flowing down his front.

1 Atom Bomb On Red China Worse Than Propaganda, Says Democrat Humphrey

"One American atomic weapon used on Red China would do more to turn Asia solidly against us, than all the propaganda the Communists have been able to contrive," said Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) here last night.

Senator Humphrey called for an "about face" from war and a positive turning toward new efforts for peace, saying that "America's leadership in our critically troubled world is fumbling and faltering."

Speaking under auspices of the Carolina Forum, non-partisan student agency, Senator Humphrey said "men of the Kremlin and their partners in Communist China sense that in the critical decision concerning the offshore islands (Quemoy and Matsu) they may well have discovered Achilles Heel in American Far East policy."

The Senator was introduced by Dr. Fred Cleaveland of the Political Science Dept. He was honored at a dinner preceding his 8 p.m. address, and at a public reception in Graham Memorial afterward. Joel Fleishman, Forum chairman, presided at these events.

"It would be nothing short of tragic if a decision to defend the offshore islands should lead to a complete break between ourselves and the free Asian nations," Humphrey said.

He described as "ridiculous" the assumption that defense of these islands "is more important than a cooperative and effective relationship between the hundreds of millions of people of the free nations of South and Southeast Asia."

(See HUMPHREY, page 4.)

Justice William O. Douglas To Talk Here Tuesday Night

Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court will give a public talk Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall.

His appearance is being co-sponsored by the Carolina Forum and the Law School Association.

Justice Douglas took his seat on the Supreme Court in 1939, after being nominated by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

He was born in Maine, Minnesota, in 1898. His father was a home missionary of the Presbyterian Church. Justice Douglas received his AB degree from Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., in 1920, and his LLB from Columbia Law School in New York in 1925. He has been a member of the faculties of the Columbia Law School and the Yale Law School. He has been a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and chairman of that commission. He was holding that position at the time of his appointment to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Justice Douglas is the author of a number of books, the latest being An Almanac of Liberty. Among his other books are Of Men and Mountains, Being An American and North From Malaya. He is also a world traveler.

Chi Omega To Present Award To Top Woman

The University's Epsilon Beta chapter of the Chi Omega sorority will present its distinguished service award to the year's outstanding woman of North Carolina Tuesday night, April 12, during the chapter's annual formal Eleusinian banquet, which will be held in the Carolina Inn. Chancellor Robert B. House will present the award.

Chi Omega has honored the state's woman of the year annually since 1950. Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson of Raleigh and Morganton won the award last year.

Miss Patsy Daniels of Raleigh, who is in charge of arrangements for the event, urged all Chi Omega alumnae to make reservations for the Eleusinian banquet as soon as possible. Miss Daniels can be reached at the Chi Omega house on E. Franklin St.

Tarnation Out

The March-April issue of Tarnation, campus humor magazine, will go on sale today in Y Court and the information desk of Graham Memorial, according to Editor Rueben Leonard.

The issue features a four page facsimile of "The Dully Tar Heel."

Eleven Running Tuesday

Eleven candidates will be voted on in Tuesday's runoff elections, according to Miss Patsy Daniels, chairman of the Elections Board.

The list of candidates and the offices they are running for is as follows:

Don Fowler, independent, and Ed McCurry, University Party, are running for the presidency of the student body.

"Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice are running for the post of head cheerleader.

Sonny Evans and Mac Patton are running for the sophomore seat on the Men's Honor Council. Townsend Holt, Bill Morgan and Mebane Pritchett are running for the junior seat on the Men's Honor Council. Don Huntington and Graham Shanks are running for the senior seat on the Men's Honor Council.

Miss Daniels said candidates must have their expense accounts turned in to the student government office by 6 p.m. Monday.

Members of the Elections Board besides Miss Daniels are Allen Hildreth, Claude Pope, Bill McLean, Miss Anne Barwick, Doug Cantrell, Bennett Myers, Miss Harriet Parrish, Miss Barbara McRee, Graham Rights, Jim Turner and Harry Braxton.

Going To The Beach? Weather Will Be Mild

Students who are heading for the North Carolina beaches or the Azalea Festival in Wilmington this weekend will have mild weather with partly cloudy skies during their vacations from Chapel Hill, according to a spokesman for the United States Weather Bureau at the Raleigh-Durham Airport yesterday.

The spokesman said there will be a chance of scattered showers along the coastal area, with temperatures dropping a little below that of today.

For those remaining in Chapel Hill the weatherman predicted mild, partly cloudy weather with temperatures rising to the middle 70s.

J. N. Couch, head of the University Botany Department, has predicted that last weekend's cold spell has damaged most of Chapel Hill's spring flowers so badly that "the usual beautiful effect that we have in Chapel Hill and this part of North Carolina" will not be enjoyed this year. Among the plants which were damaged, Couch included redbuds, dogwoods, japonicas and azaleas.

"Some of the dogwoods are injured, but others will come out," said the Botany Department head. "Practically all the redbuds I've seen are already killed, and all azalea blossoms were destroyed," he added.

He said that a week or more of warm weather might help the plants. ". . . the most damaging effect this time is on a number of trees, where hickory and oaks have had their leaves killed," said Couch.

After commenting that his estimation was possibly "a little pessimistic," he said that the cold spell was "certain to slow spring down."

Katzenstein Thanks Voters

"I shall continue to work for the Honor System at Carolina with a genuine interest in what I consider to be a fundamental and worthwhile part of our University," said Charles Katzenstein in a statement made yesterday in which he thanked those who elected him to the Men's Honor Council in the recent election.

"The best way to thank those who voted in any election is to perform in the elected position to the best of one's ability, and this I certainly intend to do," he said. "I'd like to do more, however, and take this opportunity to express my very sincere appreciation to all those who turned out to vote for me last Tuesday," he added.

LEGISLATIVE ROUNDUP:

UP's On Top Now

By NEIL BASS

The University Party will run the show in the student Legislature during the next assembly, but not by the 29-21 majority previously announced

That eight vote edge has been dulled by the announcement that one of the incoming legislators chalked up as a UP member is actually a member of the Student Party.

The legislator who formed the pivot for the swing back to a 28-22 count was Jackie Wilkins. Thus the tabulation is the same as last year, but the shoes is now on a different foot—a size six UP majority one.

Probably one of the first actions the UP-handled Legislature will take, when all the election fireworks have quietd down, will be to snatch a basic privileged away from the campus political parties.

The UP ached to take away the right of political parties to nominate candidates for editor of The Daily Tar Heel during the last assembly. However at that time it was the little dog in the Legislature, and the majority SP paid no attention to its yelping.

Scales To Appear

GREENSBORO — Junius I. Scales, former UNC student will appear in federal court here on April 11 to face charges of advocating the violent overthrow of the U. S. government.

Gray Repeats Fees Statement

"I have said publicly and I repeat," said President Gordon Gray yesterday, "that I hope it won't be necessary for the Legislature to raise any student fees."

Gray made the statement concerning the bill, proposed in the House of Representatives of the state Legislature yesterday, which calls for raising out-of-state tuition at state-supported schools to cost.

Gray added he is "not in favor" of any increase in student tuition fees.

Spains Receive New 'Sounds'

Sounds, the column by Tom Spain which usually appears on the Saturday editorial page of The Daily Tar Heel, is not appearing today.

The reason for this is a baby boy who was born to Spain and his wife yesterday, and who will probably be filling the Spain household with quite a few sounds during the coming weeks.

The baby, who has been named Frank, was born at 6 p.m. yesterday in North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Old Legislature Meets For Last Time Tuesday

The student Legislature will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 for a "15 or 20 minute session," according to Speaker Martin Jordan.

The meeting, said Jordan, was called only for the purpose of introducing the new student government budget so that it could be voted on the week after the spring holidays. The old Legislature, not the newly elected one, will attend the meeting.

WANT TO READ YOUR HOMETOWN PAPER?

You Name It—The Current Affairs Room Has Got It

By BARBARA WILLARD

Everything from the Pakistan Quarterly to the International Anthropological and Linguistics Journal is on the shelves of the Current Affairs Reading Room. If your reading tastes go along these lines, or to more popular ones, such as Atlantic Monthly or Life, you can find plently to educate and entertain you in this section of the Library.

This light, airy room, located in the new east wring on the second floor of the Library, is more and more becoming of interest to students, faculty and townspeople. Whether it's a homesick freshman who sort of sneaks in to read his home town paper, a political science professor who is a regular customer, or a would-be writer who hasn't the price of the New Yorker, this department can answer the need. It can, that is, if the need is for recent publications.

POST, UNDER 'S'

On the open shelves which cover three walls of the room are over 1,000 magazines and newspapers. They are listed alphabetically, according to the official name of the publication. For instance, many students give up in disgust when they do not find Post under "P." It's there, though, hidden away as Saturday Evening Post.

In addition to the more popular magazines, such as Time, Newsweek and Life, are over 100 less known and foreign ones, such as Asia, Illustrated London News, Spectator and World Affairs. Current issues of the 22 newspapers covering North Carolina and other parts of the United States may be read there daily, as well as foreign newspapers from England, Germany, France, Italy, Brazil, China, Formosa, India, Karachi, Pakistan and Bombay.

WHAT? NO DAILY WORKER

The question that invariably arises is "Does the Current Affairs Reading Room have The Daily Worker?" The answer is no, and there's a good reason to answer the stormy "Why not?"

Mrs. Helen B. Hogan, Current Affairs librarian, says, "There are a lot of things we would like to take for which we just do not have the money, and The Daily Worker is one of them."

The next argument is why buy some of the publications on the shelves and not the Worker? Mrs. Hogan explains "selection is made according to demands as based on needs for classroom work."

NOT PREJUDICED

As for prejudiced against the Communist paper, there is none, as such. If you look closely on the shelves which invite students to help themselves, you will see some other "subversive" literature. Mrs. Hogan remarks, "A great deal of our periodicals, both of news value and propaganda, come to us through gifts, but the Daily Worker apparently isn't giving anything away."

While Current Affairs does have The Chicago Tribune, Mrs. Hogan explains, "although The Chicago Tribune is often considered a reactionary in the other direction, it also has news value for the midwest."

EXCLUSIVE MATERIAL

Recently a graduate student in political science found in this section the Library's only available material on a current topic in Italy. All publications within the "past year are kept within this restricted balcony—to keep available issues of current back numbers."

The publications are bound periodically. Students may call for them at the Main Circulation Desk, as for any other bound book.

In addition to the alphabetical filing of the magazines on shelves around the room, there is a subject index as to types of periodicals, for example, Spanish publications, and minority publications, such as Negro periodicals.

Many of the magazines on file in the library are almost exclusive in this section, such as Merlin, a highly literary magazine which is never published twice in the same place. Many lesser-known religious periodicals and some magazines not sold on the news stand are obtainable here.

STUDENTS IN CURRENT AFFAIRS READING ROOM
. . . almost everything except The Daily Worker

In addition to the periodicals and newspapers, a pamphlet and clipping file has been arranged. Mrs. Hogan, who came to UNC from a position as librarian at the Third Naval District Headquarters in New York, is always on the look-out for material fo this file. It has been of much value to those students writing research papers.

If particular subjects are not covered in this file, Mrs. Hogan suggests that students mention them to her, and she will watch for articles along particular lines.

Before pamphlets are filed, they are displayed on a tabie in the room, marked "New Acquisitions for the Vertical File," for three to four weeks.

WORLD CULTURE

UNC is one of 16 universities cooperating with Yale University on its "Human Relations Area Files." The librarian helps students in obtaining an outline of a particular world culture. Through this new file, a student can find out anything fro mthe most recent ritual of a tribe in South Africa to habits of the Eskimoes.

While Esquire, Mademoiselle and similar magazines are not on the shelves because of a limited budget, the Student Library Committee is working with the library on a possible plan to secure these. The idea is that the dormitories, fraternities and sororities would furnish subscriptions, and the library would furnish binders designating the donors.

ALL GIFTS

For those indignant students whose North Carolina home town papers are not there, there is reason enough why. Mrs. Hogan explains, that every North Carolina newspaper, with the exception of thre or four of the largest ones, is there by a gift subscription.

"The purpose of the Current Affairs Reading Room," the librarian notes, "is to keep the individual up to-date with what's going on in the world today, and we try to do it through magazines, newspapers and the clipping file."

While the collection is not yet all that every student may desire, it is looking out for his interest and when the budget permits, perhaps there will be such limited-appeal papers as The Daily Worker, a periodical for chess players and maybee even one from Lower Slobbovia.

CANDIDATE FOWLER

CANDIDATE McCURRY

EX-CANDIDATE MUNTZING

There Are Smiles . . .

Politics around here, as we believe we have mentioned, is a curious animal. Herewith (above) Exhibit Two: candidate's smiles.

The morning of election day found these varied facial expressions looking at you from The Daily Tar Heel's front page — a Mona Lisa tranquillity from candidate Fowler, a broad simper from candidate McCurry, an absolute side-slapper from candidate Muntzing.

Well, we thought, that clinches that. Blessed is the happy candidate and this merry Muntzing has the whole thing sewed up. We reckoned without the strange tides of fortune peculiar to Carolina politics. Mona Lisa came romping in ahead of the field, middle-of-the-roader McCurry close enough to force a runoff. Both of them left Muntzing, for all his jubilee, back on the stable-house turn.

The moral for future candidates is clear: if you hope to get elected around here, scowl, grumble, grieve, gnash your teeth, whimper, snivel, wail. And if you don't believe us, ask Muntzing. He's the one with the serious, thoughtful face who lives down in Aycock Dorm.

Hope For The Orphan

The pols are scurrying, as might have been predicted, but what they're scurrying from is something Carolina needs: a five dollar student fee raise.

The timeliness of the student Budget Committee's action in recommending a student referendum on raising the ante for Graham Memorial and student government might be debated — especially in view of the raise in out-of-state tuition yesterday in Raleigh.

But not, as we see it, the wisdom of their decision. No comparable University we know of operates student government and a student union on Carolina's paltry sum. Graham Memorial, for example, gets $6 per year per student as opposed the $20 per year that State's posh union coasts on.

A raise will mean more GM services, a bigger and better batch of publications, countless increases in the level of dormitory civilization.

The Daily Tar Heel hopes students will get a chance to raise the fee this year. It's the price of two week's beers, and it's worth it.

Gracious Living—XXX

The assembled thousands filed into Memorial Hall to hear Walter Gieseking, a vegetarian-Lepidopterist-pianist, one of the world's great musicians.

They sat down in Memorial's old granite-hard seats.

They stared at Memorial's filthy chalk-marred stage.

They watched the back-drops rustle from time to time as a technician walked along Memorial's narrow back-stage passage.

They sat in glaring brightness through a little Beethoven, then sat in charcoal darkness through the rest while the pianist strained to see the keys in Memorial's erratic light.

Gracious Living would not be trod upon so freely anywhere in the world where a pianist of the caliber of Gieseking was playing.

But this was Chapel Hill. And this was Memorial Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT

Carolina Front

Empty Classes Mean Spring & The Coast

Louis Kraar

IF THE seats around you this morning in class are empty, it's because April and the Azalea Festival are here—and many students are in Wilmington enjoying them both.

Like the Middle Ages' fad of padding to church centers for spring pilgrimages, the undergraduate penchant for the coast is as common as the season. In short, spring means beach trips—and empty Saturday classes.

Not being a particular fan of azaleas or festivals, this reporter won't attend the Wilmington wing-ding this weekend. However, in a trip last weekend I did go through the azalea center.

★

THE PSEUDO spring breezes of Chapel Hill took on the speed of a football player in greener grid years, as a party of friends and I reached the rural area outside Raleigh last Saturday afternoon.

We were heading for the coast, but before we arrived the swirling sand was all about us in the air. The wind gathered up thick cluds of sand from dry tobacco fields and tossed them into the air. Dry fields—looking like little deserts—appeared on either side of the road, making the big red auto we rode in look like a zooming anachronism.

The sun kept shining through the dust clouds. Mailboxes in front of farm houses shivered at the wind. And farmhouse porches were as barren as the fields.

Near Wilmington, where azaleas bloomed, thick woods glowed with the red of a forest fire early Sunday afternoon. Now the swirling sand gave way to smoke, as the dry wood barked with flames. A snowstorm of ashes showered the car as it nudged its way through the smoke.

Further down the road, past the flaming forest, the air cleared and the sun blocked its way through the sky clouds. We rolled down the dust and ash-covered windows to breath the fresh air. And March came into the car in fresh, windy gusts.

★

THE COMMENTS of candidates Ed McCurry and Don Fowler on governmental secrecy would lead me to start campaigning (were I not a non-partisan columnist) for a third candidate.

Candidate McCurry thinks if a group gets its money from the students (with the exception of the courts), it should be open. Otherwise, says McCurry, meetings may be closed.

Thus, under the McCurry plan, the Interdormitory Council would have to hold open meetings, but the Interfraternity Council could continue to hold closed sessions.

Why students shouldn't have a right to know what both groups are doing, neither candidate has answered.

Now candidate Fowler, in a paradoxical statement, said that "students should always be informed of the happenings of student government." However, the independent went on to say that groups could hold executive sessions, and "the proceedings should be made public."

In other words, Fowler is for closed and secret sessions, as long as a group tells the public what it did. Why have a closed session then?

★

WHEN I reported that a third party would probably be formed if Folwer is elected president, I tried to make it clear that the party would be "either official or unofficial."

I am not campaigning against Don Fowler or anybody else, but it is clear to this reporter that Fowler's backers who were drawn from both parties will share the spoils of a possible victory. Whether or not these people call themselves a party or not, that's what they would be.

Safety: Embryo Child Of Terror

Sir Winston Churchill To The House Of Commons

We live in a period happily unique in human history, when the whole world is divided intellectually and to a large extent geographically between the creeds of Communist discipline and individual fredom, and when at the same time this mental and psychological division is accompanied by the possession by both sides of obliterating weapons of the nuclear age.

There is an immense gulf between the atomic and the hydrogen bomb. The atomic bomb, with all its terror, did not carry us outside the scope of human control or manageable events in thought or action, in peace or war. But when Mr. Sterling Cole, the chairman of the United States Congressional (Atomic) Committee, gave out a year ago—February 17, 1954—the first comprehensive review of the hydrogen bomb, the entire foundation of human affairs was revolutionized and mankind placed in a situation both measureless and laden with doom.

WHICH WAY TO TURN?

What ought we to do? Which way shall we turn to save our lives and the future of the world? It does not matter so much to old people. They are going soon anyway. But I find it poignant to look at youth in all its activities and ardor, and most of all to watch little children playing their merry games, and wonder what would lie before them if God wearied of mankind.

The best defense would, of course, be bona-fide disarmament all around. This is in all our hearts, but sentiment must not cloud our vision. It is often said that "facts are stubborn things. . . ." We must not conceal from ourselves the gulf between the Soviet Government and the NATO powers, which has hitherto, for so long, prevented an agreement. The long history and tradition of Russia makes it repugnant to the Soviet Government to accept any practical system of international inspection.

A second difficulty lies in the circumstances that, just as the United States, on the one hand, has, we believe, the overwhelming mastery in nuclear weapons, so the Soviets and their Communist satellites have immense superiority in what are called "conventional" forces — the sort of arms and forces with which we fought the last war, but much improved.

The problem is therefore to devise a balanced and phased system of disarmament which at no period enables any one of the participants to enjoy an advantage which might endanger the security of the others.

TRUTH—AND FICTION

Unless a trustworthy and universal agreement upon disarmament, conventional and nuclear alike, can be reached and an effective system of inspection is established and is actually working, there is only one sane policy for the free world in the next few years. That is what we call defense through deterrents. This we have already adopted and proclaimed. These deterrents may at any time become the parents of disarmament, provided that they deter. To make our contribution to the deterrent we must ourselves possess the most up-to-date nuclear weapons and the means of delivering them.

A vast quantity of information, some true, some exaggerated, much out of proportion, has been published about the hydrogen bomb. The truth has inevitably been mingled with fiction. . . . I still content myself with saying about the power of this weapon, the hydrogen bomb, that, apart from all the statements about blast and heat effects over increasingly wide areas, there are now to be considered the consequences of "fallout" as it is called, of wind-borne radioactive particles. There is both an immediate direct effect on human beings who are in the path of such a cloud and an indirect effect through animals, grass and vegetables, which pass on these contagions to human beings through food.

IMAGINATION IS APPALLED

This would confront many who escaped the direct effects of the explosion with poisoning or starvation or both. Imagination stands appalled. There are, of course, the palliatives and precautions of a courageous civil defense. . .but our best protection lies . . . successful deterrents operating from a foundation of sober, calm and tireless vigilance.

However, a curious paradox has emerged. Let me put it simply. After a certain point has been passed, it may be said, the worst things get the better. The broad effect of the latest developments is to spread almost indefinitely and at least to a vast extent the area of mortal danger. This should certainly increase the deterrent upon Soviet Russia by putting her enormous spaces and scattered population on a equality, or near equality, of vulnerability with our small, densely-populated island and with Western Europe.

I cannot regard this development as adding to our dangers.

CHURCHILL
. . . victory may come yet.

We have reached the maximum already. On the contrary, to this form of attack continents are vulnerable as well as islands. Hitherto crowded countries, as I have said, like the United Kingdom and Western Europe, have had this outstanding vulnerability to cary. But the hydrogen bomb, with its vast range of destruction and the even wider area of contamination, would be effective also against nations whose population hitherto has been so widely dispersed oevr large land areas as to make them feel that they were not in any danger at all.

They too become highly vulnerable; not yet equally perhaps, but still highly and increasingly vulnerable. Here again we see the value of deterrents, immune against surprise and well understood by all persons on both sides—repeat, on both sides—who have the power to control events. That is why I have hoped for a long time for a top-level conference where these matters could be put plainly and bluntly from one friendly visitor to the conference to another.

SAFETY AND SURVIVAL

Then it may well be that we shall, by a process of sublime irony, have reached a stage in this story where safety will be the sturdy child of terror, and survival the twin brother of annihilation. . . .

All. . .considerations lead me to belive that, on a broad view, the Soviets would be ill-advised to embark on major aggression within the next three or four years. . . . If, at the end of that time, there should be a supreme conflict, the weapons which I have described this afternoon would be available to both sides, and it would be folly to suppose that they would not be used. Our precautionary dispositions and preparations must therefore be based on the assumption that, if war should come, those weapons would be used.

In three or four years' time—it may be even less—the scene will be changed. The Soviets will probably stand possessed of hydrogen bombs and the means of delivering them not only on the United Kingdom but also on North American targets. They may then have reached a stage not indeed of parity with the United States and Britain but of what is called "saturation."

Major war of the future will differ therefore from anything we have known in the past, in this one significant respect that each side at the outset will suffer what it dreads the most—the loss of everything that it has ever known.

STRENGTH NEEDED

Of course, we should all agree that a world-wide international agreement on disarmament is the goal at which we should aim. The Western democracies disarmed themselves at the end of the war. The Soviet Government did not disarm, and the Western nations were forced to rearm, and though only partially, after the Soviets and Communists had dominated all China and half uEropje. That is the present position. It is easy, of course, for the Communists to say now, "Let us ban all nuclear weapons." Communist ascendancy in conventional weapons would then become overwhelming. That might bring peace but only peace in the form of the subjugation of the free world to the Communist system.

Unless the NATO powers had effective forces there on the ground and could make a front, there would be nothing to prevent piecemeal advance and encroachment by the Communists in this time of so-called peace. By successive infiltrations the Communists would progressively undermine the security of Europe. Unless we were prepared to unleash a full-scale nuclear war as soon as some local incident occurs in some distant country, we must have conventional forces in readiness to deal with such situations as they arise.

Though world war may be prevented by the deterrent power of nuclear weapons, the Communists may well resort to military action in furtherance of their policy of infiltration and encroachment in many parts of the world. There may well be limited wars on the Korean model, with limited objectives. We must be able to play our part in these, if called upon by the United Nations Organization.

There are those who believe, or at any rate say: If we have the protection of the overwhelmingly powerful United States, we need not make the hydrogen bomb for ourselves or build a fleet of bombers for its delivery. We can leave that to our friends across the ocean. Our contribution should be criticism of any unwise policy into which they may drift or plunge. We should throw our hearts and consciences into that.

Personally, I cannot feel that we should have much influence over their policy or actions, wise or unwise, while we are largely dependent, as we are today, upon their protection. We too must possess substantial deterrent power of our own. We must also never allow, above all, I hold, the growing sense of unity and brotherhood between the United Kingdom and the United States and throughout the English-speaking world to be injured or retarded. Its maintenance, its stimulation and its fortifying is one of the first duties of every person who wishes to see peace in the world and wishes to see the survival of this country.

To conclude . . . there is time and hope if we combine patience and courage. All deterrents will improve and gain authority during the next 10 years. By that time the deterrent may well reach its acme and reap its final reward. The day may dawn when fair play, love of one's fellow men, respect for justice and freedom, will enable tormented generations to march forth serene and triumphant from the hideous epoch in which we have to dwell. Meanwhile never flinch, never weary, never despair!

Tug Of War And Peace

Classical Hassle

One Vote For Old Festus

Editor:

"Long lines of cliff-breaking have left a chasm (between Chapel Hill and me) and in that chasm are foam and yellow sand." There is nobody, I fear, on this side now living in Chapel Hill, but Dr. A. Henderson. I am accustomed, however, to speaking to small audiences. Maybe some few might be interested in the history of Chapel Hill. So it is Dr. Henderson's fine letter of the 25th in re the origin of the familiar quotation and by Tom Dunstan, the Negro barber, to Dr. Alderman: "Much learning hath made thee mad."

Dr. Alderman needs no reminder, Tom probably does. He was the most interesting Negro I ever saw. White to about the fourth or fifth degree. I knew him in the summer of '93. He was continually handing out something like that quoted by Dr Henderson as being the word of Epaminondas to Themistocles. His sayings were quoted by banquet speakers provoking laughs for their unique wit and ridiculous displays of assumed learning. Dr. Manning often stopped in the shop on his way mornings to class to get a shave or a trimming to the little fringe left around the lower edges of his classical Roman-centurion head, and entertained the class with Tom's "latest". He was a great barber, had a revolving sort of a roller, beating anything the Fuller Brush Company ever saw as a head scratcher and cleaner.

What reminded me so refreshingly of Tom, as I read Dr. Henderson's letter, was that he was reputed to have said he owned the only Bible in Chapel Hill except the big one on top of the pulpits. Nobody appeared to believe it but many saw signs of its truth and its adumbrations have thrown shadows over some minds. Dr. Henderson's letter serves to revive the query: "Are there no Bibles in Chapel Hill?" Nobody expects any, in connection with the University nor with the learned that nestle around universities, but I heard a sound from the campus that there was a time and place "where there was no Greek nor Jew; no male or female" to support the Christian necessity that Negro and white children ought to be mixed up in North Carolina school houses and knowing tht the words were quoted from the writings of St. Paul I thought probably somebody had imported one since Tom's departure. The thought is discouraged by the Henderson letter.

The foremost scholar of Chapel Hill's present generation, and especially a great antiquarian, pores over musty volumes of ancient lore hidden way back in the archives of forgotten centuries to find out that old Petronius, Nero's arbitrator (whatever that means) is said to have spoken or written to somebody (whoever that was) some short time before the year 66 A.D., that being the year of his best act—his suicide—(and a great act indeed it would have been if he had thought to give old Nero a sure shot next before that to his own body).

It is not impossible that Festus could have picked up the expression while in Rome soon before the hearing before Agrippa, but it is also not impossible that Petronius who died 4 years after the Agrippa-hearing, could have heard even in detail about the great hearings and speech of the Apostle. I vote for old Festus. See Acts 26-23. If Dr. Henderson had thought of it, I believe he would too. The stage setting is so very inviting to just exactly such an explanatory speech. Paul's learning and eloquence had just recently made old Felix tremble and spellbound Agrippa was exclaiming: "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian". It was exactly the moment, and fully calculated to produce the statement quoted at the above citation. With great deference to the letters of the many learned men who wrote Dr. Henderson it is to be noted that the Agrippa hearing and its associated incidents and events were not written for that type of men, hence their reason and excuse for exploring the resources of classical literature and overlooking the little matters in Tom Dunstan's Bible.

H. S. Ward,
Washington, N. C.

The Big Job Nobody Wants

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON—To judge from the way the Democrats are talking nowadays, they are going to have to hit somebody over the head and drag him unconscious into the Convention Hall, in order to find a candidate to run against President Eisenhower in 1956.

All, or nearly all, the leading Democratic professionals believe that the President is sure to run again. All, or nearly all, believe that he is sure to win. According to reliable report, both beliefs are largely shared by Adlai Stevenson, who is accounted way out in front for the Democratic nomination.

Those who know Stevenson well believe that he really has not made up his mind whether he wants the nomination, and that, characteristically, he won't make up his mind until he has to. They also believe that, if Eisenhower still looks as strong then as he does today, Stevenson will try to avoid being nominated if he can honorably do so. There is, after all, nothing very tempting about being Eisenhower's sacrificial lamb twice hand-running.

There are even Democrats who claim (their voices audibly vibrant with hope) that Eisenhower is determined to retire, full of honors, at the end of this term. They profess to believe that the thing is already settled (that the President has tapped Chief Justice Earl Warren for the nomination; and that it was to make sure that Warren would accept the poisoned chalice that Attorney General Herbert Brownell flew out to California to see him before his appointment was announced.)

Yet this sort of Democratice speculation has a certain, hollow, whistling-in-the-dark sound. It contrasts sharply with the sound of happy confidence in the voice of one of the House Republican leaders, who remarked recently: "Of course Ike will run, and of course he'll win. He's the greatest politician in the country, as great as Franklin Roosevelt ever was — greater, because nobody's sore at Ike."

Maultsby Tires But Holds Terps; UNC Wins, 10 To 5

Long, Lloyd, Gravitte Hitters As Carolina Wins First ACC Tilt

Stone Or Raugh Will Get Mound Duty Today Against Spartans At Emerson, 3 O'clock

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Tom Maultsby, the big Tar Heel righthander, weakened in the ninth inning but managed to go the distance and record his first triumph of the season as the Tar Heels topped Maryland, 10-5, in Emerson Stadium yesterday.

The victory was Carolina's first against conference competition and now gives the Tar Heels an even split in two games against loop foes. They have now a 2-2 overall record.

Maultsby was touched for two runs in the first inning but after that, the Terrapins played dead until the ninth inning. During the middle seven frames, Maultsby shut out the Terrapins allowing just three hits.

TOM WENT into the ninth with a comfortable 10-2 lead but before the inning was over, the Tar Heel coaches must have worked up a good sweat. A single by John Johnson, a triple by Bob Murray and another one baser by Bill Calder greeted Maultsby. With the score 10-4, Maultsby threw out Ralph Ward on a tap to the box, Calder advancing to second on the play. Paul Deloian then hit a single to right scoring Calder with the fifth Maryland run. Jack Doane looked at a third called strike to become the second out of the inning and just when everyone was set to go home for supper, Ernie Berliner beat out a hit to short. This brought up Bill Walker, who had already blasted a home run in the first inning. Maultsby fired and Walker flied to left fielder Bobby Paller to end the game.

The Tar Heels will play host to the Michigan State College nine this afternoon in a game scheduled for 3:00 in Emerson Stadium. Jimmy Raugh, with a 1-1 season's record will probably toe the hill for the Tar Heels in the inter-sectional battle. If Raugh doesn't work, the nod may go to sophomore Art Stone.

DICK IDZKOWSKI, Michigan State righthander, may be on the mound this afternoon for the Spartans when they meet the Tar Heels at Emerson Stadium. Game time is 3 o'clock. Art Stone is the probable North Carolina starter.

In the Terp first inning, after Paul Dilloian struck out to start the game, Doane laced a single to left field, swiped second and when Carolina catcher Jimmy Love threw the ball into center field for an error, Doane continued on to third. Berliner followed with a loft to left field and Doane came in after the catch to give the Terps the first run of the ball game. Walker, the Terrapin right fielder and clean up batter, blasted a long drive to right centerfield that sailed far over Kelelr's head for an inside-the-park home run.

That was Maryland's offensive until the ninth inning.

The Tar Heels came right back in the first inning to tally three times and take the lead which they never relinquished. Harry Lloyd started it off with a double to right and he moved to third when Albert Long got his first of three hits, a single off the third baseman's glove.

KELLER SENT another roller to third and third sacker Jack Morgan again couldn't find the handle on the ball, loading the bases. Morgan was then relieved of further duty at third base by Coach Burton Shipley. Gravitte got a free pass to force in the first Tar Heel run and Will Frye and Paller got the same treatment and the Tar Heels had a 3-2 lead.

Long was the batting star for Carolina with three for five, knocking in two runs and scoring two. Connie Gravitte and Lloyd also collected two hits apiece for UNC. Connie also knocked in two of the Tar Heel runs and Lloyd scored a pair.

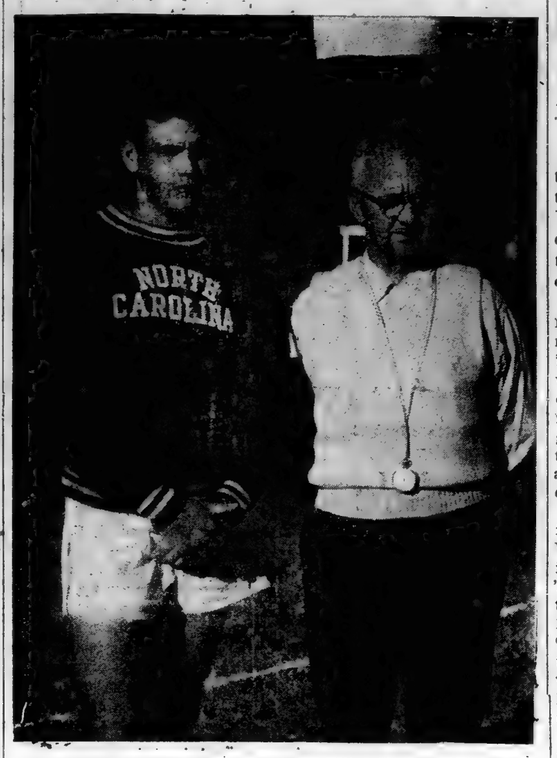
Dixie Tourney Scouts' Haven Next Thursday

Carolina Foe Rollins Boasts Fine Prospects

Durham will become the focal point of the nation for major league baseball scouts next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, as each club sends its top ivory hunters to town to survey the many fine prospects who will be on display as their teams compete for the first annual Dixie Baseball crown.

Rollins College of Winter Park, Fla., boasts some of the finest pro prospects in the eight-team field. Right at the top of the list is veteran hurler Art Brophy. Brophy never lost a college game in his first two seasons with the Tars including the NCAA College World Series last season in which the Tars were runners-up for the national title.

Bill Cary, another Rollins southpaw with an impressive 8-1 record last season, will be another feature attraction. Cary posted a 1.57 earned run average and was named for third team All-American honors.



Outfielder Connie Mack Butler, also of Rollins, is a second-string All-American who led his team in hitting, home runs, runs batted in and runs scored. He is playing his final year.

Second baseman Don Paiva and first baseman-outfielder Elmer Lott, both outstanding freshmen, will also come in for their share of attention from the talent scouts.

North Carolina's Tar Heels will take on Rollins in the first round Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

IN THE BIG FOUR area there are a number of fine prospects. Carolina has its second baseman Harry Lloyd and hard-hitting Connie Gravitte. State is high on second baseman Jack Turney and catcher Eddie West, who is better known for his football abiltiy. Wake Forest boasts a hard-hitting trio in catcher Linwood Holt and outfielders Luther McKeel and Frank McRae. Duke claims that shortstop Dick Brewer should be high on any list.

Hugo Guidotti of Yale, a first baseman-outfielder, is another visiting player certain to be looked over thoroughly by the scouts. Guidotti has led the Yale team in hitting for the past two seasons.

DON WRIGHT, quarter-mile ace of the Carolina track team, discusses strategy for today's meet with Coach Dale Ranson. The Tar Heel thinclaids take on N. C. State's Wolfpack at 2 o'clock at Fetzer Field.

Netters Again Beat Dartmouth, Face Swarthmore Here Today

The Carolina tennis team, which trounced Dartmouth yesterday for the second time in two days, will take on Swarthmore this afternoon on the varsity courts.

The match is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Today's contest will mark the toughest test for the Tar Heels thus far, though Swarthmore by no means presents a great problem.

The team's strength may be found in one man, Tim Coss, who holds the eastern intercollegiate championship. Coss today will probably meet Herb Browne in the No. 1 match.

Browne and Coss have tangled four times in previous competition, with Coss winning thrice. Coss beat the Tar Heel last year when he reached the quarterfinals of the national tournament.

Yesterday's win over Dartmouth, 9-0, was another breeze for Carolina. All of the Tar Heels, in both singles and doubles, won in straight sets.

The summaries:

Singles: Payne beat Kerr, 6-1, 6-3; Browne beat Anzel, 6-1, 7-5; Kerr beat Buswell, 6-0, 6-4; Bradford beat Smith, 6-1, 6-3; Bortner beat Jenks, 6-2, 6-4; Thompson beat Gale, 6-0, 6-4.

Take Home a Bible for Mom

Before you head for home, stop in the old Intimate Bookshop, and pick a suitable book for Mom in our religious section. The surprised delight in her eyes will be a lasting reward.

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

Beatty-Shea Mile-Run Duel Seen Today In State Meet

By RAY LINKER

UNC track fans will get their first view of the Carolina team at full strength when the Tar Heels toe the line at 2 o'clock this afternoon against the Wolfpack of N. C. State on the Fetzer Field track here.

Both the varsity and freshman clubs of the two schools will meet, with each freshman event being run immediately after its varsity counterpart. All six field events except the discus will commence at 2 o'clock. The discus will get under way following competition in the other field events, and the mile run at 2:30 will kick off the nine-events track slate.

IT WILL BE the first dual meet for both Tar He elclubs, while the Wolfpack varsity will be seeking its first win in two outings. The 'Pack lost its opener Tuesday to the Camp Lejeune Marines, 112½-18½.

Both clubs had a few representatives in the Florida Relays a week ago, which saw the Tar Heels finish second and the State men 11th.

State's varsity will be paced by their distance men Mike Shea (mile and two-mile), Bob Jones (880 and 440), and Dave Miller (conference two-mile champion) and hurdler Arthur Scott.

Jim Wheat in several field events will head the State Frosh.

THE UNC FRESHMEN's best events today will be the distances and the hurdles. Everett Wheatley, Ben Williams, and Richard Riggsbee are expected to cop a distance event each for the Tar Babies, while Gene Drury will be out front for them in both hurdles. Ronnie Austell, Greg LeNeave, Jim Varnum, and Mac Patton, along with several others, will pace the Tar Babies in the shorter runs.

Top men for the Tar Heels by events will be as follows: 100-yard dash—Don Mitchell, Ed Sutton, Jim Bynum, and Jay Zimmerman; 220-yard dash—Mitchell, Bynum, and Larry McMullen; 440-yard run—Don Wright, John Whitehead, and Richard MacFaddin: 880-yard run—Boyd Newnam, Bill Booth, and Larry Thames; Mile run—Beatty, Ed Joyner, Dave Weil, and possibly Newnam; Two-mile run—Barden, Glenn Nanney, Marion Griffin, and probably Beatty; 120-yard high hurdles—Charlie Scott and Claude Rhule: 220-yard low hurdles—Scott, Rhule, and Bob Wilson; Pole vault—Charlie Yarborough: High Jump—Ken Bryant, Wilson, and Hilliard Greene; Broad Jump—Yarborough, Wilson, and Greene; Javelin — Steve Marcinko, Bob Bryan, and George Stavnitski; Shot Put — Morris, Larry Maslow, Johnny Jones, and John Bilich; Discus throw—Morris, Roland Perdue, Jones, and Ralph Beaver.

BERMAN'S

Offers Many Items in the Field of SPRING CLOTHING TO THE WOMEN

1 Lot RUGBY SAMPLE

Bathing Suits

in lovely prints, solids, polka dots. The prettiest Berman's has ever had to offer.

NOW AT

½ Price

in a large range of prices.

Monkey Suits

perject for rollicking on the beach

just 5.95

Play Shorts, Peddle Pushers, Slacks, Walking Shorts SUITS, SKIRTS, DRESSES as fresh as spring

Just Arrived! CHILDREN'S COATS and matching caps and gloves. Solid red or blue.

Children's Play Suits LITTLE BOY'S SUITS Short pants and dressy outfits for Easter. Just right for the coming Spring weather.

BERMAN'S

DEPARTMENT STORE

GOING TO THE BEACH OVER VACATION?

Then stop in here first and choose from among our large stock of playtime necessities.

Samsonite Luggage

practically indestructable. Perfect for beach travel. OTHER LUGGAGE AT POPULAR PRICES.

Khaki & Black

Cotton Pants

STRAP IN THE BACK

only 4.98

Cotton Cord Pants

3.98

Bathing Suits

in colorful prints and patterns

2.98

SPECIAL!!

WHITE GYM SHORTS

1.00

Beach Towels

29x58 ..... for 1.98
36x72 ..... for 2.98
Cannon 36x72 reduced from 2.48 to

1.98

Perfect for walking in the sand.

Huskies Moccasins

only 3.98

WALKING SHORTS

for men and boys

BERMAN'S

DEPARTMENT STORE

Winner of 8 Academy Awards

1 BEST PICTURE OF YEAR
2 BEST ACTOR
3 BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS
4 BEST DIRECTOR
5 BEST CINEMATOGRAPHY (Black and White)
6 BEST SET DECORATION
7 BEST STORY AND SCREENPLAY
8 BEST FILM EDITING

FIRST TIME AT POPULAR PRICES

Last Times Today

SUNDAY - MONDAY

UNTAMED! UNCONQUERED! A SAVAGE WORLD OF EXOTIC SPLENDOR!

In The Majors

Indians Liked In American Flag Race

NEW YORK, April 1 (AP) — The Cleveland Indians are the pick to capture the American League pennant for the second straight year because they have more and better pitching and greater power than any of the other seven clubs.

The runnerup spot must go to the New York Yankees whose wealth of talent everywhere but in the pitching department makes them far superior to any of their rivals with the exception of the Indians. Only the uncertainty of their pitching keeps the Yankees from being a match for the defending champions.

The hustling, aggressive Chicago White Sox, with abundant pitching, a well-knit defense but inadequate power, don't appear to be in a class with the Indians and Yankees but they are much too strong for the others. The rest of the league can be divided into two groups, with Boston, Detroit and Washington battling for the remaining spot in the first division and Baltimore and Kansas City struggling to stay out of the cellar.

Columbus was lucky — how about you?

COLUMBUS was brave, skillful and patient. Also, very lucky. He put to sea on borrowed money, trying for a western route to India, and stumbled across the New World.

Most people never look for that kind of luck—and they're right. To really reach your goal in life—financial independence, let's say, or a home of your own—it takes careful planning and systematic saving.

Today, 8 million Americans have found a much surer, easier route to their goals than Columbus ever dreamed of—saving for the future through the Payroll Savings Plan.

Decide now to make your dreams come true—through the Payroll Savings Plan

When you sign up for Payroll Savings, you ask your pay office to save out part of your check each payday. This money's automatically invested for you in interest-earning U. S. Series E Savings Bonds. If you sign for just $3.75 a week, in 9 years, 8 months, you'll have $2,137.30! No wonder 8 million Americans are using Payroll Savings! Why not join them—today?

If you want your interest as current income, ask your bank about 3% Series H Bonds which pay interest semiannually by Treasury check.

Saving is simpler than you think —with U. S. Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan!

The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertising. The Treasury Department thanks, for their patriotic donation, the Advertising Council and

DAILY TAR HEEL

Y Forum Talks About Bills Before Congress

By EBBA FREUND

The Effective Citizenship Forum, sponsored by the YMCA Social Responsibility Commission, met yesterday afternoon and discussed three bills presently up before Congress.

Ray Hartsough, AFSC consultant on UMT, led the discussion on a compulsory reserve bill, which is now in committee. This new bill, said Hartsough, would replace the four-year draft extension which passed the House and will come before the Senate April 14.

The new bill calls for eight years of service, including compulsory membership in the reserves.

Under this new law, explained Hartsough, several choices would be open. First, a man could participate in the modified UMT program, going in for six months and serving in the ready reserves for seven and one-half years.

Or, said Hartsough, he could enlist or be drafted. The longer a man is in the active service, the less time he must spend in the ready reserves. For example, a man who has spent five years in service may go directly into the stand-by reserves, he said.

Miss Helen Demerath, past president of the Chapel Hill League of Women Voters, led the discussion on two bills.

The first bill she took up was the Trade Agreements Act, which is now in the Senate.

Miss Demerath pointed out that the Senate is tacking on several "serious amendments" to the bill which will cause the U.S. to take a "big step backward in foreign economic policy."

The other bill Miss Demerath discussed was the United Nations Technical Assistance bill. Congress is slashing appropriations, she said.

Both speakers urged that students contact their representatives in Washington and let these men know how the students feel about these bills now up.

TOY CHICKS
for EASTER
• •
Fluffy baby chicks
to symbolize Easter.
See them at
DANZIGER'S

LATE SHOW TONITE

NOW PLAYING
Carolina

Recreation To Be Topic Of Confab Here

Any students who are interested in attending the second Southern Regional Conference on Hospital Recreation to be held here from tomorrow until Wednesday may register in the Morehead Planetarium Building from 7 until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Registration for students will be $1.

The conference will be attended by recreation personnel from about 10 southern states. Dr. Harold D. Meyer, UNC professor of sociology, is conference director.

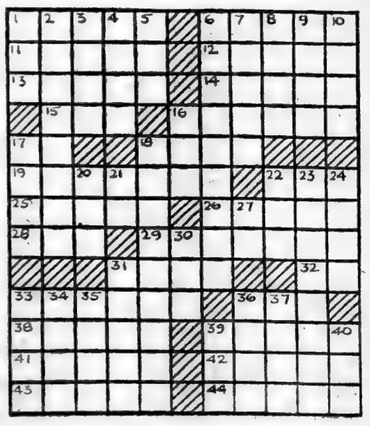
The Recreation Club, composed of UNC students, is giving coffee breaks in the Rendezvous Room of Graham Memorial at 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday during the conference.

Four main areas of study during the meeting will be mental and emotional ills, physical ills, in-service training and research.

TWO CONNIE MACKS

When North Carolina and Rollins College meet in one of the openers of the Dixie Baseball Classic at Durham there will be opposing players with the same baseball first-and-middle names. They are Connie Mack Gravitte of the Tar Heels and Connie Mack Butler of the Tars. Wonder whom they were named after?

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Meager
6. Small open pies
11. Full of holes
12. Name for God in Book of Job (Bib.)
13. Wrath
14. Girl's name
15. Craze
16. A comblike part (Zool.)
17. Gold (Her.)
18. Short stocking
19. A showy flower
22. Gain
25. Sultan's decree
26. Glistened
28. Placed
29. City (Pa.)
31. Pieces out
32. A conjunction
33. Paid back
36. Fabulous bird
38. River in Italy
39. Flutter
41. Excavates for ore
42. Goddess of peace
43. Begin
44. Canvas shelters

DOWN
1. Shinto temple
2. A fellow member of a fraternity
3. Seaweed
4. Require
5. Norse god
6. Broadcast by television
7. Exclamation of dismay
8. Defeat attended by disorderly flight
9. Biblical weed
10. Member of a Mongoloid tribe
16. Hawaiian food
17. Sashes (Jap.)
18. Most furtive
20. Gun (slang)
21. Old Dutch (abbr.)
22. Court
23. Not guilty
24. Close to
27. Exclamation
30. Guided
31. Anxious
33. Male sheep
34. Prepare for publication
35. The pine-apple (S.A.)
36. Infrequent
37. Baking chamber
39. Humor
40. Property (L.)

FRAN		BANG				CRORE		ACARA
RAINY		LOSES				OGLE		SACHET
NE		SANK		DE		ERRATIC		TYR
		AEC		THI
ASP		DYNASTY				UT		AGAG		OO
GOSSIP		BARK				SLOPE		NACRE
RILES		ORRIS				DENT		WEED

Yesterday's Answer

SPONSORS (top) ALLEY, CURRIN, BERNARD, (below) CRAWFORD, KIZER
... with Theta Chi officers at Dream Girl dance tonight

Theta Chis Schedule '55 Dream Girl Dance

The highlight of Theta Chis' Girl Dance to be held here tonight will be the announcement of the Dream Girl of 1955.

The dance will be held in the ballroom of the Carolina Inn beginning at 9 o'clock. Roy Cole and his orchestra will supply the music.

The fraternity began their festivities with a buffet supper at Smith's Lake last night.

Theta Chi's social committee is composed of David Pace, William Suttle, red West and Ben Mangum.

The dates of the fraternity's officers, shown above, are left to right top row, Miss Barbara Alley, Burlington, with Malcolm Harding, secretary; Miss Ginger Currin, Meredithville, Va., with Kent Thompson, treasurer; Miss Mary Bernard, Chevy Chase, Md., with David Pace, social chairman, and, second row left to right, Miss Hazel Crawford, Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., with Clinton T. Andrews Jr., president, and Miss Dotty Kizer, Brevard, with Steve Marcinko, vice-president.

George Talks Medicine

UNC's Health Affairs Division is, as are all cultural achievements, more than "the lengthened shadow of a man" but rather a "tapestry" formed from the contributions of many men, Dr. W. C. George of the Medical School said here last night.

Addressing the annual initiation banquet session of Alpha Omega Alpha medical fraternity, the well-known professor of histology and embryology and former chairman of the UNC Anatomy Department, said "cultural achievements are outgrowths of society, rather than one man's efforts, and are, in a high degree, dependent upon the quality of the general population from which they emerge."

SEGREGATION PETITION

Dr. George is initiator of an anti-integration petition which was recently passed around Orange County and submitted to Governor Hodges and the state Legislature. Dr. George's petition held that Negroes are biologically inferior to whites.

Following Dr. George's address on "Society, Ideas and Cultural Achievements," the fraternity named to honorary membership Dr. Hubert Ashley Royster, Raleigh, emeritus professor and former dean of the UNC School of Medicine when it was located in Raleigh, and initiated 10 medical students into its Gamma chapter.

Seven senior medical students who received keys and certificates of membership were Edgar Chandler, Thomasville; Samuel Jenkins Jr., Tarboro; Robert Jordan Jr., Edenton; Thomas Moore, Rutherfordton; Oliver Roddey Jr., Charlotte; Robert Summerlin Jr., Mount Olive, and Alexander Webb Jr., Rocky Mount.

Three third-year students were also initiated: William Harris, Henderson; Wade Brannan Jr., Dunn; and Adam Thorp Jr., Rocky Mount.

Sam Joyner, Kernersville, chapter president, said membership is based on high scholastic attainment during medical studies.

HEALTH PROGRAM

Dr. George cited the names of a number of prominent North Carolina medical men, as well as governors, under whose leadership the health program was founded.

He noted that the Health Affairs Division's development, guided by Dean W. Reece Berryhill, "has a broad foundation" in the lives of such men as Drs. Thomas Harris, Richard Whitehead, Issaac Manning, Charles Mangum, William MacNider, and Governors Broughton, Cherry and Scott.

"The distinctive design of the tapestry of any epoch is largely determined by the dominant idea of that epoch, which in the modern world is to understand and control the natural world," he said.

—Humphrey—

(Continued from Page 1)

"Whatever decision we make must be in concert with others, we must not stand alone in this area, nor can we condone statements by responsible political leaders to the effect that no white troops will be used if we should defend the offshore islands."

Senator Humphrey, who is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations as well as those on Agriculture and Forestry, Small Business and Government Operations, suggested a "thoughtful reappraisal" of present foreign relations.

"Instead of alienating our friends through diplomatic blunders geared to domestic political expediency, now more than ever we should be seeking to strengthen our ties of unity and solidarity with our allies and to maintain a common front for preservation of the free world," he said.

EVERY EFFORT

"We should bend every effort to convince Asia our purpose is peace, not war—development, not exploitation," Humphrey said, scoring the use of a "big club in threats to use atomic warfare."

Humphrey asserted that "instead of letting the Communists choose their own grounds for a new international 'showdown,' where we may be forced to stand alone, we should be taking in initiative in diversionary moves of our own to put the Kremlin on the defensive and upset its carefully calculated timetable of Pacific strategy."

DROVES AT CAROLINA

Dan Droves, former star District halfback of Washington, D.C., is in school at the University of North Carolina this semester, and will be a candidate for the freshman football team next fall.

STUDYING DENTISTRY

Dick Wiess, former star University of North Carolina football and baseball player, who at one time considered baseball as a career, is back in school and studying dentistry.

CLASSIFIEDS

THE CAROLINIANS ORCHESTRA
Call 3711. Write Box 902.

MEMORIALS: Large stock cut from Allen and Winnsboro Blue Granite. All work guaranteed. Terms if desired. Buy direct from yard and save agents and salesmens commission. Siler City Monument Co., Siler City, N. C., J. S. McIver, Owner and Manager.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate .Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

Covering The Campus

The Cosmopolitan Club will meet tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Doak on Farrington Road.

Members will meet at 3 p.m. in Y Court. Transportation will be provided.

The program will be on spring holidays and festivals in different countries.

★

Bev Webb and David Mundy, representing the Dialectic Senate, and John Curtis and Roy Taylor, representing the Phi Assembly, will debate the topic "Is Mercy Killing Right?" tomorrow night at the Canterbury Club meeting. The meeting will be held at 6 o'clock at the Parish House.

★

Episcopal students will begin the observance of Holy Week with the Blessing of the Palms and celebration of the student Eucharist at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Breakfast will be served in the parish house following the service.

Holy Communion will be celebrated each day during Holy Week at 7 and 10 a.m. On Good Friday the Service of the Three Hours will be held from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

★

Gordon W. Blackwell, director of the Institute for Research in Social Science, spoke yesterday on "Progress in Race Relations in the South" at a race relations institute in Birmingham, Alabama, sponsored by the colleges of the state of Alabama.

★

The third and last discussion in the series on "Sex and Marriage" will be held at the Newman Club meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Roland Parker Lounge of GM.

After the discussion, the group will elect officers for the coming year.

★

The Westminster Fellowship will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Presbyterian Church to hear Dr. Rueben Hill speak on "Courtship."

Supper will be served at 6 p.m. for 50 cents.

★

The Splash Club will present a free show entitled "Mississippi Saga" on Tuesday at the Bowman Gray Pool at Woollen Gymnasium.

The show will be given at 8 p.m. Twenty University coeds will be the participants in the show. Miss Ann May is president of the Splash Club.

★

The Philological Club will hold its annual joint meeting with the Erasmus Club of Duke University on Monday. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Green Room of East Duke Building.

★

The Duke University School of Law has announced competition for five $1,000 scholarships to be awarded to North Carolina and South Carolina residents for study of law at Duke.

The scholarships are awarded for one year, but are renewable for a period for three years if the recipient maintains an average of B or better.

Scholarship applications may be obtained from the Office of the Dean, Duke University School of Law, Durham, N. C.

★

Tryouts for Julius Caesar, which will be the Carolina Playmakers outdoor production of the year, will be held Monday at 4 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. in the Forest Theatre.

In case of rain, tryouts will be held in Gerrard Hall.

Director Thomas Patterson of the Playmakers staff has requested that candidates choose and prepare to read a 24- or 30-line speech from the play.

TV Grant Deadline Extended

A 10-day extension in the filing time for WBT-WBTV scholarships at UNC and N. C. State College in Raleigh has been announced by William C. Friday, secretary of the University, who is handling applications.

"A number of applicants learned of the scholarships too late to meet the April 1 deadline time," Friday said, "and it is hoped that the extension until April 10 will allow them to complete their applications forms for filing."

The Jefferson Standard Foundation gives the annual grants "to encourage and assist worthy students in obtaining college training for a career in radio or television broadcasting," with students from both Carolinas eligible to apply.

Earl Wynn, chairman of the UNC Dept. of Radio, TV and Motion Pictures, who administers the scholarships locally, explained that until this year only one scholarship, valued at $1,250, was given annually, with the recipient having a choice of studying at Raleigh or Chapel Hill.

Hereafter, he said, two scholarships, each worth $625 yearly for a four-year period, will be awarded.

ENCOURAGEMENT

James Donald Michael O'Hara of Neuse, last year's winner, who is now completing his first year at the University in Chapel Hill, today offered a word of encouragement to late applicants.

O'Hara urged students who have had no previous experience with radio and television to apply. He relates how he "stumbled onto the scholarship" and qualified although his only previous experience with radio and TV had been his participation in the two-week High School Radio-TV Institute held each summer at the University in Chapel Hill.

O'Hara, who had lived with his family in several western states as well as Northern Rhodesia, Africa, before settling in North Carolina in 1945, had been interested in the entertainment field while in high school — singing, playing the trombone and acting as master of ceremonies at various functions.

"But I had always planned to study law in college, influenced by my grandfather, a lawyer who came over from Ireland many years ago,' O'Hara said.

GIESEKING CONCERT:

Like Butterflies

By ED MYERS

Walter Gieseking, who looked the part in every way, proved himself master of his instrument Thursday night in a concert in Memorial Hall.

Perhaps the most remarkable feat by the 73-year-old German pianist was his magnificent interpretation of the works of the French superlative, Debussy.

The relaxed sounds which flowed from Gieseking's fingers Thursday night could possibly have been the result of a pleasant pre-concert diversion; namely, hunting Chapel Hill butterflies.

The many years of tedious practice cannot, of course, be discounted. But one begins to wonder if this is not something to be studied.

It seems that Gieseking and Dr. Gottschalk, of the University Medical School, are both lepidoterists from way back. Well as everyone knows, lepidopterists will be lepidopterists. So, out came the nets.

Those who saw his concert will not be surprised to learn that the lightning reflexes of Gieseking spelled doom for many-a-happy Chapel Hill butterfly families. Also, several species were added to the collection, started by Gieseking's grandfather.

All thoughts of butterflies were abandoned several hours later when the distinguished and poised Gieseking bowed toward the audience and began his serious and difficult task of interpreting the works of earlier masters.

As Spontaneous as a Robin's Song

There's nothing stuffy about our Easter cards. Touched with the magic of Spring mornings, they're fresh and delightful. Even if you never send cards, your heart will be refreshed if you stop in and just look at these beauties.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franklin St.
Open Evenings

Celanese
Interviewing on Campus
Tues. & Wed., April 5-6

Celanese, a leader in the expanding fields of chemical fibers, plastics, and chemicals, can offer outstanding career positions to qualified graduates. If you will receive a degree in . . .

CHEMISTRY ACCOUNTING
CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

. . . you are invited to see the Celanese representative,
Mr. S. B. McFarlane or Mr. Louis Amato for further career information.

Contact your Placement Office today for an appointment
Ask for a copy of our brochure, "Celanese Careers"
CELANESE CORPORATION OF AMERICA

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U N C Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER
Partly cloudy and mild today with an expected high of 65.

The Daily Tar Heel

STREAM
The Editor's swan song carries him down some mainstreams of the University. See editorial page, p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 132 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, APRIL 3, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Kuralt's Last Paper

With this issue of The Daily Tar Heel, Charles Kuralt winds up his year-long career as editor of the student newspaper.

Kuralt joined the newspaper's staff in September of 1953 and became editor eight months later. He will leave Chapel Hill this June.

Kuralt's editorial page during the past school year featured liberal views on the question of segregation and an attack on Business Administration School policy.

With Tuesday's issue of The Daily Tar Heel, Co-editors Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar will take over. Kraar and Yoder were elected without opposition in last Tuesday's election.

Douglas Scheduled Tuesday

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas will speak at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall Tuesday.

The address will be a part of the regularly scheduled agenda of the Carolina Forum.

Douglas, appointed to the bench during the Roosevelt administration in 1939, is a well-known world traveler and author of several books.

Born in Maine, Minn., the 57-year-old justice received his L.L.B. degree from Columbia Law School in New York in 1925. He has held numerous governmental positions and is the holder of honorary degrees from eight American schools and universities.

In 1918, Douglas, whose fraternities include Phi Alpha Delta, Beta Theta Pi and Phi Beta Kappa, served as a private in the United States Army.

Books by the justice include Democracy and Finance, Being An American, North From Malaya and Beyond the High Himalayas.

As a guest of The Carolina Forum, Justice Douglas will be met by Forum officials at the Raleigh-Durham Airport Tuesday afternoon.

A banquet will be held in honor of the justice immediately preceding the address and a reception in Graham Memorial immediately following the speech.

The Forum, a non-partisan student agency designed to bring speakers of state, national and world importance to the campus, is chaired by Joel Fleishman.

HUMPHREY'S TALK TERMED:

'Major Policy Speech'

QUEMOY & MATSU (Circled) IN FORMOSA AREA
...map from The New York Times

By LOUIS KRAAR

Should the United States defend Formosa offshore islands from attack by Communist China?

When Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) spoke here Friday night, he took one side of this verbal civil war that is being waged in Washington. In that sense the Senator's speech has been called a "major policy speech" by many observers here in Chapel Hill.

Regarding the defense of the offshore island, Sen. Humphrey declared, "It would be nothing short of tragic if a decision to defend the offshore islands should lead to a complete break between ourselves and the free Asian nations," putting himself on record against offshore island defense.

(See HUMPHREY, page 4.)

Forester Says Fowler 'Hampered' In Runoff

"Don Fowler is hampered in this runoff election because, under the election law, he only has $5 left for campaign expenditures," said the independent presidential candidate's campaign manager, Gordon Forester, yesterday.

Forester said the amount is not adequate to present Fowler's "qualifications and ideas to the campus at large."

"This is a definite hindrance, especially since his opponent has approximately $60 of party campaign allotment remaining," said Fowler's campaign manager.

He added that since Fowler is an independent candidate, "He does not have the advantage of the $120 alloted to political parties, and, even if he did, since he is a self-help student, it would be difficult to raise the money necessary."

According to the elections laws, each party is allowed $100, with another $20 added if a runoff election occurs.

"Don is continuing in his efforts to contact every student on this campus in order to give everyone a chance to discuss the problems of student goevrnment," said

(See FOWLER, page 3)

Homesley For 'Collie' For Cheerleader Post

T. C. Homesly, the losing candidate for the post of head cherleader in last Tuesday's election, announced yesterday he is now supporting candidate Collie Collison for the post.

"I feel that he is the better man for the job and will make the best head cheerleader," said Homesly in his statement. "I would appreciate it if all of my friends would swing their support to Collison. I like his ideas and his plans," he added.

Homesly also said he wanted to thank the students who supported him by a write-in vote in Tuesday's election and those who helped campaign and solicited votes for him.

Humphrey's Proposal Is Denounced

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—Senator Knowland (R-Calif) denounced today a Chapel Hill, N.C. proposal by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn) that the United States support India as a replacement for Nationalist China on the United Nations Security Council.

Noting Prime Minister Nehru's assertion that India would not join in if all the rest of the world were fighting, Knowland said in an interview he doesn't believe India deserves the "support of collective security." U. N. members, he said, are pledged to oppose aggression.

Humphrey made his proposal last night in which he accused the Eisenhower administration of "fumbling and faltering" at a time when "the issue of peace and war is the balance" in the Far East.

Support of India, he said, would show this country's interest in Asia. He added that "the Nationalist China of today . . . is weak and not representative of the new Asia."

Humphrey said that the use of atomic yeapons to defend the Queomoy and Matsu Islands might alienate all Asia, and added:

"It would be nothing short of tragic if a decision to defend the off-shore islands should lead to complete break between ourselves and the free Asian nations."

Electronic Abstractions On Exhibit

An exhibition of a new kind of abstract art, by Ben Laposky, Cherokee, Iowa, opened Friday at Person Hall Art Gallery and will continue through April 17. The exhibit consists of 50 photographs of design compositions formed by electrical wave forms, produced in a cathode-ray oscilloscope. The oscilloscope is an instrument which may be compared to a TV receiver. Title of the exhibit is "Electronic Abstractions by Ben F. Laposky." The picture above is copyrighted by Laposky.

Plans Underway For '55 UNC Conference

Plans are underway for the 1955 All-Campus Conference to be held here this spring.

Co-chairmen of the group, Miss Sue Fink and Bev Webb, are busy preparing groundwork for the conference.

The idea for the conference was born last year, when Ken Penegar, campus "elder statesman," suggested the idea to student body President Bob Gorham.

The idea was accepted, and Penegar organized the conference, aided by a commission consisting of Ed Cross, Gene Cook, Henry Lowet, Charlie Wolf and Phin Horton.

Dean of Student Affairs Fred Weaver gave the keynote speech in it he outlined the present policy of the University. Weaver discussed curricular and extra-curricular activities and their place on the University campus.

Participating in the conference were representatives from the student body, faculty and administration. Delegates met and discussed some of the University's most basic problems.

Most of the discussions at last year's conference centered around

(See CONFERENCE, page 4.)

4 From Carolina Win Grants From Fulbright Program

Four University of North Carolina students—one senior, one law student and two Ph.D. candidates—have been selected for Fulbright Scholarships for graduate study abroad during 1955-56, Dr. Sturgis E. Leavitt, campus Fulbright Program adviser, announced yesterday.

Miss Velma Bourgeois, Baton Rouge, La., and Julian E. White Jr., Richmond, Va., are the two doctoral candidates, working in English Renassance literature and French, respectively.

Thomas E. Wilgus, Washington, D. C., a senior majoring in Latin, and Peter G. Kalogridis, Winter Haven, Fla., senior law student, are the other two recipients of the grants, which are among approximately 1,000 given for the year under the U. S. Educational Exchange Program.

Both White and Wilgus will continue their language studies at the University of Paris, while the other two recipients will study in England; Miss Bourgeois at St. Hugh's College, University of Oxford; and Kalogridis at Kings College, University of London. All four will begin their studies next fall.

Selection of Fulbright scholars was made by the Board of Foreign Scholarships, after recommendation by the campus Fulbright committee and the Institute of International Education.

Another UNC graduate, Barton Milligan, Vale, began his Fulbright grant studies in February at University of Sydney, Australia, in the field of organic chemistry. A native of New Jersey, Milligan was working toward a Master's degree in chemistry while at Chapel Hill.

Miss Bourgeois came to UNC in the fall of 1953, after one year's work on her doctorate at Johns Hopkins University. She holds two degree in English literature from Louisiana State University; an A.B., magna cum laude, and an M.A.

She held the President's Scholarship at Johns Hopkins, and has been teaching assistant both at LSU and at UNC. After completion of her doctorate, Miss Bourgeois hopes to teach on the college level.

Wilgus, who will receive his A.B. this summer, will study European comparative linguistics, in which he hopes ultimately to get his doctorate. He plans to return to Chapel Hill or to another American institution for advanced studies after his Fulbright term is completed.

A teaching fellow and part-time instructor since coming to UNC, White holds an A.B. in ancient and modern languages from Randolph Macon College, Ashland, Va., and an M.A. in French and Spanish from the University here.

White completed one year's work on his Master's as the University of Virginia, studying under a Du Pont Junior Fellowship. He possesses reading knowledge of nine foreign languages and speaks fluently French and Spanish.

The fourth recipient, Kalogridis, who will receive his J.D. degree in June, will concentrate on English common law, legal theory and Napoleonic code while at University of London.

After graduation from Davidson College with a B.S. in English constitutional history, Kalogridis began his UNC law studies under a Morehead Scholarship. He is editor-in-chief of the N. C. Law Review, has been vice-president of his law class two terms, and has served in the Law School Legislature.

Bar-Illan Will Return For Concert Tuesday

David Bar-Illan, Israeli, will make his second Chapel Hill appearance Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Hill Hall.

Since his concert in the fall Petites Musicales series last November, Bar-Illan has made his New York debut recital at Carnegie Hall. He performed there in December.

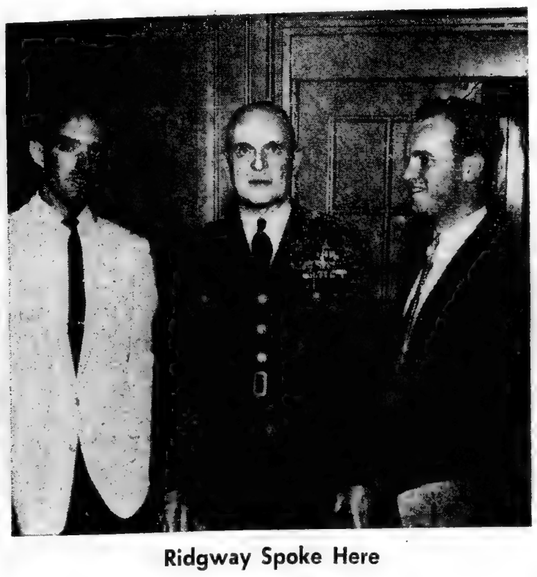
Bar-Illan has a background that includes winning the highest awards given by the Juilliard Conservatory and the Mannes College of Music. In June, 1953, he was the recipient of the Coronation Year medal awarded during the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II of England. That was the first time the medal has been given to pianist who was not a citizen of the Commonwealth.

News Of The Week In Review In Pictures

Queen Palmer

Miss Joan Palmer, junior from Charlotte, was chosen McIver women's dormitory queen at the dormitory's annual spring dance.

Miss Palmer, also winning candidate for student government secretary, was crowned by Chancellor Robert B. House during dormitory festivities on March 25.—Henley photo.



Manager Taylor

Campaign Manager Raymond M. Taylor, who is helping University Party candidate Ed McCurry, checked his man's progress election night. It was 10:30 p.m., and ballot counters were in the middle of a hard night's work.—Kuralt photo.

Fowler's Managers

Don Fowler's managers, Gordon Forester and Dave Reid, phoned in returns to their candidate election night at 11:15 p.m. Fowler and McCurry will vie for student body president in runoff elections Tuesday night. Fowler, former Student Party leader, is running independently.—Kuralt photo.

Ridgway Spoke Here

General Matthew Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, spoke here under the sponsorship of the Carolina Forum. The General emphasized the need for cooperation between military and governmental agencies. "The military man is an advisor and an executor," he said, "not a formulator, not an advocate, with regard to the basic national policies determined by the civilian authorities of the government." Shown with General Ridgway are Bob Young (left), Forum vice-president, and Forum President Joel Fleishman.—Henley photo.

Counting Ballots

Volunteer vote-counter Miss Alix Thacker, aided by frequent Cokes and cigarets, helped determine winners in last Tuesday's election. Over 3,300 votes poured in to Graham Memorial for tabulation. Counters started their work around 8 p.m., and results were known at 4 a.m. Wednesday morning. — Kuralt photo.

'Can't Come In'

Elections Board Chairman Miss Patsy Daniels settled many disputes election night. Above, managers had been barred from the ballot-counting room, and Miss Daniels listened to their plea to be admitted. Despite the skeptical look, she relented. It was 9:40 p.m.—Kuralt photo.

'Aw, Come On . . ."

Head Cheerleader candidate "Pepper" Tice wanted to get in the ballot-counting room. But Elections Board Chairman Daniels wouldn't let him in. Above, Tice stands outside in Graham Memorial's second floor hall, waiting for word on his progress. Tice runs against "Collie" Collison Tuesday.—Kuralt photo.

The Ascendant, Essential Work

From a second-floor window in Graham Memorial, it is possible to understand the tourist's view of Chapel Hill, the quaint town in the pine forest, the ever-changing, ever-charming village.

Last fall's sojourners along the brick walk that leads toward the Post Office wore cord trousers and cotton skirts, changed to overcoats in the winter, and now are back to cord and cotton. The cherry trees, so full of blossoms two weeks age, are bare today, with just the suggestion of new leaves. But the grass is greener and Franklin Street's convertibles have their tops down. The benches before Battle Dorm are filled.

But this is the tourist's town. Beyond the seasonal metamorphosis, there runs a deeper current, more important than color and charm and not dependent upon solstice or equinox: the University's state of mind.

Into this mainstream come the high school graduates of Selma, Charlotte and Pine Bluff and scholars and teachers, bringing their minds. It is a brook that springs out of the home soil. "There is no ivory tower for a state university," Profesor Walter Spearman has written. "Its faculty, its students and its administration belong, rather, to a powerhouse which continually generates ideas for the homes, the schools and the market places of the state."

This is the real University. And how powerful is the powerhouse? How swift is the intellectual current which feeds it?

From one building set in the Piedmont wilderness, the University has become North Carolina's most precious belonging — philosopher, teacher, doctor, sociologist, historian to the state. It has grown great in the sight of the world — and not alone by serving North Carolina, but by leading, with a stubborn liberal vision.

It is that liberalism which many thoughtful people feel to be dimming in the University today; and if it is so, it is a tragic truth, because the freedom from orthodox tenets and narrow, established forms is the spring, the very source of the University's stream of greatness.

Such freedom will not be preserved unless there are those willing to see beyond the tourist town, to understand and believe in an unrestrained and unrestricted University where opinion may be freely told and freely judged, where men of every sort may learn from each other, where no one presumes to dam the intellectual river with logs of dogmatism or bigotry.

Mankind's twin hopes of light and liberty expresed in the University's seal have their home here. That has been assured by generations of great men who, as Dr. Frank Graham expressed it, have "mustered here the resources of the race for the development of the whole personality of the poorest boy." If, as some say, these hopes are now flickering in the great gusts that sweep around the world, they must be shielded.

An endless string of morning classes and afternoon labs does not make a University. Nor does golf in the afternoon, nor the late show at the Carolina, nor architecture, however quaint, nor administration, however efficient.

It takes teachers, and students — both willing to involve themselves in learning. This is the historic work of the world, the grasping for a greater truth.

A rebirth of this spirit is clearly needed by the University, where the high ideal of education is so often reduced to the dimensions of ennui and meaninglessness. And it is not the University alone which requires new dedication.

For today, amid darker shadows that have ever before been perceived by men, the spirit of liberal learning becomes the ascendant, essential work, the world's hope, the world's requisite if life is to continue apace.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editor — CHARLES KURALT
Managing Editor — FRED POWLEDGE
Associate Editors — LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER
Business Manager — TOM SHORES
Sports Editor — BERNIE WEISS
News Editor — Jackie Goodman
NEWS STAFF — Neil Bass, Ruth Dalton, Ed Myers, Woody Sears, Peggy Ballard, Sue Quinn

Carolina Front

Thoughts On Faculty, Coeds & Carolina

Louis Kraar

WITHOUT BREAKING the rules of this day when Dragnet characters talk in hushed monotones and the highest forms of emotion are hidden like sobs in a movie house, this reporter writes his last column today.

At best, writing a colmn each day has been enjoyable. It hasn't been a popular job, for one quickly learns that speaking his mind doesn't win friends or influence coeds.

Campus politics — the subject of perhaps too many columns — comprise an important part of Carolina life. And despite the fact that the candidates this spring offered little other than smiles and generalities, student government is worthy and—at times—exciting.

★

COEDS HERE are, for the most part, drawlly, agreeable creatures who knock themselves out to learn—then strive to hide it from their men.

The Southern girl seems to think if she "y'alls" enough, sits on her grey-flanneled bottom long enough, and smiles sweetly enough, all will be wonderful.

Young ladies like Sue Fink, new Woman's Residence Council chairman, Ruth Jones, outgoing WRC head, and Patsy Daniels, Elections Board chairman, are good examples of what Southern girls can do.

But if the University is going to continue as any kind of coed school, the idle, sweet things are going to learn to quit sweet-talking and start doing.

★

WHILE IMPARTING the little knowledge I've managed to pick up, I should mention the University Administration.

It's not really as bad as you hear about in fraternity row, nor as good as you hear in student government circles. Like the rest of the campus, the Administration finds itself with an almost impossible job of dealing with thousands.

Deans Fred Weaver and Roy Holsten not only talk a good case of student freedom, but they firmly believe in it. And although I've criticized actions of the Administration here, I admire their belief in students and freedom.

★

THE FACULTY is the University.

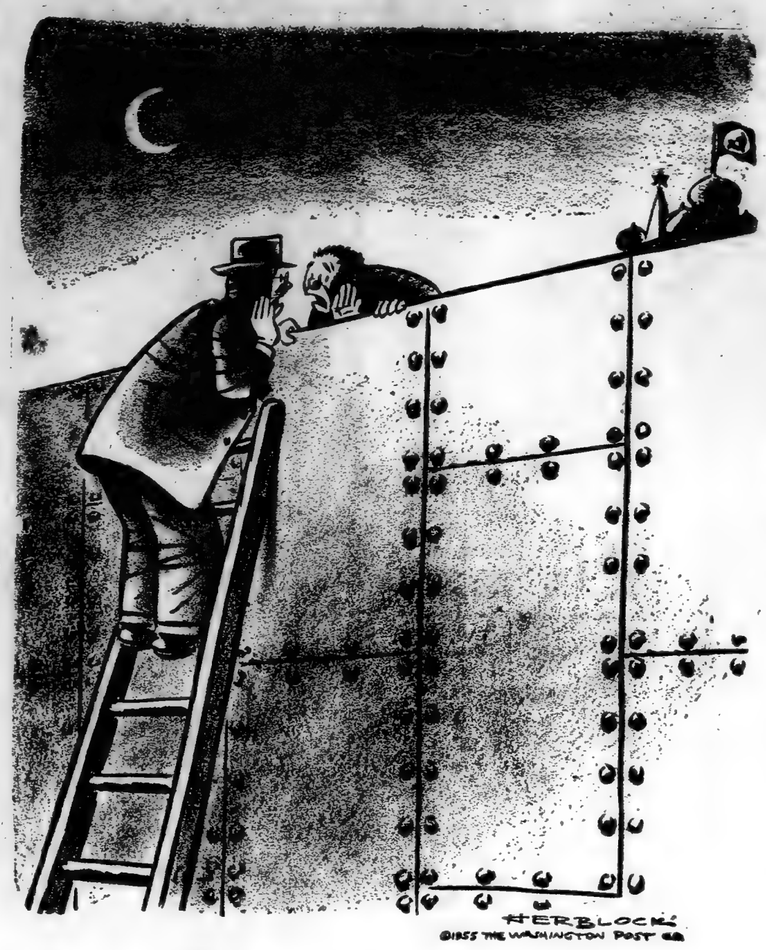
Unfortunately, in our efforts to consolidate, televise, build new Old Wells they've been forgotten. And when the faculty is forgotten, the University is heading down hill.

A recent rule handed down from Chancellor House's office requires professors to teach every day. That means a faculty member doing a piece of research cannot teach all his classes on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, for instance.

While teaching students is probably the main job of a faculty, the continuance of scholarship and research is valuable. It builds up the University's reputation, and, more important, it adds to the world's supply of knowledge.

The Chancellor (or his higher-ups who passed the rule) should realize the importance of research and professors.

★



JIM DUNN, editor of the Carolina Quarterly, will be writing this column starting this Tuesday.

A talented writer with a light touch, Dunn's work (which I've already seen) should be enjoyable.

Although it's corny-sounding, this reporter has to thank his readers and his editor, Charles Kuralt, for bearing with him through seven months of Carolina Fronts.

I may have offended some people during these months, but I've tried to be honest with readers and myself. And that's not always a popular job.

'What Do You Hear About Malenkov?'

Opening Up On Ike

How's The Pitcher Doing?

SEN. W. KERR SCOTT TO THE SENATE:

There is nothing pleasant about reviewing the damage to effective government produced by an administration without firm and effective leadership...

It is time we stopped criticising the batboys and begin to see just what kind of a job the pitcher is doing.

We have a most unique situation around us. As a rule, the subordinates always pass the buck to the higher ups. The underlings always want the boss to make the tough decisions. In the case of the present administration, the exact opposite is true. The boss — the President himself

EISENHOWER
Howzat? Me?-Inept?

— is passing the buck down the lines of command. He, and he alone, can correct this unfortunate situation.

The fears that the President's ineptitude have aroused have grown all over the United States ...It is inconceivable to me how any chief executive can tolerate taking such an important action as release of the Yalta papers without his knowledge or consent.

Lack of control over his administration is made evident by the mere fact that Mr. Dulles would dare take such an action without first consulting the President.

It is with sadness coupled with alarm for the safetly of the country that I view and review the chaos that has been wrought at home and abroad by a government that leaves any and every top level subordinate free to dash off at any tangent he fancies, contradicting the President and canceling out acts and statements of fellow Cabinet officers and highly placed military figures...

Such a pattern cannot help but result in piling up confusion upon confusion and make for a government completely lacking in a sense of responsibility... President Eisenhower is the master architect of this confusion.

SEN. PAUL H. DOUGLAS (ILL.) TO THE SENATE:

The Eisenhower administration has stuttered, contradicted itself and has often been silent in making America's case before the world...

Our nation, which is known for its super-salesmanship, has miserably failed in presenting itself to other nations.

SEN. STUART SYMINGTON (MO.) TO THE SENATE:

The administration's policy in cutting back Army strength is bringing the nation close to nuclear war.

In reducing steadily our ability to fight on the ground, while steadily increasing reliance on nuclear weapons delivered by air, we may well be committing ourselves to a path from which there can be no turning back — world devastation resulting from the use of the hydrogen bomb.

If war should be forced upon us, this country, despite all its continuous boasting about its superior air power, cannot as of today lift and support a single Army division.

GERALD W. JOHNSON IN THE NEW REPUBLIC:

About the year 1911 a young man of Abilene left Kansas and entered the United States Military Academy at West Point; whereupon the Olive Drab Curtain closed behind him and cut him off from civilian life for 40 years.

In the special, insulated world of the services he did well—so well indeed that the brilliance of his record is unsurpassed by that of any American soldier. In the end he commanded in successful battle fore troops than any other captain of any nation at any time, unless perhaps Genghiz or Xerxes may have led as great a host. So he became the choice of a large majority of the American voters for President of the United States, but in accordance with our traditional system it was necessary for one of the major political parties to nominate him. This led to perplexity, for traditionally an American officer has no politics, so the parties had to inquire. Whereupon he replied, "Of course I am a Republican."

The answer evoked some astonishment in 1952, but certainly it would have caused no comment coming from a young man of Abilene in 1911. In Kansas, in 1911, everyone with punch enough to break a paper bag was a Republican.

To become a supreme master of the art of war is an absorbing occupation, affording small leisure for the pursuit of outside interests, such as close scrutiny of the development of political philosophies. This makes it easy to believe that it was the information possessed by the young man of Abilene that was voiced by the old soldier of Ofrica and Normandy and the Rhine.

It explains a great deal if one assumes that the warrior returning to civilian life after 40 years of monastic seclusion of the military world, took it for granted that the parties were as he left them. When asked his affiliation, he may have meant to designate the party of White and Capper and the Rough Rider, the party of vim and drive that had just dethroned Czar Cannon and that was chasing the Money-Changers up telephone poles with all the single-minded devotion of a beagle after a tomcat. Of course he was a Republican. He had courage, hadn't he? And vigor and resolution and dedication to the general welfare?

How then shall one measure his perplexity, or point out to him a dignified and adequate way of escape? If the Republican Party had been what it was in Abilene in 1911—ah, but this is Washington in 1955.

Artists and scholars from Thomas Mann to Oppenheimer have demonstrated woefully that one cannot immure himself in an ivory tower for 40 years without a risk that some thansvaluation may pass unperceived with a resultant malaise of no small importance. It appears now that one cannot retire to a casemate without incurring the same risk; for political parties are scandalously Protean, and the selfsame label that adhered to the cohorts of LaFollette in 1911 sticks to those of Joe McCarthy today.

It's a sad story, mates, but he who can find moral turpitude in it must himself be unbalanced. As the saying goes, it's just one of those things; and it probably serves no better purpose than to set wiseacres to wagging their heads, repeating that all is not gold that glisters, and pointing out that while Lodge and Knowland both remain Republicans, nobody can be one "of course."

Quemoy-Matsu & The National State Of Mind

Edward R. Murrow On CBS

If the United States goes to war with Communist China, and attacks the mainland, as we have virtually promised to do, the Soviet Union may become involved, since the Communist countries are bound by an alliance that calls for mutual assistance. One of the striking features of the situation in Washington, is the complete confidence with which men like Senators Knowland and Bridges assure the public that the Soviet Union will not, or almost surely not, fight on the side of Communist China.

THEY ARE GUESSING

That is no assurance to be given lightly, for if World War results from an American defense of Quemoy and Matsu, the death of vast populations is at stake, in our own country included. These Senators cannot guarantee how the Kremlin will act. They have no intelligence agents inside the Kremlin, and are not recipients of the most confidential information that Soviet leaders possess. And since that is so, they are not speaking from knowledge, they are guessing.

Some such guessing has to be done in the Pentagon and State Departments, since careful estimates are essential even if they remain guesses. But if we could know for certain that the Soviet Union would not fulfill its treaty obligations, it might influence our course toward China. But if we don't know for certain, our lack of information also should influence our course. Yet the Senators, and those of like mind, advise us to act as though we know something we do not know, and urge us to accept the risks, the gravity of which has never been surpassed in history.

A CRUEL DILEMMA

Let me repeat, the crisis is grave enough however it is looked at. If the decision is that the United States will defend Quemoy and Matsu, (and of course, use tactical nuclear weapons) we shall receive no help whatever from any Western Ally, not a gun, plane or warship. Even Canada has served notice on us that it would not help. And we forfeit the goodwill of most of our Allies and most Asians as well. The Western Alliance might even be shattered.

But if, on the other hand, we do not lift a finger to defend the islands, we stand to lose what faith remains in us, first in Formosa, then among all overseas Chinese, perhaps ultimately in Japan and Southeast Asia, with fateful consequences. This is a ghastly choice, and one that foresight could have saved us from. We did not have the foresight. And now we confront a cruel dilemma.

But in weighing the consequences, in the train of either alternative, something has to be considered that is on a par with the military and political factors. It is the state of mind of most Americans. If we are going into a major war, perhaps a world war, the American people, if they are going to endure a hard fight, must know what issue carried them into the war, and approved of the decision to fight.

NO NATIONAL CONVICTION

A Gallup poll published yesterday shows that the ignorance of Americans over Quemoy and Matsu is no less than appalling. Of the 77 percent who had even heard of the islands, only 10 percent knew who held them, and only 14 percent knew that they were 30 miles or less from the China mainland. Of the 10 percent who knew who held them, 5 percent favored giving Chiang Kai-shek a guarantee to help defend them, 4 percent were against it, and one percent had no opinion. And of this 10 percent, 7 approved our having advised the evacuation of the Tachens, 2 were against it, and one had no opinion. This is not the way a national conviction would look.

A war for Quemoy and Matsu would express the conviction of a tiny fragment of the American public. And President Eisenhower's great hold on the American people rests to a considerable extent on the belief that he is a man of peace. These factors surely cannot be the least cogent of those that are to be weighed in Washington this week.

Adlai & Ave

Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON—If Adlai Stevenson wants the Democratic nomination, he can have it for the asking. On this point the shrewdest observers in the Democratic party are now agreed. But they also agree that, if he wants to run, Stevenson will have to pass the word soon—probably by September or October.

No one supposes that Stevenson is going to get up on a rof and shout at the top of his lungs that he wants another try at the White House. There are more delicate ways of making his wishes known.

CITIZENS REBIRTH

For example, a move is already on foot to revive the Citizens for Stevenson organization, on a skeletal basis. But obviously the organization will not be revived without Stevenson's tacit consent. Or take the case of Pat Brown, Attorney General of California. Brown is believed to be the only Democrat with a chance of beating Republican Sen. Thomas Kuchel next year.

Brown has let it be known that he will run only on condition that Stevenson is the standard-bearer. If he is going to run, Brown must begin organizing fairly soon for the primary contest. Thus, if Brown decides to run, or if the Citizens for Stevenson movement is revived, this will be taken by the initiated as a sure sign that Stevenson is going to try again.

SIGNAL FLAGS SPELL 'YES'

There are plenty of other signal flags which Stevenson can hang out, and which the initiated can read without a code book. If the signal flags spell "yes"—and if they are hung out fairly soon—that wil be that, in the now almost universal opinion among informed Democrats.

This is not because Stevenson is universally loved in his Party. He is not. But he is at least reasonably acceptable to most sections of the Party—more so than any other candidate presently visible. Thus a fight, inevitable in the case of any other candidate, can be avoided if Stevenson "goes".

Another reason why Stevenson can have the nomination for the asking—if he asks soon enough—is that the prize is not thought to be worth a great deal. The great majority of Democrats privately believe that, in a repeat of the 1952 race, Stevenson would be beaten again, perhaps worse than last time. But they think anyone else would be beaten worse than Stevenson.

Suppose the Stevenson signal flags read "no—but I'm for Averell Harriman." They are much more likely to read this way than a simple "no." According to reliable report, on their recent get-together in Albany, Stevenson and New York's Gov. Harriman reached an unspoken agreement, by a sort of mental telepathy. This telepathic understanding, put into words, might read about as follows:

ADLAI COULD HELP AVE

Harriman: I'm for you if you run, Adlai, but I'm for myself if you don't.

Stevenson: I'm for you if I don't.

Stevenson might well be able to put Harriman across, if he had a mind to. As Governor of the biggest state, after all, Harriman has a perfectly legitimate claim. He has a useful habit of success. And with Stevenson out, the Northern professionals, like New York's Carmine DeSapio, Pittsburgh Mayor David Lawrence, Connecticut's John aBiley, and Richard Daley of Chicago (who looks like becoming Stevenson's long-sought James aFrley), would be most likely to agree on Harriman. And they might well have the votes to nominate him, over the opposition of the South.

But suppose that the Stevenson signal flags read, "I haven't made up my mind yet," and continue to read that way month after month. Then the situation is likely to start coming apart at the seams. For Democratic observers agree that there is a point beyond which Stevenson cannot hold back—and that point is not many months away.

THE MAN TO BEAT IKE?

If Stevenson delays too long, a process of crystallization around other possible candidates is sure to take place. Harriman, for example, cannot afford to wait indefinitely for Stevenson to make up his mind. Michigan's Gov. G. Mennen Williams is making candidate-like noises already. And if Stevenson delays, a whole series of favorite sons will begin taking themselves seriously as candidates.

But the best bet is that Stevenson will discreetly raise the "yes" signal flag fairly soon. Stevenson is far from unambitious, and he is by now painfully aware that he cannot possibly duck the nomination and hope to survive politically. What is more, Stevenson is now telling all comers that the notion that President Eisenhower is unbeatable is a myth. The clear implication is that he is the man to prove it.

Quote, Unquote

This morning I am borrowing a bit of home work turned in to me on a writing class by Bess Davenport Thompson's daughter Anne—reckon that will hold you, Bob; I know where the gal's brains come from—entitled "A Little Learning."

A college education is a marvelous thing.

Witness these gems turned in by students taking a general information test at the University of Oregon last year:

Fjord—A Swedish automobile.

Iran—Bible of the Mohammedans.

Nicotine—The man who invented cigarettes.

Scotland Yard—Two feet, 10 inches.

There's no use getting smug about it, either. University of North Carolina students are not exactly filled with wisdom. For instance, there was the puzzled young thing who raised bleary eyes from her favorite fashion magazine during Phillips Russell's creative writing class last week. The question was not directed at her, but still, it bothered her. "Dogmatist??" she muttered confusedly. "It means ...uh ...has something to do with a man who runs a kennel, or something."

Still, she looked brilliant beside the blonde with the blank smile who was overheard in Smith parlor. She was an art major; seems she hadn't ever heard the word "syntax."

"Tax!" she inquired in a shocked tone. "I knew it was wrong but I never knew there was a TAX on it!"

We have heard that there was once a student at UNC who thought Hamlet was a way to cook eggs, too.

But we're discouraged enough with the process of education without believing that one.—O.J. in Greensboro Daily News

Gravitte, Woods Homer As Tar Heels Down Spartans, 4-1

THE BEGINNING—Connie Mack Gravitte (right) looks to deep left-center field in the fourth inning of yesterday's game between Carolina and Michigan State at Emerson Field. The Tar Heel had just belted the ball in that direction and takes off for first base. Catcher for State is Russ Luplow and the umpire is Ray Morgan. What's the occasion? See picture to right.

Raugh Allows Eight Hits In Going Route

Carolina, Colgate Vie Here Monday, 3:30

By BERNIE WEISS

Sophomore righthander Jimmy Raugh scattered eight hits over the nine-inning route, and Connie Gravitte and Jack Woods belted a pair of two-run homers to bring in a 4-1 victory over Michigan State yesterday afternoon in the Tar Heels' Emerson Stadium.

Raugh, in hanging up his second win of the year, adequately contained the Spartans, champions of the mid-western Big 10 Conference. Only one of the Michigan State bingles went for extra bases, that coming in the first inning when George Smith doubled to center.

After this Raugh steadied and exhibited near-perfect control. He walked just three Spartans while fanning four.

Carolina, meanwhile, found the offerings of losing pitcher Ed Hobaugh much to its liking. The Tar Heels collected seven hits, but they got the big ones.

Coach Walter Rabb announced yesterday that the Tar Heels will resume action tomorrow at 3:30 o'clock, meeting Colgate University. Art Stone will probably draw the mound assignment for Carolina.

Gravitte's homer in the fourth accounted for all the necessary runs. Kenny Keller led off the inning with a double to left down the foul line, and the Connie collected his third round-tripper of the young season by slamming a 2-2 pitch over the head of Michigan State centerfielder Ray Colard. It was a 400-foot blast.

Woods' homer accounted for the other two tallies in the seventh. With one out, Bob Paller singled to right. Woods then smashed a line drive into left, but the ball took a high hop past Jim Sack and rolled to the retaining wire fence. By the time it could be retrived, Woods had crossed the plate.

THE SPARTANS' only run came in the fifth. Three consecutive singles by Earl Morrall, Ron Stead and Russ Luplow brought in Morrall with the game's first run and the last for State.

Stead and Luplow died on base.

Although Raugh found himself in trouble only this one time, three Carolina double-plays kept the sophomore's sweat-shirt dry. In first, a double and a pass to first put two Spartans on with one away, but clean-up batter John Matsock bounced into a twin-killing. Sack opened the fourth frame with a single to center, but Matsock again grounded into a double-play. The third double-out occurred in the seventh when Luplow mis-judged on a changeup and repeated Matsock's performance.

GRAVITTE WAS the big stickman for Carolina. In addition to his homer, he picked up a pair of singles. Harry Lloyd also got two one-basers. Morrall, stead and Luplow had a pair of singles each and were tops for the losers.

It was the first loss of the year for Hobaugh, who had the top earned run average among Big 10 pitchers last season. Hobaugh had a 7-2 record and was named to the all-Big 10 team.

THE END—It was a home run. Gravitte's blast cleared the reach of centerfielder Ray Collard for an inside-the-park homer. The hit also scored Ken Keller from second and gave the Tar Heels a 2-1 lead. Later in the game Jack Woods homered and Carolina downed the Spartans, 4-1.(Giduz photos)

UNC 4, MSC 1

Michigan State	AB	R	H	O	A
Matthews, 1b	2	0	0	7	1
Smith, 2b	4	0	1	2	3
Sack, lf	3	0	1	1	0
Matsock, ss	4	0	0	2	1
Collard, cf	4	0	0	5	0
Morrall, 3b	4	1	2	1	4
Stead, rf	4	0	2	1	0
Luplow, c	3	0	2	4	0
Hobaugh, p	3	0	0	1	2
Totals	31	1	8	24	11

North Carolina	AB	R	H	O	A
Lloyd, 2b	4	0	2	3	4
Long, ss	4	0	0	1	4
Keller, rf	4	1	1	0	0
Gravitte, cf	4	1	3	2	0
Frye, 1b	3	0	0	13	1
Paller, lf	3	1	1	1	0
Woods, 3b	3	1	1	1	3
Maultsby, c	0	0	0	3	0
Raugh, p	3	0	0	3	2
Totals	31	4	8	27	14

Michigan State	000 010 000—1
North Carolina	000 200 20x—4

E.—none. RBI—Gravitte 2, Luplow, Woods, 2. 2b—Smith, Keller. HR—Gravitte, Woods. SB—Smith. DP—Woods, Lloyd and Frye; Matsock, Smith and Matthews; Raugh, Lloyd and Frye; Llong, Lloyd and Frye. Left — Michigan State 6, North Carolina 4. BB—Off Raugh 3, Hobaugh 1. SO— By Raugh 4, Hobaugh 2. T.—1:54. U.—Morgan and Talley.

SHOWS GREAT PROMISE

Jimmy Love, sophomore from Sanford, promises to have a brilliant career as University of North Carolina catcher. He apparently has nailed down the job this year.

Varsity, Frosh Triumph Over State Thinclads

By RAY LINKER

Both the Carolina varsity and freshman track teams scored more than 100 points each in taking decisive victories over weak N. C. State here on Fetzer Field yesterday.

The Tar Heel varsity team came home first in 12 of 15 events to whallop the Wolfpack by a score of 102½-28½, while the UNC frosh won every event in their 105-26 slaughter of the Wolflets.

One Fetzer Field record and four dual meet records were shattered in the varsity division, and a 26-year old UNC freshman record was erased.

Jim Beatty set the new field record and a dual meet record by winning the two-mile in 9:22, which is also just 1.5 seconds slower than Jack Milne's all-time UNC record set in the 1947 Penn Relays.

Mike Shea, in scoring high for the Wolfpack, displayed a good kick in beating UNC's Bobby Barden in the mile and turned in a 9:35 in the two-mile for second place behind Beatty.

CONFERENCE INDOOR 880 champion Bob Jones took another first for the Wolfpack by winning his speciality in 1:54.2, nosing out conference outdoor champ, UNC's Boyd Newnam.

State's only other first came in the mile relay, in which the Carolina team was disqualified.

Double winners for the UNC frosh were Gene Drury (high and low hurdles), Jim Varnum (100-yd. dash and broad jump) and Bob Allison (shot and discus).

UNC freshman Ben Williams passed teammate Howard Kahn 80 yards from the finish, and went on to win by a step in the 880-yard run with a time of 2:00.5.

EVERETT WHATLEY led from the start in the frosh mile to win in 4:30.7 Richard Rigsbee toured the two-mile distance in 10:02.6.

The varsity summary:

Mile: 1, Shea (NCS), Barden (UNC), Barbee (NCS), 4:24.6; Shot put: 1, Morris (UNC), Maslow (UNC), Jones (UNC), 47' 3"; 440-yard dash: 1, MacFaddin (UNC), Wright (UNC), Wheat (UCS), 51.2; 100-yard dash: 1, Mitchell (UNC), Zimmerman (UNC), Sutton (UNC), 10.1; 120-yard high hurdles: 1, Rhule, (UNC), C. Scott (UNC), Hafer (NCS), 15.1; Javelin: 1, Marcinko (UNC), Bryan (UNC), Wheat (NCS), 181' 9" 880-yard run; 1, Jones (NCS), Newnam (UNC), Booth (UNC), 1:54.2; High Jump: 1, Bryan (UNC), and Wilson (UNC) — tie, 3, Allan (NCS) and Greene (UNC) tie, 5' 10"; 220-yard dash: 1, Mitchell (UNC), McMullen (UNC), Wheat (NCS), 22.2; Broad Jump: 1, Yarborough (UNC), Wilson (UNC), Shea (NCS), 22' 4"; Two-mile run: 1, Beatty (UNC), Allin (NCS) Hafer (NCS), 13'; Discus: 1, Morris (UNC), Beaver (UNC), 145' ⅛"; 220-yard low hurdles: 1, Rhule (UNC), Wilson (UNC), 24.8; Mile relay: N. C. State (Gwynn, Gooding, Scott, Jones), 3:34.2. (UNC disqualified for exhanging baton out of zone).

Edwards Quits Coaching Post, To Wittenberg

Football Line Mentor Obtains 'Pact Release

Bill Edwards, for the past two years a member of the North Carolina football coaching staff, said today he had obtained a release from his contract here to become director of atheletics and head football coach at Wittenberg College in Ohio, his alma mater.

Chancellor Robert B. House and Director of Athletics Chuck Erickson confirmed this and wished Edwards well in his new post. "Bill apparently has a fine opportunity at his alma mater and we did not wish to stand in his way," said Erickson.

Edwards' three-year contract here extended through the 1955 football season. He said he was accepting a three-year contract at Wittenberg with assurance of faculty tenure after he completes work for his masters degree, which he plans to do the coming year.

"I have enjoyed my work here and am sorry to leave," he said, "Especially since I think the development program Coach George Barclay has launched is coming along nicely and is sure to show results soon. I also am mighty sorry to leave a vacancy on Carolina's staff with the season only a few months away."

EDWARDS COACHED principally the ends and centers here, but Barclay said he would be replaced by an offensive backfield coach. "That would enable me to spend most of my time with the offensive line, Marvin Bass with the defenive line and Steve Belichick with the ends and defensive backfield," he said.

Barclay said he did not know when he would be able to fill the vacancy. He has, however, some prospects in mind. Edwards was an all-Ohio linesman at Wittenberg before he graduated in 1931. Since then he has been head coach at Western Reserve, Athletic director and head coach at Vanderbilt four years and also coach of the Detroit Lions and on the staff of the Cleveland Browns, in addition to his two seasons at North Carolina.

Irish Nine Here

North Carolina has added Notre Dame to its baseball schedule, it was announced here today.

The fighting Irish will come here for an afternoon game on Easter Monday after playing in the Dixie Classic Baseball Tournament at Durham.

Coss Beats Browne But Carolina Takes Swarthmore Netters, 8-1

The North Carolina tennis team won its fourth match of the week yesterday, stomping Swarthmore College, 8-1, here.

The only match won by the visitors was the first, when Tim Coss took Herb Browne, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Carolina captain Bobby Payne won his match over Pat Coyle, 6-2, 6-3.

The heavily scheduled squad plays again Monday, meeting Harvard on the varsity courts. Time is 3 o'clock.

Yesterday's summaries:

Singles: Cross (S) over Browne, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2; Payne (NC) over Coyle, 6-2, 6-3; Bradford (NC) over Shane, 6-0, 6-0; Kerdasha (NC) over Haskell, 6-1, 6-0; Bortner (NC) over Katz, 6-3, 6-1; Thompson (NC) over Berger, 5-7, 6-3, 7-5.

Doubles: Browne and Bradford (NC) over Coss and Coyle, 6-3, 6-4; Bertner and Hudgins (NC) over Haskell and Katz, 6-3, 10-8; Kerdasha and Handel (NC) over Shane and Berger, 6-2, 6-1.

BROTHER ACT

The University of North Carolina has a brother act on its baseball team, both of them also football players. They are pitcher Tom Maultsby and catcher Jack Maultsby. They are Chapel Hill boys.

–Fowler–

(Continued from Page 1)

Forester. "This is an almost impossible task, but if he is elected, he will continue to see his fellow students and maintain his efforts to establish a closer relationship between the student body and student government," he concluded.

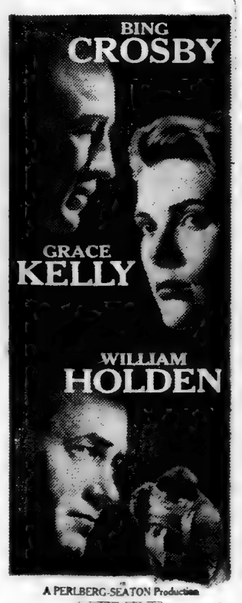
Clemson Tracksters Whip Wake Forest

Clemson, S. C., April 2 —(AP)— Clemson's track team opened it's 1955 season here today opened with an 86 2-3-37 1-3 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Wake Forest.

A trio of Clemson tracksters — Joe Bowen in the high and low hurdles, Cecil Kirby in the shot put and discus and Myles Carter in the mile and half-mile runs— led their team to first places in 11 of the 14 events.

TWO CHAMPS—Ronnie Austell (left) and Jim Beatty, two Carolina trackmen, congratulate each other on their performances yesterday against N. C. State. Austell, a freshman, set a new frosh mark in the quarter-mile race when he ran the distance in 50.2 seconds, cracking the old mark by a full second. Beatty, a varsity distance star, set a Fetzer Field record in the two-mile of 9:22. The Tar Heels easily trounced State, 102½-28½ (varsity) and 105-26 (freshman). (Giduz photo)

Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.



COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18
$12 a day on this exciting ISLAND PARADISE in the Gulf of Mexico
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation . . . miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, this year, the FIRST ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Famed Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, amber jack, blue fish and some 30 other species. For evening relaxation there's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dance contests and college song fests. You'll be treated like a tycoon for $12.00 a day, including breakfast 'til noon . . . and dinner.
BOCA GRANDE
Boca Grande hotel
BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA
COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED
WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS
or contact:
JIM FURCHES
301 Cobb Dorm—9-8000

mid-term graduates and students . . .
4 months in Europe!
February 28th to July 1st . . .
all inclusive price . . . $950
ask for COLLEGE-ON-WHEELS trip folder.

23 summer trips by bike & rail
. . . to North America, Mexico, Europe
. . . 4 to 11 weeks by ship and air, all inclusive prices from $100 to $795
Write For Folder S Or
Call GR 5-5680
a non-profit organization in our 22nd year
american youth hostels
14 west 8th street, new york 11, n. y.

STUDENTS!
More often than not there's room for you in the
G.M. POOL ROOM
Especially at
10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
5-7 p.m.
9-11 p.m.

For a JOB with a FUTURE
Well-educated, alert, ambitious girls who supplement their college education with Gibbs secretarial training are preferred candidates for responsible jobs in every field. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.
Special Course for College Women
KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL
Boston 16, 21 Marlborough St. New York 17, 730 Park Ave
Providence 6, 155 Angell St. Montclair, N. J., 33 Plymouth St.

Carolina
TODAY - MON. - TUES.
THE YEAR'S MOST OUTSTANDING MOTION PICTURE!

A PERLBERG-SEATON Production
THE COUNTRY GIRL

UNTAMED! UNCONQUERED! A SAVAGE WORLD OF EXOTIC SPLENDOR!

TODAY — MONDAY
Varsity

GET YOUR EASTER CARDS
100's TO CHOOSE FROM
EASTER IS APRIL 10
LEDBETTER - PICKARD
ONLY 3 MORE DAYS LEFT BEFORE VACATION
DON'T FORGET!

Covering The Campus

A meeting of Fowler supporters will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge of GM. All those interested in electing Don Fowler to the presidency are invited, according to David Reid.

★

The Pharmacy Senate will meet at 7 p.m., April 12 in Howell Hall.

★

The Philological Club will hold its annual joint meeting with the Erasmus Club of Duke University tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Green Room of the East Duke Building.

★

Episcopal students will begin the observance of Holy Week with the Blessing of the Palms and celebration of the student Eucharist at 9:30 a.m. today. Breakfast will be served in the parish house following the service. Holy Communion will be celebrated each day during Holy Week at 7 and 10 a.m. On Good Friday the Service of the Three Hours will be held from noon until 3 p.m.

★

The third and last discussion in the series on "Sex and Marriage" will be held at the Newman Club meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the Roland Parker Lounge of GM. Election of officers for the coming year will be held following the discussion.

★

The Westminster Fellowship will meet at 7 p.m. today at the Presbyterian Church to hear Dr. Rueben Hill speak on "Courtship." Supper will be served at 6 p.m. for 50 cents.

★

The service of worship at 11 a.m. in Hill Hall today of the Community Church will include baptism and dedication of infants, the regular sermon and a program of music for Holy Week by the choir assisted by soloists and instrumentalists.

★

The full choir will sing at both services of the Presbyterian Church today in observance of Palm Sunday. The services are at 9:45 and 11 a.m. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at both services.

The choir will sing Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates, Hosanna To the son of David, Ah Thou Poor World, A Saving Health To Us Is Brought and Blest Are They.

★

Bev Webb and David Mundy, representing the Di Senate, and John Curtis and Roy Taylor, representing the Phi Assembly, will debate "Is Mercy Killing Right" at the Canterbury Club meeting tonight at 6 o'clock in the parish house.

★

Tryouts for Julius Caesar, which will be the Carolina Playmakers outdoor production of the year, will be held tomorrow at 4 and 8:30 p.m. in the Forest Theatre.

In case of rain, they will be held in Gerrard Hall.

★

The caravan to Wake Forest, sponsored by the Baptist Student Union, will leave from the front of the Baptist Church today at 4:30 p.m.

The Supper Forum, Sunday evening program of the BSU, will not meet tonight because arrangements have been completed for Baptist students to visit the Wake Forest College group.

The UNC Union will be in charge of the program at Wake Forest. The panel discussion to be presented will be under the direction of Clayton Stalnaker, sophomore pre-med student who is head of the Supper Forum committee.

★

The Marine Corps Officer Procurement Team will be on campus on April 13, 14 and 15 to interview students who wish to earn a commission while completing their studies here.

The team will be in the Y Court.

Freshmen, sophomore and junior men are eligible for Platoon Leaders Class. Training is conducted during two six week summer classes. Candidates are payed $149 during the first class and $183 during the second. Members of this class are deferred from induction and are commissioned as Second Lieutenants upon graduation.

—Conference—

(Continued from Page 1)

the students and their studies. Study habits and traditions were examined, and admission requirements were discussed.

Chancellor R. B. House said of the conference, "I think it is even more important that the conference was held than it is to receive a few recommendations. Education has already improved when faculty and students sit down together and examine processes, ways and means."

Members of the administration who attended last year's conference were Miss Katherine Carmichael, dean of women; Fred Weaver, then dean of student affairs, and Ray Jefferies, then assistant to the dean of students.

Some of the faculty attending the conference were Dr. Phillips Russel, professor in journalism; Dr. James Godfrey, and Dr. Hugh Lefler, professors of history, and Dr. Clairborn Jones, professor of zoology.

Among the students attending the conference were Charles Kuralt, Joel Fleishman, Dave Mundy, Sue Fink, Bev Webb, Dave Reid, Manning Muntzing, Louis Kraar, Rollie Tillman and Charles Hyatt.

—Humphrey—

(Continued from Page 1)

A few hours before the Senator landed at Raleigh-Durham airport, another Democratic Senator, Wayne Morse (D.-Ore.) took the Senate floor to urge Congress to use its influence to prevent Amerin defense of Quemoy and Matsu, offshore islands.

According to Senator Morse, if the U. S. joined the fight for offshore islands, it would be taking part in a Chinese civil war which is "none of its busines." Thus, Humphrey — speaking that same night in Hill Hall—echoed the sentiments of Morse.

On the other hand, a camp of Republicans headed by Sen. William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.) favor the defense of offshore islands.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) said Friday on the Senate floor that President Eisenhower was talking a "deadly dangerous" attitude in refusing to say whether the United States will defend Quemoy and Matsu.

The President has, in effect, been taking a position somewhat between that of Democrats like Senator Humphrey and Republican leaders like Senator Knowland. And so far he hasn't made up his mind.

Chinese Nationalists have already made it clear to the U.S. that they plan to defend Matsu and Quemoy—regardless of cost. Their chances of holding them are considered slim in military circles.

On the other hand, if the U. S. were to join the battle for the islands, they might be saved—and the U. S. might find itself in war.

Thus, the battle in Washington over an impending battle in the Far East goes on with Knowland Republicans urging offshore island defense and the President undecided.

Curious Chapel Hillians wondered Friday, when Senator Humphrey was here, whether President Eisenhower's recent bipartisan talks with Congressman on foreign policy had thrown any light on the President's offshore island decision.

At the Forum banquet before Humphrey's talk, someone asked the Senator about the bipartisan White House talks. And Senator Humphrey, who is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, answered:

"These talks the President is holding with Congresmen are nothing new. He (Eisenhower) has the boys in for some soup and meat, and tells them that they're all on the same team. But all this is nothing new. And no decisions have come from the White House talks."

Two Recitals Slated In Hill Hall Today; Lee & Martin To Appear

Two recitals will be given in Hill Hall today by students of two members of the music department faculty.

Miss Ann Lee will present a piano recital at 4 p.m. and Joseph McGugan, baritone, will appear in a senior recital at 8 p.m.

Miss Lee, senior in Sanford High School and student of Dr. Wilton Mason of the UNC music department, began her musical studies at the age of five. She was piano soloist with the North Carolina Little Symphony in Mozarts Concerto in B Flat Major at the age of 15.

Included in Miss Lee's program will be etudes by Chopin, Sonata in D Major by Mozart and Concerto in A Minor by Schumann.

McGugan, student of Professor Joel Carter, will sing arias from Handel's Semele and Samson, Leoncavall's Pagliaccii, Gay's Beggar's Opera, Mozart's Magic Flute and Menotti's The Old Maid and The Thief.

He is a member of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity and has appeared as soloist with the UNC Men's Glee Club.

Katona Set To Deliver Two Speeches

Professor George Katona, director of the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan and author of several books dealing with sample surveys, will address both the Statistics Colloquium and the Economics Seminar here this week.

He will speak to the Statistics Colloquium at 4 p.m. tomorrow in 206 Phillips Hall. His topic will be "Psychological-Economic Surveys." Professor Katona will discuss problems of research design involved in a survey having more than one purpose, and will take up the basic questions of how the objectives determine the methods to be used, and how the relative degrees of reliability of available methods affect the objectives to be selected.

His subject for the Economics Seminar will be "Consumer Attitudes and Demand." The meeting will be at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Carroll Hall.

Parade Held

WILMINGTON, April 2— (AP) — Wilmington woke up early today and—with thousands of visitors—glued wide-open eyes on a well-paced parade of gay floats, military marching units and school bands. In short, on the long eighth annual Agalea Festival parade.

Thousands massed along the parade route hours before parade time. Some 275,000 jammed into Wilmington.

Military units stole the first half of the two-hour pageant and high schoolers—marching contingents and bands alike—sparked the second part.

Queen Sara Shane, dressed in a white strapless gown, brought a volley of shouts and applause when her float passed. She sat on a throne of azaleas with her pretty maid of honor, Miss Betty Jo Ring, Miss North Carolina.

When Queen Azalea VIII rode by the reviewing stand, she leaned forward and blew a big two-handed kiss to distinguished guests.

Phi Delts Announce Grant

Phi Delt Theta Fraternity announced yesterday the founding of the annual William Manley Thompson Memorial Scholarship, which will amount to a grant of over $600 a year.

The grant was established in honor of William Manley Thompson by his mother, Mrs. Mildred Manley Thompson, of Mountain Lakes, N. J.

Thompson, a graduate of the University, was the first Carolina student, as well as the first Phi Delt, killed at Pearl Harbor. He was serving as a naval supply corps officer aboard the battleship Arizona.

While at Carolina, Thompson was a member of the swimming team and of both the orchestra and band. He was a Phi Delt officer and received his B.S. degree in chemistry.

"The House of Fashion"

Parade of Easter Fashions

Have You Ever Seen a Dream Walking?

Well you will! . . . Many of them . . .

on Easter Day

And most of them will be parading in

Fashions from

The House of Fashion . . .

J. B. Robbins in Chapel Hill

Two piece Linen Dress by Daryl
Hat by Kutz
Gloves by Fownes
Bag by Rolf
Shoes by Mademoiselle

Evening Dress by Will Steinman

Peau de soir Satin Finish Cocktail or Tea Dress by Ellen Kaye
Gloves by Fownes
Shoes by Troyling
Jewelry by Ann Vien
Jewelry by Alice Caviness

You too can be a picture of a Dream Walking . . . Enter the Easter Parade poised and confident . . . get that well dressed feeling . . . select your Easter Wardrobe from our large and varied selections. Fit your personality as well as your figure . . . Be fashion right with . . .

J. B. Robbins

All merchandise pictured on this page direct from stock from The House of Fashion

Modeled by Miss Helen Ervin

Photographed by Wootten-Moulton Photographers

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER
Partly cloudy and mild today with an expected high of 65.

The Daily Tar Heel

PRAISE
Former Editor Charles Kuralt draws praise. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 133 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Legislators Don't Know If Fee Bill's Upcoming

Nobody knows whether or not a bill to raise student fees will come up before student Legislature tonight, according to a spokesman from the budget committee.

The student Budget Committee voted to recommend a fee raise of $5 last Thursday.

The committee's resolution must go to the Legislature for approval. If the Legislature passes the recommendation, the proposed fee will go before the student body for a vote.

Famous Wagner Opera Scheduled On WUNC

Richard Wagner's famous consecration opera, Parsifal, will originate for the first time on a North Carolina radio station on Good Friday (April 8), when it will be heard on Norman Cordon's "Let's Listen to Opera" program over WUNC, the University's FM station.

Written especially for Good Friday performance, the work will be heard from 6:30 to 11:30 p.m., with all other regularly scheduled WUNC programs cancelled that night.

The Rev. Maurice A. Kidder, minister of the Church of the Holy Family, will give a short commentary on the religious import prior to the opera's broadcast.

Cordon, former Metropolitan Opera star who now heads the North Carolina Music Program, regularly presents outstanding works of op-

(See OPERA, page 4.)

Met Tenor Peerce To Sing In Concert Series Event Here

Metropolitan Opera tenor Jan Peerce will appear in concert here on April 15.

The event will be the last program of the 1954-55 Chapel Hill Concert Series.

TENOR PEERCE
. . . coming here

Peerce will sing at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Born in New York City, Peerce is now in 14th season as a leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera. He has made 16 transcontinental concert tours and has appeared in Europe and South America.

As a boy he sang in local choirs as an alto. He worked his way through college by playing his violin.

After deciding upon a musical career, Peerce's first break came when he began singing at the Radio City Music Hall.

Samule Chotzinoff, musical director of the National Broadcasting Company, introduced the

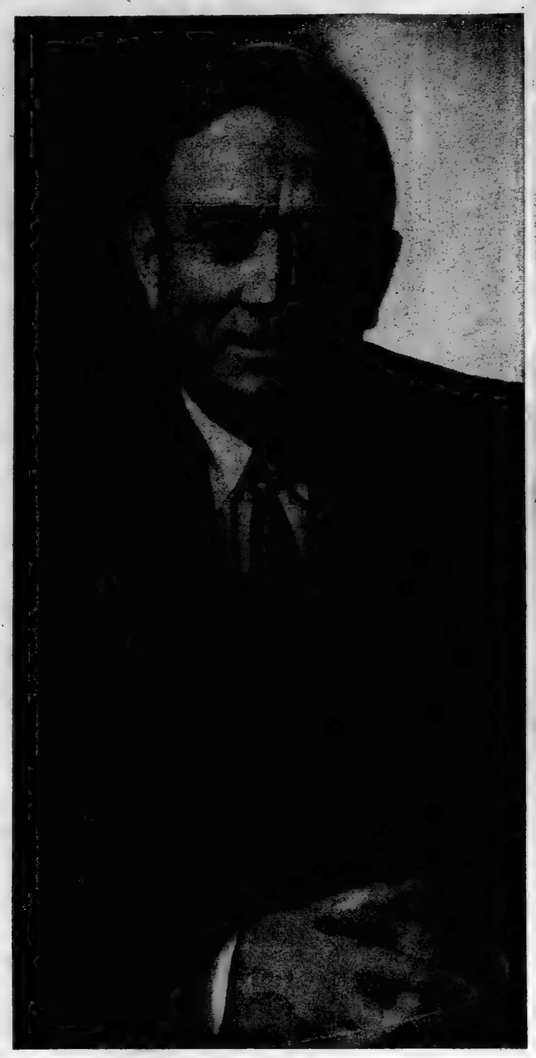
(See PEERCE, page 4.)

No Big Changes Seen In Selective Service

Col. F. C. Shepard, advisor to UNC veterans, announced yesterday there have been no major changes in Selective Service regulations for students eligible for service in the armed forces.

According to the bulletin of regulations issued Colonel Shepard, these are the clasifications as they stand now:

Class I-D, for students in the NROTC and AFROTC who meet the requirements for deferment. They are considered "persons in military" and not "students" in the normal sense of the word;



Class I-S, for persons who have never been deferred as students in Class I-S;

Class II-S, for students who have completed more than one year of residence work in an institution of higher learning (2 semesters) and who meet the minimum requirements set up by the Selective Service System.

The summer session, according to the bulletin, does not count as a portion of the four years to which a student is entitled to deferment under regulatons. However, the bulletin states, if a student is entitled to deferment for the next school year, his deferment is valid through the summer vacaton.

A student whose school year ends in June said the bulletin, should be sure to request deferment for the next year, and should report to Colonel Shepard's office to fill out the proper form to be sent to his local draft board. This should be done before the student leaves for summer vacation, according to the Bulletin.

Colonel Shepard said the only change in Selection Service law pertains to graduate students who must now be in the upper 25 percent of their class for the last undergraduate year or attain a score of 80 on the Selective Service College Qualification Test.

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS
. . . photo by Fabian Bachrach

Justice Douglas To Talk Tonight

An associate justice of the United States Supreme Court will give a public address tonight under the sponsorship of the Law School Association and the Carolina Forum.

Justice William O. Douglas will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in Memorial Hall. A dinner will be held in his honor preceding the speech, and a reception will follow the talk in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Justice Douglas has been a member of the United States' highest court since 1939, when he was appointed to membership by the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. At the time of his appointment, Douglas was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The Supreme Court justice collaborated with the U. S. Department of Commerce in bankruptcy studies from 1929 to 1932.

He took his degree from Whitman College in Washington State (A.B.) and the Law School of Columbia University (LLB). He has been a member of the faculties of both the Yale Law School and the Columbia Law School.

Justices Douglas is also a world traveler and author. Among his books are Of Men and Mountains, North From Malaya and the latest, An Almanac of Liberty.

Concert Series Program For Next Year Released

A four concert program, featuring the world-renown Bach Aria Group, will be offered for the second season of the Chapel Hill Concert Series beginning next fall.

The program was announced during last Thursday evening's concert, by pianist Walter Gieseking, by Norman Condon, chairman of the talent committee which aranged the coming season's schedule. Tickets for next year are now available and are on sale in the office of Graham Memorial Student Union between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. daily. Mail orders can be sent to Box 30, Chapel Hill.

Here is the full schedule of artists who will appear next season: Ruggiero Ricci ,violinist, Oct. 27; Bach Aria Group, Dec. 14, Mozart Piano Festival, Feb. 24, and Hilde Gueden, soprano, on April 27.

Tickets for the coming year will be from $5.50 to $7.50, depending on the desired location in Memorial Hall, and only 1,800 tickets will be sold. In the event less than this number of tickets are sold, individual performance admissions will be offered, but will cost a total of from $9.00 to $13 for all four concerts.

Until April 22 the tickets are being offered only to the approximately 1,000 members of the current year's series, but after that date they'll go on public sale. Jimmy Wallace, series secretary, said almost 100 memberships had already been sold for the coming year.

Commenting on the current initial season of operation, he hoted that with the full house attendance at the Gieseking concert the Series would definitely end its year "in the "black." The final concert will be given by Jan Peerce on April 15.

Popular Pianist David Bar-Illan Slated To Play Tonight In Hill

Bach, Mozart, Beethoven Brahms and Chopin are composers from which David Bar-Illan, pianist, has selected his program for tonight's recital in Hill Hall.

Bar-Illan will play at 8 p.m.

His selections will include Bach's Toccata and Fuge in E Minor, Mozart's Rondo in A Minor, Beethoven's Variations with Fugue, Ballade in G Minor, Intermezzo in E Flat Mapor and Capriccio in G Minor by Brahms and Chopin's Barcarolle in F Sharp Major and Scherzo in C Sharp Minor.

Bar-Illan, who appeared here last fall in the Petites Musicales series, made his New York debut in Carnegie Hall last December.

PIANIST BAR-ILLAN
. . . here today

He was well received by critics there. The concert was the culmination of a two-year concert tour of the United States, Canada, Israel and England. While in England, he was awarded the Corona-Year medal, given by the British Music League to the year's outstanding pianist. He was the first person ever to receive the medal who was not a citizen of the Commonwealth.

The young pianist is a native of Haifa, Israel, and has studies in the U. S. at the Juilliard School of Music and the Mannes College of Music with Hans Neumann. He was an invitation scholarship stu-

(See PIANIST, page 4.)

Ed McCurry And Don Fowler Try For President In Campus Runoff Eliminations Today

Other Elections Scheduled

Students will vote for head cheerleader and Men's Honor Council in todays run-off election, according to Patsy Daniels.

"Collie" Collison and "Pepper" Tice are running for the office of head cheerleader. They won out over write-in candidate T. C. Homesley.

Sonny Exans and Mac Patton are running for sophomore seat on the Mens Honor Council.

Townsend Holt, Bill Morgan and Mebane Pritchett are running for the junior seat on the Men's Honor Council.

Don Huntington and Graham Shanks are running for the senior seat on the Men's Council.

PICK YOUR CANDIDATE TODAY
. . . tomorrow will be too late
—Kuralt photo

McCurry, Fowler Vie For Prexy

Students will elect either Don Fowler (Independent) or Ed McCurry (University Party) as president of the student body in todays' run-off election.

McCurry is a junior from Shelby. The offices he has held include member of student Legislature, chairman of Consolidated University Day, attorney general of the student body, member of the men's honor council and chairman of the dance committee court. He is a member of the Order of the Grail and maintains a B average, while majoring in political science.

McCurry's platform includes more flexible cut policy, dean's lists computed on B average basis, closer relationship between students and their elected officers, improved relations between the University and N.C. high schools, conversion of old Veterans' Club building into additional student activities center, return to student body at least 25 percent of campus stores profits, referendum for any increase in student fees. He also upholds the UP platform.

DON FOWLER

Don Fowler is a junior from Winston - Salem. The offices he has held include treasurer of the student body, member of the interdormitory Court and president of Joyner Dormitory. He is a member of the Order of the Grail and maintains a B average while majoring in English.

His platform includes student traffic committee, control of fraternities left in hands of the Interfraternity Council, promotion of a spirit of unity throughout the campus, a closer unity among all branches of student government and elevation of student government to a position of partnership with the administration.

Everyman Slated For Production

The modernized German version of the English Renaissance drama, Everyman, will be given by the UNC Dept. of German as its contribution to the Easter spirit tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

Dr. Herbert W. Reichert, associate professor in the department, who is directing the presentation, has announced that the public is invited to attend. No admission to be charged.

Some 40 students who are enrolled in German courses form the cast, headed by Joe Sturdivant, a junior from Cary, who sings the baritone lead of Jedermann.

An exception to the all-student rule will be the appearance of Miss Irmgard Roth a ,Fulbright exchange student from Stuttgart, Germany, who has the role of Good Works.

Dr. Reichert explained the Jederman version to be presented was written by the famous Austrian poet, Hugo von Hofmannsthal, and has been presented for many years at the Salzburg Summer Theater Festival.

"Appropriate to the Easter season," Dr. Reichert said, "the timeless story of Everyman tells of the rich man who learned in his final hour that power and wealth were of little avail, but that Christ had died to redeem just such sinners as he, if ony they would repent and believe."

A grant from the German consul in Atlanta, on behalf of his government, has been used to furnish elaborate technical effects and staging, in which the Depts. of Dramatic Art and Musc, and the UNC Communication Center are collaborating for the performance.

Dr. Reichert explained that a detailed synopsis of the plot will be furnished with the program, to aid those in the audience not familiar with German.

The Department of German also presented a group of Christmas plays last year as an earlier venture in German play production.

Ballot Boxes Will Be Placed In Same Places For Election

Ballot boxes will be in the same places as they were last Tuesday, according to Patsy Daniels, chairman of elections board.

Polls will be open from 8:30 to 6 p.m. Students will need their ID cards to vote.

Dormitory students can vote right in their dorms or in Lenoir Hall.

The polls will be situated at the following places: entrance to Victory Village, the Scuttlebutt, Gerrard Hall, Big or Little Fraternity Courts, ATO House, and the dormitories.

Under the student Constitution no campaign literature or no person "trying to advance the interest of any candidate" will be allowed within fifty feet of the polls. Sound equipment or commercialization such as the distribution of sample cigarettes is also forbidden.

The poll tender has been instructed to report any violations.

CANDIDATE FOWLER
. . . Independent

CANDIDATE McCURRY
. . . University Party

What They Won't Do . . .

WILMINGTON, April 4 (AP)—Ed McCurry, University of North Carolina junior who is a candidate for president of the student body in tomorrow's election, moved his campaign to Wilmington's Azalea Festival during the week-end because, he said, "here is where many of the students are."

McCurry arrived Saturday morning and sought to enter his red, sign-bedecked automobile in the annual parade.

Officials turned him down because of the "political angle" but finally an obliging officer let him in the end of the parade for a part of its route. Meanwhile, many of McCurry's friends and their girls climbed aboard the automobile and waved to the thousands of spectators.

Afterwards, McCurry, a native of Shelby, visited several house parties at Wrightsville Beach as a part of his campaigning. He was accompanied by Buddy Hamrick, also of Shelby.

Interdormitory Council president spending much time in Graham Memorial pool room.

* * *

Sign above Graham Memorial's milk dispenser extolling virtues of the substance because it makes good athletes.

* * *

Presidential candidate's huge sign torn down between 9 and 10 o'clock classes yesterday.

* * *

Beer can on GM's front porch, neatly hidden behind billboard.

Di Senate Plans Debate On Birth Control Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Dialectic Senate will debate a bill to be introduced by Larry McElroy which calls for a program of birth control.

Proponents of the bill are expected to point out the benefits to be derived from such a program and to contend that it is necessary to avoid overpopulation according to Di spokesman.

The bill will probably be opposed on religious grounds, said the spokesman.

Editors Kraar & Yoder Retain All Members Of The DTH Staff

New Co-editors Louis Kraor and Ed Yoder yesterday announced they will retain all Daily Tar Heel staff members.

The two were elected without opposition in last week's election.

Staffers named were Managing Editor Fred Powledge, Sports Editor Bernie Weiss, Business Manager Tom Shores, News Editor Jackie Goodman, Advertising Manager Dick Sirkin, Assistant Business Manager Bill Bob Peel, Circulation Manager Jim Kiley, Subscription Manager Jack Godley, Assistant Sports Editor Ray Linker and all other staff members.

MANAGING EDITOR POWLEDGE
. . . particular praise

"These staffers have served faithfully and well during the past months," said Co-editors Yoder and Kraar, "and we are happy to be able to retain them."

The editors said "particular praise should be cited for our managing editor, Fred Powledge, for his hard, though sometimes unheralded, work.

"With the help of these staffers, we hope to give the students the quality paper that they demand and deserve," Kraar and Yoder said.

Echoes Of Prophecy

Don't ask us to flourish any powdered wigs or silver-buckled shoes (18th Century style) to restore atmosphere, but we feel in succeeding Charlie Kuralt's days on the bridge much as Thomas Jefferson must have felt when he went to Paris to succeed Ben Franklin as ambassador.

"Do you come to replace Mr. Franklin?" the French asked.

No, said Jefferson, he could never replace Franklin; he could only succeed him.

Likewise we feel small of stature to put on the toga so recently worn by our predecessor whom we look upon as something of a prophet. A prophet must stand a lot of hard knocks from those who listen day by day to his prophecies. For often those prophecies are percussions which beat against the established walls of thought and feeling: and those percussions draw repercussions.

The chore of the prophet is to keep the percussions he feels to be warranted waving out of his typewriter; and, at the same time, to refuse to bow before the repercussions that shoot back (often with vengeance). So go the days (for here and now) of the prophet and he waits for time to bring appreciation.

The prophecies of the past year's editor, elaborated by a style as fine as any that has yet graced the editorial page of The Daily Tar Heel, were expansive. But actually they stemmed from one or two vital assumptions: That if the flow of student and faculty thought about deep-searing issues ossifies, if the University's venerated goals lose their luster, we will falter and all slide backwards together. What could be more direct or basic? Yet, in demanding times, what could be more difficult to guard against than a loss of grip on untrammeled thought, on the quintessential aims of the University?

And, speaking of prophecies: As we lean our ears to the wind after the echo of this year's prognostication, allow us one of our own: The world of publication, of shears and paste and clacking typewriters, of art gum and printers ink, of eloquence and prophecy, has not heard its last of Charles Kuralt.

Quo Vadis, DTH?

Where is The Daily Tar Heel going?

As the new management sharpens its editorial pencils and picks up a new supply of erasers, this question is put to us. It appears in the words of inquisitive readers and the doubt that sneaks into our own minds this first day.

Segregation, the need for emphasizing liberal arts, campus politics, and educational television have been given their editorial due. But now we turn to new things—parts of these same issues that haven't been explored and countless other grievances, gripes, and campus hangnails.

Whatever the issues that The Daily Tar Heel will take up, whatever causes we embrace, we promise fair treatment to all sides. While student opinion is represented on these pages in the form of news stories, letters to the editors, and personal columns, we do not attempt to reflect in this editorial column any opinions other than those of the editors. This is as it should be. No editorial can be more than an expression of the editors' considered opinions.

The campus paper has often been attacked for being what assailants call "too liberal." If the critics mean by this catch phrase that The Daily Tar Heel is ahead of student opinion on such issues as racial integration, that we are not bound by traditional opinions merely because they are traditional, then we accept the charge with a bloated chest.

Should this paper ever become a mere printed mirror of the prevailing tenor of student thought, it would be duller than a pedantic professor trying to teach an 8 o'clock Saturday class; it would not stimulate or lead.

If The Daily Tar Heel can be verbally prod an often dull campus into thought and action, we will be satisfied. If we can record in these pages the vital events and ideas of student life in an interesting manner, then you will be satisfied. These are our objectives.

A Very Short Edit

VOTE!

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... Ed Yoder, Louis Kraar

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

A Last Word On Elections —Almost

J. A. C. Dunn

FOR THE PAST few weeks we have been hearing a great deal of palaver kicked around about policies. Blotz's "policy" is such and such, and Smashpipe's "policy" is so and so, and Crackle-wicket's "policy" is this or that and it all gets very tiresome. We have had policy thrown at us in such gobs lately that we are beginning to wonded just what a policy is anyway.

We notice that everyone who says he has a policy, or demands that someone else state a policy, seems to assume that once a policy is established it will automatically cover all possible contingencies that may arise in the course of leading a normal political, editorial or any other kind og existence. We question this. Unles there is some definite question as to what the organi zation to which one is attaching a policy really is, we don't see how anyone can be expected to formulate a policy when he doesn't even know what kind of situations his policy will have to cover in the future.

We heard what appears to be a very simple solution to this busines the other day from a newspaper editor in South Carolina. He said that when people came to him and asked "What's our policy on such and so?" his invariable reply was, "Our policy is to print the news and keep it clean. Now what's your problem?"

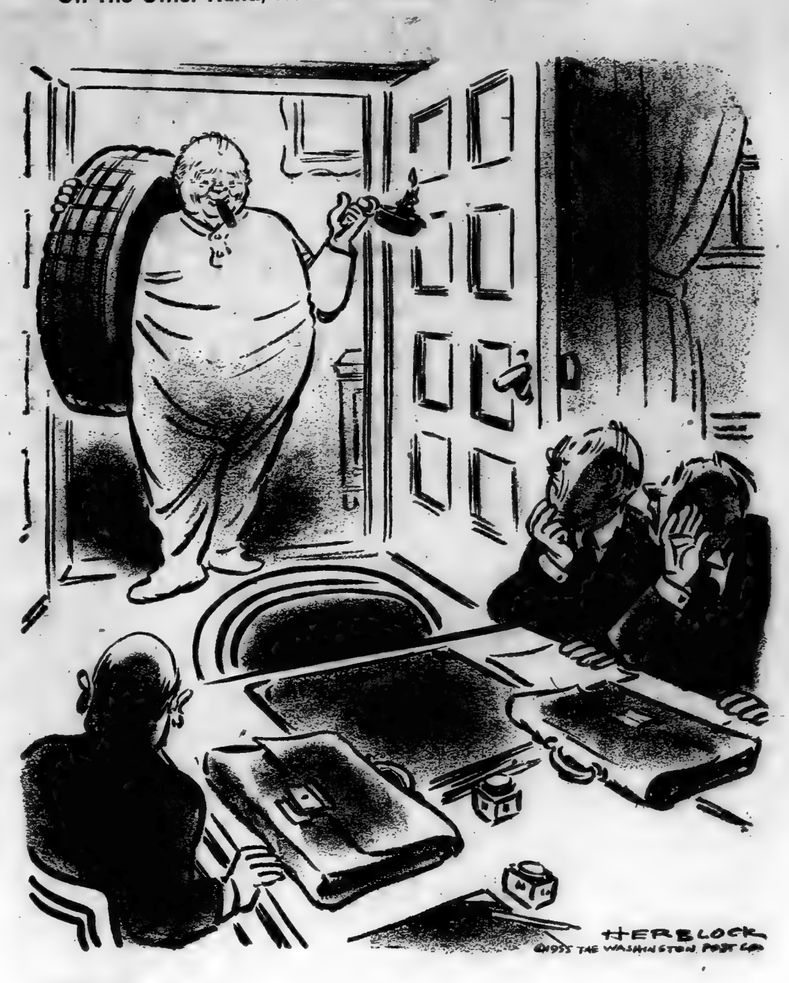
★

IT HAS BECOME apparent that this column should have something painfully trenchant to say about the recent political uproar and downblast and whatnot. Acting on a gentle hint from an outside source, we went and asked a friend of ours just why people went into campus politics.

The reasons were interesting. Some people go into politics because they enjoy the petty intrigues and behind-the-scenes finagling that go along with party government. Others join the throng because they just can't bear to be out of the public eye for more then ten minutes at a stretch. Some few are drawn to politics out a genuine desire to do something good for the students and to maintain decent standards in student government.

These are perfectly good reasons, though we are not sure everyone would admit candidly to being motivated by all of them. However, we have not yet heard anyone say that the reason he went into polics was simply because he liked it and he thought he was good at it. Perhaps there are some people like this, but unfortunately one never hears of them.

★



AND WHILE ON the subject of politics, a subject which nobody really seems to have been off for the past few weeks, it is interesting to note that while we have seen six election campaigns on this campus, we cannot remember anyone who included in his platform a plank which was directly connected with education. The closest approach to an educational plank we remember was Manntzing's recent proposal that there be established a reading day between the last day of classes and final exams.

And then of course there was also that TV business last year. TV is pretty educational.

★

THE UNIVERSITY OF California seems to have been having problems quite similar ours lately. They have been through a good deal of controversy over tne possibility of a new student union building, and they are worried about parking difficulties. Though they have not settled their student union question, one alumnus of that institution has come up with a suggestion for parking, an underground co-op student parking lot, connected with the student union. Not being construction experts, we don't know if this is practicable or not, but from the layman's point of view there does seem to be a considerable amount of hill underneath the campus for the students to go underground in. Perhaps a whole system of subterranean roads would be good. Just think how nice it would be to drive from GM to Cobb without ruining one's white sidewalls in the driving rain.

'On The Other Hand, He Doesn't Look Very Sleepy'

MATTER OF FACT

Saigon: Blood And Darkness

Joseph Alsop

SAIGON, Indo-China—A long, agreeable Chinese dinner; an hour's intricate discussion of the current political crisis in a bright-lit sidewalk cafe; a cool walk homewards in the tropic night; and then the sudden distant rattle of machine gun fire and the heavy, muffled crump of mortars. Then a long ride in a chance-caught motorcycle rickshaw to the first line of Nationalist tanks, where they say the Binh Xuyen attackers are retreating. A further advance down the Boulevard Gallieni over pavements scattered with mortar fragments to a crossroads clogged with troops, where there is a snick, snick and young paratrooper is hoisted into an ambulance with a grim, dark hole in his forehead.

After that the battle continuing for a couple of hours, with sudden sprays of rifle fire, hurried leaps behind the concrete terraces where the coolie restaurants put up their tables by day, tanks clattering forward, a company moving up under the dimmed street lights, and a crescendo of fire at the finish.

It was an odd war, this quickly flaring, quickly ending night-fight between the forces of President Ngo Dinh Diem and the tough Binh Xuyen boss of Saigon, Gen. Bai Vien. But it was an important war, because among the rather few casualties, there was one really big one.

For practical purposes, the American policy of using President Diem to save Southern Indo-China from the Communists is now as dead as the poor young paratrooper with a bullet through his brain.

FAILURE

It hardly matters whether the current frantic efforts to glue together a new combination result in President Diem remaining at his post. The Diem experiment has failed, and so much time has been wasted that it is very doubtful whether any other experiment can now succeed.

Clear notice of the failure was given by an experience of this reporter, even before the present crisis reached fever heat. The all important problem here in Southern Indo-China is to halt and roll back the continuous Communist infiltration of the countryside. The supposed instrument for solving this problem is the "Civic Action" organization headed by one of President Diem's confidential staff, Tran Trung Dung.

Tran Trung Dung is an amiable young man. His office in the Norodom Palace, just next to President Diem's, is full of impressive tables of organization showing the chain of command of Civic Action, reaching down from himself, through the provinces and districts, to the vital village level where the Communist cadres are at work. But when I asked how many places in these impressive tables of organization had actually been filled, Tran Trung Dung gave a wry smile and replied with mild embarrassment:

"Well there is a special Civic Action group in the Camau Plain that we got together as an emergency measure when the Viet Minh left that area. But for the rest, I'm afraid there have been too many arguments about the budget and differences among ministers. I'm afraid, to be honest with you, that Civic Action is really just myself, so far."

This little episode, which left one wondering whether to laugh or cry, is a fair symbol of what has happened to the Diem government to date.

POWER FIGHT

The internal struggle for power has been continuous and ferocious. Four months were spent in the fight with the army that ended with the dismissal of Gen. Hinh. Then, when restoring army discipline was the vital need, President Diem insisted on naming a new chief of staff whose sole recommendation was extreme pliability. And finally, with the National army still disorganized and demoralized, President Diem took on the sect leaders who had been his allies against Hinh.

As the case of the unfortunate Tran Trung Dung too clearly suggests, everything else, all the most urgent administrative, political and welfare work of the government, has been subordinated to the unending struggle for power. On all sides in this struggle, there has been the lack of realism one saw in China, of little men fighting for position in a country which may not be a country very much longer.

To this unrealism of President Diem and his rivals, moreover, there has been added much American unrealism. There has been some French sabotage too, to be sure. (The loyal and cooperative Gen. Ely sacked a general officer on his staff a couple of months ago for secretly slipping arms to the sect leaders who are now attacking President Diem.) But on the whole American unrealism has done more harm than French sabotage.

This American unrealism has taken several different forms. For example, conventional minded Americans find it very hard to accustom themselves to powerful, semi-gangster feudal leaders with large private armies. So the strength of the Indo-Chinese sects was seriously underrated; and worse still, the sects were dealth with in such fashion that their chieftains are now just about as angry with Gen. J. Lawton Collins as with President Diem himself.

POLICY LACK

Again, conventional minded Americans find it very hard to believe that any country really can be utterly lacking in a coherent administrative system. So the word has too often been taken for the deed, as when this reporter was told that great things were hoped from Tran Trung Dung and his ghostly organization tables. Something of this appeared in Gen. Collins' statement in Washington, that there was a good chance of saving Southern Indo-China if President Diem could only put over his program. The Eisenhower administration's public relations men cried that estimate from the house tops, as though this unhappy country had been saved already. The only trouble was that even then, long before the present crippling crisis, the odds against President Diem putting over his program were somewhere between five and ten to one.

Those same Administration publicist men who twisted Gen. Collins' words, are a large part of the explanation of the lack of American policy in Indo-China have been under constant, heavy pressure from Washington for something to show, something to boast about, something that would distract attention from the fearful dangers that threaten the free world in Asia.

The moral of the whole experience, perhaps, is that public relations and foreign policy do not mix well.

Balloting Bons Mots

Your every voter, as surely as your chief magistrate, exercises a public trust.—Grover Cleveland, Inaugural Address.

★

A straw vote only shows which way the hot air blows.—Rolling Stone, a Ruler of Men.

★

They have such refined and delicate palates
That they can discover no one worthy of their ballots,
And when someone terrible gets elected
They say, There, that's just what I expected!

—Ogden Nash, Election Day Is A Holiday

★

He cast his vote, distrusting
all the elected but not the law.—
Karl Jay Shapiro, Elegy For a Dead Soldier, VII.

★

Slavery is but half abolished, emancipation is but half completed, while millions of freemen with votes in their hands are left without an education.—Robert Charles Winthrop, Yorktown Oration.

Passing Remark

Singing Stops & 'Peace' Is Restored Here

Ron Levin

About a week ago, I was seated in front of Kemp's place on a sunny afternoon trying my best to get an early tan under way. Kemp came out and put a baritone uke into my hands. He wantme to tune it up and iron out any kinks that might be left over from the factory. As I sat there strumming idly, a few friends of mine came up and sat down in the canvas chairs that were on display. It was after lunch and on a Saturday afternoon. The routine of classes was over, and it was only natural that we started in singing on a group of stock collegiate tunes. We had warmed up pretty good and were about to tackle a second chorus of "Down By The Riverside" when a ominous shadow fell in our midst. I looked up from a pair of unshined black shoes, past dark blue trousers, past a black leather belt and holster into a face of fairly rigid dimensions. He was a cop.

"Don't you think you've had a little too much to drink?"

"No, officer. As a matter of fact, I haven't had anything to drink. Why? What's the matter?"

"Your singing is disturbing the peace. I can hear it all the way up Franklin Street. You gotta keep it down from now on."

'SORRY OFFICER'

"I'm sorry, officer, but I wasn't aware that we were disturbing anyone. We'll try to keep it down."

His mission accomplished, the policeman strode off, climbed into the double parked car and soon disappeared from sight in the growing line of traffic.

Here it was Saturday afternoon. There was no classes going on, nor was it likely that anyone was asleep in downtown Chapel Hill at this time of day. We had NOT been drinking, nor had the occupants of the nearby stores complained that it was too loud. Yet, just as th officer said, we were "disturbing the peace". It was a plain as that.

It was a bit too plain. Peace has come to be a comfortable word for too many people . . . too comfortable. They tend to resent not only the intrusion of singing voices, but also new ideas, strange customs and foreign faces. Their peace is merely a state of dull complacence or a lethargy of existence to be likened to that of the sloth. Any action or thought that is the least bit contrary or differ, ent from the every day routine is to be fought against and forcibly suppressed so that the "peace" may be maintained at all costs.

PEACE

If what we were doing was disturbing the peace, then perhaps the peace NEEDS to be disturbed every once in a while and in a similar manner. Even through such a semmingly minor action as ours, mutual understanding and group happiness can be and was accomplished. The fact that the one driving force in the human mind today is the attainment and possession of some degree of happiness seems to have been forgotten by a few slow minds.

To those few whom we annoyed, if any, I apologize for our actions, but to those that regard this an similar occurence as disturbance of the peace, I say open up your mind on a sunny afternoon; let a little . . . just a little . . . sunlight penetrate to remove the stale atmosphere, and then see just how much more enjoyable life can really be.

LEVIN & CONE
. . . 'But officer.'

Over The Hill

Charles Dunn

BEGINNING A new column in a newspaper is just like being on a television quiz program. You never know how many people will be watching you, you can only hope that the quiz master will sort of overlook any slight mistakes you chance to make with the low paying questions, and you wonder if you will make a big (or even a little) hit with all the people out front.

Those who know say the first question is usually the hardest to answer, and likewise the first column is usually the hardest to write, unless later you find something to criticize. There are so many things to write about, but few, if any, are worthy to read about, at least for the average "busy" college student.

But the job must be done. The smaller the dose the better.

★ ★ ★

TARNATION: When Tarnation arrived last week everybody dropped whatever he or she was doing to read the latest and to wonder what the administration would have to say about the whole thing this time. They found it up to par, and in places a little above. Some of the jokes were a wee bit old, and some had to be read aloud to be caught. Then there were others very original, very modern, and very appropriate, to say the least.

The jokes and cartoons had one freshman out of stitches. He had a split lip, with three stitches holding it together. He read one of the jokes, thought about it a few minutes, and before he could catch and control himself, he had pulled one of the stitches.

★ ★ ★

COED: The dean of women was recently concerned, and rightly so, about what her girls could do when they arrived in Chapel Hill on a bus late at night, after the station and taxi stand had closed. According to town officials, if needed the local police department will answer any calls from the bus station at any hour of the night. There is a telephone booth on the loading platform and the lights are left on all night. The matter is being looked into further by town officials.

★ ★ ★

POLITICS: The politicking is over, and after today's run-off, will soon be forgotten. It seems funny how election day is always set just so it will fall on or around the time so many professors have scheduled quizzes, or vice versa. Most everybody trying to study, and the rest campaigning.

Last week this sort of thing went on until several of those who were really studying started pushing the propaganda back into the hall as fast as it was pushed under the door. One or two got so perturbed that they put up signs saying that their votes would go to the candidates who disturbed them least.

It really must have been bad on some of the independents. One of them got caught in the middle of the U. P. and S. P. candidate for the same office. He ended up disturbing both candidates' propaganda at the same time.

★ ★ ★

EASTER: With everybody going home tomorrow something should be said about the Easter holidays. No doubt the wise thing to do would be to tell all to be careful and drive safely, get plenty of rest, and don't spend too much time studying. But knowing how this would be received, it's best to say simply "have fun, and do come back."

About The Writers

J. R. C. Dunn, a junior from Charleston, South Carolina, a student of English, has consented to move down the hall from the Carolina Quarterly office—where he has edited the literary magazine for the past year—and become a daily columnist for us. Dunn has already crashed one of the most hallowed of slick-writing markets and if you want proof check his "Caroline's Men" in last week's Saturday Evening Post.

Charles Dunn, a junior from Ahoskie, will do a chatty column of notes from here and yon about the campus. He's a history major, and his journalistic experience is abundant with papers in his home town and with Louis Graves' Chapel Hill Weekly.

Ron Levin, a senior from Williamston and, like J. A. C. Dunn, an English major is an old hand at Daily Tar Heel column writing, as many will remember. His "Rebellion"—a first book of poetry—was issued recently by the Old Well Publishers of Chapel Hill. We are glad to have his "Passing Remark" back with us.

—The Editors

Quote, Unquote

A best seller is the gilded tomb of a mediocre talent.—Logan Pearsall Smith.

★

Our true nationality is mankind.—H. G. Wells.

★

I would sooner read a timetable or a catalogue than nothing at all. They are much more entertaining than half the novels that are written.—William Somerset Maugham.

★

Politics has gotten so expensive it takes lots of money to even get beat with.—Will Rogers.

Good Relief Hurling Again Silences Tar Heel Bats, 6 To 5

Tigers Vie With UNC Tomorrow

By RAY LINKER

Following their 102½-28½ victory over N. C. State here Saturday, the North Carolina trackmen are busily preparing for their meeting with Princeton here tomorrow.

The meet is scheduled for 2 o'clock at Fetzer Field.

The Princeton roster is sprinkled with sophomores, as five Tiger stars who took six first places in leading their team to a 76½-63½ win over the Tar Heels last year are not back.

There are, however, three men returning who scored a total of more than 20 points between them, including four firsts. Gabriel Markisohn took both the 100 and 220 dashes last year in times of 9.9 and 21.2. He set a new record for a Tiger man when he was clocked in 20.1 in the 220 in a dual meet with Duke the day after the win over Carolina. Markisohn recently copped the 60-yard dash in the big Heptagonal meet (the eight Ivy League schools plus Army and Navy.)

Princeton's Tempest Lowry fought off UNC's Boyd Newnam and Bobby Barden before taking the mile run last year in 4:21.9. This year he will find a good match in Carolina's Jim Beatty.

Joe Myers, Ivy League 440-yard run champ whose best time in his event is 48.1, won here last year in an even 49 seconds. Princeton took all three places in the 880 last year, and although George Hirsh (who took third a year ago) will be in the running again, the Tigers will probably be led by Dick McCready in this event.

Jack Vodrey, No. 1 man on the Princeton cross country team this past fall and Bib Three (Princeton, Harvard, and Yale) cross country champion, will lead the Tigers in the two mile. Vodrey's best time so far this year is 9:48.

John Futhey, who was captain of Princeton's freshman team last year and high scorer as well, will figure in four events tomorrow. He is expected to pick up points in the discus, high jump, high hurdles, and low hurdles. Futhey will team with Jim Crawford in the lows and Ed Williams in the highs to give the visitors strength in the hurdles. Futhey and Crawford will team with Dean Determan and Doug Carpenter in the high jump, which will probably see Carpenter finish as the top Princeton man since he has a 6'2" to his credit.

Determan and Jerry Greenwald, two sophomores from the Ivy League school, will be throwing the javelin tomorrow while Toivo Kroon will be the best Princeton has to offer in the shot. Dick Moore will likely finish ahead of his teammates in the discus, but will have a tough time beating UNC's Roger Morris, who took two of Carolina's four firsts against the invaders last year by winning the shot and discus.

Charlie Yarborough took the other two first places the Tar Heels got last year—in the broad jump and pole vault—and will have little trouble doing the same this meet when he meets Bruce Evans in the pole vault and Dick Evans, Dave Smith, and Murray Peyton in the broad jump.

Reds' Fishburn Checks UNC In Fireman's Role

Woods Gets Three Hits; Michigan Here Today

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

For the second time in less than a week Carolina's baseball Tar Heels became the victim of excellent relief pitching yesterday as they bowed to Colgate's Red Raiders at Emerson Stadium, 6-5.

Last Tuesday Carolina had a rally stopped in the bottom of the ninth inning by N. C. State's Lou Dickman and lost, 7-5.

It was a similar tale yesterday.

Colgate's Joe Fishburn came on in the fifth inning in a relief role, subbing for starter Larry Bossidy, and held Carolina to two hits in the final four and one-third innings, gaining credit for the win.

Carolina scored five runs in the big fifth to send Bossidy to the showers. With the rally the Tar Heels took the lead, 5-3. Colgate, however, came back with three runs in their half of the sixth and that was all they needed for the victory.

COLGATE SCORED single runs in the first, fourth and fifth innings to give them a 3-0 lead as the Tar Heels came to bat in their half of the fifth.

After Will Frye skied to center, the Tar Heels bunched five hits and a Colgate error. Bob Paller followed Frye with a walk to start things off. Jack Woods then cracked his second of three hits, a line double to right sending Paller to third. Paller tagged at third and scored the first Tar Heel run when Jimmy Love skied deep to right. Four straight singles by Art Stone, Harry Lloyd, Al Long and Ken Keller followed, netting the Tar Heels four more tallies and a 5-3 lead.

Keller's hit was a grounder to deep short that Ken beat out and when the long throw went wild past first, two runners scored and Keller scampered all the way around to third base. Connie Gravitte ended the frame with a fly to center.

Colgate bounced right back with three more in the sixth to gain a one-run lead that proved to be more than enough. Woods kicked a grounder by Ronnie Barr to open up the door. Pete Hopkins flied out but Joe Aceti banged one off Woods' chest to put the tying marker on first. A walk to Fishburn loaded the bases and another free pass to second sacker Frank Narduli face the Red Raiders their fourth run. Stone then got Billy Johnson to pop to Long but Bruce Dursema laced a double down the right field line to send across the tying and winning runs.

THAT ENDED the scoring for the day as Fishburn notched the victory and Tar Heel starter Stone was dealt the defeat. Stone is now 0-1 for the year. Fishburn has now copped two victories over ACC teams, as he downed Virginia last week for his other ACC triumph.

Woods continued his solid hitting for the Tar Heels as he collected three hits in four trips to the plate. Jack has now gotten a home run, double and two singles in his last five trips. Frye followed Woods in the hitting department yesterday with a single and double in four swings.

The line score:

Colgate	100 113 000	6-10-1
Carolina	000 050 000	5- 9-2

Bosidy, Fishburne (5) and Aceti and Yurak (6); Stone, Hall (7) and Love.

TOMMY BRADFORD, UNC tennis star, led the team to a 14-1 victory yesterday afternoon over the Harvard Crimson on the varsity courts here. Bradford contributed to the victory with a 6-0, 6-0 win over Bill Haegler. Today the same two teams resume their action at 3 o'clock.

Rollins Tars, First-Round Carolina Foe, Gain Favorite's Role In Dixie Tournament Thursday

Games of this past weekend firmly established Rollins College as the favorite and Wake Forest as the "darkhorse" in the first-annual Dixie Baseball Classic which begins in Durham Thursday and ends Saturday.

Rollins a team which went to the finals of the NCAA College World Series last season, started off on the winning trail again this year. In an early season test the Tars of Coach Joe Justice edged Carolina, 2-1, behind the one-hit pitching of sensational southpaw Art Brophy.

This past weekend the Tars defeated Duke's improved Blue Devils twice in a row. Brophy pitched stellar ball in one of the games to keep his record of never having lost a college game in over two full seasons of play ntact.

IN THURSDAY'S first round Rollins faces a re-match of their earlier meeting with Carolina. The game is the first of the double header set for Durham Athletic Park at 1 p.m.

Unbeaten Wake Forest rates better than the other Big Four entries—N. C. State, Carolina and Duke. The Deacons, largely on the basis of their four straight wins this season, are given the best chance of upsetting Rollins.

Frank McRae, Tommy Cole and Luther McKeel give the Deaconh power to spare at the plate. When veteran hurlers Frank Adams and Lowell "Lefty" Davis are right the Deacons are hard to beat. Wake Forest's first two games in which they scored 19 and 14 runs are evidence of their batting power.

THE DEACONS meet Yale in the first round immediately after the Carolina-Rollins clash at Durham Athletic Park. Game time will be approximately 3:30 p.m.

In the other bracket at Duke Park the first round games pit N. C. State against Ohio University in the first game and Duke against Notre Dame in the second affair. The starting times will be the same as for the Durham Athletc Park doubleheader.

UNC Teams Face Harvard, Michigan

Michigan's Wolverines bring their wares to Chapel Hill today, meeting the baseball Tar Heels at Emerson Stadium at 3:30 o'clock. Tom Maultsby will probably hurl for North Carolina.

At 3 o'clock on the varsity tennis courts, the netmen of John Kenfield will take on Harvard in a return match. Yesterday the Tar Heels swamped Harvard, 14-1, while the diamonders lost to Colgate, 6-5.

Netmen Stop Harvard, 13-1; Tangle Today

By DAVE LIEBERMAN

Carolina's varsity tennis team swept through the Harvard Crimson yesterday, losing only one match out of 15 and winning 13-1. Looking impressive in spots, the netters are swinging into high gear before the Easter break.

In the No. 1 singles match, Herb Browne bested Steve Gottleib of Harvard in a hard-fought match, that went three sets. Browne broke Gottleib's service in the first game of the final set and went on to win over the diminutive Gottleib, the Browne's net game again proved to be the telling factor.

Browne and Tommy Bradford looked very impressive as they won over Gottleib and Brooks Harris, in the No. 1 doubles match, 6-0, 6-3.

PETE GREEN, back in the doubles lineup after a layoff because of a knee injury, teamed with Bobby Payne, this year's captain, to win in the No. 2 doubles match over Fischer and Haegler, 6-3, 6-2.

The summaries:

Singles: Browne (UNC) defeated Gootleib, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2; Payne (UNC) defeated Harris, 6-3, 6-2; Bradford (UNC) defeated Haegler, 6-0, 6-0; Kerdasha (UNC) defeated Canfield, 6-4, 6-3; Thompson (UNC) defeated Fischer, 6-1, 6-3; Bortner (UNC) defeated Mayers, 36, 6-2, 7-5; Purnell (H) defeated Van Winkle, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4; Handel (UNC) defeated Kay, 6-1, 6-3; Livingston (UNC) defeated Manchester, 6-0, 6-2; and Gustafson (UNC) defeated Ball, 6-0, 6-2.

Doubles: Browne and Bradford (UNC) defeated Gottleib and Harris, 6-0, 6-3; Payne and Green (UNC) defeated Fischer and Haegler, 6-3, 6-2; Bortner and Hudgins (UNC) defeated Purnell and Canfield, 6-0, 6-3; Handel and Kerdasha (UNC) defeated Manchester and Kay, 6-4, 8-6.

Take Home a Bible for Mom

Before you head for home, stop in the old Intimate Bookshop, and pick a suitable book for Mom in our religious section. The surprised delight in her eyes will be a lasting reward.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

MANAGEMENT JOBS!
If you're graduating this year you may qualify for this unusual offer

The opportunity—To join a few men in a training program which will prepare you for a place in management with a growing organization that must maintain the highest type of intelligent administration. It is an opportunity in management operations in the Home Office rather than sales or sales management.

The job—If you are selected to join us, you will spend your first eight months in comprehensive training designed to qualify you as a Company management consultant. You will be trained in procedure analysis, production planning, management surveys, quality control, cost control, conference leadership, public relations, report writing, interviewing technique, and life insurance principles.

The future—Immediately following completion of training you will be assigned to consulting work within our Home Office organization. There you will be expected to develop ideas for the improvement of the day-to-day organization of the Company.

The salary—The starting salary compares favorably with those of other organizations. In addition, all of our personnel receive regular medical and dental examinations and luncheon in the Company's lunch rooms at the Company's expense. We also maintain a well-rounded insurance and retirement program for our personnel and their dependents.

The requirements—Personality, appearance, creative ability and initiative are essential qualities. Evidence of leadership as demonstrated in scholastic and extra-curricular activities is considered important in the selection of qualified men. Although preference is sometimes given to those who hold a graduate degree in industrial engineering or business administration other factors are given thorough consideration.

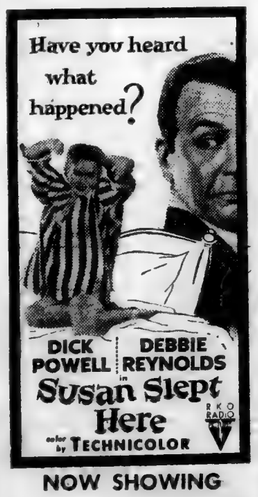
If the facts in this brief description interest you, write directly to Management Education, Coordination Division, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company
1 Madison Avenue New York 10, N. Y.



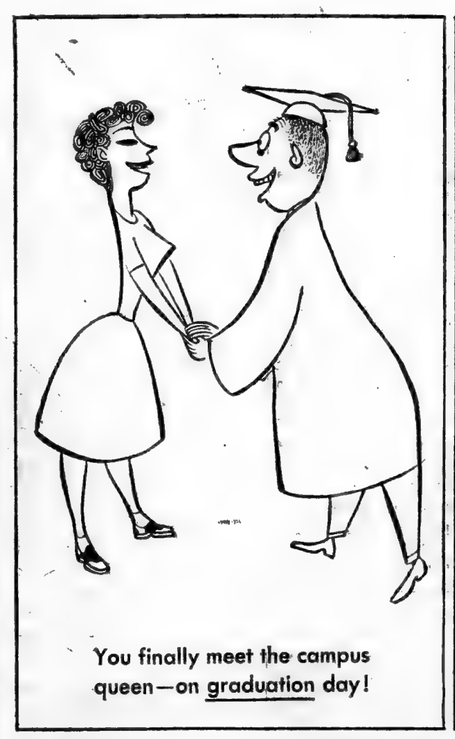
Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Don't Forget!
BEFORE YOU GO HOME STOP IN AT
BERMAN'S
FOR YOUR VACATION NEEDS
BERMAN'S
Dept. Store

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

lap of luxury
AFTER SIX formals are so debonair, so handsome, so comfortable, with "natural" styling. For your social high spots, have more fun—go

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's



NOW SHOWING
Varsity

ACADEMY AWARD WINNER BEST ACTRESS OF THE YEAR!
GRACE KELLY
BEST SCREEN PLAY OF THE YEAR
GEORGE SEATON

"THE DRAMATIC THUNDERBOLT OF THE YEAR!" —LOOK MAGAZINE
BING CROSBY
GRACE KELLY
WILLIAM HOLDEN

in A PERLBERG-SEATON Production
THE COUNTRY GIRL
LAST TIMES TODAY
Carolina

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!
No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!
P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos — one of the reasons why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Covering The Campus

The meeting of the Newman Club last Sunday was highlighted by the third and final talk in the series, "Sex and Marriage," by Father John Weidinger and by the election of officers for the coming year.

The new officers are Miss Regina Schneider, president; Jerry Clark, vice-president; Bill Ach, secretary, and Miss Connie McMahon, treasurer.

Plans for future meetings will be discussed at a meeting of the officers after the 10 o'clock mass on April 17.

At the meeting to be held on April 17, Dr. Paul Ito, research fellow in statistics, will discuss the topic "Christianity in Japan."

★

Roy Armstrong, director of admissions for the University, will be the speaker at the Faculty Club luncheon at 1 p.m. today at the Carolina Inn.

His subject will be "The Impending Tidal Wave of Students."

★

The Splash Club will present a show tonight entitled Mississippi Saga.

The performance will be held at 8 p.m. at Bowman Gray Pool at Woollen Gymnasium. Admission will be free.

Twenty University coeds will participate in the show.

★

The Student Wives Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Victory Village Community Center.

★

The combined student branches of NCPA and APhA will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Howell Hall. Kappa Epsilon sorority will present the program.

★

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will hear G. R. MacCarthy and Claude Piantadosi speak at its meeting on April 12 at 7:30 p.m. in 206 Phillips Hall. MacCarthy will speak on Geophysical Researches in Arctic Alaska, and Piantadosi will speak on Chemistry of the Acetal Phosphatides.

★

Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity, will have a open rush meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the APO room in Graham Memorial. All interested students have been invited to attend. Practice for the Valkyrie Sing will be held immediately after the meeting.

As Spontaneous as a Rogin's Song

There's nothing stuffy about our Easter cards. Touched with the magic of Spring mornings, they're fresh and delightful. Even if you never send cards, your heart will be refreshed if you stop in and just look at these beauties.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS

FOR EASTER

GIVE HER Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS

EASTER CANDY GIFT WRAPPED FREE

SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
Phone 98781

MUSTS FOR THAT HAPPY HOLIDAY

Bermuda Shorts, Baby Cord

4.95

Our Fantastic Scoop Of Ivy Cut Baby Cord Slacks—With Back Buckle Strap

only 4.95

Complete Assortment Of Bermuda Socks

from 1.00

Just Received Shipment Of Dacron Wool Tropical Worsted Suits By Grieco Bros (Makers Of The Southwick Suit) In Their Famous Warwick Model

65.00

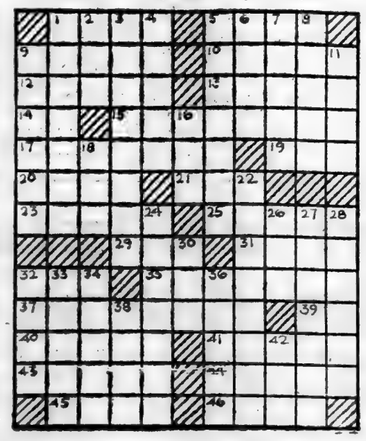
Dacron Cotton Peregrin Poplin Suits, Wash And Wear Without Ironing

39.50

Haspel Baby Cord Suits In Sanforized Cotton

26.50

In 75% Dacron, 25% Cotton, No Ironing Necessary



39.75

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Arrived
5. Fellow
9. Warning signal
10. A skin disorder
12. Woody perennials
13. By oneself
14. East by south (abbr.)
15. Wrestling
17. French seaport
19. Large tree (Phil. Is.)
20. Large wild animal
21. Affirmative reply
23. River in Italy
25. New
29. Cutting tool
31. Rant
32. Hawk-parrot
35. Responded
37. Fortify
39. Right guard (abbr.)
40. Shatter
41. Rugged mountain crest
43. The suslik or ground squirrel
44. Mountain pools
45. Plural pronoun
46. Toward the mouth (Zool.)

DOWN
1. Varicose
2. Part of "to be"
3. Assemblies
4. Follow
5. Subdue
6. Natural elevation
7. Shun
8. A contour feather (Ornith.)
9. Girl's name
11. Showy flowered plant (West. U. S.)
16. Upward curving of a ship's planking
18. Root-stock of edible fern (Maori)
22. Magician
24. Worldly
26. Large cistern
27. Turned inside out
28. Shelves
30. Moist
32. Myra ——, pianist
33. To let in
34. Confuse
36. Famous mission (Tex.)
38. To see (obs.)
42. Epoch

Yesterday's Answer

Medical Prof. L. G. Welt Has Book On Salt Balance

A study of the vital salt and water balance in the human body, written by a UNC medical professor, has just been published in Boston as well as in Canada and Great Britain.

Dr. Louis G. Welt, professor of medicine, is the author of the new book, which is entitled Clinical Disorders of Hydration and Acid-Base Equilibrium, and published by Little, Brown, and Company.

Although it is his first full-length book, Dr. Welt has contributed frequently to medical and scientific journals in recent years.

Dr. Homer W. Smith, professor of physiology and chairman of the Department of Physiology, New York University College of Medicine, described the book as "A significent contribution to medical literature.

Tuesday's WUNC

7 p.m.—The Man and The Moment.
7:15—Review From the British Weeklies.
7:30—Letter From Italy.
7:45—The U. N. Story.
8—Hill Hall Concert.
9:30—Address by Justice W. O. Douglas.
10:30—Local, State and National News.
10:45—Evening Masterwork.

— Peerce —

(Continued from Page 1)

young singer to Arturo Toscanini. He gave his first concert with Toscanini in 1938. In 1939 S. Hurock became Peerce's manager, and the following season he was signed by the Metropolitan Opera. He made his debut there as Alfredo in La Traviata in November of 1941.

During the present season, Peerce's roles with the Metropolitan Opera and the San Francisco Opera include Cavardossi in Tosca, Rodolfo in La Boheme, Riccardo in the Masked Ball, Edgardo in Lucia di Lammermoor, Alfredo in La Traviata and the Duke in Rigoletto.

His performance here in one of 45 which he is giving this season in addition to his operatic engagements.

Former Track Great In Business Here

Bill Albans, former UNC track great who holds three Carolina all-time track records and is co-holder of another, has bought Tyler's Esso Service Station on West Franklin Street from W. N. Tyler.

Worthwhile Reading . . .

. . . for your whole family in the world-famous pages of The Christian Science Monitor. Enjoy Erwin D. Canham's newest stories, penetrating national and international news coverage, how-to-do features, home-making ideas. Every issue brings you helpful easy-to-read articles.

You can get this international daily newspaper from Boston by mail, without extra charge. Use the coupon below to start your subscription.

The Christian Science Monitor
One, Norway Street
Boston 15, Mass., U. S. A.
Please send the Monitor to me for period checked.
1 year $16 ☐ 6 months $8 ☐ 3 months $4 ☐
(name)
(address)
(city) (state)
28-14

Governor Designates Cancer Control Month

Governor Luther Hodges (right) is shown here with his statement strongly endorsing the current cancer crusade and asking North Carolina citizens to strongly support the state campaign which began April 1. The Governor has designated April "Cancer Control Month" and presented his statement to Dr. John R. Kernodle, Burlington, first vice-president and state campaign chairman.

Former President Gets Basket Of Supergarlic

KANSAS CITY, April 4 (AP). — Harry Truman accepted a gift today—but at arm's length.

It was a basket of ramps, described by the donors as a supergarlic, 10 times as powerful as onions.

Bringing the gift to the former President's office here was a group from Cocke County, Tenn., where the ramps, which look like slender green onions, are grown. The East Tennessee group, making like hillbillies in blue jeans and plaid shirts, was here to boost the annual Ramp Festival April 24. Truman accepted an invitation to be the main speaker.

The North Carolina Ramp Convention will be held near Canton May 8.

Truman was told you could eat ramps scrambled with eggs or you could sniff them to clear up a head cold.

"I don't know about the scrambled egg dish," Truman said after a few sniffs—at a distance—"But they surely would open up a head cold."

Taking cognizance that Cocke County, Tenn., is a Republican stronghold, Truman promised: "I won't try to convert anybody."

GOURMET TRUMAN

. . . no ramps, thanks

— Pianist —

(Continued from Page 1)

dent of the Juilliard School and upon graduation received another scholarship to Mannes College.

Bar-Illan came to this country at the age of 17 to study at the Juilliard School in 1947. His studies were interrupted by the Israel war for independence, during which he returned to his native land and fought with the Israeli underground. He participated in the Battle of Nazareth and the fighting to clear the Galilee.

He began his musical studies at the age of five and played his first concert at the age of six on the maiden voyage of the first Israeli boat to sail from Haifa to Trieste.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

CLASSIFIEDS

COACH BUNN HEARN OFFERS for sale a nice new home, brick veneer, Whitehead Circle, Chapel Hill. 3 bedrooms, 1½ bathrooms, porch also tiled. The very best neighborhood. Must really be seen to be appreciated. Nicely decorated. $12,000 already financed on property. Inquire Bunn Hearn, Whitehead Circle, Tel. 83971. (2-9095-2)

WANTED BY APRIL 18th IN Chapel Hill, a reliable woman to care for 20 month old baby 5½ days a week. Write Mrs. P. H. Gerns, 216 E. Aycock Street, Raleigh, North Carolina. 1-9096-1

Quarterly Chief To Be Named

Applications for next year's Carolina Quarterly editorship are now being accepted, according to an announcement made yesterday by present editor Jim Dunn.

Applicants should write to Miss Jesse Rehder, Bingham Hall, chairman of the Carolina Quarterly Faculty Advisory Board, and state their qualifications for the position. Dunn said applicants should do this before May 30. Interviews with the Board will be held at a later date, of which applicants will be informed, according to Dunn.

Any applicants who wish to ask questions or in any way familiarize themselves with the Quarterly before applying are invited to come to the Quarterly office in Graham Memorial, said Dunn, where he will help them in any way he can.

N. C. Symphony Slates Annual Spring Training

The North Carolina Symphony Orchestra will hold its annual spring rehearsals this season at Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly at the invitation of William Weeks, manager.

The orchestra will be housed in the Assembly Inn in Montreat.

The string section will rehearse April 3-4 and the full orchestra April 5-13, with the exception of April 10, which is Easter Sunday.

Subscribing members of the North Carolina Symphony Society may attend rehearsals. Seating space is limited, however.

The North Carolina Symphony literally has no home of its own, not even a rehearsal hall.

Lady Milton Shop

Check Our Complete Assortment Of Musts For That Happy Holiday.

Very Choice And Complete Selections In Bermuda Shorts

from 5.95

Fine Tailored Shirts In Summer Weights With Short Sleeves

4.95

Our Famous Lady Hathaway Sleeveless Batiste Shirts At The Amazing Low Price Of

4.95

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

— Opera —

(Continued from Page 1)

era on his Friday night program.

Expressing the hope that WUNC will be able to make the Parsifal presentation an annual tradition, Cordon explained the opera was first produced at the Festspielhaus, Wagner's private opera house in Bayreuth, Germany, in July, 1882, and was the composer's last work.

McCurry Forces Parade

Tooting car horns, a jazz combo and Raymond M. Taylor shouting "Vote for McCurry" broke the sleepy quiet of yesterday afternoon as a McCurry parade honked its way through campus and down Franklin street.

The highlight of the parade occurred on Cameron Avenue when Don Fowler and some of his supporters entered the parade.

Both McCurry and Fowler are candidates for student body president in today's election.

Gordon Forester, Fowler campaign manager, said, "We couldn't afford a parade, seeing that we have no party funds." Fowler is running on an independent ticket.

"We figured McCurry wouldn't mind," added Forester.

McCurry (University Party) drove a Model A Ford in the parade. Following him was a convertible carrying a jazz combo, which mostly played "When the Saints Come Marching In." Scotty Hester, losing SP candidate for president of the senior class, played trumpet with the noise-makers.

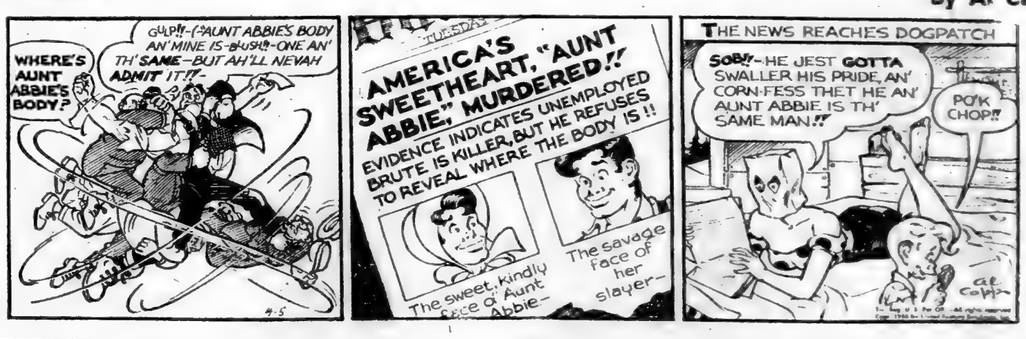
One horn got stuck and continued blaring long after the parade had stopped.

There were about 17 crepe-paper covered cars plastered with McCurry signs in the parade.

Several Fowler cars, carrying life-size posters, joined the parade.

Pool Expert Coming

Charle Peterson, the man whom many call the "Grand Old Man of Billiards," will appear on campus on April 14 and 15 under sponsorship of Graham Memorial Activities Board and the Association of College Unions.



Peterson, age 76, will give exhibitions which will include his and other famous billiards players' trick shots, fundamentals of the game and group teaching of fundamentals to students, both boys and girls.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
True Tobacco Taste . . . Real Filtration
Famous Tareyton Quality
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER
Cloudy and warmer with scattered rain. Expected high of 75.

The Daily Tar Heel

HANGOVER
The editors are worried about North Carolina's hangover next Monday. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 134 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Independent Don Fowler Chosen Student Body President

Justice Douglas Says U. S. Must Win Political Battle In Asian Countries First

By ED MYERS

Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, William O. Douglas said last night, "If we lose the political battle in Asia, it may be too late to win the military contest."

Speaking in Memorial Hall, Douglas confined his speech to the problems in Asia.. He stated "four great influences that the Asians have: Desire for independence, racial equality, desire to get rid of "feudalism," and socialist philosophy."

W. O. Douglas

"I disagree with Nehru in many things, but I can see his point of view," said Douglas. "He has done a brilliant job in India."

After his talk Douglas answered questions asked by the audience. When asked if he believed in recognizing Red China, he remarked, "To be realists, we must conclude there are two Chinas. Down through the ages recognition has not necessarily meant approval. If we recognized only the nations we approved of there would be very few on our list."

Douglas said that one imperialistic European country tried to prove that the people were not capable of governing themselves by not allowing them to be educated.

In concluding, Douglas said, "I have a great feeling of confidence that Communism will not win in Asia."

Last One

Today's Daily Tar Heel will be the last one until after Easter vacation.

The newspaper will resume publication with next Wednesday morning's issue. Deadline will be 3:30 Tuesday afternoon.

IFC Says It Elected President

Ed Borden, president of Kappa Sigma Fraternity and chairman of the Student Entertainment Committee, was recently elected president of the Interfraternity Council, according to a report from the group.

Borden was allegedly elected president for the 1955 - 1956 academic year. The report said Borden has been "active in IFC affairs for the past two years," and that he has served on the Andrew Bershak Scholarship Committee.

The report said Borden "plans for the Council to continue the tradition of IFC's coordinating fraternity activities and affairs in the best interest of the entire student body as a whole.

"The IFC sponsoring of one campus-wide event is in store for next year," the report said.

Borden was said to replace Henry Issacson as IFC chief.

According to the report, other officers elected were Ed Hudgins, SAE, vice-president; Bob Hornik, ZBT, secretary and Dave Connor, Phi Gam, treasurer.

The Daily Tar Heel was barred from meetings of the Interfraternity Council last Sept. 20. At the Sept. 20 meeting, the IFC heard Daily Tar Heel Editor Charles Kuralt explain why he thought the meeting should be open and reported to the student body. The council voted against open meetings. Henry Issacson was president of the IFC at that time.

Duke Grants For Law Study To Be Given

The Duke University School of Law has announced competition for five $1,000 scholarships to be awarded to North Carolina and South Carolina residents for the study of law at Duke.

The scholarships are awarded for one year, but are renewable for a period of three years if the recipient maintains an average of B or better.

Eligibility requirements are residency in North or South Carolina, an A.B. degree, a B average or better and satisfactory completion of the Law School Admission Test administered by the Princeton Educational Testing Service. This test will be given here April 23.

Armstrong Warns Of Increased Enrollment

By EBBA FREUND

"By 1970 there will be a 40 per cent increase in the college-age population of North Carolina," said Director of Admissions Roy Armstrong in a talk, titled "The Impending Tidal Wave of Students" to the Faculty Club, yesterday.

Armstrong emphasized the fact that the University must begin preparations now for the tremendous increase in the college age population.

"We can't get the Legislature to do anything until we are way down in the dumps," said Armstrong. "But, in order to meet the needs of these coming students we are going to need classroom buildings, housing facilities, additional library space and increased student union facilities."

Armstrong especially emphasized the need for housing for married students. At present, he said, "there are 150 couples on the waiting list for Victory Village. Today the freshmen get married and come here looking for houses."

Another problem facing the University, said Armstrong, is "upholding our standards" in face of the increased burden on the faculty. The graduate schools are not turning out enough qualified graduates to meet the need, explained Armstrong.

Armstrong explained present admissions policies. "You," he said to the faculty, "never see the ones we reject; therefore you think that we accept everybody."

The Admissions office, said

(See ARMSTRONG, page 4)

Parents Day Set May First

The fifth annual Parents Day, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, is scheduled to be held May 1, according to an APO spokesman.

Consolidated University President Gordon Gray is expected to talk to visiting parents.

Several UNC departments will give exhibitions, said the spokesman. A band concert, reception by the faculty and possibly a special Planetarium show are on schedule.

The spokesman said invitations will be sent to several parents, "but it is impossible to contact them all. We will have to rely on the students to invite their parents."

Last year's Parents Day was held on May 1. More than 300 parents attended, according to Charlie Katzenstein, then APO president.

Two Cuts Levied On Earlybirds

Students who left for home or the beach yesterday, or who will leave early today, and who failed to have adequate excuse, will be charged with two unexcused absences, according to the new cut system voted into effect by the faculty.

The system, initiated with the beginning of the spring semester, states "an absence during a two-day period immediately before or immediately after University holidays will be counted two absences."

The rule replaces the old one of charging students $2.50 "for each absence immediately before and after a holiday."

(President Tom Creasy, in March, said he had talked with the faculty Committee on Attendance Regulations and that the committee had agreed to change wording of the new system to read "any excused absence during the two-day period" before and after holidays. The rule formerly read "an absence.")

Excuses are available only from the University Infirmary or from a student's dean.

More than three unexcused absences will fail a student.

According to the University Record, spring recess will start today at 6 p.m. and will end Monday at 6 p.m. Classes will start again next Tuesday morning.

Final exams for the spring semester, according to a schedule issued yesterday from the Central Office of Records, will be given May 24 through June 1. Quizzes, said the schedule, must not be given on or after Monday, May 16.

Collison Gets Post Over Tice

"Collie" Collison was named head cheerleader in yesterday's run-off election by 262 votes. Collison captured the post over "Pepper" Tice.

In winning the election, Collison reversed the tables on Tice, forerunner in the first primary.

The high man by close margins in all districts except two, Collison polled a total of 1,595 votes to 1,333 for Tice.

"I feel wonderful, and I want to thank all the fine people that helped me win," said the successful candidate in acknowledging his victory.

In the contests for Men's Honor Council seats, approximately 2,300 voters cast ballots for the three run-off seats being voted on.

The sophomore seat went to Sonny Evans by the scant margin of 35 ballots. The tabulation between Evans and Mac Patton was 1,134 to 1,099.

Mebane Pritchett took the junior council seat over Townsend Holt and Bill Morgan.

The senior seat was captured by Graham Shanks. Shanks was named over Don Huntington by a 1,136 to 1,054 majority.

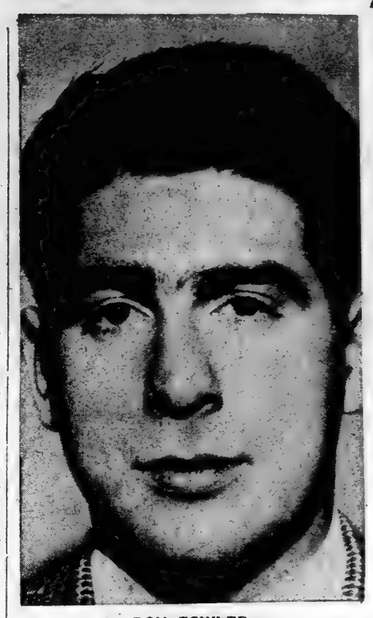
Caroline Coed, minus glasses and plus a buzz, at Azalea Festival: "Look at the helicopter!" (It was a buzzard.)

* * *

History prof describing university life in years to come: "A ramp will come down and you'll park your Cadillac . . . Then another ramp'll come down and my little Austin will drive you to school."

* * *

Same prof describing Scotch Terrier: "That's the black one you see in the liquor ads."



* * *

Same prof telling about the time he was in England and lectured at British prison: ". . . truly a captive audience."

Two From Dramatic Art To Attend Speech Meet

Two of the speakers at this year's annual Southern Speech Conference in Memphis, Tenn., this weekend will be faculty members of the UNC Department of Dramatic Art. They are Harry Davis and Foster Fitz-Simons, directors on the Playmakers staff, who will speak on outdoor drama.

Both Davis and Fitz-Simons have had experience with the North Carolina outdoor dramas, Davis as director of the Cherokee show, Unto These Hills, and Fitz-Simons as actor and dancer in both The Lost Colony and Unto These Hills. Davis will speak on staging an outdoor drama and Fitz-Simons on acting and choreography in outdoor theatre.

DON FOWLER
. . . Mister President

Winner Never Lost His Lead

By NEIL BASS

Independent candidate Don Fowler was elected president of the student body in yesterday's run-off election.

Fowler was picked over University Party nominee Ed McCurry by a 1,641-1,459 count.

According to unofficial reports, this is the first time since the two-party system was started at UNC in 1928 that an independent candidate has captured the chief executive's post.

Fowler said after he received the news of his selection, "It's the most wonderful feeling that I've ever had in my life and I thank everybody everywhere on the campus."

Fowler took the lead early in the vote tabulating as returns came in from the dorm men's districts, and he never lost his lead.

After the early tabulation was announced, it became a question as to whether or not the UP stronghold—the Scuttlebutt—would swing McCurry into the lead.

All other returns were in and Fowler had about a 400 vote majority. The majority lay in the hands of the Scuttlebutt. When the vote came in, it was heavily in favor of McCurry, to the tune of 413 to 167, but even this heavy margin couldn't turn the tide.

McCurry said in a statement after he received news of the outcome, "I would like to express my heartfelt appreciation for the great expression of confidence shown in me by today's vote. I shall always remember the hard work done by my supporters, especially my campaign manager, Raymond Taylor.

"To the new president I extend my best wishes for a successful administration, and I urge everyone to cooperate with him in making ours a greater university."

Lawmakers Get Budget Calling For Fee Hike

A recent recommendation by the Budget Committee that a referendum be held to determine if the student body wanted a $5 raise in fees was given the temporary axe last night.

The committee's recommendation, which had been figured into the 1955-56 student government budget, was shelved on the advice of legislative speaker Martin Jordan.

Of the proposed raise, $5 per student per year, $3 was to go to Graham Memorial and $2 to student government.

With the raise, the income of student government next year would have been $131,599.70, $7,711.68 more than was necessary to carry out the budget's appropriations as it stood.

Without the raise, the student government budget will have an increase of $102,507.20. Thus the Budget Committee will have to revise the budget to keep out of the red.

Although the proposed raise was shoved down the drain temporarily, Jordan suggested that the incoming Legislature might debate the raise if a constitutional amendment was introduced to the body.

The session at which the shelving took place was not an official meeting of the Legislature, due to the lack of a quorum.

Resolution

RALEIGH, April 5. (AP)—The House today unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that the Legislature is opposed to mixing of the races in public schools anywhere in North Carolina.

House action came after both House and Senate Education Committees had acted to make more emphatic the resolution introduced in both houses last night. Senate action on the resolution is expected Thursday.

Leadership Training Meeting Is Scheduled

The Leadership Training Program's two days of meetings, under the theme, "The Hit Parade of Effective Leadership," will begin Tuesday, April 26, with a meeting in the Library conference room at 4 p.m.

Dr. Maurice Kidder, pastor of the Episcopal Chapel of the Holy Family, Glen Lennox, will speak to junior women recently elected to new offices or the chairmanship of committees concerning the qualities of leadership.

At 5 p.m. the group will break up into smaller discussion sections according to particular offices.

The Wednesday meeting will start at 4 p.m., at which time the men leaders on campus will be introduced. There will again be group discussion, with special emphasis on the difference between a "real leader and a pseudo-leader."

The Leadership Training Program's finale will be the Student Government Banquet, "It's A Big Wide Wonderful World," Wednesday, April 27, in Lenoir Hall. President Gordon Gray will be the evening's speaker.

All new officers will be introduced at the banquet.

Blood Factor Is Discovered By UNC Man

A new blood factor which "appears to slow the rate of blood clotting" was described by Dr. Robert H. Wagner, research associate in pathology and biochemistry, at the University's monthly Medical Research Conference.

Other research projects on which reports were made were studies of certain characteristics of "Group A" streptococcal cells, by Dr. John H. Schwab, instructor in bacteriology, and studies on nutritional and metabolic actions of histidine and glutamic acid, by Dr. John E. Wilson, assistant professor of biochemistry and nutrition.

The last research conference was the fifth in a yearly series, at which different UNC medical staff members discussed their current projects.

Dr. Wagner said the new blood factor has been called "anticonvertin" because it destroys the activity of "convertin," which has a powerful action in accelerating blood clotting.

Experimentation on this factor was carried out with dog plasma, Dr. Wagner explained. He noted the similarity of anticonvertin to another clotting regulator, "antithrombin."

Dr. Schwab discussed the production by the streptococcal cells of

(See BLOOD, page 4)

UNC's Whitman Scholar Stovall To Teach At University Of Va.

Special to The Daily Tar Heel

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 5—President Colgate W. Darden Jr., today announced the election by the Board of Visitors of three members of the University of Virginia English faculty. Two of the new professors are specialists in American literature.

Floyd Stovall has been elected Edgar Allan Poe professor of English. Dr. Stovall, who is professor of English at the University of North Carolina, will teach three graduate courses in American literature and will direct research studies in this field in which the University of Virginia is developing rich resource material in manuscript and printed form. Dr. Stovall will retire from the UNC faculty. He delivered the Humanities lecture at UNC this spring, and a book, American Literary Criticism, has just been published.

Frederick L. Gwynn, specialist in American literature at Pennsylvania State University, has been elected associate professor of English. He is to become editor of College English which will be published from the University of Virginia beginning in September.

Joseph L. Blotner, who will come from the University of Idaho to be assistant professor of English, will teach first and second year college courses in literature and composition. He has spent four years in a technical writing and training program for the Patent Research and Planning Laboratories Division of the Radio Corporation of America.

Dr. Stovall has written eight books, six of them on American literature, and is at work on critical studies of Poe and Walt Whitman. He will find at the University of Virginia the most extensive collection of material on Poe anywhere assembled and a growing collection of Whitman manuscripts and related items.

Manuscripts of James Fenimore Cooper, William Cullen Bryant, John Esten Cooke, O. Henry, William Dean Howells, Sinclair Lewis, Louis Bromfield, Stephen Crane, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Paul Hamilton Hayne, Nathaniel Parker Willis and other American authors will be available in the University's Alderman Library for Dr. Stovall and his students to work with. Recent gifts, many from an alumnus, C. Waller Barrett of New York, are making the library an unusually rich resposiory of source materials.

Ellen Glasgow, Mary Johnston, Thomas Nelson Page, Nancy Hale and Agnes Rothery Pratt are among the Virginia authors represented, and the manuscript collection also includes the writings of two important Britishers, John Galsworthy and H. G. Wells.

Joyner Dorm Has Beach . . .

Coke bottles, imported sand and rows upon rows of bare backs—that's what one is likely to see at the first beach ever opened on the campus of a North Carolina institution. UNC, according to the founders of this recreational spot, now boasts such a beach.

It's on the lawn, on the sidewalk, in the street and in various nooks and crannies of the terrain surrounding Joyner Dormitory.

To control the users of the Joyner facilities, certain of the founding fathers formulated a constitution that contains, in gist, the following amendments:

1) No profanity uttered on the beach except at law enforcement officers or any other males who mumble, think or orate any cutting remarks;

3) No spreading by University employees of "horse, cow or elephant fertilizer" on the grounds of the beach;

4) Invitations will be verbally expressed to females regardless of size, shape or other qualifications.

5) No studying on the beach except The Daily Worker and The Carolina Quarterback.

According to the found fathers of the waterless beach, the constitution was written in the interest of bettering relations with that "all imporant instution"—Carolina Coeds.

List Will Enable Scholars To Find Periodicals All Over N.C.

A listing of scientific periodicals and selected serials in libraries at Duke University and the three institutions of the Consolidated University of North Carolina recently has been published in book form.

Edited by Miss Wixie Parker, periodicials librarian at Duke University, the book contains 385 pages and indicates the location of susbtantially all the scientific periodicals and the most important serials in the four libraries.

I. T. Littleton, assistant to the librarian here, said the book is the first step in an enlarged program of library cooperation between the libraries of Duke University, the University of North Carolina, North Carolina State College and the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

Publication of the list makes it possible for each faculty member and research scholar at the four schools to have his own handy reference copy.

A cooperative program to include the three institutions of the Consolidated University and Duke is now being worked out by an Inter-University Committee appointed by Presidents Gordon Gray of North Carolina and Hollis Edens of Duke.

The committe consists of the librarians and one faculty member from each of the four institutions. The listing of periodicals is the first of several cooperative enterprises recommended by the committee.

It is a further step in the cooperative library program that has been in operation since the 1930's. For more than 20 years the libraries of Duke and the Consolidated University have maintained a union card catalog of holdings on the respective campuses.

During this period the four libraries have freely exchanged books and periodicals by means of a truck driven three days each week from the library here to the Duke University Library.

Faculty members and graduate students on both campuses needing materials for research from either library can get it within one or two days.

A Monday Hangover For North Carolina

Monday—when the spring holiday is little more than pleasant memories, a coat of suntan, or a hangover for students returning to the Hill — the U. S. Supreme will sit soberly down to hear arguments of the Southern states on how to implement its segregation decision.

If a resolution introduced this week in the General Assembly passes (and it probably will), North Carolina will be on record as believing that "mixing of the races in the public schools throughout the state cannot be accomplished and if attempted would alienate public support of the schools to such an extent that they could not operate successfully."

The resolution, backed by Governor Hodges, provides also for the creation of a seven-member commission to make a continuing study of the segregation problem.

Since this resolution puts the state on record as saying to the Supreme Court that we can't implement its decision (which isn't what the court asked for), it would seem that such a commission would be useless. The commission's study would be a waste of time, since the state's leaders have already decided that the decision to mix races in the schools "cannot be accomplished."

The highest court in this land has wiped from the law books the concept of segregation in the public schools. It is now asking Southern states how to implement this decision. Instead of suggesting something definite —perhaps a gradual integration plan—North Carolina throws up its legislative hands with useless resolutions.

Beware The Greeks, Mr. Summerfield

The National Book Committee has released its recommendatory Report on Book Burning, roundly condemning private censors who set their own questionable taste and wisdom above the taste and wisdom of ages of book readers.

A valuable recommendation by the Committee suggests a means of retaliation against the censors. When a man rings a fire alarm falsely he may be penalized. The Book Committee's reasoning is similar: When arbitrary action dams the flow of books, "legislation penalizing private action which interferes . . . with the distribution of reading material would cure this danger."

Congressmen could show their concern for the unhindered circulation of literature by enacting such legislation. We think we already have a likely candidate for prosecution if he continues to obstruct the right of post for Greek literature. He is Postmaster-General Arthur Summerfield who threw a block to Aristophanes' Lysistrata a week or so ago. A slight fine would teach him to fear the Greeks—especially bearing literature.

Gracious Living—I (Second Series)

The wheels of modernism go spinning around, always moving in on us. But this time (shock of shocks for self-respecting members of the Society for the Preservation of Primitivism in Chapel Hill) the wheels of modernism have spun themselves a bit too far—right into the display window of the Paul Smiths' Intimate Bookshop.

What's with this newfanglement, anyhow? A fortnight ago, the Raleigh-ic oracle herself, Nell Battle Lewis, wept her journalistic tears over an invasion of exotic foods (fried grasshoppers, toasted lotus antennae, etc.) in Chapel Hill. Now we head for one of the last places in the village where you can walk on a genuine-squeaky board floor, only to see this display contraption a-whirl in the window.

This interloper from the mechanical age, this splinterfire-new, patented parvenu has no place in the quaint and musty environs of a village bookshop. Gracious Living in Chapel Hill diminishes with every turn, we fear. Let it be removed.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

The Death Of Our Suspicion; With A Plot?

J. A. C. Dunn

IN THE COURSE of harvesting the week's crop of intellectual stimulation in the last Saturday Review we stubbed our delicately manicured intellectual toe on an editorial by John Steinbeck concerning the recent Matusow testimony furor entitled "The Death of a Racket."

It is an excellent editorial; it says some rather optimistic things for a change — prinicipally that 'his (Matusow's) testimony and retestimony may well be the little push that causes the pendulum of common sense to swing back." Or in other words the American public may be getting squared away about just how scared of Big Brother it ought to be, may be snickering a little bit at fright propaganda.

★

OUR RESPECT FOR Mr. Steinbeck narrowly misses constituting blasphemous idolatry. He writes beautifully, he has something to say, we enjoy him, he exhilarates us. But he made one comment in his editorial that made us stop reading and think for a minute. "No Communist tactician," he says, "would destroy the climate of disunity and suspicion which has haunted us for the last few years by substituting a return to sanity. An effective Communist Party would much rather kep the investigations going with their harvest of fear and disruption than to produce laughter which, in my estimation, is what Communists have most to fear and against which they have no armor."

This is very good resoning and may very well be true. But it raises the question that if no Communist tactician would destroy a climate of disunity, what would he do instead? Assuming, that is, that he does not make an outright error. It appears to us that while the Kremlin Club may possibly have made a genuine mistake in permitting the "climate of disunity" to lapse, on the other hand there might just as easily be an element of reverse english in the whole affair, and the public laughter raised by references to professional witneses may be carefully planed.

★

LOOK AT IT this way: For the past few years the American public, having previously been complacent about Communism, has suffered from cronic internal insecurity as a result of the endless Communist investigations. Now, perhaps, Big Brother and his slightly les gargantuan siblings, are reasoning that unless Americans are given a different kind of jolt, they may become complacent about the very thing that is making them suspicious of one another. Obviously there is no other really effective way to disunite a country than the stimulation of suspicion by investigating anyone and everyone (except by outright); therefore suspicion, as a weapon, must be given a rest, must be given time to gather new force; this can perhaps best be done by letting the American public think the danger has passed, by fighting fire with fire, by destroying complacency with complacency. Hence the laughter gimmick: let 'em laugh, the Communists may be saying, they'll get the back of our hand on the return swing.

★

"IT IS INEVITABLE," Mr. Steinbeck says, "that some officials. . .must charge that. . .(Matusow's) reversal is a part of a plot. . . of the Kremlin. But the time for such reasoning has passed." Certainly it is inevitable that such charges will be made. But why has the time for reasoning that such charges are false passed? Unless the Communists have really made a serious blunder, we cannot see that it has.

'Relax—They're Bound To Turn Aside'

PASSING REMARK

No Textbook Is A Bible

Ron Levin

The other night I was speaking to a friend of mine who entered the University as a freshman last fall. He was slightly aggravated over the fact tht he had to take certain courses that were going to be of no value to him in his future field.

On many previous occasions, I have heard similar comments from students who feel they are deriving no benefit whatsoever from a particular course. It would seem to me that there is a lesson to be learned from every course and in every classroom.

For instance: It is not essential that you remember how to solve every type of algebraic equation or remember all the formulae from a chemistry course, but it vital that you develop from these a habit of thinking in an precise and careful manner that will prove to be an invaluable help in dealing with future problems that might be only remotely related to mathematics or chemistry, if at all.

You should not be upset, if you can not remember al the names and dates from a history textbook. However, the study of this material shoud stimulate your mind and enlarge your scope of thought so as to make for a better understanding of great events in the world.

It woul be nice, if you could recall all the interesting tales from your psychology class and familiarize yourself with Freudian principles to such an extent that you could play armchair analyst the next time you go home.

What IS important, though, is the realization of the complexity of the mind of man and an awareness of the great amount of work done and the vast amount remaining to be accomplished in the yars ahead, so that we may come to a somewhat clearer understanding of ourselves and our environment.

The development of a tolerant and understanding attitude toward all branches of knowledge should be the first concern of every college student. How many times have you heard certain departments or professors referred to as complete wastes of time, or a bunch of crackpot or dreamers? These and similar remarks have been made for tone reason and one reason only, and that is complete and unswerving ignorance on the part of the student. Nine times out of ten, he has never had a course in the department, but he is going on the advice of a none too brilliant friend. If he has had the course, he probably flunked it or had a strong dislike for the instructor due to reasons of a purely personal nature.

★ ★ ★

It is imperative that the student should attempt to gain perspective in the acquisition of knowledge. Try to view the subject matter from a distance. After you have studied for a quiz, put down the book and reflect for a while on the purpose and significance of what you have learned. How does it relate to your other courses and the vast amount of your previous experience whether from books or actual living? What are some questions that have arisen during the semester that you did not find answered in the book? What are some answers given that do not seem satisfactory to you? How has it helped you to integrate yourself to those around you and se yourself as part of the human idea?

Above all, remember that no textbook is a bible, and no instructor an absolute authority on any one subject. The world has been changing ever since time began, and it will continue to do so as long as it exists. It is just this inherent and vital part of the proces of life that causes us to wait hopefully and eagerly for tomorrow.

Own Image Dissatisfies

Ralph McGill

(We go Mr. McGill's Atlanta Constitution article — fine and thought-provoking though it be— a few points better; it would be tragic, we think, to use American bombs and lives to keep Quemoy and Matsu out of the hands of Chinese Communists and our opinion is shared by both statesmen and responsible military experts—Editors.)

With agonizing slowness, the pace of which has been snail-like, stationary, or retarded, the Kremlin's best laid plans of aggression in Europe have been thwarted.

There Communist strength, though yet formidable, wanes.

This has been done without war, though not without compromise and sacrifice.

Senator Walter George and others have taken the line that this suggests a similar course of action in Asia.

Certain deductions now are possible One is this:

The more people learn about the facts of Communist rule as opposed to Marxist and Lenin ideology, the more they want to be free of it.

But what affronts many Americans is that these same persons want also to be equally free of American influence.

It should not affront us. We, ourselves, are not content with our own image. Our jammed mental institutions; our juvenile problems; our preoccupation with "success"; our retreat from anything intellectual—these are but a few of the facets of our image which are ugly even to us.

MATERIALISTIC

One of the most successful bits of propaganda used against us is that we are a materialistic people. We cannot escape the evidence our image reflects this fact. We bang too many cymbals. We set up too many golden calves. The smoke from their altars conceals the crowded churches; the friendly, genuine people, the concern for all human needs.

There is no reason why other nations should not wish to work out their own political and social system—free of the Soviet Union and the United States.

Japan, for example, already is moving more rapidly toward the "neutralism" as best expressed by India. And Japan, even more than Formosa, is an integral part of our defense perimeter.

Sincere men, who are members of our Chiefs of Staff, believe we should not stand aloof if an attack is made on either, or both, the coastal islands just off the Red Chinese coast . . . Matsu and Quemoy.

They recommend we strike an immediate heavy blow of retaliation.

CONCEPT

Put briefly, the idea would be swiftly to reduce her capacity to make war.

If we do this will the Russians come in?

The President does not think so. He speaks out of the intelligence reports given him.

What else does the President think?

He has not said. Those close to him felt, after hearing his analysis, that he inclined to applying the agonizingly - slow methods which gradually have stalemated Communist plans in Europe.

But we don't know.

What we must know is the choice.

Y-Court Corner

Rueben Leonard

THERE ARE so many alcoholics who have no desire to remain anonymous—all dressed up and ready to glow—we can readily understand why liquor sales are mounting yearly. Peddling hootch is such good business that if all the liquor salesmen in Durham were laid end to end, they would form a parallel line with their customers who are also laid out.

The Chapel Hill Parent-Teacher's Association wanted to hold a referendum to install ABC Stores in Chapel Hill so they can drain the taxes from the spirits we drain. We suggest that they hold two referendums, one for the establishment of liquor stores and one for the legalizing of gambling casinos. They could take the money derived from the sale of whiskey and put it on a roulette wheel. Since the PTA knows what is best for the local citizenry surely they know how to beat the roulette wheel. With their winnings in the casinos they can have both an ultra-modern school program and a rehabilitation center for alcoholics.

Local fraternities can add another kind of entertainment to their long list orgies; a series of seances—"Just rap on the table and spirits will appear." Young athletes at Carolina will be able to hang on the bars and chin for hours.

Even with all the benefits to be derived from the advent of liquor stores, we predict that the citizens of Orange County will vote dry just as long as they can stagger to the polls to vote.

★ ★ ★

CHALK UP another victory for the grounds-keepers. Where a path once crossed the grass on the west side of Hanes Hall there is now a row of thorn bushes. We suggest that the grounds-keepers buy a batch of snakes (if you buy snakes in batches) and turn them loose in the Arboretum and really keep the students off the grass.

★ ★ ★

EVERY TIME that an instructor announces to the class that he has an outside grader, there are moans and groans from the students. At the University of Michigan a professor also had reason to complain.

After correcting a set of English papers, an assistant was (a) disturbed to discover he had corrected an extra exam that he couldn't account for even though he had graded it a "D" because it showed "a poor grasp of fundamentals," (b) showed it to the instructor, (c) was even more disturbed when informed it was the key the instructor had left for him to use in marking the other papers.

★ ★ ★

CHARLES DUNN mentioned in his column yesterday that Tarnation was up to par. We would like to know what is par for a humor magazine Everyone seems to know good humor when they see it but no one ever turns any of it in to the Tarnation staff. Maybe Charlie's of the "If I want to write a good book, I'll write one" school.

★ ★ ★

ELECTION AFTERMATH: When Don Fowler put up his poster in Y-Court that read, "Elect Don Fowler And Put YOUR Feet On The President's Desk," several students vowed that if Fowler were elected they would journey up to Graham Memorial and do just that.

★ ★ ★

AND TODAY we leave for the land of sin, sand, and sunshine where the ocean breeze furnishes the right amount of salt for our beer and the flying sand filters the lemon seeds from our "P. J." (This paragraph dedicated to Louis Kraar and his pseudo-spring breezes).

— Reader's Retort —

Another Writer Goes 'Over The Hill' Here

Editor:

Congrats to C. Dunn on his excellent taste in column titles, viz., "Over The Hill," p. 2.

I hesitate to laud Mr. Dunn on his originality, however, as I seem to recall a column of the same name which appeared on the sports page only last semester.

Fred Babson

(For reader Babson's and the campus' further edification, the title "Over The Hill" goes back before former Sports Editor Babson's Daily Tar Heel times and our own. Walt Dear started an editorial page column in this paper some half dozen years back, and it was called "Over The Hill." So columnist Charles Dunn wasn't stealing from former sports scribe Babson; he was only carrying on the tradition.—Editors)

Ike's Secret Transportation Report

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON — The Wall Street Journal has published the Eisenhower Administration's still secret transportation report. It is heavily weighted in favor of the railroads and railroad stocks have been climbing, presumably in case of cause and effect.

The verdict of an experienced politician, who has read the report is less bullish. Naming various aggressive industries it will vitally affect, including truckers and the airlines, he suggested that if the President backed it, every lawyer in America would be put on retainer by some interested party.

Apparently practical politicians who like Ike have achieved contact with the White House. The report is still seret and Secretary of Commerce Weeks, its guiding genius, has announced a European journey in the interest of more foreign trade.

The other transportation project of the Administration—the President's $101 billion highway program—has already bit the dust. Fiscal conservatives including Senator Byrd protested its off-the-budget financing aspects. The loose Federal-state partnership proposed came under fire from liberals, while various state Governors attacked the toll road sections.

GORE'S FILE

Chairman Gore of the Senate Public Works Committee had already filed it in the wastebasket before the President's new Controller-General, Joseph Campbell, appeared with his own large funeral wreath. The vehemence of Campbell's attack almost persuaded Gore he had been wrong in fighting that appointment.

Gore now intends to push his own bill which began by doubling the present program and may now be pushed up to four to five billions—he hopes. In this particular Congress, that would be a substantial appropriation for new construction outside the Defense Department.

Against this background it is probably academic to point to the glaring onconsistencies between the two transportation projects, since so little is apt to happen. For example, truckers were raised to seventh heaven by the prospects of billions of dollars worth of new roads, but were sent plummeting in the opposite direction by a recommendation in the Weeks report that railway companies should be freed to go into the trucking and bus business.

What seems to be happening is that people deeply interested in certain fields are being allowed to shape White House policy dealing with them, without that leavening of the general interest which politicians are supposed to supply. It is one result of a cabinet of business men who are trained to look after a relatively few interests very well.

CHARY SOLONS

When these recommendations or programs reach Congress, the politicians quickly detect their imbalance. If a large and well balanced schedule of legislation were before them, members of Congress would not perhaps be so chary. Instead they have had only a sprinkling of special messages.

This is one reason there will be very little new substantive legislation this year. The story may be different in 1956—an election year.

The public result is an appearance of political moderation. White House moves such as the Weeks proposals which would really change established policy are quickly rebuffed on the Hill. In turn, Congress is warned not to expand present horizons while the budget remains unbalanced.

It is probably that what Senator Kefauver said on the floor last week is true. It is that the American people are in the mood to pause and catch their breath, which is a big reason for the President's appeal.

Quote, Unquote

You must select the Puritans for your ancestors. You must have a sheltered youth and be a graduate of Harvard . . . Eat beans on Saturday night and fish-balls Sunday morning . . . You must be a D.A.R. a Colonial Dame, an S.A.R., or belong to the Mayflower Society . . . You must read the Atlantic monthly . . . You must make sure in advance that your obituary appears in the Boston Transcript. There is nothing else.—To be Happy in New England, Letter to the Editor of the Christian Register.

★

Both ears to the ground, but Yr. correspondent can distinguish no rumbles of complaint that the University's educational television budget was cut in twain last week. Statesmen carrying the TV battle semed content that the economy boys accomplished no more than half their aim, which was to cut of this appropriation entirely.

Hon. John W. Umstead of Orange, the spear of the Chapel Hill phalanx within the subcommittee on appropriations, explains blandly that the University people will simply have to return to the private sources which provided the some $1,500,000 with which the WUNC-TV began life. If the televisionary cost of living has been accurately figured, that will mean some $217,000 within the next two years.—Burke Davis in the Greensboro Daily News

Wisniewski Throws Three-Hitter, Michigan Wins

Wolverines Grab 2-0 Victory On Four Singles Off Maultsby

Big 10 Hurler Fans Eight Carolinians, Who Load Bags With None Out, Still No Tally

By BERNIE WEISS

Southpaw Marvin Wisniewski rationed the Tar Heels to a meager diet of three hits yesterday and the Michigan Wolverines managed to hit Carolina's Tom Maultsby only four times—but often enough to gain a 2-0 victory at Emerson Field.

Maultsby, except for a touch of wildness in spots, pitched excellent ball, but his teammates were not up to the slants of the Big 10 lefty who fanned eight Carolinians.

Carolina came close to scoring only once, in the second inning when the Tar Heels loaded the bags with none out. Wisniewski bore down on his rivals, fanning two and getting the third to pop up. From there it was a breeze for the slim Wolverine. No Tar Heel was able to get past second base for the remainder of the game.

MICHIGAN GOT both runs in the sixth inning when Maultsby temporarily lost his touch. After Wolverine captain Don Cline was called out on strikes, third-baseman Don Eaddy singled to center, swiped second when Jack Maultsby (catcher) threw high to the bag in an attempt to toss him out. Ken Tippery bounced to short for the second out and Eaddy took third on the play. Then Howard Tommelein smashed a line drive over second base, driving in Eaddy, and he also swiped the keystone bag. When pitcher Tom Maultsby tried to throw him out at second, shortstop Al Long let the ball get away from him and Tommelein went to third. He came on after nagging Maultsby into a balk.

Michigan threatened to score again in the eighth when Tippery singled to left and Mal Harding made a poor throw back into the infield which allowed Tippery to gain second. He went to third on an infield out, but Maultsby got Jim Vukovich for the third out on a grounder to shortstop.

MEANWHILE, AS Maultsby was hurling his best game of the year, the batting Tar Heels were unable to buy hits. Their best opportunity came in the second. Connie Gravitte singled to lead off, then Will Frye was hit by a pitched ball and Jack woods dropped a perfect bunt down the third base line to fill the sacks. But Bobby Paller and Jack Maultsby looked at third strikes and Brother Tom flied meekly to left, killing any hopes of scoring.

In the sixtn, Kenny Keller doubled (the third and last Carolina hit) with one out, but he died on second as Gravitte was thrown out and Frye popped to center.

THE TAR HEELS are idle today. Tomorrow they open against Rollins College in the first Dixie Baseball Classic in Durham at 1 o'clock. Rollins' Art Brophy and Tar Heel Jim Raugh are the probable starting moundsmen.

Yesterday's Box:

Michigan	Ab	R	H	O	A
Benedict, ss	4	0	0	1	1
Fox, cf	3	0	1	4	0
Cline, rf	4	0	1	0	0
Eaddy, 3b	3	1	1	3	5
Tippery, 2b	3	0	1	2	1
Tommelein, lf	4	1	2	1	0
Vukovich, 1b	2	0	0	7	0
Szalwinski, C	3	0	0	8	2
a-Thurston	1	0	0	0	0
Snider, c	0	0	0	1	0
Wisniewski, p	4	0	0	0	0
Totals	32	2	6	27	9

North Carolina	Ab	R	H	O	A
Lloyd, 2b	4	0	0	2	4
Long, ss	3	0	0	1	3
Keller, rf	4	0	1	0	0
Gravitte, cf	4	0	1	2	0
Frye, 1b	3	0	0	10	3
Woods, 3b	3	0	1	3	1
Paller, lf	1	0	0	1	0
b-Zachery	1	0	0	0	0
Harding, lf	0	0	0	0	0
c-Hill	1	0	0	0	0
J. Maultsby, c	3	0	0	6	0
T. Maultsby, p	3	0	0	2	1
Totals	31	0	3	27	12

a—Grounded out for Szalwinski in 9th.
b—Fanned for Paller in 7th.
c—Grounded out for Harding in 9th.

Michigan 000 002 000—2
North Carolina 000 000 000—0

E—Long, Harding, Eaddy. RBI—Tommelein. 2b—Keller. SB—Long, Eaddy, Tommelein. E—Fox. Left—Michigan 8, North Carolina 7. BB—off Maultsby 6, Wisnewski 7. HBP—By Wisniewski (Frye, Paller). Balk—Maultsby. T—2:25. U—Beck and Talley.

UNC Hosts Williams, Princeton

Carolina will be host to visiting teams in three varsity sports as track, tennis, and lacrosse take the field against three northern opponents today.

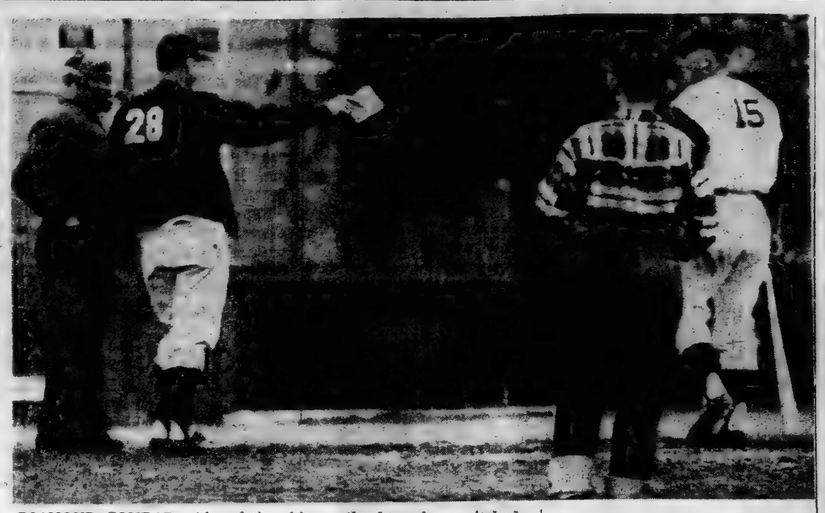
When the Tar Heel track team hooks up with the Princeton squad this afternoon at 2:00 on Fetzer Field, the cindermen will be meeting their first real test of the year. Carolina scored many first places and looked impressive in downing N. C. State 102½-28½ here last Saturday, but the Wolfpack was just too weak in general to give the Tar Heels a scare or a chance to display their fullest ability. It will take a great deal of effort to stop the Tigers from Princeton, who have more strength than Carolina in the track events. UNC does, however, have a superior edge over the visitors in five of the six field events. Today's meet will be Princeton's first of the season.

Coach John Kenfield's undefeated netmen will be seeking their seventh victory in as many starts when they take the courts against Williams College. The Tar Heels, who have looked highly impresisve so far this year, have bowled over such fine competition as Michigan State, Dartmouth, Swarthmore, and Harvard, and figure to have little trouble in knocking off the visiting New England team.

Co-captains Toby Haynesworth and Steve Trimble will lead a highly spirited varsity lacrosse team into action against Williams today in the Tar Heels' first meeting of the season. The stickmen, coached by newcomer Art Greenbaum, will be out to avenge a 10-1 licking which the '54 team suffered at the hands of the Williams team last year. In their first game of the season, the New Englanders were soundly beaten by a good Baltimore University club' 20-4.

FOR THE season's opener Greenbaum will start Hal Taylor, Jack Spooner, and Haynesworth at the attack, Dick Baker, Joe Converse, and Sherry Smith at the midfield, Trimble, Ronnie Current, and newcomer Bill Dednem, who played lacrosse at UNC in '50-'51, at the defensive positions, and Thorne Walker at goalie.

The Tar Heels will play a strong Yale team tomorrow here on Navy Field. Yale has previously beaten Washington & Lee 8-1 and plays Duke in Durham today. Williams will complete its southern trip by finishing out a four-game schedule, playing both Duke and Maryland within the next week.



Yale Beats Wake, 4-2

WAKE FOREST, April 5. (AP)—Yale scored two runs in the eighth inning on two singles and two errors to break a 2-2 tie and hand Wake Forest its first loss of the season in five games, 4-2.

Take Home a Bible for Mom

Before you head for home, stop in the old Intimate Bookshop, and pick a suitable book for Mom in our religious section. The surprised delight in her eyes will be a lasting reward.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

DIAMOND CONFAB—After being hit on the knee by a pitched ball in yesterday's 2-0 Michigan win over Carolina, Will Frye (No. 15) was brought into a discussion by plate umpire Beck, who ruled that Frye had not been hit by the ball. UNC Coach Walter Rabb (No. 28) protested, and is shown here pointing Frye on to first. Beck, after talking over the play with Base Umpire Talley, awarded Frye the free trip, reversing his decision. Carolina batboy watches the rare scene. (Henley photo.)

Athlete of the Week!

Gravitte's Consistent Hitting Keeping Carolina In Trim

Centerfielder Connie Gravitte has been selected as "The Athlete of the Week" by The Daily Tar Heel sports staff for his fine play during the past week.

In leading the Tar Heels to a 4-1 victory over Michigan State's Spartans Saturday, Gravitte collected three hits in four trips to the plate, including his third home run of the young season.

His homer, a 400-foot, inside-the-park blast in the fourth frame, brought home Ken Keller to give Carolina 2l lead in the game, and all the runs that were needed to win.

Gravitte also had two singles against the Spartans.

On Friday, Gravitte picked up two bingles and drove in two runs to help the Tar Heels turn back the Maryland Terps, 10-5.

UNC Netters Gain Sixth Victory; Crush Harvard Crimson, 14-1

North Carolina's tennis team defeated Harvard for the second time in as many days here yesterday by the identical score of 14-1.

Harvard's only point came in the doubles when Doug Manchester and Jeff Ball toppled Carolina's Fritz Van Winkle and Frank Livingston.

In the most exciting match of the afternoon, Carolina's No. 2 man, Bobby Payne, came from behind after losing the first set, 1-6, to defeat Harvard's Steve Gottlieb. In the second set, Gottlieb led Payne through 12 games before losing, 7-5, and the Tar Heel captain took the third set and match, 6-4.

The Summary:

Singles—Payne (C) defeated Gottlieb, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4; Browne (C) defeated Harris, 8-6, 6-3; Kerdasha (C) defeated Haegler, 6-2, 6-2; Bradford (C) defeated Canfield, 6-4, 6-1; Bortner (C) defeated Fisher, 10-8, 2-6, 6-1; Thompson (C) defeated Mayers, 6-0, 5-7, 11-9; Hudgins (C) defeated Purnell, 6-2, 6-1; Gufstafson (C) defeated Kay, 7-5, 6-2; Van Winkle defeated Manchester, 6-3, 7-5; Livingston (C) defeated Ball, 10-8, 8-6.

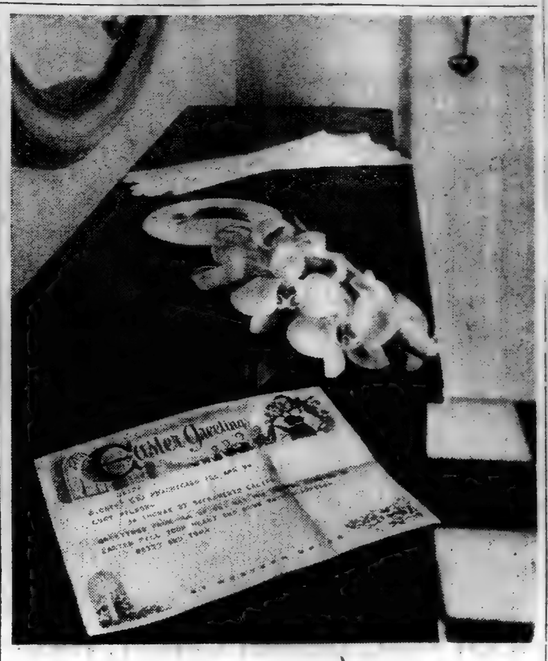
The WHITE ORCHID
PHOTOGRAPHED IN EASTMAN COLOR
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS
FILMED IN MEXICO'S LOST JUNGLES!
Starring
William Lundigan
Peggie Castle
NOW SHOWING
Varsity

Plan Now for Executive Career in RETAILING

Unique one-year course leads you to Master's degree. Individualized training for those COLLEGE GRADUATES who desire top-paying positions, have average or better academic records, broad educational backgrounds. Training in nationally known retail organizations with pay (covers tuition, books, fees). Scholarships. Coed. Graduates placed. Next class begins Sept. 6, 1955. Applications accepted now. Write for Bulletin C.

SCHOOL OF RETAILING
UNIVERSITY OF PITTSBURGH
Pittsburgh 13, Pa.

Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS
FOR EASTER



GIVE HER
Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH FOR 70 YEARS
EASTER CANDY GIFT WRAPPED FREE
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
Phone 98781

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

lap of luxury
AFTER SIX formals are so debonair, so handsome, so comfortable, with "natural" styling. For your social high spots, have more fun—go

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's

In the Joyous Spirit of the Day
Easter Greetings
by Telegram!

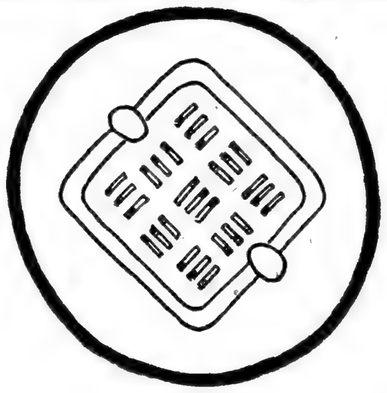
This Easter, send greetings to loved ones this very special way . . . by telegram. Western Union will deliver your message on a beautiful, colorful blank, so appropriate to the joyous spirit of the Easter season.

Greetings by telegram reflect your good taste and thoughtfulness. They are so easy to send—just call Western Union and give them your messages

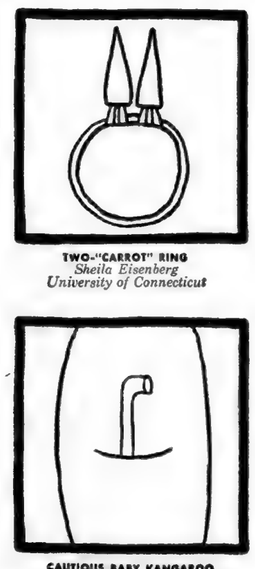
On any Occasion it's wise to wire WESTERN UNION
121 North Columbia St.
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
Tel.: 3511 and 2681

BOB and MONK
of
TOWN & CAMPUS
SALUTE
CONNIE GRAVITTE

who figured highly in the Tar Heels' two baseball victories last week, collecting five hits, among them a homer.



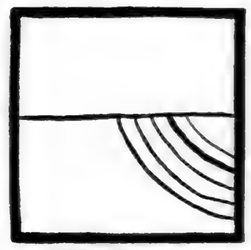
We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house



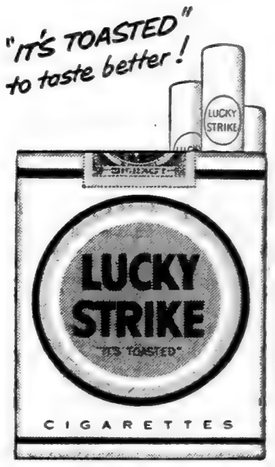
We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.

TOWN & CAMPUS

LUCKY DROODLES! ALL BRAND NEW!

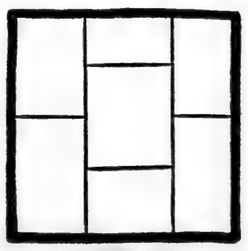


WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.



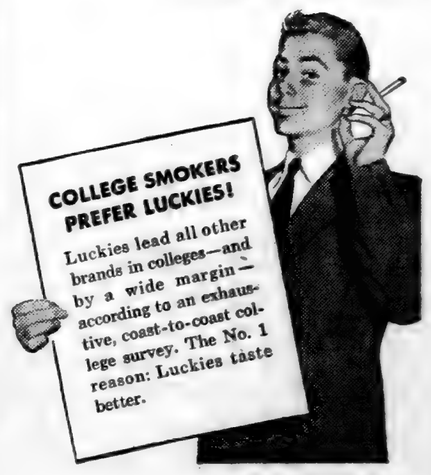
TWO-"CARROT" RING
Sheila Eisenberg
University of Connecticut

CAUTIOUS BABY KANGAROO
Solomon E. Spector
University of Chicago



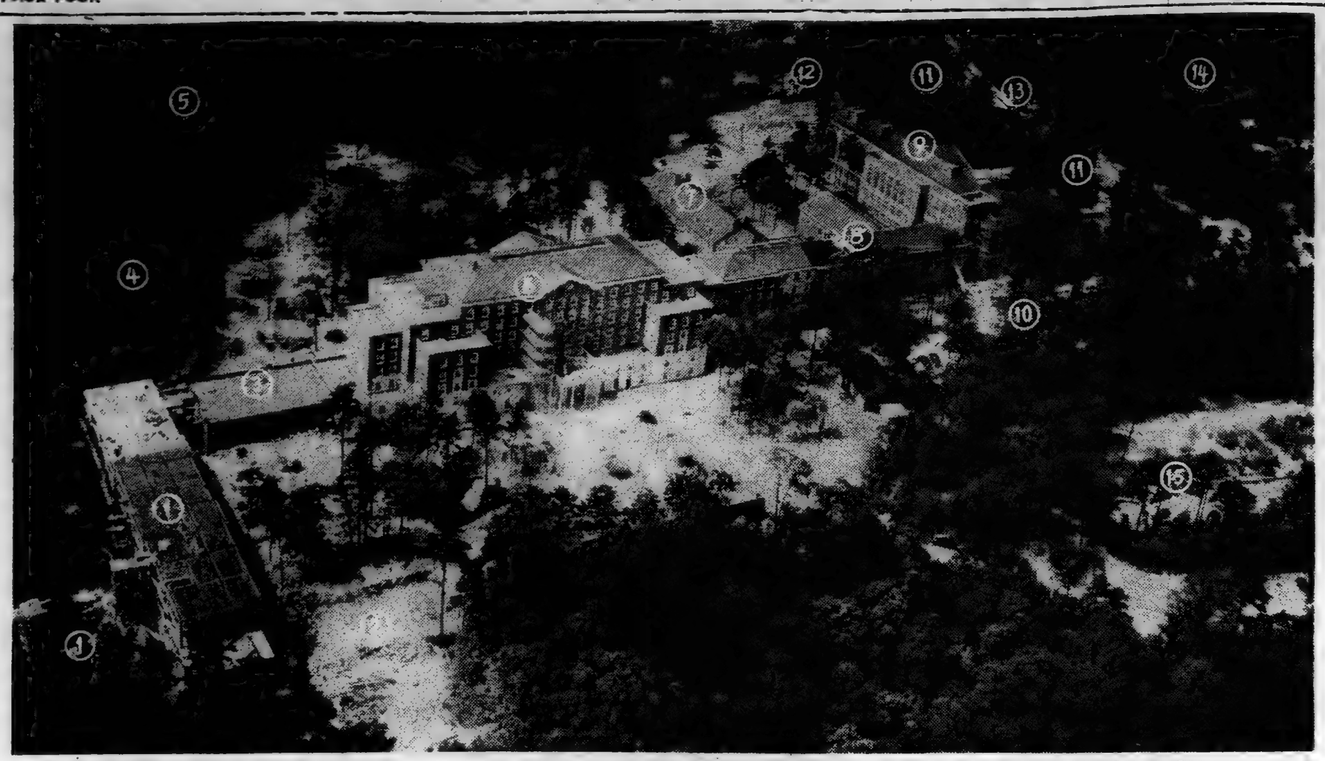
RAINBOW SEEN BY MAN STANDING ON HEAD
Duane B. Cummings
South Dakota State College

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!



ARE YOU METICULOUS about your choice of cigarettes? Do you want exactly the right taste? Then take a hint from the Droodle above, titled: Ash tray belonging to very tidy Lucky smoker. Luckies taste neat—and for excellent reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted" is the famous Lucky Strike process that tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So enjoy yourself thoroughly whenever it's light-up time. Light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price



ELEVATOR STUCK BETWEEN FLOORS
Karl D. Wright
West Virginia University

COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES!
Luckies lead all other brands in colleges—and by a wide margin—according to an exhaustive, coast-to-coast college survey. The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Better taste Luckies...
LUCKIES TASTE BETTER
CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

Aerial Picture Of UNC Health Center, Including Medicine School

Above is aerial picture taken several years ago, of the University health center, including the School of Medicine, which celebrated its 75th anniversary next week. Numbers in the picture are identified as (1) two dormitories for nursing students (now completed), (2) residences for house staff and interns, (3) main offices and classroom buildings for the School of Nursing, (4) 400-bed North Carolina Memorial Hospital, (5) excavation for psychiatric wing (now completed), (6) Gravely Sanatorium, (7) student infirmary, (8) out-patient dept. and cancer research facilities, (9) Medical School and public health building, (10) temporary classroom buildings for School of Public Health, (11) two new wings of the Medical School building, (12) School of Dentistry, (13) Chapel Hill-Pittsboro highway, (14) entrance and parking. Number 15 was not identified.

Weather Supposed To Stay Wet Over Recess

The weather will be mild with widely scattered thundershowers for any students who may be remaining in Chapel Hill during the spring vacation, according to a report from the Raleigh-Durham Weather Bureau yesterday.

The bureau spokesman said wet weather will be due to a cold front in the upper altitudes intersecting a warm air front at lower heights.

The warm air front, according to the weatherman, is coming into the state from Georgia, while the cold air is entering from Wisconsin. He added that the showers which are expected will not be prolonged.

For students who are headed south into South Carolina and Georgia, the average temperatures will be a little below normal with rather warm weather today which will turn cooler following a shower tomorrow. Rain is expected in the area over the weekend, according to a report.

N.C. Symphony To Start State Tour April 14

The North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Benjamin Swalin, will begin its 10th annual tour in Hickory Thursday and Friday, April 14-15, where it will present two free children's concerts and an adult program.

Covering The Campus

The Vigil of Maundy Thursday will be observed in the United Congregational Church tomorrow at 8 o'clock.

The United Church choir, under the direction of Philip Nelson, will provide the music for the program.

The service is open to the public.

★

M. M. Siddiqui, a member of the faculty at Punjab University, Pakistan, will speak on the Cosmopolitan Interview tonight at 7:30 over WUNC, 91.5 on FM radio dials.

Siddiqui, now a graduate student in mathematical statistics here, will describe some of his educational and family background in India and Pakistan, as well as a description of Pakistan as a country.

John Riebel, associate secretary of the University YMCA, will conduct the interview.

★

The Pharmacy senate will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Howell Hall.

★

G. R. McCarthy will speak on Geophysical Researches in Arctic Alaska, and Claude Piantadosi will speak on Chemistry of the Acetal Phosphatides at the meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society to be held Tuesday in 206 Phillips Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Wednesday's WUNC

7 p.m. — Winnie the Pooh-Pooh Goes Visiting
7:15—Music In the Air
7:30—Cosmopolitan Interview
7:45—French Press Review
8—BBC Drama, "The Snow Is A Shroud"
9—Adventures in Song
9:30—New England Anthology
10—Local, State and National News
10:15—Evening Masterwork

For an Important FIRST Job

Successful career women recommend Gibbs secretarial training as the door-opener to that important "first" job, and the all-round preparation for advancement to the top. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.

Special Course for College Women

KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL

Boston 16, 21 Marlborough St. Providence 6, 155 Angell St. New York 17, 230 Park Ave. Montclair, N. J., 33 Plymouth St

KEEP ALERT FOR A BETTER POINT AVERAGE!

Don't let that "drowsy feeling" cramp your style in class . . . or when you're "hitting the books". Take a NoDoz Awakener! In a few minutes, you'll be your normal best . . . wide awake . . . alert! Your doctor will tell you—NoDoz Awakeners are safe as coffee. Keep a pack handy!

15 TABLETS, 35c

"Pill-Safe" pack 15 tablets in handy tin 60c

NODOZ AWAKENERS

FILTER TIP TAREYTON

Gives You The True Tobacco Taste You've Been Missing!

PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

75th Anniversary Of UNC Medicine Is Set

The UNC School of Medicine will observe the 75th anniversary of the beginning of medical education at Chapel Hill during its Annual Alumni Day program here next Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Medical Education at the University of North Carolina—Past, Present and Future" will be described at the opening session Tuesday night, April 12, at 7:30 o'clock by President Gordon Gray, Chancellor R. B. House and Dr. Henry T. Clark, administrator, Division of Health Affairs.

The two-day program will feature three panel sessions, one to be held Tuesday night on "The State University and Medical Care in the State," with L. B. McLendon, Greensboro, president of the North Carolina Medical Foundation, as moderator.

A panel on financing medical education, with Dr. Joseph C. Hinsey, dean, Cornell-New York Hospital Medical Center, as moderator, is scheduled for Wednesday morning and the third discussion will be held that afternoon on "Humane Letters and Human Illness." Prof. B. L. Ullman, of the UNC Classics Dept., will moderate.

All panel sessions will be held in Hill Hall, according to Dr. W. P. Richardson, assistant dean for Continuation Education in the School of Medicine, who is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

An open-house for alumni and friends is planned Tuesday night at 9:30 p.m. in the School of Medicine. A buffet luncheon in Morehead Building will be held Wednesday and the annual alumni meeting and dinner will be held in Lenoir Hall that night at 6:30.

—Armstrong—

(Continued from Page 1)

Armstrong, persuades 250 to 300 students to apply elsewhere and rejects about 100. "Of course, this doesn't sit too well with the Legislature," said Armstrong.

The University now has a "modified selective admissions policy," explained Armstrong. To be admitted, he said, a boy must present 10½ academic high school units, a recommendation from his principal and a clean bill of health.

In face of the coming increase of students, said Armstrong, "we must put in a statewide testing program, so that we can pick out the better students and prepare them for college. 'Also, we will be able to tell the non-college material to try other fields," he added.

Also, he said, "we can pick out and encourage real talent" with such a testing service. It would help the Admissions office immeasurably in its job of "counseling and guiding the students," he said.

Armstrong began his talk by showing slides prepared by Ronald Thompson of Ohio State. These slides presented the overall national problem of "The Increasing Tidal Wave of Students."

Armstrong's talk reiterated the point made by University President Gordon Gray in his annual report to the trustees.

"We appear," wrote Gray, "largely unheralded, to be approaching something of a crisis in the educational life of North Carolina."

Two lines of development are converging upon the University, said Gray. First the tax revenues are declining. On the other hand, increased enrollment in public schools and in the University require that schools and the University increase their facilities.

Corporation For BA Group Is Launched

Management Development Incorporated, a new corporation arising out of the University's Business Executive Program, is being launched by Program alumni, Dr. Rex Winslow, Director of the UNC Bureau of Business Services and Research and Secretary-Treasurer of the corporation, announced here this week.

Through Management Development Incorporated, owner-managers of small business who are not able to attend the Executive Program will have a chance to participate in the practice of modern management, in programs set up in North Carolina communities on a non-profit basis, Dr. Winslow explained.

—Blood—

(Continued from Page 1.)

hemolysins, blood serum substances which can release hemoglobin from red blood cells.

"Two apparently distinct hemolysins, which have the general characteristics of enzymes, have been found in extracts of sonic disrupted group A streptococcal cells," he explained.

Dr. Wilson's research shows that histidine and glutamic acids are essential nutrients for the adult rat and the growing hamster, and cannot be replaced by other acids within the body.

Dr. Wagner said the study of the new blood factor is a matter of theoretical interest. It has no practical value. It is all a part of a general study on the theory of blood clotting, he said.

As Spontaneous as a Robin's Song

There's nothing stuffy about our Easter cards. Touched with the magic of Spring mornings, they're fresh and delightful. Even if you never send cards, your heart will be refreshed if you stop in and just look at these beauties.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

These clubs can prove

YOU'RE A BETTER GOLFER THAN YOU THINK!

Bobby Jones registered woods and irons, and Jimmy Thomson registered woods are SYNCHRO-DYNED® clubs . . . the only clubs made that offer you perfect balance . . . and an identical contact feel.

Because every one of these clubs swings and feels alike . . . your golf becomes more uniform, your shots consistently better. With golfers reporting handicaps cut by as much as ⅓ . . . these are the clubs to play.

Make your next round a better one . . . with Spalding.

SPALDING
SETS THE PACE IN SPORTS

SPALDING EQUIPMENT CARRIED BY CAROLINA SPORT SHOP

Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.

Worthwhile Reading . . .

. . . for your whole family in the world-famous pages of The Christian Science Monitor. Enjoy Erwin D. Canham's newest stories, penetrating national and international news coverage, how-to-do features, home-making ideas. Every issue brings you helpful easy-to-read articles.

You can get this international daily newspaper from Boston by mail, without extra charge. Use the coupon below to start your subscription.

The Christian Science Monitor
One, Norway Street
Boston 15, Mass., U. S. A.

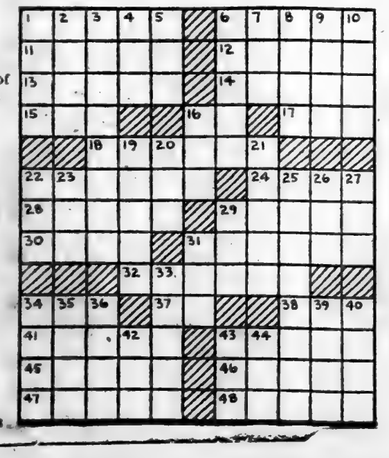
Please send the Monitor to me for period checked.

1 year $16 ☐ 6 months $8 ☐ 3 months $4 ☐

(name)
(address)
(city) (zone) (state)
PB-14

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS



1. Stop
6. Whole amount
11. Dark reddish brown
12. Attic weights
13. Of a tissue (anat.)
14. More mature
15. Girl's nickname
16. Sloth
17. Observe
18. Celtic language
22. To slip by
24. Assist
28. Potato (dial.)
29. Weird
30. Fills with solemn wonder
31. Warns of an air raid
32. The flight of Mohammed
34. Chest
37. Toward
38. The head (slang)
41. He was swallowed by a whale (Bib.)
43. Unbind
45. For or on sale
46. Furze (Chiefly Brit.)
47. More infrequent
48. A U. S. president

DOWN

1. Shoes
2. Ostrich-like
3. A papal envoy on a special mission
4. Body of water
5. Blunder
6. A gateway (Jap.)
7. Japanese sash
8. Spinning toys
9. Toward the lee
10. Italian coins
16. Malt beverage
19. Like an ape
20. East-southeast (abbr.)
21. Comfort
22. Greek letter
23. Mandate
25. Conduct like that of a knight-errant
26. Ignited
27. Foot-like organ
29. High priest
31. Past
33. Anesthetic
34. Partly open
35. Girl's name
36. Knot in wood
39. River (Fr.)
40. Honey-gathering insects
42. Malt beverage
43. Exclamation of disgust
44. Common or profane (H. I.)

CAME	CHAP
SIREN	HIVES
TREES	ALONE
ES	TUSSLING
LORIENT	DAO
LION	YES
ADLIGE	NOVEL
	SAW	RAVE
HIA	REACTED
EMBATTLE	RG
SMASH	ARETE
SISEL	MERES
THEY	ORAD

Saturday's Answer

CLASSIFIEDS

COACH BUNN HEARN OFFERS for sale a nice new home, brick veneer, Whitehead Circle, Chapel Hill. 3 bedrooms, 1½ bathrooms, porch also tiled. The very best neighborhood. Must really be seen to be appreciated. Nicely decorated. $12,000 already financed on property. Inquire Bunn Hearn, Whitehead Circle, Tel. 83971. (2-9095-2)

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER
Scattered thundershowers and warmer today, with expected high of 78.

The Daily Tar Heel

TRUSTEES
The editor views the coming selections of Trustees. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 134 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Appropriations Subcommittee Recommends Raised Tuition For Out-Of-State Students

Saltonstall Scheduled To Speak Here

Sen. Leyerett Saltonstall will speak in Hill Hall next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, announced the Carolina Forum yesterday.

Saltonstall, from Massachusetts, was elected to the Senate in 1944. He was re-elected to that office in 1948.

Saltonstall's present committee assignments are chairman of Armed Service Appropriations, Small Business and Republican Policy. He is also majority whip.

As Senator he has been closely associated with the following legislation: International Affairs and Aid, Selective Service, Unification of Armed Services, Veteran's Benefits, National Act against Discrimination in Employment, National Science Foundation, Child Health, Displaced Persons and Anti-Filibuster.

Saltonstall received his A.B. degree from Harvard in 1914 and his LL.B. from Harvard Law School in 1917.

After graduating from Harvard and upon his release from the armed services, Senator Saltonstall entered the practice of law. He started his career in public life at the age of 28 and has represented Massachusetts and the nation almost continuously ever since.

Integration Talks Are Underway

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP) — Virginia and North and South Carolina lawyers told the Supreme Court today that public schools in their states may be destroyed if the court orders an immediate end to separate schools for Negro and white children.

Negro attorneys called upon the court to use a "firm hand" to prevent interminable delays in putting school integration into effect.

Spokesmen for the three states argued that enough time must be allowed to work out local problems and win public acceptance for mixed schools. Otherwise, they said, white parents will hold their children out of the schools and withdraw their financial support of the school systems.

Cases from Virginia and South Carolina are among those on which the Supreme Court bases a decision last May 17 that segregated schools violate the Constitution. Today it was in the second day of arguments on how and when the decision should be carried out.

The decision and the final decree, when it comes, will affect Virginia and South Carolina directly, along with Kansas, Delaware and the District of Columbia. Also affected, however, are 17 other states, not involved in the cases before court, which require or permit segregated schools in some form.

Counselors' Applications Deadline Soon

Interviews for men who wish to be Orientation Counselors will begin Tuesday and continue every night through April 22.

Applications are available from the presidents of the men's dormitories and fraternities and also at the information office of Graham Memorial, the YMCA and at Lenoir Hall. These applications must be returned by Monday noon either to the office of Graham Memorial or the YMCA.

The applicants will be notified of the time of their interview.

Musicale Cancelled

The Petities Musicale scheduled for Sunday, April 17, has been cancelled, announced Jim McIntyre, assistant director of Graham Memorial yesterday.

WRC, IDC Co-sponsor Tennis Ball

The annual Tennis Ball dance and car parade will be held April 22, according to Co-chairman Ted Kemp.

The dance and afternoon parade will be co-sponsored by the Interdormitory Council and Women's Residence Council.

Roy Cole and his orchestra will play for the dance.

The parade is slated to climax with the awarding of a grand prize to the car having most novel and original decoration. Top honors went last year to the Pi Kappa Phis.

Co-chairing the event, which said Kemp was "a tremendous success last year," will be Miss Ruth Jones of the WRC.

Kemp said the dance drew approximately 1,000 persons last year and he expected an even grater response this year.

"Tables situated in cabaret style, orchestra in the center, Japanese lanterns and free refreshments, all in the wide open spaces on the tennis courts — that's what we plan for the whole campus," Kemp said.

The committee working on plans for the "big" night, other than Kemp and Jones, is composed of Miss Louise Coffey, "Buzz" Merritt, Miss Marilyn Zagar, Dan Duval and Sonny Hallford.

"The afternoon parade and the gib night dance will be open to the entire campus and we welcome anybody or any group," Kemp said.

Fleece Tapping Scheduled Soon

The 53rd annual tapping ceremony will be held by the Order of the Golden Fleece Monday night at 7:15 in Memorial Hall.

Formed in 1903, the Order of the Golden Fleece was first conceived in its mythological entirety by Dr. Eben Alexander, then dean at the University and past envoy to Greece. Dr. Alexander was a first honorary society on an American college campus. His aim in founding the Fleece was to see the University become the second in the nation to honor its outstanding campus men.

The order was established largely through the interest and encouragement of Dr. Henry Horace Williams, faculty philosopher. Dr. Edward Kidder Graham also aided in launching the organization.

In an article printed in The Daily Tar Heel in 1938, Dr. Williams said there were diverse cliques of students on campus in 1903. The abiding purpose of the Fleece was to cut across sectional boundaries of student interest and to honor the outstanding men in all fields of campus endeavor as they should arise, said Dr. Williams. There could be no harmony or University spirit until all these men of diverse interests should "sit side by side at the same table," he pointed out.

After Monday night's tapping ceremony the Valkyries will present their annual sing with fraternities, sororities and dormitories competing vocally. The Valkyries is the highest honorary organization form women on the campus.

Billiards Expert Set For Show This Week

The "greatest of all the billiard trick-shot artists," Charles C. ("Show me a shot I can't make") Peterson, will be in the Pool Room of Graham Memorial tomorrow and Friday to exhibit his trick shots and give instruction to coeds and men students.

Peterson, who is given credit for popularizing collegiate billiards in and making it an intercollegiate activity, is now making his 25th tour of colleges and universities.

He will explain the six fundamentals, demonstrate basic shots and give "helpful hints to bring your game up to intercollegiate tournament caliber,' according to a GM spokesman. He is especially interested in teaching the game to girls, and has written that coeds will be welcome at both afternoon and evening sessions.

The trick shots which the "75 year-young" champion will demonstrate will be chosen from a repertorie of about 550. One of the best known of these is the "dollar shot," in which he stands a silver dollar on end between two pieces of billiard chalk, about one-eight of an inch apart, and then strokes the dollar to the far cushion, where it rolls right back through the two pieces of chalk.

Peterson is currently touring under the auspices of the Association of College Unions. At 1 p.m., on both Thursday and Friday, he will give an hour's exhibition, followed by a coffee break and an hour of instruction. The same precedure will be followed in the early evenings of both days.

Mr. President

"I want to express my deepest appreciation to all the students who have made it possible for me to have the great honor which has been bestowed on me," said student body President-elect Don Fowler yesterday.

Fowler, an independent candidate, won over Ed McCurry (UP) in last Tuesday's run-off election.

Fowler will be installed a week from Thursday.

"I shall work hard to perform the duties of this office," continued Fowler. "I sincerely hope that this coming year in student government will be a happy experience for everyone."

Club Plans To Elect Officers

The University Club will meet tomorrow in Roland Parker Lounge No. 1.

Officers for the coming year will be elected at the meeting. Recommendations to the faculty about the Cardboard and UNC Band will be made, and a discussion will be held concerning the Spring Carnival.

According to a University Club spokesman, many organizations have not been represented at recent meetings. She added the presidents of these organizations should appoint new representatives if the old ones have not been attending meetings.

The purpose of the University Club is to promote school spirit, said the spokesman. Spokesman said its members include representatives from about 50 campus organizations including sororities and domitories.

Hike Here Would Be $140 A Year

By CHUCK HAUSER
Special to The Daily Tar Heel

RALEIGH, April 12—(AP)—The Joint Appropriations Subcommittee today voted to raise tuition for non-resident students at all state-supported colleges, and for resident students at some of the smaller schools.

The move, adopted in the form of a report from a smaller group appointed to study the subject, would bring in an additional $1,359,570 to the state during the next biennium.

The subcommittee postponed action until tomorrow on a motion to exempt out-of-state students on scholarships from paying the increases.

Rep. William W. Taylor Jr. of Warren authorized reporters after the meeting to identify him as the chairman of the group which recommended the tuition increases. Under subcommittee rules, reporters may not print names of members in connection with action taken.

Taylor said the recommended increases were to go into effect at the start of the next biennium in July. He said he still favored action on a recently-introduced bill to make non-resident students at all state-supported colleges pay the entire cost of their education. The bill, sponsored by Taylor and three other representatives, would not affect students now enrolled or accepted for enrollment.

The non-resident tuition raises would affect some 3,921 students. These would range from $50 at Winston-Salem, Elizabeth City and Fayetteville State Teachers' Colleges to $140 at the three branches of the Consolidated University. They would bring in an additional $1,027,742 for the biennium.

(See STATE, page 4)

Peerce To Sing Friday

Jan Peerce, now in his 14th season as leading tenor for the Metropolitan Opera, will present a concert Friday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall, in the last program of the 1954-55 Chapel Hill Concert Series.

Peerce, who has made 16 transcontinental concert tours and has appeared in Europe and South America, began his career by singing alto in New York City choirs as a boy, and worked his way through college by playing his violin.

His first break came when he began singing at Radio City Music Hall, and in 1938 he gave his first concert with Arturo Toscanini. In November of 1941 he made his debut with the Metropolitan Opera, as Alfredo in La Traviata.

During the present season Peerce's roles with the Met and the San Francisco Opera include Cavardossi in Tosca, Rodolfo in La Boheme, Riccardo in the Masked Ball, Edgardo in Lucia di Lammermoor, Alfredo in La Traviata and the Duke in Rigoletto.

His performance here is one of 45 which he is giving this season in addition to his operatic engagements.

Scales Trial's Underway

GREENSBORO, APRIL 12 (AP) - It is a matter of public knowledge that Junius Scales has been a communist, his attorney told a jury today.

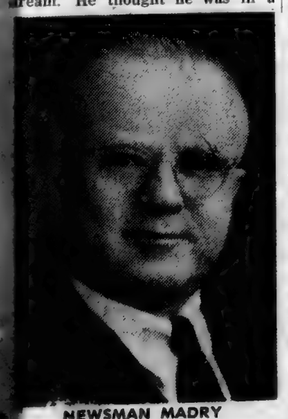
But Scales never had any knowledge that the Communist Party was dedicated to overthrow of the government by force or violence, and Scales never had any intent whatsoever in that respect, the defense contended.

"A challenge to the hand-picked federal juries in North Carolina by Junius Scales . . . failed to secure quashing of the indictment in his case but did result in Judge Albert V. Bryan's direction that the jury in the Scales case be drawn from new lists compiled since Scales' attorney, David Rein, filed his challenge several weeks ago," said an article which appeared in the April 10th edition of the Communist national edition of The Worker.

These three points — his party membership, the party's alleged goal of violent overthrow of the government and his knowledge of that, and his intent to carry out that purpose — — from the crux of the trial in U. S. District Court here.

The Government charges the red-haired, 35-year-old defendant, former UNC student was a knowing partner in a revolutionary conspiracy. Scales has predicted that a violent revolution could be effected within this generation, District Atty. Edwin M. Stanley

(See SCALES, page 4)



LOVED DIRECTOR OF UNC NEWS BUREAU:

'Colonel Bob' Madry Passes In Memorial Hospital

(Editor's note: R. W. Madry, known by most of his friends as "Colonel Bob," died last week in Memorial Hospital as a result of complications arising from hypertension. Madry was director of the University News Bureau, loved and respected by Tar Heel educators and newsmen. Below is one of the few stories written about "Colonel Bob." It was written by Jake Wade, UNC sports publicist and now head of the News Bureau. Wade wrote the story after Madry left the hospital in February. Madry was readmitted to the hospital March 22, and died last Friday.)

By JAKE WADE

The first night Bob Madry was in the hospital he had a weird dream. He thought he was in a hotel, and down the hall a party was in progress. He was sure he recognized the convivial voices, especially of one close friend. He wandered out to investigate. Bob, by nature, is drawn to crowds, like little boys to knotholes in baseball park fences.

NEWSMAN MADRY
. . . dies here

Nurses shooed him back to his own bailiwick. He insisted on seeing his friends. He was more and more positive in his identification of at least one voice, and he thought Frank McGuire, the basketball coach, had his office nearby, so he wanted to see the Irishman, too. One nurse said McGuire was around taking temperatures. The patient then realized somebody was pulling his leg. He went to bed.

"Colonel Bob," director of the University News Bureau (who was at the time convalescing at home after three weeks in the hospital) had pretty steep blood pressure that night. The doctors also had given him some high powered medicines which helped to bring on curious hallucinations.

At 6 a.m. he became hungry. He wandered into the corridor again, still under the quaint impression that he was registered at an inn of some kind, and requested his breakfast. A nurse explained that he would have to wait a while. He waited two hours, hungry as all get-out.

His doctors prescribed "No Visitors," put a sign on his door. That sign never meant very much in Bob Madry's hospital life. So they put up another very menacing sign—"Postively No Visitors." This one didn't register, either. Visitors flocked to his room. A compromise was agreed upon. He could have a few callers, the folks from his office, his most intimate friends and of course his family. Bob made out a list. The hospital thereupon discovered that the University News Bureau was a very large organization indeed, with scores of employes, like a factory; and that his intimates included everyone in town from his grocer to his lawyer. And that the Madrys were a huge clan, which they are.

An endless procession of strange people continued to pour into and out of his room, and one day a good friend, Mayor Ollie Cornwell, another gregarious creature, checked in just across the hall. Bob heard Ollie's booming voice. He hopped out of bed, fought his way through his own crowded room into Ollie's equally well populated quarters and there followed a joyous reunion.

Ollie is 6'6"; Bob is 5'5½". Pajama clad, they made a fetching picture as they stood in loving embrace. Bob had been right sick, and the nurses became quite concerned over this obstreperous violation of the rules laid down.

One nurse's patience also was tried to the breaking point. She took down one sign, then the other. "From now on it's the doctors' responsibility," she proclaimed. "I've done the best I could to carry out orders. I'm throwing in the towel." Eyewitnesses to this precedent-making scene say she was real angry.

"They had no business putting up those signs in the first place," was Bob's laconic comment. "Just a bunch of foolishness."

High point of this parade of futility came one night during the district convention here of the NCPRA, the organization of college public relations men. There had gathered professional associates of Madry's, many of them close personal friends of long standing. Bob had been irked because he was unable to get out and attend the meetings. He obtained official permission for some of them to visit him.

They came, all right. And on that night there mysteriously appeared in Bob's room several containers of gentle libations, a generous supply of cracked ice, an assortment of appetizers. They say a doctor popped in at about the time the sick man was in the bathroom, mixing the varied ingredients and happily serving his guests.

There likely never was a hospital room scene quite like it. The frustrated doctor simply turned around and departed from the aromatic, smoke filled room.

There was the matter of the telephone. It was early determined that to keep this record-breaking patient happy it was necessary that a telephone be beside his bed at all times. They did succeed in keeping out incoming calls for awhile, except those from his office, which he was running from North Carolina Memorial Hospital. Meanwhile the switchboard was kept busy putting in calls from Bob himself, many of them long distance, and he talked to many wayward points as well as to other patients in the hospital.

Once, in calling such a patient, there was some delay. The switchboard informed him that he would have to wait until a telephone was plugged into the other man's room.

Bob is a vibrant spirit with a sense of humor. But he really sounded serious when he said, "Well, he can use this phone." Then, after a pause, "But that wouldn't work it? Because then I wouldn't have a phone." I was there and heard it.

GHOST ON LINE

I didn't hear the time he called a newspaper editor in another city, but one of Bob's kin tells the story. That was the day it had gotten into the papers that Bob was ill and the stories made it appear he was ill more than somewhat. Bob got the party on the line and told him who was calling.

"There was a silence at the other end," said Bob's kinsman. "The man on the line apparently couldn't believe it was Bob, with the dispatch fresh in his mind, and he kept asking. I could just see him coming close to going into a faint, believing he had a ghost on the line."

There had been no talk of an operation. However, one day Bob's lunch was over an hour late in coming. A hearty eating patient, he sent out a call to see what happened to his food. Word came back that he was not getting any because he was up for

(See HOSPITAL, page 4)

Madry Came Back To Carolina And Stayed

Robert W. Madry died in Memorial Hospital last Friday morning.

Survivors include his widow, the former Maggie Lee Farmer of Wilson, and a son, Robert W. Madry Jr., 13; one sister, Mrs. C. W. Bazemore, Raleigh, and three brothers, W. Dennis Madry of Burlington, J. Thurman Madry and H. R. Madry of Scotland Neck.

"Colonel Bob," as he was affectionately known, was a distinguished newspaperman who had been director of the University News Bureau since 1923, when he returned to North Carolina after a comparatively short but varied and rich post-college experience as reporter and editor of New York and European newspapers and magazines.

He was born in Scotland Neck on June 15, 1897, the son of Robert Jarrett Madry and Lena Allsbrook Madry, boht of whom are now dead. The family home was located about a mile from town on a large plantation, which has been in the Madry family since Civil War days.

After graduation from Scotland Neck High School in 1914, he enrolled at the University in Chapel Hill, where he completed his A.B. degree in 1918. During his senior year Madry became interested in journalism and was asked to remain at the University a year as the first full-time head of the news bureau and publicity director of the Student Army Training Corps, of which he was a member.

The following year, 1920, he studied at Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University, completing the two-year Bachelor of Literature degree in one year. While at Columbia Madry edited a New York trade journal, World's Business.

Turning to Europe after his graduation from Columbia, Madry spent about two years on the reportorial staff of the fabulous Paris edition of The New York Herald. He always liked to talk of his exciting and often improbable experiences as a writer for that legendary newspaper.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Returning to New York in 1922, he worked with The Wall Street Journal and later with a publicity firm. That same year he joined the staff of the old New York Herald and was with it until the fall of 1923, when he accepted the University's third offer to return as head of the News Bureau, then a one-man operation.

(See 'COLONEL BOB,' page 4)

To A Pillar Of Salt?

At an undetermined hour tonight, as you settle down to English History or Shakespeare or B.A. 71 or to more playful efforts) the die will be cast for the ruling body of the University.

Members of the State House and Senate Committees on Trustees, in joint session, will file past the ballot boxes; they will cast votes for 30 new Trustees to serve on next year's Board.

But ugly rumors of possible sleight-of-hand have reached our ears from their origin under the Raleigh Dome.

Those rumors, specifically, are not totally unexpected: That certain backward-looking and, unfortunately, influential persons have spotted danger in the Board's progressive vote against segregation at a State College summer course; that they have seen the red flag and will now try to juggle the selection of new Trustees to fit the pattern of their own restricted vision. In short, that they will attempt to elect new Trustees whose minds are closed to the possibility of co-racial education on the college level.

Here (and quite unusually for these times) the issues strike more deeply that to the question of ethical and practical right and wrong on the Supreme Court's Decision. Will the people of North Carolina, when their state university's livelihood is at stake, allow Trustees to be chosen on the basis of a patented, ready-framed attitude? Will they have competence and the open mind displaced by mediocrity, so long as that mediocrity is set to vote one way on a lone decision? Will they, in fact, let one issue call the tune for a hundred different situations?

We doubt it. The time to look backwards on 1955 decisions will be 1984 or 2,000, not 1955. Those who would plot and rig behind the ballot boxes have trained their eyes unswervingly to the rear. Perhaps they have not learned the story of Lot's wife, who looked backward at the wrong time and became a pillar of salt. Their ignorance of that allergy may have tragic effect on the University's future.

Fowler, Meet Ike, Then Go Your Way

After a vigorous campaign, void of issues, popular Don Fowler is President of the student body, standing as somewhat of an undergraduate Eisenhower.

Like the golf-putting ex-General, Fowler's experience in partisan politics doesn't include the seedier side of backroom sessions. Although the Winston-Salem self-help student has been active as treasurer, he is better known for his other activities; this too reminds us of Eisenhower. And, like the White House's present occupant, Fowler drew supporters from both political parties. The student President's noncommital attitude, a common trait of all this spring's candidates, also smacks of agreeable Ike.

But let this analogy go no further. Fowler is elected; he's capable and willing to work. We trust he'll not follow along in the shaky footsteps of Eisenhower, whose efforts to please everybody have made for everything but dynamic government.

Unlike Ike, Don Fowler doesn't have to worry about a second term; he has no Knowlands or McCarthys to massage; and his problems—though great—are by no means of the Quemoy and Matsu seriousness.

With these advantages over the U. S. President, we hope Fowler can give student government the needed jab on the posterior to make it jump and leap with action. To stimulate activity in this vapid field of student life, the new student President will have to cast popularity aside, leaving it to athletes and beauty queens. This is difficult to do.

But perhaps with a reminder of student government's active past ringing in his presidential ears, Fowler can tackle the difficult task of doing what is necessary, rather than what is popular.

Dean Fred Weaver summed up the history of student government when he said that it was "technically a delegated authority, but as the record shows, it was an authority which had asserted itself, then proved itself, and then won recognition for itself; and with their close organization and fine esprit de corps the students were quick to defend it in time of attack."

The Daily Tar Heel hopes Don Fowler will drink deeply of these words and restore student government to its past glory. We wish you luck, Mr. President.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ——— ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Carolina Front

Of Education—Crime And The Ludicrous

J. A. C. Dunn

WE WERE BORN at a tender age in a quite sadistic frame of mind, most of which outlook on life we have managed to retain through the past couple of decades. For this reason we choose this, of all the days open to choice, to talk about education.

Before leaving these halls of grimness and travail six days ago, we saw one of the most insane movies to which we have ever been privileged to pay admission called "The Bells of St. Trinians." St. Trinians is a girls' school known chiefly for its staff and pupils, which were created by British cartoonist Ronald Searle. We cannot decide whether these lethal females are sub-normal, superhuman, or merely from a different planet, and judging by the reactions of the people who come into contact with St. Trinians personnel, this indecision is rather widespread. Merchants board up their shops, passersby frantically mount bicycles or drive cars at breakneck speed, the army flees in panic and the police call in reinforcements at the mere mention of the advent of St. Trinians.

The motto of St. Trinians (literally "in flagranti delicto") freely translated means, in the words of Miss Frittendon, St. T's craftily vague headmistress, that most girls' schools prepare their students for the great merciless world outside, it is the merciless world itself which must be prepared when St. Trinians girls leave their alma mater to enter Life.

★

SEVERAL EXAMPLES OF the slightly depraved character of most St. T alumni are the following: In the chem lab the girls make St. Trinians Dry Gin, which they sell on the "outside" through the various questionable contacts of a nefarious "bootboy" named Flash, who wears his hat pulled down to his chin and his coast let down to his ankles. Miss Frittendon uses the gin for punch on Old Girls' Day.

St. Trinians girls are also adept at the ins and outs of bookmaking, booby traps, torture, financial knavery and the more violent forms of modern warfare. We hope the movie will come back so that more people will see What British Education is Really Like.

★

THAT SHOULD TAKE care of the other side of the Atlantic. On the other hand we have a couple of anecdotes to relate that give equally as good a picture of the steadily increasing debilitation of American schooling.

We were honored by a short chat with the Dean of Columbia University Graduate School a few weeks ago, and during the conversation he told (laughingly) of the student from a small college in northern Georgia who applied for admittance to Columbia grad school, claiming as accreditable academic work courses taken in hog calling, cattle judging and the saving of souls. This information is verifiable. Write Columbia for particulars.

Our other story, which occurred in the south, is the tale year-old son came home sadly deficient in knowledge of the multiplication table. The public school the boy was attending said, on being questioned, that the boy would learn the multiplication table the next year. So the next year, when the boy still didn't know what eight times eight was, the school, on further investigation acted rather surprised and said the boy should have learnt that the previous year.

We know of one poor school teacher who looks yearningly every day at the luscious dandelions in his yard, wondering if they wouldn't just add a little something to his lunch. And we know of another teacher, an instructor in this University and a person of more serious bent, who is steadily becoming misanthropic over the education situation in this country.

'But My Friend Mr. Dulles Was Right Behind Me'

F.D.R. IN RETROSPECT

Ten Aprils Are Still Too Few

Jonathan Daniels

(Jonathan Daniels, Raleigh News & Observer editor, appraises the status of Franklin D. Roosevelt ten years after his death in this article excerpted from The New York Times Magazine. We find Editor Daniels' essay interesting and timely on this week's anniversary of F.D.R.'s passing.—Editors.)

Ten years after his death on that warm April afternoon in 1945, all that is left of Franklin Roosevelt is off the main traveled roads. Much traffic which used to go by—and often stop at—the library, the home and the grave on the old Albany Post Road has been diverted to the Taconic Parkway to the east and the New York Thruway across the Hudson on the west. Not so many people come now as at the beginning of the decade when new grief was combined with the first relaxation of gas-rationing. Some like to see in that a sign that the man is almost as forgotten now as the gas-rationing—or the grief. And others are sure that so little real change has been made in the New Deal and the New Internationalism that they now seem less the policies of a man than the normal, fixed directions of America. Certainly the alterations in America which Roosevelt attended seem today too deep-rooted to be related to a grave only ten years old.

It does not seem to me ten years since that dark Thursday afternoon in April. Such periods always pass swiftly. It may help to compare it with another such decade after the death of another President who died in April at the end of another war in which the central question was whether democracy could endure. Such a comparision, of course, cannot presume the approximation of Roosevelt's greatness to Lincoln's. It does point the similarities and the difference in two meaningful American centuries.

Certainly it must have seemed to those who spent it a very short, crowded time from the assassination of Lincoln (almost four score years to the day before Roosevelt died) to the tenth year thereafter when with Lincoln's greatnest general in the White House, the divisive forces were already gathered to produce the fears of a new civil war over the bitterly contested Hayes-Tilden election the following year.

TROOPS

Federal troops then where still quartered in the Southern states to uphold Republican governments and some hoped to teach Yankee know-how to the recent rebels. Lincoln's last hope that all vindictiveness might be laid aside and the Southern people leniently treated was as long dead as Lincoln himself. It was not until the tenth year after he died that the image of his life began to be creatively put together by John George Nicolay and John Hay, who not only knew him well but brought remarkable talents to his remembrance.

Roosevelt's remembrance has been less well served. He was not made a martyr by an assassin. There was in Washington when he died in 1945, when lilacs were blooming again, no such minor bureaucrat as Walt Whitman to put his grief and his commander into such poetry as "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd," In the case of both there were the swift biographies and books of recollection. But the ten years after Lincoln's death were not over before Robert Lincoln had broken with his father's law partner, William Henry Herndon, because of Herndon's efforts to keep Lincoln a human individual and save him from uncritical legendmaking.

CHANGE

Yet, strangely, even with the change of political parties, Roosevelt's programs have been kept more intact and in practice than the purposes for a reunited America which Lincoln outlined to his Cabinet on the last day he lived. Roosevelt's New Deal has the often-spoken scorn of many of those who hold the power in the government today. But it has certainly not been abandoned by a new President who urges the extension of reciprical trade, the broadening of the base of social security, the increase of minimum wages. That new President, indeed, has been charged within his own party; and by the wing of it which hated Roosevelt most, of going farther to the Left in a similar period than Roosevelt did.

ROOSEVELT
. . . too soon to know

I suspect that identification of the leader with the people in the case of Roosevelt, as of Lincoln, is as firm a basis as exists for the immortality of the hero. Aloofness does not generally seem to be the firmest basis of legend. Also it is a strange thing how the last-heroes are not generally created by those who most dutifully guard their ashes, but by those who examine them with something less than piety. Herndon's reports added much more to the humanity of Lincoln than his son Robert did by hiding many of his papers from 1865 to 1947.

Those who defend Roosevelt's fame from the possibility of fault are equally foolish. He prided himself on his sense of history. He wished it to remember him well. As a collector or hoarder for history, he saved not only papers and a forty-foot iceboat, but items which he could not have felt would preserve any impeccable portrait of an impeccable man.

HUMAN FRAILTIES

He industriously collected and preserved the evidences of his own human frailties — much better than the energetic Herndon did after Lincoln's death. And, as in the case of Lincoln, they will help make his identification with the far from perfect people more complete — and more apappealing.

It is, of course, much too soon to measure Roosevelt's greatness in terms of his policies. He himself liked to quote Woodrow Wilson as saying to him, "Ninety-nine out of one hundred matters which appear to you and me today as of vital administration policy will be completely overlooked by history, and many other little things which you and I pay but scant heed to will begin to be talked about one hundred years from now."

One thing about Roosevelt will be remembered: He was the man whose boldness, extravagant readiness with the country's cash and easy fascination with fantastic ideas brought about the practical development of the power in nuclear physics.

Then Aprils are still too few to fix the image of Roosevelt which will attend the already obvious long remembrance of Franklin Roosevelt. In many ways the future and not the man will determine that. And certainly in the complexity of his character, in both the playfulness and the implacability of his personality, in the petty things to which he gave concern and in the great causes to which he devoted his life, there are materials for the making of many legends — or almost any legend — about him.

Passing Remark

Report From Myrtle Beach Opium Dens

Ron Levin

Dateline . . . April, 9. Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. It is eight thirty on a Saturday night. I walked down about five blocks from the Pavilion and paused in front of the Ocean Plaza Hotel. Opening directly on to the sidewalk is a dance hall called the Marine Room. Pushing my way in through the jammed aisle, I found myself in a place that would have made the opium dens of Hong Kong look like a nursery. The smoke hung heavily in rifts over the dance floor, and empty beer cans littered the floor in profusion. There were people of all description. Some were dancing; some were watching; some were drinking. The majority of the customers were seventeen or under. There were a few servicemen and a slightly larger number of college students. I went up to one teen ager who was standing against a booth downing the last few swallows of a Blue Bibbon. He was dressed in the usual attire of wide kneed, ankle draped slacks and a flowing long sleeve sport shirt. His hair cut would have cause any self respectable barber to throw up. He couldn't have been over sixteen at the most, and I watched his eyes as they ran up and down my cord suit in suspicion. I started the conversation.

"Some crowd, huh?"

"Yeah, Saturday night is always a big night here."

"Say, I thought you had to be eighteen to buy beer."

"You do. I just get my buddy to buy it for me."

'DON'T BE DUMB'

He pointed to a similarly dressed teen ager lounging in the adjoining booth.

"Well, what about the police? Don't they check up on your ages?"

"Aw, DBD, man. (Don't be dumb,) Them lousy bulls come in here every half hour, and when we see 'em coming we put down the cans till they leave. They can't touch ya, see?"

I agreed and left him to get a better look at some of the occupants. As I walked around the back through the aisle that curved around the dance floor, I saw a young man talking to a teen ager in the last booth. They were seated next to one another, and the fawning smile on the face of the man could have meant only one thing. I had seen it before and had learned to recognize it. They had their arms around each other. I felt like retching on the floor right there in front of me.

As I stood there, a small circle of people gathered in front of me in the back entrance, while two youths paired off in the middle of the circle. Suddenly the fight erupted like a human volcano, and immediately the crowds surged forward.

BETTER THAN TV

The crowd broke up quickly and went back to the booths and the dance floor. I found out from one spectator that the fights averaged one about every fifteen minutes or so. His eyes lit up eargerly, as he told me there were more on Saturday night than during the week. He always came down on Saturday night to watch the fights. Better than TV, I thought to myself.

Many of the girls standing on the edge of the dance floor were smoking with a false manner that gave away their age. After a while, I found it becoming increasingly difficult to breathe, so after five minutes of fighting the packed aisles, I found myself on the street breathing in the clean night air.

No, this is no sermon. I'm painting a picture, and you be the critic. Though there seems to be no small amount of concern over the great increase in juvenile delinquency, teen age narcotics trade and sexual perversion, places like this are allowed to exist in flagrant violation of the law.

It will take me a long time to forget what I saw that night. It will probably take "public spirited citizens" a still longer time to wake up to reality. In the meantime, dont be disturbed the headlines in your morning paper. Just remember . . it's all in good fun . . . sure.

Y-Court Corner

Rueben Leonard

IN MONDAY'S Chapel Hill News Leader, a columnist spared no adjectives when he wrote of the wonderful feeling he experienced in seeing available parking space over the Spring holidays.

The columnist went on to ask himself as especially assinine question, namely, where all the student cars come from when the state has such a low per capita income.

Personally, I think there is about as much correlation between student cars and state per capita income as there is between income taxes and the sex habits of a whale.

O Mammon! Chief God of the village, look down upon your worshippers and cease their continual gnawing on the hand that nourishes them. Beseech them to always remember that Chapel Hill without the University, its students and their money would be as a candle without a wick, a clock without a spring, and a cart without a horse.

★ ★ ★

I was sitting at the dinner table one evening listening to my mother tell of the latest happenings in the neighborhood: "Did you know that Carol So-and-so is pregnant?" she asked.

"Can't they find out what's causing it?" piped in my little sister.

★ ★ ★

DAVE REID, Don Fowler's most ardent supporter, wandered into Y-Court last Wednesday morning with that old I-told-you-so beam on his face.

"You know what," he said, "Don asked me last night if I would be his Attorney-General." This was news to us—we didn't think that Reid had told Fowler that he could be president yet.

★ ★ ★

JIM MONTEITH is also slated to land a big fat appointment. Can it possibly be a reward for his support in the campaign? Too bad Gordon Forester and Charlie Ackerman won't be around next year to partake of the spoils.

★ ★ ★

SHADES OF Florence Nightingale! You may think it is tough to sit in the corridor of the infirmary and bleed to death before you can see a doctor, but what if you were a nurse and had to work the night shift. Those poor old keepers-of-the-cure work 66½ hours during the week that they are on night duty.

The afternoon shift is comparatively light—requiring only 52½ hours per week while the morning shift is a vacation entailing only 49 hours.

★ ★ ★

April twelfth through June fifth will be the "Night Before Christmas" for the senior class. On June sixth, all those that have been good little girls and boys will walk up to Dean Santa Claus and get their reward.

You'd better watch out,
You'd better not pout,
You'd better go to class
Or they'll kick you out.
The three cut rule has come into town.

★ ★ ★

EVER HAD a quiz returned that looked as if the instructor had bled all over it? Of course you have—most students have a tendency to shoot the breeze on essay exams.

Many instructors scribble the correct answers in the margins of the quiz paper, but Mr. Geer of the Social Science Department has a remedy of remedies. He stamps a big red bull in the middle of an answer that clearly shows no knowledge of the question asked. It makes you think twice before you loosen the hot air valve.

★ ★ ★

SINCE WE are on the subject of bulls and Social Science, I think I read somewhere that "A Papal Bull is a ferocious bull kept by the Pope to trample on the Protestants" and that the "Diet of Worms" was a punishment under feudalism.

★ ★ ★

COMING BACK from the beach Monday night, two coeds were wondering where they should tell their sorority sisters they stayed. Each girl was trying to remember the names of the ritzier hotels.

"Let's tell them we stayed at the Ocean Forest," said one. "No, said the other, "I think one of the girls' sister owns that, and even if she doesn't—she knows the person who does." "Oh Heil," said the first girl, "Let's just tell them we went to New York and stayed at the Waldorf. I know none of the girls own that."

—Reader's Retort—

More Plaudits For Our Predecessor

Editor:

Your recent editorial, "Proceeding calmly," with different quotation marks is one of the best summaries on the integration issue I have yet read in any newspaper. I wish that the annonymity of the editorial fraternity could be torn aside long enough for me to see a personal sketch of the writer. You are news, whether you realize it or not, for in that little piece of writing is history.

As a Southerner and the grandson of two Confederate veterans—one of whom saw the unpleasantness through from beginning to end and the other only the beginning—I am aware that there are problems to integration. But there are no basic problems at Chapel Hill nor at the other state universities. The Negroes who can make entrance requirements will average as cultured as the White students. Institutes of higher learning can be pilot plants to show the way for the mass schools where, if the racial populations are nearly equal, integration can make for ill feeling. I have always felt that if integration at college level had preceeded secondary schools by five or ten years a great deal of valuable information could have been gathered.

But the issue is joined and, as you say so graphically, "the dog is no longer sleeping." You have met it with calm logic and I congratulate you most sincerely.

My son, Cornell Wright, has been sending me the Tar Heel for several months. It is a strikingly efficient newspaper.

Meador Wright

This heavy-hitting centerfielder will be in th e starting lineup for Wake Forest this afternoon when the Deacons take on Carolina in Baptist Hollo w. A letterman, McKeel had a .308 batting average for the Deacs last season.

Raugh Vs. Davis Today As UNC Meets ACC-Leading Deacons

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

Carolina's baseball squad faces its toughest ACC test of the season when they travel to Baptist Hollow this afternoon to take on the Wake Forest Deacons, who are currently the front runners in the conference race.

Jimmy Raugh gets the nod as the starter for the Tar Heels to face the ace of the Decon staff, and probably the top hurler in the loop, Lowell "Lefty" Davis. Davis has already chalked up three conference victories against no setbacks while the Tar Heel righthander has notched two and dropped one.

This will be the first contest of the year between the two squads. Both teams competed in the recent Dixie Baseball Classic and finished at just about both extremes. The Deacs swept three straight and wound up as first Dixie Classic champions. The Tar Heels managed to win their last game, having a 1-2 record and a seventh place finish.

Raugh tossed the opener for UNC in the tournament and was downed by Rollins, 6-4. Tom Maultsby started Carolina's second game of the tourney and pitched fine ball but yielded a two-run homer in the eight inning, losing 3-1 although he hurled five-hit ball. In their last tourney game, lefty Morris Hall got the start for Carolina and went all the way to cop his first win of the season. The Tar Heels finally put some hitting and pichng together to drub a good Ohio University team, 6-1.

While the Tar Heels found it tough getting their batting and pitching coorinated, the Deacons had no such trouble. They romped to three successive vistories, their last being an impressive win over State for the Classic crown.

The two bright spots for the Tar Heels in the tourney were the coming to life of Jimmy Love's batting eye and the fine pitching by southpaw Hall. Love's hitting and Hall's pitching should make the Tar Heels a lot tougher from here on in.

Carolina coach Walter Rabb said, "Wake Forest, State, and Duke all showed me that they had good ball clubs. Wake Forest has a fine all around team with solid pitching and real good hitting. State is real tough when Tommy Hargrove is on the mound and Duke has an awful lot of powerful hitters."

Today's game will be the first encounter for Wake and UNC since the tournament which ended last Saturday.

Varsity, Frosh Teams To Meet Gamecocks On Benefit Grids

Both the Carolina varsity and freshman football teams will play benefit games against the University of South Carolina next fall.

An announcement was made yesterday that the frosh would tangle with the freshmen of South Carolina in Greensboro, October 8, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club for the benefit of crippled children.

A couple of months ago it was announced that the varsity would meet the adult Gamecocks in Norfolk, Va., on November 5 under the sponsorship of the Khedive Temple of the Shrine for the same charity.

The freshman game in Greensboro will be a night affair.

Monogram Club To Meet Thursday

A short but important Monogram Club meeting will be held tomorrow night at 7 o'colck.

All members who will be in the Valkries Sing and others who are interested have been asked to be present by Wilbur Jones, president.

There will also be a Valkyries practice tonight.

Discussion of the club's annual beach party and a speaker are also on the agenda. Coach Bob Fetzer, former Carolina athletic director, may talk.

Science Split Seen In Russia

DURHAM, April 12 - (AP) - Russian science is torn between "excellence and unspeakable quackery," a noted biologist declared here at Duke University tonight.

"Russian mathematics is superb, and their astronomy on cosmic rays is as good as you'll find anywhere," Dr. Conway Zirkle, professor of botany at the University of Pennsylvania, told the Duke Chapter of Sigma Xi, national scientific honorary.

On the other hand, "unspeakable quackery" exists particularly in agriculture and medicine, where Russian authorities are unable to check results, he said.

"But-I Thought the War Was Over?"

Sure! The fightin's stopped in Korea . . . but the war against death is never over! The fighting continues relentlessly in homes and hospitals all over America. And the greatest defense weapon of all is blood. Yes, blood saves lives!

It is needed now by thousands of men, women and children for surgery and medical treatment. It is needed, too, to build a national reserve of blood derivatives as "life insurance" for hundreds of thousands in time of disaster. So . . .

GIVE BLOOD NOW!

CALL your Community or Hospital Blood Bank or Local Red Cross Chapter.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL

Thinclads Get Tough Match In Terps Sat.

Carolina Tracksters Easily Thump Tigers

By RAY LINKER

After their decisive win over Princeton here on the last day of classes before the holidays, the Tar Heel tracksters are now preparing for what will probably be their toughest meet of the year. Saturday they hook up with the defending conference champs, Maryland, in College Park.

It will be the same team the Tar Heels edged by one-half point for the confgrenee indoor crown, but three events have been added to the outdoor card in which Carolina will have the upper hand, including the javelin and discus—two events in which UNC scored firsts last year.

Last year the Terps nosed Carolina by less than two points to take the conference meet, but Maryland overwhelmed the Tar Heels in their dual meet by a score of 75⅓-55⅔.

The Tar Heels' 73-58 win over Princeton's Tigers here last Wednesday was expected to be much closer than it turned out to be, but Carolina took nine firsts and several important other places to account for the large total. Princeton had little strength in the field events except the high jump, and depended on only a few key men for their points.

In the high jump, the Tigers took all three places as Doug Carpenter, Dean Determan, and John Futhey tied for first at six feet.

THE TAR HEELS swept two events—the javelin and the two-mile. Bob Wilson copped the javelin throw with a heave of 182 feet, and was followed by Bob Bryan and Steve Marcinko. Bobby Barden scored a first in the two-mile with a 9:50 time, with Glenn Nanney and Jim Beatty trailing in that order.

Claude Rhule and Roger Morris of the Tar Heels and Tiger man Gab Markisohn each turned in two first places to share individual scoring honors with 10 points apiece. Rhule won both the high hurdles (15.1) and the lows (25.0), while Morris took the shot (50'1") and the discus (151' 8½").

In a close race, Beatty turned back Tiger Jack Vodrey to win the mile in 4:21.1, while UNC's Ed Joyner was third. Princeton's Joe Myers turned in a 49.2 in the 440 to beat UNC's Dick MacFaddin and Don Wright, and Tiger Tempest Lowry scored a 1:55.4 half-mile in beating Carolina's Boyd Newnam in the home stretch.

CHARLIE YARBOROUGH took top broad jump honors, with Wilson second. Yarborough also tied for second in the pole vault with Princeton's Bruce Evans while Richard aWters was winning for the Tar Heels.

Markisohn collected his two first places in the dashes as he nosed out Don Mitchell in the 100 with a 10.0-second run, and took the 220 with a 2.0-second dash. Mitchell was third in the 220 behind Markisohn and Dick Evans of Princeton.

Charlie Scott's two third places in both hurdle events, and Johnny Jones' third in the shot also aided the winning Tar Heel cause.

OFFICIALS

The Athletic Association has requested that all intramural officials pick up their checks immediately at the intramural office.

Carolina Over ND

Carolina's varsity tennis team kept its long string of successive victories intact yesterday as it swept to a 9-0 shutout over the Irish of Notre Dame.

Only in the two top matches did the Tar Heels experience any difficulty, with both Herb Browne and Captain Bobby Payne forced into extra games to defeat their opponents.

The summaries:

Singles: Browne (NC) over Clarke, 6-3, 10-8; Payne (NC) over Reidy, 6-3 11-9; Bradford (NC) over Smith, 6-0, 6-1; Greene (NC) over Reale, 6-1, 6-1; Kerdasha (NC) over Richards, 6-4, 6-4; Thompson over Rich, 6-1, 6-3.

Doubles: Browne and Bradford over Clarke and Reidy, 6-3, 6-3; Greene and Pyne over Smith and Reale, 6-2, 6-3; Bortner and Hudgins over Richards and Rich, 6-3, 6-0.

'Cocks Here Today For Tennis, Golf

Though the Carolina baseball team goes out of town this afternoon for a tiff with the Deacons of Wake Forest, the campus will not be without sports activity.

The South Carolina Gamecocks today will send a team of golfers to the Finley course today to meet the Tar Heels at 2 o'clock, and a group of netters to the varsity courts to tangle with Carolina in tennis. The tennis match is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Carolina is undefeated thus far in both sports.

APPROVE RESEARCH HERE

The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission has approved the support of joint research by Dr. C. D. Van Cleave and Dr. C. T. Kaylor of the Department of Anatomy with a contribution of $10,500 annually for a three-year period.

Lacrosse Team Meets Virginia Here Friday

By AL KORSCHUN

An improving varsity lacrosse team, winless in its first two encounters, will take the field against Virginia's Cavaliers Friday on Navy Field at 3:30.

The Virginia contest will be the last home game for the Tar Heels for a week as they will embark on a northern trip Saturday to play a six-game road schedule which will include games with Stevens College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Trinity College, Williams (for the second time this season), Massachusetts University, and New Hampshire University.

In their first two games of the early season, the inexperienced and undermanned stickmen dropped a hard-fought 10-2 decision to Williams and were bowled over decisively by a very powerful Yale team which easily outclassed the Tar Heels, 24-0.

In the Williams game, the team opened up very strongly in the first quarter, had 16 opportunities to score, but failed to tally because of early season mistakes. From then on, however, it was all Williams as the New Englanders racked up a 5-0 lead at half time, and scored five more goals in the second half. Attackman Jack Spooner provided Carolina's only scoring punch in tallying the Tar Heel's only two goals.

AGAINST the national power from New Haven, it was all Yale as the Tar Heels proved no match for a terrific team, victors over highly rated Johns Hopkins and Duke.

Barclay Narrows Down UNC Coaching Candidates

There is no definite word as of today on the hiring of a new backfield coach for the Carolina football team.

Head coach George Barclay stated yesterday that he had narrowed down the field of candidates to "three or four" men and that he will begin contacting them soon, but he has made no certain choice.

The vacancy was created two weeks ago when Bill Edwards resigned to accept a position as head coach and athletic director at his alma mater, Wittenberg. Edwards had been at Carolina for two years.

No changes are forseen in other members of the staff. Marvin Bass, Steve Belichick and Ralph Floyd will most likely still be around.

FLY PIEDMONT

Route of the Pacemakers

CONVENIENT DAILY SERVICE TO

BRISTOL (Tri-Cities)
LOUISVILLE
CINCINNATI

And Many Other Points

Call 5160 (Raleigh) or Your Travel Agent for Reservations, Information.

Timed by Hamilton

PIEDMONT Airlines

55-2A U of NC

MANAGEMENT JOBS!

If you're graduating this year you may qualify for this unusual offer

The opportunity—To join a few men in a training program which will prepare you for a place in management with a growing organization that must maintain the highest type of intelligent administration. It is an opportunity in management operations in the Home Office rather than sales or sales management.

The job—If you are selected to join us, you will spend your first eight months in comprehensive training designed to qualify you as a Company management consultant. You will be trained in procedure analysis, production planning, management surveys, quality control, cost control, conference leadership, public relations, report writing, interviewing technique, and life insurance principles.

The future—Immediately following completion of training you will be assigned to consulting work within our Home Office organization. There you will be expected to develop ideas for the improvement of the day-to-day organization of the Company.

The salary—The starting salary compares favorably with those of other organizations. In addition, all of our personnel receive regular medical and dental examinations and luncheon in the Company's lunch rooms at the Company's expense. We also maintain a well-rounded insurance and retirement program for our personnel and their dependents.

The requirements—Personality, appearance, creative ability and initiative are essential qualities. Evidence of leadership as demonstrated in scholastic and extra-curricular activities is considered important in the selection of qualified men. Although preference is sometimes given to those who hold a graduate degree in industrial engineering or business administration other factors are given thorough consideration.

If the facts in this brief description interest you, write directly to Management Education, Coordination Division, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, New York.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

1 Madison Avenue New York 10, N. Y.

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to

Town & Campus

'bye, george!

Enjoy yourself—it's lighter than you think! AFTER SIX formals light on shoulders—light on budget! "Stain-shy" finish, too! For that "up-in-the-clouds" feeling—go

After Six

After-Six For Sale or Rent. Single or Double Breasted

Varley's

Why have We Sold More Dollar Books This Spring Than Ever Before?

BECAUSE WE HAVE MORE SWELL DOLLAR BOOKS, THAT'S WHY. COME AND SEE!

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Open Evenings

A Musical Romance to Set You Dreaming!

Today and Thursday

LESLIE CARON! Out of "Lili" and into your heart again! COLOR

On WIDE-VISION SCREEN! STEREOPHONIC SOUND

M-G-M's The GLASS SLIPPER

Leslie starring Michael CARON · WILDING

with Keenan WYNN · Estelle WINWOOD · Elsa LANCHESTER · Barry JONES

PLUS COLOR CARTOON NEWS

Carolina

APRIL IS GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH IN CHAPEL HILL

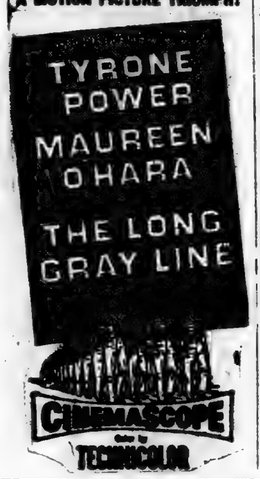
LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

Three Carolina Coeds Vying For Title Of 'Miss Chapel Hill' In Jaycee Event

Three Carolina coeds will vie for the title of Miss Chapel Hill in the Second Annual Jaycee Minstrel and Variety Show here Friday and Saturday.

Entrants for the beauty title, and a chance to compete for Miss North Carolina, are Bobbie Lee Moretz; Jerry Lynn Rainwater, and Margaret Underwood. The queen will be crowned during Saturday evening's show by reigning Miss Chapel Hill, Barbara Ann Stone, herself runner-up for Miss North Carolina last year. Each of th three will present her talent in appearances both Friday and Saturday evenings.



A member of the Tri Delta sorority who'll be competing for Miss Chapel Hill is Margaret "Mike" Underwood, senior coed from Greensboro. She will play the guitar and accompany herself. Recently Miss Underwood was a finalist on the Horace Heidt talent show auditions in Raleigh.

Miss Rainwater, a third-year coed from Springfield, Mo., is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority. Before enrolling at Carolina she won a nationwide writing contest sponsored by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and made personal appearances in 17 states in connection with this contest. She will read a selection of her own creative writing.

A junior coed from Elizabethton, Tenn., Miss Moretz is a five-foot seven-inch brunette. She was a finalist last fall in the selection of the Yackety Yack beauty queen on the campus, and has appeared in productions of the Carolina Playmakers. For her talent she will give a dramatic presentation.

$100.00 EASY CAMPUS AGENCY
We need a campus agent to sell Orchid and Gardenia Corsages for all Formal Dances. Highest quality blossoms supplied via air-freight. Extremely low prices. Tremendous profits. Posters, boxes & etc. are supplied. All corsages are ready to wear. Write R. W. Baker, P. O. Box 188 Canal St. Sta., NYC 13, N. Y.

Last Times Today

Varsity
— STARTS THURSDAY —
A MOTION PICTURE TRIUMPH!

–Scales–

(Continued from page 1)

said in the Government's opening statement.

Defense Counsel David Rein of Washington, D. C., told the jury, "You are trying an individual, not an organization." The fact of his party membership, Rein continued, has been borne out by Scales' public statements, his radio broadcasts, his appearance before the General Assembly and by other public activities. But, Rein instisted, intent to overthrow the government violently was far from Scales' mind.

The FBI has identified Scales as the Communist Party leader of the Carolinas and Tennessee. Indicted last Nov. 18 for violating the Smith Act's membership clause, Scales was arrested soon afterward in Memphis, Tenn.

The Government conceded it must prove Scales violated the law in the three years immediately before the indictment. But it obviously aims to spend much time on testimony about events several years earlier. The apparent purpose of this is to support the charge that the Communist Party is an illegal orginization and that Scales advocated illegal party teachings and doctrines.

The Government's first witness was John Lautner, 53. He identified himself as a former Communist Party leader. He gave his address as a room (3226) in the Department of Justice Building, Washington.

Lautner, a native of Hungary, testified for nearly two hours about his party career. He said he joined in 1929 and remained in, except for 31 months Army Service, until Jan. 17, 1950.

WELCOME BACK GUYS & DOLLS
FOR THE BEST IN FOOD COME TO HARRY'S

–'Colonel Bob' Madry–

(Continued from page 1)

Serving under four University presidents—Harry Woodburn Chase, Edward Kidder Graham, Frank P. Graham and Gordon Gray—he built up the Bureau over the years, both in personnel strength and scope of operation. At his death it was recognized as one of the most efficiently conducted bureaus in the nation.

A typical tribute to Madry and his organization was that paid by Henry Belk, publisher of The Goldsboro News-Argus, when he was president of the North Carolina Press Association. "You sure are giving us fine service from Chapel Hill," he told Bob. "If there are any Nobel prizes offered for university publicity, you ought to get two of them."

He and his staff turned out an incredible amount of copy. Chapel Hill datelines abounded in the press throughout the nation. His own byline over feature articles, spreading the name of the University, its faculty and officials, appeared frequently.

HIGH OFFICES

Madry's leadership in his profession was evidenced by the high offices to which he was elected. He was president of the North Carolina Association of College News Bureaus in the late twenties, and president of the American College Public Relations Association in 1933-34. During his presidency, the ACPRA experienced its largest growth in membership.

A gregarious newspaperman who loved people, especially members of his craft, he played a leading role in the North Carolina Press Association and was never happier than when its midwinter institutes were in session here and at Durham.

Madry was an individualist. Visitors to his office always marveled at his desk, piled several feet high with an amazing assortment of letters, periodicals, manuscripts and photographs in what appeared to be hopeless confusion. But he always knew where everything was in the jumble and could produce forthwith any needed document.

He observed unconventional working hours, sometimes annoying to his staff, but many of the state's prominent newspapermen and women served their apprenticeship under him at Bynum Hall. With them he always enjoyed a great bond of friendship and mutual respect. Despite his insistence on stern office discipline and a few idiosyncracies that went with such maintenance, his employes were intensely loyal and appreciated his unusual tenderness and generosity in more relaxed moments. Associates were also impressed with his thoroughness and first class reportorial and writing talent.

Although in late years he had largely divorced himself from sports publicity, with the News Bureau maintaining a separate sports news division, Madry was proud of his own football All-Americans such as George Barclay, Andy Bershak and Paul Severin, among others. He was widely known in sports circles from his long time intimate association with sports writers.

Madry was prominent in the community's church, civic, political and social life.

After serving on the Board of Aldermen from 1939-42, he was elected mayor of Chapel Hill, a post he retained for four two-year terms. He was an enthusiastic member of the Chapel Hill Rotary Club, serving as its president in 1938-39. In 1943-44 he was governor of the 189th district of Rotary International. Both administrations were marked by high attainments.

He was president of the Chapel Hill Country Club in 1945. He belonged to Psi Upsilon social fraternity and the Sigma Upsilon literary fraternity. He was also a member of the American Legion, University Faculty Club, Chapel Hill Community Council and Parent-Teachers Association.

He was an active member of the Chapel Hill Baptist Church.

As a family man he was devoted to his wife, Maggie Lee, whom he married comparatively late in life and who has always been a favorite of press people; and, his son, Bobby. He enjoyed entertaining at the Madry home in Westwood, which on football weekends and during his favorite conventions, frequently was filled with visitors, many of whom came to dinner and remained as house guests of one of the town's most hospitable families.

–State Lawmakers–

(Continued from page 1)

Increases in registration fees were recommended by the following amounts: $21 at Pembroke, $20 at North Carolina College, $18 at Elizabeth City, $14 at Fayetteville and $6 at Winston-Salem. The total increase would amount to additional revenue of $113,400.

The member of the subcommittee who moved to exempt scholarship students from paying the increased non-resident tuition charges argued that the scholarships were being paid for in many cases by individuals and organizations in North Carolina, such as the State College Wolfpack Club. He estimated that 175 out of 200 non-resident scholarships at the University and State College went to athletes.

Another subcommittee member asked: "Wouldn't we be leaving ourselves open to criticism for showing favoritism toward athletes?" Still another said it would be "indirect subsidization" of athletes by the state.

The motion to adopt the tuition recommendations carried with it the proviso that the appropriations of the schools affected would be reduced by an amount equal to the increased receipts.

–Hospital–

(Continued from page 1)

an operation.

"Hey, that can't be," he said. "Nobody has told me anything about an operation."

Turned out that there was another Madry down the hall who was indeed due for some cutting. Somewhere the signals had become mixed. There was no damage and Bob got his food, the other man didn't.

All Madrys look alike, as their friends know. Brother Dennis called one day. While he was visiting Bob there was a shift of help on the floor. When Dennis walked out of Bob's room, slicked up in his Sunday double breasted, a nurse looked up in amazement.

"Mr. Madry," she yelled at him, "get back in that room. You haven't been discharged."

Another nurse at another time insisted that visitor Dennis be wheeled to the elevator when she saw him in the corridor, also mistaking him for their wonderful patient and thinking he was headed for the X-ray rooms on foot, against all hospital regulations.

I asked one of the lovely ladies in white about Bob's stay in the hospital. "He really gave you a whirl, didn't he?" I said.

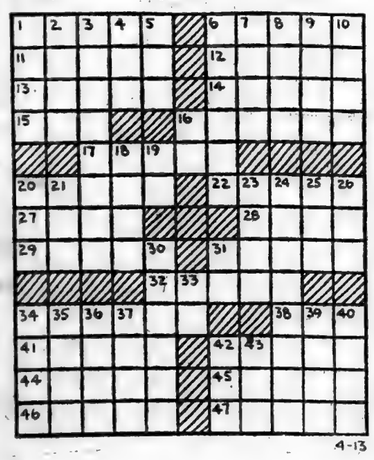
"He was wonderful," she said. "He was very wonderful, but I am happy he is gone. Life is too short," et cetera et cetera. She sighed. "I'm afraid our hospital will never be quite the same without him."

CLASSIFIEDS

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

MEDICAL CURIOSITIES: We have a mess of old leather-bound medical books at low low prices. There's always fresh treasure in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.

COACH BUNN HEARN OFFERS for sale a nice new home, brick veneer, Whitehead Circle, Chapel Hill. 3 bedrooms, 1½ bathrooms, porch also tiled. The very best neighborhood. Must really be seen to be appreciated. Nicely decorated. $12,000 already financed on property. Inquire Bunn Hearn, Whitehead Circle, Tel. 83971.
(2-9095-2)



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. An intrigue
6. A stage of development
11. Island off Venezuela
12. Quick
13. Vexed
14. African antelope
15. Loose hanging point
16. Melee
17. Sharp
20. Shells for ice cream
22. Sloping roadways
27. Sacred bull (Egypt)
28. A defeat attended by disorderly flight
29. Taut
31. Vague
32. Requires
34. Canadian province
38. Not good
41. Beneath
42. Swiftly
44. Frosting
45. Mother-of-pearl
46. Slightly crazy (colloq.)
47. Covered with ink

DOWN
1. Comb. as wool
2. Operatic melody
3. Soviet premier
4. Man's nickname
5. Youth
6. Like better
7. One of two equal parts
8. Armadillo
9. Some kind of drug (Kipling)
10. Founder of Christian Science
16. Close to
18. Luck (Ir.)
19. Personal pronoun
20. A feline
21. Open (poet.)
23. Dry
24. A fogy (U. S. slang)
25. Place
26. Pig pen
30. Vitality
31. Personal pronoun
32. Out of: a prefix
34. A witty sally
35. Unknown (Scot.)
36. Prepare for publication
37. Flexed
39. Measure of land
40. Feat
42. Keel-billed cuckoo
43. kitchen utensil

Yesterday's Answer

4-13

Covering The Campus

GM Birthday

Graham Memorial will celebrate its 23rd birthday with "a big week of entertainment" April 25-30 according to Vic Syndor, vice president of the Graham Memorial Activities Board. University President Gordon Gray is expected to talk.

On Monday there will be an open house and reception beginning at 4:30 p.m. Festivities will feature a combo which will play in front of the building.

The Sound and Fury production of Satan's Saints will take place Thursday and Friday.

On Wednesday there will be a Petites Musicale.

The birthday week will wind up on Saturday with an informal dance from 9 p.m. to midnight. Jim Crisp will play for the dance.

★

The Magic Bow, a portrayal of the life of the violinist Paganini, will be shown tonight at 8:30 in Carroll Hall.

There will be no admission charged for the film, which is being sponsored by Graham Memorial Activities Board.

The picture was produced in Great Britain and stars Stewart Granger and Phyllis Calvert. Yehudi Menuhin did all the actual violin playing for the film.

★

The Pharmacy Wives Club will sponsor a pot luck supper at the Pharmacy Institute tomorrow at 6 p.m.

The speakers will be Mr. West and Mrs. Fuller.

★

Dr. K. S. Rao, M.D. from Andhra State in India, will speak on Cosmopolitan Interview tonight at 7:30 over WUNC, 91.5 megacycles on FM radios.

He will describe how the new state came to be founded and will comment on the recents elections in which the Communists were defeated by a large majority.

John Riebel, associate secretary of the University YMCA, will conduct the interview.

★

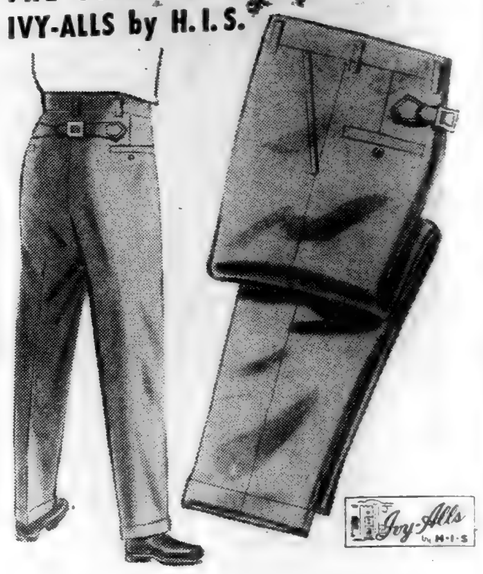
Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity will hold its monthly dinner meeting tomorrow at 6 p.m. at The Pines.

Dr. J. P. Harland will be guest speaker.

★

The Community Drama Group will meet Sunday at 7:45 p.m. in the assembly room of the University Library.

William Shakespeare's play, King John, will be read.



Copies of the play may be obtained from Miss Stella Lyons at the newsstand in the post office.

★

Walter Lippman's new book, The Public Philosophy, will be discussed by Professors Alexander Heard, James L. Godfrey, William H. Poteat and Mark Orr at the April 21st meeting of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honor fraternity.

The meeting will be open to the public and will be held at 8:30 p.m. in the Library assembly room.

A Salute To
U.N.C.'s Own
LOUIS G. WELT, M.D., whose Clinical Disorders OF Hydration and Acid Base Equilibrium IS THE LATEST BEST SELLER
in
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

THE SLIM LOOK IN SLACKS
IVY-ALLS by H.I.S.

The difference in measurements gives the slacks an entirely new slim silhouette. Knee measurements are reduced to 21"; cuff measurements to 18" . . . an adjustable buckle and strap is placed at the back of the trousers for easy adjustment and low hip fit.
The authentic army Chino. Tan and Black. Waist sizes 28 to 38. Cuff inseams 29 to 34. $4.95
STEVENS-SHEPHERD

Buy CHESTERFIELD Today!
Largest selling cigarette in America's colleges
You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness—mildness—refreshing taste.
You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's quality—highest quality—low nicotine.
IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD—
NO CIGARETTE SATISFIES LIKE CHESTERFIELD
© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER
Cloudy and warm today with an expected high of 82.

The Daily Tar Heel

STINK
What is that new odor on campus? See what the editors say about the new stink on p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 135 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Student Legislature To Get Budget Tonight; Bill Coming Up To Give Village Money

Hospital Recreation Leaders Visit Here

Hospital and institutional recreation personnel, as well as recreation educators from 10 southern states, have been attending a four-day Hospital Recreation Conference here. A group of well-known authorities in fields of recreation has formed the conference staff. Among them, left to right, are Clifford Bream Jr., Washington, D. C., chief, VA Special Services Recreation Division; Dr. Paul Haun, Winston-Salem, assistant professor of psychiatry, Bowman Gray School of Medicine; Miss Marian Preece, Washington, member of the National Recreation Assn.; Dr. Harold Meyer, UNC professor of sociology and conference director, and Miss Lillian Summers, Washington, recreation consultant.

American Adventure:

UNC Communication Center Drama Wins Another Prize

One of the highest awards in radio, given annually by the American Exhibition of Educational Radio and Television Programs, has been received by the UNC Communication Center for American adventure, a series of dramas, written by John Ehle and directed by John Clayton, which deal with the basic values and characteristics of the American people.

In competition with other similar production agencies, both educational and commercial, the Communication Center won first place in the Cultural Division, which includes drama, science, literature, and music programs. Among first award winners in other divisions were NBC, CBS, the Canadian broadcasting Company, Columbia University in association with NBC, the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin.

Earl Wynn, director of the Communication Center, said this is the fourth award his organization has received in the Cultural Division of the contest. Mr. Ehle has won three previous first awards in writing, and Mr. Clayton has won two first awards in directing and one in writing.

Earlier this year, American adventure won a Freedom Foundation award in radio, and one of the programs from the series has been selected for international competition as America's sole entry in drama.

The citation just received was as follows: "The University of North Carolina Communication Center is commended for excellent blending of radio skills in presentation of a searching study of the intrinsic values of man in the new world — especially for a courageous evaluation of the spiritual equality of mankind."

Serving as consultants for American Adventure were nine UNC professors: Professors Bernard Boyd, John Gillin, Fletcher Green, Everett Hall, Frank Hanft, Clifford Lyons, William Poteat, Clemens Sommer and the late Howard Odum.

A second of the series has been produced and is now ready for release to the 77 radio stations throughout the country which broadcast the series.

American Adventure was produced by the University on grants-in-aid received from the Educational Radio and Television Center, through the National Association of Educational Broadcasters. The series was based on a proposal by Prof. Robert F. Schenkkan.

Contract Bill Also Upcoming

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature will meet at an early hour tonight — 7 o'clock — to thrash out and revamp certain portions of the 1955-56 student government budget.

Two other measures are slated to run through the legislative machinery, but according to several sources, one of these should get a hurried pat of approval and the other should run aground without excessive haggling. At any rate the main item for consideration is the controversial budget.

The measure that has reportedly caught legislators' fancies is a resolution to have legal authority review any student government contract involving the spending of over $100. The resolution was introduced by the legislative Special Investigating Committee as a result of The Daily Tar Heel's "violation" of a contract, said Charles Hyatt, a member of the committee.

The proposal that a majority of the legislators reportedly "don't like" was introduced by Charles Hyatt (SP). Hyatt wants fees that residents of Vivtory Village pay to Graham Memorial reverted back to the Village so the Village can have a seperate student union and campus newspaper.

Hyatt's proposal comes on the heels of a bill that the Village Board of Directors recommended to the student Legislature calling for a closer "integration" of the Village and the campus student government. Specifically, the bill asked that the campus Elections Board carry on Village elections.

Tonight's session may mark the last time that the old Legislature meets. This depends on whether or not the budget goes through. It is more likely, however, that it will take two or three getto-gethers to wrap up budget appropriations and stamp a sign of approval on each allocation.

From reports of caucuses the Student Party and University Party called earlier this week to pry into the budget thoroughly there will be a lot of fireworks on some items.

Jim Exum and UP members raised eyebrows about the amount that the newly created student government executive secretary would get — $1.25 per hour — and the amount allocated to the Interdormitory Council social fund.

Exum, in line to get the official assignment as UP floor leader, said "The IDC has gone hog wild since year before last." Exum was referring to an appropriation of $600 to carry out the brunt of the IDC's social activities. It appears a certainty that the UP will ruffle its feathers when the IDC money comes up on the docket for consideration.

From the SP quarter, accordnig to member David Reid, there is a good deal of concern about the salaries that some of The Daily Tar Heel staffers are getting. So

(See LEGISLATURE, page 4)

Out-Of-State Students:

Tuition Bill Would Exempt Students On Scholarships

By CHUCK HAUSER
(From AP Dispatches)

RALEIGH, April 13.—The Joint Appropriations subcommittee today approved, by a vote of 12 to 10, a motion to exempt non-resident students on scholarships at state-supported colleges from paying additional tuition charges voted by the group yesterday.

The subcommittee also was told today that its action yesterday was not intended to affect students now going to school on scholarships.

(On Tuesday the subcommittee voted to raise tuition rates for out-of-state students at the University of North Carolina and other sttae-supported schools. At Chapel Hill, the raise would amount to an addition $140 fee per year. Out-of-state tuition now stands at $360 per year, according to the University Record.)

The debate on the motion centered around the contention of several members of the subcommittee that exempting scholarship students from the non-resident tuition raises would amount to "state subsidization of athletes." The group was told yesterday that approximately 175 out of 200 scholarship students at the University and State College were on athletic scholarships.

A letter was read to the subcommittee from Gordon Gray, president of the Consolidated University, in which he opposed any tuition raises, but he went on record against exemption of scholarship students from the raises if they remained in effect.

The main proponent of the motion, who cannot be named under subcommittee rules, told the legislators, "it is, in a way, subsidization of a particular group, but these boys make a big contribution. Some of the best citizens of the state came to North Carolina originally on athletic scholarships."

Goettingen Scholarship Deadline Set On May 1

Students interested in applying for a scholarship to attend Goettingen University in Germany must file their applications at the YMCA before May 1, according to Student Exchange Program Chairman Bill Wible.

Applicants must have completde their sophomore year at UNC to be eligible for the student government - sponsored scholarship, said Wible.

Prerequisites for applicants include "a working knowledge of the German language and an avid interest in foreign affairs," said Wible.

The scholarship, available to both men and women students, will cover "travel expenses, tuition, portion of the ledgings and a portion of the board," said Chairman Wible.

Students desiring to find out more particulars about the scolarship may contact Claude Shotts at the YMCA, Wible said.

Just Can't Do It, Boys...

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 13.—"Goodyear doesn't advertise Firestone tires," said the University of Southern California's vice-president, Robert D. Fisher, in explaining why the University does not allow off-campus bookstores to advertise in The Daily Trojan, the student newspaper here.

In explaining that such advertising cuts down on University Bookstore profits, Fisher said, "We do not say in our pamphlets, 'SC is a nice place, but we would like to call your attention to Pomona.' We do not believe in advertising our competitors in our newspaper," he said.

Dramatic Festival Set To Open Here Today

Twelve plays will be given here today at the opening session of the annual Carolina Dramatic Association spring festival, which will continue through Saturday on the UNC campus.

The traditional three-day competition will include some 31 plays, presented by young dramatists from North Carolina junior and senior high schools and colleges, as well as amateur community players.

Opening day performances will be given by students from Wake Forest, Belwood, Micaville, Olivia, Winston-Salem Reynolds and Charlotte Central high schools; Landis and Lake Forest junior highs, East Carolina College, Mars Hill College, the Marquardt School of Charlotte, and Spartanburg, S. C., high school.

All performances will be given in the Carolina Playmakers Theater. Association Executive Secretary John W. Parker said a small admission fee will be charged.

In addition to the presentation of plays, the festival will include contests in costuming and make-up, a special theatre arts exhibit and showings of films on theatrical subjects.

Other county and city hgh schools, colleges and community theaters are slated for performances Friday and Saturday, Parker said. All plays are winners of earlier district drama festivals, he added.

The annual business meeting of the CDA directors will be held Saturday morning, with Mrs. Lazelle M. Northrop, Winston-Salem, presiding.

The Thursday program will include the following plays: Submerged, Wake Forest; Pink and Patches, Belwood; The Sun is a Dead Man's Weapon, Micaville; The Summons of Sariel, Olivia at Benhaven; Thanksgiving Conspiracy, Lake Forest; Riders to the Sea, Reynolds; The Old Lady Shows Her Medals, Charlotte Central.

Two original plays to be presented are The Lost Ideal, East Carolina College; and The Black and the Blacker, Mars Hill College. A puppet play, The Lost Colony, will be given by Landis, while Marquardt players will give Mansions.

Young high school girl, visiting the campus: "I wonder if that's gold on top of that Old Well."

* * *

Not-to-gentlemanly Carolina Gentlemen shooting illegal fireworks all night long.

* * *

English prof: "Hell used to be a strong word when people believed in it."

Press Club Sponsors UNC Writing Contest

The UNC Press Club will again this year sponsor a student writing contest, according to an announcement yesterday from Miss Hazel Crawford and Clinton Andrews, awards co-chairmen.

Time magazine subscriptions and certificates of merit will be awarded for distinguished writing in the fields of news, features, editorials, columns and sports.

Entries for the annual contest must be turned in to Mrs. Mary Scroggs in the School of Journalism office in Bynum Hall by April 23.

Awards will be presented the first week in May, co-chairmen said.

Contest rules state that all entrants must be students at UNC.

The entries must be in published form. They may have been published in any newspaper, including The Daily Tar Heel. They must be pasted on a sheet of white paper, with the name of the writer, the writer's address, the name of the publication and the date of publication on the back of the paper, according to Andrews and Miss Crawford.

There may be three entries per writer in each of the following classes: news writing, feature writing, sports stories and columns, and editorials and columns.

All entries must have been published since May 1, 1954.

Final Exam Schedule

No student may be excused from a scheduled examination except by the University Infirmary, in case of illness, or by his General College faculty adviser or his dean, in case of any other emergency compelling his absence, according to a notice issued by Edwin Lanier, director of the Central Office of Records.

The final exam schedule for the present semester is as follows:

All 2 p.m. classes on MWF and *BA 180	Tuesday, May 24, 8:30 a.m.
All noon classes on MWF	Tuesday, May 24, 2 p.m.
All 2 p.m. classes on TTS and *Economics 31 and 32	Wednesday, May 25, 8:30 a.m.
All 12 noon classes on TTS and all *Naval Science	Wednesday, May 25, 2 p.m.
All 1 p.m. classes on MWF and *BA 71 and 72	Thursday, May 26, 8:30 a.m.
All 9 a.m. classes on MWF	Thursday, May 26, 2 p.m.
All 9 a.m. classes on TTS	Friday, May 27, 8:30 a.m.
All 8 a.m. classes on MWF	Friday, May 27, 2 p.m.
All 10 a.m. classes on MWF	Saturday, May 28, 8:30 a.m.
All *French, *German and *Spanish courses numbered 1, 2, 3, 4 and *Economics 170	Saturday, May 28, 2 p.m.
All 11 a.m. classes on TTS	Monday, May 30, 8:30 a.m.
All 10 a.m. classes on TTS	Monday, May 30, 2 p.m.
All 11 a.m. classes on MWF	Tuesday, May 31, 8:30 a.m.
All 3 p.m. classes, *Chemistry 21, *Economics 81 and all classes not otherwise provided for in schedule	Tuesday, May 31, 2 p.m.
All 8 a.m. classes on TTS	Wednesday, June 1, 8:30 a.m.

In case of any conflict, the regularly scheduled exam will take precedence over the common exam. (Common exams are indicated by an asterisk.)

Red Trial Continues

GREENSBORO, April 13, (AP) — Talkative John Lautner, ex-communist turned government consultant, testified today in the Smith Act trial of Junius Scales that party dedication to force and violence is unchanged and unchangeable.

Scales, 35, is charged with party membership knowing that the party sought a violent revolution, and intending to work toward the party goal. He has admitted membership, but denies the other two

(See SCALES, page 4)

Wednesday Is Deadline For Room Reservations

Wednesday is the deadline for men to make room reservation deposits with the University Cashier in South Building, and for applications to be made for room changes for both summer and fall sessions must be made by that date, according to the University Housing Office.

Alexander Dormitory will be used to house married couples during the summer session. No cooking will be permitted in the rooms. Rooms in Alexander may be rented at $30 for each summer session. The reservation is $30.

The rooms in Steele and on the first three floors of Ruffin will be assigned as single rooms for the summer. Rent will be $25 per summer session, and the reservation fee will be $25.

Connor will house graduate men during the summer. Joyner, Old East, Old West and Grimes will also be open. Rooms in these dorms will rent for $15 for each summer session. Reservation fee will be $15.

The Housing Office keeps a listing of privately owned apartments, houses and rooms off the campus which are available for the summer. Arrangements to rent these places should be made in person since the variation in price and facilities is so great, according to Housing Office statement.

It will be necessary to again house three persons per room in Alexander, Steele, Whitehead, the first three floors of Grimes, Mangum, Manly and Ruffin and the south and middle sections of Old East and Old West, said the statement. If additional space is needed, the rooms of the lower quadrangle dormitories will be converted to triple rooms in the following order: Lewis, Aycock, Graham, Everett, according to the Housing Office.

Frosh Camp Planners Meet Tonight In Y

The Planning Committee for 1955 Freshman Camp will meet tonight to hear reports on the project's progress, according to a YMCA spokesman.

Y Associate Secretary John Riebel said the meeting will be held at 9:30 p.m. in the YMCA building.

Freshman Camp counselors' training program will be discussed, said Riebel. "All men who want to be counselors should attend this meeting," he said. Riebel said the whole schedule of the camp, which is annually held before classes start in the fall, will be discussed.

Stewart Colson is chairman of the Planning Committee. Subchairmen who will make reports tonight include Mark Cherry, on counselor training; Bob Leonard, on schedule and speakers; Dan Southerland, on worship; Gary Nichols, on recreation, and Joe Clapp, on publicity.

Nominations for camp director will be made at the meeting, said Riebel.

Dr. Guion Johnson Gets Chi O Award

Dr. Guion G. Johnson, Chapel Hill, is the recipient of this year's Distinguished Service Award for Women which is presented annually by the Epsilon Beta chapter of Chi Omega Sorority.

The award was presented to Mrs. Johnson, in behalf of the sorority by Chancellor Robert B. House at a banquet held here at the Carolina Inn. Martha Clay, newly elected president from Danville, Va., presided. Chapter awards were also presented.

The citation described Mrs. Johnson as an "author, scholar, executive and historian who has ever been a living example of integrity, high ideals and an understanding heart."

Now serving as president of the North Carolina Women's Council of which she was chief organizer, Mrs. Johnson has been outstanding in the work of numerous women's and civic groups throughout the country. She has served as chairman of the board of the board of the National Publicity Council, first vice-president of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs and first vice-president of the North Carolina Division of the American Association of University Women.

Japanese Who Survived A-Blast Visits Carolina

Dr. Raisuke Shirabe, professor of surgery, Nagasaki University Medical School, Japan, visited UNC recently on a study of radiation treatment technique at N. C. Memorial Hospital.

He is considered one of the world's foremost authorities on history and treatment of burns from atomic bombs.

The New Stink: Brogan Number 13

With the echoes of a certain campaign promise still in our ears, we're expecting to walk by the presidential office soon and spot a couple of white bucks—or perhaps brogans number 13—dropped on President Fowler's desk.

For according to reports—perhaps from the opposition—several have vowed to obey Fowler's injunction to "put your feet on the President's desk." The amusing side of this campaign promise, fortunately, is its most prominent side: everyone sees the humor involved.

Flip the slogan over, however, and you find a current—an all-too-current — danger sign: Such a complete backslide from the James I-Louis XIV-Andy Jackson "dieu et mon droit" notion that believers in strong executive government shudder. Democratic governments like our student government derive, and should continue to derive, their ultimate power from the consent of the governed—the students. But no government we've ever heard of derived any power or effect whatsoever from the number of feet on the president's desk, or from the volume of whispering by the president's ear. The executive's ear and, finally, his desk, must stay inviolate or government fails. The conscience of the executive is his own and even the democratic concept doesn't necessitate its being stomped on by sundry advisers.

As we say, we see the humor of the campaign slogan. But we firmly enjoin the new president to keep assorted feet off his desk and whispers out of his ears.

Through History With The Kiss Of Hops

"Historians are just Monday morning quarterbacks," a history professor we know philosophized one dreary class day.

And after a look at a bit of recent campus history from the University of West Virginia, We're ready to agree. If we had only known this piece of current history sooner, we keep thinking in a most Monday morning quarterbackish manner.

For history's and the record's sake, though, we'll pass this bit of incidental election intelligence your way. The Student Party at the West Virginia school offered to every fraternity or sorority that mustered 100 per cent of its members to the polls either a keg of beer or a refund of party membership dues.

Perhaps the pols will remember this timely bit when the next campus election drawls around. But, if they don't, we're sure the beer will flow freely in the winner's camp anyway.

The Word On Ike

Merriman Smith, the dean of White House reporters, has come forth with the word about Eisenhower's second term: Ike will run —to his farm in Gettysburg and his Black Angus cattle for quiet years of retirement.

Reporter Smith, the man who begins and ends all White House press conferences as senior correspondent, is astute in the study of Presidents. In his new book, Meet Mister Eisenhower, he points out that Ike—should he run again and win—would be the oldest man in American history to be inaugurated as a chief executive with the single exception of William Henry Harrison. Smith also draws a vivid picture of the President's love for the solitude of his Pennsylvania farm.

From Chapel Hill to Capitol Hill is a long way, but as Republican rumblers Knowland and others make their right-wing noises about war, we strongly suspect that GOP moguls will find peace of mind in persuading the great placater—Ike—to run again.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Sunday, Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor FRED POWLEDGE

Associate Editors LOUIS KRAAR, ED YODER

Business Manager TOM SHORES

Sports Editor BERNIE WEISS

News Editor Jackie Goodman

NEWS STAFF Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Lois Owen, Ebba Freund, Joe Terrell

EDITORIAL STAFF Bill O'Sullivan, Tom Spain, David Mundy, Paul Chase

SPORTS STAFF Marshall Waldman, Al Korschun, Dave Lieberman, Bob Colbert

BUSINESS STAFF Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

Dorm Life—1 A. G. Bell & A Big, Big Bistro

J. A. C. Dunn

WE WERE LYING awake the other morning "between," as John Galsworthy says, "the hours of two and four, when the chrysalis of faint misgiving so readily becomes the butterfly of panic," and all of a sudden the telephone rang.

Now where we live, in Winston, the phone is right across the hall from our door. We hear it every time it rings. In fact we hear it all the time. But we are not alone in living near it, there being about eight other people who live close enough to have their lives disrupted by the Bell disease. We lay there and listened to the ghastly sound, secure in the knowledge that there were at least five other students awake and who would therefore hear the phone. The phone rang and rang. And rang. Nobody answered it.

★

This is common practice in Winston. The rule is, "When the phone rings, let someone else get it." So when the phone rings, everyone sits smugly (or maliciously) in their rooms and waits for someone else to get tired of it first, and then when nothing happens after the fourteenth ring, four or five people go simultaneously to answer the phone.

We decided that in this instance we would rather be keelhauled than made to answer the phone. We lay still. After the fifteenth ring we heard three doors open and shut, six feet stagger blindly toward the phone booth, three sentences uttered—composed mainly of short words which our editor steadfastly refuses to print—and then the sound of three freshmen playing odd-man-out to see who would go back to bed.

★

IN A SPIRIT of pure mad adventure, we went surging over to Cobb dorm last week and had a surreptitious look at the east basement. The change is unbelievable.

The east basement of Cobb used to be a long, dark, gloomy catacomb filled with bugs errant and the discarded paraphernalia of college It has now, under the hand of a Durham architect named Weeks, been transformed into an extremely attractive suite of social rooms. The discarded paraphernalia has been rediscarded somewhere else and the bugs errant have been sent packing into the west basement to pursue their errands in the medieval conditions that still, we are informed, exist ether.

★

The east basement now has a game room, a TV room, a sort of "dance gather round, slam you on the back, Let's go sit in that corner" room which takes up half the available space, a coat room, a ladies' room, two small cubby holes which presumably will be used for the storage of brooms, folding chairs, and unclaimed dates, and a multitude of little tiny closets. The walls are pine panelled, the ceilings are white and perforated, and the floor, which was still cement when we saw it, will probably be covered with something luxurious like giraffe-bone tiles an inch square carpeted with smoked freshman skin.

Two thousand dollars worth of furniture is due to be installed as soon as the bone tiles are laid, curtains will probably be hung, the TV set will be portaged from the first floor social room to its amphitheater near the mailboxes, and then the only commodities necessary to complete the job will be a manager and a staff. To increase the attraction it has been suggested that part of student fees be sunk into the operation of the establishment, but the lack of a manager and fees will not stop Cobb from having a grand opening in about three weeks, when the last nail is driven and the last freshman flayed to fill out the last corner of the last carpet.

It is a truly beautiful bistro. We plan to be there when Mrs. Collier Cobb breaks a Coke across the main door, thus opening the business to conoisseurs of night life.

'Oh—Oh'

A CRY AGAINST OBLITERATION

Last Proof Of Man's Cleverness

Lord Bertrand Russell

In The Saturday Review

I am writing not as a Briton, not as a European, not as a member of a Western democracy, but as a human being, a member of the species Man, whose continued existence is in doubt. The world is full of conflicts: Jews and Arabs; Indians and Pakistanis; white men and Negroes in Africa; and, overshadowing all minor conflicts, the titanic struggle between Communism and anti-Communism.

Almost everybody who is politically conscious has strong feelings about one or more of these issues. But I want you, if you can, to set aside such feelings for the moment and consider yourself only as a member of a biological species which has had a remarkable history and whose disappearance none of us can desire. I shall try to say no single word which should appeal to one group rather than to another. All, equally, are in peril, and, if the peril is understood, there is hope that they may collectively avert it. We have to learn to think in a new way. We have to learn to ask ourselves not what steps can be taken to give military victory to whatever group we prefer, for there no longer are such steps. The question we have to ask ourselves is: "What steps can be taken to prevent a military contest of which the issue must be disastrous to all sides?

The general public, and even many men in positions of authority, have not realized what would be involved in a war with hydrogen bombs. The general public still thinks in terms of the obliteration of cities. It is understood that the new bombs are more powerful than the old and that, while one atomic bomb could obliterate the largest cities such as London, New York, and Moscow. No doubt in a hydrogen-bomb war great cities would be obliterated. But this is one of the minor disastors that would have to be faced. If everybody in London, New York, and Moscow were exterminated, the world might, in the course of a few centuries, recover from the blow. But we now know, especially since the Bikini test, that hydrogen bombs can gradually spread destruction over a much wider area than had been supposed. It is stated on very good authority that a bomb can now be manufactured which will be 25,000 times as powerful as that which destroyed Hiroshima. Such a bomb, if exploded near the ground or under water, sends radioactive particles into the upper air. They sink gradually and reach the surface of the earth in the form of a deadly dust or rain. It was this dust which infected the Japanese fishermen and their catch of fish although they were outside what American experts believed to be the danger zone. It is feared that if many hydrogen bombs are used there will be universal death—sudden only for a fortunate minority, a slow torture of disease and disintegration.

STARK, DREADFUL

Here, then, is the problem which I present to you, stark and dreadful and inescapable: Shall we put an end to the human race; or shall mankind renounce war? People will not face this alternative because it is so difficult to abolish war. The abolition of war will demand distasteful limitations of national sovereignty. Whatever agreements not to use hydrogen bombs had been reached in time of peace, they would no longer be considered binding in time of war, and both sides would set to work to manufacture hydrogen bombs as soon as war broke out, for if one side manufactured the bombs and the other did not, the side that manufactured them would inevitably be victorious.

AGREEMENT

If an agreement making war improbable is to be reached, it will have to be by the friendly offices of neutrals, who can speak of the disastrousness of war without being accused of advocating a policy of "appeasement." The neutrals have every right, even from the narrowest consideration of self-interest, to do whatever lies in their power to prevent the outbreak of a world war, for, if such a war does break out, it is highly probable that all the inhabitants of neutral countries, along with the rest of mankind, will perish.

As geological time is reckoned, Man has so far existed only for a very short period — 1,000,000 years at the most. What he has achieved, especially during the last 6,000 years, is something utterly new in the history of the Cosmos, so far at least as we are acquainted with it.

In the great world of astronomy and in the little world of the atom, Man has unveiled secrets which might have been thought undiscoverable. In art and literature and religion some men have shown a sublimity of feeling which makes the species worth preserving.

TRIVIAL HORROR

Is all this to end in trivial horror because so few are able to think of Man rather than of this or that group of men? Is our race so destitute of wisdom, so incapable of impartial love, so blind even to the simplest dictates of self-preservation that the last proof of its silly cleverness is to be the extermination of all life on our planet? For it will be not only men who will perish, but also the animals and plants, whom no one can accuse of Communism or anti-Communism. I appeal as a human being to human beings: remember your humanity, and forget the rest. If you can do so, the way lies open to a new Paradise; if you cannot, nothing lies before you but universal death.

Dulles' Politics In Corsi Affair Out Of Step

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON — There is little doubt that Secretary Dulles is the most political of the long line of Secretaries of State. What observers are wondering about is the current direction of his politics.

His sudden firing of Edward J. Corsi as his assistant in charge of immigration matters and his almost simultaneous appointment of Miss Frances Knight as chief of the important Passport Division indicate to some that he is out of step with the Administration in dealing with matters tinged with McCarthyism, a word almost unheard lately in the Federal city.

Mr. Corsi is a liberal in the LaGuardia tradition. Miss Knight has been accused of being one of the State Department employees who passed information to the Wisconsin Senator during his investigation of the Voice of America. Mr. Corsi, refusing even the blandishments of GOP Chairman Leonard Hall, who had hoped to persuade him to accept another job, is retiring to his small New York farm to lick his wounds and think deep thoughts about Republican ingratitude. Miss Knight, on the other hand, moves into a job where she will have very nearly final say as to which Americans are to be allowed to travel abroad.

★

Democrats are deeply puzzled as to why Secretary Dulles thought it necessary to appease Rep. Francis Walter of Pennsylvania. Mr. Walter once belonged to the small coterie of House members who appeared slated to eventual positions of leadership. Somewhere along the line, however, he lost this distinction and has become something of a lone wolf in his party. In 1952 while campaigning in Pennsylvania Adlai Stevenson notably made no appearance with Rep. Walter, whose connection with the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act had made him distasteful to many Americans of foreign birth.

Secretary Dulles has concerned himself greatly of late over "paper tigers." The Democrats say that in appeasing Rep. Walter he has given himself in to a paper tiger.

Mr. Corsi is probably a more important Republican than Rep. Walter manages to be as a Democrat. Corsi has been a Republican candidate for the mayoralty in New York City. He has been an important official during the administrations of former Governor Dewey. He is the leading Italian-born Republican in a state that has a population of Italian descent well above a million.

★

Mr. Dulles's actions have been a blow not only to Mr. Corsi but to New York Attorney-General Jacob Javits. He had made himself a natural candidate for higher office by beating young Franklin D. Roosevelt last fall. Before him then lay the possibilities of running against the venerable Senator Herbert Lehman or for the governorship against Averell Harriman, should he run again. But a large defection of votes in the Italian community would be difficult to ov-

(In an earlier column on the Corsi affair, Miss Fleeson predicted that Secretary Dulles... "may soon find that in avoiding an argument with Rep. Walter over the appointment of Mr. Corsi he has involved himself in a political question of such intense heat that it may well influence the outcome of the election in 1956."—Editors)

Over The Hill

Charles Dunn

PRE-HOLIDAY: It was the morning before the holidays began, and all through the class not many pencils were in motion. Even the professor seemed in a hurry to get the hour over as he paused every now and then to look at his watch. Throughout the class students were passing the time away as well as possible, some attempting to take a few notes, some just sitting and dreaming about the five fast days that were coming and some were doing their daily crossword puzzle.

The professor continued to lecture on in his usual style, but occasionally the words "crossword" and "puzzle" popped up in the lecture. The idea spread quickly through the class and, for the first time that morning, the professor had the attention officer will the person make, who disregarded the most of it: talked about his days in college, one of his dry professors, and the disadvantages of working crossword puzzles in class. His main point was that "there is meat even in the driest lectures."

★ ★ ★

WONDERING: What kind of campus or class officer will be person make, who disregarded the dormitory rule that forbids the use of "gummed paper or adhesives or any type... in attaching articles to the walls, woodwork, or furniture in his campaigning?

★ ★ ★

THOUGHT TRAIN: The pretty little coed set across from a fellow in the library. They talked on various and sundry topics for a while, and then the coed, smiling sweetly to those at the other end of the table, leaned over and whispered, "I hate you."

The fellow took it in stride and replied: "Really? And why?"

The coed thought for a few seconds, and replied in spurts: "Well, it's just that are different... (a pause) Well, it's just that I can't figure you out... (another pause) I've just never seen anybody like you... (an even longer pause) It's just that I can't figure you out well enough to know what you are going to do next, and you know what I'm going to do next, you keep one jump ahead of me all the time."

The fellow tried to muffle a laugh, but the couple at the other end of the table langhed aloud. The fellow, slightly red but enjoying the conversation, asked: "Is that bad?"

The coed, appearing taken back by the question, finally answered: "Well I don't know, you are different from most fellows. No fellow has ever kept one jump ahead of me before, and really I think I love you for it."

★ ★ ★

FOLLOW UP: It is reported that the same coed later told her roomie about this simply "boring boy" who had fallen for her age-old line about his "being the first boy that could ever keep one jump ahead of her." They both got a big laught out of it."

★ ★ ★

MOVIES: April is "Go to the Movies Month" in Chapel Hill and throughout the state and nation. The managers of the Chapel Hill theaters have gone all out to bring some of the better movies to Chapel Hill during the next couple of weeks. A few of them will be "The Long Gray Line," "The Glass Slipper," "A Man Called Peter," and "20,000 Leagues Under the Seat."

In addition to the fine list of movies, one of the theaters, the Carolina, is planning to add a system of stereophonic sound, which will have eight wall speakers. Some of these will be on the sides, and some just opposite from the screen. This system will make the sound come from all around, so that the viewers can be caught in the middle of a gun battle, or between a raging river and a wildcat or something that makes noise.

—Reader's Retort—

Another Former Staffer Goes On Record Re: 'Over The Hill'

Editor:

If I may be permitted to butt into the argument over who first wrote a personal column entitled "Over the Hill," I would like to point out that not only was Charles Dunn preceded by Fred Babson who was preceded by Walt Dear, but I preceded all of them with my own "Over the Hill' column in the old monthly pocket-sized "Tarnation" published in the late 1940's.

The title, so far as I was concerned at the time, was original with me, but I wouldn't lay any money on that, either.

Chuck Hauser

Quote, Unquote

To believe life an irremediable disaster, the heavens and earth an imbecility, is to my way of thinking hard indeed. Since I am not prepared to believe the world a misery-go-round, a torture chamber, a furnace of senseless affliction; since I am not prepared to believe the fiery, invincible soul a by-blow, a lamentable accident, I prefer to put my trust in the larger vision of the poets. To fortify our minds it is to them we have to return, and yet again return. They alone have understood . . . And it is to their inextinguishable sympathy with humanity that they owe their understanding. Not to science or philosophy, but to their profounder appreciation of the strange situation in which we find ourselves, to their sense of the pitiful estate of man who, with all the forces of nature proclaiming an alien creed, still holds to his intuitions, who knows and knows well that he cannot support himself otherwise than by clinging — as a sailor clings to his raft in angry seas — to the passion for justice, his trust in the affections of his heart, his love of the lovely, his lonely struggle for the best, however clumsy and mistaken he may be in his present estimates of what is indeed best.—W. Macneile Dixon in "The Human situation."

★ ★ ★

Haunted by nightmare memories of the purges of the 1930's, the (Soviet) praesidium appears to have consented to Malenkov's demotion and humiliation on the express condition that he will not be purged in the Stalinist manner.

★ ★ ★

The ostentation of this demonstration is meant to reassure public opinion that the more liberal "spirit" of the new time is still alive and that Malenkov is not to be branded as an enemy of the people. — Manchester (England) Guardian

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

Daily Tar Heel Sports Editor

It will be Blue-White time again next Wednesday night when Frank McGuire shows off his long-awaited and still building dream team in Woollen Gym.

The game, scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, will pit two evenly matched teams in a benefit contest sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic Council, and if all indications come true, the girls should rack in the dough.

Admission will be half a dollar. Of the proceeds, $180 will be used to adopt a child under the Foster Parents' Plan and the remainder will go toward the proposed Chapel Hill recreation center.

Judging from practices of the varsity cagers over the past few weeks, the game should be nothing short of great. With talent apportioned evenly, a battle to the final minute is expected.

Composing the White team will be Jerry Vayda, Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham, Tommy Kearns, Charley Adams and Buddy Clark. The Blues will play Lennie Rosenbluth, Bob Young, Roy Searcy, Frank Goodwin, Jerry McCabe, Hilliard Greene, Tony Radovich and Kenny Rosemond.

Brennan, Quigg, Cunningham, Kearns, Adams and Searcy are the rising sophs from a freshman team of last winter which lost only one game of 22. That one loss, incidentally, was twice avenged with convincing victories over the Duke Imps.

Rosemond is a newcomer, having just been discharged from the Navy.

The two retiring co-captains of last season's varsity will act in the capacity of bench coaches. Al Lifson will run the Whites and Paul Likins will handle the Blues. Both are seniors and are to graduate in June.

The teams have been operating separately for three days but, except for short sessions, no scrimmages have been held. Buck Freeman, assistant coach, has been with the squad as McGuire has been touring the state to meet speaking engagements. Last night the head mentor was in Raleigh with his humor.

Officials for the game are Bill Miller and Bill Williams.

★ ★

Billy Hathaway, the 6'-10" snag from Long Island, was in Chapel Hill for six days during the UNC student reprieve from classes. He was accompanied by Danny Lotts, another cager who promises to come here in the fall.

Hathaway, according to McGuire, was very much impressed with the school. He arrived last Thursday and left yesterday at noon.

★ ★

Jim Laughead, a nationally famous photographer from Dallas, Texas, was in town yesterday to shoot pictures of the football team for distribution to the press next season. Laughead, it is reported, is the fastest and best man with a shutter around.

Yesterday in 10 minutes he caught nearly all of the regulars before rains called a halt to his activity. He'll be back today for more of the same. Prior to his football pictures, he was inside the gym snapping Hathaway.

★ ★

Better late than never, I shall attempt to pick winners as all sports editors do. This time we move to the National and American Leagues.

The Giants have too much power to be easily beaten, and they get the nod in the senior circuit. With Antonelli, Mays and Alvin Dark as the nucleus and a manager like Leo Durocher, who doesn't like to finish last, they should beat Brooklyn and Milwaukee to the wire.

The American, I hope, will see Cleveland finish first for the simple reason that no club can beat the pitching of Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Mike Garcia, rookie Herb Score, Art Houtteman, Bob Feller, etc., with regularity. The Yankees also have the pitching, plus other assets, but they didn't look like championship material when I saw Brooklyn smack them, 14-4, last weekend in Ebbets Field.

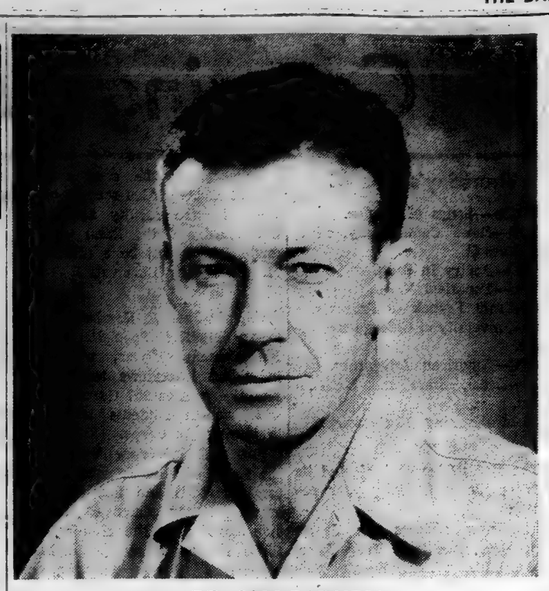
The rundown:

American	National
1. Cleveland	1. New York
2. New York	2. Milwaukee
3. Chicago	3. Brooklyn
4. Boston	4. Cincinnati
5. Detroit	5. Philadelphia
6. Washington	6. St. Louis
7. Baltimore	7. Chicago
8. Kansas City	8. Pittsburgh

Pats' Transient Club Question

GREENSBORO, April 13 (AP) — The Greensboro Patriots have a new manager, Elmer Yoter, and a flock of new players to begin the Carolina League baseball season on April 20, but everybody insists that does not mean the Patriots will have the same starting lineup for long.

Yoter, a veteran scout and manager in the Boston Red Sox orgainization, has been busy with the farmhands at Ocala, Fla., and he brings a 24-man squad to Greensboro for the first exhibition game Saturday night with the Hi-Toms.



But Yoter insists "We have some good boys on the Greensboro list but this doesn't mean that this is the squad which we hope to battle the Carolina League with. Sure, we will open the season with the lineup we have worked with for several days, but we're expecting immediate player help."

The current squad has some names the most ardent Greensboro fans will recall, but it would take the most eager Patriot booster to remember them because of their brief stay with the local club. Such boys as Syl McNinch, Joe Albanese, Dick Karl, Art Getgen, Bob Guttilla, Bunky Gruner and Jim Hirsch have been through the Greensboro exchange.

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
B-0268

NOTICE!
Served Every Thursday
SPECIAL
Fried Chicken or Country Fried Steak
2 Vegetables, Coffee or Tea
Free Seconds
55¢
MICHAELS GRILL
WELCOME BACK

YEAR'S BIGGEST MUSICAL ROMANCE!
M-G-M's
The Glass Slipper
IN SPECTACULAR COLOR!
STARRING THE "LILI" GIRL!
LESLIE CARON · MICHAEL WILDING
Last Times Today
Carolina
APRIL IS GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH IN CHAPEL HILL

DR. SAM BARNES

". . . self expression in books, on the mat."

Individuals Have Opportunity For Expression In Lit, On Mat

By AL KORSCHUN

The University of North Carolina has as unusual a figure as there is to be found on any college campus in Dr. Sam Barnes, Ph.D. who is both an English professor and varsity wrestling coach.

Few other schools can claim such a variety in the talents of one of its professors. Barnes, who divides his daily work betwen teaching and Physical Education and coaching varsity wrestling (during season), believes that literature and wrestling are closely related. According to Barnes, "each gives the individual the opportunity for self-expression, and there is the possibility for creation within the bounds which each person has made for himself. Both the writer and wrestler are working with fixed, yet somewhat flexible forms, for although both are patterned after a certain style, each literary composition is an original, and each wrestling match is different in some respect from any other match."

Because of his relation of one with the other, Dr. Barnes believes that this is possibly the reason he was drawn into this dual career. He began his "double life" at Tulsa Central high school (the capitol of amateur wrestling) where he had planned on an engineering career. At Tulsa, he developed his interest in wrestling mainly because he had always enjoyed sports and alho because in high school he was either too small physically or too young to compete in any other sport.

After he had completed his four years of high school education, Barnes entered Oklahoma A&M, possessing a keener interest in wrestling and a diminishing interest in the engineering career he had originally planned. During his collegiate career at A&M he wrestled for four years (one year on the freshman team and three years on the varsity) on a school which had been national champions for 14 consecutive years and, incidentally, had always had a national champion in Barnes' weight class. During his tenure at college he also developed an interest in English journalism and had switched his major from engineering to this field.

The 41-year-old midwesterner began his short-lived career in journalism in 1936 by working for the Stillwater Daily Press as a sports publicity agent, and in his spare time he also found time to write sports articles for both the Associated Press and United Press. However, small paychecks caused Barnes to look to the East for his future, and after several years he came to VMI as wrestling coach and assistant in publicity. The present UNC English professor got his first break on the road to a successful English teaching career in 1939 when he was offered a position on the English faculty at VMI as a lecturer on a few hours' notice. Needless to say, he accepted it gladly, but at VMI, Barnes' wrestlers had the enviable distinction of never finishing lower than runner-up in conference competition.

The former "Aggie" wrestler began his dual teaching and coaching career at Carolina in 1950 when he succeeded P. H. Quinlan, Tar Heel wrestling mentor for 26 years, as head coach of the UNC wrestling team. Barnes also became a member of the University's English faculty upon receiving his Ph.D. in English in 1953.

Speaking on his favorite topic (other than "The Transitionalism of Thomas Carlyle") — wrestling, coach "Sam" swears he has the best team in the country ("if we could only win a few meets"). But Barnes is quick to point out that the attitude of his team, which is the first essential, does improve every year. In addition, he believes that wrestling definitely has many unique values for undergraduates and he often times gets impatient with those who don't take advantage of this opportunity.

"It's useless to try to describe the excitement. You must see it for yourself!"
THIS IS FAMED PRODUCER JOSHUA LOGAN SPEAKING OF ELIA KAZAN'S EXPLOSIVE PRODUCTION OF JOHN STEINBECK'S
EAST OF EDEN
PRESENTED BY WARNER BROS. IN CINEMASCOPE
WARNERCOLOR-TECHNICOLOR
Late Show Sat. Night
SUN. - MON. - TUE.
Carolina

Davis Holds Carolina Nine, Deacons Win In Rain, 2-0

WAKE FOREST, April 13 —(AP)— Wake Forest defeated North Carolina, 2-0, in an Atlantic Coast Conference baseball game here which was called because of rain after 5½ innings.

Lowell (Lefty) Davis continued his mastery over the Tar Heels in chalking up his fourth win of the season without a loss. Last year Davis beat North Carolina three successive times. Davis struck out seven, walked one and gave up four hits as Wake Forest won its eighth game against one loss. The Tar Heels are now 4-7 for the season.

The game was played in a constant drizzle and was halted twice before it was finally called.

Davis and Sophomore Jim Raugh were locked in a pitcher's duel until the Deacons hopped on the Tar Heel care for two runs in the fourth. Second baseman Lee Abbott drove in both runs with a single with the bases loaded.

Approximately 500 fans braved the weather to watch Wake Forest defeat the Tar Heels for the fourth consecutive time. Wake Forest won three from the visitors last season.

Today the Tar Heels meet Duke in Durham at 3:30 o'clock.

Yesterday's box:

Carolina	Ab.	H.	O.	A.
Lloyd, 2b	3	1	1	2
Long, ss	3	0	1	2
Gravitte, cf	2	1	1	1
Frye, 1b	3	1	8	0
Zachary, lf	3	0	0	0
Woods, 3b	2	0	0	1
Keller, rf	2	0	0	0
Love, c	2	1	4	0
Raugh, p	2	0	0	3
Totals	22	4	15	9

W. Forest	Ab.	H.	O.	A.
Moore, ss	3	1	1	3
McKeel, cf	3	1	0	0
Holt, c	3	2	7	0
McRae, lf	3	0	4	0
Cole, rf	1	0	0	0
Barnes, 3b	1	0	1	1
Waggoner, 1b	2	0	5	0
Abbott, 2b	2	1	0	1
Davis, p	2	0	0	1
Totals	20	5	18	5

North Carolina 000 000—0
Wake Forest 000 20x—2

R—Holt, McRae. RBI—Abbott 2. E—Raugh. SB—McKeel, Barnes, Abbott. Left—Wake Forest 5, North Carolina 5. BB—Davis 1, Raugh 2. SO—Davis 7, Raugh 4. U—Simpson and Morgan. A—500. T—1:20.

UNC Nine Meets Duke Today, 3:30

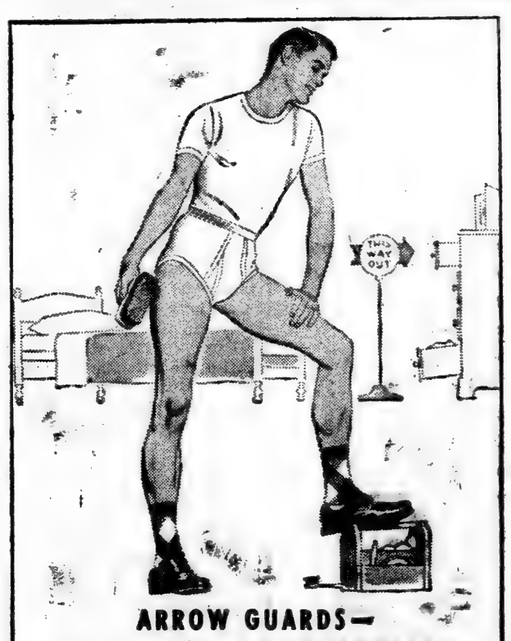
Carolina's baseball Tar Heels will be at Duke University today to meet the Blue Devils for the first time this season.

Righthander Tom Maultsby is slated to hurl for Carolina. He will probably oppose Duke ace Hal Turner.

Game time is 3:30 o'clock.

Action on the local front will see the Kalamazoo tennis team meeting the Tar Heel netters on the varsity courts at 3 o'clock.

It's Spring Again!
Birds are yelling their silly little heads off, dogs are barking, bees and butterflies are doing whatever bees and butterflies do in their helpful way. Even old Joe Grouch cracked his iron face to smirk at a charming bit of She back in the old book section yesterday.
The doors of the old book barn are wide open to the balmy air, and to tell the truth, we're a bit balmy ourselves as we gift-wrap garden books and love poems, and watch the twosomes browsing.
Hot Dog! It's wonderful, pal. Come join the fun.
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings



For ROTC Khaki Socks
(Long Or Short)
Brown Shoes
(Military Style)

Strap-In-The Back
IVY LEAGUE PANTS
Black, Khaki, Pink

SANFORIZED
COTON CORD PANTS
3.98
Grey, Blue, Tan
Cuffed, Plain Front
Also—The Very Best HUBBARD CORDS
6.95
$1.00 Off While It's Raining

Blue Denim Lounging SLACKS
Elastic and Belt
2.98

PLAY SHORTS—SWIM WEAR
Bermans

ARROW GUARDS—
BRIEFLY, THEY'RE COMFORTABLE
One thing every man wants in underwear is COMFORT! And, Arrow has it. Arrow Guards, of fine combed cotton, give firm but comfortable support. They keep their shape . . . give perfect fit where you sit.
If you prefer a short, Arrow offers the Sprinter model with elastic waist-band, or snap-front model shown below. If you like fancy patterns, slip into a pair of Arrow LOVE MATCH shorts (below right), one of several Arrow specialty prints. Arrow Guards, $1.20. Shorts, $1.50. Fine Arrow T-shirts, $1.25.

ARROW UNDERWEAR
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS
Best Selection of ARROW PRODUCTS at Varley's
MEN'S SHOP

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 3

Once again the makers of Philip Morris, men who are dedicated to the betterment of American youth, have consented to let me use this space, normally intended for levity, to bring you a brief lesson in science.

It is no new thing, this concern that the makers of Philip Morris feel for American youth. Youth was foremost in their minds when they fashioned their cigarette. They were aware that the palate of youth is keen and eager, awake to the subtlest nuances of flavor. And so they made a gentle and clement smoke, a suave blending of temperate vintage tobaccos, a summery amalgam of the most tranquil and emollient leaf that their buyers could find in all the world. And then they designed their cigarette in two sizes, king-size and regular, and wrapped them in the convenient Snap-Open pack, and priced them at a figure that youth could afford, and made them available at every tobacco counter in the land.

That's what they did, the makers of Philip Morris, and I for one am glad.

The science that we take up today is called astronomy, from the Greek words astro meaning "sore" and nomy meaning "back." Sore backs were the occupational disease of the early Greek astronomers, and no wonder! They used to spend every blessed night lying on the damp ground and looking up at the sky, and if there's a better way to get a sore back, I'd like to hear about it. Especially in the moist Mediterranean area, where Greece is generally considered to be.

Lumbago and related disorders kept astronomy from becoming very popular until Galileo, a disbarred flenser of Perth, fashioned a home made telescope in 1924 out of three Social Security cards and an ordinary ice cube. What schoolboy does not know that stirring story — how Galileo stepped up to his telescope, how he looked heavenward, how his face filled with wonder, how he stepped back and whispered the words heard round the world: "L'etat, c'est moi!"

Well sir, you can imagine what happened then! William Jennings Bryan snatched Nell Gwynne from the shadow of the guillotine at Oslo; Chancellor Bismarck brought in four gushers in a single afternoon; Hal Newhouser was signed by the Hanseatic League; Crete was declared off limits to Wellington's entire army; and William Faulkner won the Davis Cup for his immortal Penrod and Sam.

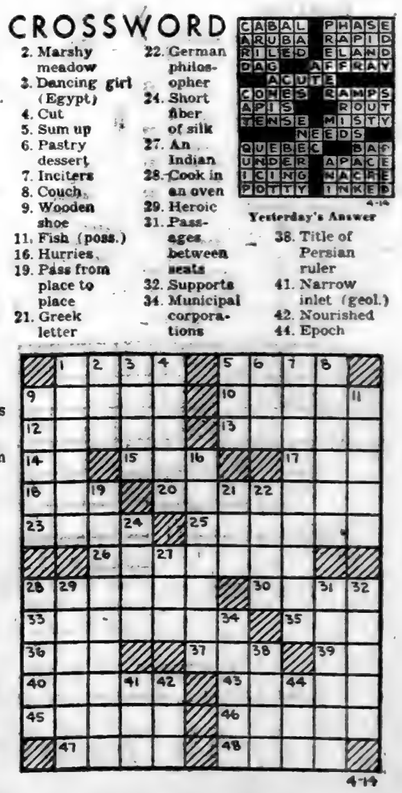
But after a while things calmed down, and astronomers began the staggering task of naming all the heavenly bodies. First man to name a star was Sigafoos of Mt. Wilson, and the name he chose was Betelgeuse, after his wife Betelgeuse Sigafoos, prom queen at Michigan State College from 1919 to 1931.

Not to be outdone, Formfig of Yerkes Observatory named a whole constellation after his wife, Big Dipper Formfig, the famed dirt track racer. This started the custom of astronomers naming constellations after their wives — Capricorn, Cygni, Orion, Ursa Major, Canis Major, and so forth. (The Major girls, Ursa and Canis, both married astronomers, though Canis subsequently ran off with a drydock broker named Thwaite Daphnis.)

After naming all the heavenly bodies, the astronomers had a good long rest. Then, refreshed and brown as berries, they undertook the gigantic project of charting the heavens. Space is so vast that it is measured in units called "light-years." These are different from ordinary years in that they weigh a good deal less. This, of course, is only relative, since space is curved. As Einstein laughingly said, "E=mc²."

Well, I guess that covers astronomy pretty thoroughly. But before we leave this fascinating topic, let us answer one final question: Is there life on other planets?

The answer is a flat, unequivocal no. Recent spectroscopic studies have proved beyond a doubt that the atmosphere of the other planets is far too harsh to permit the culture of the delicate vintage tobaccos that go into Philip Morris Cigarettes . . . And who can live without Philip Morris?



©Max Shulman, 1955

This heavenly column—like the author's more earthy ones—is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS cigarettes—who feel you'll find real enjoyment in their product.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Exclamation of grief
5. Sacred bull (Egypt)
9. Part of a fish line
10. Ten-cent pieces
12. Lizard (Old World)
13. Profoundness
14. Board of Ordnance (abbr.)
15. Tree
17. Greek letter
18. Grampus
20. Combed, as hemp
23. Thin tin plate
25. Fissile rocks
26. Customary procedure
28. Repeat from memory
30. A snare
33. Wealthy
35. Title of respect
36. Trouble
37. Distress signal
39. Thus
40. Muffler
43. Young of the dog
45. Potato (dial.)
46. The nostrils
47. Guide
48. Shinto temples

DOWN
1. Long-haired cat
2. Marshy meadow
3. Dancing girl (Egypt)
4. Cut
5. Sum up
6. Pastry dessert
7. Inciters
8. Couch
9. Wooden shoe
11. Fish (poss.)
16. Hurries
19. Pass from place to place
21. Greek letter
22. German philosopher
24. Short fiber of silk
27. An Indian
28. Cook in an oven
29. Heroic
31. Passages between seats
32. Supports
34. Municipal corporations
38. Title of Persian ruler
41. Narrow inlet (geol.)
42. Nourished
44. Epoch

Yesterday's Answer

Mock Court-Martial Set Today

A mock military court-martial trial will be held in the courtroom of the Law School at 2 p.m. today.

The trial is being sponsored by the Law School Assn. and will be open to the public.

According to a spokesman for the Association, the trial will be conducted according to actual military procedure. He said that a fictitious defendant, a PFC Barnby, is charged with being absent without official leave and with larceny. The chief witness for the prosecution will be Lou Bledsoe, third year law student and reserve officer.

The judge, Col. James R. Healy, and counsel for both sides are members of the Third Army Judge Advocate from Fort McPherson, Ga., said the spokesman. Law students who are reserve officers will serve as jurors, with Major Spencer Pierce as head juror, he added.

The general public is invited to attend the trial, and ROTC students are especially urged to attend, the spokesman said.

Billiard Champ Starts Stint Today

Charles C. Peterson, "Father of Intercollegiate Billiards," will give two days of exhibition and instruction in the pool room of Graham Memorial today and tomorrow.

The 77-year-old trick shot artist will give an hour of exhibition followed by an hour of instruction and a coffee break at 1 p.m. today and tomorrow. The same procedure will be followed after supper today and tomorrow.

Coeds are especially urged to attend the evening sessions, according to a GM spokesman.

Peterson is currently touring under the auspices of the Association of College Unions. He is given credit for popularizing collegiate billiards and making it an intercollegiate activity. This is his 25th tour of colleges and universities.

Fleece Tap Monday

An undisclosed number of men will be tapped into the nation's second oldest and the University's highest men's honorary organization on Monday night.

The Order of the Golden Fleece will hold an open ceremony at 7:15 in Memorial Hall during which it will tap students into membership. According to a spokesman of the Order, the doors of Memorial Hall will be closed to the public at 7:15 in order to preserve the solemnity of the ceremony.

In its 53 years of existence on the campus the Fleece has inducted 550 members of the student body. The group operates in absolute secrecy, and a potential member has no knowledge he will be tapped until the moment a black-robed figure pounces upon him at the ceremony.

The tapping of new members marks the Fleece's only public meeting of the year. Since the officers of the Order are kept secret during the year until this public rite, the names of the Jason, Hyparchos, Grammateus and Christopher will be disclosed Monday evening.

The annual Valkyrie Sing will be held immediately following the tapping.

—Scales Trial—

(Continued From Page 1)

major points of the charge.

Lautner spent the entire third day of the trial on the federal court witness stand. He began his testimony yesterday, the prosecution's first witness at it set out to prove the Communist Party aims to take over the government by force.

Covering The Campus

Thursday's WUNC

7 p.m.—Songs of France.
7:15—News Commentary: Phillips Russell.
7:30—Poetry In Song.
7:45—Tar Heel Voice.
8—From Franck to Francaix.
9—University of Chicago Roundtable.
9:30—American Adventure.
10—Local, State and National News.
10:15—Evening Masterwork.

★

The Men's Glee Club elected its officers for the coming year recently.

The new officers are James Chamblee, president; Troy Page, vice-president; Zane Eargle, secretary; Jack Godley, business manager; Wych Hoffer and Neil Smith, librarians, and Michael Strong, publicity manger.

The Glee Club will travel tonight to the Pinehurst Country Club where it will present a concert.

★

Alpha Kappa Kappa medical fraternity will hold its monthly dinner meeting tonight at 6 o'clock at The Pines

Dr. J. P. Harland will be guest speaker.

★

The Pharmacy Wives Club is sponsoring a pot luck supper at the Pharmacy Institute tonight at 6 o'clock.

The speaker will be Mr. West and Mrs. Fuller.

★

The University Club will meet in Roland Parker Lounge Number 1 today.

Officers for the coming year will be elected. Also recommendations to the faculty about the Cardboard and the Band will be made. There will be a discussion on the Spring Carnival.

★

Captain June E. Handschy, Women's Medical Specialist Corps Procurement Officer, will hold individual interviews today from 2 until 4 p.m. in 207 Gardner Hall with women students interested in joining the Corps.

She will interview women in the fields of science, physical education, foods and nutrition, institutional management art or design concerning the training offered in the Army professional schools of physical therapy, occupational therapy and hospital dietetics.

★

The Film Critics will meet in the Grail Room of GM tonight at 7:30.

There will be a discussion of the problems involved in filming the works of Shakespeare and some other literary works.

Dr. William Wells, Kenan Professor in English, will lead the discussion.

★

Cameramen and editors from all over the south and other parts of the nation are arriving here for the sixth annual southern short course in press photography which opens this morning to continue for three days.

Photographic Manufactures will present a special program tomorrow night and the closing banquet session Saturday will feature the presentation of awards in the Southern Short Course Photo Contest.

Selection of the "Carolinas Photo Queen" from the following contestants will also climax the closing banquet session: Misses Margaret Parham, Oxford; Iris Kornegay, Charlotte; Joan Brown, Chapel Hill; Hilda Mauldin, Kannapolis, and Sue Walton, Wilmington.

★

Several forms sent out by the Order of The Old Well have not been returned to 312 South Building, Dean E. L. Mackie said yesterday.

If any remain out or if any junior or senior who has not received a blank feels himself qualified he is urged to drop by the dean's office to fill out or return the form.

★

The Guggenheim Museum of New York has supplemented its loan of art to the Woman's College, Gregory D. Ivy, head of the Department of Art has announced.

Twenty-five additional drawings have been hung in the lobby of Elliott Hall. The exhibit represents outstanding work of contemporary artists.

Among the additions to the loan at Woman's College are charcoal, ink, crayon, pencil and pastel drawings by Ernst Barlach. Lyonel Feininger, Albert Gleizes, George Grosz, Vasily Kandinsky, Ernst Ludwig Kirchner, Paul Klee, Wilhelm Lehmbruck, Oskar Kokoschka, Henri Matisse, Joan Miro and Amedeo Modiglian.

The Guggenheim Loan may be seen by visitors in Elliott Hall. This supplementary exhibition of drawings will be at the Woman's College for a three week period.

The Scoop of the Campus

Nowhere in the whole wide campus world can you find a buy such as our Ivy narrows in sanforized cotton baby cord slacks—your choice of blue, tan or gray—

4.95

Scoop No. 2, our imported mesh polo shirt, good $8.00 value, our price—

4.95

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
PATENTS PENDING
An entirely new concept in cigarette filtration. A filter tip of purified cellulose, incorporating Activated Charcoal, a filtering substance world-famous as a purifying agent, notably for air, water and beverages.
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Lady Milton Shop

Sleeveless batiste Lady Hathaway shirts, at the new low price of—

4.95

Choice assortment of short sleeve shirts in batiste, ginghams, lustrous broadcloths—at only—

4.95

Baby Cord Skirts

7.95

Most unusual assortment of Bermuda shorts found anywhere—

MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

Merchants Assn. Holds Mother's Day Contest

Applications for Chapel Hill Mothers' Day Contest, being sponsored by the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Assn., should be returned to the Association by April 28.

All houses supervised by house mothers, including dormitories, sororities, fraternities and residences are eligible to enter their house mothers in the contest.

The winning contestants will be honored on May 8. Two campus house mothers and three Chapel Hill teachers will be selected by judges from the entries.

Applications are being distributed to all dorms, fraternities and sororities, according to a member of the committee planning the contest.

—Legislature—

(Continued from page 1)

the SP may argue that some of the staffers, particularly the business manager, ought to work more for "the prestige and the honor."

Whether the $5 raise in student fees that Norwood Bryan and the majority of the Budget Committee recommended will pop up again lies mainly in Bryan's hands. Some have said the raise will soon be an issue for the Carolina voters. This means the Legislature might pass the raise bill if Bryan introduces it, so the student body can decide for itself.

Bryan and the comimttee included the raise in the original budget, but they were advised by Legislature Speaker Martin Jordan to rewroke it, excluding the raise as it might "not pass."

At any rate it appears that several sessions will be needed to finally get the budget wrapped up.

CLASSIFIEDS

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

MEDICAL CURIOSITIES: We have a mess of old leather-bound medical books at low low prices. There's always fresh treasure in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.

DEAD TEXTS BOUGHT—OUR annual clearance sale of dead texts comes at the end of this month. Until then we'll pay a nickel each for any back edition texts you want to unload. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, 205 E. Franklin St. (chg.)

LOOKING FOR PRIVACY FOR next house party — banquet — dance? CALL Day 3681. Night 95294. Large house for party rentals 1 mile from town. (1-9097-1)

FREE HOME DEMONSTRATIONS of Sears Quality Vacuum Cleaners and floor polishers, call 8-0655 in Chapel Hill (staff)

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U. S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

Why have We Sold More Dollar Books This Spring Than Ever Before?

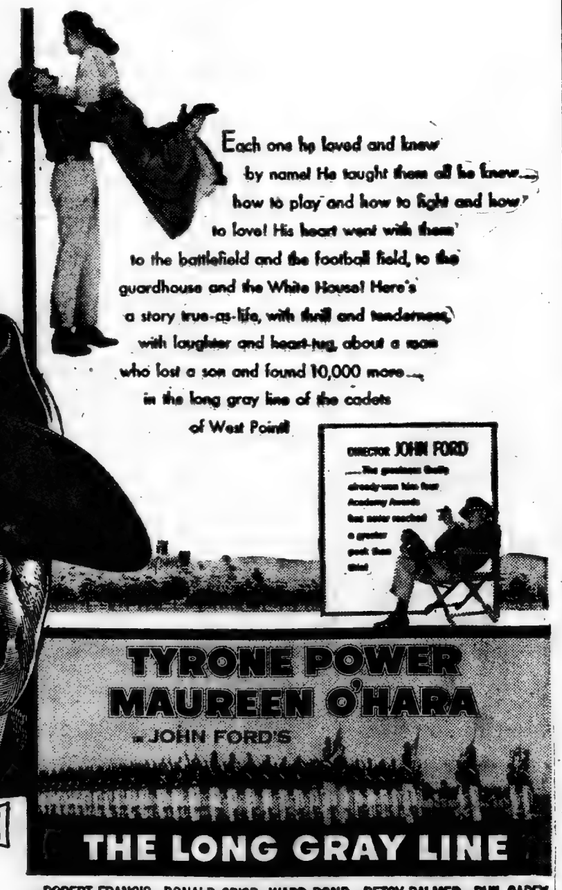
BECAUSE WE HAVE MORE SWELL DOLLAR BOOKS, THAT'S WHY. COME AND SEE!

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

50 million times a day at home, at work or while at play

There's nothing like a Coke



1. SO BRIGHT in its honest, ever-fresh taste.
2. SO BRIGHT in its brisk, frosty sparkle.
3. SO BRIGHT in the bit of quick energy it brings you.

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY

DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

Today Thru Sat. Varsity

The man who had 10,000 sons!

Each one he loved and knew by name! He taught them all he knew... how to play and how to fight and how to love! His heart went with them to the battlefield and the football field, to the guardhouse and the White House! Here's a story true-as-life, with thrill and tenderness, with laughter and heart-tug, about a man who lost a son and found 10,000 more... in the long gray line of the cadets of West Point!

DIRECTOR JOHN FORD ... the greatest Gaelic showdown since him! Academy Awards has never reached a greater peak than this!

TYRONE POWER
MAUREEN O'HARA
in JOHN FORD'S
THE LONG GRAY LINE

CINEMASCOPE
Color by TECHNICOLOR

ROBERT FRANCIS · DONALD CRISP · WARD BOND · BETSY PALMER · PHIL CAREY
Screen Play by EDWARD HOPE · Based upon "Bringing Up the Brass", by Marty Maher and Nardi Reeder Campion
Produced by ROBERT ARTHUR · Directed by JOHN FORD · A COLUMBIA PICTURE

FEATURES AT: 12:30 - 1:51 - 4:12 - 6:33 - 8;54
ADMISSION — ADULTS 65c HIGH SCHOOL 40c CHILDREN 15c

April Is "Go To The Movies" Month

COME EARLY AND BRING A FRIEND WITH YOU

LI'L ABNER By Al Capp

POGO By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

S P 3

WEATHER

Partly cloudy, with expected high of 80.

The Daily Tar Heel

RAISE

The General Assembly and the editors don't agree. See p. 2 for the debate.

VOL. LVII NO. 136 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

BILLIARDS CHAMP PETERSON & STUDENTS
. . . coeds can play, too

—Henley Photo

SAYS EXPERT PETERSON:

Billiards Are For Girls, Too

By KERMIT PHILLIPS

Billards is no longer solely a man's game, according to a man who is known as the "Dean of Collegiate Billards."

More and more women are taking up the game every day, said Charles Peterson, old billiards artist, during his exhibition in the pool room of Graham Memorial yesterday.

"Ten of the 20 billiards tables at Ohio State University were occupied by women players at 9 a.m. in the morning," said Peterson concerning his appearance at that university. He added that many fraternities at northern colleges are having billiard parties with sororities.

There were no women present at his afternoon exhibition at GM yesterday. He urged, however, that those present see that some of the coeds come out to the evening exhibition.

Peterson gave exhibition and instruction last night. He will repeat his hour of exhibition and hour of instruction today at 1 p.m. and again after supper. He is appearing under the auspices of the Association of College Unions.

Peterson said the future of billiards today is the best it has ever been. He mentioned the large number of billiards tables at the various Army camps. He added that Uncle Sam in the last few years has done more to further the game of billiards than anything else.

The 77-year-old artist said colleges today are going in more for the game. He said that is actually very good for the game as it has tended to make it scientific. Peterson explained the angle system saying, "There is not as much chance in the game today as there used to be. There is more science."

After his exhibition of trick shots, Peterson gave free instructions.

Men's Honor Council Tries Twelve Cases

"Thus far for the spring semester, the proceedings of the Men's Honor Council have included a total number of 12 cases, some of which have involved more than one person," said a report issued yesterday by Ogburn Yates, clerk of the Men's Council.

Five students were found guilty and eight were found not guilty in cases involving infractions of the Honor Code, according to the report. Two of the students found guilty were suspended, two were placed on probation and one was given an unofficial reprimand.

The report listed six cases involving violations of the Campus Code. Five students were found guilty in these cases and one not guilty. The sentences rendered in the five cases included one probation and four unofficial reprimands.

"Two of the particularly difficult Honor Code cases concerned plagiarism," said Yates' report. "Because of these two cases, as well as others in the past, it is earnestly hoped by the Men's Honor Council that students will become more aware of this term and its application here at the University.

"Because they are often involved in such cases, freshmen especially are urged to become familiar with the word, to consult their instructors about its use whenever necessary and to read the important section in the English I assignment pamphlet devoted to it," concluded the Council's report.

Scales' Goal Revolution, Testifies Man Who Spied

GREENSBORO, April 14 (AP)—Junius Scales' goal as a Communist was to help the party lead the working class and the "Negro nation" in a violent revolution, a man who spied on him for years testified today.

Ralph Clontz, who became a trusted comrade of the Carolinas Party chairman, told a Federal court jury of his close association with Scales as an FBI undercover agent. He described Scales as a dedicated revolutionary who scoffed at the idea of changing the government except by force and violence. And he said Scales predicted the revolution would come within this generation, with troops from Russia to help if needed.

Scales, 35, sat calmly through the fourth day of his trial as Clontz told of gaining Scales' confidence, all the while reporting to the FBI.

Clontz' testimony was the second step in the government's case against the red-haired bespectacled University of North Carolina graduate. First, the government must prove the party is committed to violent revolution. Then it must show that Scales, an admitted member, knew what the party wanted and worked toward that goal.

Now a lawyer in Charlotte, Clontz said he started his undercover career by telling the Army that he had information about party activity in and around Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina. The FBI told him to go ahead with his plan of infiltration. Clontz said he sent Scales a postal card in September, 1948, expressing an interest in Communism. Soon he was a guest in Scales' Carrboro home. Then he went on to party membership as Scales' protege, he said.

The revolution is inevitable, and a depression will bring it about, Clontz said Scales told him.

He said Scales added that "He could safely say that my daughter, who then was 1, would marry in a Socialist United States of America." Clontz explained that Scales and other Communists used the words socialism and communism interchangeably.

"Force is the only answer" to the problem of revolution, Clontz quoted Scales as saying. "Ideas alone can never accomplish anything. It would be nice if revolutions happened automatically, but he said that unfortunately they didn't."

"Did he say how he was going to bring that force into play?" District Atty. Edwin M. Stanley asked Clontz.

"My recollection," Clontz replied, "is that he simply said there would have to be a militant force, namely the Communist Party, to unite the two classes of people in this country that would be used in the revolution, that is, the Negro nation and the working class or proletariat."

The Communist Party, Clontz continued, is regarded as the natural leader of the unions, which "just see the next hill," while the party has more foresight. He said Communists define the Negroes in the "black belt" as a separate nation and consider them "oppressed by blood-sucking capitalists."

Scales once remarked, "As soon as the capitalists drive us underground, there will be a revolution," Clontz testified. He said Scales also declared that "once the revolution started, if it looked like the police power would be used against the working class, the 'mother country,' (Russia) could not stand by and let that happen but would have to land troops."

Bill Up To Create Three Trustee Sets

RALEIGH, April 14 (AP)—Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt was joined by five other House members today in introducing bills to provide separate boards of trustees for the three units of the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Under the bills the university at Chapel Hill, the Woman's College at Greensboro and North Carolina State College at Raleigh would each have a separate 41-member board. The state superintendent of public instruction would be an ex-officio member. The members of the three boards would be appointed by the General Assembly in joint session. The bill would not become effective until July 1, 1957.

Each of the boards would elect a chairman who would appoint a six-member executive committee. The three executive committees would act jointly on all matters affecting the consolidated university.

Student Legislature Passes Resolution Favoring Referendum On Hike In Student Fees Here

Report On Probe Of DTH Given

After 35 hours spent in investigation activities the student Legislature's committee investigating The Daily Tar Heel presented its report to the Legislature last night.

Following are excerpts from the committee's report.

Concerning circulation, the committee reported it "found that the original complaint that The Daily Tar Heel was not being delivered door to door was valid." The re-

(See REPORT, page 4,)

Brumfield Addresses IDC Meet

"I'm not here to win any popularity contests; I'm here to work for the IDC," said the newly installed Interdormitory Council president Wednesday night.

Lewis Brumfield, former president of Cobb Dormitory, outlined to members of the council in his inaugural address a preview of his proposed program, stressing two main objectives.

The two high spots of Brumfield's program were:

1) An improved, yet "unfearing" relationship with the administration, and

2) Increased monetary support to dormitory social programs.

"I plan to cooperate with the administration, but I will fight for the rights of the IDC," Brumfield said.

'TAKE ME AS I AM'

Hitting at a possible undercurrent of opinion among the council members that his reputation for outspokeness might not be good for the council, Brumfield said, "There are people here who think my personality might reflect on the IDC . . . But if I tried to change, it would be false . . . You'll just have to take me as I am."

One of the prime objectives Brumfield brought out in his proposed program for 1955-56 concerned the appropriation of the entire $4,000 the council gets from dormitory room rents to individual dormitory social funds. Last year $2,000 went to the individual dormitories and $2,000 went to the IDC for discretionary distribution.

"We cut the trees and grubbed the stumps last year . . . now I feel its our responsibility to plow the ground and sow the seeds . . . and lets hope for a bumper crop," Brumfield said.

MUNTZING GIVES FAREWELL TALK

"One thing can be said for the IDC this year, and that is that we have changed," said Manning Muntzing, retiring president. Muntzing, was given a standing ovation by the council members when he concluded his talk.

"We have laid the groundwork for the future," Muntzing stressed. Wrapping up his final talk, this year's SP candidate for president of the student body outlined the following three point program of suggestions to the council:

1) The solving of the "perennial problems of poor dorm attendance and noise in the dormitories,"

2) The "taking back of the IDC to the dorm . . . including personal talks with the dorm man, and

3) The assertion of the IDC's "rights" by quelching any fears about "bucking anyone or any group" to get what the dorm man should rightfully have.

SINGS HERE TONIGHT:

Peerce Is For Versatility

Editor's note: The writer of the following story is famed Metropolitan Opera Tenor Jan Peerce, who will sing here tonight. Peerce's performance will be sponsored by the Chapel Hill Concert Series in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m. The singer's son, Larry, was a student at the University and played the piano in "Pappa" Danziger's restaurant. Concert Series spokesmen said yesterday "quite a few" student tickets, at $1.50, are available.

By JAN PEERCE

Let a Metropolitan Opera singer appear in a Broadway musical, make a movie or release a best-selling recording of a hit tune and immediately there are expressions of astonishment fit to greet the performance of a dancing armadillo or a talking penguin.

I have never been able to understand the reasons for all this fuss. Versatility has always been one of the standards by which we judge an artist. Unless he is unable to render a popular ballad, there is no reason why an opera or concert singer should ignore a good song just because its birthplace is Tin Pan Alley and not Vienna. Benny Goodman, I think, put it very well recently when he expressed disinterest for "longhair music vs. pops." "There are only two kinds of music," he said, "good and bad."

The conception of the musician as a specialist is a very recent one. The fabled singers of the last century — Jenny Lind, Nellie Melba and Adelina Patti, for example — were famous alike for their singing of the ballads of the day and the works of the great masters. Nearer our own time, Crauso, Chalipin, John McCormick, to name a few, never hesitated to perform music of all degrees of serious intent and to each they brought the same qualities of vocal, musical and artistic excellence which the public associated with their names and had a right to expect from them.

There is no doubt that there are today, as there always have been, those who take the easy way and resort to cheap tricks and spectacular effects to achieve a quick popular success. But most of these musicians bring the same approach to their performances of Mozart and Beethoven as to the lighter forms of music.

Before I joined the Metropolitan Opera, I had the opportunity to sing many different songs. All types of music came along in my work — operatic arias, songs of faith and, often, the latest popular ballads. I learned that I had to give my best to each piece. I couldn't look down my nose at anything I sang and really do a good job, because it was impossible to communicate any real feeling to an audience unless one believed in what one was doing. Sincerity is a virtue almost impossible to counterfeit.

It doesn't matter what one sings — Mozart, Italian opera, German lieder. French art songs, religious music, operetta or ballads. The important thing is, while adhering to the stylistic requirements of the music, never to lower one's artistic standards. Perhaps audiences, too, will appreciate only good music and overcome the fear of "longhair." There's really a lot of pleasure in Mozart as well as Irving Berlin.

MET TENOR JAN PEERCE
opera singers can sing blues, too

LEGISLATURE ELECTS:

At Least 11 UNC Trustees Fail To Win Their Seats

RALEIGH, April 14 (AP) — At least 11 trustees of the Consolidater University lost their seats as a joint legislative committee Wednesday elected 30 members of the board.

The casualties included such trustees as L. P. McLendon of Greensboro and Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh. Others who were not reelected were Wilbure H. Currie of Moore, J. F. Millikin of Union, Vernon G. James of Elizabeth City, W. D. Merritt of Person, J. H. Clark of Bladen, P. B. Ferrebee of Cherokee, George M. Stephens of Buncombe, John C. Kesler of Rowan and Iva T. Johnson of Ashe.

Rep. Ashley M. Murphy of Pender led the ticket among the 30 trustees who were elected. He received 56 votes. He will be a new member of the board.

Action of the joint committee is subject to confirmation by the House and Senate at a joint session, but traditionally the General Assembly upholds its trustees' committees.

McLendon and Dr. Poe are longtime trustees who for years have played leading roles in the work of the University. Some committee members expressed the belief that McLendon's failure to achieve reelection was caused by a bloc which worked against him because in a recent trustees' meeting he spoke out in support of action taken by the executive committee to allow Negro farm and home agents to participate in a workshop at State College.

At least 11 of 25 trustees whose terms expire this year failed of reelection and four others were not on the ballot.

Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange, a veteran trustee, and Thomas O. Moore of Forsyth, a newcomer, tied for second place with 54 votes each. Sen. John H. Kerr Jr., another veteran on the board, received 53 votes.

Besides Umstead and Kerr, Trustees who were reelected were John G. H. Gitner of Catawba, Mrs. B. C. Parker of Stanly, J. Spencer Love of Guilford, Ben E. Fountain of Edgecombe, Mark C. Lassiter of Greene, H. D. Bateman of Wilson, Rudolph I. Mintz of New Hanover, O. Max Gardner Jr., of Cleveland.

New members elected to the board, other than Murphy and Moore, were Macon M. Williams of Caldwell, D. L. McMichael of Rockingham, Rep. Sam L. Whitehurst of Craven, Sen. Mitchell Britt of Duplin, Mrs. P. P. McCain of Robeson, Mrs. Oscar Barker of Durham, Irwin Belk of Meckleburg, Mrs. Mebane H. Burgwyn of Northhampton, A. Roy Cox of Randolph, Eugene Cross of McDowell, Rep. T. J. Collier of Pamlico, S. N. Clark of Edgecombe, Rep. Thomas Turner of Guilford, George Watts Hill of Durham, Oscar Vatz of Cumberland, Rep. Edwin S. Pou of Wake, L. H. Swindell of Beaufort and W. C. Harris Jr., of Raleigh.

All the trustees were elected for eight-year terms withe the exception of Swindell and Pou, who received six-year terms, and Mrs. McCain, Harris and Vatz, whose terms are for four years each.

Eight members of the General Assembly were among the 30 elected. Mrs. Barker is the wife of Rep. Oscar Barker of Durham. Fountain was a member of the assembly until his resignation from the House several weeks ago.

Budget Yet To Be Approved

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature in an extended session last night voted to put a resolution before the student body in a referendum that will open the student Constitution so that student fees may be raised $5.

The student Constitution now stipulates that student government fees can not be in excess of $18. The Budget Committee has figured a tentative budget with the $5 raise per student per semester included. Now a constitutional amendment must be passed if the student fees are hiked.

If the student body passes the fee hike, $3 of the raise will go to Graham Memorial, and $2 to student government.

The resolution evoked heated argument both pro and con. The affirmative legislators asserted that student government and the student union could not continue to operate at the present level unless further funds are allocated.

Legislators opposing the referendum that will determine if the student body wants more student government and student union facilities asserted that serious "repercussions" might come from "Raleigh" if the raise is approved.

The group of negative voters on the issue were referring to the state Legislature which is presently deciding if University dormitory rents and out of state student tuitions will be raised.

Charles Hyatt, (SP) the principal argurer against the referendum, claimed that, "If we raise our own fees, certainly the state Legislature will see fit to add in their proposed hikes also." This seemed to be the chief sentiment of all dissenting voters.

One legislator, Manning Muntzing (SP), said that he favored the raise, but he didn't think this "the time to refer it to the student body; as it might fail now."

The item that took up most of the legislative docket debating time, the 1955-56 student government budget, became so bogged down in controversy and haggling that another session had to be called to wrap up and approve it.

All of the items which came up for discussion (the group went over each budget item seperately) were passed without change except two.

Of the two, an appropriation to the Debate Council was increased by $300, and an appropriation to the newly created office of student government excutive secretary was decreased.

GM Schedules Informal Dance Saturday Night

An informal dance which will feature Frank Wright and his six-man combo from Durham will be given by Graham Memorial tomorrow night in Lenoir Hall.

WRIGHT

The dance will be held from 9 p.m. until midnight, and refreshments will be served at 10.

All students are invited to attend the dance, said a spokesman for Graham Memorial.

Wright and his combo have played before in Chapel Hill for various functions.

The Tuition Raises: With Sectionalism?

The Daily Tar Heel opposes any discriminatory tuition raise and thus opposes the bill before the state legislature to raise tuition for out-of-state students.

We recognize the factors prompting the legislature to look for new revenue—and to look for it toward the 4000-odd out-of-state students enrolled in state universities and colleges. The legislature's duty compels it to provide first of all for the education of North Carolinians, and only secondly for instruction of those who come from outside state borders. The Constitution makes provisions on the point, express provisions which are only equitable. In opposing the fee raise, we do not question those provisions. We do question whether a discriminatory tuition raise would over the long haul be beneficial to our state system of higher education.

The Joint Appropriations Subcommittee, according to its report, expects to garner $1,359,570 in tuition money by the move. That may be—for next year or the year after. But we foresee a point of diminishing returns at which the tuition hikes may become so prohibitive as to keep good students away for economic reasons. The need for an equitable number of out-of-state students should be clear to all; and if that number gives promise of diminishing because of a tuition raise, the Legislature would be wise to seek another exit from the problem.

A letter written by Fred Springer-Miller, a Vermont native who graduated here, got wide play in the state papers a few weeks ago. Mr. Springer-Miller believes he may have fleeced the state of North Carolina by coming here to get a top-grade education at low cost, then going elsewhere to live. Perhaps. But our guess is that many have come, been seduced by the North Carolina virtues, and have taken a helpful place in the state's citizenry. For every Springer-Miller we surely must have had a complete convert; and North Carolina has at least held its own in the tussle.

Vice President Carmichael did well earlier when he reminded legislators of the State College graduate students—many of them out-of-staters—who devised a cure for Black Shank and saved the state an untold amount of tobacco income.

Overshadowing the whole question is the imminent threat of sectionalism: That North Carolina's three great public schools will draw themselves away and turn their backs on broader responsibilities. A great University must have scale: It must not draw unfair line as state or national boundaries; it must draw into interaction the attitudes, temperament, ideas, and backgrounds of all states and all sections. Both Senator Humphrey and Justice Douglas, in recent speeches, commended the University for a contribution that reaches above and beyond its benefit to North Carolina. Would a tuition raise for one segment of the student population choke that contribution?

Under the present dispensation the out-of-state student pays considerably more than the North Carolinian for an education here. Let that continue, we say, in all fairness to the tax-payers who enable the University's existence. But if new revenue is needed—and it is—we do not believe the students or the people of the state want it to be discriminatory. They too, we think, would be willing—given all aspects of the question—to share a proportional increase for all.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor FRED POWLEDGE

Business Manager TOM SHORES

Sports Editor BERNIE WEISS

News Editor Jackie Goodman

Advertising Manager Dick Sirkin
Circulation Manager Jim Kiley
Subscription Manager Jack Godley
Assistant Business Manager Bill Bob Peel
Assistant Sports Editor Ray Linker
Photographer Boyden Henley
Society Editor Susan Andes

NEWS STAFF Neil Bass, Ed Myers, Lois Owen, Ebba Freund, Joe Terrell

SPORTS STAFF Marshall Waldman, Al Korschun, Dave Lieberman, Bob Colbert

BUSINESS STAFF Joan Metz, Carolyn Nelson, Jack Weisel, Bill Thompson

Night editor for this issue Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

From Coast To Coast: Cows, Cars, Coraddi

J. A. C. Dunn

IN THE COURSE of working way through a mountainous pile of accumulated exchange newspapers, we find that just about all colleges all over the country are having their troubles, discovering wrinkles in their daily life, or being met with bullets that must be bitten.

It is interesting to look at the country as a whole through these exchanges and observe that while there seem to be many people in North Carolina, and in Chapel Hill particularly, who think that beyond the state borders there is nothing but trackless waste and Darkest South Carolina, most American Universities are surprisingingly similar.

★

FOR EXAMPLE, THE University of Louisville in Kentucky is, like UNC, having parking problems. We noted that a gentle named (slowly now) Krzyzaniak, a chemistry instructor at South Dakota State, suggested in a letter to the Cardinal, Louisville U's weekly newspaper, that the parking problem be solved by one of four methods:

(1) tires the same color as the policeman's chalk.

(2) Coat tires freely with HCl, which will react with chalk, producing carbon dioxide and water.

(3) Purchase tireless cars.

(4) Obey current parking regulations until someone comes up with a new mode of transportation.

The first three solutions have possible merit, though we don't quite understand no. 2, not being of a scientific bent; but no. 4 is simply Victorian. Wo ever heard of actually parking no more than ten minutes and for business only at that?

★

THE UNIVERSITY OF Auburn is straying away from the beaten path somewhat. They complain of a white cow who peered beignly out of the chapel belfry one morning and bellowed, thereby waking several students. No one seems to know anything about the cow, but suspicion has come to rest on, of all people, two young professors.

★

THE DAILY TEXAN, a newspaper put out by one of those countless Universities of Texas, is evidently having black days. On page six of their March 30 issue, there is a five and a half by six inch space with a caption underneath saying: "PUTTING THEORIES into practice are a group of architecture students in front of the Biological Greenhouse. They are making line dimensions to allow for better proportions. The class is Architecture 217I, a two-hour lab in freehand drawing." This is very odd, because the space above is blank, staring white. Those Texans certainly do draw a mean freehand line dimension.

★

AT THE UNIVERSITY of Chicago a student explained, when arrested by the FBI for draft dodging, that his "philosophical, psychological, sociological, intellectual and spiritual reasoning" prevented him from complying with an induction order. Now there's education for you. We wonder just what the man's various systems of reasoning are. Perhaps they would work for us.

★

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN has divided coeds into 10 types (and illustrated too): The woman's woman, the female bookworm, the girl athlete, the female weekender, the nurse, the BWOC, the follower, the "arty" or Bohemian type (with a patch over her eye), the music major, and the snotty little undernourished Main Line deb. And a grisly collection they are too. Thank God nobody goes to school here except boys and ghouls.

★

LAST BUT NOT least is Dear Old WC. Over in Greensboro Coraddi has gone back into business with a brand new staff. We look forward to their next issue. Maybe the fig leaves will fly again.

'I'll Just Leave It Here If You Want To Use It'

READER'S RETORT:

Library Noisy In Hawaii, Too, Reports UNC Professor Brooks

Editors:

Written from Honolulu, Hawaii, using home university letterhead as identification, though I'm here as a visiting professor of sociology, spring semester and summer session.

Seeming to remember that our own UNC library is not always a haven of peace and quiet, I thought you would be interested in the marked piece of the enclosed.

Further identification, since UNC has become so big one frequently hears the remark: "Never heard of him!" even when the "him" had been on the faculty for decades—see catalog or ask Jimmy Wallace.

Leon M. Brooks

(Dr. Brooks, according to our catalog, is a research professor in the Institute for Research Social Science as well as being a professor of sociology. His clipping, from the "La Leo O Hawaii," follows.—Editors.)

The President of the Society for the Preservation of Silence in the Library, in his letter to Ka Leo, has hit the library in a vulnerable spot. His charge that the library "is the noisiest place on the campus" is in the main true, if we except the ping-pong room of Hemenway Hall and the new library building on the days the jamchammers are working. In fact, our library probably has the distinction of being the noisiest university library in the United States.

Now what to do about it?

The President of the S.P.S.L. suggests forcible ejection of the offenders as a good way of maintaining quietness in the Library. But this would require the librarians to serve as police force—an expedient we want to avoid if possible. The librarians went to college for five years to learn how to help people find and use the complex and marvelous resources of libraries. If they spent their time hushing students, their professional competence would be wasted; and many students would soon begin to regard them as dragons and cease to go to them for help and education.

The best possible cure for noise in the library is not an admonishing librarian but the desire of the students themselves, out of consideration for each other, that the library become a place for study rather than conversation. For the most part, our students are naturally considerate of others. And perhaps all they need is a placard in the reading rooms, saying simply Quiet Please, to remind them that they are in a library and that other people may want to study. We will try that.

Carl Stoven
Librarian

Fowler Says If Listening Is A Stink, He'll Stink

Editors:

I am writing you in reference to your editorial intitled "The New Stink, Brogan Number 13."

Unlike you, Mr. Editors, I intend to be a representative of all the students and not just myself. If it is a "stink" to listen to the student body who elected me and whom I represent, then I guess I'll be a "stink."

Anytime anyone would like to chat with me though he wear brogans or cordovan wingtips, I'll be glad to listen to what he has to say. I shall try to be a representative of all the students.

Don Fowler

A Tribute To Bob Madry

Robert Madry was mayor of Chapel Hill during those years, 1942 to 1949, when it was realized that this could no longer be called a village but a burgeoning town about to become the center of a spreading communing with many interests. He did his part in helping to guide this growth.

As head of the University News Bureau he would have no truck with an suppression or withholding of legitimate news, but gave out the facts whether they were favorable or unfavorable to the institution. This policy earned him the confidence of editors and reporters, so that when communications bearing the Madry stamp were received, they were published without question.

One consequence was a growing interest in Chapel Hill and a livelier appreciation of what the University is contributing to the life of the State. In fact, it can be said that the esteem in which this University community is held throughout the nation is in large part due to the work of Bob Madry as publicist and representative citizen.

And finally, Bob was a contributor to that unique substance which has made the community what it is. We who survive him owe it to him to preserve it.—Chapel Hill News Leader.

The Lines Of Other Pages

The Thinking Reed

"Man is a reed," said Pascal, "but he is a thinking reed."

That, however, was in the good old days. We are too smart to think now. Our labor-saving devices leave us no time for it anyway.

Instead of reading the great books we take a ride, go to a club meeting, or bask in the backwash of a soap opera.

Does this satisfy us? Ask the psychiatrists. Or ask Douglas Bush, Harvard professor of English. He gives his answer in the Key Reporter magazine; the more intelligent and sensitive young people seek something better:

"They not only live in our unlovely world, they have no personal experience of any other. They are aware of hollowness and confusion all around them, and, what is still more real, of hollowness and confusion in themselves. They feel adrift in a cockboat in an uncharted sea, and they want a sense of direction, of order and integration. And in literature they find, as countless people have found before them, that their problems are not new, that earlier generations have been lost also. Most of the young people I see find in literature, literature of the remote past as well as of the present, what they cannot find in textbooks of psychology and sociology, the vision of human experience achieved by a great spirit and bodied forth by a great artist."

And so, imperiled and unsatisfied, we turn to man's ancient source of wisdom and strength, the great books, the humanities. What are they and what are they good for? Let Neal W. Klausner, professor of philosophy at Grinnell College, answer:

"The humanities are not medicine for a sick race, nor amusement for a bored people, no vehicles to prestige for the intellectually ambitious, not exercises designed to mold a character out of the morally shapeless. The humanities are the mirrors of genius in which we may see ourselves."

The growing popularity of the "great issues" courses in college and the great books courses over the country is evidence that we will not be satisfied with being reed shaken in the wind.

—Greensboro Daily News.

Proving Anything

The office visitor was amazed.

"How could you publish that article defending intellectuals?" he asked. "Don't you know intellectuals are dangerous?"

"Dangerous?" we murmured.

"Dangerous," he insisted. "Was n't Alger Hiss an intellectual?"

This is the sort of monstrous logic that never ceases to startle us a little when it is applied. It can usually be reduced to simple but fallacious syllogisms like this:

1—Intellectuals are in favor of free public schools.

2—The Communist Manifesto demands free public schools.

3—Therefore, intellectuals are Communists.

Stuart Chase describes this verbal trickery ever so neatly in Power of Words. Every person, he pointed out, has almost unlimited characteristics. He may be white or Negro, tall, short, Catholic, Baptist, Buddhist, banker, butcher, Socialist, individualist and so on. Every organization may also possess a large number of characteristics. The trick is to locate one characteristic which both parties share and then leap to the conclusion that other characteristics, perhaps all, are interchangeable.

With this system working on all cylinders, you come up with all sorts of interesting conclusions—all as phony as a $3 bill.

For instance:

1—The Pope favors child labor laws.

2—The Politburo favors child labor laws.

3—Therefore, the Pope is a Communist or, therefore, Stalin was a Catholic.

Mr. Chase also suggests this one:

1—My Grocer has cheated me.

2—My grocer is a Yankee.

3—Therefore, all Yankees are cheats.

Thus, with this technique, you can "prove" practically anything.

It is, of course, the old game of guilt by association—physical and verbal.

We keep remembering that old quote attributed to the late Judge Woosley:

"Before judging a man by his associates, remember that Judas Iscariot traveled in the best of company."—Charlotte News.

Is General Education Curbed Outside BA?

Editors:

Words have been tossed back and forth and several sides of the question have been given on the merits of the BA School but there is one aspect of the problems of the student of this University with regard to the BA School which has not been brought to light.

There are those of us that have found that some of the other parts of the University do not seem to feel it advisable to allow the students of their respective schools take more than one or two of the most elementary courses in the BA School for credit as electives.

Is our world becoming so specialized that only the accountant or the industrial relations director or other Business Administration specialists will need any knowledge of what the whys and wherefores of how our business world is being run? Isn't it advisable for a school teacher, or a scientist, or a historian or anyone else who doesn't happen to specialize in business to know how "big buiness" is run or want all the fine print on the instructions for filing income tax is all about?

It seems that general education is being curbed for those outside the BA School also when we aren't allowed to step over the boundaries of one school wifhin this University into another school in order to broaden our knowledge.

Peggy Ward

Senator George's Political Story

Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON — The most fascinating political story in Washington is the enticement of Senator Walter F. George of Georgia by the Eisenhower Administration. It even has a woman's angle and it includes a local struggle of great import for the future.

Senator George is the patriarchal conservative who last January, when his party regained control of Congress, elected to switch from chairman of the Finance Committee to chairman of Foreign Relations. Both committees are powerful. But from a practical point of view, Finance, which deals with taxes, will bring to a Senator a sure support and campaign contributions which no amount of statesmanship can attract.

Two things were noted at the time. One was that Senator George was enabled to turn over the Finance chairmanship to a true-blue conservative, Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, who was next in line. But had Senator George yielded his seniority on Foreign Relations, the chairman now would be a New Dealer, Senator Theodore F. Green of Rhode Island.

'MISS LUCY'

The other aspect then suggested to observers dealt with Mrs. George—the "Miss Lucy" whose Southern charm and nimble wit have long enchanted the capital. It was believed that Miss Lucy felt the Georges were entitled, as Southerners say, to eat their white bread now in the form of an easier and more social life.

Senator George who had long served on Foreign Relations smoothly assumed its direction and within weeks became a pillar of strength to the President in that field. It should be said at once that this involved no change of principle on his part, since basically the Eisenhower foreign policy rests on the premises of the past 20 Democratic years.

But while disputes over Europe are few, it has become clear already that neither party, least of all the President's, is ready to start completely afresh in Asia. The Democratic liberals believe and are saying that the President is being forced by the Republican right into an ever-closer embrace of Chiang Kai-shek which is dangerous to world peace. The Republican right thinks and says he ought to do more for Chiang and the Chinese Nationalists.

Their argument pivots now on whether or not Quemoy and Matsu, islands close to the Red China mainland, ought to be defended with U. S. help.

PRESTIGE

Senator George put his great prestige into the fight to give the President the right to decide this question, and he prevailed. He is still insisting that the President should decide and can be trusted to do so correctly.

To this extent, the Senator has usurped the leadership powers both of Democrat Lyndon Johnson and Republican William Knowland. Neither are happy about it, but the White House thinks it is splendid. The President has gone out of his way to praise Senator George.

From former State Department officials came reminders that the Republican author of bipartisanship, the late Senator Vandenberg, always protected his party's flanks at all times. The Senator invariably called for "total debate" and never gave a Democratic White House carte blanche at any time, it was said. Nor, it was further deposed, did he advertise his social connections with the Democrats Presidents and Democrats.

EDITORS

At this point, Georgia editors began to ask questions of their Senator. They were told the Georges thought that in view of the Senator's new position, they ought to do some entertaining.

Senator George made headlines and got the President's thanks when he helped defeat the proposal for a $20 income-tax cut. That does not help him with the up-the-creek vote at home.

It was noted by Georgians that among the ladies who came here as Miss Lucy's guests to shake Mrs. Eisenhower's hand at the famous tea party last week were wives of several of the state's influential figures, chiefly Eisenhower Democrats. For example, one such guest was Mrs. Robert Woodruff, wife of the president of Coca Cola.

STRUGGLE

In a struggle for conservative support Eisenhower can help Senator George through his friendship with Woodruff and others with whom he golfed at Augusta. Meanwhile, another Georgia politician who used to do pretty well, too, is sitting on the sidelines and saying nothing. He is former Governor Ellis Arnall, a liberal.

Arnall's friends believe that if Senator George and former Governor Herman Talmadge get into a real hassle over the Senatorial nomination next year, Arnall can enter the primary as third man and with solid progressive support capture the prize.

Quote, Unquote

Poets On Rainy Days

Oft a little morning rain
Foretells a pleasant day.

—Charlotte Bronte, Life, Stanza 1

★ ★ ★

O Lord, grant that in some way it may rain every day, say from about midnight until three o'clock in the morning . . . gentle and warm so that it can soak in . . . that there may be plenty of dew and little wind, enough worms, no plant-lice and snails, no mildew, and that once a week thin liquid manure and guano may fall from Heaven.—The Gardener's Year: The Gardener's Prayer.

★ ★ ★

Lord, this is an huge rayn!
This were a weder for to slepen inne!—Geoffrey Chaucer, Criseyde, Book III, Line 656.

★ ★ ★

When that Aprille with his shoures sote
The droghte of March hath perced to the rote.
—Chaucer, The Canterbury Tales, Prologue, Line 1.

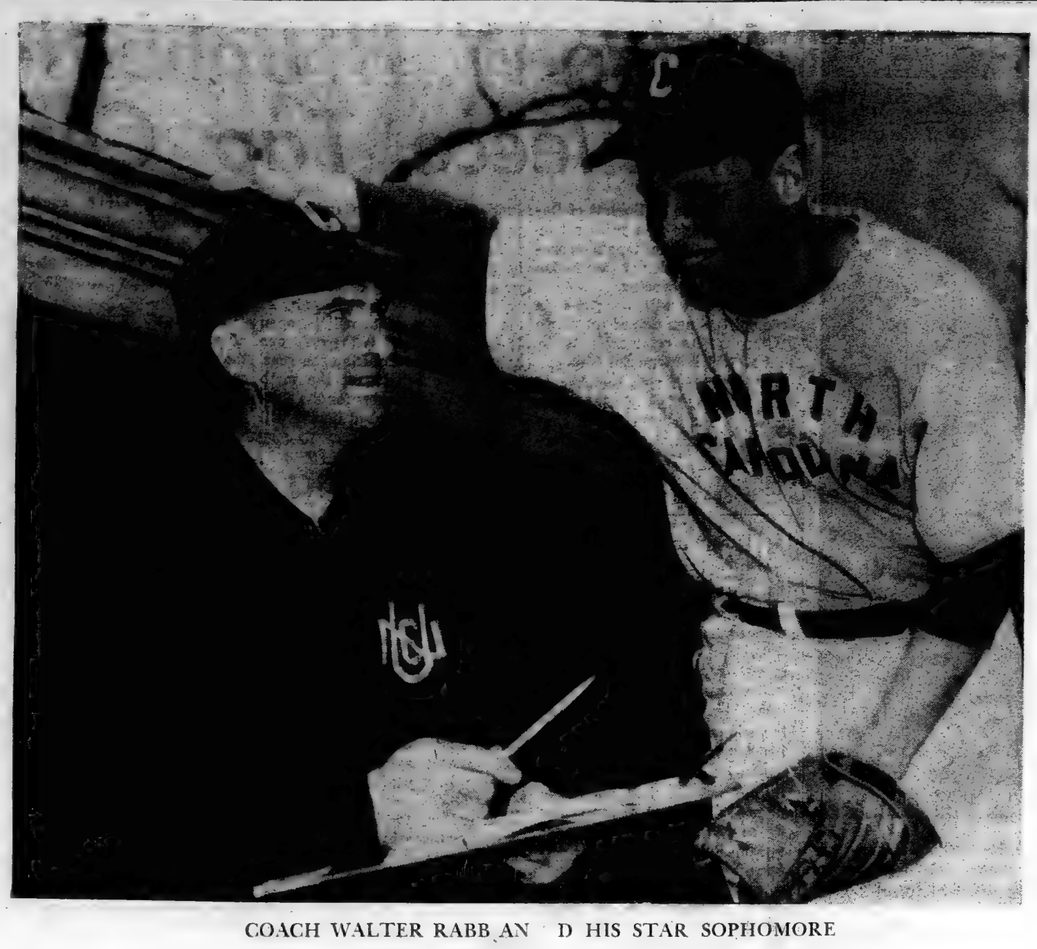
Rain Wrecks Diamond Slates Of Local Nines

State Squad Unable To Play At Home Yet

DURHAM, N. C., April 15 (AP)—Rain prevented Duke and North Carolina from staging their first baseball meeting of the 1955 season here today but they will try to get it in here this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The freshman game between the two institutions at Chapel Hill was also postponed until today.

Other schedule changes made necessary due to rain were announced by the Big Four Statistical Bureau today.



The Duke-State varsity game, rained out at Raleigh on Wednesday will be played there on Thursday, April 21 and the frosh encounter which was rained out on the same day at Duke will also be played on April 21.

RALEIGH, April 15 (AP)—The North Carolina State College baseball squad can't beat the weather to get the season opened on their home field here.

The N. C. State squad has a game on tap today with South Carolina. If the weather clears, the team will finally get the home season started.

AIR CONDITIONED
VIKING looks cooler—
is cooler!
Light but sturdy, cooler and drier, sweet and satisfying
"AJUSTOMATIC" (patented screw bit) $2.95
DE LUXE (push bit) $1.95
INTERCHANGEABLE BOWLS 95¢ each
IMPORTED BRIAR
POLISHED ALUMINUM
R. S. HERBERT CO., Inc.

WE ARE THE Exclusive Carriers
of the Viking Pipes
IN CHAPEL HILL
SUTTON'S DRUG STORE
Telephone 5531

COACH WALTER RABB AN D HIS STAR SOPHOMORE

. . . Jim Raugh picks up th e tips of victory from the Boss.

Raugh Star Of UNC Hurlers, Gets Toughest Assignments

By MARSHALL WALDMAN

About a month and a half ago, Coach Walter Rabb and Bunn Hearn were looking over their crop of sophmore hurlers to try and pick a couple that they could count on to bolster the thin Tar Heel pitching staff. Rabb pointed out toward the mound where Jim Raugh was tossing batting practice, and said, "There's the boy who I think is going to help us quite a bit. He's got a real good fast ball and a sharp curve."

Since that day during spring training when Raugh was throwing darts at the Tar Heel batters, Jimmy has started just about all of the important games for the Tar Heels. Rabb said that all he needed was a little competition and so far, Raugh has started against Rollins, Ohio State, Michigan State, Wake Forest and N. C. State. Pitching against teams of this calibre should give Raugh the experience he needs and his physical as well as natural ability should make him a future Carolina star on the diamond.

RAUGH WAS born back in 1935 in Rosemont, Pa. which makes him only nineteen years old. For a teen ager, he already has a world of baseball knowledge behind him. When Jim was seven years old, he came to Chapel Hill where his father was holding down the post of Commander of the Pre-Flight Training School. Raugh became the mascot of the baseball team that sported such names as Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky, Johnny Sain, Joe Coleman and many more that have worn major league uniforms.

Jimmy's pre-college days were spent at Haverford Prep in Pennsylvania. During a three-year span at Haverford, Raugh won 27 games and lost only five. He was one of Haverford's few three-letter winners as he also captained the basketball team and was an All-League football selection.

DURING HIS spare time, Raugh pitched for the Dartmouth Arrows, a semi-professional club. On the same team were Johnny Yvars, the former State All-American, and Lynwood Holt, who currently plays for Wake Forest and was an All-Conference choice last year.

Last season, Raugh was the top hurler for the freshman aggregation as he led his team to the Freshman Big Four Championship. During the season he beat Wake Forest twice, 3-0 and 2-1. He also notched victories over Duke and State.

LAST SUMMER, Raugh decided to try the Nova Scotia Circuit and notched nine wins against five losses. His biggest win came in a 17-inning thriller when he went all the way, yielded five hits and won 2-1.

In addition to his activity on the baseball diamond, Raugh also did well for himself on the gridiron. He played freshman football at Carolina and wound up the season as the high scoring end. Jimmy then had to make a decision to play baseball or football and he chose to continue with the baseball team where he thought he had more ability.

So far this season, Raugh has started five games and has three complete jobs to his credit. Statistics compiled, not including the Wake Forest game Tuesday show that Jim has pitched 34 innings and allowed 13 runs for a 2.34 earned run average. He has yielded 25 hits, walked 11 and struck out 23.

JIMMY IS only a sophomore and during the rest of the current campaign, and the two college seasons to come, the Tar Heel coaches will be looking for the Rosemont righthander to be the stalwart of their mound crops.

Although Raugh has already been approached with Major League offers, he has decided to first complete his education here at Carolina, playing baseball at the same time. A major league uniform is a dream to most college ball players, but when you take a good look at Jimmy Raugh, you can't help but feel that he's got what it takes to make the grade.

Varsity
TODAY & SATURDAY
"I am glad my book has contributed, among all the other contributions, to what is probably the best motion picture I have ever seen!"
—JOHN STEINBECK
ELIA KAZAN'S EXPLOSIVE PRODUCTION OF JOHN STEINBECK'S EAST OF EDEN PRESENTED BY WARNER BROS.
CINEMASCOPE
WARNERCOLOR-TECHNICOLOR

Harriers Face Defending ACC Champions

By RAY LINKER

Thirty-two Carolina trackmen embark shortly after noon today for College Park, Md., where they will tangle with the Maryland Terps in a dual meet tomorrow.

The Terps, defending conference champs, will be out to avenge a 36-35½ setback handed them by the Tar Heels in the indoor conference run.

Both teams have two dual meet victories to their credit as against no losses. Carolina handily defeated N. C. State and Princeton while Maryland has turned back Virginia and the Quantico Marines.

Against the Tar Heels, the Terps will be especially strong in the 440-yard dash, the mile relay, the pole vault and the high jump. Carolina will have a decided edge in both hurdles, the javelin and broad jump. The other events should prove to be quite interesting contests.

Burke Wilson, indoor 440 champ who won the 440 in the Quantico meet in 49 seconds, will pace the Marylanders in this event, with able assistance from Joe Hemler, who was second in both the indoor and outdoor conference meets, and David Leas and Bob Messersmith. The same quartet will comprise the mile relay team, an event they won indoors in 3:32.3.

MARYLAND'S MEL Schwarz copped the indoor pole vault with a jump of 13', ahead of Tar Hells Richard Waters and Charlie Yarborough and Terp Jack Duval, who all tied for second place at 12'6". Yarborough jumped 13' against State on April 2, while Waters has been hampered since before the indoor meet with a leg injury. (Waters cleared 13' on two occasions while performing for the frosh last year.)

Sophomore George Hogan and junior Bob Peetzman will lead the Terps in the high jump. Hogan cleared 6' indoors to take third in the conference behind UNC soph Ken Bryant, who jumped 6' 1" for second.

Terrapins Ron Stubin and Dave Fellows are not expected to give Tar Heels Claude Rhule and Charlie Scott much of run in the two hurdle events. The homestanding Terps will also be weak in the javelin, as Jay Ricks will have to make an all out effort if he is to finish ahead of UNC's three aces — Steve Marcinko, Bob Wilson, and Bob Bryan.

YARBOROUGH SHOULD have little trouble with Ed Lloyd and Messersmith in the broad jump. Wilson will give the Tar Heels strength behind Yarborough in this event.

Both teams have a host of distance runners who have won many honors. In 1954, Terp Ben Good was both the indoor two-mile champion and the outdoor mile winner. He missed this term's indoor season because of a virus infection, but will be ready to go at full steam when meet time comes tomorrow. Senior Larry Faass has long been a mainstay in the Terp distnace picture. He was indoor conference mile champion and finished third in the conference outdoor mile in 1954. In the recent indoor meet, Faass took thirds in both the 880 and the mile. Burr Grim, a Maryland sophomore who beat UNC's Jim Beatty in the freshman indoor three-fourths mile in 1954, will probably lead the Terp cause in the mile run tomorrow. The UNC ace has beaten the Maryland runner in every race since then, including two cross country runs and the ACC indoor mile here recently. Carl Party is another strong Maryland runner in the twomile.

BEATTY, WINNER of the two-mile as well as the mile on the indoor oval, may run both events tomorrow, along with Bob Barden and Glenn Nanney in the two. Boyd Newnam may be used in the mile by the Tar Heels, but Newnam is expected to perform best in the 880 against Terps Paul Hower and Ray Horsley.

It is not known exactly what events each distance runner from the two schools will run tomorrow, but each may be put to good use in more than one race.

IN THE OTHER events, Roger Morris of Carolina, defending conference discus thrower and runner-up in the shot, should have little trouble taking two first places over mediocre Marylander Gene Dyson, while the UNC dash men may have their hands full with Dennis Abdalla and soph Wes Baynes. However, UNC's Don Mitchell edged Abdalla for second place in the 60-yard dash in the Indoor Games.

Jim Bynum, Larry McMullen, Ed Sutton, and Jay Zimmerman will give the Tar Heels strength in the dashes behind Mitchell.

CLASSIFIEDS

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

DEAD TEXTS BOUGHT—OUR annual clearance sale of dead texts comes at the end of this month. Until then we'll pay a nickel each for any back edition texts you want to unload. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, 205 E. Franklin St. (chg.)

MEDICAL CURIOSITIES: We have a mess of old leather-bound medical books at low low prices. There's always fresh treasure in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 84 Old West. Phone 98066.

LOOKING FOR PRIVACY FOR next house party — banquet — dance? CALL Day 3681. Night 95294. Large house for party rentals 1 mile from town. (1-9097-1)

UNC-Duke Washed Out; Play Today In Durham

Yesterday afternoon's scheduled diamond battle between North Carolina and Duke was postponed because of rain and wet grounds, but it has been re-slated for today at 3:30 o'clock in Durham.

Tar Heel Tom Maultsby will probably throw for Carolina with either Hal Turner or Tom Blackburn getting the Duke chore. Blackburn tossed a no-hit, no-run job in the Dixie Baseball Tournament against Rollins.

On the local scene today, the Carolina lacrosse squad meets Virginia at 3:30 at Navy Field and the UNC tennis teams hosts Maryland on the varsity courts at 3:00.

Va. Will Be Here In Lacrosse

By AL KORSCHUN

Co-captains Toby Haynesworth and Steve Trimble will lead an underdog Tar Heel lacross team into action here today against Virginia at 3:30 on Navy Field.

The Tar Heels will be gunning for the Cavaliers primarily to avenge an 18-0 shellacking which they suffered at the hands of the Virginians last year, but to also attempt to knock the high-riding Cavaliers, victors in their first three encounters, from the unbeaten ranks.

The team from the Old Dominion State, under new coach Bob Sandell, who was a two time All-American at Johns Hopkins University, won't be as strong as previous nationally ranked Virginia teams have been. Carolina coach Art Greenbaum optimistically believes that if his newly revised midfield, which has been strengthened by several changes in the lineup, can run and play on an equal por with the Virginia midfield, the Tar Heels will make the game very close.

IN ORDER TO add depth and strength to his midfield, Geenbaum has lined up two practically equal teams, starting Dick Baker, Mike Weinman, and Sherry Smith in the first midfield, and backing them up with Haynesworth, Joe Converse, and Jim Sturdivant in the second midfield. To round out his starting 10, Greenbaum will start Jack Spooner, Wilbur Jones, and Hal Taylor at the attack, Trimble, Ronnie Current, and Al Bryant at the defensive positions, and Thorne Walker at goalie.

However, The Tar Heels will have their work cut out for them if they are to be the first UNC lacrosse team to beat a Virginia team since the sport was revived here in 1949. The Cavalier squad is loaded with experienced Baltimore players, practically all of whom have played lacrosse for a number of years. In addition to this, looking back on previous performances, the visitors easily defeated the same Williams College team which drubbed Carolina 10-2 only last week.

Braves Sell Wilson

MILWAUKEE, April 14 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves announced today the sale of pitcher Jim "No Hit" Wilson to Baltimore of the American League.

The Braves said Wilson was sold for cash and one minor league player to be named later.

UNC SPORTS

Here is a composite schedule for Tar Heel sports fans, including varsity and freshman baseball, and varsity golf, tennis and track, through next weekend:

April 15 (today) — UNC at Duke (v. baseball), Maryland (here), tennis.

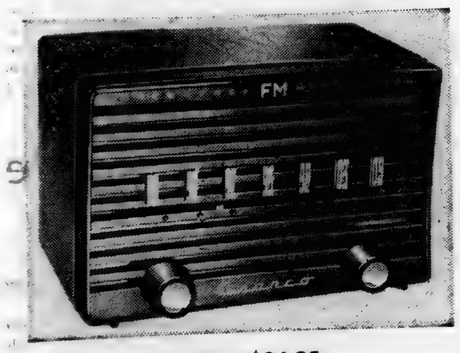
April 16 — Presbyterian (here) tennis, Maryland (away) track, State (away) freshman baseball, State (here) varsity baseball, Wake Forest and Maryland (here) golf.

April 18 — State (there)—night—freshman track.

April 19 — Wake Forest (there) varsity baseball, Wake Forest (here) freshman baseball, Wake Forest (here) varsity track.

April 20 — Duke (here) tennis.

April 21 — No sports scheduled.



April 22 — Duke (there) freshman track, South Carolina (here) varsity baseball.

April 23 — Clemson (here) varsity baseball, South Carolina (here) varsity track, Wake Forest (there) varsity tennis.

The Daily Tar Heel sports department has a limited number of UNC composite sports schedules available. The schedules contain all of the spring sports plus next fall's football slate and may be had free of charge. Simply drop in and pick them up, free of charge.

Carolina
TODAY
JUDY GARLAND
JAMES MASON
"A Star is Born"
WARNER BROS. PRESENT IT IN CINEMASCOPE
TECHNICOLOR
STEREOPHONIC SOUND
JACK CARSON
CHARLES BICKFORD
TOM NOONAN · MOSS HART · SIDNEY LUFT
PLUS
LATEST NEWS
APRIL IS
GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH
IN CHAPEL HILL

If You Can't Get.....
WUNC
On Your Present Radio You Can With A GRANCO "MUSIC HALL"
Complete FM Radio

List Price $34.95
Our Price SPECIAL $26.50
Records & High Fidelity Equipment
207 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Phone 5396
Kemp's

"But-I Thought the War Was Over?"

Sure! The fightin's stopped in Korea . . . but the war against death is never over! The fighting continues relentlessly in homes and hospitals all over America. And the greatest defense weapon of all is blood. Yes, blood saves lives!

It is needed now by thousands of men, women and children for surgery and medical treatment. It is needed, too, to build a national reserve of blood derivatives as "life insurance" for hundreds of thousands in time of disaster. So . . .

GIVE BLOOD NOW!

CALL your Community or Hospital Blood Bank or Local Red Cross Chapter.

A Salute To Chapel Hill's Own
DOROTHY KOCH
Whose Wonderful New Children's Book
I PLAY AT THE BEACH IS ON SALE AT
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franlin St. Open Evenings

Y Confab Set For Weekend

The annual YMCA-YWCA State Conference will be held today through Sunday at Quaker Lake.

The theme for the confernce is "Christianity, The Wholeness of Life." Dr. Warren Ashby, professor of philosophy at Woman's College, will be the platform speaker. The platform topics will include "Wholeness In Relation To Personal Life," "Student Activities" and "Entire Temporal Life."

Claude Shotts, general secretary of the University YMCA, will be a resource leader for a study group on "Campus-Community Relations." Bob Hyatt will lead a study group on "Service."

University students who are attending the conference include Eddie Crutchfield, Rube Hines, Hugh Hinton, Bob Hyatt, Ed Hennessee.

Gerry Mayo, Bill Oakley, Roy Taylor, Miss Anna Windley, John Bielefelt, Ken Yang and Graham Rights.

The Quaker Lake Conference will begin with supper at 6 o'clock tonight and will close after lunch on Sunday.

Speeding was the principle violation in the state's 880 fatal motor accidents last year, according to a summary by the Motor Vehicles Department. There were 337 fatal smashes due to "evceeding the stated speed limit."

FOUR CAROLINA COEDS are vying for the title of Miss Chapel Hill at this weekend's Jaycee variety show at the Chapel Hill High School auditorium Friday and Saturday nights. Miss Joan Brown, inset, was not included in the attractive group picture above because it was feared earlier this week that an illness might prevent her from competing. It now appears she will. The beautiful contestants above left to right are Miss Margaret Underwood, Miss Bobbie Lee Moretz and Miss Jerry Lynn Rainwater.

Judge W. H. Bobbitt To Talk At Fleece Tap Ceremonies

Judge William H. Bobbitt of Raleigh will speak at a private banquet following the tapping ceremonies of the Order of the Golden Fleece Monday evening.

The banquet will be given in honor of the men tapped for membership at the ceremonies to be held at 7:15 in Memorial Hall.

Judge Bobbitt is a member of the graduating class of 1921 of the University and is a Fleeceman himself. He has served on the University's Board of Trustees and is the present head of the Alumni Association. He has been an Associate Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court since last year.

The doors of the auditorium will be closed promptly at the beginning of the tapping ceremonies in order to preserve the solemnity of the ritual. The event will be open to the public, and is the only one held by the order during the year.

After the reading of the myth of Jason and his quest for the Golden Fleece, black-robed figures will stalk the darkened auditorium, seeking the men who are to be honored. After the tapping, the Fleece will disclose the names of its officers for the first time during the year.

There is no limit to the number of men who may be tapped since the current roster of Fleecemen selects its own successors on the basis of the percentage of men students on campus deemed qualified for membership in the University's highest men's honorary organization.

The list of Fleece members includes O. Max Gardner, J. C. B. Ehringhaus, William B. Umstead, all former governors of North Carolina, and Luther Hodges, present governor of the state. Educators Frank P. Graham, Robert B. House and Gordon Gray are also among the members.

Following the Fleece's ceremonies, the annual Valkyrie Sing will be held.

Kicked Out

According to a spontaneous ruling by Norwood Bryan, chairman of the Legislature Finance Committee, a reporter for The Daily Tar Heel was bodily removed from a Finance Committee meeting yesterday.

"We are in the middle of voting and we have to be discussing things," Bryan explained.

After David Reid, member of the committee, had been appointed sergeant-at-arms by Bryan and had removed the reporter, Reid explained, "It has been a precedent not to allow a member of an organization that's appropriation is being considered to be present at the committee meetings."

Covering The Campus

The varsity and freshman basketball teams will conclude spring practice Wednesday night at 7:30 by playing a benefit game sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic Council.

The proceeds of the pre-season contest will go to the Foster Parent Plan and to the Chapel Hill Community Center.

★

The first meeting of the Senior Life Saving course will be held Monday at 4 p.m. in 304 Woollen Gym.

According to Dick Jamerson, professor of physical education, all students interested in taking this course should be present at this meeting. Also, all water safety instructors who wish to assist in teaching this course should be at Monday's meeting.

★

The monthly motion picture awards selected by the Carolina Film Critics were announced recently by a member of the group.

The Bridges of Toko Ri was selected by the group as the best picture.

Alastair Sims was selected as the best male actor for his role in The Bells of St. Trinians. That motion picture was also named the finest comedy shown during the present school year in Chapel Hill.

Gilbert Roland was named the best supporting actor for his work in The Racers. That picture was also selected as the one having the best photography and musical score.

The Little Kidnappers was chosen as the best revival of the month.

The group's spokesman said that no selections were made for the best actress and the best supporting actress.

Lady Milton Shop

Sleeveless batiste Lady Hathaway shirts, at the new low price of—

4.95

Choice assortment of short sleeve shirts in batiste, ginghams, lustrous broadcloths—at only—

4.95

Baby Cord Skirts

7.95

Most unusual assortment of Bermuda shorts found anywhere—

MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

It's Spring Again!

Birds are yelling their silly little heads off, dogs are barking, bees and butterflies are doing whatever bees and butterflies do in their helpful way. Even old Joe Grouch cracked his iron face to smirk at a charming bit of She back in the old book section yesterday.

The doors of the old book barn are wide open to the balmy air, and to tell the truth, we're a bit balmy ourselves as we gift-wrap garden books and love poems, and watch the twosomes browsing.

Hot Dog! It's wonderful, pal. Come join the fun.

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Open Evenings

FILTER TIP TAREYTON

Gives You True Tobacco Taste And Real Filtration, Too!

PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Jaycees Benefit Show Set Tonight, Saturday

"Cork And Corn Of 1955," the second annual Jaycee minstrel and variety show, will open this evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Chapel Hill High School auditorium. The performance will be repeated on Saturday evening, with the crowning of Miss Chapel Hill of 1955 as the climax to the program.

Tickets to the two-hour show are on sale through civic clubs for a dollar or may be purchased at the door. Profits from the affair will go to the Chapel Hill High School band.

William M. Alexander, co-director of the show, said the minstrel would be "in the finest American folklore tradition," featuring a circle of 16 Jaycees with Charlie Stancell, Collier Cobb III, Monk Jennings, and Pokey Alexander as end men.

Perennial favorite routines and songs—such as "Red Hot Henry Brown" and "Death Where Is Thy Sting?"—will be rendered by the performers and a choir from the high school, directed by Milton Bliss, will support the minstrel circle. Among other participants in the minstrel will be a vocal trio from the high school, and a Charleston routine by Kay Proctor and Sharon Sullivan—"The Dancing Jessies." Ed Potter, blind student at the University, will be pianist.

The variety show will be topped by the talent presentations of the four entrants for Miss Chapel Hill —Jona Brown, Bobbie Lee Moretz, Jerry Lynn Rainwater, and Mike Underwood, all Carolina coeds. Miss Brown, who had planned to give an exhibition of modern dance, had to change her talent because of an illness, but will give a dramatic reading, as will Miss Moretz. Miss Rainwater will present an example of her own creative writing and Miss Underwood will play the guitar and accompany herself.

The four will appear both evenings and will be judged by Mrs. Marian Fitz-Simons, Mrs. Kay Kyser, and Norman Cordon. The reigning Miss Chapel Hill, Barbara Ann Stone, will crown her successor at the end of the show on Saturday, and the new queen will represent the community in the state finals of the Miss America Pageant in Wilmington this summer.

Also on the variety show program will be a dance routine by a group of 10 high school girls, directed by Mrs. Barbara Bounds; a novelty dance by Mrs. Bounds and Clint Lindley, and a dance specialty by Anita Kattsoff.

—Report—

(Continued From Page 1)

port said that a contract calling for door to door delivery to the men's dormitories was found to exist, and that it is "not being fulfilled." Among the recommendations made by the committee concerning the paper's circulation were "that the circulation contract be fulfilled" and that "the Editor-in-Chief should read and be familiar with all contracts.

"The committee found, in open hearing, that many areas in campus life are not being adequately covered," said the report, which stated five "outstanding examples" of the paper's inadequate coverage. The committee recommended "That The Daily Tar Heel work out an arrangement with every department, school, club, organization and dormitory wishing coverage whereby a person responsible to that area is appointed to supply news."

"The committee found that there is definitely a need for a larger . . . staff. This is especially true in the News Department and the Sports Department," said the report. It added that it found "there was NO BASIS for a charge that the attitude of the Managing Editor cut down the size of the staff." It recommended that a "Personnel Coordinator be appointed" to obtain staff members.

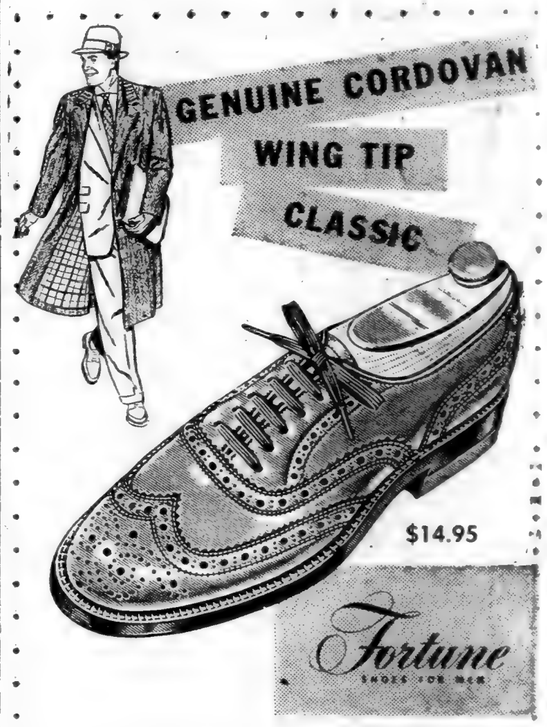
The committee reported that concerning the editorial page, that it "realizes that there is a great tradition of editorial freedom at this University" which it respects. "We also realize the responsibility of the Editor to interpret events fairly and accurately to the student body. Regrettably, this responsibility has too often been forgotten." said the report. The committee recommended that the paper take occasional surveys of student opinion concerning the columns run on the editorial page, and that more effort to publish student and faculty writing be made.

"The committee received and verified many instances of inaccurate reporting of campus events, statements of campus leaders and misleading headlines," said the report. "The committee regrets that the true circumstances of the calling of this investigation have never been reported by The Daily Tar Heel." The report added that "irresponsible" statements made were "OFFICIALLY REPUDIATED by the Speaker and the body (Legislature)." It recommended "a determined effort and a constant effort be made to keep the facts straight, statements reported truthfully and that quotes out of context be avoided."

It also recommended that a "continued investigation" be made of The Daily Tar Heel by the Publications Board.

THE DAIRY BAR

203 E. Franklin St.



HUM-DINGER

Upside Down Banana Split

SPECIAL THE WEEK OF APRIL 16-22nd

Everything You Like And Tremendous SPECIAL PRICE 43c

● Cobbled by expert craftsmen, this classic wing-tip pattern is made of tough, pliable genuine Cordovan. For smart good looks, rugged wear, and solid foot comfort, it's mighty hard to beat. Step by soon and step into a Fortune . . . at the popular price you like to pay.

College Shu-Fixery

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents

TYRONE POWER

MAUREEN O'HARA

in JOHN FORD'S

THE LONG GRAY LINE

CINEMASCOPE

Color by TECHNICOLOR

Costarring

Robert FRANCIS · Donald CRISP

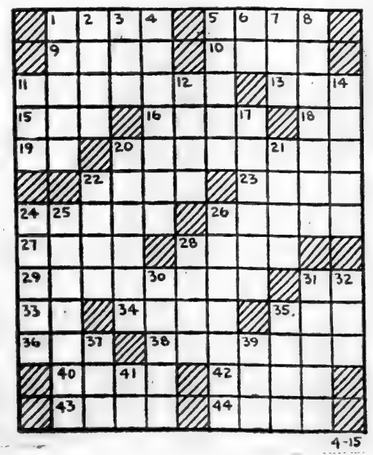
Ward BOND · Betsy PALMER · Phil CAREY

Screen Play by EDMUND HOPE · Based upon "Bringing Up the Brass" by Marty Maher and Nardi Reeder Campion · Produced by WILLIAM ARTHUR · Directed by JOHN FORD

LATE SHOW SAT. NIGHT SUN.-MON.-TUES.

Carolina

DAILY CROSSWORD



ACROSS

1. Young girl
5. At a distance
9. Egress
10. Cavern
11. Most attractive
13. Mimic
15. Beast of burden
16. Troublesome plant
18. Water god (Babyl.)
19. Earth as a goddess
20. Head scarves (var.)
22. Rendered fat of swine
23. Ceremony
24. Pulverize
26. Position in relation to a glacier (geol.)
27. Aquatic bird
28. Malt beverages
29. Heated, as glass
31. Tellurium (sym.)
33. Fish
34. A group of two
35. Breeze
36. Twilled fabric
38. Dents again
40. A hall (German school)
42. Wicked
43. Java tree
44. Vex

DOWN

1. Rental contract
2. The alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan
3. Title of respect
4. A ship's officer
5. Performed
6. Music note
7. Polynesian drink
8. Says again
11. Cigaret (slang)
12. Dispatch
14. Relieves
17. Flitted
20. Forbidden
21. Island in Aegean sea (poss.)
22. King of the beasts
24. White of an egg
25. Short poem of fixed form
26. A horse that draws a sled
28. Wings
30. Subtle emanations
31. Name
32. Bitter vetch
35. Indigo
37. Young dog
39. Biblical name
41. Louisiana (abbr.)

Yesterday's Answer

4-15

LI'L ABNER

By Al Capp

POGO

By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER
Sunny and warmer today with a high of 82.

The Daily Tar Heel

RAISE
The General Assembly and the editors don't agree. See p. 2 for the debate.

VOL. LVII NO. 137 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SATURDAY, APRIL 16, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Tar Heel Slashed $5,000 As Student Legislature Stamps Final Approval On Budget For 55-56 School Term

Foreign Flag Flies On Local Soil

A foreign flag, one from Russia as a matter of fact, flew over the University's soil yesterday. Local Air ROTC students are shown lowering the hammer and sickle and replacing it with the American flag. The banner was discovered early yesterday morning. Comrade owner did not show up to retrieve it.—J. B. Clay photo.

Spy And Scales' Defense Clash At Smith Act Trial

GREENSBORO April 15 (AP) — FBI spy Ralph Clontz, chief government witness so far against accussed Communist leader Junius Scales, warily crossed swards today with defense Counsel David Rein.

Clontz direct testimony has pictured Scales, 35, as plotting violent revolution through his party position as leader of the Carolinas District. Rein spent almost the entire fifth day of the Smith Act trial probing for weaknesses and contradictions in Clontz' story of his double life as FBI informant and as a student of Communism under Scales.

Rein didn't finish with Clontz today. He said he had hoped to be through by 3 p.m. How long it takes Monday, when the trial resumes, to complete crossexamination will depend "on how the witness answers," Rein told the court.

Clontz, a Charlotte lawyer, qualified most of his answers to Rein's questions about meeting with Scales, the party literature Scales gave him and his reports to the FBI. His close association with Scales was from September, 1948, to October 1951, Clontz has testified. He usually prefaced his replies to Rein with the statement that what he said was his "best recollection."

Rein, a Washington, D. C. lawyer, established that at the first meeting of the two men in Scales' Carrboro home the defendant did not say the party advocated force and violence. Clontz said the first statement of this kind came in December, 1948, when Scales told him "force is the only answer."

After Clontz had quoted Scales as preaching force and violence, Rein asked why the FBI had not arrested him on the basis of Clontz' report. "That's not the way we do things in this country," said Clontz.

The two lawyers, witness and defense counsel, at one point were discussing a copy of the magazine Political Affairs which Clontz said Herbert Aptheker of New York sent him. Clontz first said he had read an article in it which covered the subject of a 1950 speech by Aptheker to the Karl Marx Study Club at the University of North Carolina. Later he said he had glanced through it with Scales.

Rein wanted to know whether "read" and glance through" mean the same thing to Clontz. "Some of these Communist articles can best be read by glancing through them," Clontz replied.

IWC Recipient Of $350 For Operation In '56

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature in a four hour session last night stamped final approval on the 1955-56 student government budget. The only sizeable slash that the budget calls for is a $5,000 reduction in The Daily Tar Heel appropriation.

The Daily Tar Heel slash, made for the most part in salaries of staff members, reduces the student newspaper's appropriation from $26,373.60 last year to $21,426.00 this year.

Of the staff salary cuts, the editor-inchief's money was lowered from $600 per year to $300 per year, and the subscription manager's salary was moved down by $173.

It was anticipated by some that the Legislature would cut the paper but some fast talking by Bill Bob Peel, incoming business manager of the paper, dashed cold water on other proposed reductions.

"PAPER COULD BE SELFSUPPORTING"

The legislators apparently had their eyes on cutting out the paper's AP wire service and other parts of the paper's facitities, but the assertion by Peel that the paper might support itself next year dulled some of the money slashing knives.

"I don't see why The Daily Tar Heel, with 6,400 circulation could not support itself . . . and I will work toward that goal," Peel said.

Peel proposed that he and the rest of the business staff, through an increased and stimulated advertising program, might avoid the necessity of having money given to the paper from the budget in the coming year.

The chief item in the paper's budget that some of the body seemed bent on deleting, the wire service, raised a heated argument among the body.

If The Daily Tar Heel has to have state news and game scores that it cannot get without the wire service, it can copy the information "from the radio," said Frank Warren (SP). Jack Hudson (SP). said that the paper staff could cut the news from "other papers."

But this brought Jim Monteith and Bill Baum to the rescue of the wire service. After appeals from the two for salvation of the service, the body killed the Hudson proposed motion.

The appropriation for the Independent Women's Council, which requested $350, was restored to the budget and approved after much argument.

Marilyn Zager, leader of the council, pointed out to the Legislature that her organization represented "all the women students on campus who are not members of a sorority . . . and since other representative groups get money from the budget," why was the IWC money taken from the budget allocations?

Manning Muntzing (SP) sprang to his feet after Miss Zager's appeal, and told the body that he would "deplore" the situation if the IWC were not given funds.

He was followed to the rostrum by David Reid who repudiated Muntzing for his "infantile show of emotion." Reid didn't like the idea of giving the IWC money because he explained that "the incentive" of the independent body would be taken away if the Legislature granted it funds.

Reid said he spoke for "the best interests of the IWC," but felt that a fee should be collected from the members to support the organization because the Legislature did not have "the funds" to give.

$5,000 taken from the paper $350 given to the IWC, $300 given to the Debate Council and approximately $1,800 taken from Graham Memorial were the big change in the overall budget as the Finance Committee recommended it.

At le ast three decks of cards scattered from GM to South Building.

* * *

Instructor giving English proficiency test; telling students to pick the "best of two" answers.

* * *

South Building dean helping secretary with income tax problems while student waits.

Men & Women Singers Set Program Tuesday

The UNC Glee Clubs, directed by Assistant Professor Joel Carter of the Music Dept., will present a program in Hill Hall Tuesday, at 8 p.m.

The Women's Glee Club, accompanied by Miss Nancy Eversman of Flat Rock, and Miss Marjorie Still, Hillsboro, will sing two groups of choral works for women's voices. Miss Lynn Zimmermann, Marshall, will be featured as soprano soloist in "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" from Oklahoma. Besides selections from light operas, the women will sing music by Byrd, Bach, Mozart and Gershwin.

William Brady, from Mebane, will accompany the Men's Glee Club in groups of Negro spirituals, selections from operettas and choral arrangements of folk songs.

James Chamblee, baritone from Burlington, and James Pruett, tenor from Mount Airy, will be soloists with the men's group in arrangements of folk ballads. Other soloists are Joseph McGugan, baritone from Fayetteville, David Small, bass from Morehead City and Miss Jan Saxon, soprano from Charlotte, who will be heard in excerpts from Naughty Marietta and Showboat.

Included in the Women's Glee Club selections will be "List And Learn" from the Gilbert and Sullivan production, The Gondoliers, "Behold the Golden Sun" by Mozart, from Magic Flute, "Summertime" from Gershwin's Porgy and Bess and "Deep In My Heart" and "Serenade," both from Romberg's Student Prince.

The men's group will present "Tarantella" by R. Thompson, "Almost Like Being In Love" by Loewe, from Brigadoon, Haesche's "Carolina Loyalty Song" and "Shortnin' Bread" by Wolfe, among other selections.

Held Over

Charlie Peterson, billiard champion currently demonstrating his art in Graham Memorial's pool room, has been held over another day, according to an announcement from GM yesterday.

Peterson will perform and instruct in the pool room from 1 p.m. to closing time, said the announcement. Coeds are welcome.

Boys' Camp Director Will Interview Today

The director of a boys' camp in New York State will be on campus Monday from 9:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. to interview counselors for water front and photography.

Any interested male students should contact the Placement Service for further information concerning jobs at the camp.

Interviews will be held in Gardner Hall.

U. S. Offices Exam Slated

All interested in serving as foreign officers in the State Department can apply to take the examination on June 24, according to a State Department release. The applications can be obtained from the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C. or the placement office.

The deadline for submiting the applications is May 2, 1955. Failure to submit the application by May 2 will eliminate the candidate from competing in the examination on June 24.

Information and sample questions from the examination are available at the placement office or the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C.

Columnist J. A. C. Dunn Named To Post Of Associate Editor

COLUMNIST DUNN
. . . Associate Editor

Columnist J. A. C. Dunn has been elevated to the post of Associate Editor, Daily Tar Heel Editors Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder announced yesterday.

Dunn, who has served this year as editor of the Carolina Quarterly, writes the Carolina Front on the editorial page. In his new capacity, Dunn will assist the editors as well as continuing his daily column.

A junior from Charleston, S. C., the new associate editor is an English major. One of his short stories has just appeared in The Saturday Evening Post.

Making Of Book Is Shown

The making of a new book for young children — from original manuscript through galley proofs to finished book itself — is currently being shown in a display at the UNC Library, based on I Play at the Beach by Dorothy Koch, Chapel Hill author.

Mrs. Koch's book was released yesterday by Holiday House,, New York, one of the country's most distinguished publishers for young people.

Feodor Rojankovsky, internally famous artist, prepared the book's full color illustrations, which have been described by critic Virginia Kirkus as realistic enough to make one actually "feel the heat of the sun on the sand and the ocean breezes."

The Library display shows art work, along with the orginal manuscript with editorial corrections, imprinted bindery cloth, galley proofs, a press sheet and the final edition.

Mrs. Koch, the former Dorothy Clarke, is the wife of William J. Koch, instructor in the UNC Botany Department and son of the late Prof. Frederick H. Koch, founder of the Carolina Playmakers and head of the UNC Department of Dramatic Art for a quarter of a century.

Born in Ahoskie, Mrs. Koch has lived in various parts of Eastern North Carolina and completed high school in Washington. She is a graduate of Meredith College, has taught elementary grades.

Mrs. Koch said her first interest in writing was aroused by a children's literature course during her senior year at Meredith, when she began writing "for my own satisfaction with no thought of publication."

She continued her writing after moving to Chapel Hill, where a book agent saw some of her work and showed it to Holiday House, which requested that she expand

(See BOOK, page 4)

Late Permission

The Office of the Dean of Women and the Women's Residence Council have granted late permission for all coeds to attend the Valkyrie Sing, announced Ruth Jones yesterday. Regular sign-out sheets will be used.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK'S NEWS FROM RALEIGH:

State Legislature Turns Toward UNC

By FRED POWLEDGE

The General Assembly turned toward the University of North Carolina this week, and fireworks resulted.

Three incidents were prominent.

(1) A joint legislative committee for naming University trustees failed to reelect 11 present trustees, among them two longtime members, Maj. L. P. McLendon of Greensboro and Dr. Clarence Poe of Raleigh.

(2) Joint Appropriations subcommitte voted to raise tuition for non-resident students at state-supported colleges. The group later approved a motion to exempt non-resident students on scholarships from the tuition raise, after hearing arguments that exemption would result in "state subsidization of athletes." Rep. John Umstead of Orange County has been identified as originator of the motion to exempt scholarship-holders. Umstead said he was aware "it is, in a way, subsidization of a particular group."

(3) A bill was introduced in the House calling for separate, 40-member board of trustees for each of the three units of the Consolidated University.

McLENDON & POE

The joint committee's failure to reelect Trustees McLendon and Poe was termed by an editorial in The News and Observer "the best evidence of the General Assembly's inability to put proven service over petty ambitions in the selection of trustees of the Consolidated University . . ."

The newspaper, in Under the Dome, recounted a Feb. 28 meeting of the Board of Trustees in Raleigh, at which a "sharp but one-sided fight" took place over whether Negro farm and home agents should be allowed to take part in a workshop at State College. After the election of trustees this week, a rumor was circulated to the effect that the joint committee blackballed every trustee who had voted for allowing Negroes to attend State College classes.

(The trustees, in their February meeting, approved by a 57-15 majority the Negro question, after being told the Negroes would be fed and housed off the campus.)

The rumor held that a group of House members had set up a list of trustees to be elected. This alleged list was to exclude any trustees who had voted for allowing Negroes to attend the State College classes.

But, said The News and Observer, the bloc may have "contributed to the downfall of some of the trustees but it could not claim full responsibility for what happened in the voting on Wednesday night."

The newspaper said seven of the 11 trustees who were not reelected voted for the workshop, one opposed it and three were not listed as voting.

Of the 10 trustees who were reelected, said the newspaper, six voted for the workshop, two voted against it and two were not listed as voting.

The News and Observer cited other possible reasons for McLendon's and Poe's failure to be reelected. "In McLendon's case," the article read, "the Guilford legislative delegation was sharply split and Rep. Thomas Turner, one of the House members, was running himself. In Dr. Poe's case, there were these complications: Rep. Edwin Pou of Wake was making a bid of his own, and W. C. Harris Jr., son of the late Superior Court judge, was trying to succeed his father on the board."

Rep. Turner, Rep. Pou and Harris were successful.

The News and Observer editorially praised McLendon and Poe. Their dismissal, said the newspaper, "and others like them now and before does not hurt them so much as it cheapens the Board of Trustees."

The Joint Appropriations subcommitte this week voted to raise out-of-state students' tuition fees by $140 per year. Such a raise would bring non-residents' fees to an even $500.

A day later, Rep. John Umstead from Chapel Hill introduced a motion in subcommittee to exempt out-of-staters on scholarships from paying the additional tuition. The motion passed, 12 to 10.

A letter from Consolidated University President Gordon Gray was introduced and read at the meeting.

Gray's letter, according to a highly official source yesterday, said this:

The president does not advocate exemption of non-resident scholarship holders, because it seems to him that such exemption would establish the policy of special treatment for a special group.

The president feels that the General Assembly, if it must make increases in tuition, should not, as a result of the increases, reduce the University's appropriation. Rather, he feels, proceeds should be applied to restore the cuts made in the Consolidated University's appropriation.

Rep. Umstead, who has been criticized because he agreed the scholarship exemption "is, in a way, subsidization of a particular group," yesterday answered his criticism.

Umstead outlined "three main reasons why I introduced the motion that the increased tuition for out-of-state schools should not apply to the holder of a scholarship."

His reasons follow:

First, "The basketball team at State and the basketball team at the University of North Carolina are composed almost entirely of out-of-state students. These students are at these institutions on scholarships set up on the basis of $360 out-of-state tuition. The money for these scholarships is contributed by loyal alumni of each institution, and everyone knows that the Wolfpack Club at State and the Educational Foundation of Chapel Hill have, and are now having, their problems. To impose this additional charge on the holders of scholarships would cripple the present program at each institution."

Secondly, "These scholarships bring to the student body of each institution fine students and good campus citizens from other states. In the past, and undoubtedly in the future, numbers of these boys have elected to remain as citizens of North Carolina after their graduation from the institution they were attending. Any interested alumnus of either institution can give you names of persons who are now fine citizens of the state who came to one of these institutions on a scholarship."

Thirdly, "Although this seems to be a subsidy to those holding these scholarships, the majority of them makes a contribution to the state revenues that, in my opinion, will more than equal the loss in revenue occasioned by not collecting the additional tuition from them. I am getting figures from the athletic department of both institutions, and I am certain that the three percent tax that North Carolina levies on admissions will be a sum more han that involved in removing scholarships from the extra charge. In addition to admission tax it must be remembered that all these games at Chapel Hill and Raleigh draw crowds from a distance who use gasoline, stay at hotels and motels and of course partake of meals. The tax levied by North Carolina on these items would run into the thousands of dollars."

This week, a bill was introduced in the House calling for abolition of present Board of Trustees. In its place, the bill would create three boards, each having 40 members—one at Carolina, one at State and one at Woman's College.

Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt, the man who introduced the bill, said it would not hurt the concept and purposes of the Consolidated Unievrsity, "although some may read that element into it."

A 21-member executive committe would deal with overall problems of the Consolidated University.

Presently, 100 persons make up the Consolidated University Board of Trustees.

Jones explained his bill would eliminate the "consolidation over consolidation" caused by leaving a "100-member board in existence and a nine-member board as well." (Presently, a nine-member executive board functions within the whole board.)

Capital observers said yesterday Jones' bill stood little chance of being passed.

A Hard Core

Those legislators in the General Assembly who were responsible for the weird (and, in many respects disgraceful) outcome of the recent Trustee elections have helped strengthen a precedent which bodes no good for the University.

We lament, rather than crow, that our editorial fears expressed in "To A Pillar of Salt?" proved in the outcome of things true. Now several legislators in a calculated and unseemly display of backscratching, logrolling, and self-promotion, have unseated from the Board of Trustees several loyal and distinguished servants (not, mind you, masters) of the University. Major L. P. McLendon of Greensboro and Dr. Clarence Poe are not alone, but outstanding, in the list of those who received summary dismissal.

Major McLendon, we understand, has been a marked man since he led the Board of Trustees to its commendable vote on segregation in the State College Summer School course. The segregation issue, we also understand, was the pivot upon which the Board elections turned Wednesday night.

How the Board of Trustees may vote on a future issue regarding segregation within the Consolidated University is a question of utmost seriousness. The vote (or votes) must not be made by inflamed minds and certainly not with prejudiced attitudes, totally detached from the specific problems which the Board will confront. Yet fore-decisions is the weapon upon which the Board-jugglers count; and by Wednesday night's election they inserted ammunition.

All told, however, we hope that one Trustee-election has not destroyed the balance which has up to now hung on the side of reason. We are disturbed that a hard core has now bored into the Board of Trustees; we are disturbed that their avowed motive—to choke proper deliberative procedures within the Board—has gone unchallenged; we are disturbed that the arrogation of more and more power to the hands of the Trustees continues unchecked. The function of the Board has gradually moved from the areas of policy-making to the area of policy-execution.

If, coupled with that trend, the legislature now allows members to be packed on the Board for one avowed and hitherto unchallenged purpose, what will happen next? Suppose the Board-jugglers next decide they would like to have power on the Board to check decisions on what professors can teach in class. Will they get it?

The handwriting is on the wall.

Too Much Muscle

As the student Legislature flexes its most powerful muscle this week—the one that controls the purse strings—it is increasingly evident that the campus doesn't know how its money is spent. And legislators don't seem too bent on informing students either.

Among other things, the Legislature hacked The Daily Tar Heel down to a five-day week after next fall's football season, shelled out over a $1,000 for an executive secretary to keep student government's records, and gave the Carolina Forum a $400 dole to take jaunts about the country in quest of speakers.

We think the students should study what the Legislature is going to do with their $103,386.20 in student fees. As anything but unbiased observers of our own budget, we naturally feel that students should have a complete newspaper.

But, more important than just deciding whether or not to give the campus newspaper full support, we feel that student government tosses around over $100,000 of student money with anything but a judicious hand. A visit to Thursday night's Legislature session would have shown this to any observer. Student legislators orated without saying anything, refused to listen even to each other, and exhibited in general a lack of understanding of the budget for next year.

Now that the political campaigns are over, The Daily Tar Heel hopes that the campus politicians will quit playing politics, stop imitating Congressional committees and the General Assembly—and listen to the students they represent.

Does the campus want a five day newspaper?

Do students want a permanent employee to keep student government's records?

Should the Forum be given extensive travel funds?

Only the students have the answer. We hope the Legislature will listen to them.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Carolina Front

Parking With Calculus: The Eighth Wonder

J. A. C. Dunn

AT THE RISK of boring everyone to tears with this constant mention of the nation's parking problems, we find we cannot resist inserting the following suggested solution which was sent to the Cornell Daily Sun. We quote from the issue of Monday, April 11:

"...Every car on campus is parked, on the average, 30 inches apart. This dead space between cars assures the occupants enough room to open, on either side, his door and exit. However, the occupants need only room on one side of a car in order to exit. Therefore we may park two cars flush (as a pair), leave a space of 30 inches and park another pair. Thus for every two cars we save 30 inches. The width of two cars is 2x6 or 144 inches. This would increase the capacity of every parking field almost 21% (30/144 x 100%) without any increase in facilities...."

★

We can see it now, truly truly we can. A great sleek Buick slides into a parking place very close to another car; a little old lady crawls laboriously across the seat and gets out of the car carrying a measuring tape; she goes around to the rear of the car and measures between the bumpers of her car and the next one; finding she is six inches short she gets back into her car, crawls across the seat to the driver's side, backs the car out and reparks it; then she crawls across the seat with her tape measure and measures the distance between bumpers again; still two and a half inches short.

The little old lady is now ten minutes late for her appointment, but she is a solid citizen, and she knows that every inch counts. She gets back into her car, crawls across the seat once more, backs the Buick out again and tries to get it closer to the car next to her. Unfortunately she overshoots herself and rams the other car's fender; when she tries to back away from another shot her Buick suffers a long scratch on its beautiful paint and leaves a deep gash in the other car in return.

Somewhat shaken, the litttle old lady tries again. She edges her Buick gently, gently, ever so cautiously closer and closer to the other car and farther and farther into the parking place.

She makes it; she stops, crawls across the seat goes and meaures — and just as she gets the tape measure spread and sees that this time she has actually saved 31 whole inches of parking space, someone gets into the car she is paired with and drives away.

Twenty minutes later a traffic cop strolls by with his measuring tape and finds the little old lady leaning against the fender of her Buick and sobbing uncontrollably with rage and frustration. The motor of the car is still running. She just couldn't face crawling across that seat again.

Oh, dear, Cornell, You are so far above Cayuga's waters. Oh, deary, deary us.

★

FOR THE BENEFIT of those who are really interested in world-wide events, there is a lion in Winston. It resides peacefully in a roof on the third floor just by the window with a blanket thrown over it. Sometimes there are other things thrown over it as well, such as laundry and sophomores and empty coke bottles. "Coke bottles" is a euphemism.

The lion's name is Mordecai McGargleharshly. He was brought over from North Africa as a cub by the Army at the end of the war. He's a pretty good lion, as lions go. In fact, as lions go he's real gone. He likes Dixieland jazz and Coke. "Coke" is a euphemism.

Mordecai never leaves his room in Winston. He just lies there by the window and dreams of days in North Africa when the gazelle were plentiful and, later, when all the charming boys from America gave him Hershey bars and cokes. "Cokes" is a euphemism.

At the end of the semester, so his owners tell me, Mordecai will leave that happy roof in Winston, where, just outside the door broken glass and shaving cream flies up and down the hall nightly. "Brokne glass" and "shaving cream" are euphemisms.

'Now If You Could Just Control Your Inventions, Huh?'

THE ADMINISTRATION'S PAPER:

'Fifty-Four Forty—No Fight'

Joseph Alsop

Partly because of the extraordinary vacillations of the Eisenhower administration, trouble on Formosa must certainly be expected if Quemoy and the Matsus are finally surrendered to the Communists.

Try to do what our present policymakrs seem never to do. Look at the record of American action on the issue of the offshore island through the eyes of those most directy affected and you realize at once that the danger of demoralization here on Formosa is bound to be considerable.

Item one on the record is President Eisenhower's famous "unleashing of Chiang Kai-shek," and his sharp attack on the Truman administration for pursuing precisely the policy that the Eisenhower administration has now embodied in the Formosa treaty. To give reality to the "unleashing," the American policy makers strongly occupy the offshore islands in force.

Until this pressure was applied in 1953, even Quemoy was rather lightly held. Everyone on Formosa assumed that the island positions were expendable before they were occupied in force. It was by American request, then, that the Generalissimo in effect committed himself, before his army and his people, to defend the offshore islands with all his power.

Item two on the record is the quick switch that the Eisenhower administration made last fall, as soon as the Chinese Communist threat to the islands became serious. Overruling three of the four Joint Chiefs of Staff, President Eisenhower decided that the islands which the Generalissimo had committed himself to defend by American request, were now to be abandoned without a fight.

THE POLICY PAPER

The result was the Adminstration policy paper widely known in the inner circles as "Fifty-Four Forty/No Fight." As decided by the President, this paper took the firm position that the United States would not assist in the defense of the offshore islands.

But in January, came item three, when "Fity-Four/Forty No Fight" was suddenly junked in favor of a new decision to abandon the Tachens but to defend Quemoy and the Matsus. This new policy was so firmly agreed on that on January 19 Secretary of State John Foster Dulles formally promised Chinese Foreign Minister George Yeh that Quemoy and the Matsus would be publicly guaranteed by the President himself.

According to Dulles, the President was going to give this public guarantee as soon as the Congress had passed the Formosa resolution. On the strength of the minutes of the Dulles-Yeh conversation, American Ambassador Karl Rankin also publicly forecast a guarantee of Quemoy and the Matsus here in Taipeh. Meanwhile other American military and political leaders were making fighting noises of the kind that were also heard in Washington in the early stages of the Dienbienphu crisis.

Finally, the fourth item in the record was the President's repudiation of his Secretary of State's promise; his refusal to give any public guarantee of Quemoy and the Matsus; and the resulting adoption of the policy — or is it the non-policy? — of "keeping them guessing." This phase has lasted to the present day, with such incidents as Admiral Carney's background talk about atomic war by April 15 to give it spice.

THE CONTINUOUS TERGIVERSATION

From this truly fantastic retion, one point stands out very cord of continuous tergiversaclearly. The importance that Quemoy and the Matsus have now acquired in the eyes of Formosa and of Asia is marked "made in America." We might have got away with abandoning the islands after pressing the Generalissimo to occupy them. But we could not and cannot get away with abandoning the is-January decision to defend lands after the much publicized them. The first half of the Dienbienphu pattern, of big, bold, brave talk with a quick slink when the chips are down, the effect will be most shattering in Asia. And it will be most shattering of all here on Formosa.

With some reason in view of the record, an American refusal to aid in the defense of the islands will now be regarded here as a shocking betrayal. It can at least be expected to produce the kind of anti-American manifestations that occurred at the time of the Tachen evacuation. And they are likely to be much more serious than the "pro-austerity" riot at a Sino-American charity fashion show which was then organized by the more anti-foreign group in the government.

How much further the thing will go, is far more difficult to tell. On the one hand, there is the record of 1950, the last time when the Communists were seriously threatening to attack this island. In the period before the outbreak of the Korean War ended the threat to Formosa, there were the most widespread and alarming signs of disaffection here.

Among a considerable number of traitors in key places, the most significant was the deputy chief of general staff, Gen. Wu Shieh. Gen Wu Shieh led a considerable group recruited within the general staff and in other key positions, and he was in direct radio communication with Peiping.

COOLIE WITH MOP AND PAIL

According to well authenticated report, Wu Shieh and his group might never have been caught, if they had not actually dared to hold an after hours meeting in the government place itself. A clean up coolie blundered into the meeting with his mop and pail. One of the conspirators over excitably shot him on the spot. The noise brought the guards and, so the plot was revealed and, Wu Shieh was executed early in June 1950.

There is no doubt at all that the Peiping government is now trying to encourage new treacheries here on Formosa. The return to Communist China of the Generalissimo's old favorite, Gen Wei Lihuang, was part of a well planned and well organized effort. Other such returns are to be expected. Part of the same effort, too, is the prominence accorded the turncoats already in Peiping. In the reorganization of the Peiping government, ex-associates of Chiang Kai-shek have been given a score of places on the Communist National Military Council.

On the other side of the ledger, meanwhile, there is the stern and efficient police job that has been done on Formosa by the Generalissimo's son, Gen. Chinag Ching-kuo. However much key persons may be tempted to throw in the sponge if America abandons the islands, the fact remains that treachery on Formosa is no longer the easy business it once was.

Balance the strictness of Chiang Ching-kuo's police against the evidence on the other side, and you get a very real doubt. It is certain that if the United State does not assist in the defense of the offshore islands, the military and political demoralization here will be severe. But it is uncertain, because of the prevailing police measures, whether this demoralization will lead to more openly serious consequences. Most probably it will not, but the risk cannot be altogether ignored.

Cold Shoulder In Washington

Jay G. Sykes

Although in past years Harold Laski, Harry Elmer Barnes and Malcolm Cowley were scorned by University of Washington officials as "Marxist, anti-revisionist, and leftist," they nevertheless spoke on campus platforms.

Last winter the University physics department asked (Dr. J. Robert) Oppenheimer to give a series of lectures this spring in "three areas of physics." Oppenheimer tentatively accepted. Henry P. Schmitz, University president, then announced that "after long and careful study of Oppenheimer's governmental relationships" he was cancelling the invitation. "Bringing Dr. Oppenheimer here at this time," he said. "would not be in the best interests of the University."

The students were the first to react. "The decision," one wrote in the university daily, "smacks of bigotry, weaknes, and compromise." Another thanked Schmitz for "protecting its interests" and said, "this will result in our becoming not only the Silent but also the Deaf Mute Generation." The faculty followed. "A very deep resentment and feeling of shame among many faculty members" was reported by a botany professor. "The bell is tolling not only for the Phpsics Department but for all of us," said a history professor.

Four hundred students attended a meting at which four faculty members condemned Schmitz's action. Forty of the students were delegated to "march on" the State Capitol at Olympia, where Governor Arthur B, Langlie granted three of them an interview.

"I don't know," Langlie told the students, "how many mothers of boys whose sons had fought the Communists in Korea have told me that their boys had lost their God-fearing values at the University of Washington." "Oppenheimer," he said, "has been loose with the nation's security. And with the background of the University, you want to bring Oppenheimer here!"

On campus, the Organizations Assembly, representing half the student body, unanimously asked Schmitz to reconsider. So did the Board of Control, the student-faculty "governing body." Then the University Board of Regents, after scanning a Petition of Grievances signed by 1,100 students, voted without debate to support the ban.

The Regents' decision did not end the affair. Dr. Victor A. Weiskopf, professor of physics at M. I. T. has refused an invitation to lecture. Dr. Perry Miller, literary historian at Harvard, Dr. Alex Inkeles, Harvard sociologist, also declined lecture invitations.

This academic cold-shoulder turned into a total freeze when seven Eastern scientists decided not to attend a scientific conference.

Schmitz has been supported by the presidents of Seattle University, Pacific Lutheran College (Tacoma), and Seattle Pacific College, by the University of Washington Alumni Association, and by the Seattle Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The only persons who appear to want Oppenheimer as a lecturer here are the students, scholars, teachers and scientists. As for Oppenheimer, his comment was brief: "It seems to me that the University has embarrassed itself." — Condensed from The New Republic.

Quote, Unquote

Art And The Artist

The only real voyage of discovery, the only Fountain of Youth, consists not in seeking new landscapes but in having new eyes, in seeing the universe with the eyes of another, of a hundred others, in seeing the hundred universes that each of them sees. And this we can do with a Renoir or a Debussy; with such as they indeed do we fly from star to star.—Marcel Proust

The artist has a twofold relation to nature; he is at once her master and her slave, inasmuch as he must work with earthly things, in order to be understood; but he is her master inasmuch as he subjects these earthly means to his higher intentions, and renders them subservant. — John Wolfgang von Goethe

Art is a human activity consisting in this, that one man consciously, by means of certain external signs, hands on to others feelings he has lived through, and that other people are infected by these feelings and also experience them.—Leo Tolstoy

Y-Court Corner

Rueben Leonard

SINCE EVERYONE seems to be jumping on the Anti-Business School bandwagon, I guess that I will have to follow suit—but only on one condition; that you also close the schools of Chemistry, Nursing, and Mathematics. In fact, do away with all schools that give a B.S. degree. Ah, then this old world would be an enjoyable place to live. No specialization whatsoever.

Just look at the benefits to be derived by erasing these schools off the campus. First, you would never have to worry about money to pay your bills. When you get sick you can call a local Phd. instead of an M.D. He will diagnose your case and say, "Son, you have a very bad case of indigestion, I would suggest that you take a T. S. Eliot (T. S. Eliot is a pill) with a glass of water before and after each meal." "Thanks Doc (his is a doc—he has a doctorate in English, you know)," you answer, "How much do I owe you?" He tells you that two pages from a rare Shakespeare folio that you own will be ample payment.

But alas, T. S. Eliot does you no good so you try a couple of Wordsworth tablets before retiring at night. No relief. You are really frantic by this time so you throw in a dose of The Decline And Fall of The Roman Empire for good measure. Still no relief.

You are beginning to realize that you are doomed. You call in the local Philosophy Forum to witness your last will and testament. Since you have no money to leave to your heirs, making a will is an easy task.

When the times comes for you to cross the bar, you slip silently away and got to Heaven where big business is booming and the streets are paved with gold.

One bright day while listening to the Angels recite Shelley, you glance down at the earth and see your parents sitting at the dining room table. Before them is a bowl of delicious alphabet soup concocted from a Webster's Dictionary and your favorite copy of Thomas Wolfe.

★ ★ ★

AN ALDERMAN coed and her boyfriend were walking through the Arboretum in last Wednesday's heavy rain. The girl was evidently peeved because her companion had brought her out in the downpour. She tried to kick him, but she didn't connect. "Oh, I missed you," she said, "Honey, do you ever miss me?"

★ ★ ★

THE MOVIE age is on its way out. In the near future, Hollywood will release a completely new and exciting form of entertainment known as the "Feelie." Theatre patrons will not only be able to see and hear what is happening on the screen, but also to feel it.

Imagine going into a theater, sitting down, and immediately being trampled to death by a herd of stampeding cattle or having the popcorn shot from your hand by a desperado.

There will be one drawback. Woe unto the first theater that shows a "feelie" starring Marilyn Monroe, Ava Gardner, or Terry Moore.

★ ★ ★

LUANNE THORNTON, chairman of the Valkyrie Sing says that approximately twenty-five organizations have entered the sing. If Luanne's reign as Chairman of Women's Orientation is any indication of her ability to supervise, we are in for one of the most enjoyable evenings of the year.

Luanne didn't tell us this, but we happen to know that one organization is going to sing a Russian song—in Russian, of course.

★ ★ ★

OSCAR WILDE, the dandy from Dublin, was undoubtedly one of the strongest advocates of aestheticism. In fact, Wilde's philosophy can be summed up in four words, "Art for art's sake."

In one of his lectures he reached his climax: "And so you Philistines have invaded the sacred sanctums of art!" One listener leaned over to another and said, "I suppose that's why we are being assaulted with the jawbone of an ass."

★ ★ ★

IN ORDER to get a Master's degree in Education it has become necessary to write a paper "How to inflict pain on the Out of State Student at Carolina." Some of them submitted such reactionary things as boiling oil and drawing and quartering. These ideas will get you nowhere in the fast moving world of today.

★ ★ ★

WHY IS it that you often run across a person whose name is connected with the business he is in? For example, the name of the chairman of the New York Film Censors is Hugh Flick.

★ ★ ★

DEPARTMENT OF paradox. The Alcoholics Anonymous of Baltimore hold their meetings in the Bromo-Seltzer Building.

—Reader's Retort—

Beware Of Plagiarism

Plant More Tulips

Editors:

Recently, the Men's Council has been beset by many cases in which the students have been accused of plagarism. The preponderence of plagiarism cases has appalled the council not only by their frequency but more so for the general lack of knowledge concerning just what plagiarism is. Unfortunately, the majority of the accused do not even know what the word means or the consequences of its perpetration.

The Men's Council wishes it to be known that plagiarism is an Honor Code offense punishable by suspension. Plagiarism is the taking of ideas, thoughts, words, or statements from someone else, and submitting them as one's own work, without giving credit to the original authors. Plagiarism is most often committed in theme-writing. Here, so often, students will copy or repeat the words of another and innocently submit them as their own words. Although the student accused will deny any bad intent in plagiarizing, he has still committed as serious an honor code offense as one who has deliberately cheated on an exam.

So as a word of reminder or caution, the Honor Council asks each and every one to beware of this apparently common pitfall.

Men's Honor Council

Lady Luck Misses Maultsby Again; Duke, 2-1, In 11 Innings

Blaney Bats In Winning Talley As Turner Holds UNC In Relief

Carolina Scores Lone Tally In First Frame; Now 1-3 In Conference, 4-8 All Games

Bernie Blaney blasted a long triple over Kenny Keller's head in rightfield in the 11th inning in Durham yesterday to score pitcher Hal Turner from first base and give Duke's Blue Devils a 2-1 verdict over North Carolina in a Big Four and Atlantic Coast Conference scrap.

George Atkinson had opened the 11th for the Blue Devils with a single, but George Hoover banged into a double play. Turner, who came on in relief of starter Harleigh Fatzinger at the start of the ninth, laced a double to center.

Blaney followed with his winning blow. Keller gave the ball a good try but couldn't hold it.

The Blue Devils had knotted the score in the home half of the ninth after being blanked for the first eight frames by Tom Maultsby. Buddy Bass started the inning with an infield single. He was sacrificed to second by Bob Weitzman and moved to third on Atkinson's infield roller to third base. Hoover then rapped a single to left to score Bass with the tying run.

THE TAR HEELS managed their only run in the opening frame. Harry Lloyd opened with a single, stole second, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Will Frye's single.

Fatzinger didn't give more than one hit an inning after that. He was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Turner took the win, his second against one loss.

The Blue Devils had the bases loaded with one out in the 10th, but eWitaman banged into a double play, one of three pulled off by the Tar Heel during the afternoon.

DUKE'S HALF of the 10th was a sweatter for the Tar Heels. With one out, Dutschmann tripled down the right field line when Keller misjudged the line drive. Maultsby then pulled some strategy by intentionally passing Andy Cockrell and Bass, and Watkins played right into Maultsby's hands. He grounded to Lloyd ,who tagged Bass on the way to second, then threw to Frye at first to retire the side.

The Carolina 11th was unproductive. With two away, Keller singled but he was tagged out on a following grounder to second.

The setback was the fifth of the season for Maultsby against one victory.

Duke is now 2-1 in ACC play while North Carolina is 1-3.

The box:

CAROLINA	AB	R	H	O	A
Lloyd 2b	5	1	2	5	7
Long ss	3	0	1	3	4
Gravitte cf	5	0	0	1	0
Frye 1b	5	0	2	14	1
Keller rf	5	0	1	1	0
Harding lf	4	0	2	4	0
Wodds 3b	3	0	0	1	6
Love c	3	0	0	2	0
Maultsby p	4	0	0	1	0
Totals	37	1	8	32	18
DUKE	AB	R	H	O	A
Blaney cf	6	0	1	4	1
Brewer ss	5	0	1	6	3
Dutschmann lf	5	0	2	1	0
Cockrell 3b	3	0	0	0	1
Bass rf	4	1	1	1	0
Weitzman c	4	0	1	7	5
Kirkpatrick 1b	2	0	1	6	1
a-Kreutzen	1	0	1	0	0
Atkinson 1b	2	0	2	5	0
Hoover 2b	5	0	1	2	2
Fatzinger p	1	0	0	1	0
b-Jurgensen	1	0	0	0	0
Turner p	2	1	1	0	0
Totals	41	2	12	33	13

a-Singled for Kirkpatrick in 7th.
b-Called out on strikes for Fatzinger in 8th.
c-Two out in 11th when winning run scored.

Carolina	100 000 000 00—1
Duke	000 000 001 0—2

E—Frye, Brewer. RBI—Frye, Hoover, Blaney. 3B—Dutschmann, Blaney. SB—Lloyd, Frye, Long. S—Weitzman. DP—Weitzman and Brewer; Blaney and Kirkpatrick; Woods, Lloyd, Frye and Love; Lloyd and Frye; oWods, Long and Frye. Left—North Carolina 7, Duke 12. BB—Off Fatzinger 4, Maultsby 4. SO—By Fatzinger 5, Maultsby 1, Turner 1. HO—Fatzinger 6 in 8; Turner 2 in 3. WP—Fatzinger. W—Turner. T—2:23. U—Butler, Beck and Talley.

State Nine Here Today, 3 o'Clock

Stax Show Gravitte Tops UNC Batters

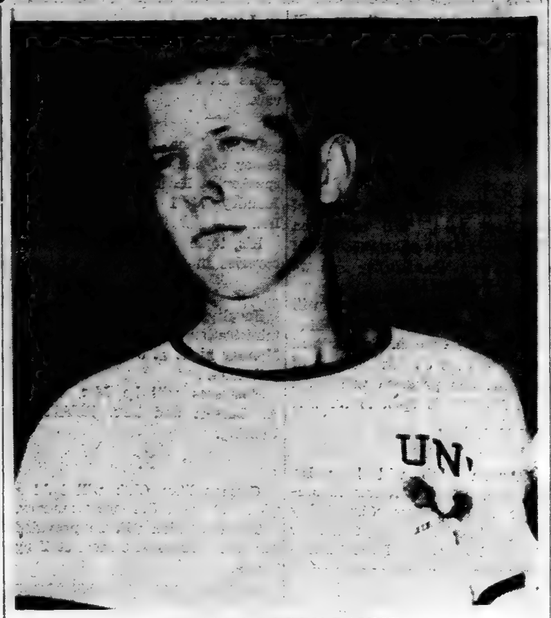
North Carolina's baseball Tar Heels play host to N. C. State here today in a bid to better an earlier Atlantic Coast Conference defeat. Game time is 3 p.m.

The Wolfpack took the first meeting of the year between the two clubs, 7-5, as lefty Tommy Hargrove and Lou Dickman tamed the Tar Heels on four hits.

However, the Tar Heels have developed their batting eyes since meeting N. C. State the first time. North Carolina could garner only 12 hits in its first three games for an average of four hits per contest. But since their loss to State, the Tar Heels have been held to less than eight hits only once when they bowed to Michigan, 2-0, with a total of only three hits.

Outfielder Connie Gravitte has been the big man in the Tar Heels' comeback at the plate. He is currently riding at an even .400 pace with 14 hits in 35 official trips. In addition, he has contributed two doubles, two homers, six runs batted in and two stolen bases to the North Carolina offense.

GRAVITTE, WHO hails from Roxboro, N. C., hit at .346 last season.



Also prominent in the Tar Heels' current hitting attack is third sacker Jack Woods. The junior hot cornerman went hitless in his first 14 official trips to the plate, but has suddenly caught fire with 10 hits in his last 23 appearances. The big streak gives him 10 for 37 and an average of .270, good enough for a second-place tie in the North Carolina batting column.

Second baseman Harry Lee Lloyd, a veteran member of the Carolina infield, has also come up with 10 hits in his first 37 trips for a .270 mark.

Only other North Carolina regular above the .250 level after the first 10 Tar Heel games was first sacker Will Frye, who has registered seven hits in 26 tries for a .269 average.

Statistics of the regulars through April 12:

BATTING	G	AB	R	H	PCT
Gravitte, cf	10	35	6	10	.270
Woods, 3b	10	37	6	10	.270
Lloyd, 2b	8	37	4	10	.270
Frye, 1b	9	26	3	7	.269
Long, ss	10	36	4	8	.222
Keller, of	8	26	5	5	.192
Harding, of	7	12	0	1	.083
Love, c	7	20	3	1	.050
Paller, of	8	22	2	1	.045
PITCHING	IP	R	H	SO	BB
Hall	12	1	13	5	2
Raugh	34	13	25	23	11
Maultsby	37	15	36	10	14
Stone	6	6	8	2	5

CAPTAIN BOBBY PAYNE
. . . another victory for this boy's Tar Heels

Tar Heel Netters Smash Terps To Gain 10th Straight Triumph

The University of Maryland's Terrapins proved to be no match for Carolina's varsity tennis team yesterday here as the Tar Heels swept to a 9-0 victory and remained undefeated in 10 matches.

Maryland could give Carolina virtually nothing in the way of competition except in the No. 1 doubles match, when the Terps faced a low-ranked Carolina duo in Sam Hendel and Bruce Gustafson.

Carolina's first four doubles teams played each other yesterday instead of playing the weaker Maryland teams. They did so to get tougher competition in preparation for the better teams they must play today and next week.

It is Presbyterian today (at 3 o'clock) and Duke next Wednesday. Both matches promise much excitement. In Presbyterian, Carolina ace Bob Browne must tangle with Allan Morris, a veteran of the courts, and the entire Duke team is much improved over last season's excellent aggregation.

Yesterday's summaries:

Singles: Browne defeated Freishtat, 6-0, 6-3; Payne defeated Leightheiser, 6-0, 6-2; Bradford defeated Clifford, 6-1, 6-1; Green defeated Eckel, 6-0, 6-3; Kerdasha defeated Hammerer, 6-0, 6-1; Thompson defeated Dauray, 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles: Gustafson and Handel defeated Freishtat and Clifford, 11-13; 6-2, 6-2; Dale and Livingston defeated Leighthesier and Eckel, 6-3, 6-2; Kasser and Van Winkle defeated Hammerer and Duray, 6-3, 6-2.

Tar Heels, Terps Vie Today On Cinders

North Carolina track coach Dale Ranson has his cinder squad in Maryland today in what should prove to be one of the season's top Atlantic Coast Conference track meets.

North Carolina, winner of dual meets thus far over N. C. State and Princeton, has already been in competition with the Terps once this season, with the Tar Heels edging Maryland, 36-35½, for the conference title in the annual Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games.

As usual since Tar Heel soph Jimmy Beatty came into the picture, the mile run should prove to be the day's most outstanding event. Burr Grimm, the Terps' outstanding distance runner, will furnish the opposition in what could be the top mile of the year in the conference. Beatty beat Grimm in the ACC Games.

IMPS DOWN FROSH, 8-1

By DON GRAY

Duke's freshman baseballers combined seven hits and nine Carolina errors to defeat the Tar Babies by a score of 8-1 yesterday at Emerson field.

Southpaw Morris of Duke limited the Tar Baby batsmen to only three hits, all singles, and three walks while racking up six strikeouts. Carolina's Charlie Cross also turned in a creditable performance, allowing seven hits, but the seven walks which he issued along with his teammates' nine miscues proved to be his downfall.

David Sime was the big gun in the Duke attack collecting three singles in five trips to the plate. Deland Lambert accounted for two of the Carolina hits and Carson Oldham collected the other.

The Blue Imps scored one run in the first inning on a walk, two filder's choices, and a passed ball, and never again lost the lead adding singletons in the fourth and fifth innings, two in the seventh, and three in the eighth. Carolina tallied their lone run in the sixth.

The Tar Babies take on State's freshmen for the second time in Raleigh this afternoon. The two teams played a 7-7 deadlock earlier in the season. Their record now stands at 1-1-1.

Score by innings:

Duke	100 110 230—8 6 4
North Carolina	000 001 000—1 4 7

Batteries: Smallwood and Crihfield; Cross and Bryson, Moore.

Monogram Singers Practice Sunday

The Monogram Club Valkyries will have their final practice for Monday night's sing at the Golden Fleece initiation tomorrow afternoon.

Cavaliers Blast UNC Lacrosse Team, 15-2

By AL KORSCHUN

Virginia's Cavaliers proved to have too much scoring punch for a hard-fighting Tar Heel lacrosse team, as they buried Carolina under a 15-2 score on muddy Navy Field yesterday.

It was the third straight loss for the Carolina stickmen, who have dropped contests to such top competition as Williams and Yale in early season encounters.

The game did have its bright spots for the sparse gathering of less than 100 Tar Heel rooters. From the opening whistle the locals seemed to be a match for the Cavaliers and Carolina trailed at the half by only 5-0.

HOWEVER, after two minutes of the second half had elapsed, the Virginians began to play like the undefeated team that they are and from that point on it was all Virginia.

The Cavaliers took advantage of a lapse in the Tar Heel defense and of a Tar Heel offense which just could not find the scoring range, Virginia, meanwhile, was assaulting the Carolina mesh with 10 goals to easily insure the victory.

UNC did find the lost scoring punch midfielder Mike Weinman took an assist from Toby Haynesworth and drove in a shot from several yards out. A few imnutes later, Hayesworth set up the second Tar Heel goal with a pass to Jack Spooner who bounced one into the goal. Both scores came in the last qaurter.

BOTH SPOONER and Haynesworth on the offense, and defensemen Ronny Current and Steve Trimble, were outstanding for the Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels' next encounter will be a conference test with Duke next week here, taking the place of the previously scheduled trip through northern schools which has been cancelled.

"Small Fry" Game At Blue-White Half

Grammar school boys in the fifth and sixth grades of the Chapel Hill school will play in a "small fry" basketball game Wednesday night during the half-time intermission of the Blue-White game.

The varsity contest will get under way at 7:30 o'clock, and will pit two evenly matched teams selected by Coach Frank McGuire.

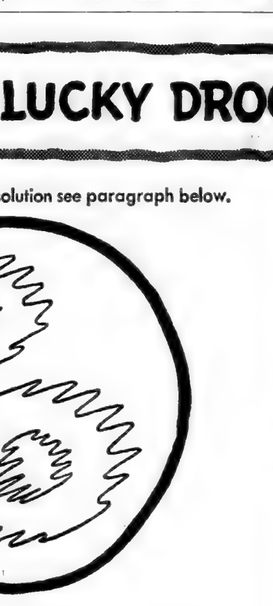
The evening is being sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic Council, and proceeds (admission is .50) will go toward adopting a child under the Foster Parents' plan and the proposed Chapel Hill recreation center.

The Blue and White varsity teams will be "coached" by the retiring co-captains, Paul Likins and Al Lifson, respectively. The rosters of the teams are:

White: Jerry Vayda, Pete Brennan, Joe Quigg, Bob Cunningham, Tommy Kearns, Charley Adams and Buddy Clark.

Blue: Lennie Rosenbluth, Bob Young, Roy Searcy, Frank Goodwin, Jerry McCabe, Hilliard Greene, Tony Radovich and Kenny Rosemond.

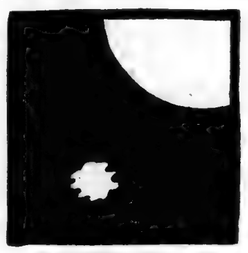
STUDENTS!
More often than not there's room for you in the
G. M. POOL ROOM
Especially at
10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
5-7 p.m.
9-11 p.m.



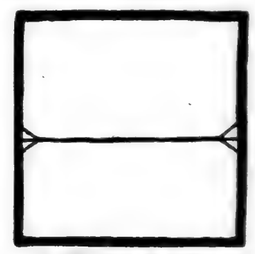
Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.

Varsity
Last Times Today
AN ENTERTAINMENT MASTERPIECE!
COLUMBIA PICTURES presents
TYRONE POWER
MAUREEN O'HARA
in JOHN FORD'S
THE LONG GRAY LINE
CINEMASCOPE
Color by TECHNICOLOR
Co-starring Robert FRANCIS · Donald CRISP · Ward BOND · Betsy PALMER · Phil CAREY
Screen Play by EDMUND HOPE · Based upon "Bringing Up The Brass", by Marty Maher and Nardi Reeder Campion · Produced by ROBERT ARTHUR · Directed by JOHN FORD

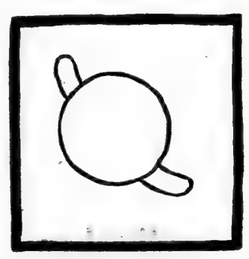
For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus



After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's



NOW PLAYING
Carolina
APRIL 15
GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH
IN CHAPEL HILL



If You Like Babes With Brains Too — Just Keep Your Eye On The Gals Who Browse In
The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

HEY, THERE! MORE LUCKY DROODLES!

COTTONTAIL RABBIT ON MOONLIT NIGHT
Arlen J. Kuklin
University of Nebraska

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

TWO BIRDS FIGHTING OVER WORM
Joseph Bex
U. C. L. A.

HOT DOG ON HAMBURGER BUN
Burt Griffin
Wake Forest

POORLY MADE SLICE OF SWISS CHEESE
David Russell Watson
Franklin & Marshall

STUDENTS! EARN $25!
Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So, send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to: Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.
*DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price

ARE YOU LOOKING for a completely enjoyable cigarette? Then get a clue from the Droodle above, titled: Smoke rings blown by riveter enjoying Luckies. Fasten on to Luckies yourself. Luckies are such great shakes because they taste better. And they taste better for excellent reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, whenever it's light-up time, enjoy yourself fully. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

Better taste Luckies...
LUCKIES TASTE BETTER CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!
©A. T. Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

HAPPENINGS ON THE HILL:

Sunburn & Tired People — Vacation

By SUSAN ANDES

If by chance some lone person didn't know that Carolina had just recently had a vacation it wouldn't take long from just looking around Y-Court vicinity to find out for sure.

Evidence of sunburn and many, many weary people is proof enough; but the parties didn't stop with coed closing hours or anything like that. There have been some few persons who have been promoting "tapering off" parties in a so-called earnest effort to get back down to the books and studying once again. (Oh, well, any excuse for a party is good enough, I guess!)

For the KAs this weekend means the end to all their lazy tactics for with the Old South Ball and weekend festivities here, many of them will soon have to go back to their daily shaving routine. Which do we hear louder, moans from some of the boys, or sighs of "at last" from the girls?

Here in Chapel Hill the KAs had a party at Hogan's yesterday afternoon, followed by a party at the Schoolhouse last night. Today they will all attend a luncheon at the Carolina Country Club in Raleigh, and afterwards participate in a parade down Fayetteville St. ending up at the Capitol.

Tonight's big event, is of course, the Old South Ball at Memorial Auditorium, and no doubt a big party it shall be.

New officers of KA elected recently include Howard Fogleman of Burlington, president; Layton McCurdy of Florence, S. C., vice-president; and T. C. Homesley, Cherryville, secretary.

Pinnings from this same house on Cameron Avenue are Larry Williams of Concord to Betty Whitt of Lexington; and John Monroe of Council to Mary Rose Morris, Duke coed from Burlington. Bob Davenport of Roanoke, Va., a former KA, is also pinned to Kitty Wright of Staunton, Va.

New ADPi officers recently elected are Donna Ashcraft, Fairmont, W. Va., president; Laura Ann Travis, Charlotte, vice-president; Marilyn Hedrick, Lenoir, secretary; Anne Nichols, Durham, treasurer; and Liz Holmes, Mt. Olive, social chairman.

Aside from elections other business along the pinning side transacted by ADPi members are Tommy Stevens, Smithfield, ATO member to Laura Ann Travis, of Charlotte. Bill Joyner, Phi Delt from Summit, N. J. to Myra Davis, from Albemarle.

Then too Clarence Tuggwell, a Kappa Sig from Greenville, pinned Mary Ann Murphy of Brooksville, Fla. Marion Buie, Chi Psi from Fayetteville, to June Ann Tingler, of Covington, Va.

An event around vacation time was the marriage of Gladys Hatcher, ADPi member from Four Oaks to Mike Healy, a UNC grad.

A PiKA pinning is that of Claude Pope of Dunn to Libby Raynor, also of Dunn.

New Alpha Gam officers are Joan Tidwell, Norfolk, Va., president; Ellen Doak, Chapel Hill, secretary; Mitzi Hall, Birmingham, Ala., treasurer; and Jackie Wilkins of Franklin, W. Va., social chairman.

The ATOs from UNC and Duke and their dates will meet and mingle tonight when the two chapters gather at Smith Lake in Durham for an outing. Thursday the ATOs will entertain the Pi Phis.

The Pi Phis had something a little unusual recently in the form of a scholarship banquet. All those who had made A averages rated the best on the menu, which was a sizzling steak for the lucky few; while those with Bs were served next best, this being barbecued chicken; and so on down the list until those who had done poorly, (scholastically that is) found they had little to eat.

The Sigma Chis had the last of their parties for the girls who are candidates for Sweetheart on Thursday evening at the Ranch House. The queen and the 12 members of her court will be announced April 30 at the Sweetheart Ball to be held in Charlotte.

Those girls who are candidates to fill the position of queen, which Judy Jackson has held this year, are Nancy Bridgers, Jo Cullifer, Delores De Parma, B. C. George, Lucy Graves, Julie Hall, Dotty Hobby, Trissie Holt, Jane Howie, Virginia Johnston, Mary Jordan, Charlotte Lilly, Ree Long, Libby McDowell, Marge Marple, Dutchie Milligan, Joan Palmer, Beth Pankey, Francis Parham, Libby Patman, Gray Proctor, Barbara Fleshman, Barbara Seaman, Kirksey Sink, Audrey Smith, Carol Taylor, Jeanette Uzzell, Katherine Widman, Jackie Wilkins, Ann Wrenn, Elsa Perlitz, Nancy Buran, Liz Holmes, Ann Penn and Nancy Register.

Sigma Chi man Toy Gregory of Lancaster, S. C., pinned to Mary Jean Tinsley, WC student from High Point. Bill Phillips, Beta from Rocky Mt., pinned to Ann Merrill, Duke student from Evanston, Ill.

Jack Borden, a Phi Gam from Goldsboro, was recently married to Dot Rose, a UNC grad from Pikeville.

Other pinnings include Bozie Tart, Dunn, a Kappa Sig, to Peggy Ruth Barfield of Dunn and a student at East Carolina. William Hollingsworth, Washington, D. C., AT O, to Nora Jane Rumph, a stray Greek from Sumter, S. C.

Gaither Walser, a Kappa Sig from Lexington engaged to Margot Blackstone of Wilmington, Del., who attends Holton Arms Jr. College.

Carol DuPler of Davidson, past president of Tri Delt, received her ring from Bob Grimes recently. Bob was a Sigma Nu here and is now doing graduate work at Northwestern University. He's from Rocky Mount. Charlie Owen of Asheville, a Deke, pinned to Cary Caperton, Tri Delt new president from Charleston, W. Va.

Engagements from the Chi O house are those of Gene Overbeck of Fayetteville to Leslie Britt, Kappa Sig and graduate of State College from Charlotte, and Barbara Beasley, Springfield, Ohio to Rufus Bynum, who recently received his MD degree from Duke.

Officers of Chi O for next year are Mackie Clay, Danville, Ky., president; Charlotte Lilly, Fayetteville, vice president; Alice Bost, Hickory, treasurer; Mary Windley Dunn, New Bern, secretary, and Margo Edwards, Spartenburg, S. C., social chairman.

Covering The Campus

Community Drama Group will meet tomorrow night at 7:45 in assembly room of University Library. Shakespeare's King John will be read. Stella Lyons at post office newsstand has copies of the play for those who wish to read it.

★

Mrs. Ethel Nash, professor of sociology here, will speak on "Marriage" at regular meeting of Presbyterian Westminster Fellowship tomorrow night.

WF supper forum group will meet at Hut, one block behind Presbyterian Church. Supper will be served at 6 o'colck for cost of 50 cents, and program will begin at 7. Meeting is open to all who wish to attend.

★

Newman Club will hear Dr. Paul Ito, research fellow in statistics here, discuss 'Christianity in Japan" at its meeting tomorrow night at 7 o'clock in Roland Parker Lounge.

Plans for future meetings will be discussed at a meeting of officers after 10 a.m. mass tomorrow.

★

Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell, professor of ancient history, will be speaker at Faculty Club luncheon Monday at 1 p.m. at Carolina Inn.

His topic will be "New Discoveries in Ancient Greece."

★

Faculty Wives of Business Administration School will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock in Carroll Hall.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Gerald A. Barrett and Mrs. Robert L. Bunting.

★

Cosmopolitan Club will hold a picnic at Duke Gardens tomorrow.

Transportation will be provided for all members who meet at Y by 2 p.m.

Collie Collison was elected president of University Club Thursday night, according to Secretary Annette Niven. Other officers elected were Joe Clapp, vice-president; Annette Niven, secretary, Judy Talley, treasurer. Club will start off its year with Annual Spring Carnival on May 13.

★

Spring weekend conference of Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship will be held at Camp New Hope this weekend, announced Bennet Myers yesterday.

Students from Duke, State, WC, Greensboro College and other schools will gather to discuss "The Truth That Sets Man Free." The speaker will be William Young from New York.

★

Daniel Vann will be installed as president of BSU at annual Servcie of Installation 7 p.m. Sunday in the sanctuary of Baptist Church.

The other new officers are: Clayton Stalnaker, vice-president; Jayce Hunter, secretary; Davis Reese, treasurer, Oscar Bolch, Sunday School director; and Everett Whatley, Training Union director.

Lady Milton Shop

Sleeveless batiste Lady Hathaway shirts, at the new low price of—

4.95

Choice assortment of short sleeve shirts in batiste, ginghams, lustrous broadcloths—at only—

4.95

Baby Cord Skirts

7.95

Most unusual assortment of Bermuda shorts found anywhere—

MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

Orientation Applications Due Monday

Applications for men's orientation counselors positions must be filled out and turned in either to the information office of Graham Memorial or the YMCA by Monday noon, according to Burt Veazy, orientation chairman.

The application forms are now available at Graham Memorial, the YMCA, Lenoir Hall and from all dormitory and fraternity presidents.

Each applicant will be notified by campus mail as to when his interview is to be held. The interviews will be held in the Rendezvous Room of GM Tuesday through Friday nights, plus afternoons if need be, according to Veazy. The interviews are by appointment only.

"The most important part of orientation is the job which the individual counselors perform." said Veazy. "It is a gratifying experience and a great service to the University." He urged that all men students who are interested fill out their applications today.

Government Takes Over Another Office

The Student Government Office in Graham Memorial has enlarged itself. The wall separating it from The Daily Tar Heel business office was torn down recently, and now all student government equipment is being moved in.

"The student government had all of its facilities crammed into a narrow hallway-like room," commented one observer.

Four desks, four file cases, a table, a bookcase and 15 ballot boxes originally filled the old student government office, the observer pointed out.

The new student government office is going to have a fresh coat of paint, a sanded floor and new office furniture in frosted walnut.

The old Carolina Forum office will be given over to the newspaper for use as a morgue.

The Graham Memorial Board of Directors recently passed a recommendation by the space Committee to rearrange The Daily Tar Heel offices and enlarge the offices of the student government.

The Daily Tar Heel business office was moved next door into the room occupied by the sports department. The sports office was then moved over into the small room that once housed the teletype machines. The teletypes were installed in the managing editor's office.

Jaycee Minstrel Will Be Held Again Tonight

"Coog and Corn of 1955," the second annual Jaycee minstrel and variety show, will give a repeat performance tonight. The climax of the show will be the crowning of Miss Chapel Hill of 1955.

Tickets to the two-hour show are on sale through civic clubs or at the door.

All entries for the beauty contest are Carolina Coeds. They are Misses Joan Brown, Bobbie Lee Moretz, Jerry Lynn Rainwater and "Mike" Underwood. Miss Brown and Miss Moretz will give dramatic readings. Miss Rainwater will present an example of her own creative writing and Miss Underwood will play the guitar and accompany herself.

The four will be judged by Mrs. Marian Fitz-Simmons, Mrs. Kay Kyser and Norman Cordon. The reigning queen, Barbara Ann Stoe, will crown her successor. The new queen will represent the community in the finals of the Miss America pageant held at Wilmington this summer.

Phi Assembly Against Present Cuts System

The Philanthropic Assembly has unanimously passed a bill stating that the group go on record as being absolutely opposed to the present class cut system.

According to a Phi representative, the Phi members feel that the present cut system "defeats the entire basis of not merely the right of the student, but also destroys his integrity."

According to the spokesman, John Curtis, critic of the Phi and supporter of the bill, said "By taking away the right of each instructor to regulate attendance on class removes a large measure of the respect of the student for the instructor." Curtis added that a student is thought to be "a mature individual and . . . capable of making right decisions" when he enters the University.

The group also felt that the right of the instructor to present system "infringes upon teach his class in the most beneficial way," said the spokesman.

The bill states, "The present system of class cuts is putting a great deal of undue pressure upon deserving students who are not on the honor roll; students who have only distances to travel in order to get home; and conscientious students who are sometimes forced to miss class because of circumstances beyond their control . . ." It further said, "The student body of the University of North Carolina realizes the above-stated wrongs and is generally irritated with the present system . . ."

The Scoop of the Campus

Nowhere in the whole wide campus world can you find a buy such as our Ivy narrows in sanforized cotton baby cord slacks—your choice of blue, tan or gray—

4.95

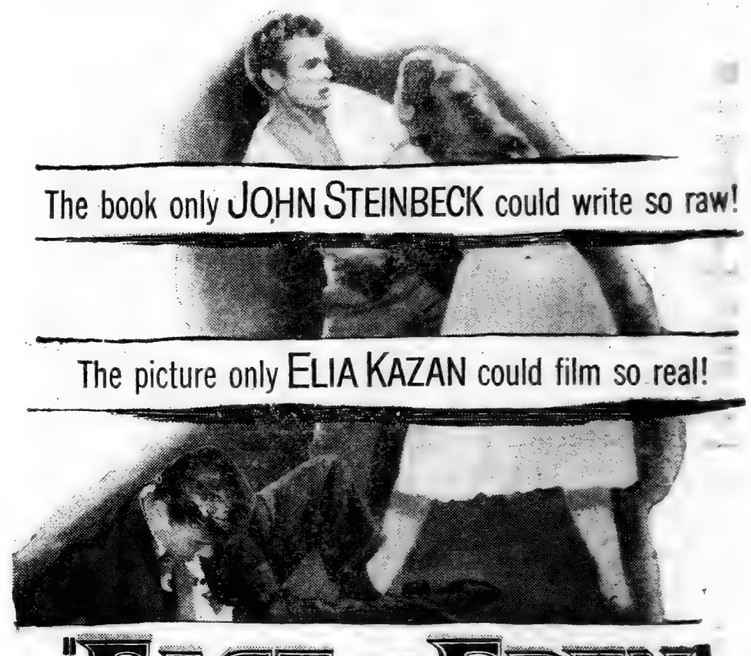
Scoop No. 2, our imported mesh polo shirt, good $8.00 value, our price—

4.95

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Dick Levin's Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

For an Important FIRST Job



Successful career women recommend Gibbs secretarial training as the door-opener to that important "first" job, and the all-round preparation for advancement to the top. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.

Special Course for College Women

KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL

Boston 16, 21 Marlborough St. New York 17, 230 Park Ave.
Providence 6, 155 Angell St. Montclair, N. J., 33 Plymouth St.

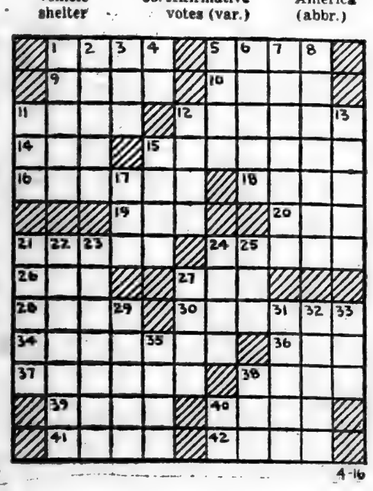
Her name was Kate and she was notorious. She ran a place on the hill where "respectable" men sneaked in the back door. Long ago she ran away. Now one of her sons, in shame, finds her.

LATE SHOW TONIGHT
SUN. - MON. - TUE.

PRICES THIS ATTRACTION
ADULTS $.65

APRIL 15
GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH IN CHAPEL HILL

Carolina



DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Legend of heroic exploits
5. Sandarac tree
9. A bird
10. Not any
11. Debatable
12. Loll
14. Fortify
15. Change from fluid to solid
16. Stops
18. Corridor
19. Emmet
20. Falsehood
21. Meager
24. Sheepskin tanned with bark (var.)
26. Not strict
27. Frontiersman's shoe
28. Dry
30. Ancient Hispania
34. Any pretentious affair
36. Some
37. Calls to attract attention
38. Fruits
39. Framework to hold fodder
40. Tolerable
41. Woody perennial
42. Incite

DOWN
1. Tally
2. Fragrance
3. Obtained
4. Exclamation (slang)
5. Soon
6. Not smooth
7. Heats, as glass
8. Emblems of royalty
11. Son: prefix to Scotch names
12. Mislaid
13. Girl's name
15. Penny
17. River (Pol.)
21. Cut
22. A motor vehicle shelter
23. Feather growing from the axilla (Ornith.)
24. Infant
25. One-spot card
27. Swine
29. Feminine name
31. Lift
32. Bar of silver
33. Affirmative votes (var.)
35. Garden tool
38. Watch pocket
40. South America (abbr.)

Yesterday's Answer

4-16

CLASSIFIEDS

THE CAROLINIANS ORCHESTRA Call 3711. Write Box 902.

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

DEAD TEXTS BOUGHT—OUR annual clearance sale of dead texts comes at the end of this month. Until then we'll pay a nickel each for any back edition texts you want to unload. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, 205 E. Franklin St. (chg.)

WANT YOUR PIANO TO SOUND like new? Then let me tune it. Quick service, reasonable rates, accurate estimate. Call Ed Potter, 34 Old West. Phone 98066.

MEMORIALS: Large stock cut from Allen and Winnsboro Blue Granite. All work guaranteed. Terms if desired. Buy direct from yard and save agents and salesmens commission. Siler City Monument Co., Siler City, N. C., J. S. McIver, Owner and Manager.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL WILL pay 20c each for the first ten copies of the April 3 edition that are turned in.

— Book —

(Continued From Page 1)

a certain idea — which is now I Play at the Beach.

Mrs. Koch plans to continue her writing in the juvenile field, "pending on the success of the first one," she said. She feels that her two daughters, Patricia, 8, and Jean, who is nearly two, help her a great deal in preparing children's stories, "by showing how youngsters think, which the writer can translate into his own ideas," Mrs. Koch said.

Dance Changed

The dance being sponsored tonight by Graham Memorial will be held in the Rendezvous Room and not in Senior Hall as previously announced, according to a GM representative yesterday.

Frank Wright's Bull City Nighthawks will provide the music for the free dance, which will begin at 9:30 and end at midnight.

Refreshments will be served at 10 p.m. and will be free of charge.

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U N C Library
Serials Dept.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WEATHER
Fair and continued warm today, with expected high of 82.

The Daily Tar Heel

VAMPIRE
Vampire of subsidization flits on Page 2.

VOL. LVII NO. 138 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, APRIL 17, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

LEGISLATIVE ROUNDUP:

After 2 Long Meets, Solons Approved '55-'56 Budget

Yack Cut Along With The DTH

By NEIL BASS

The student Legislature finally got the budget approved.

It took two long, nerve-racking sessions and a false alarm meeting to do it, but the 1955-56 student government budget has been passed.

The false alarm meeting came after Martin Jordan, Legislature speaker, called a special session Friday afternoon to wrap up the budget and complete revamping and cutting; but not enough of the legislators showed up to have a voting quorum. Thus the meeting was put off until Friday night.

Some of the organizations on campus don't like the budget, and some student government organizations have reason to make a joyful sound about it.

The Independent Women's Council and the Debate Council should like the budget because they were allocated more than was anticipated.

The Debate Council got $300 more than it requested so that the "30 members" can all go to different schools and compete for oratorical prizes.

The IWC appropriation was completely deleted from the budget by the Finance Committee; but some "emotion" by Manning Muntzing and a talk by Marilyn Zager, head of the council, got the independent women back all they originally asked for.

YACK EDITOR SALARY CUT

In accordance with a motion by Muntzing, the Yackety - Yack editor's salary was cut $100 from the sum the Finance Committee recommeded.

So with the slash in The Daily Tar Heel's allocation and Yack cut, appearance is that the two campus publications got the heaviest blow from the money — cutting axe.

After a suggestion by Graham Memorial's director, Jimmy Wallace, according to Muntzing, the GM appropriation was moved down approximately $1,800. This was made so GM will get 95 per cent of the total estimated real income, the same percentage all student government organizations get.

Scales Trial Re-Opens Tomorrow After Recess

The trial of Junius Scales, accused Communist leader and former UNC student being tried under the Smith Act, will open again tomorrow after a weekend recess.

The schedule for tomorrow's session in Greensboro will include the return of Ralph Clontz Jr., former FBI under cover spy.

In the Friday session Clontz repeated during cross-examination by David Rein, Scales' attorney, his earlier testimony that Prof. Douglas B. Maggs of Duke University Law School offered legal assistance six years ago to Scales.

Junius Scales was believed to have spent yesterday afternoon in Chapel Hill. A man resembling him was seen, in company of three others, in the University Restaurant last night. The same quartet was seen in Graham Memorial's main lounge yesterday afternoon.

Clontz said he visited the professor in his Duke office during December of 1949, telling Maggs that he was an insurance salesman in Chapel Hill and had "encountered a Communist named Junius Scales."

The ex-agent said he told Maggs Scales had asked him to seek the professor's legal assistance in the event that he (Scales) were ever prosecuted for violating the Smith Act. He quoted the Duke faculty member as promising to aid Scales himself or find him a lawyer because he felt even Communists deserved a fair trial.

Professor Maggs Friday denied again he had ever offered any legal aid to Scales, as he did when Clontz first testified he had.

The government has yet to get to that specific charge in its case aginst Scales. It must prove that he belonged to the Communist Party in the three years prior to his indictment last November due to the three-year statue of limitations.

THE WORKER

According to the April 17 national edition of The Worker, John Lautner, ex-Communist turned government consultant who early in the trial, testified that the Communist Party seeks to overthrow the government by violence, had as his job in testifying for the government "to cast a foreign sinister, conspiratorial atmosphere about the Communist Party." The article said, "One brief question from the government attorney was enough to get a flood of words from Lautner, with every event mentioned inevitably traced to Moscow." It added, "The government is prepared to admit that Lautner does not know Scales and never saw him, but insists that Lautner's fantastic testimony is necessary as 'background.'"

SCALES STATEMENTS

In 1947, The Daily Tar Heel obtained a photostat of a statement signed by Scales in which he said he had "been associated with the Communist Party for a number of years. Scales' statement also said "I am proud to be a member of a party which is democratic both in its own structure and in its outlook."

During the same year, he Daily Tar Heel obtained a photostat of a mimeographed sheet which was distributed by the "Communist Party of Chapel Hill" with the words "Junius Scales, Chairman" typed at the bottom.

Prose Poet To Give Address Wednesday

Anais Nin, prose poet who has been described as "a new voice in feminine writing," will speak here Wednesday in connection with the public showing of three experimental films, one of them based on Miss Nin's work, "The Bells of Atlantis."

The films, which are the creation of Ian Hugo, artist-engraver, emphasizing the use of electronics, will be sponsored by the Departments of Art, English, Music, Physics and Radio-Television-Motion Pictures.

Kenneth Ness, acting Art Department chairman, said Miss Nin will speak at the showing, set for 8:30 p.m. Wednesday in Carroll Hall, on "The Poetic Film."

Joan Brown Wins

Miss Joan Brown, University art major, last night walked away with top honors in the Miss Chapel Hill beauty contest.

Miss Jerry Lynn Rainwater, creative writing major, took the runner-up spot.

Miss Brown, slated ot give a modern dance interpretation, injured her leg and was forced to model two of her own dress designs as her part in the talent portion of the contest.

Miss Rainwater gave "Gathering at Chapel Hill High School," a monologue.

Bobbie Lee Moretz, rendering a dramatic reading, and Margaret Underwood, singing a folk song with guitar accompaniment rounded out the competitors for the contest.

Covering
The Campus

The annual installation service of the Baptist Student Union will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the Baptist Church.

Supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

Student Chaplain James O. Cansler, Dr. Samuel T. Habel of the Baptist Church and Professor David Basile of the Church's Student Affairs Committee will take part in the program.

Tom Mauldin, retiring BSU president, and Daniel Vann, incoming president, will address the congregation. The service is open to the public.

★

The Newman Club will hear Dr. Paul Ito discuss "Christianity in Japan" at 7 o'clock tonight in Roland Parker Lounge.

Plans for future meetings will be discussed at an officers' meeting today after 10 a.m. mass.

★

Mrs. Ethel Nash, UNC professor of sociology, will speak on "Marriage" tonight at the Westminister Fellowship meeting.

The supper forum group will meet at the Hut. Supper will be served at 6 and the program will begin at 7. The meeting will be open to the public.

★

The Faculty Wives of the Business Administration School will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m.

★

The Cosmopolitan Club will have a picnic today at the Duke Gardens today.

Transportation will be provided for club members at 2 p.m. at the Y.

★

Dr. Wallace E. Caldwell, professor of ancient history, will speak on "New Discoveries in Ancient Greece" at the Faculty Club Luncheon on Tuesday at 1 p.m.

Order Of Golden Fleece, Carolina's Highest Honorary For Men, To Tap Undisclosed Number Tomorrow Night

NEW SOUND & FURY:

Hailed As Big Improvement

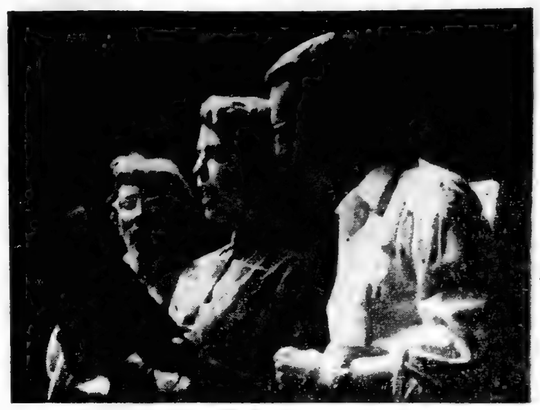
By CHAL SCHLEY

"Satan's Saints," the new Sound and Fury production, is moving into its third week of rehearsals, and it's looking good, according to Miss Bo Bernardin. Miss Bernardin wrote the show and is now its director and one of its principal actresses.

Several rehearsal-watchers who were in no way connected with the production said they thought this new show was a big improvement over previous Sound and Fury musicals.

One watcher liked it because the plot, an original one by Miss Bernardin, "leads somewhere and is funny as hell,"

The plot deals with two groups — boys from a boys school and girls from a girls' school— who are about to take a trip into the mountains, with chaperones, of course. The story of what happens to the kids and the chaperones are hired as entertainers in a hotel comprises the plot.



Another watcher liked the music best. The melodies were borrowed from five Broadway shows: Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, The Boy Friend, The Girl in Pink Tights, House of Flowers and Pal Joey. All words have been changed.

Miss Bernadin was asked to comment on any outstanding members of the cast ,and she said she couldn't. "Every one of 'em's outstanding as far as I'm concerned," she said.

Director Bernardin's enthusiasm for the cast is apparently equalled by the cast's high regard for her. "She's tops," said one actor. "When she graduates, they'll need at least a couple of people to take her place."

On the technical side, the production will include original sets and costumes, designed by Miss Bernardin.

The GMAB Dance Committee will foot the bill for this.

SOUND & FURYITES PRACTICING
. . . three weeks' work
—Markham photo.

Preregistration

Students should report to 308 South Building between April 18 and April 30 to sign up for preregistration appointments, according to an administration spokesman.

Preregistration will be held from May 2 through May 13.

Deadline Tomorrow For Orientation Applicants

Applications for positions as men's orientation counselors must be filled out and turned in to the information office of Graham Memorial or the YMCA by noon tomorrow.

The forms are now available at Graham Memorial, Lenoir Hall and also may be obtained from all dormitory and fraternity presidents.

Interviews of appplicants will be held in the Rendezvous Room of GM Tuesday through Friday nights, plus afternoons if need be, according to Burt Veazy, orientation chairman. The applicants will be notified of their interview appointments by campus mail. Interviews will be by appointment only.

Veazy urged that all men students interested in being an orientation counselor fill out applications and turn them in. He said being a counselor "is a gratifying experience and a great service to the University."

TRACK MEET

As of press time late last night, there was no word concerning the Carolina-Maryland track meet scheduled yesterday afternoon in College Park, Maryland.

April 20 Slated As Last Day To Reserve Dormitory Rooms

Students now in school have until April 20 to sign up for rooms for next fall and this summer, according to an announcement from the Housing Office yesterday. Those who wish to stay in their present rooms will have priority.

To reserve a room, a student should go by the University cashier's office, not the Housing Office, said the announcement.

Since summer school comes before the next academic year, summer room assignments will go out first—sometime during May. Fall room assignments will be sent out during June, the announcement said.

Bobbitt To Speak To Initiates

An undisclosed number of campus men will be tapped by the Order of the Golden Fleece tomorrow night at 7:15 in Memorial Hall.

The ceremony will be open to the public, although doors of the auditorium will be closed promptly at 7:15 to preserve the impressive ritual, and will be followed by the annual Valkyrie Sing.

The men who are chosen by the highest men's honorary organization of the University are selected for their leadership, integrity and service. Their names are kept completely secret until the actual tapping.

The officers of the Order for 1954-55 will be revealed for the first time during the ceremony. Following the ceremony, Judge William Bobbitt will speak to the new initiates at a private banquet in the Carolina Inn.

The active members of the 53-year-old organization, which is the second oldest in the nation honoring outstanding campus men, are Herbert Browne, Tom Creasy, Walt Gurley, Russel Jordan, Charles Kuralt,

Jim Lamm, Paul Likins, Jim McIntyre, Roy Moose, Horace Stacy,

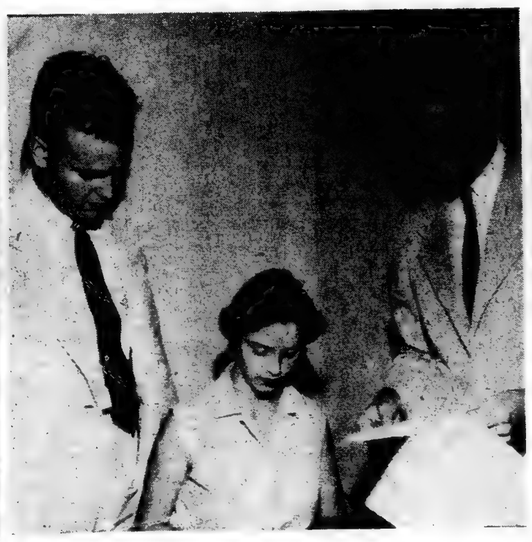
Jim Wallace, Ed Washington and Bill Wolf.

The Valkyries, the highest women's honorary campus organization, will present the annual sing immediately following the Fleece ceremonies. Fraternities, sororities and dormitories will compete vocally with one another in the event.

Godfrey And Jamerson Enter Town Elections

Dr. James L. Godfrey and Dick Jamerson, professors at the University, have filed as candidates for seats on the Chapel Hill school board. Municipal elections will be held May 3.

Dr. Godfrey, professor of history, is chairman of the Chapel Hill Parent-Teachers Asso., Dr. Godfrey was one of the leaders in the PTA's fight for a liquor referendum.



Jamerson, a professor of physical education, is making his first bid for office.

News Of The Week In Review In Pictures

Dr. Johnson Gets Chi O Service Award

Dr. Guion Johnson received Chi Omega Sorority's Distinguished Service Award. Chancellor Robert House (left) presented the award and citation, which described Dr. Johnson as "author, scholar, executive and historian who has ever been a living example of integrity, high ideals and an understanding heart." Dr. Johnson, who serves as president of N. C. Women's Council, has been outstanding in her work with women's and civic groups throughout the country. —News Bureau photo.

Old Legislature Met For Last Time

The "old" student Legislature met for the last time, but it didn't end with a whimper but a bang, passing massive student budget. Old Legislature leaders, above, are (left to right) Parliamentarian Joel Fleishman, Clerk Caroline Davis (who left this semester to practice-teach) and Speaker Martin Jordan.—Wright photo.

Spring And Students Came Back To Chapel Hill

The wall in front of Battle Dormitory came back into use, as did the bench behind said wall. The boys from Battle and other Carolina Gentlemen succumbed to the warmth and outblossoming coeds and stretched their legs on said wall. Students came back from spring recess, many of them sunburned. Spring was evidenced by appearance of full cotton dresses, walking shorts and a Russian flag which somehow found its way to the top of Caroli na's flagpole.—Henley photo.

Old Vampire Stirs From Its Den

"It is, in a way, subsidization of a particular group." State Rep. John W. Umstead of Orange County spoke those words last week of a motion he sponsored before the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Subcommittee. The motion, now approved by the subcommittee in connection with its bill to raise tuition rates for out-of-state students at state-supported colleges, called for exemption to scholarship holders from the fee raises.

"For scholarship holders": That is, or used to be, an unobjectionable phrase in the colleges and universities. No longer, however, does the word "scholar" in "scholarship" have its due meaning. The subcommittee motion means now, in effect, that a large number of out-of-state scholarship holders draw their "scholarships" for participating in intercollegiate athletics. The present exemption move can be reduced to one single objective: To keep scholarship fees for athletics down.

One Clear Motive

The graduate student who will be expected to plunk down $140 more next year if he comes from outside the state will get no exemption. Nor will the out-of-state undergraduate without a scholarship find the $140 boost erased from his tuition bill. The motive is plain to see. Mr. Umstead, in a statement explaining his stand in the matter, said:

> The basketball team at State and the basketball team at the University of North Carolina are composed almost entirely of out-of-state students. These students are at these institution on scholarships set up on the basis of $360 out-of-state tuition. The money for these scholarships is contributed by loyal alumni . . . and everybody knows that the Wolfpack Club at State and the Educational Foundation at Chapel Hill have, and are now having, their problems.

We do not call into question Mr. Umstead's long and rapt attention to the University's needs. He is, and has been, one of her staunchest advocates. But the reasoning behind the present scholarship exemptions, cogent enough on the surface, stirs from its sleep that old vampire of athletic subsidization unfairly given which has sucked at the University's substance (over many objections) for a long, long time.

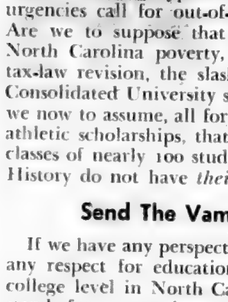
Which Problems Come First?

"Everybody knows that the Wolfpack Club . . . and the Educational Foundation . . . have . . . their problems." Are we to suppose from this that the University itself has no problems? Are we to suppose that no real financial urgencies call for out-of-state tuition raises? Are we to suppose that the laments about North Carolina poverty, the need for state tax-law revision, the slashed budget for the Consolidated University signify nothing? Are we now to assume, all for the greater glory of athletic scholarships, that professors teaching classes of nearly 100 students in English and History do not have their problems?

Send The Vampire Back

If we have any perspective left; if we retain any respect for educational integrity at the college level in North Carolina, we will not stand for exemptions giving privileges to special groups when other, infinitely more important groups need relief so badly.

And we would remind you of one final factor: The motion giving exemptions to scholarship holders (and we hope we have made clear who holds the lion's share of these scholarships) rode through the subcommittee over the clear and contrary advice of the President of the Consolidated University. Mr. Gray's letter, read before the group, was paraphrased this way:



> The president does not advocate exemption of non-resident scholarship holders, because it seems to him that such exemption would establish the policy of special treatment for a special group.

Whose advice, then, will the members of the State Legislature heed? Will they respect the express desires of President Gray or will they try to pacify the poor and problem-ridden Educational Foundation and Wolfpack Club?

Will we mend roof leaks when the foundations of the house are beset with tremors?

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Business Manager ..... TOM SHORES

Night editor for this issue ..... Bob Dillard

Carolina Front

Chronicles Of Enterprise—1 Whizz, Whizz

J. A. C. Dunn

DUE TO THE fact that we drive a middle-aged and rather temperamental Ford, we frequently find ourself soliciting the services of a mechanic. The best mechanic we have been able to find in the area is one Willy Johnson, who hangs out in a square, two-place cement block garage on the Airport Road a mere tiddly-winks flip from his own back door. Mr. Johnson, who began learning his trade at an impressionable age when he took down the motor of what would now be a very old Buick, found he couldn't put it back together again, and called in a mechanic to teach him how, has come up with what we think is an inspired idea.

"The only real trouble with these new cars," say Mr. Johnson, 'is that most of them won't be on the road after about five years. They're built for looks, not for the quality of the machinery. What we need" (and here Mr. Johnson looks dreamily into the middle distance, yearning for the days when a man could get at a carburetor without having to be a contortionist) 'is a revival of the old Fords and Buicks and Chevrolets. If I could be assured of a return on the investment, I'd sink every nickel I make for the next five years into rebuilding old 33's, 34's and 35's. Rebuild 'em, sell 'em to people who want a car for use, not to impress other people."

★

THIS PROJECT IS just about as near to the eighth wonder of the world as we think we'll come for awhile. We know. We drive an old Ford, and we have driven late-model cars, all kinds. The late model cars are no good. True, they ride like cotton, they look like a Roman palace, and most of the time one can't really tell if the motor is running or not; but they can't be trusted. Take the hydromatics, the Ford-omatics, Powerglides, Dynaflows, whatever you want. They're the most terrifying machines on the road.

To begin with they go too fast without being asked to; one only needs to think very hard and all of a sudden the car is haring along at a brisk (and for this day and age, tame) 70 mph. Furthermore, we get the feeling, whenever we drive one of those Enigmatic gearshifts, that we are not in full control of the car. It sort of does what it wants to, most of the time, fortunately, in the right direction.

And then there are the power whatnots. Power steering, power windows, power brakes, power, power, power. What are people coming to that they can't turn the steering wheel? Who's afraid of the Big, Bad Brake? or What Stiff Pedals You Have, Grandmama! Power steering, automatic transmission, mechanical signals, forsooth. All this luxury mechanism takes the sport out of driving. There's an art to driving a car, but it's rapidly being lost in the morass of convenient accessories.

★

PERHAPS, ONE DAY, Mr. Johnson will realize his dream, and once more we will have cars that can be trusted. Of course at the same time we will have steering wheels that have to be worked at to be turned, and windows that take all of three seconds to wind up, an dbrakes one really has to push on just a bit to slow the car down with; but at the same time we will have gears that can be felt, motors that are accessible, a machine that will return reliance placed on it, instead of a collection of two-tone terrors that behave like prima ballerinas every time the temperature goes below 30 degrees, or every two weeks anyway, regardless of fluctuations of the thermometer.

We suspect that probably teenagers and college students would be among the first to start buying rebuilt Fords and Chevrolets, along with country people, who want transportation and not a show of affluence. We also suspect that the prices would be considerably lower than most car prices now. We further imagine that were there an increase of gentler cars in the country, the nation's highway problems might well begin to return to a more manageable norm. Perhaps not, but then again, perhaps so.

'Sh—We're Busy'

CONGRESSIONAL PICTURE

Eisenhower's Spell Breaking

WASHINGTON — The spell which President Eisenhower has seemed to cast over many Democrats especially in the Senate has been broken. This was evident in the wake of the unexpectedly numerous and emotional tributes to the late President Roosevelt delivered by Democratic Senators on the 10th anniversary of his death.

All factions of the majority were represented in a display of spirit very different from the caution and even defeatism which has lately prevailed among them. For a long time Democratic Senators were noticeably nonbelligerent on political questions or matters relating thereto, and they frowned on belligerence in the National Committee.

Now the Senators, led by Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson, have kicked off a week end of party festivities with a show of confidence and unity. It could not be more welcome to the Democrats gathering here in thousands for celebrations culminating in a dinner tribute Saturday night to Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Former President Truman, Adlai Stevenson and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will be on hand. But the politicians understand very well that while these dignitaries are important spokesmen and showcases, the record on which the campaign must be waged will be made in Congress. And there has been a very widespread feeling that the Senators were far too slow and cautious in making it.

For this reason Senator Johnson's words and actions are being watched with special care. He is aware of the situation and eager to reassure the party that the Democratic Senators will do their share. He will be among the speakers Saturday night but plans only a personal tribute to his fellow-Texan with whom he served in the House. Anything else, he fears, might detract from the Rayburn story.

That the Speaker is prepared to lead the charge against the White House is well known. He has long expressed severe disappointment in Eisenhower as President. He is worried about the direction of the drift in China policy and his feelings were not improved by "silly and irresponsible" blasts thrown at his tax proposals by the President a few days after he personally saved the Eisenhower reciprocal trade bill in the House.

The break in Democratic defeatism is composed of several factors. In part, it represents the erosion of time, the mistakes made by Dulles, and by far in greatest measure is the feeling that in the China matter they have a real issue. The last named will, they feel, serve to divide the Republican party and force the President at long last to take an irrevocable stand, which will alienate one strong faction or the other.

The Democrats are convinced that the country wants peace. They are sure that Americans are reluctant to hurl atomic bombs over Quemoy and Matsu. They believe that they are reluctant to hurl bombs on behalf of Chiang Kai-shek. In this they believe that basic Democratic policies and good politics coincide.

Another Reader's Retort On Odors

Editors:

Can it be that plant enriching product of the nether end of our Houyhnhnm land friends that wafts through our air? I think not. Even that base portion of the horse smacks of more truth and sincerity than this foul stench that stamps and stumbles into our dorms and classrooms on journalistic hobnails—size 13, if you will. This smell becomes more localized when we lift the reeking rag of DTH April 14, and reaches unbearable intensity as we read the first "editorial." (The word "editorial" is used loosely, since it implies an "editor" which, in turn, implies the first part of an atom of intelligence, the last remnant of which apparently packed up and left with Mr. Kuralt.)

Let us arm ourselves with clothespin and (pardon the expression) prophylactic gloves, and peruse this "editorial." What does it say? Who knows? One line says that our student government derives its power from the consent of the governed, i.e.' the students. Shortly thereafter we read that we must stay away from the president's office lest we offend him (?) or possibly others whose offices are at the south end of the same floor. That's it! Keep the students away from the president and vice versa. That way he'll know how we feel and what we want. How will he discover these things? How else but that he be informed by those mighty minions of the DTH —champions of those who are blind and stupid enough to be led by the nose.

Students! Wear not your brogans in the realm of G.M. The editors of the DTH have sensitive nostrils and you might disturb their arrogant bliss. And, if bliss be the only reward of ignorance, let us not deny them this small favor. Destroy all incriminating footwear, lest you be purged.

Nevertheless, take heart fellow students. Heed not the aimless smear of the editor. Don Fowler's hand is extended to all, regardless of style, size, or void of shoe. Accept this gracious invitation which we have not heard before—no, not in three years at U.N.C.

Don Fowler—Godspeed!

(Aw, come on. We'll use clothespins.—Editors)

L. H. LAWING, JR.

CPU Talks On Yalta

Nine days ago the results of an opinion survey released by Dr. George Gallup at Princeton, N. J., revealed that slightly more than half (approximately 56%) of the American public have taken an interest in the State Department release of the Yalta papers. Of this interested majority, the opinion that the State Department was correct in making the papers public prevailed by a five-to-four margin.

An interesting political sidelight to this question is the division among the so-called "informed" members of both parties. Among those Republicans expressing interest and opinion, the proportion was three-to-one approving release of the papers. Conversely, among Democrats the opinion that they should not have been made public was prevalent by a ratio of three-to two.

Aside from either party's political position with respect to this issue, what are the larger implications for the American public present and future? To begin to understand the tremendous import of the decisions reached at Yalta, the military situation at the time should be kept in mind.

We are privileged to review with hindsight the record as released, but we have no such informatoin on what preceded at Teheran, Cairo or Casablanca In the poll referred to earlier the prevalent opinion was to the effect that "they are a part of history and can be used to correct mistakes in years to come".

At half past eight this evening in the Grail Room of GM the regular roundtable discussion of the CPU will unravel the topic.

A Poem By Ron Levin

Pink snow flurries . . . early April
Straining winds toss hard in labor
Teasing winds deliver litters
Filling gutters in the sun.

No

stoic stovepipe hat men here or whirling infant arms in streets

But

stepped on sweetness lying there between the cracks. At night they shine
The walk lights feast their eyes and dine.

Pink snow lounging on red walks melting slowly into spring's second pseudo
thaw

Quote, Unquote

It would be madness to let the purposes or the methods of private enterprise set the habits of the age of atomic energy.—Harold Laski, Plan or Perish (1945)

★

The place where optimism most flourishes is the lunatic asylum. — Havelock Ellis, Little Essays of Love and Virtue

★

Business? It's quite simple. It's other people's money.—Alexander Dumas, the Younger La Question d'Argent

★

Pigs Is Pigs.—Wilhelm Busch

DAILY CROSSWORD

Saturday's Answer

ACROSS
1. Mark
6. Smart
11. Water craft
12. Capital of Viet Nam
13. Musical instrument
14. Company of eight singers
15. Allowance for waste (Comm.)
16. Thus
17. Poem
18. Mulberry
19. Break with the teeth
21. Pointed arches
23. Mother
27. Shrubs which yield cocaine
28. Bestowed
29. White ant
30. Government grant to an inventor
31. A standard
33. Negative reply
34. Tattered cloth
37. Near
38. Pertaining to the atlas and axis
40. Think
42. Constellation
43. Keeps
44. Scope
45. Rugged mountain crest
46. Complies

DOWN
1. Native of Scotland
2. Herb used for flavoring
3. A plant whose stalks are candied
4. Ditch around a castle
5. Enclosure
6. Discharge, as a gun
7. Varnish ingredient
8. Inside
9. Girl at a school for boys and girls
10. A little boy would fly one
16. Little girl
19. God of pleasure (Egypt.
20. Send forth
21. Tuber (So. Am.)
22. Idle
24. One of the Roman hills
25. A calendar of months
26. Insect
28. Herd of whales
30. Lever
32. Fat
34. Girl's name
35. Armadillo
36. Bestow
38. Native of Arabia
39. Persons or things
41. Seine
42. National god (Tahiti)

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

'Pack Halts UNC On Six Hits, 6-3

Four-Run Fifth Gives State ACC Win; Will Frye Homers

By BERNIE WEISS

North Carolina State's Wolfpack banged out four hits, including a triple, and a sacrifice fly in the fifthinning yesterday to score four runs and smack the Tar Heels for the second time this year, 6-3, at Emerson Field.

Righthander Billy Franklin went eight innings to gain credit for the win, though he needed help in the bottom of the ninth from Sam Welsh when Carolina came to life. Welsh poured water on the Tar Heels in a fine relief role, as Lou Dickman had done for State in the previous game.

The Wolfpack's four-run fifth brought the team from behind, for Carolina had taken a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the first. Russ Casteen began the State rally by singling past second base with one out. Sonny Santoli hit a one-baser to centerfield, but didn't stop running until he reached second, and Casteen gained third on the poor handling of the throw back into the infield. Jack Turney was intentionally passed by losing pitcher Jim Raugh to fill the bags and Bill Peed sacrificed a fly to left, scoring Casteen. Santoli held second. Then Dud Whitley blasted a triple to deep right field, chasing home Santoli and Turney, and Joe Barringer singled to center to score Whitley. Norm Norris fanned to end the inning.

STATE ADDED the insurance run in the top of the ninth when Santoli, who had walked, rounded the bases on a bunt and subsequent wild throw past first base.

State took the lead initially, pushing across a marker in the top of the first inning on Casteen's triple and Al Long's error at shortstop on Peed's hot grounder.

Then Carolina opened up in its half of the frame. Long walked as lead-off man in the revised lineup and Dick Hudson, playing right field, singled to center with Long moving to third. Harry Lee Lloyd bounced a short fly off the pitcher's rubber to bring in Long and send Hudson to second. Will Frye bunted, but was tossed out as both baserunners advanced. A wild pitch by Franklin allowed Hudson to come in and Lloyd to reach third. Then Gravitte walked and swiped second base, but Mal Harding and Woods popped out to end the rally.

The other Tar Heel run was a homer by Frye in the bottom of the eight. Hitless until that moment, Frye straightened out a Franklin curve and the line drive took one bounce, then hit the retaining wire fence in left-center. He scored easily.

RAUGH DIDN'T go all the way for Carolina. He was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth, after allowing eight hits, fanning eight and walking one, and lefty Morris "Whitey" Hall came in with his submarine ball to subdue with 'Pack with two hits and one run for the remainder of the game.

It was Carolina's fourth consecutive loss in conference competition. (Raugh is 2-3) a 5-1 ACC record, Carolina 1-4.

The box:

N. C. STATE	AB	R	H	O	A
Casteen RF	4	2	2	2	0
Santoli CF	4	2	1	3	0
Turney 2B	3	1	0	2	0
Peed 1B	4	0	1	10	2
Whitley SS	5	1	2	1	2
Barringer 3B	5	0	2	2	6
Norris LF	4	0	1	3	0
West C	4	0	1	4	0
Franklin P	4	0	0	0	1
Welsh P	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	37	6	10	27	9
UNC	AB	R	H	O	A
Long SS	2	1	0	0	2
Hudson RF	4	1	2	4	0
Lloyd 2B	4	0	1	0	4
Frye 1B	3	1	1	9	0
Gravitte CF	2	0	0	3	0
Harding LF	3	0	0	3	0
a-D. Hill	1	0	0	0	0
Paller RF	0	0	0	0	0
Woods 3B	2	0	0	0	1
Hartman 3B	1	0	1	1	2
Love C	4	0	1	7	0
Raugh P	2	0	0	0	1
b-Zachary	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	29	3	6	27	11

a-Flied out for Harding in 8th
b-Ran for Hall in 9th

N. C. State	100	040	001 — 6
UNC	200	000	010 — 3

E - Long, Raugh, Santoli, Hall. RBI - Lloyd, Peed, Whitley 2, Barringer, Frye. 2B - West, Whitley. 3B - Casteen, Whitley. HR - Frye. SB - Gravitte. S - Frye, Lloyd, Turney, Sacrifice fly - Peed. DP - Barringer and Peed 2. Left - N. C. State 9 North Carolina 9. BB - Off Raugh 1, Franklin 8, Hall 2. SO - By Raugh 7, Franklin 2, Welsh 1. HO - Raugh 8 in 5; Hall 2 in 4; Franklin 6 in 8; Welsh 0 in 1. WP - Franklin. Balk - Raugh. PB - West. L - Raugh (2-3). W - Franklin (11). T - 2:15. U - Beck and Simpson.

JOE BARRINGER, North Carolina State centerfielder, cuts a ground ball to third base in the fourth inning of yesterday's contest between the Wolfpack and UNC, won by State, 6-3. With two men on base, Barringer was tossed out by Jack Woods. State failed to score in that inning as Jim Raugh fanned the next two batters. Carolina catcher is Jimmy Love and the umpire is Juny Beck. (Henley photo)

Wall Leading By One Stroke In GGO Golf

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 16 (AP) — Art Wall Jr. shook off National Open champion Ed Furgol, his co-ceader at 18 holes, with a 63 today to post a 134 for a one-stroke lead after 36 holes of the $12,500 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Two new challengers, Sam Snead, after his fifth Greensboro victory, and Julius Boros, the 1952 National Open champion who was married only last Monday, came charging home with three-under par 67s, for the day's best scores, to tie for second place at 135, one shot back of Wall.

Furgol, who had a trying time with a bogey six on the last hole, finished with par 70 for 136 and fourth place going into tomorrow's final 36 holes.

Wall, 31-year-old former Duke University player from Pocono Manor, Pa., had to birdie the last two holes to pass Boros and Snead who finished well ahead of him. Art turned in par 35 for the 6,600-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

Track Frosh Meet State Mon. Night

Carolina's freshman track squad goes after its second win of the season in a night meet with N. C. State's frosh at Raleigh tomorrow. Action gets under way at 7 o'clock on the State oval.

In the UNC Tar Babies' only meet this season, they swamped State's Wolflets, 105-26, by taking top honors in every event. A repeat performance of the lop-sided win for the Tar Babies is likely.

Ronnie Austell, who broke a 26-year old UNC freshman record when he toured the 440-yard run in 50.2 seconds against the Wolflets in the first outing, is expected to pace the Carolinians to victory along with such other standouts as Everett Whatley (mile), Ben Williams (880) and Richard Rigsbee (two-mile).

ALSO EXPECTED to score highly for the Babies will be Jim Varnum (dashes and broad jump), Gene Drury (hurdles), Oscar Davis (pole vault), Cledith Oakley (javlin', John Upchurch (high jump and pole vault), Bob Allison (shot and discus), and Hubert Clemmer (220).

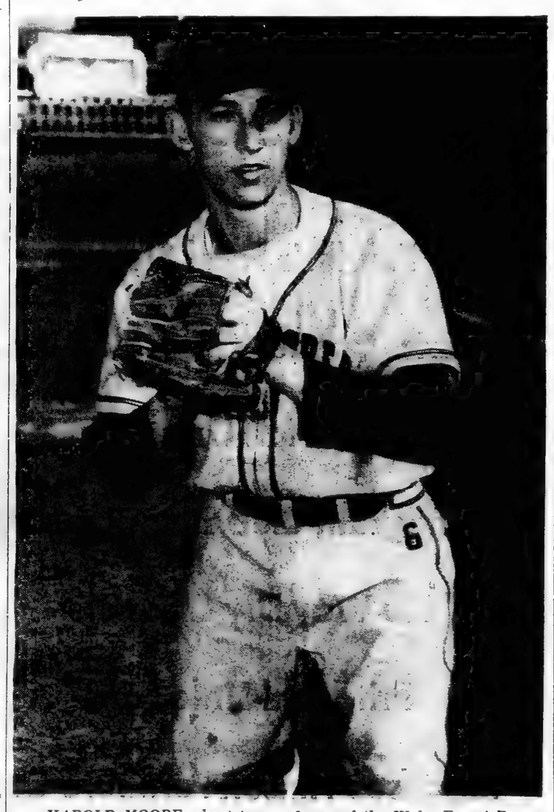
Gamecocks Triumph Over Deacs, 7-2

Wake Forest, N. C., April 16 (AP) — South Carolina bunched five of its hits and took advantage of five Wake Forest errors in the first two innings for a 7-2 win over the Deacons in an Atlantic Coast Conference game here today.

It was the second loss of the season for Wake Forest and the first in conference play.

In The Majors:

Tribe Loses, Giants Win



CHICAGO, April 16 (AP) — Walt Dropo came through today with a grand slam homer that broke a fifth inning stalemate and powered Chicago to a 9-4 triumph over the champion Cleveland Indians. The 425-foot smash into the upper reaches of the left center field stands by the big first baseman, who was part of the Ferris Fain deal with Detroit last winter, plastered the Tribe with its first defeat of the campaign after three straight victories.

Dropo's first homer of the season geared a six-run fifth inning in which the Sox disposed of starter Bob Feller and Ray Narleski.

Narleski, who went in after Feller had loaded the bases to force in the first run. After Jim Rivera popped out, Dropo unloaded his homer.

NEW YORK, April 16 (AP) — Jim Hearn's pitching and a barrage of home runs by Davey Williams, Whitey Lockman, Don Mueller and Hearn himself brough the New York Giants an 8-3 victory over Philadelphia today, the first victory of the season for the world champions.

Hearn, who had a disappointing 8-8 season last year, gave up 10 hits in handing Philadelphia its first loss of the season. But he had an 8-0 lead before the Phils got their first run in the seventh inning. The strong game by the big righthander, who now has a adelphia, lived up to Manager Leo Durocher's prediction he would make a comeback in '55.

HAROLD MOORE, shortstop, and one of the Wake Forest Deacone who plagued Carolina last week when Wake Forest won from the Tar Heels, 2-0, will be back to haunt UNC again Tuesday. The Carolina nine will again travel to Wake Forest Tuesday for an ACC game, second of the year with the boys from Baptist Hollow. Wake Forest's victory in last week's game came in a 5 and one-half inning, rain-drenched affair.

Browne, Payne-Green Lose Bouts But Netters Swamp Presbyterian

By DAVE LIEBERMAN

In a sterling exhibition of tennis, Carolina's varsity team met its first real competition of the season in Presbyterian College yesterday and came through with a 7-2 victory. It was only the second time this year that the Tar Heels lost an individual match in the first nine matches and it marked the first doubles loss of the season.

Alan Morris, the highly touted ace from Presbyterian, showed brilliance in beating UNC's Herb Browne in the No. 1 singles match. After losing the first set, 4-6, and being down in the second, 2-4, Browne looked as though he was going to go ahead in taking a love game from Morris' fine service. But in the next game Morris broke Browne's serve, making it 5-2 in favor of Morris. Then, in the next game, Browne again took the Atlanta ace's serve; it was in vain, as Morris came back to win the next game and take the match, 6-4, 6-4.

In the first set of the No 1 doubles match, with the score 3-2, Browne and Tom Bradford took Jerry Hunt's service and went on to win the first set, 6-2. It looked as though it would be no contest from that point forth, but Hunt and Dick Macatee played a fine second set before going down to Browne and Bradford, 8-10.

IN ANOTHER fine doubles match, Morris, playing with Giles Clifford, beat Bobby Payne and Pete Green of Carolina, 7-5, 6-1. Morris and Clifford played aggresive tennis all through the second set, and they seemed to have Payne and Green a little discouraged. The PC men switched sides to confuse the Carolina duo and take many points this way. Switching sides is a hard trick to master, but the speed and agility of Morris and Clifford made it seem easy.

Except for these matches, the Tar Heels did not experience too Ronnie Kerdasha both won their singles matches without giving up a game, and Pete Green also looked good, winning 6-2, 6-1.

CAROLINA'S NEXT tennis match is with Duke Wednesday. In Duke, the Tar Heels will meet some top-notch competition. Friday Duke met Presbyterian and Bobby Green, playing No. 1 for the Blue Devils, came through with an unexpected victory over Morris, so that is an indication of the caliber of the competition Carolina will face Wednesday.

The summaries of yesterday's match:

UNC's Correll Low Medalist In Tie, Win

Carolina's golf team defeated Maryland, 15-3, and tied Wake Forest, 9-9, while Wake Forest beat Maryland, 13-5, in a three-way dual meet here today on the Finley course.

UNC's Joe Correll took medalist honors with a one-under-par 71.

The Summary:

Gallagher (WF) defeated Parker (NC-, 2-1; Depiro (M) defeated Parker (NC), 2-1; Correll (NC) defeated Bellamy (M), 3-0; Derring (WF) defeated Bellamy, 2½-½.

Sykes (C) defeated Kerfoot (WF), 2½-½; Sykes (NC) defeated Parks (M), 3-0; Parks (M) defeated Kerfoot (WF), 2-1.

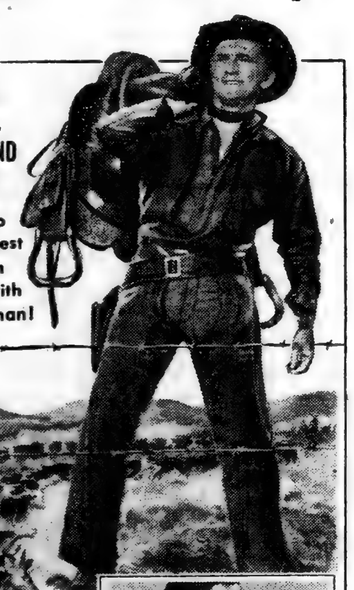
Brimingham (WF) defeated Ford (NC), 3-0; Ford (NC) defeated Weinberger (M), 2-1; Brimingham (WF) defeated Weinzerger, 3-0.

Turner (WF) defeated Rothrock, 2-1; Rothrock (NC) defeated Monk (M), 3-0; Turner (WF) defeated Monk, 3-0.

Sisk (NC) defeated Burton, (WF), 2½-½; Sisk (NC) defeated Moran, (M), 3-0; Burton (WF) defeated Morgan (M), 3-0.

CLASSIFIEDS

RELIGIOUS BOOKS — YOU'LL find a big clump of them at silly little prices in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.



OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

DEAD TEXTS BOUGHT—OUR annual clearance sale of dead texts comes at the end of this month. Until then we'll pay a nickel each for any back edition texts you want to unload. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, 205 E. Franklin St. (chg.)

THE DAILY TAR HEEL WILL pay 20c each for the first ten copies of the April 3 edition that are turned in.

TODAY THRU TUESDAY

Varsity

HIS HOME WAS HIS SADDLE... HIS ONLY FRIEND ...A SIX-GUN!

and he dared to keep the strangest bargain a man ever made with a woman!

Universal-International presents

KIRK DOUGLAS
JEANNE CRAIN
CLAIRE TREVOR

MAN WITHOUT A STAR

COLOR BY Technicolor

co-starring WILLIAM CAMPBELL with RICHARD BOONE
MARA CORDAY · MYRNA HANSEN

Directed by KING VIDOR · Screenplay by BORDEN CHASE and D. D. BEAUCHAMP · Produced by AARON ROSENBERG

April Is Go To The Movies Month In Chapel Hill

JOHN STEINBECK'S GREATEST NOVEL... AS ONLY ELIA KAZAN COULD FILM IT!

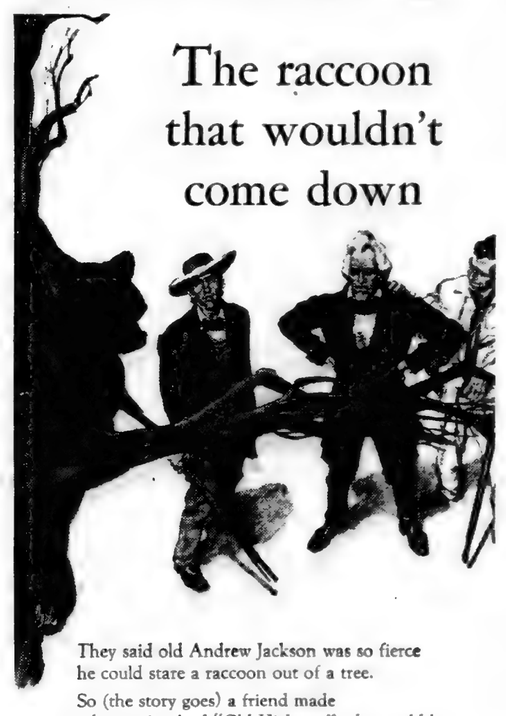
'EAST of EDEN'

PRESENTED BY WARNER BROS. IN CINEMASCOPE
WARNERCOLOR · TECHNICOLOR

NOW PLAYING

Carolina

APRIL IS GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH IN CHAPEL HILL



If You Like Babes With Brains Too — Just Keep Your Eye On The Gals Who Browse In

The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Open Evenings

The raccoon that wouldn't come down

They said old Andrew Jackson was so fierce he could stare a raccoon out of a tree.

So (the story goes) a friend made a bet on it. And "Old Hickory," who could be as obliging as he was terrifying, set out to help his friend win.

One night he and the financially interested parties went into the moonlit woods. They spotted their game, a small round silhouette high on a limb.

Fixing his baleful eye on the target, Andrew Jackson stared. He scowled. He glowered. He glared all night—but the raccoon never came down.

Even so, Andrew Jackson hadn't failed. For at sunup the men saw that what he had been staring at wasn't a raccoon after all, but a huge knot on the tree. And he had stared some of the bark off that!

A TALL STORY. But no taller than the man, born 188 years ago, about whom it was told. For rough, tough Andrew Jackson—soldier at 13, senator at 30, major general at 35, and our seventh president at the climax of his career—was one of the true giants of our nation's youth. Personally fearless, relentless toward his enemies, but self-reliant, honest and straightforward, he was the very embodiment of the early American spirit.

That spirit is as vital today as it was then. And you are an active part of it every time you invest in another United States Savings Bond.

For Bonds, which pay you good interest (3% compounded semiannually, when held to maturity) can make you personally independent in the best American tradition.

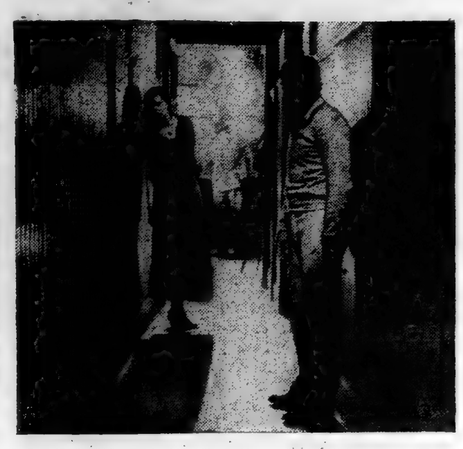
If you haven't already started on the Savings Bond road to individual security and independence, why not begin today? Sign up for Bonds through the systematic Payroll Savings Plan where you work. Or invest in them regularly where you bank.

SAFE AS AMERICA—
U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

The U. S. Government does not pay for this advertising. The Treasury Department thanks, for their patriotic donation, the Advertising Council and

The Daily Tar Heel

April Is



GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH

in Chapel Hill

At the CAROLINA...

"A MAN CALLED PETER"

"EAST OF EDEN"

GRETA GARBO IN "CAMILLE"

"The Prodigal"
With Lana Turner And Edmund Purdom

"The Annapolis Story"
With Diana Lynn And John Derek

"Bedevilled"
With Anne Baxter And Steve Forester

"Daddy Long Legs"
With Fred Astaire And Leslie Caron

At the VARSITY...

"THREE FOR THE SHOW"

"20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA"

"The Beachcomber"
Starring Robert Newton and Glynis Johns

"A Bullet For Joey"
Starring George Raft & Edward G. Robinson

"The Purple Plain"
Starring Gregory Peck

"This Island Earth"
Starring Jeff Morrow

"Marty"
Coming Soon

"ANIMAL FARM"

SPONSORS

The Bank Of Chapel Hill
Bounds Studio Of Dance
Carolina Florist Shop
Carolina Motor Co.
Chapel Hill Cleaners
Chapel Hill Weekly
Colonial Motor Co.
Fitch Lumber Co.
Fowler's Food Store
Harriss-Conner Chevrolet, Inc.
Lenoir Hall Cafeteria
Monogram Club Dining Room
Nu-Way Dry Cleaners
Pritchard-Little Ford
Riggsbee-Hinson Furniture Co.
Robbins' Of Chapel Hill
Stevens-Shepherd, Inc.
Sutton's Drug Co.
Thell's Bake Shop
University 'Sanitone' Cleaners
Varley's Men's Shop
Village Laundry and Cleaners, Inc.
Village Pharmacy
Wentworth & Sloan Jewelers

SERIALS DEPT.
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
8-31-49

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and a little warmer today, with expected high of 82.

The Daily Tar Heel

BULLS

The editors give a pat and a boot. See p. 2.

VOL. LVII NO.139 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

Carolina Student Charles Childs Was Red For FBI; Testifies Against Junius Scales In Smith Act Trial

DTH Science Writer Says He Was Member Until '52; Used As Surprise Witness

Names Scales Chairman

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 18 —(AP)— The government produced a soft-spoken University of North Carolina student today as a surprise witness to provide more recent evidence against accused Communist leader Junius Scales.

Charles Benson Childs, 24, of High Point and Winston-Salem was brought dramatically into the federal courtroom a few minutes after the luncheon recess. Scales quickly whispered to defense Counsel David Rein. Then he sat impassively as Childs told of being in the party under Scales up to August, 1952. Childs said he was an undercover informant for the FBI.

Scales is charged with party membership knowing that the party advocated violent revolution and working to bring that about.

As the trial entered its second week the government had called only two witnesses. One, ex-Communist John Lautner, was intended to show that the party does advocate force and violence. The second, Charlotte lawyer Ralph Clontz, said that as an FBI spy he worked under Scales through late 1951. Clontz insisted that Scales, 35, was committed firmly to violent revolution.

Between them, Clontz and Childs named nearly 20 persons they identified as Communists in North Carolina during their work for the FBI.

Childs, a crew-cut bespectacled young man in a neat pinstripe suit, half rose from the witness chair to point to Scales as the man he knew as party chairman for the Carolinas. Then he launched into a detailed discussion of his party association and membership.

Childs' early testimony did not say in so many words that he considered Scales worked for violent overthrow of the government. He did state, however, that Scales once urged him to remain his job at the Western Electric plant at Winston-Salem rather than return to college. He said Scales told him that "trade unions are the schools of the revolution and the party was trying to get students to go into industry," rather than vice versa.

This was in the summer of 1952, Childs said. He added that Scales predicted an economic crisis during the next national administration, with matters "coming to a head in five or six years."

He said Scales told him that if Communists returned to school or otherwise lost their contacts in industry "we would have to wait for the Red Army to liberate us."

Childs said Scales cited the case of Bernard Friedland, previously identified as party organizer for the Carolinas. Scales said Friedland wanted to study medicine but was post poning it until after The Revolution," Childs added.

District Atty. Edwin M. Stanley told the court that it would take "some while" to finish Childs' testimony. The questioning will resume tomorrow.

Under Stanley's guidance Childs related that he became interested in Communism while in high school at High Point. He said he had several discussions with an English teacher who was "in the Gastonia (textile) strike of 1929." His brother was in the mills' personnel department, he said. Childs did not say that the teacher discussed Communism as such with him, however.

Later, he continued, he heard a speech by Mike Ross, a furniture union organizer whom he later learned was affiliated with the Progressive party. He said he also learned that Ross had taken instructions from the Communist Party's National Committee.

Though Ross he met Bill Robertson, a member of the Communist Party, Childs testified. He said that at Robertson's home in Chapel Hill he received several pieces of Party literature, including a copy of the constitution. Before visiting Robertson, Childs said, he had gone to the FBI and volunteered to give them information because he had "decided these people's views were dangerous to my government."

Childs' story so far has taken him through a school for selected Communists from Virginia and the Carolinas held at an isolated farmhouse near Walnut Cove. He said Scales was director of the school. The farm was owned by William and Eleanor Binkley, Childs said. The school met for one week in August, 1952, Childs' added.

Oother highlights of Childs' testimony:

Childs, Robertson, Hans Friedstadt, a graduate student at the University of North Carolina, and Emmanuel Coutlakis, a UNC student, attended a meeting of the Labor Youth League early in 1950 at the room of a student at North Carolina A & T College here. Childs said Friedstadt and Scales had termed the league the youth wnig of the Communist Party. Childs said Scales also attended, with him, a meeting of the league in the summer of 1950 at Winston-Salem .

Henry Farash, "know to me as district organizer" for the party, invited him to join the party Oct. 12, 1950, Childs said. Two weeks later, Childs said, he and Virginia White of High Point paid their 50-cent initiation fees and were admitted. Childs said a new

(See CHILDS, page 4)

Childs Searched For WC Girl In Raincoat

Childs was the UNC student who searched for "the girl in the yellow raincoat" in 1953.

The mysterious girl from WC, attired in a yellow raincoat at a Consolidated University Day here, spoke to Childs. He searched for her, with no success.

The Daily Tar Heel heard about Childs' case. A series of stories smoked out several Woman's College girls who owned yellow raincoats. But none was Childs' girl.

The story started when a Woman's College girl, wearing a yellow raincoat, walked up to Childs during the CU Day and asked "Can you direct me to Graham Memorial?"

Childs did.

Later, Childs searched for the lady, but didn't find her.

He wrote a letter to The Carolinian, WC weekly newspaper, asking assistance.

Several girls responded, but none was the girl in the yellow raincoat.

Childs never found the girl.

Later, in 1954, Childs joined the staff of The Daily Tar Heel as a science feature writer. His stories have been mostly concerned with problems and potential of the atomic bomb.

Order Of Golden Fleece, Highest Honorary Group On Campus For Men, Initiates 15 Into Its Ranks

Many Witness Ceremony

Fifteen students were last night tapped into the highest honorary organization on campus, the Order of the Golden Fleece.

The 15 new members of the Fleece, second oldest honorary organization in the nation, are:

Osborne Asycue, Monroe, Dick Baker, Greensboro, Joel Fleishman, Fayetteville, Gordon Forester, Wilkesboro, Martin Jordan, Concord, William McLendon, Greensboro, Manning Muntzing, Moorefield, W. Va.

Edward Potter, Wilmington, Ken Pruitt, Winston-Salem, Raymond M. Taylor, Washington, Rollie Tillman, Lake Wales, Fla., Carl Venters, Jacksonville, Beverly Webb, Greensboro, Charles Yarborough, Louisburg and Ed Yoder, Mebane.

The audience was hushed as two "mythical giants" strolled through the aisles and pulled the chosen 15 from their seats.

After an introductory reading of the ancient myth of Jason and his quest for the Golden Fleece, two searchlights streamed through the hall and Ed Potter became the first to be tapped.

At approximately 8:30, Joel Fleishman became the last Fleece tapee for the scholastic year, 1955-56.

Fleece officers for the coming year are:

Jason, Horace Stacy, Hyparches, Walter D. Gurley, Grammateus, Lemuel Jordan, Chrystopher, Paul Likens.

As of press time last night, winner of the Valkyrie sing, held after the Fleece tapping, was not announced. Full particulars of the Valkyrie contest will be announced in tomorrow's paper.

AT AGE 76:

Dr. Albert Einstein Dies

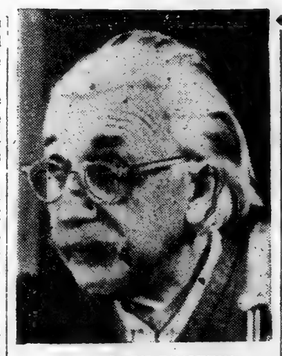
PRINCETON, N. J., April 18 (AP) — Dr. Albert Einstein, the gentle, wispy haired physicist whose studies lifted him to the summit of the scientific world, died early today at the age of 76.

The world-renowned author of the theory of relativity and leader in the fields of nuclear fission and electronics died at 1:15 a.m. (EST) in Princeton Hospital.

The death of one of history's greatest scientists was due to a rupture of the aorta, the main artery of the body, and hardening of the arteries.

Einstein, who had been in poor health for the past year, became ill Wednesday, but opposed surgery as his condition worsened. He was hospitalized Friday.

Muttering in German, Einstein "Quietly gave two deep breaths and expired," his physician said. Two nurses were at his bedside.



Word of his passing brought a deluge of messages of shock and sorrow from throughout the world.

The messages poured in to the gray, clapbord house which the little, umpretentious mathematical genius loved to think of as his haven from the outside world.

The family declined to reveal funeral arrangements, keeping both the time and place secret, much as it had endeavored to shroud the professor's movements in life.

One of Einstein's last contributions to science came in 1951 when he published the Unified Field Theory, a monumental mathematical treatise that stirred thinkers as few works before it have done.

It was described as daring and provocative because it sought to describe under one cover all the forces of the universe in a set of equators.

DR. ALBERT EINSTEIN
. . . one of the greatest

Einstein, who abhorred violence and lived in a peace of seclusion, gave science the rhetorical knowledge from which the atom bomb was developed.

The knowledge traced from his theory of relativity and held that matter, regardless of size, is energy. The world received jolting proof of this in the atomic blasts over Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Einstein's political view in later years sent him far afield of theoretical physics.

He advised witnesses called before Congressional investigative committes that they need not answer the questions of probers.

Thought He Was Backward

PRINCETON, N. J., April 18 (U.P.) — Einstein's family described his as almost backward and his teachers complained of his slowness in learning. He learned to talk so late that his parents were visibly upset.

He was born in a town called Ulm on March 14, 1879. The following year, his parents moved to Munich, where his father set up a small factory for electrical supplies.

He lived a sheltered life and revealed no special aptitude during his school studies. But at the age of five the usually absentminded child showed an unusual interest in the working of a compass his father gave him as a present.

When he was 12, he gave his parents another clue at to his future vocation when he was given a book on geometry. The book utterly fascinated him. Afterward, he made rapid strides in his mathematics courses but remained backward in most other

(See EINSTEIN, page 4)

Glee Clubs In Concert 8 Tonight

The University Glee Clubs, directed by Assistant Prof. Joel Carter of the Music Department, will present a program in Hill Hall tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Women's Glee Club, accompanied by Misses Nancy Eversman and Marjorie Still, will sing two groups of choral works or women's voices.

Miss Lynn Zimmerman, Marshall, will be featured as soprano soloist in "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning" from Oklahoma. In addition to selections from light operas, the women will sing music by Byrd, Bach, Mozart and Gershwin.

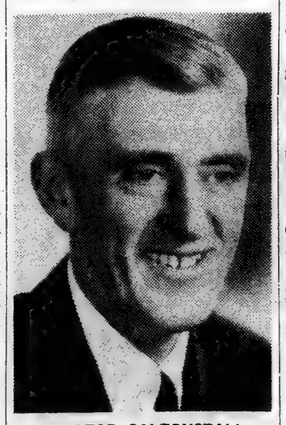
William Brady and Eugene Hudson will accompany the Men's Glee Club in groups of Negro spirituals, selections from operettas and choral arrangements of folk songs.

James Chamblee, baritone from Burlington, and James Pruett, tenor from Mount Airy will be soloists with the group in arrangements of folk ballads.

Other soloists will be Joseph McGugan, baritone from Fayetteville; David Small, bass from Morehead City, and Miss Jan Saxon, soprano from Charlotte, who will be heard in excerpts from Naughty Marietta and Showboat.

Daughtry Gets Y Handbook Editor Post

Curtiss Daughtry, Smithfield, has been appointed new editor-in-chief of the YMCA Freshman Handbook.



A meeting of all those interested in working on the handbook and all persons who have already applied for positions on it will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Y building.

Those who are interested in such work or who have already applied and who have a conflict tonight should go to the YMCA Publications Office today between 2 and 5 p.m., said the representative.

No positions except that of editor have been definitely assigned yet, said the Y spokesman yesterday.

Republican Statesman Will Speak

Sen. Leverett Saltonestall (R-Mass) will speak in Hill Hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, sponsored by the Carolina Forum.

SENATOR SALTONSTALL
. . . tomorrow night

Dr. James King, associate professor of history and social science here will introduce the Senator.

Joel Fleishman, chairman of the Carolina Forum, which "brings to the campus speakers represent-

(See STATESMAN, page 4)

Panhellenic Benefit Set Tomorrow

The Panhellenic Council benefit basketball game will be played tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Woolllen Gymnasium, announced Miss Babbie DiIorio, publicity chairman, yesterday.

The Blue-White intersquad game will climax spring basketball practice for the UNC varsity.

Proceeds form the game will be used to adopt a war orphan under the Forster Parents Plan, said Miss DiIorio. Part of the money will be used for the proposed Chapel Hill recreation center, she added.

Tickets for the game will be on sale in Milton's and in the Y tomorrow. They may also be obtained from sorority girls. The price of the tickets will be 50 cents.

During the half-time of the varsity game, boys from the sixth grade of the Chapel Hill grammar school will play an exhibition game.

Six members of last season's freshmen team will play in the game. Five of them will be on the Blue squad, which will be coached by last season's co-captain, Paul Likins.

(See PANHEL, page 4)

Tennis Ball Friday

Walking shorts, soft music and Japanese lanterns will provide the atmosphere for Carolina's second annual Tennis Ball Friday night at 8 p.m.

The under-the-stars dance is being co-sponsored by the Women's Residence Council and the Interdormitory Council.

Friday afternoon there will be a car parade, with prizes being given for the most original and novel decoration.

The car parade, which will be at 4 p.m., will originate at Navy Field. First prize will be $15 and second prize will be $10.

Roy Cole and his orchestra will provide the music for the dance.

Ted Kemp, co-chairman of the Tennis Ball, said, "Tables situated in cabaret style, orchestra in the center, Japanese lanterns and free refreshments, all in the open spaces of the asphalt courts — we plan for the whole campus."

'Wings, Wheels, Rudders' To Be Theme Of Business Frat Confab

Leading national executives representing trucking, airlines, railroads and other areas of the transporation industry will speak here April 27-28, when the local chaper of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity, will sponsor a Southeren Transportation Conference.

Chaper president Kenneth Argo of Kannapolis announced today that the overall conference theme will be "Wings, Wheels, Rudders: A Contribution to the Present and Future Development of the South." The fraternity is sponsoring the event as its annual service-to-the-school project.

Originally planned as the group's fourth annual Business Fair, the event will be devoted entirely to modern transportation's contribution to the South's development, Argo said.

Some 500 top executives from Southern industry and from transportation in particular, have been invited to attend the conference, Argo said.

The top speaker for the two-day meeting will be Edward Margolin, Washington, D. C., staff specialist for commercial transportation, representing the Department of Commerce and the Undersecretary of Transportation.

Other prominent executives scheduled to appear are three with headquarters in New York: Walter W. Belson, public relations director, American Pipelines Association, and L. J. Kiernan, Public Relations Department, Association of American Railroads.

Argo said speakers representing other areas of transportation will be announced soon, along with the selection of elaborate transportation procedues and expansions.

In their invitations to southern business leaders to attend the conference, Alpha Kappa Psi leaders stressed the South's position as number one economic opportunity in the nation.

"Transportation is vital in every phase of our economic life today," the invitation said. "Everything we produce or consume is moved in one way or another whether it be by rail, air, highway, pipeline or water."

DTH Editors Warn Budget Cut Will Result In 5-Day Schedule

"Unless students can persuade the Legislature to change its mind, next year's Daily Tar Heel will be a five-day newspaper," Editors Louis Kraar and Ed Yoder pointed out yesterday.

Student legislators, because of a slash in the campus newspaper's budget, dictated a five-day paper, according to the editors. Biggest cut in the paper's budget was in printing. Student legislators granted only enough funds in this area for five days of publication, said Kraar and Yoder.

In a special session last Friday night, the student Legislature cut The Daily Tar Heel's appropriation from $26,373. 60 to $21,426.-00. While the major item cut was printing, staff salaries were also cut. The editors' salaries were cut to $300 — or $5 per editor a week, which is one-fourth much as previous editors recieved. The editors' salaries total $10, which is one half of last years editor's salary.

"If students want a full, six-day newspaper next fall, we urge them to talk to their legislators," Yoder and Kraar said. "The Legislature consists of your representatives. Only if you let them hear your wishes, will they be able to represent you."

The editors added, "Although student government sponsors many activities, we feel that the paper is the only service that every student receives. For this reason, we think the Legislature should reconsider its budget and grant more funds to The Daily Tar Heel."

A Pat For Frats & A Boot For Bulls

From fraternity row—that plush segment of the University known in stereotype as the scene of winning, wenching, and singing—comes word of an academic triumph. For the third time since the fall of 1948, the academic average of fraternities is higher than that of the male segment of the campus.

The averages, computed on a sampling basis, point out clearly that fraternity men are not necessarily enrolled in the University merely to pursue the social graces (and, at times, ungraceful socializing). The Daily Tar Heel commends the fraternities for success with the books last term.

We feel that fraternities, besides providing comfortable social facilities, can help prod students into doing something for the University as a whole. Since the main business of Carolina, or any university, is the pursuit of academics, the success of fraternity row in its grades is to be admired.

Perhaps now that many fraternity members have caught the glint of Phi Beta keys in their studious eyes, the fraternities will begin to crack down on "bull" pledges, (pledges who frolic through two or three or four years at the University without making the required C average to become initiated as actives.)

Fraternities can make the grade academically. They've proved it this past semester with their grades. Now let them boot the "bulls" from their plush portals and stick to the books.

Another Raleigh Rat: Do You Smell It Too?

Henry Otis said he "smelt a rat" when the young United States stood ready to adopt a constitution without a bill of rights. Our olfactory organs, likewise, have twitched a bit at the bill, introduced by Rep. Walter Jones of Pitt County in the State House, to abolish the Board of Trustees and replace it with three others. The bill, if passed, would set up an autonomous board for each branch of the Consolidated University.

We have, and have expressed, serious misgivings about the number of Trustees on the present Board, the criteria of selection, and, emphatically, the methods of selection. The shameful exhibition recently put on in Raleigh Legislative halls when new Trustees were elected demonstrates the need for revision.

Aside from these reservations, serious dangers would be involved in breaking down the Board of Trustees into three. Conflict, competition having depreciatory effect on the University, and divided interests would be the major results of a break-down. Only on one condition—the complete dissolution of the bonds of Consolidation—would a destruction of the present single Board be advisable.

But, as we have said, we have "smelt a rat." We are not in a position to question Mr. Jones' motives in introducing the bill. We can only point out that Pitt County, which he represents in the Legislature, is the present seat of East Carolina College. Does that have anything to do with Mr. Jones' bill? We don't know, of course, but we do know that our Eastern "neighbor" has been on the march.

We may be the victims of imagination run wild, but we think we have heard their tabors beating on the outskirts of Chapel Hill.

Gracious Living—II

The horns (as anyone who ever listened to Jack Benny's program will recall) always blow at midnight.

Not any more, though, if the report from our Cobb correspondent is reliable. Nowadays, they break with shrill whines the still slumber of Sunday morning, rising from the Playmakers Outdoor Theatre across the way from Cobb, bringing supine sleepers to bolt uprightness between their sheets, and shaking assorted somnambulists out of their ambulating. Perhaps this is one of the small evils that must be endured when we wait for a full-scale production of Shakespeare on our campus.

To be in keeping, our protest against this blow to Gracious Living in Chapel Hill would have to go something like this:

Anon! What Ho! What vile knaves thus choose to ruin the day of rest? It tells no good for our fair village.

And if Bill would have said it, could we do anything but agree?

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Carolina Front

Dreamers In Legislature Not Beautiful

J. A. C. Dunn

THERE SEEMS to be an extraordinary prevalence of dreamy idealism floating around. The student Legislature evidently wants a Daily Tar Heel that is as close to professional as the editors can make it. They said a while ago that the editors of the DTH were 'lazy.' They demanded a paper that would give better campus coverage. They even went to the trouble to hold a formal investigation of the DTH. And now, lo and behold, they cut the editor's and the circulation manager's salaries, apparently believing tht these two jobs should be done for love. One legislator has expressed the opinion that incentive is decreased whe funds are increased. This attitude is not only silly, it is rude.

★

HORRIBLE THOUGH they may be to contemplate, could we perhaps come down to earth for a while and face a fact or two? An editor cannot be expected to do his best when he isn't getting anything in return, and the suggestion that the recipient of those funds is not only unreliable but lazy.

You cannot expect people to do their best with no reward. You cannot expect a man to put in hours of work to do a professional job when ke knows that the people who are paying him haven't either the confidence in his ability or the respect for him as an individual to pay him adequately.

In short, you cannot really do anything without money. It's awful isn't it. It's just terrible, and the human race is greedy and self-centered and a man ought to spend every afternoon in an office for the love of the job and welcome responsibility without any thought of self-gain—but he doesn't and there is not a thing anyone can do about it except breed a race of saints and then start a newspaper.

★

WE LEAD a fairly normal undergraduate life. We read the papers and see people and hear what's being said but just exactly why all this budget cutting is going on, particularly in view of the facts that next year's budget is being set up on the basis of an increased enrollment and that there has been a recent fee raise, has not been made clear. Why is the student Legislature doing all this? We don't know.

It is not unreasonable, we believe, to ask the student Legislature to explain to its constituents what it is doing and why, and in some detail, too. It is not their own money they are playing with.

★

THE DAILY Tar Heel reported, and accurately, we assume, in last Saturday's issue, that representatives Warren and Hudson advocated as a money saving device the abolition of the AP wire service, and suggested instead that the newspaper copy information they want either "from the radio" or "from other newspapers."

These extraordinarily unobservant and on the whole rather unthinking comments provoke several thoughts: Have Messrs. Warren and Hudson ever worked for a newspaper? For that matter have they ever worked for any publication? Regardless of whether they have or not, surely they can see that if The Daily Tar Heel has to wait for other newspapers to come out before it can collect anything to write about, it will be very late with its news. Furthermore, not all radio broadcasts are made on the spot; there is frequently a time lag between the event and the broadcast. What is the point of having a daily newspaper if its dateline is 24 hours later than other newspapers?

We respectfully entreat Messrs. Warren and Hudson, if only for their own good, not to mention that of the people whom they profess to represent, that in future they think before they blurt.

'He Gets Off A Nice Clear Decision, Doesn't He?'

MATTER OF FACT

As Peiping Sees Us

Joseph Alsop

TAIPEH, Formosa — In order to understand the Formosa crisis, we must try to see ourselves as others see us. And if attempt, the sad truth comes we make this always depressing out that the Chinese Communist leaders almost certainly believe that America really is a "paper tiger."

On this highly significant point, all the on-the-spot expert opinion is not surprising, either. For the Chinese theory that America is a paper tiger is rather squarely founded on the facts of the recent record.

In the period since the Eisenhower administration took office, there have been two tests of will and purpose between Peiping and Washington. The first test, whose outcome was the source of all the bristling current dangers in Asia, was the test in Korea.

In January 1953, America was tired of the Korean War, but China was utterly exhausted by it. Since August of the year before, half the Cabinet of the Chinese Communist government had been in Moscow, to plead for more generous aid which was not forthcoming. In December, the Chinese had even made an independent peace bid through the Indians, only to be slapped down hard by the old tyrant Stalin.

In the winter of 1953, in short, the Chinese were visibly hanging on the ropes. Whatever errors may have gone before — and this reporter thinks there were many such — the winter when President Eisenhower took office was the ideal moment to mobilize America's resources and go in to win in Korea.

VICTORY

A real victory in Korea whould have given the free world at least ten years breathing space in the Far East. But instead, after long hesitations, the Administration gave the Chinese Communists a truce which both ended the Korean strain on their regime, and left Communist China as the unchallenged and predominant military power in Asia.

The Korean truce led directly, inevitably and naturally to the next year's crisis in Indo-China. As though astonished by perfectly foreseeable consequence of their own decision about Korea, the Washington policy makers at first resolved that a surrender in Indo-China "could not be permitted." This decision of the National Security Council was freely publicized. The Vice-President himself informed the nation's newspaper editors that American divisions might have to be sent to Tonkin, and there was much other big, bold talk by those high in authority.

But in the outcome, the big, bold talk turned out to be meaningless. Protesting only feebly, the American administration assented to the Far Eastern Munich at Geneva. Chou En-lai enjoyed a grandiose international triumph, and the fate of Indo-China was sealed.

The Geneva Munich, in turn, led directly, inevitably and naturally to this year's crisis in the Formosa Strait. Once again, the Washington policy makers were visibly taken by surprise by the perfectly forseeable consequence of their own act. Once big, bold talk in Washington. And now we are again entering the period when the big, bold talk is to be put to the test.

LEADERS

The Chinese Communist leaders might be less confident of the result, if the evidence of the two previous tests of will were not confirmed by the evidence of recent American defense policy. Unfortunately, however, Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson' alleged defense States with less strength in the economies have left the United Pacific than at any time since Pearl Harbor. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles could say at Bangkok that we had more strength in the Pacific than in the moment of victory over Japan, only because we have stocks of atomic and hydrogen bombs that we did not have in 1945. But in simple terms of men, guns, planes and ships, the power we can bring to bear in the Far East has now reached its postwar nadir, being weaker by far than on the dark day when the Korean War broke out.

This state of affairs is given rather lurid importance, moreover, by one of the few wisps of fairly hard information about the Khrushchev-Bulganin-Mikoyan visit to Peiping last October. During this visit, when China's Formosa plan was coordinated with the present leaders of Russia, the Russians are reported to have assured the Chinese that they need not worry about America using atomic weapons in Korea, but instead patiently suffered the Chinese intervention there.

On the other hand, our present defense design depends very heavily on the overseas airbases of the Strategic Air Command. For all out atomic war, we need those bases. No one can be sure that the use of atomic bombs in the Formosa Strait will not lead to all our war. Our allies who control our overseas bases will not join a war starting in the Formosa Strait. Hence the risk of using atomic bombs to defend Quemoy and the Matsus is far greater than was the risk in Korea, when we did not use them. This reasoning is all too persuasive. Furthermore, if the Chinese believe we shall not use atomic bombs, they must consequently believe they can attack Quemoy and the Matsus Islands with impunity. Even if we fight back, our greatly depleted conventional military power in the Pacific is almost surely insufficient to hold the virtually indefensible rocks in the Formosa Strait against a determined Chinese assault.

PRACTICAL

Such is the practical position as it most probably appears in Peiping's eyes. Hence the tactic of "keeping them guessing" is about the worst we could adopt, for the Chinese are most likely to guess that we shall back down again as we did before.

It must be added that if we do back down again as we did before, the Chinese Communist leaders will inevitably regard America, not just as a paper tiger, but as a paper rabbit. And therefore next year's ugly choice will be as much worse than this year's, as this year's is worse than last year's, and last year's was worse than the choice in Korea.

Students See Trouble For Ike Is Ahead

If college students are any good at predicting the future, Ike will apparently have some scrapes with his Democratic Congress.

In a recently conducted national poll of collegiate student opinion, the following question was asked by the Associated Collegiate Press: Our country has a Republican administration and a Democratic congress. On the whole, do you think this division will: help, hinder, or make no difference to the chances of getting needed legislation passed in the coming two years?

Of the total answers, 22% believe that the split will actually help get neede legislation passed, while 47% think the split is a hindrance. Some 28% answer that the split will make no difference, and 3% hold no opinion.

There are no appreciable sex differences on this question, but some answers show a distinct party loyalty, such as the freshman coed from New York University who answers that "Southern Democrats will not help from the situation." Other students feel that Ike has received more help from the Democratic party than from his own.

The Logic Of A Rockefeller

Ralph McGill

They almost certainly would never have done so if the speaker had been an educator, no matter how famous or learned.

But they sat there—bankers, industrialists, professional men — and listened intently to a comprehensive speech on educational needs, with never a sign of restlessness.

The man who held them was a banker . . . a man of medium height, of black hair, a warm, friendly face with a nice smile.

But he also was David Rockefeller.

And so, because of the magic of his name, they began to listen. They, by the logic of his words, and the attrition of his statistics, he held them.

Here was a Rockefeller, executive vice president of the Chase National Bank, saying that American business must assist those private colleges and universities which are devoting their energies to a well-rounded educational program. They must do so because it is from such institutions that American business must obtain its leaders.

And, for free enterprise to exist in a free world, these must be men who know not merely techniques, but how to live and to meet the challenges of their culture and of the events, great and small, with which they must contend.

Wealth

And they listened.

Sitting there, looking and listening, one though inevitably of the famous name and of wealth. There have been, and are, many wealthy men in this nation. Only a few have known how to use wealth. Most of them have allowed it to use them. They are names in the gossip from the Riviera, from the world of "Cafe Society," in news stories of wastrel, lonely and lost persons.

The Rockefeller brothers are among the more useful men in America. Fortune Magazine, in a series about them, began an analysis, saying:

"Fifty-odd years ago, long before John D. Rockefeller's five grandsons had felt the weight of his wealth, indeed before they were born, a friend gave him some advice: 'Your fortune is rolling up, rolling up like an avalanche. You must keep up with it. You must distribute it faster than it grows. If you do not, it will crush you, and your children and your children's children.'

The Brothers

"Had this chill warning gone unheeded, any present appraisal of the Rockefeller grandsons would have had quite a different coloration. For example, the five brothers might never have been acclaimed, as they were in 1949 by the head of the New York State C.I.O., as the models of what a rich man's sons ought to be .The eldest, John Davison Rockefeller 3rd., 48, gentlest and most withdrawn of the brothers, might never have been free to pursue his special bent, venture philanthropy. Nelson Aldrich, 46, the quickest, a man of almost excessive ebullience, might have been cemented into the executive offices of some great corporation instead of becoming an important member of the Eisenhower administration, and quite apart from that, the best-known American in all of Latin America. Laurence Spelman, 44, the shrewdest, the one with the business acumen of his grandfather and the looks of his mother, might have been too confined to go into venture capital as its riskiest and most enlightened, putting money and time into small, undernourished but worthwhite companies (aviation, electronic, rocket, research) until they get rolling, then moving on to repeat the performance elsewhere. Winthrop, 42, the most human and freest spirit among the brothers, would not likely have shaken loose from Socony-Vacuum and become a vital force in the development of his adopted state, Arkansas."

secretary is open to doubt."

One thought of all that, listening to David Rockefeller talk.

A really useful life is perhaps the greatest gift to life.—The Atlanta Constitution.

Over The Hill

Charles Dunn

NEED: This University has many needs, both large and small. The most frequently heard ones are for more dormitory space and for a new student union building. Now we would like to mention a comparatively small need. That is another telephone for students use in the library.

They have one booth over there with a phone in it, and another booth with nothing in it. The one with the phone in it is in almost constant use, and usually there is a waiting line for it. Thus a lot of study time is wasted in waiting for the phone, and often when you get to the phone you find the number you dial is busy. Then you have to start at the end of the waiting line again.

If another phone were added, and it would be little trouble to do so, study time would be saved and fewer tempers would flare up.

★ ★ ★

COEDS: It was interesting to watch the coeds in class the first couple of class days this week. There were the tan ones who had spent most of the holidays at the beach; there were the extra sleepy ones who had a quiet holiday, sleeping regular hours at home; there were the extra happy coeds who had been pinned or even married over the holidays.

And all of them wanted to tell about the good times that they had, and many of them did tell . . . at the same time. Between classes the coeds would gather in little groups and fire away. People passing these little groups heard something like this:

"Sara . . . most . . . I did too . . . did you know' . . . and then he said . . . cold water . . . it was great . . . too short, etc., etc." Broken down all of these conversations seemed to say, "The holidays were wonderful, but they were just too short."

★ ★ ★

HOLIDAY: Needless to say, Chapel Hill is an entirely different place over the holidays, when students are away. There are parking places on main street, the movies aren't as good as usual, the restaurants aren't as crowded, etc. As one Chapel Hillian said the other day: "The holidays are nice for a little while, but after a day or so it gets too quiet. We are always glad to see the students return."

★ ★ ★

I DON'T BELIEVE IT: As the coed walked by clinging to her fellow's arm, one gentleman said to another: "She really loves me. She stays pinned to him just to make me mad."

★ ★ ★

WEATHER: When it rains in Chapel Hill, it really rains. Thursday morning is a good example of this. Many got wet on the way to their eight o'clock classes, even through raincoats. The bad thing was that you had to sit through the class with wet clothes on. Result for some was a sore throat and/or a cold.

But when the weather in Chapel Hill is pretty like yesterday, it is really pretty. The sun shining, but not to hot. The flowers, trees, and some people seem to look so alive, but then there are others who have a touch of spring fever and long to just loaf or take off for the beach.

★ ★ ★

TOURS: Granted that Chapel Hill is pretty when the weather is sunny and warm, and that most of these afternoons and weekends are just too pretty for studying, we suggest (if you like walking) a tour through Battle Park or a walk over the cross country course. But if you don't like walking you will get about the same results by driving around the suburbs of the village, or by driving to Durham on the old road, or even by driving down to Hogan's for the afternoon.

★ ★ ★

SPRING: Recent signs proving that spring is here include a Carolina gentleman celebrating a coed's birthday by shooting a shotgun at midnight, and the early morning flying of a Russian flag on the flagpole in the center of the campus.

★ ★ ★

WONDERING: How long we will have to wait for a pool table in the basement of Graham Memorial if the coeds start shooting pool?

—Reader's Retort—

Plant More Tulips On Campus, Says Reader

Editors:

Having read pro and con concerning a raise in tuition of in-state and out-of-state students, I wish to ask you to publish my humble opinion.

The Greater University of North Carolina should raise everyone's tuition in order to:

1. Build more brick walkways
2. Plant more tulips
3. Plant more shrubs
4. Plant more azaleas.

The azaleas are the most important because if we get enough of them we might be able to take the Azalea Festival away from Wilmington.

Darwin L. Bell

CUFF NOTES

By BERNIE WEISS

The University lacrosse team, as previously noted in this corner, is not officially recognized by the Carolina Athletic Association. It operates as a club, playing freshmen as well as graduate students, and thus is not recognized by the Atlantic Coast Conference either.

It seemed, however, that the lacrosse boys were getting recognition from the CAA recently when they were promised a northern trip to meet competition more in their class, since the local lacrosse schools (Duke and Virginia, for instance) are above and beyond the level of Carolina.

Now the news comes that the trip has been cancelled, and no reason for this move has been made. The cancellation probably came about because of a shortage of funds. Nobody will shell out for the guys.

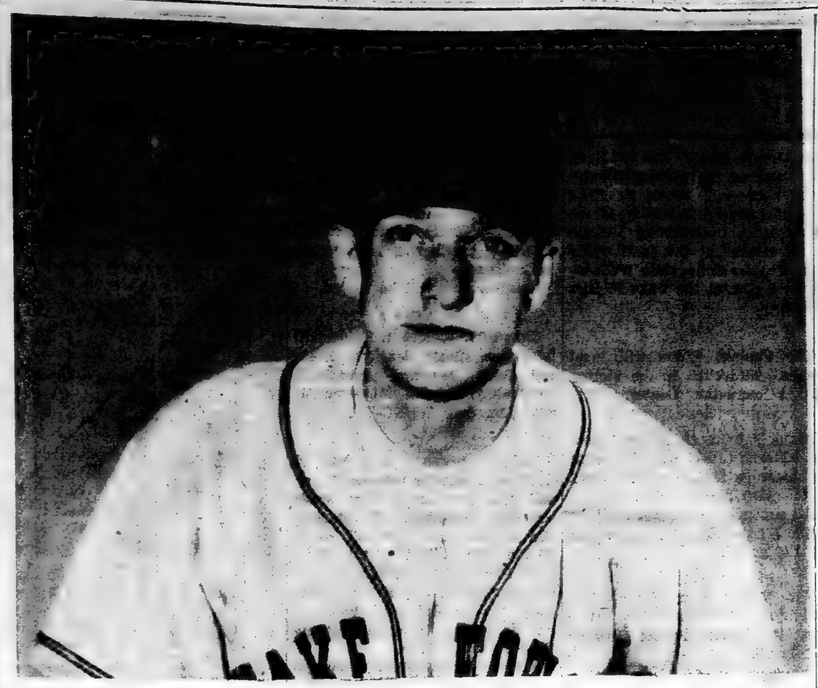
Everybody's having money troubles, and the athletic set-up here isn't any exception.

★

The last paragraph of the following letter from The Cornell Daily Sun promotes thought:

"Dear Bernie,

'I owe The Daily Tar Heel and you a vote of thanks. One of the first things which we did when I took over as sports editor a few weeks ago was institute an athlete of the week column. This idea was borrowed from your paper. Among the many papers which we get on exchange here at Cornell, your Tar Heel sports section is rated very highly.



"While covering the Dixie Classic basketball tourney this winter, I had the chance to see the North Carolina cagers in action. Rosenbluth really looks like a potential All-American. I'm glad that we don't have to compete in a league with N. C. State, Wake Forest, etc." (Note: Cornell dropped three straight in the Classic.)

I wonder if you can do me a favor. Cornell has not met North Carolina in tennis for a number of years now. I'd appreciate it if you would get a statement from the N. C. tennis coach and/or athletic director on the chances of North Carolina scheduling us in the sport sometime in the near future.

Sincerely,
Alan Cameros

TAKE IT SERIOUSLY

Coach John Kenfield and his tennis players at North Carolina take their tennis seriously. Not only did the Tar Heels win all of their first eight matches, but lost only one point. Swarthmore was the "villain" as North Carolina won, 8-1.

THIS IS THE FIGURE Tar Heel baseballers may be facing today when they meet Wake Forest's Deacons in Baptist Hollow. The face belongs to Lowell "Lefty" Davis, who plagued Carolinians throughout the basketball season and is back to continue his practice in baseball. In the last meeting between the two clubs, Davis blanked Carolina for 5⅓ innings as the Deacons took a 2-0 decision. He is currently the co-leader in pitching in the Conference, having a 4-0 record.

UNC Harriers Whip Maryland, Defending Conference Champs

(Special to The Daily Tar Heel)

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 9.—North Carolina's track team had too much overall strength and balance for Maryland as the Tar Heels defeated the Terps, 73-58, in an Atlantic Coast Conference dual meet in Byrd Stadium last Saturday.

Coach Dale Ranson's team took eight first places to the Terps' seven, but won the big points with 10 second places to five for Maryland.

As expected, Tar Heels Roger Morris and Claude Rhule were double winners for North Carolina. Morris, defending conference shot-put titlist, broke the old Byrd Stadium record he set last year with a toss of 51 feet, three-one-half inches. His record toss last year was 51 feet. He also won the discus with a new record, throwing 157 feet five and one-half inches.

THE OLD MARK of 153' 8¾" was set in 1951 by Bob Morse of Camp Lejune.

Rhule took both the hurdle events, winning the highs in 15.6 and taking the lows in front of teammates Charles Scott and Bob Wilson in 24.8 seconds. They were high point men for the Tar Heels with 10 each.

The much talked about mile race between Jim Beatty and the Terps' Burr Brim, both outstanding sophomores, turned out to be another thriller. Grim overtook Beatty half-way of the first lap and maintained a lead of about a yard until Beatty took a step lead on the third lap. At the start of the final quarter both were side by side then Grim took a two-yard lead only to find Beatty closing in on the second turn. With about 100 yards to go, Grim put on a tremendous kick and won going away with a lead of near 20 yard when he broke the tape. It wa run in the good time of 4:16.8 just two-tenths of a second of the old stadium mark.

Almost as exciting was the two mile run with North Carolina' Bobby Barden holding a good 25 yard lead through the first six laps over Terp sophomore Carl Party. With Barden seemingly tiring, the stronger Party increased his pace and overtook Barden on the seventh lap. A terrific side-by-side race lasted until Party put on his final burst of speed on the last turn and won by eight yards in 9:42.3.

THE TAR HEELS took five of the six field events and Maryland won five of six track events as well as the mile relay. Charley Yarborough came in with a leap of 22 feet one and one-fourth inches to take the broad jump and he and Dick Waters tied for first place in the pole vault with a jump of 12 feet, six inches. Maryland's defending pole vault champion Mel Schwarz did not compete because of an injury.

The Tar Heels swept the javelin, with Bob Wilson winning with a throw of 180 feet, eight inches. Steve Marcinko and Bob Bryan followed Wilson.

Boyd Newnam, defending outdoor half-mile champion, was the only North Carolina winner in the flat races besides Rhule's double winning efforts in the hurdles. He ran the half mile in one minute and 5/10.

The summaries:

100-yard dash: Abdalla, M; Mitchell, NC; Baynes, M. Time: 10.3. 220-yard dash' Wilson, M; Mitchell, NC; Baynes, M. Time 21.7; 440-yard dash: Wilson, M; Leas M; Hemler, M. Time: 48.6. 880-yard run: Newnam, NC; Faass, M; Horsley, M. Time: 1:55.5. One-mile run: Grim, M; Beatty, NC; McGee, M. Time: 4:16.8. Two-mile run: Party, M; Barden, NC; Good, M. Time: 9:42.3. 120-yard high hurdles: Rhule, NC; Scott, NC; Fellows, M. Time: 15.6. 20-yard low hurdles: Rhule, NC; Scott, NC; Wilson, NC. Time 24.8. Mile relay: Maryland (Hemler, Hower, Leas, Wilson). Time: 3:24.9. High jump: Hogan, M; Bryant, NC; Wilson, NC; Distance: 6'½". Broad jump: Yarborough, NC; Messersmith, M; Wilson, NC. Distance: 22' 1¼". Pole vault: Walters and Yarborough, NC; tie: Duval, M. Height: 12' 6". Shot put: Morris, NC; Dyson, M; Maslow, NC. Distance: 51' 3½". Discus: Morris, NC; Dyson, M; Maslow, NC. Distance 157' 5½". Javelin: Wilson, NC; Marcinko, NC; Bryan, NC. Distance: 180' 8".

Mathews Aids Braves Over Tough Cubs

MILWAUKEE, April 18. (AP) — Eddie Mathews produced a double when most needed today—in the eighth—to drive in two runs and push the Milwaukee Braves ahead into a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Mathews' 400-foot double to center field in the eighth scored Henry Aaron and pinch hitter Chuck Tanner. The blow ruined Warren Hacker's fine mound job.

The Cubs had held on to a 1-0 lead from the first inning, with Hacker and Bob Buhl locked in a pitching duel. Lloyd Merriman scored the Chicago run when he walked to lead off, went to third on Gene Baker's single and came in when Frankie Baumholtz hit into a double play.

UNC's Raugh Tied For Lead In Strikeouts

GREENSBORO, April 18. (AP)—Tommy Hargrove, junior left-hander from North Carolina State, and Lowell (Lefty) Davis converted Wake Forest basketball player, today lead the Atlantic Coast Conference pitching with identical 4-0 records, according to ACC service bureau figures through games of April 16.

Hargrove is also tied for the ACC lead in strikeouts with 34, sharing the pinnacle with right-hander Jim Raugh of North Carolina. Lefty Bob Weiss of Maryland, with a 3-2 record, is next in strikeouts with 30 and Davis is close behind Weiss with 20 whiffs.

R. O. HUGHES of South Carolina is the third man in won-lost figures, having three victories to his credit against no losses. Harleigh Fatzinger of Duke, Don Sheaty of Clemson and Russ Duffey of Maryland each have 2-0 records and Len Humphries of Clemson has a 2-1 mark.

Fatzinger boasts the conference's No. 1 earned run average to date, a brilliant 1.40. But close on his heels is Hughs with 1.54. Weiss has a 2.32 ERA mark, Humphries has 2.56 and Raugh 2.97.

Giants Wake Up, Humble Pirates

NEW YORK, April 18 (AP)—The sleep-walking New York Giants awoke from their spring slumber to hang on a sixth straight defeat on Pittsburgh 12-3 with a 15-hit barrage.

Little Don Liddle, making his first appearance, had given up only one run, an inside-the-park homer by rookie Roberto Clemente in the fifth, until he tired badly in the ninth. After Liddle walked the first three men up, Marv Grissom relieved. Clemente's sacrifice fly and George Freese's single added the two other runs.

SETS NEW RECORD

Jimmy Beatty, North Carolina track whiz, set a new record for his home field — Fetzer Field—this season when he ran the two-mile in nine minutes and 22 seconds flat.

Tar Heels Meet Wake Forest Today Gamecocks, Tigers This Weekend

Athletic teams of North Carolina face a busy schedule this week. Nine contests involving three sports and five different teams are slated for the Tar Heels, including six home games.

Of the six teams on the UNC spring schedule, only Coach Chuck Erickson's golf squad will not see action this week.

Three Atlantic Coast Conference baseball clashes highlight the activity. Today the baseball Tar Heels journey to Wake Forest for a second meeting with the Deacons after dropping the initial encounter, 2-0, last week. In the Tar Heels' other ACC clashes, they will host South Carolina Friday and Clemson on Saturday. It will be the Tar Heels first meetings with both teams.

In other activity, Coach John Kenfield's tennis team will host Duke tomorrow and go to Wake Forest Saturday, the freshman baseball team will entertain Wake Forest today, and Coach Dale Ransom's varsity track squad will meet Wake Forest here today and host South Carolina Saturday.

The schedule:

Today: UNC at Wake Forest (varsity baseball and varsity track), Wake Forest at UNC (frosh baseball).

Wednesday: Duke at UNC (tennis).

Friday: South Carolina at UNC (varsity baseball), UNC at Duke (frosh track).

Saturday: Clemson at UNC (varsity baseball), South Carolina at UNC (varsity track), UNC at Wake Forest (tennis).

Dick Levin's
Combo-Orchestra
16 FLEMING RD.
8-0268

COMPLETE SERVICE
NATION-WIDE MOVING
DEPENDABLE STORAGE EXPERT PACKING

The Safe, Easy Way To Move To Or From All 48 States & Canada
FREE ESTIMATES
RALEIGH BONDED WAREHOUSE, Inc.
Dial 3-7555 RALEIGH, N. C.

Out-of-Doors Calling?

It's Spring! The out-of-doors is calling with a thousand voices. Croak of frog, song of bird, twang of tennis racket, even a silent stretch of grass ideal for philosophising a deux—wherever you turn there's an invitation to get out and have fun.

Your old Intimate Bookshop, which is positively Taoist in its devotion to riding with the tide, ventures to suggest a few books to help you make the most of this state of affairs.

In the Garden —

Better Homes and Garden's Garden Book—This famous loose-leaf handbook is always up to date—and fuller of ideas than a lettuce patch is of cut-worms. $3.95

The Southern Garden, by L. and D. Hastings. A complete guide, tailored to this area. $4.95

Flowers of the South, by Greene and Blomquist. Dr. Blomquist, of Duke, is an authority worth following $5.00

For Nature Peepers —

A Field Guide to the Birds, by Roger Tory Peterson. Standard for this birdy secion. Take somebody nice bird-watching — who knows what may happen? $3.75

A Field Book of Snakes, by Schmidt and Davis. Don't overlook snakes. Remember the Garden of Eden $4.50

Field Book of Seashore Life, by Roy W. Miner. Strange and primitive creatures you can find on the Tidal Shelf $7.00

A BOOKSHOP SPECIAL On The Green Carpet
by Robert Tristram Coffin
An outstanding poet tells of the relationship of nature to his work. (Originally $3.00)
$1.25

Swat and Strain

Tennis Techniques Illustrated by Mace and Micoleau. Seems a shame to put in all that work and not hang up a win or two. Here's an understandable book to help you. $1.75

Baseball Techniques Illustrated, by Allen and Micoleau. The sort of thing you need to know, made clear in pictures $1.75

Faster Sailing, by Robert N. Bavier. For the experienced sailor. $5.00

Power Golf, by Ben Hogan. If you know that a birdie isn't necessarily achieved by putting salt on its tail, here's the book for you $3.00

The Nicest Spring Sprout

The Evolution of Love, by Donald Day. A sixty century history of what's uppermost in your mind. $5.95

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. Franlin St. Open Evenings

LADY MILTON SHOP
Just received shipment of straight cut golfer Dan River baby cord shirts in blue, pink and tan —
7.95
New shipment of baby cord bermuda shorts—in blue, pink and tan —
5.95
Plenty of good-looking shirts to go with them, at—
4.95
MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

TALK OF THE CAMPUS

Nowhere in the entire campus world can you match our value in Ivy cotton cord slacks—fit to perfection, narrow cut, with back buckle strap, ready cuffed, in sanforized combed cotton baby cord, choice of blue, tan or gray —
4.95
Milton's Clothing Cupboard

For Your Best Selection Of After-Six Products, Come to
Town & Campus

buttons and beaus
BMOC and back-bench boys—go for AFTER SIX formals. Styling so trim, fit so "natural" "stain-shy" finish so safe from spots! For more fun—go

After-Six For Sale or Rent.
Single or Double Breasted
Varley's

JOHN STEINBECK'S GREATEST NOVEL... AS ONLY ELIA KAZAN COULD FILM IT!

'EAST OF EDEN'
PRESENTED BY WARNER BROS. in CINEMASCOPE WARNERCOLOR · TECHNICOLOR
Last Times Today
Carolina
APRIL IS GO TO THE MOVIES MONTH IN CHAPEL HILL

Last Times Today

Varsity
— TOMORROW! —
A Case of British Aplomb!
The delightful story of a gent who went on a wild weekend with his fast-moving first love named Genevieve ... and took his wife along!
The J. Arthur Rank Organization presents
Genevieve
COLOR BY TECHNICOLOR
starring
DINAH SHERIDAN · JOHN GREGSON
KAY KENDALL · KENNETH MORE

NO!
Spring has sprung
And winter's went
Snow clothes, NO GO!
A change is imminent

YES!
Sport shirts, mighty fine
Walk shorts too
A new suit, sport coat
Does the trick for you—

See Bob and Monk at
Town & Campus

Spring Means Hogan's

By EBBA FREUND and JACK WIESEL

Carolina students are notoriously single-minded. When asked yesterday what spring brought to their minds, three-fourths of the students asked answered "Hogan's and the beach."

A few of the students asked, had something else on their minds . . . different places to party and different ways of saying that spring is goof-off time.

Karl Knight said, "Being human . . . I think of all the little things."

One of the little things that spring makes Linda Piland think of is grass. "When spring comes I often wish I were a horse so I could eat grass," she said.

Malcolm Cooper said when asked what thoughts ran through his mind in spring, "Yellow-green leaves . . . top down on my convertible . . . and if I am elected, I sincerely . . ."

His companion, Dick Kashinsky, said, "Birth."

Spring makes Eric Heiden think of Woman's College. "I think of all those WC girls taking sunbaths on the tennis courts," he said.

Patsy Daniels, elections board chairman, has only one thought on spring: elections. "When I think of spring," she said, "I think of the referendum on the fee raise."

Seniors To Have Week

This year's Senior Class Week will be held next week from Monday through Friday. Plans are still incomplete but a tentative schedule has been announced, according to Reuben Leonard, publicity chairman.

On Monday, the seniors will be treated to free movies by both the Carolina and Varsity theatres. The movies will be late shows.

Tuesday will be Class Free Day. No seniors will be required to go to class. There will be a mass meeting of all seniors in Memorial Hall with the meeting will split up into smaller meetings with deans of the various schools.

The Senior Class Picnic will be held at Hogan's Lake on Wednesday of next week. The picnic will start with a parade in front of Woollen Gym at 3 p.m. There will be free food and soft drinks served at the picnic. Music will be furnished by a combo, said Leonard.

On Thursday Sound and Fury will present "Satan's Saints" for the Seniors, who may obtain free tickets in Y-Court.

Friday is "Barefoot Day."

Senior Week will end on Saturday night with an outdoor dance sponsored by Graham Memorial in honor of the seniors.

Charlie Yarborough is president of the Senior Class. Committee chairmen are: Martin Jordan and Miss Barbara Stone, Social Committee; Rueben Leonard, Publicity Committee; Bill Calvert, Alumni Committee, and Rollie Tillman, Finance Committee.

Exact times and other information will be given later in the week, said Leonard.

– Statesman –

(Continued from Page 1)

ing varying shades of political and economic thought." will preside.

Senator Saltonstall, active in politics for 28 years, has been a member of the U. S. Senate since November, 1944. He is a member of Armed Service Appropriations, Small Business and Republican Policy committees, and acts as majority whip.

Mundy To Chair New CPU

David Mundy, sophomore from Black Mountain, was elected Chairman of the Carolina Political Union Sunday night.

Taking office immediately and serving the 1955-56 term, he succeeds Bob Harrington in the post.

Mundy, a member of The Daily Tar Heel staff, is also clerk of the Dialectic Senate and a member of the Debate Council.

Gerald Mayo was elected vice-chairman of the Union, succeeding himself in that office. James Dear was also reelected recorder.

Jim Turner was selected to be the Union's representative to The Carolina Forum, and Bob Harrington was selected to be its representative to the Debate Council.

"Founded during the 1930's, largely under the influence of Dr. E. J. Woodhouse, the union has long played a role in the intellectual life of the campus, as a group taking no stand on any issue, but providing a relatively informal opportunity for the discussion of whatever topics the union shall select," said the new chairman.

– Einstein –

(Continued from Page 1)

subjects.

His schooling led him to various jobs ranging from private tutor to physics instructor to patne examiner. He developed his relativity theory while working as a patent examiner in Berne, Switzerland, from 1902 to 1909 and later at the University of Berlin.

The theory, which even today only a few persons understand, actually had its birth when Einstein was a young man of 16. He was fascinated at what might happen if he were able to imprison a ray of light.

In 1916 the theory was published in the yearbook of physics. Three years later scientists halted it as the greatest discovery concerning the study of the forces of gravity since the days of Newton. It took up 64 pages in the yearbook.

He was married in Berne when he was 23. His wife, Elsa, bore him two sons. He later re-married, but his second wife died in 1936.

He won the Nobel Prize in 1921 for a new theory on "photo-electrical effects" which later aided the development of television. He traveled extensively and made influential friends.

In 1905, Einstein propounded the famous equation which set men on the search for atomic energy.

–Childs–

(Continued from Page 1)

club organized then consisted of himself, Virginia White and Eugene Feldman of Greensboro, identified to him by Scales as a representative of The Daily Worker in the South.

When it appeared that he and Coutlakis were going to be drafted, Childs testified, Scales gave them autographed copies of William Z. Foster's "outline of the political history of the Americas." This was at a party at the Robertson home in Chapel Hill. Chiles said he later was classified 4-F. Shortly afterward, in April, 1951, he got a job at the Winston-Salem Westerin Electric Plant and also entered the Communist Party Club at Winston-Salem.

In November, 1951 Childs said, Scales asked him during a "Cadre Review" at Winston-Salem to name his five closest friends in the party. Childs said he listed Scales, Henry Farash, Jerry Pearson, Bill Roberston and Velma Hopkins. Childs said he knew Velma Hopkins only slightly but named her so there would be a Negro in the group. He said otherwise the Party would consider him guilty of "white chauvinism."

Childs listed among those attending the Walnut Cove school: "George Van Camp, Jerry Van Camp, Betsy Tyree (later Mrs. George an Camp), Nat Bond of Durham, Mr .and Mrs. Binkley, Viola Brown of Winston-Salem, Bill McGrit, Warren Williams," and two women from Virginia.

During cross examination by Rein, Clontz listed these persons as known Communists — either "met personally" by him as Communists or introduced to him in their presence as Communists:

John Meyers, assistant professor at the University of North Carolina; Bernard Friedland; Henry Farash; Junius Scales, Vera Lacob Scales, his first wife; Gladys Myer Scales, his second wife; Laurnet Frantz, a Duke University graduate student; Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Koral; William A. McGirt, a UNC student from Wilmington; Bill Robertson; Hans Friedstadt.

Rein referred to Clontz' testimony that Scales had told him Communists consider it proper to lie if the end justifies the means. Then he asked Clontz whether he felt it necessary to tell the truth at all times and under all circumstances.

Clontz, a minister's son, said he always told the truth under oath.

"You told numerous falsehoods" to Scales and others in the course of his FBI work, Rein noted.

Clontz said he did not regard that "as a breach of moral ethics." He said "I don't think it would be a sin to lie" in an effort to preserve the government of this country.

– Panhel –

(Continued from Page 1)

Al Lifson, last season's other co-captain, will coach the White squad.

Center Joe Quigg, forwards Pete Brennan and Bob Cunningham and guards Tommy Kearns and Charlie Adams will perform with the Blue squad, with Roy Searcy, the sixth member of last seasons's freshman team, going with the Whites.

Veteran Jerry Vayda, who will enter his fourth varsity campaign next season, and Buddy Clark, another varsity hold-over, will round out the Blue squad.

Lennie Rosenbluth heads the White team's list. Others on the White squad, in addition to Searcy, include Bob Young, Tony Radovich, Gerry McCabe, Hillary Greene, Frank Goodwin and Ken Rosemond.

Covering The Campus

Dr. Joseph Straley and Dr. Nand Lal Singh of the physics department here will speak on "The Use of Infrared Intensity Measurements in Determining Molecular Structure" at the joint UNC-Duke Physics Colloquium Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Duke Physics building.

★

The Student Wives will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Victory Village Recreation Center.

★

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will hold its regular meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the APO room in GM.

All prospective pledges must be present, according to a spokesman for the group.

★

The Young Republicans Club will meet Thursday night at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge Number 3.

★

Don Huntington won the Senior seat on the Men's Council, according to Patsy Daniels, elections board chairman. The Daily Tar Heel had printed previously that Graham Shanks had won.

★

The Bullshead Bookshop tea will be held in the assembly room of the library on April 21 at 3:45 p.m. Mrs. Inglic Fletcher will speak on her new book, The Scotswoman. She will be introduced by Mrs. Lyman Cotten who is a personal friend of Mrs. Fletcher's and also serves on the library staff.

★

Prof. Alexander Heard, of the Political Science Dept., chairman of the committee on Established Lectures, announced yesterday there will be no Weil lecture this academic year.

Dr. Heard said plans for 1955-56 Weil lectures are indefinite.

★

The University Party will meet tonight at 7:30 in Graham Memorial.

Election of the new party chairman will be held.

The group will also celebrate the victory in the spring elections, according to Charlie Yarborough, UP chairman.

Refreshments will be served.

★

Chancellor Robert B. House will interview Misses Marilyn Zager and Bebe Baumann concerning leadership training tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. over WUNC-TV.

★

Today between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m. and tomorrow between 7 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. all parking space between Morehead Planetarium and Battle Lane, and all space at the eastern end of the Morehead Planetarium parking lot will be reserved for out of town delegates to the Episcopal Woman's Auxiliary Diocesin meeting at the Chapel of the Cross.

All parking permits will not apply in the above spaces at the above times.

★

Miss Katherine Carmichael, Dean of Women, will give a tea for students living in Alderman today from 3:30 until 5:30 p.m.

The tea will be held in her apartment, G-2 Graham Courts.

Dean Carmichael said all students living in Alderman are invited to attend.

★

The deadline for applications for the positions as men's orientation counselors has been extended until 11 p.m. tonight, said Burt Veasy, orientation chairman, yesterday.

The applications may be obtained at the information office of Graham Memorial, Lenoir Hall and from all fraternity and dormitory presidents. They must be returned to the information office of Graham Memorial.

★

The annual Officer's Planning Conference, promoted by the BSU, will be held at the First Baptist Church, Lexington, April 22-24.

Thirty-five North Carolina colleges will be represented at the three day conference. There are 18,000 Baptist students in colleges and universities throughout the state. Four hundred are expected to assemble at Lexington to plan the work for the coming year.

Mistress? Pro & Con

Is the "continental" system of having wife and mistress superior to the "American" wife system?

That's the topic for the annual Di-Phi debate tonight. Debate is slated for 8 p.m. in Di Hall, according to Lewis Brumfield of the Phi.

The Phi is scheduled to argue that the wife-mistress system is inferior to the American practice of combining mistress and wife into one woman.

Phi debators will be Miss Pat McBane, Mel Moore, Roy Taylor, Charlie Katzenstein, Brumfield and Harold Downing.

The Di will argue the positive side. Bob Harrington, Scotty Hester, Jim Turner, Larry McElroy, David Reid and Stan Shaw will debate for the Di.

Judges for the debate will be Doctors J. E. King and R. B. Linker.

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
PATENTS PENDING
An entirely new concept in cigarette filtration. A filter tip of purified cellulose, incorporating Activated Charcoal, a filtering substance world-famous as a purifying agent, notably for air, water and beverages.
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Columbia Week
SALE
12" LP's
All 3.98 – 2.98
All 4.98 – 3.59
All 5.95 – 4.10
All 6.95 – 4.95
Kemp's
Records & High Fidelity Equipment
207 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Phone 5396

When I was young my father took me on his knee
And told me of the songbirds way and the habits of the bee.
But one thing I will bless him for until my dying day
He told me about Harry's Grill and then showed me the way.
HARRY'S

The L. W. Norton General Agency
of the
NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO. announces the appointment
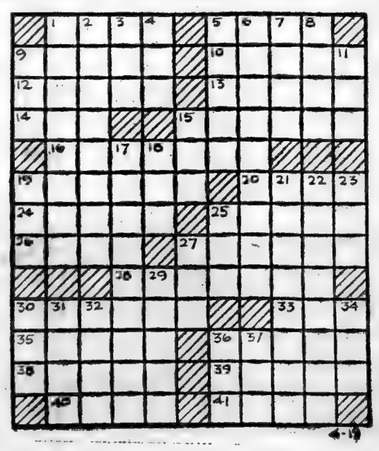
of
M. L. Thompson
and
Arthur De Berry
as Representatives for Chapel Hill
OFFICES: 2nd Floor, Dawson Bldg.
Next door to Univ. Nat'l. Bank
W. Franklin St.
PHONES: Day 9-3691
Night 8-5381



DINNER JACKETS
For Rent
Varley's
MEN'S SHOP

Chicago College of OPTOMETRY
Serving an Attractive Profession
Doctor of Optometry DEGREE IN THREE YEARS
Professional Recognition by U.S. Dept. of Def. and Sel. Service.
Two Large Eye Clinics
University Environment. New Dorms and Apartments on large adjoining I. I. T. Campus.
Your Liberal Arts Credits Applicable for Entrance (60 Semester Credits in Specified Courses.)
CHICAGO COLLEGE of OPTOMETRY
3243 South Michigan Avenue
Technology Center, Chicago 16, Ill.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Boast
5. Social group
9. New England state
10. To man again
12. To make void
13. Capital of Guam
14. A swine
15. Native of Utah
16. A small bit
19. Cubic meters
20. Shakespearean character
24. Nut
25. A rounded hill (Sp.)
26. Chests
27. Famous Italian poet (poss.)
28. Standard
30. Of the Virgin Mary
33. Spanish hero (Lit.)
35. Natives of Arabia
36. Postpone
38. Constructed
39. Goddess of peace
40. March date
41. Botch

DOWN
1. A baluster
2. The mallard
3. God of the sky (Babyl.)
4. Jellylike material
5. Packing box
6. Official residences of diplomatic ministers
7. Oriental nurse
8. A novel by Zola
9. Chart
11. Girl's nickname
15. Causes to rise (colloq.)
17. Choleric
18. Enclosure
19. Mineral spring
21. Items
22. People of Greece
23. Hawaiian birds
25. Mass: comb. form
27. One of the 12 Hebrew tribes
29. Endures
30. Queen of the fairies
31. The aoudad
32. Sudden attack
34. Color, as cloth
36. Obscure
37. Before

Yesterday's Answer

CLASSIFIEDS

FEMALE HELP WANTER: Summer position. Teacher or advanced college student. Educated, ambitions, dependable person. $420 for 60 days plus bonus opportunity. Write P. O. Box 1635, Greensboro, N. C.

MALE HELP WANTED: Teacher or advanced college student. Educated, ambitious, dependable person. $420 for 60 days plus bonus opportunity. Write P. O. Box 1635, Greensboro, N. C.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS — YOU'LL find a big clump of them at silly little prices in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.

OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-3628 or interview.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL WILL pay 20c each for the first ten copies of the April 3 edition that are turned in.

LI'L ABNER — By Al Capp

POGO — By Walt Kelly

U.N.C. LIBRARY
SERIALS DEPT.
BOX 870
CHAPEL HILL, N.C.

WEATHER

Sunny and quite warm with an expected high of 90 today.

The Daily Tar Heel

VOL. LVII NO. 140 | Complete (AP) Wire Service | CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20, 1955 | Offices In Graham Memorial | FOUR PAGES TODAY

TRAGEDY

Another tragedy of money wasting has hit the Hill, and the editors don't like it. See p. 2.

FBI Spy Childs Says Red Cell Is Active In Durham; Tells Of Meeting With Confessed Communist Scales

All-Campus Confab Set

Dr. C. Hugh Holman, professor of English and chairman of the College of Arts of Science, and J. Harris Purks, University provost, will be the speakers for the second All-Campus Conference, scheduled to be held Friday and Saturday.

Two general questions which will be the theme of the conference are "What Does the University Have A Right To Expect of the Students?" and "What Do the Students Have A Right To Expect of the University?"

Co-chairmen of this year's conference are Miss Sue Fink and Bev Webb. The first such conference, held last year, was begun by Ken Penegar, who was its chairman.

PURPOSE

According to the co-chairman, purposes of the conference is "to promote student-faculty relations" and "to discuss problem areas with the University."

Dr. Holman will speak at a meeting in Carroll Hall Friday at 2 p.m. His talk will be on education and will deal with the two main questions which are the conference themes.

Following his talk, group discussions will be held on the two conference questions. The moderators and faculty members of the groups are as follows.

Jim Lamm will be moderator of one group which will include Dr. Gordon Blackwell and Mr. Walter Spearman. That group will meet in room 303 of the Library.

Miss Ruth Conner will moderate the second group, which will meet in room 307 of the Library. Mr. Ralph Casey and Dr. Arnold Nash will participate in that group.

Bill Wiatt will moderate the third group, which will include Dr. E. A. Cameron and Dr. H. K. Russell. The group will meet in room 323 of th Library.

OTHER GROUPS

Two other groups, for which no moderators has been definitely named, will also be held. One will meet in room 101 of Hanes Hall and will have Dr. Lyman Cotton and Dr. W. D. Perry. The other will include Dr. James Godfry and Lt. Robert A. Gray. It will meet in room 101 of Gardner Hall.

Dr. Purks will speak on Saturday night at a banquet to be held at 6:30 in the north room of Lenoir Hall.

Members of the conference committee are Miss Luanne Thornton, Miss Bebe Baumann, Rollie Tillman, Miss Nancy Morgan, Dr. James Godfrey.

Walter Spearman, Dr. Luman Cotton, Miss Lila Ponder and Roy Holsten.

Correction

The officers of the Order of the Golden Fleece, announced at Monday night's tapping ceremony, were incorrectly reported to be those for the coming year in yesterday's Daily Tar Heel.

The officers announced were those of the past year. They are Jason, Horace Stacy; Hyparchos, Walter D. Gurley; Grammateus, Lemuel Jordan, and Christopher, Paul Likens.

UP Names Sanders Chairman

The University Party last nigh elected Bill Sanders party chair man for 1955-56.

Other than elections, the session was devoted primarily to the laureling of outgoing party leaders.

In other posts filled at the meeting, John Raper was named party vice-chairman by acclamation.

The secretarial post went to Jane Cocke for the second consecutive term.

Bill Morgan captured the treasurer's position over Stan Shaw by a scant plurality.

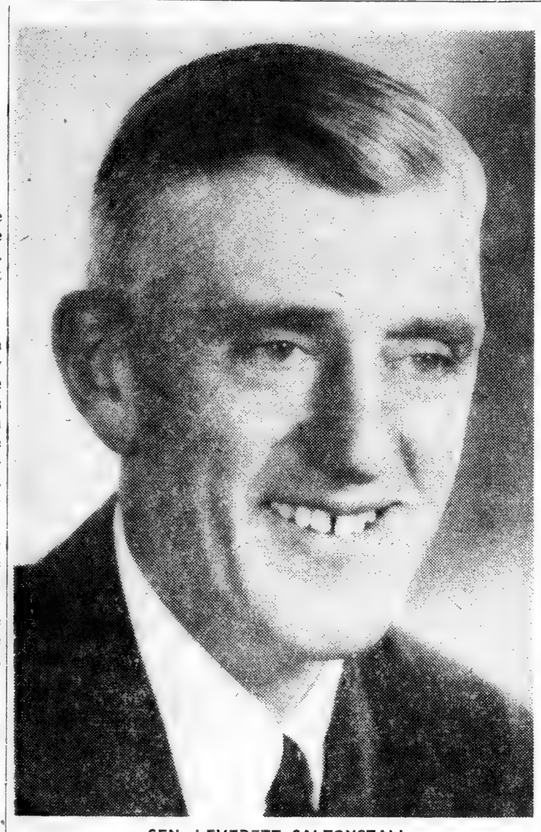
PARTIES 'NECESSARY EVIL'—' SANDERS

"I have always felt that political parties are an evil . . . but they are a necessary evil," new chairman Sanders asserted.

BA Senior Wins Out In Grant Competition

Joseph E. Bafford, senior Business Administration major from Lexington, is the one student in the country to win the Stanolind Graduate Fellowship to the Wharton School of Business, University of Pennsylvania.

The fellowship is given in connection with the Master of Business Administration program at that university. The Stanolind award will cover Bafford's tuition and fees for the academic year 1955-56. Bafford will also receive a stipend of $1,500 in monthly allotments.



JOSEPH BAFFORD
. . . wins top scholarship

Out of the usual 2,000 applicants to the Wharton School of Business, only approximately 200 are accepted. So Bafford was competing with 200 other students for the Stanolind Fellowship.

Bafford is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, professional, business fraternity; he is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Bafford is also a member of Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary BA fraternity. He was elected to Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honorary fraternity.

Bafford attended Lexington High School, where he was president of the Key Club, a national service club. He was business manager of "Lexipet," the school newspaper. Bafford belonged to Quill and Scholl, an honorary journalism society, and the National Honor Society. He played on the golf team.

At this time Bafford plans to become a certified public accountant, although he is also considering an accounting position in an industrial concern.

SEN. LEVERETT SALTONSTALL
. . . Massachusetts Republican speaks tonight

Senator Saltonstall To Speak Tonight

The Carolina Forum will present Massachusetts Republican Senator Leverett Saltonstall tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall.

A native of Dover, Mass., the speaker is the senior United States Senator from that state and majority whip of the Senate. His present committee assignments include chairman of Armed Services, Appropriations, Small Business and Republican Policy.

Senator Saltonstall has been a member of the Congressional upper house since November, 1944. He has been closely associated with Selective Service, Armed Services unification, child health and anti-filibuster legislation. He was prominent in legislation involving the Nation Act Against Discrimination in Employment and the National Science Foundation as well as Veterans' Benefits and displaced persons.

The Forum speaker received

(See SENATOR, page 4)

Notes: Trial Was Dull

By J. A. C. DUNN

(Special To The Daily Tar Heel)

GREENSBORO, April 19,—The Government rested its case in a very slow-moving and on the whole uninteresting session of the trial of Junius Scales, charged with violation of the Smith Act, today.

Charles Childs, junior from High Point, and witness for the FBI in the case, was examined during the morning, but in the afternoon session was asked only three questions. Two were put to him by Scales' attorney, a short dark, man with a New York accent: What draft board was Childs registered with?; and another question involving an economics course Childs had once taken.

The prosecuting attorney for the Government asked Childs only one question: What were Childs' recent activities in the Communist Party? To which Childs answered that he had been a member of the Chapel Hill Communist Club until it broke up, and after that he had been in contact with two men known to be very active in the Party. Childs was then permitted to stand down.

It was noticeable that very few people in the courtroom showed any signs of excitement. The spectators filled the available space but were quite calm. Childs was a relaxed witness, and Scales himself seemed singularly unperturbed. The jury, consisting of 13 men and 3 women, sat back in their chairs and appeared unaffected by the proceedings, as did the judge and the prosecuting attorneys, though the latter from time to time interjected objections to their opponent's defense, most of which were sustained. Only Scales' attorney, the short dark man from New York, seemed tense and a bit worried.

After the Government had rested its case, the Scales defense hurriedly prepared to continue, though pleading inability to continue until the next day.

Made 'Contact' With Cell Sunday

GREENSBORO, April 19—A Communist Party cell is still in existence in Durham, a 24-year-old FBI undercover agent at the University of North Carolina told the Junius Scales trial in Federal Court here today.

Charles B. Childs, who volunteered to join the Communist Party as an undercover agent while still at Carolina, said that he had made "contact" with the cell two days ago.

The next day—Monday—he was called to the stand here as a surprise government witness against Scales.

Childs did not go into the scope or activities of the Communist cell in Durham.

In other dramatic developments today, Childs also told of attending an all-day meeting with Scales, a confessed Communist, and other party members in a Duke forest picnic area near Durham three years ago.

Childs said the meeting was held in October of 1952 and served as a "reunion" for those who attended a secret Communist Party School the month before near Winston-Salem.

Childs said Scales and his wife, Gladys, were on hand for the session. Childs also identified others who gathered in picnic area No. 10 as: Jerry Van Camp of Durham, George and Betsy Van Camp of Winston-Salem (Jerry's brother), and a Durham girl identified only to him as "Blanche."

He quoted "Blanche" as saying she "had gotten into some sort of trouble about distributing leaflets" of some type in Durham. Childs said he was unable to give her real name.

Jerry Van Camp was identified by Childs yesterday as a Communist. Childs said yesterday also that Nat Bond of Durham also was a party member.

Today, Childs said Bill Robertson, a former Carolina student, whom he called a Communist yesterday, is living in Durham at the present time.

Childs said the Duke Forest meeting broke up after an all-day session and that he returned to Chapel Hill in a car driven by George Van Camp and also containing Scales.

Childs said that as the car approached Chapel Hill, Scales laid down in the floor of the back "to keep from being seen."

(Ralph Clontz Jr. of Charlotte, a former FBI undercover agent, had previously testified that Scales went "underground" in 1950.)

Childs said those attending the Duke Forest "picnic" severely criticized him for going against Communist Party orders and leaving his industrial job in Winston-Salem and returning to school.

Childs quoted Scales' wife as saying that day she did "not know if he could be trusted" because he refused to obey the party orders.

Childs said he met up with the two Van Camp men in a parked car behind Graham Memorial Student Union Building on the Carolina campus and drove to Durham where Scales met them in Duke Forest.

He quoted Mrs. Betsy Van Camp as saying that "arrangements" had already been made to use the picnic area.

Scales Takes His Turn

GREENSBORO, April 19 (AP)—After calling only three witnesses the government unexpectedly rested its case against accused Communist leader Junius Scales today.

This took the defense by surprise. So much so that Scales' lawyer, David Rein, asked the court for a delay until tomorrow before beginning his presentation. Judge Albert V. Bryan gave him 15 minutes.

Rein said he was not prepared to call his witnesses. He did not say how many there would be or where they lived. Scales was seen filling out three or four subpoenas to be served by the U. S. Marshal today.

Shortly after the halfway point in the seventh day of the Federal Court trial, District Atty. Edwin M. Stanley took Charles B. Childs off the witness stand. Stanley then said he had completed the case against the red-haired 35-year-old defendant.

Childs, 24, a physics student at the University of North Carolina, had testified that his last contact with the Communist Party as an FBI undercover informant came last Sunday. He said he paid his party dues at Durham to Bill Evans. He identified Evans as business manager of the Carolinas district.

Rein, after a rather perfunctory crossexamination of Childs, read to the jury from several pieces of Communist literature introduced as defense evidence. The readings were intended to support the defense position that the party does not advocate force and violence. Then Rein announced that he had nothing further until he called his first witness. Court was adjourned.

Honor Council Tries 30 Girls In Spring

The Women's Honor Council has tried a total of 30 cases so far during the spring semester, according to a report issued yesterday by Miss Nancy Whisnant, council chairman.

Twenty-four of the cases were violations of the social rules, one a violation of the Honor Code, two infractions of both the social rules and the Honor Code, and one dealt with violations of the Campus Code, Honor Code and the social rules, said the report.

The three cases involving infractions of the Honor Code were each given a council reprimand plus lengthy probations, according to the report. The case concerning a violation of the Honor Code only was found not guilty.

The majority of the social rules violations occurred from the defendant failing to have her signout slip signed by a member of the dormitory administration, according to the report, which added that eight of such cases

(See WOMEN'S, page 4)

Panty Raid!

An estimated 500 frolicking students had gotten the first panty-raid of the season off to a start as The Daily Tar Heel went to press last night.

According to an 11 o'clock telephone call from correspondent Jack Weasel, a "lone cop" and Assistent Dean of Student Affairs Ray Jeffries had appeared on the scene.

The raiders, having gotten a single pair of panties from 3rd floor Kenan, allegedly had broken a lock on a Carr Dorm door.

COMPETITION MONDAY NIGHT:

Finalists Announced In Valkyrie Sing

Smith, Ruffin, Kappa Delta, Alpha Phi Omega and St. Anthony Hall walked away with the honors in the annual Valkyrie Sing Monday night.

The women's dorm division winner, Smith, won with its presentation of "Knatty Knights and Casual Cats."

APO took the special groups section with "This Old House." Second place in this division went to the Canterbury Club. The group did its rendition of Sigmund Romberg's "Student Prince." and called it "The Campus Prince."

In the sorority division the KD presentation of "Frankie and Johnnie" won first place. Tri Deltas came in second with "A Day in Old England."

First place in the frat division was taken by the St. As and second place went to the Phi-Kaps The Phi Kaps presented "A Salute to Rudy Vallee."

St. Anthony Hall group did "Uncle Tommy's Triple Quartet Plus One." The song was an original one written by Jack Spooner.

KAPPA DELTA SORORITY AND 'FRANKIE AND JOHNNIE'
. . . Smith, Ruffin. Alpha Phi Omega and St. Anthony Hall also won

Tennyson Descendent Speaks Here Thurs.

Hallam Tennyson, great-grandson of England's famous poet laureate, will speak here on family reminiscences of Alfred Lord Tennyson tomorrow.

Open to the public, the lecture will be held at 4:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall under the sponsorship of the English Dept. and Graham Memorial Student Union. Dr. J. O. Bailey, professor of English, will introduce Tennyson, who will illustrate his talk with effects and recordings made by Edison.

Educated at Eton and Balliol, Hallam Tennyson has in recent years been prominent in Quaker activities in various parts of the world. During World War II he served with a Friends Ambulance Unit as a conscientious objector.

He has worked with refugees and in rehabilitation projects in Egypt, central and southern Italy and in India. While organizing Pipha-Raghabpur village project in West Bengal, Tennyson became acquainted with Gandhi.

Tennyson's other occupation lies in the literary field, following the family tradition. While in school he wrote plays and short stories, and has continued his writing through the years, his most prominent being "Minds in Movement," a study of relations between Asia and the West, "Tito Lifts the Curtain" and "Saint on the March," the story of Vinoba Bhave, Gandhi's successor.

At present Tennyson is writing a novel about India, in addition to frequent articles for The Manchester Guardian, Spectator, New Statesman and other publications. He has appeared frequently on BBC and has done TV and film work.

$1,300 Tragedy Of The Waste-Moneyers

Student government is hiring an executive secretary next year for $1,300 to keep its records, handle correspondence, and help solve "the problem of continuity of its ideas and projects from one year to another."

The Daily Tar Heel thinks this is a waste of student money.

If student government has a primary function (and we think it does), that function is training students. The whole range of campus government—from political party intrigue to the solemn dignity of the honor courts—is an educational workshop.

When $1,300 of student money is paid to a professional secretary to keep records that students have failed to keep, write letters that students are elected to write, and pass on ideas to rising leaders, then student government ceases to be educational and tends to be professional.

Student leaders—the ones who think it's worth $1.25 an hour for several hours a day to have an executive secretary—contend that "the frequency of change of office has made student government archives almost an impossibility, resulting in complete absence of records of much legislation and no correct copy of the student government constitution."

This outright admission of failure to promote continuity, to teach and preserve the progress of each year, should call for harder work on the part of campus leaders—not expenditures of more money. Why didn't the candidates for President point this shortcoming out and promise to do something about it?

Why So Technical?

Sponsors of this move for more bureaucracy also point to the fact that "there is much student government correspondence and other business that is not being carried on because of lack of technical assistance."

Some student government leaders go so far as to declare that they are so bogged down in "routine" that they have no time to formulate policy.

Yet in student offices such as the Inter-Dormitory Council and the Publications Board, we find that the aid of active coeds gets the work done and allows more students to participate in their government. The wheels, or leaders, still have time for policy making in these offices—even without the expensive services of a professional secretary.

What Is The Motive?

Behind this expensive move for an executive secretary, we see signs of student politicians whose fertile imaginations have outrun their sense of responsibility.

Sure, an executive secretary can (and will) keep records and write letters more efficiently and in a more professional manner than students can do the jobs. The creation of this post will also assure student government of having accurate records of what has been done.

But is this not like signing up for a chemistry course, then paying a professional chemist to attend your labs?

What will the student government people do with the services of a high-powered professional?

We suspect campus politicians will have more time to politic, to play the game of government without doing any work.

Unfortunately, the student Legislature has already approved the appropriation for an executive secretary. However, there is nothing to keep them from changing their legislative minds and not throwing away student money.

The Daily Tar Heel urges student government to reconsider, to stop and think for $1,300 worth of student money. If not, we think they'll be tossing that amount from student pockets out the bureaucratic window. And that would be a waste.

The Daily Tar Heel

The official student publication of the Publications Board of the University of North Carolina, where it is published daily except Monday and examination and vacation periods and summer terms. Entered as second class matter at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., under the Act of March 8, 1879. Subscription rates: mailed, $4 per year, $2.50 a semester; delivered, $6 a year, $3.50 a semester.

Editors ..... ED YODER, LOUIS KRAAR

Managing Editor ..... FRED POWLEDGE

Business Manager ..... TOM SHORES

Sports Editor ..... BERNIE WEISS

Associate Editor ..... J. A. C. DUNN

News Editor ..... Jackie Goodman

Advertising Manager ..... Dick Sirkin

Circulation Manager ..... Jim Kiley

Subscription Manager ..... Jack Godley

Assistant Business Manager ..... Bill Bob Peel

Assistant Sports Editor ..... Ray Linker

Photographer ..... Boyden Henley

Night editor for this issue ..... Eddie Crutchfield

Carolina Front

How To Be Put On Probation: Be 'Doubtful'

J. A. C. Dunn

THE SUBJECT OF an editorial in the April 12 issue of The Michigan Daily was not exactly new: "Censorship of College Newspapers: Who Should Decide?" The first paragraph sounded like something we had heard before. "At Cornell University, three editors of the college humor magazine were officially reprimanded by the Faculty Committee on Student Conduct because one issue contained an article lampooning sororities. In the midwest, five editors of the Illinois Technology News received disciplinary probation . . . by a faculty committee . . . were charged with publishing a cartoon and an article . . . the committee considered doubtful." But then further on, lo and behold: "Student legislators at the University of North Carolina charged that the Daily Tar Heel is a 'second Daily Worker' managed by 'lazy' editors. Irate legislators accused the editor of imposing his liberal views on the students and giving 'poor coverage' to student activities. To further justify their complaints, the legislature appointed a committee to investigate 'the circulation and quality problems' of the paper."

And still further on, Michigan's opinion of student investigating committees: ". . . an investigating committee operating under the charge that the paper is 'a second Daily Worker' isn't the answer to the problem, either. Unless a publication is radically at odds with student opinion, such a committee will only stifle the paper instead of helping it," Thus the long arm of the printed word.

★

BUT MICHIGAN DID not stop there. They also passed judgement on censorship in general with these words:

"The legislators represent the students; the faculty represents the school. Each has the conern of a different group in mind. Who, then has the exclusive right to censure? Neither." A good point.

★

ALL THIS BRINGS to mind a matter that occurred to us way back when "Coraddi" was busy teaching the world the Bohemian facts of life.

We would like very much to put a censorship board in such a would like very much to put a censorship board in such a position that it has to define such vague terms as "doubtful" (the verdict handed down at Illinois), "poor taste" (the dictum from Cornell), and "second Daily Worker" (the papal bull proclaimed by the Student Legislature at this University).

We have not yet heard of a college censorship board that had to prove its case; we have not yet run across a single group of red pencil swingers who had to get up in public and describe just exactly how, according to the letter of the law, they were justified in suppressing a Freedom.

We have always been under the impression that college was a place where one learned things, not only by doing them wrong, but by being taught how to do them right in the first place. In view of these recent outbreaks of censorship, we wonder it it would not be a good idea, since college censorship boards seem to feel so strongly about the matter, if the censors made up their minds beforehand just what it was they did not want to see in a student publication, instead of making up the rules as they go along.

The act of censure can be interpreted as being a form of diplomacy — a balance of understanding between the reader, the editor and the censor. But we have heard that there are two kinds of diplomacy: amateur and professional. The professional diplomats are not angry or offended; they want only to arrive at a compromise which has some chance of lasting. The amateur diplomats are mad; they want to punish the other side. Censorship after the act sounds like amateur diplomacy.

'I'll Do All The Foolish Talking Around Here'

A GREAT HISTORIAN'S THOUGHTS:

An Humble Valley And Two Mountains

Arnold J. Toynbee In 'A Study Of History'

(Note: We are indebted to Graham Shanks, student historian and perusor of Toynbee, for calling our attention to this timely comparison between the home stomping ground and our neighbors to the North and South. Mr. Toynbee could well have spiced his comparison with that old favorite in Tar Heel circles, "that timeless quotation, "North Carolina is a valley of humility between two mountains of conceit." Mr. Toynbee shows —and it can well be taken to the hearts of all three states—that idolization of the "once glorious past" is dangerous, paralyzing, and finally completely petrefying.)

If we extend our survey from the Old World to the New, we shall find a parallel illustration of the nemesis of creativity in the history of the United States. If we make a comparative study of the post-war histories of the several States of "The Old South" which were members of the Confederacy in the Civil War of 1861-5 and were involved in the Confederacy's defeat, we shall notice a marked difference between them in the extent to which they have since recovered from that common disaster; and we shall notice that this difference is the exact inverse of an equally well-marked difference which had distinguished the same States in the period before the Civil War.

A foreign observer who visited the Old South in the fifth decade of the twentieth century would assuredly pick out Virginia and South Carolina as the two States in which there was least sign or promise of recovery; and he would be astonished to find the effects of even so great a social catastrophe as theirs persisting so starkly over such a long period. In these States the memory of that catastrophe is as green in our generation as if the blow had fallen only yesterday; and "the War" still means the Civil War on many Virginian and South Carolinian lips, though two fearful wars have since supervened. In fact, twentieth century Virginia or South Carolina makes the painful impression of a country living under a spell, in which time has stood still. This impression will be heightened through contrast to the State which lies between them. In North Carolina the visitor will find up-to-date industries, mushroom universities, and a breath of the hustling, "boosting" spirit which he has learnt to associate with the "Yankees" of the North. He will also find that North Carolina has produced some of the great men of the twentieth century, such as Woodrow Wilson (sic) and Walter Page.

What explains the springlike burgeoning of life in North Carolina while the life of her neighbors droops in an apparently unending "winter" of their "discontent"? If we turn for enlightenment to the past, we shall find our perplexity momentarily increased when we observe that, right up to the Civil War, North Carolina had been socially barren while Virginia and South Carolina had enjoyed spells of exceptional vitality. During the first forty years of the history of the American Union Virginia had been beyond comparison the leading State, producing four of the first five Presidents and also John Marshall, who, more than any other single man, adopted the ambiguities of the "scrap of paper" composed by the Philadelphia Convention, to the realities of American life. And if, after 1825, Virginia fell behind, South Carolina, under the leadership of Calhoun, steered the Southern States into the course on which they suffered shipwreck in the Civil War. During all this time North Carolina was seldom heard of. She had a poor soil and no ports. Her impoverished small farmers, mostly descended from squatter immigrants who had failed to make good in either Virginia or South Carolina, were not to be compared with the Virginian squires of the South Carolinian cotton-planters.

The earlier failure of North Carolina in comparison with her neighbors on either side is easily explained; but what of their subsequent failure and her subsequent success? The explanation is that North Carolina, like Piedmont, has not been inhibited by the idolization of a once glorious past; she lost comparatively little by defeat in the Civil War because she had comparatively little to lose; and, having had less far to fall, she had that much less difficulty in recovering from the shock.

Reader's Retort

Have We Had It?

Editon:

It's a great relief to see that Governor Hodges and Mayor Cornwell are "Johnnies on the spot" and have joined in proclaiming April as "Go to the Movies" month. It would have been a serious blow to the welfare of the state and the community if they had failed to seize this significant opportunity afforded by the high offices they hold. This action should go a long way toward solving the many serious problems besetting North Carolina and Chapel Hill. Since the motion picture industry is surely in no way motivated by anything like self interest, it is entirely proper for government to lend its official blessing to this great philanthropic enterprise which is doing so much for our society.

And we also owe a debt of gratitude to the banks for reminding us of the official significance of this month when they mailed out our monthly statements. What a treat is in store for us! By buckling down to our duty — with perhaps an occasional trip to Durham and conscientious attendance at all late shows — I figure each of us can see maybe 45 to 50 movies in this crucial month of 1955.

A thousand years or so from now, when anthropologists uncover one of these impressive proclamations by our honorable governor and mayor, they will have no trouble in discerning the values held most dear in the United States culture of the mid-twentieth century. For when government lends its official blessing to something like the movies, brother, we've had it!

Gordon W. Blackwell

Quote, Unquote

The Administration's Dead Tuna

What is the difference between "progressive moderation" and "moderate progressivism" or between "dynamic conservatism" and "conservative dynamism?" Either way, they just sort of sit there and don't go anyplace. The fact that they sit there, fixed, imperturbable, does however give you a chance to work around them, squint at them through one eye at a time and measure them like a fish that didn't get away. I don't mean like a dead mackeral that both shines and stinks in the moonlight, but like a dead tuna, say, that is neatly mounted, its mouth closed in a satisfied expression, the whole thing covered with a careful coat of shellac.—Eric Sevareid On CBS Radio

Passing Remark

Clothes Make A Regimented College Army

Ron Levin

Clothes make the man. If you want proof of this, you can merely ask anyone who works in a clothing store, fashion shop or one of the better dressed executives winding his impeccable way on Wall Street. Now, I grant you there is nothing wrong with clothing. In fact, I, for one, am of the opinion that clothes are here to stay. Their functions have become quite indispensable to modern man in many ways. They facilitate his powers of adaptability to all sorts of environmental conditions whether in the steaming jungle or at the frigid poles.

THE COVERING UP PROCESS

A more sensitive point is the "covering up" process in which clothes are involved. To avoid embarassment, we wear clothes to cover certain body parts which, if uncovered, would produce no end of eye shutting, face hiding and all degrees of blushing in the populace. This is all obvious to you, and you make use of them every day whether you are aware of them or not. However, we finally reach the gremlin in the pile, though a well dressed one at that. Fashion has come to be the master, and man . . . the slave. The dictates are handed down by popular magazines, and we strive to obey so that we may be accepted by our peers and betters. Narrow shoulders come and narrow shoulders go. If someone had presented a typical Brook's Brothers coat on this campus in 1945, he would have been tarred and feathered and then possibly run out of town on a rail. Certainly, change is the one pleasant property of life above all else. We can look forward to something different and sometimes new to come upon the scene. This is all very well and good. We buy new outfits and send the old ones to people who are starving and ill-clothed in countries less fortunate than ours.

But when fashion comes to be a criterion of social acceptance and recognition, then it is time for a change . . . and not one of clothes either. I can remember five years ago when I was in a fraternity, and we would stand out front waiting for the prospective pledges to come up and offer a rather shaky hand. We were told the first thing to look at was the way the rushee dressed. Was he in style? Did he conform with the present set of standards as set down in Esquire?

If he did, more than likely he was given a glad hand and eventually pledged up. Those unfortunate few who came in wide shoulder, narrow hip, two button coats were shown to a quiet recess in the library where they could concern themselves with literary interests. This sounds ridiculous, and I agree . . . it is. But nonetheless, it is true, and it happened, and it still happens, and it will go on happening, as long as men attach value to the more insignificant and trivial things in life.

REGIMENTATION BY FASHION

I do not advocate everyone discarding their present attires and throwing them into a mass bonfire and then donning Bikinis and skin tights, but look around some time and watch all the cord suits, round collars, thin ties, cordovan shoes, charcoal trousers . . . why, it's almost like a collegiate army. Regimentation by fashion.

However, unless you want people to stare at you and suppress a giggle, then my advice is to keep on wearing the same old things and read Esquire every month.

That way you simply can't go wrong . . .

Dr. Albert Einstein

"I do not know what I may appear to the world," wrote Isaac Newton in exaggerated candor, "but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore, and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me."

Dr. Albert Einstein, who has searched that "great ocean of truth" for an intensive 76 years, died this week and left his search for truth—like all searches for truth ever undertaken by man—unfulfilled. He had the same humility Newton expressed above, the humility which increases in direct pace with the amount of knowledge and truth a man obtains for himself. Newton's significance when he died lay uncommunicated to the vast lot of his fellow men; but now those lines of communication have shortened, and the importance of Dr. Einstein's work is known in greater amount to a greater number of men.

Newton's towering successor had not by a long shot finished the work he cut out for himself. He stood before, but not through, one of the two gateways which scientists say lie open to man in his quest to find physical reality. He was immersed in work on his Unified Field Theory, a framework of physical mathematics fully understood, perhaps, only to himself.

Lincoln Barnett, in The Universe and Dr. Einstein, tries to put in layman's terms the meaning of Dr. Einstein's latest work—a work which has continued for a quarter-century now:

THE OUTER LIMITS

"Today the outer limits of man's knowledge are defined by Relativity, the inner limits by the Quantum Theory. Relativity has shaped all our concepts of space, time, gravitation, and the realities that are too remote and too vast to be perceived. The Quantum Theory has shaped all our concepts of the atoms, the basic units of matter and energy, and the realities that are too elusive and too small to be perceived. Yet these two great scientific systems rest on entirely different and unrelated theoretical foundations. They do not, as it were, speak the same language. The purpose of the Unified Field Theory is to construct a bridge between them. Believing in the harmony and uniformity of nature, Einstein has evolved a single edifice of physical laws to encompass both the phenomena of the atom and the phenomena of outer space."

No pencil or spinning typewriter ribbon measure the impact of Dr. Einstein's work in physics. Fortunately, as always, we can measure the basic worth of the man himself in more definite and finite terms.

AN INCALCULABLE EGGHEAD

Dr. Einstein has done as much as any scientist in recent history to scare away the silly shadows who plagued scientists and scholars with loyalty oaths, censorship, threat of this and that suspension, and the often scornful label, "egghead." Dr. Einstein was an egghead, such a loftey and incalculable egghead that even the crassest controllers of thought trembled in their boots when he confronted them.

In the flash and spit of the Fifth Amendment Communist battle, Dr. Einstein said one day from his Princeton study that any intellectual who was bothered by Red-hunters ought to use the Fifth Amendment. He understood the use of the Fifth Amendment as a device of defiance, as an act of oft-justified resentment against the current barking and growling at intellectuals. And when he spoke, so austere was his reputation that even the bitterest contradictions became chirps.

So went his speech and action on one of the liveliest issues of his latter days; and they are only part measure of his personal courage.

One is, finally, impressed by the awful lag between what a great human being and scientist can discover of the universe and what his less colossal fellows can do with it. Of this man who gave the Twentieth Century a new cosmology, most newspapers could only think to say, in the headline over his obituary, "TV and A-Bomb Father Dies."—EY

Science No Escalator

In the three centuries preceding the Twentieth, science tended to dull man's sense of responsibility. On the one hand, its deterministic assumptions made man wonder whether he could do anything about his lot; on the other, its material gains gave rise to an idea of progress which made man wonder if he needed to do anything beyond the automatic to insure his well-being. Twentieth-century science has removed both these rationalizations for indifference and complacency. Without proving freedom, it has, as noted, at least dampened eighteenth and nineteenth century arguments against it. Meanwhile, by increasing man's destructive capacities it has shown unmistakably that what science provides is not an escalator which will carry man automatically to utopia, but an elevator which can carry him either up or down.

What does responsibility mean for the scientists' own work? History seemed very near and vivid as the participants listened to Arthur Compton and Werner Heisenberg, who a decade ago were competitors in the life-and-death race for the atomic bomb, now seated in the same room sharing their experiences as they face together this common problem. Without disclaiming responsibility for the tragic ends to which their discoveries might be directed, the scientists maintained that their first responsibility was to follow the truth wherever it leads and expand frontiers of knowledge whatever the consequences . . . The scientist's responsibility (then) is two-fold: as scientist to discover as much in the way of truth as possible, and as citizen to see that society turns the findings of science to beneficent ends: From the proceedings and conclusions of the Washington University Conference on Science and Human Responsibility.

Basketball Returns To Carolina Scene Tonight With Blue-White Game Scheduled At 7:30 In Woollen

Basketball will briefly return to the Carolina scene tonight at 7:30 in Woollen Gym with the revival of the annual Blue-White game.

The game is being sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic Council with proceeds to go toward adopting a war orphan and the proposed Chapel Hill Recreation Center. Admission is .50.

The retiring co-captains of last year's varsity, Al Lifson and Paul Likins, will coach, respectively, the Blue and White teams.

At half-time, grammar school boys from Chapel Hill will put on a short game.

Tar Heel Rally Short Of Mark As Deacs Win, 9-8; Frosh Also Lose

WAKE FOREST—(Special to The Daily Tar Heel)—A two-run Carolina rally in the top half of the ninth inning fell short of its mark here yesterday as the Wake Forest Deacons edged the Tar Heels, 9-8.

The Carolinians had loaded the bags in the final frame and pushed two runs across to put the pressure on Deacon pitcher Jack McGinley. However, McGinley bore down and fanned Carolina third-baseman Jack Woods to end the game.

The victory was not an official Atlantic Coast Conference contest because of the home-and-home rule. Wake Forest had previously won on its own diamond, downing Carolina last week, 2-0.

The next game for Carolina is scheduled against South Carolina here Friday. Saturday the Tar Heels meet Clemson.

Going into the ninth, the Deacs had a 9-6 lead. Harry Lloyd, Tar Heel second baseman, singled to lead off, but Will Frye forced him at second on an infield grounder. Don Hill was safe on an infield error and Connie Gravitte, who got two for two over the afternoon, including a homer, walked to load the bags. Al Long's infield grounder was relayed home to catch Frye at the plate, making it two outs, but Jimmy Love drew a walk to score Hill. Ken Keller, pinch-hitting for Tom Maultsby, singled to shortstop, bringing home Gravitte. Woods then swung but missed a third strike to wind it up.

Loose fielding on the part of Carolina lost the game. The Tar Heels committed eight boners. Long booted three for Carolina.

Catcher Love, who had three RBI's and Gravitte were the big guns for the Tar Heels. Tommy Cole, with a fifth-inning, bases-empty homer, and Barnes, with a double and a triple, led the winners.

Morris "Whity" Hall started on the mound for Carolina. After allowing four runs in the opening frame, he was relieved by Jimmy Raugh, who worked through the seventh when he was jerked for a pinch-hitter. Tom Maultsby finished for the Tar Heels. Raugh, the loser, now has a 2-4 record. Bucky Fichter, the winner, is undefeated with a 2-0 mark.

Carolina 020 201 102—8 11 8
W. Forest 400 211 10x—9 10 2

Batteries: Hall, Raugh (2), Maultsby (8) and Love; Fichter, McGinley (6) and Holt.

Wake's freshman baseball team swamped Carolina's Tar Babies by a score of 14-3 at Emerson Field yesterday, behind the superb pitching of right-hander Charley Carpenter.

Carpenter limited the Tar Babies to eight hits while walking only two batters. Meanwhile his teammates were jumping on three Carolina pitchers for 14 hits and 14 walks. Eleven of the hits and nine of the walks came off starter and loser Charley Cross. It was his second loss of the year.

The big gun in the Wake Forest attack was third-baseman Bill Pegram, who collected a single and a double in two official trips. The one bright spot in the Carolina line-up was catcher Jerry Bryson who garnered a single and a home run in four trips.

W. F. 020 103 440—14 14 4
Carolina 000 000 102— 3 8 2

Batteries: Carpenter and Brady; Cross, Currin (7), McIver (9) and Bryson.

Athlete of the Week:

Morris Set Two Records Against Terps

Roger Morris has been selected as "The Athlete of the Week" by The Daily Tar Heel sports staff for his two record-breaking performances in leading the Carolina tracksters to a 73-58 victory over the defending conference champions Maryland Terps Saturday.

Morris won both the shot and discus for the third straight time this season as he turned in the best performances of his outstanding career in both events. His winning throws of 51 feet three and one-half inches in the shot and 157 feet five and one-half inches in the discus set two new stadium records for Maryland's field, Byrd Stadium.

The shot put heave erased the old field record of 51 feet even, set by Morris against the Terrapins two years ago. The old record was also the North Carolina all-time shot record, and Morris' heave Saturday put aside that mark also.

Both throws were among the six UNC-Maryland dual meet records that were broken, also, thus giving Morris five records for his day's performance.

Morris, who was tied with Claude Rhule with 30 points as the team's high scorers before yesterday's meeting with Wake Forest, surpassed the old field record in the discus by almost four feet. The old mark of 153 feet eight and three-fourths inches was established by Robert Morse of Camp Lejeune in 1951.

Varsity Netters Face Strong Duke Today

This afternoon at 3:00, Carolina's varsity tennis team, undefeated in 12 matches this season, meets Duke. So far this season, only one team has managed to give the Tar Heels any competition at all, but, according to veteran coach John Kenfield, Duke might win one or two matches today, depending on the Blue Devil's lineup.

Coach Kenfield will probably use his regular line-up of Herb Browne at the No. 1 position with Bobby Payne, Tommy Bradford, Pete Green, Ronnie Kerdasha, and Don Thompson completing the singles roster. All of these, except Browne, who has a 10-2 record, are undefeated in the 12 matches played thus far this year. In doubles, Browne and Bradford, Green and Payne, and Kerdasha and Thompson will play the first, second, and third positions respectively.

Stickmen Vs. Duke

The UNC lacrosse team will travel to Durham today to battle a tough Duke squad in a "Dixie League" encounter. It will be the Tar Heels second attempt to top the Blue Devis who have previously beaten the locals 8-3 in an early season practice scrimmage.

Duke has downed Loyola (Baltimore) and Virginia and has looked impreesive in losing to such nationally powerful teams as Navy and Renssaleer Polytechnical Institute. The Duke victory over Virginia by a score of 11-8 came over the same Cavalier team which just a few days earlier had humbled the Carolina squad 15-2. Duke will also be led by two potential All-American players in defenseman Ev Anderson and midfielder Dick Saunders, who tallied six goals against UVa.

HOWEVER, this years' Tar Heel team may prove to be the first UNC lacrosse squad to beat a Duke team in the last 10 years. Greenbaum's stickmen have consistently improved since their opening fray with the Blue Devils and are definitely in much better condition than they were at the beginning of the season.

Yarborough Leads UNC Trackers In Wake Forest Smash, 119-19

A strong Carolina track team smashed Wake Forest, 112-19, to rack up its fourth consecutive win of the season here yesterday.

It marked the second time this year that the Tar Heels have scored more than 100 points in a meet.

The Tar Heels swept all three places in six events as they won 14 races and took seconds in 11. Wake Forest's John Ladner was high scorer of the meet as he won the javelin, the Deacs' only first, and scored in three other events for 10 points.

CHARLIE YARBOROUGH led Carolina with nine points, while Jay Zimmerman and Johnny Jones had eight each for Carolina. Only six men scored for Wake Forest.

The summary:

Shot put: 1. Maslow (C), Jones (C), Bilich (C); Distance, 46'-5½". Javelin: 1. Ladner (WF), Bryan (C), Marcinko (C); Distance, 185'. Mile: 1. Barden (C), Thames (C), Summerlin (WF); Time, 4:41.5. High jump: 1. Bryant (C), Greene (C), Adams (WF); Height, 6'. 440-yard run: 1. Newnam (C), Booth (C), Whitehead (C); Time, 50.1. Pole Vault: 1. Yarborough and Waters (both UNC, tie), 3. Scalf (WF); Height, 12'. 100-yard dash: 1. Zimmerman (C), Parham (WF), Sutton (C); Time, 10.1. Discus 1. Jones (C), Ladner (WF), Maslow (C); Distance, 118'-6". 100-yard high hurdles: 1. Scott (C), Rhule (C), Wilson (C); Time, 15.2. 880-yard run: 1. Beatty (C), Wright (C), McFaddin (C); Time, 1:59.3. 220-yard run: 1. Mitchell (C), Zimmerman (C), Ladner (WF); Time, 22.4. Broad jump: 1. Yarborough (C), Daniels (WF), Ladner (WF); Distance, 22'-¾". Two-mile run: Nanney (C), Joyner (C), Griffin (C); Time, 10:25.5. 220-yard low hurdles: 1. Rhule (C), Wilson (C), Scott (C); Time, 24.5. Mile relay Carolina — (Booth, Wright, Whitehead, Newnam). Time, 3:32.

STUDENTS

THEY SAY YOU CAN'T MAKE A MAN'S PICTURE THAT WILL INTEREST THE WOMEN . . .

They say you CAN'T make a woman's picture that will bring in the men . . .

THEY SAY YOU CAN'T MAKE A PICTURE TO PLEASE BOTH YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULTS . . .

They say you CAN'T make a comedy with a tender moving story . . .

THEY SAY YOU CAN'T PACK A PICTURE WITH SEX AND STILL PLEASE THE CENSORS . . .

. . . These fears have plagued motion pictures for years, but after you see "GENEVIEVE," we think you will agree It's a powerful "kick in the cant's"

A return engagement of the best British comedy we played last year.

The handsome Miss Kendall can toot a trumpet to a dazzling fare-thee-well. This delights and transports her happy escort — even more than would a triumph over her virtue, which is what he specifically intends. A ding-dong entertainment!" — Crowther, N. Y. Times

This J. Arthur Rank Organization presents

enevieve

Color by TECHNICOLOR

starring DINAH SHERIDAN · JOHN GREGSON KAY KENDALL · KENNETH MORE

A Universal-International Release

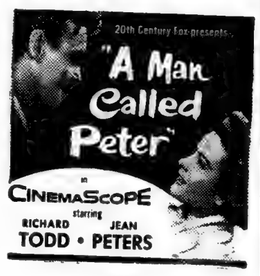
TODAY ONLY! Varsity

Its too good to miss, besides, all other pictures on in Chapel Hill today will be here for four days ! !

WELCOME

ANAIS NIN

You'll find your distinguished books, not just today, but 365 days a year, in Chapel Hill's famous old book barn.



The Intimate Bookshop

205 E. FRANKLIN ST.

Open Evenings

Carolina

TODAY

Plus Latest News

The Crazy Hit of 1955

Steve Allen's

BOP FABLES

IS HERE AT LAST!

Did you enjoy "The Fable" by Faulkner? Aesop's Fables send you? This is Something Else! Matter of fact, it isn't even like Ferdinand, the Fay Bull. It's a wonderful whacky number, and if you want to keep aufait, a visit to the undersigned is indcated, but pronto.

The Intimate Book Shop

205 E. Franklin St. Open Evenings

BOB and MONK

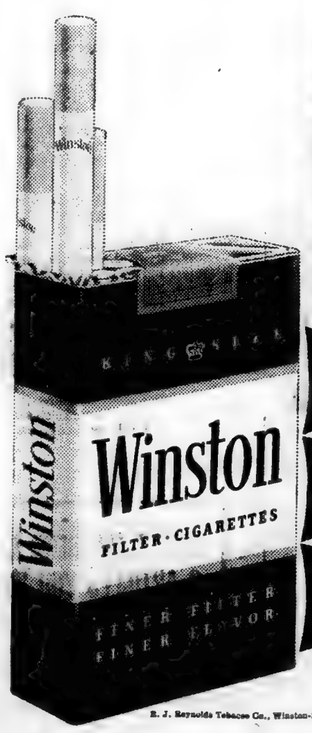
of

TOWN & CAMPUS

SALUTE

ROGER MORRIS

Who won both the shot and discus events as Carolina defeated defending conference champion Maryland in track Saturday. Morris set a new record in each event, eclipsing the old Byrd Stadium (College Park) marks.



We want him to drop by TOWN & CAMPUS and pick out a shirt to his liking—compliments of the house

We want the old and young alike of Chapel Hill to make TOWN & CAMPUS their headquarters for the finest in men's clothing. Drop in today.

TOWN & CAMPUS

College smokers are sure going for Winston!

FINER FILTER!

FINER FLAVOR!

KING SIZE, TOO!

WINSTON

the filter cigarette that really tastes like a cigarette!

■ No wonder Winston's so popular with college smokers! It's got real flavor—full, rich flavor you'll really enjoy. Winston tastes good—like a cigarette should!

Along with finer flavor, Winston also brings you a finer filter. The exclusive Winston filter works so effectively, yet doesn't "thin" the taste or flatten the flavor. Winston lets you draw smoothly, easily—there's no effort to puff!

Try Winston, the filter cigarette that tastes good—like a cigarette should!

Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Glasses fitted
Prescriptions filled
Repairs of all kinds—
CITY OPTICAL CO.

Panhellenic Basketball Game Set Tonight At 8

The Panhellenic Council benefit basketball game will be played tonight at 8 o'clock in Woollen Gymnasium, announced Miss Babbie DiIorio, publicity chairman, yesterday.

The Blue-White intersquad game will climax spring basketball practice for the UNC varsity.

Proceeds from the game will be used to adopt a war orphan under the Foster Parents Plan, said Miss DiIorio. Part of the money will be used for the proposed Chapel Hill recreation center, she added.

Tickets for the game will be on sale in Milton's and in the Y today. They may also be obtained from sorority girls. The price of the tickets will be 50 cents.

During the half-time of the varsity game, boys from the sixth grade of the Chapel Hill grammar school will play an exhibition game.

Six members of last season's freshmen team will play in the game. Five of them will be on the Blue squad, which will be coached by last season's co-captain, Paul Likins.

Al Lifson, last season's other co-captain, will coach the White squad.

Center Joe Quigg, forwards Pete Brennan and Bob Cunningham and guards Tommy Kearns and Charlie Adams will perform with the Blue squad, with Roy Searcy, the sixth member of last season's freshman team, going with the Whites.

Veteran Jerry Vayda, who will enter his fourth varsity campaign next season, and Buddy Clark, another varsity hold-over, will round out the Blue squad.

Lennie Rosenbluth heads the White team's list. Others on the White squad, in addition to Searcy, include Bob Young, Tony Radovich, Gerry McCabe, Hilliary Greene, Frank Goodwin and Ken Rosemond.

LADY MILTON SHOP

Just received shipment of straight cut golfer Dan River baby cord shirts in blue, pink and tan —

7.95

New shipment of baby cord bermuda shorts—in blue, pink and tan —

5.95

Plenty of good-looking shirts to go with them, at—

4.95

MILTON'S CLOTHING CUPBOARD

The L. W. Norton General Agency

of the

NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO.

announces the appointment

of

M. L. Thompson

and

Arthur De Berry

as Representatives for Chapel Hill

OFFICES: 2nd Floor, Dawson Bldg.
Next door to Univ. Nat'l. Bank
W. Franklin St.

PHONES: Day 9-3691
Night 8-5381

Covering The Campus

There will be a caucus of all Student Party legislators who will serve during the coming spring session of Lesislature tomorrow night at 6:30 in Roland Parker Lounge in GM. It is very urgent that all new legislators attend the meetings, according to an SP spokesman.

★

The Chapel Hill Astronomy Club will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the Morehead Planetarium. All interested students are urged to attend, according to a club spokesman.

The club was represented by its secretary, Bill Shawcross, at the 1955 Convention of the Southeast Region of the Astronomical League, held last weekend in Decatur, Ga.

★

Collie Collison, head cheerleader, announced yesterday that cheerleading tryouts will begin Friday afternoon at Kenan Stadium from 4 until 5:30 p.m. and will last through next week.

A pair of glasses which was found in the bleachers of Emerson Stadium has been turned in to the business of The Daily Tar Heel by Vincente Encarnacion.

They may be picked up by the owner between 2 and 4 p.m.

★

Newly initiated members of Phi Eta Sigma can pick up their certificates and pictures in room 312 of South Building.

★

Dr. Andrew H. Horn, librarian of the Library here, will address the alumni and guests of the Schools of Library Science of UNC on their third annual Alumni Day on Friday.

★

Dean Katherine Carmicheal will entertain the girls of McIver Hall today from 3:30 until 5:30 at her apartment, C-2, Graham Court on McCauley Street.

★

Applications are now being taken for the position of next fall's Freshman Camp director, announced YMCA president-elect Graham Rights.

Application blanks should be picked up today or tomorrow in the YMCA office, Rights said.

Planning for next fall's camp has been going on for more than two months under a system of rotating chairmen from meeting to meeting, according to Rights.

An important "Counselor's Training Session" will be held tomorrow night at which time a preliminary announcement on nominations for camp director will be made, said Rights.

★

Miss Anais Nin will speak on "The Poetic Film" tonight at the showing of a group of experimental films.

The showing will be held in Carroll Hall at 8:30. It is being sponsored by the departments of art, English, Music, Physics and Radio, Television and Motion Pictures.

The films to be shown are those of Ian Hugo. They are Bells of Atlantis, based on a prose poem by Miss Nin, Jazz of Lights and AI-YE.

—Women's Honor Council—

(Continued from Page 1)

were given social probation and one was excused.

Seven cases concerned returning to the dormitories past an hour closing time, said the report. One such case was given an official reprimand plus social probation, two were given social probation, three were excused and one was referred to the University psychiatrist.

Four coeds were tried for having six or more violations of house rules. In all cases, social probation was given, said the report.

One coed was reported for having been in town after the dormitory closing hours, according to the report. According to the report, she was given a council reprimand plus social probation.

The report said one coed was given social probation for illegally letting her roommate into the dorm after closing hours.

—Senator—

(Continued from Page 1)

his A.B. from Harvard University and his LL.B. from Harvard Law School in 1917.

Out of Doors Calling?

Does the heady twang of a busting tennis racket warm your heart? Does your soul stir to the satisfying sock of a baseball landing just right in somebody's eye-socket?

Come in, pal. There's a lovely clear space just for you in front of our Sports Book shelf.

The Intimate Bookshop
205 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Evenings

STUDENTS!

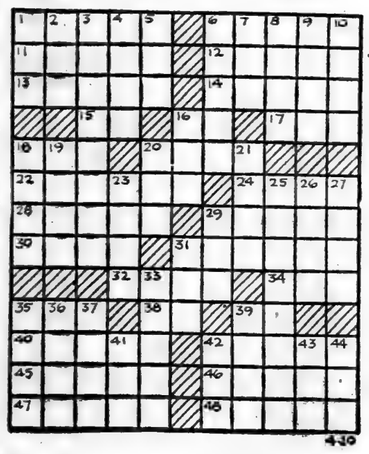
More often than not there's room for you in the

G. M. POOL ROOM

10 a.m. to 1 p.m.
5-7 p.m.
9-11 p.m.

CLASSIFIEDS

RELIGIOUS BOOKS — YOU'LL find a big clump of them at silly little prices in our Old Book Corner. THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP, Chapel Hill.



OPPORTUNITY FOR NEAT APPEARING lady to demonstrate for Stanley Home Products. Car necessary. Full or part time. Average earning $8.00 to $16.00 a day. Call 9-9628 or interview.

THE DAILY TAR HEEL WILL pay 20c each for the first ten copies of the April 3 edition that are turned in.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Depart
6. A country gallant
11. Musical instrument
12. Plural of "penny" (Brit.)
13. Pulverize
14. Valuable fur-bearing mammal
15. Tellurium (sym.)
16. Thus
17. Fuss
18. A wing
20. Slay
22. Maker of hats
24. Priest of a mosque
28. Entire
29. Male duck
30. Manufactured
31. Power to buy or borrow on trust
32. An extreme conservative
34. East-northeast (abbr.)
35. Millpond
38. Near
39. Music note
40. Swiftly
42. A raid
45. Rocky fragments at cliff base (Geol.)
46. Silk scarf (Eccl.)
47. Rugged mountain crest
48. Former president of Czechoslovakia

DOWN
1. Record of a ship's voyage
2. Blunder
3. Stirred up
4. Weathercock
5. Conclude
6. Bobbin
7. Damp
8. Pilaster
9. Frosted
10. A Roman emperor
16. Title of respect
18. Exclamation
19. Volcanic rock
20. Part of a lock
21. Coins (It.)
23. Allowance for waste (Comm.)
25. A native of Madeira
26. Related
27. Apportion
29. Arid
31. Weep
33. Fat
35. Facts
36. Armadillo
37. Masculine
39. Ripped
41. Slash
42. Watch pocket
43. Malt beverage
44. Affirmative reply

Yesterday's Answer

4-20

FREE... Advance copies of Reader's Digest articles!

HERE'S HOW TO GET THEM: To acquaint you with the interesting articles in The Reader's Digest, we make this special offer:

From the descriptions below of some of the articles to appear in the June issue of The Reader's Digest, pick the three articles you would most like to read. Circle with pencil the numbers of these three articles on the coupon below. Then mail coupon to us with your name and address. We'll send you free copies of the three articles you choose.

This offer is good for only a few days, so send us the coupon TODAY.

